Gravis illa fuit Profundi Doctoris Querela, totum pene Mundum poſt Pelagium in Errorem abire. Cauſa in promptu eſt; nam propter Adæ, et in eo Peccantis Humani Generis, Naufragium, mortales prout Res ſint, nec ſentiunt, nec judicant. Toti, toti, quanti quantiq; ſunt, a Bono & Vero averſi, converſi ad Malum & Errorem. Pelagianiſmus itaq; Homini in Statu lapſo Naturalis eſt, nec unquam ſic avelli poteſt, quòd non iterum tanquam infelix Lolium, in Fundo Naturæ corruptæ exoriatur. Videmus Papiſtas, Socinianiſtas, nec non Arminii Sequaces, Pelagii de Liberi Arbitrii Viribus, virus Abſorbentes ac Devorantes; tametſi eorum Error, non tantum ab Auguſtino, jamdudum, & a Luthero, in Libro Inſigni cui Titulus eſt, De ſervo Arbitrio, ſed etiam ab Innumeris hujus Seculi Viris perquam Eruditis, refutatur. Sed faceſſat jam Arminianiſmus, cum ſit Neo-pelagianiſmus. Mihi in Mentem venit Anagramma, ſive Ingenioſa Nominis Arminii Interpretatio, ex Literarum Trajectione. Jacobus Arminius, ἀναγραμματιζόμενος eſt, Vani Orbis Amicus; At nobis ergo non ſit Amicus. Habemus autem in Amyraldo, Arminium Redivivum; parùm enim, aut nihil afferunt Amyraldiſtæ, quos Novatores & Methodiſtas vocant, niſi quæ ab Arminianis acceperunt, uti Multis Cl. Molineus evicit. Faceſſant igitur Novatores, et in Noſtra Academia, nec Vola, nec Veſtigium Arminianiſmi unquam inveniatur. In quantum verò Inceptores noſtri veram contrà Arminianiſmum Sententiam pro virili propugnârunt, eos Laureâ Dignos habeamus.

And now, I hope, that the European Churches of the Faithful, will caſt an Eye of ſome Reſpect upon a little Univerſity in America, recommended by the Character that has been thus given of it. Certainly they muſt be none but Enemies to the Reformation, the Sons of Edom (which the Jewiſh Rabbins very truly tell us, is the Name of Rome in the Sacred Oracles) that ſhall ſay of ſuch an Univerſity, Raſe it! Raſe it!

§. 8. But our Account of Harvard-Colledge, will be rendred more compleat, if we do here tranſcribe the Laws of it; which Laws, now, Reader, do beſpeak thy Patience.

22. Gradus Academici, qui à Præſide & Curatoribus Collegii Harvardini, antehac Collati ſunt, pro Validis habeantur.

23. Unusquiſq; Scholaris harum Legum Exemplar, à Præſide, & Aliquo Tutorum Subſcriptum, ſibi comparabit, priusquam in Collegium admittatur.

§. 9. Among the Laws of Harvard-Colledge thus recited, the Reader will find the Degrees of a Baccalaureate and a Doctorate, in Divinity, provided for thoſe, that by coming up to Terms, beyond thoſe required, in any one European Univerſity, ſhall merit them. Now tho' there are Divines in the Country, whoſe Abilities would fully anſwer the Terms thus propoſed; yet partly from the Novelty of the Matter it ſelf, which under the former Charter was never pretended unto, and partly from the Modeſty of the Perſons moſt worthy to have this Reſpect put upon them, there was yet never made among us any of theſe Promotions. 'Tis true, theſe Titles, are of no very Early Original; for the Occaſion of them firſt aroſe, about the Year of our Lord, 1135. Lotharius the Emperor, having found in Italy, a Copy of the Roman Civil Law, which he was greatly taken withal, he ordained, that it ſhould be Publickly expounded in the Schools; and that he might give Encouragement unto this Employment, it was Ordained, that the Publick Profeſſors of this Law ſhould be Dignified with the Style of Doctors, whereof Bulgarus Hugolinus, with Others, was the Firſt. Not long after, this Rite of Creating Doctors, was borrowed of the Lawyers, by Divines, who in their Schools publickly taught Divinity; and the Imitation took place, firſt in Bononia, Paris and Oxford. But I ſee not, why ſuch Marks of Honour may not be properly given by an American Univerſity, as well as an European to them, who by ſuch Capacity and Activity for the Service of the Churches, do deſerve to be ſo diſtinguiſhed. Indeed, this Univerſity did preſent their Preſident with a Diploma, for a Doctorate under the Seal of the Colledge with the Hands of the Fellows annexed; which, becauſe it is the Firſt and the Sole Inſtance of ſuch a Thing done in the whole Engliſh America, I will here tranſcribe it.

Quum Gradus Academicas, tam in Theologiâ, quam in Philoſophiâ, pro more Academiarum in Angliâ, Conferendi Poteſtas, ab Ampliſſimo Gubernatore, et a Summa Maſſachuſettenſis Provinciæ Curia, ſecundùm Sereniſs. Regis ac Reginæ Gulielmi & Mariæ, illis Conceſſum Diploma, ſit ad nobis Commiſſa: et quoniam Vir Clariſſimus, D. CRESCENTVS MATHERVS, Collegii Harvardini in Novâ Angliâ Præſes Reverendus, Libros quam plurimos tam Anglicè quàm Latinè edidit, Omnigenâ Literaturâ Refertos, multiſq; præterea modis, non ſolum in Linguis et in Artibus Liberalibus peritiſſimum, verum etiam in S. S. Scripturis & in Theolgiâ ſe oſtendit verſatiſſimum; Atq; per Studia & Merita verè extraordinaria, non tantum apud Americanas, ſed et Europæanas Eccleſias commendatiſſimum ſe reddidit; propterea dictum D. CRESCENTIVM MATHERVM, Doctorali Cathedrâ dignum, judicamus, eumq; pro Authoritate nobis Commiſſâ, S. Theologiæ DOCTOREM, Nominamus ac Renunciamus. In cujus Rei Teſtimonium, Academiæ Sigillum Hiſce Literis affiximus; Nos, quorum hic ſunt ſubſcripta Nomina, Datum Cantabrigiæ Nov-Anglorum Die Novembris Septimo, Anno Domini Milleſimo, Sexcenteſimo, Nonageſimoq; Secundo.

Nevertheleſs, whatever Uſe he may hereafter ſee Cauſe to make of this Inſtrument, he hath hitherto been willing to wear no other Title, than what formerly he had, in the Catalogue of our Graduates. which is the Next Thing, that my Reader is to be entertained withal.

§. 10. Reader, The Sons of HARVARD are going to preſent themſelves in Order before thee. The Catalogue pretends not unto ſuch Numbers, as Oſiander will find for us in his Academy of Tubinga, which yielded more than Four Thouſand Maſters, Inter quos erant magna Nomina & Lumina; nor ſuch Numbers, as Howel reports of Paris, where there have been known, at One Time, Twenty Thouſand, yea, Thirty Thouſand Students; nor ſuch Numbers as Alſted reports of Prague, where the Univerſity had at Once, Forty Four Thouſand Forreigners, that were Students in it, beſides the Native Bohemians. Nevertheleſs it muſt be acknowledged, That here are pretty Competent Numbers, for a poor Wilderneſs in its Infancy; and a poor Wilderneſs indeed it had been, if the Cultivations of ſuch a Colledge had not been beſtowed upon it. In the peruſal of this Catalogue, it will be found, that, beſides a Supply of Miniſters for our Churches from this Happy Seminary, we have hence had a Supply of Magiſtrates, as well as Phyſicians and other Gentlemen, to ſerve the Common-wealth with their Capacities. Yea, the Conſiderable Names of STOVGHTON and DVDLEY, in this Liſt, have been advanced unto the Chief Place in Government: Nor has the Country ſent over, over Agents to appear at Whitehall, for any of its Intereſts upon any Occaſion for more than theſe Thirty Years, but what had their Education in this Nurſery. It will be alſo found that Europe as well as America, has from this Learned Seminary, been enriched with ſome Worthy Men; among whom I will rather chooſe to omit the mention of Sir George Downing, who occurs in the firſt Claſs of our Graduates, than reckon him with a Company ſo diſagreeable to him, as the Reſt, that were many of them afterwards Famous Miniſters of the Goſpel in England and Ireland. Non bene conveniunt, nec in una ſede morantur. It will be likewiſe found, that not a few of theſe Harvardians, have by their Publiſhed Writings been uſeful unto the World. That Excellent Man, who is the Leader of this whole Company, and who was a Star of the firſt Magnitude in his Conſtellation, to wit, Mr. Benjamin Woodbridge; an Eminent Herald of Heaven at Salisbury, and afterwards at Newbury in England, and (after the Act of Uniformity and the Perſecution following hereupon creepled him) in ſeveral other Places, as he had Opportunity: He wrote ſeveral Conſiderable Treatiſes about Juſtification; as alſo, Againſt the Unwarrantable Practice of Private Chriſtians, in Uſurping the Office of Publick Preaching; and as the Scoffing Wood acknowledges, He was accounted among the Brethren a Learned and a Mighty Man. After Him we have had, beſides thoſe, whoſe Lives are anon to be Written, many others that by Writing have made themſelves to Live; and not only have we had a Danforth, a Nathanael Mather, an Hoar, a Rowlandſon, a Nowel, a Whiting, an Hooker, a Moodey, an Eleazar Mather, a Richardſon, a Thacher, an Adams, a Saltonſtal, a Walter, the Authors of Leſſer Compoſures, out of their modeſt Studies, even as with a Cæſarean Section, forced into Light; but alſo we have had an Hubbard, an Iſaac Chancey, a Willard, a Stoddard, the Authors of larger Compoſures. Yea, the Preſent Preſident of the Colledge has obliged the Publick with more than Thirty ſeveral Treatiſes of Diverſe Matters, and Figures, and in Diverſe Languages. 'Tis true, there is One more among the Sons of this Colledge, that might already bring in a Catalogue of more than Threeſcore ſeveral Books, which the Preſs has had from him; nevertheleſs as Ronſard the French Poet upon Reading of Du-Bartas's WEEKS, would ſay, Monſieur Du Bartas a fait plus en une Semaine, que Je n'ay fait en toute ma Vite; Du-Bartas has done more in One Week, than I have done all the Days of my Life: So it muſt be acknowledged, That Three Compoſures of One Writer may be more valuable than Threeſcore of another. Nor indeed, muſt it be Enumerated among the leaſt Bleſſings of New-England, that it has been above all the reſt of the Engliſh America, furniſhed with Preſſes, from which it has had a Thouſand Ways, the Benefits of that Art of Printing; a Gift of Heaven, whereof Beroaldus well ſang;

Quo nil Utilius dedit Vetuſtas,
Libros Scribere quæ doces premendo.

Finally, if Harvard be now asked, as once Jeſſe was, are here all thy Sons? It muſt be anſwered, no; for upon a Diſatisfaction, about an Hardſhip which they thought put upon themſelves, in making them loſe a good part of a Year of the Time, whereupon they Claimed their Degree (about the Year 1655) there was a Conſiderable Number, even Seventeen of the Scholars, which went away from the Colledge without any Degree at all. Nevertheleſs, this Diſaſter hindred not their future ſerviceableneſs in the Churches of the Faithful, and ſome of them indeed proved extraordinary ſerviceable: Among whom it would be Criminal for me to forget Mr. William Brimſmead, Paſtor at this Day to the Church of Malborough; and Mr. Samuel Torrey, of Wegmouth, (of whoſe there are publiſhed Three Sermons, which at ſo many ſeveral times were Preached, at the Anniverſary Elections of Magiſtrates.) And unto theſe I may add Mr. Samuel Wakeman, the Paſtor to the Church of Fairfield, of whom we have Three or Four ſeveral Sermons publiſhed.

What now Remains, is to look over our Catalogue; and then ſingle out ſome Subjects for a more particular Biography. Only, while I carry in my Reader to ſpeak with them, the Writer himſelf, (ſolicitous, that the Name which Philo Judæus puts upon a Colledge; Namely, Διδασκαλεῖον συμπάσης ἀρετῆς, or, A School of all Virtue, may ever and juſtly be the Name of Harvard Colledge) will take the Leave to Addreſs their Succeſſors, with certain Admonitions, tranſlated from no leſs than a National Synod of the Proteſtant Churches in France. The laſt National Synod, that ſat before the Diſſipation of thoſe Renowned Churches, after the Other, and many, Cares, which the former moſt Venerable Aſſemblies took of their Univerſities, by their Decree, earneſtly exhorted the Governors of the Univerſities, to exert all their Power, For the Suppreſſion of Abuſes crept in among them, redounding to the Diſgrace of Religion, and opening the Flood-gates to the Deluge of Profaneneſs, to break in upon the Sanctuary; and under Severe Penalties enjoined the Scholars, but moſt eſpecially the Students in Divinity, To keep themſelves at the greateſt Diſtance from ſuch Things, as are contrary to Chriſtian Modeſty and Sanctity, and to perfume the Houſe of God, betimes with the ſweet Odours of an Early Religious Converſation, every way becoming the Sacred Employment, whereto they be deſigned. Now when we have tranſcribed ſome of the Excellent Words, uſed by Monſieur Guitton, at the preſenting of this Decree to the Univerſity of Saumur, we will, without any further Delay give our Catalogue Leave to appear before us.

“You have Conſecrated your Labours; your “Time, your whole Man, unto the Service of “the Sovereign Monarch of the Whole World; “that Lord, who is ador'd by all the Angels. Your “own Conſciences, Sirs, as well as mine, muſt “needs tell you, you cannot bring with you, too “much Humility, nor too much Self-Abaſement, “nor too much Self-Annihilation, nor too much “ Simplicity and Sincerity, when you come into His Preſence, whoſe Eyes are as a Flaming Fire, and who ſearcheth your Hearts and trieth your Reins; and offer your ſelves to be Enroll'd in the Number of his Menial Servants, and Goſpel-Miniſters.

“ To be ſhort, Sirs, You are deſtinated unto an Employment, in which there be no Advancements made, but by Prayers; and Prayers are never Heard, nor Anſwered by God, further than they be Sincere; and they be not in the leaſt Sincere, where the Hearts are not guided and purified by the Truth of God's Holy Word and Spirit, who dictateth our Prayers and quickneth and ſanctifieth our Affections. Do you imagine, Sirs, that God will give you His Holy Spirit, without whom you are Nothing and can do Nothing, unleſs you ask Him of God? And are you then Qualified and Fitted for Prayer, a moſt Holy Duty, when as your Spirit is ſtuffed up, occupied and diſtracted, with your Youthful Luſts, and repleniſhed with the Provoking Objects of your Vanity? Or, can you bring unto this Sacred Ordinance, unto this moſt Religious Exerciſe, that Attention, Aſſiduity and Perſeverance, which is needful to the Getting of Gracious Anſwers, and Returns from Heaven, whenas the Better and far Greater Part of your Time, is conſumed in Worldly Companies and Converſations? Certainly, Sirs, You will find it exceeding Difficult to diſentangle your ſelves from thoſe Impreſſions you have firſt received, and to empty your ſelves of the Vanities you have imbibed, that you may be at Liberty to Reflect and Meditate upon God's Holy Word.

“ My Dear Brethren, Honour and Adorn that Profeſſion, whereto you are Devoted, and it will Reflect Beams of Honour again upon you. Conſider. Sirs, what is Becoming you, and God will communicate what is needful for you, to ev'ry one of you. Let His Name and Glory be the Principal Mark and Butt of your Conditions and Studies, and it will bring down the Choiceſt and Chiefeſt of Bleſſings of God upon you. Let your Lives and Converſations be Accompanied and Crowned with all the Virtues and Graces of Reformed Chriſtians; with that Humility, which becometh the Servants of God; with that Univerſal Modeſty and Simplicity, which God requireth from the Miniſters of His Sanctuary, in their Lives, Actions, Habits, Language, Behaviour, and in your whole Courſe. And then, Sirs, this your Sanctification will be moſt Acceptable unto God, and ſaving unto your ſelves; it will bring your Profeſſion into Credit and Reputation; it will attract upon you the Beſt Bleſſings of Heaven; it will render your Studies, and Employments proſperous, ſucceſsful and edifying; the Churches will be the Better for you, and the Kingdom of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt will be by you Promoted and Advanced.

To theſe Admonitions of Monſieur Guitton, I will only for a Farewel, unto every Scholar now addreſs'd, ſubjoin That wherewith Mr. Carter took his Leave of a Scholar, Fuge Faſtum, Ignaviam & Antichriſtum.

Our CATALOGUE is now, without any further Ceremony to be produced; A Catalogue of Chriſtian Students, inſtructed in thoſe, which the other Day were Pagan Regions; A Catalogue, whereof I may therefore ſay as the Hiſtorian does of the Temples built by Conſtantine, It is τὸ πᾶν εὐκταῖον, ϗ ποθούμενον θέαμα, To all Good Men, a deſireable Spectacle.

THE HISTORY OF Harvard=Colledge.

PART II.

The LIVES of ſome Eminent Perſons therein Educated.

Diſcant ergò rabidi adverſus Chriſtum canes, diſcant eorum Sectatores, qui putant Eccleſiam nullos Philoſophos et Eloquentes, nullos habuiſſe Doctores, quanti et quales Viri eam extruxerint et ornaverint, et deſinant Fidem noſtram Ruſticæ tantum Simplicitatis arguere, ſuamque potius Imperitiam agnoſcant. Hieron. Præf. ad Catul. de Script. Eccleſ.

§. 1. THE Great Baſil mentions a Certain Art, of Drawing many Doves, by anointing the Wings of a Few with a Fragrant Ointment, and ſo ſending them abroad that by the Fragrancy of the Ointment they may allure others unto the Houſe, whereof they are themſelves the Domeſticks. I know not how far it may have any Tendency to draw others unto the Religion hitherto profeſſed and maintained in Harvard-Colledge: But I have here ſent forth ſome of the Doves belonging to that Houſe, with the Ointment of a Good Name upon them. And yet I ſhould not have beſtow'd the Ointment of their Embalmed Name, as I have done, if the God of Heaven by firſt beſtowing the Ointment of His Heavenly Grace upon them, had not given them to deſerve it. Socrates being asked, which was the moſt Beautiful Creature in the World, anſwered, A Man garniſhed with Learning. But, with his Leave, a more Beautiful Creature is, A Man garniſhed with Vertue. Reader, I will now ſhow thee Ten Men garniſhed with Both.

§. 2. The Death of thoſe Brave Men that firſt planted New-England, would have rendred a fit Emblem for the Countrey. A Beech-Tree with its Top lopt off, and the Motto, Ruina Relinquor; (which Tree withers when its Top is lopt off!) if Harvard-Colledge had not prevented it. But now, upon the Lops of Mortality, Uno avulſo non defecit Alter. We have Opportunity to Write the Lives of another Set, who indeed had their Whole Growth in the Soyl of New-England; Perſons, whom I may call Cedars and Fir-Trees, as Jerom did Cyprian and Hilary, and other Holy Men in his Comment on that Paſſage, Iſa. 60. 13. The Glory of Lebanon ſhall come unto thee, the Fir-Tree, and the Pine-Tree, to beautifie the Place of my Sanctuary.

CHAP. I.

FIDES IN VITA:

OR, THE

Mr. John Brock.

§. 1. DEſigning to Write the Lives of ſome Learned Men, who have been the Iſſue and the Honour of Harvard-Colledge, let my Reader be rather Admoniſhed than Scandalized by it, if the Firſt of theſe Lives, exhibit One, whoſe Goodneſs was above his Learning, and whoſe Chief Learning was his Goodneſs. If One had asked Mr. JOHN BROCK, that Queſtion in Antoninus, Τίς σοῦ ἡ τέχνη: Of what Art haſt thou proceeded Maſter? He might have truly anſwered, Ἀγαθὸν εἶναι. My Art is to be Good. He was a Good Grammarian, chiefly in this, that he Stil ſpoke the Truth from his Heart. He was a Good Logician, chiefly in this, that he Preſented himſelf unto God with a Reaſonable Service. He was a Good Arithmetician, chiefly in this, that he So numbred his Days as to apply his Heart unto Wiſdom. He was a Good Aſtronomer, chiefly in this, that his Converſation was in Heaven. It was chiefly by being a Good Chriſtian, that he proved himſelf a Good Artiſt. The Elogy which Gregory the Great beſtow'd on Steven the Monk, Erat hujus Lingua Ruſtica, ſed Docta Vita; ſo much belong'd unto this Good Man, that ſo Learned a Life, may well be judg'd worthy of being a Written One.

§. 2. He was Born at the Town of Stradbrook, in the County of Suffolk. A. D. 1620. And from his own Trial of Early Piety in himſelf, while he was yet a Youth, he was qualified, in a more Significant and Efficacious Manner, to Recommend it unto Young People, as he very much did, when he came to be Old. When he was about ſeventeen Years of Age, he came to New-England, as to a Nurſery of Piety, with his Parents: And here, no ſooner was he recovered of the Small Pox, wherein he was very nigh unto Death, but another Fit of Sickneſs held him for no leſs than Thirty Weeks together; whereby the Hand of Heaven ordering the Furnace, prepared him for the Services that he afterwards performed.

§. 3. He was admitted into Harvard-Colledge, A. D. 1643. where he ſtudied for ſeveral Years, with an Exemplary Diligence; being of the Opinion, that as Caleb ſaid unto his Men, I beſtow my Daughter upon one of you, but he that will have her, muſt firſt win Kiriath-Sepher; i. e. A City of Books; thus, One is not worthy to have a Church beſtow'd upon him, until he hath ſome time lain before Kiriath-Sepher, and ſtaid at ſome Univerſity. After five Years lying here (as loth to be one of the Sacerdotes Momentandi, or, Modò Idiotæ mox Clerici, ſometimes by the Ancients complained of) he entred upon the Work of the Evangelical Miniſtry; firſt at Rowly, and then at the Iſle of Sholes. Here Scaliger might have indeed found Wiſdom inhabiting the Rocks; and here a Spiritual Fiſherman, did more than a little Good among a Rude Company of Literal Ones.

§. 4. In the Year, 1662. he became a Paſtor to the Church at Reading. And here he continued in the Faithful Diſcharge of his Miniſtry, until the Time, that (as the Ancients expreſſed it) He took his Journey a little before his Body, into another Countrey. He wholly devoted himſelf, unto his Beloved Employment; preaching on Lord's Days, and on Lectures at Private Church-Meetings, and at Meetings of Young Perſons for the Exerciſes of Religion, which he mightily encouraged, as Great Engines, to render his more Publick Labours effectual on the Riſing Generation. His Paſtoral Viſits, to Water what had been Sown in his Publick Labours, were alſo very ſedulous and aſſiduous; and in theſe he managed a peculiar Talent, which he had at Chriſtian Conference, whereby he did more Good, than ſome Abler Preachers did in the Pulpit. He was herewithal ſo Exemplary for his Holineſs, that our Famous Mr. Mitchel would ſay of him, He dwelt as near Heaven, as any Man upon Earth.

§ 5. About Three or Four Years before his Death, he was viſited with a Long and Sore Fit of Sickneſs: But upon his Reſtoration from that Sickneſs, he enjoy'd a more Wonderful Preſence of God with him in his Miniſtry than ever before, and a more Wonderful Succeſs of it. At length, he told One in his Family, that he had beſought this Favour of Heaven; To live but fourteen Days after the Publick Labours of his Miniſtry ſhould be finiſhed: And he was in this thing moſt particularly favoured. He fell ſick, and after a Sickneſs of juſt Fourteen Days, on June 18. 1688. his Friends full of Sorrow for their Loſs, might uſe Nazianzen's Words concerning him, 'Αφίπταται, He is flown away. But their Sorrow, Quòd talem amiſerint, was (to uſe the Words of Jerom to Nepotian) accompanied with Gladneſs, Quòd talem habuerint.

§. 6. Good Men, that labour and abound in Prayer to the Great God, ſometimes arrive to the Aſſurance of a Particular Faith, for the Good Succeſs of their Prayer. 'Tis not a Thing that never happens, That the Children of God, in the midſt of their Supplications for this or that Particular Mercy: find their Hearts very Comfortably, but Unaccountably carried forth to a ſtrange Perſwaſion, that they ſhall receive this Particular Mercy from the Lord; and this Perſwaſion is not a meer Notion and Fancy but a ſpecial Impreſſion from Heaven, upon the Minds of the Saints that are made Partakers of it. This Particular Faith is not the Attainment of Every Chriſtian, much leſs an Endowment of Every Prayer. There is no Real Chriſtian, but what Prays in Faith; his Prayer hath a General Faith in the Power, and Wiſdom, and Goodneſs of God, and the Mediation of Chriſt. But there is many a Real Chriſtian, who is a Stranger to the Meaning of this Thing; A particular Faith for ſuch Mercies, without which a Man may get ſafe to Heaven at the laſt. It is here and there a Chriſtian, whom the Sovereign Grace of Heaven, does Favour, with the Conſolations of a Particular Faith: Nor if a Chriſtian taſte of theſe Joys, may ſhe expect more than a Taſte of them; they are Dainties that are not every Day to be Feaſted on: 'Tis not in every Prayer, that the King of Heaven will admit every one to ſo much of Intimacy with himſelf. Indeed, ſuch a Particular Faith, is not ſo much the Duty of a Chriſtian, as his Comfort, his Honour, his Priviledge. There is a Praying in Faith, incumbent on every Chriſtian in every Prayer; but this Particular Faith for the beſtowal of ſuch and ſuch deſired Mercies, is not incumbent on a Chriſtian; 'tis not required of him. 'Tis a vaſt Priviledge, for a Chriſtian to be Aſſured, that the Lord will do this or that individual Thing for him; however, 'tis no Sin for a Chriſtian to break off not Aſſured of it. But it is the Holy Spirit of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that with a Singular Operation, does produce in a Chriſtian this Parcular Faith; which indeed is near akin to the Faith of Miracles. Nor does the Principal Efficiency of the Holy Spirit, in theſe Illapſes, exclude and hinder, the Inſtrumentality of the Holy Angels in them: They are are no doubt the Holy Angels, that with an Inexpreſſible Impulſe, bear in upon the Mind, the Particular Faith, wherewith ſome Saints are at ſome Times irradiated. The Wondrous Meltings, the Mighty Wreſtlings, the Quiet Waitings, and the Holy Reſolves, that are Characters of a Particular Faith, which is no Deluſion, are the Works of the Holy Spirit, wherein His Holy Angels may be Inſtruments.

Eminent was Mr. Brock, for this Myſterious Excellency. This Good Man, was One Full of the Holy Spirit, and Faith. He had many of thoſe Things, which we may call (as the Martyr Cyprian call'd, thoſe Communications from Heaven, which often directed him in his Exigencies.) Divine Condeſcenſions. And there were many Notable Effects of his Faithful and Fervent Prayers, whereof the Exact Hiſtory is now loſt, becauſe it was not in the proper Seaſon thereof compoſed and preſerved.

Some few Remarkables, are not only ſtill remembred, but alſo well Atteſted.

One Thomas Bancroft lay very ſick of the Small Pox, his diſtreſſed Mother came drowned in Tears to Mr. Brock; ſhe told him, She left her Son ſo ſick, that ſhe did not imagine ever to ſee him alive again; he replied, Siſter, Be of good Cheer; the Lord has told me nothing of your Son's dying, I'l again go with his Caſe unto the Lord. The Young Man recovered, and is at this Day a Deacon of the Church in Reading.

A Child of one Arnold, about ſix Years old, lay ſick, ſo near dead, that they judg'd it really dead. Mr. Brock perceiving ſome Life in it, goes to Prayer; and in his Prayer uſed this Expreſſion, Lord, wilt thou not grant ſome Sign, before we leave Prayer, that thou wilt ſpare and heal this Child? We cannot leave thee till we have it! The Child ſneez'd immediately, Mr. Brock then gives Thanks, and breaks off. The very next Day, the Child viſited Him, and carried him a Preſent.

When Mr. Brock lived in the Iſle of Sholes, he brought the People into an Agreement, that, beſides the Lord's-Days, they would ſpend one Day every Month together in the Worſhip of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. On a certain Day, which by their Agreement belong'd unto the Exerciſes of Religion, being arrived, the Fiſhermen came to Mr. Brock, and ask'd him, that they might Put by their Meeting, and go a Fiſhing, becauſe they had loſt many Days by the Foulneſs of the Weather. He ſeeing, that without and againſt his Conſent, they reſolved upon doing what they had asked of him, replied, If you will go away, I ſay unto you, catch Fiſh, if you can! But as for you, you, that will tarry, and worſhip the Lord Jeſus Chriſt this Day, I will pray unto Him for you, that you may take Fiſh till you are weary. Thirty Men went away from the Meeting, and Five tarried. The Thirty which went away from the Meeting, with all their Skill could catch but Four Fiſhes; the Five which tarried, went forth afterwards, and they took Five Hundred. The Fiſhermen after this readily attended, whatever Meetings Mr. Brock appointed them.

A Fiſher-man, who had with his Boat, been very Helpful, to carry a People over a River, for the Worſhip of God, on the Lord's-Days, in the Iſle of Sholes, loſt his Boat in a Storm. The poor Man laments his Loſs to Mr. Brock; who tells him, Go home, Honeſt Man, I'l mention the Matter to the Lord, you'l have your Boat again to Morrow. Mr. Brock now conſidering, of what a Conſequence this Matter, that ſeem'd ſo ſmall otherwiſe, might be among the untractable Fiſhermen, made the Boat an Article of his Prayers; and behold, on the Morrow, the poor Man comes rejoycing to him, That his Boat was found, the Anchor of another Veſſel, that was undeſignedly caſt upon it, having ſtrangely brought it up, from the Unknown Bottom, where it had been ſunk.

When K. Charles II. ſent One of his Infamous Creatures, whoſe Name was Cranfield, for to be Governor of Hampſhire, a Northern Province of New-England, one of the Illegal Outrages committed by that Cranfield was, the Impriſoning of Mr. Moodey, the Miniſter of Portſmouth. One, who then lived with Mr. Brock, ſeeing him one Morning very ſorrowful, ask'd him the Reaſon of his preſent Sorrow. Said he, I am very much troubled for my Dear Brother Moodey, who is impriſoned by Cranfield: but I will this day ſeek to the Lord on his behalf, and I believe my God will hear me! And on that very Day was Mr. Moodey (forty Miles off) by a marvellous Diſpoſal of Providence, delivered out of his Impriſonment.

Multitudes of ſuch Paſſages, whereof theſe are but ſome few Gleanings, cauſed our Mr. John Allin of Dedham, to ſay concerning Mr. Brock; I ſcarce ever knew any Man ſo Familiar with the Great God, as His Dear Servant Brock!

CHAP. II.

FRUCTUOSUS:

OR, THE

Mr. Samuel Mather.

Hæc caſti maneant In Religione Nepotes
Et Nati Natorum, et qui naſcentur ab illis.

§. 1. IT is a Thing truly, and juſtly thought among the Churches of God, Fœlix illa Anima, quæ Aliis eſt Forma Sanctitatis: Thrice and Four Times Happy that Man, from whoſe Example, other Men may learn to be Holy and Happy. Now, for this Happineſs, not only were many among the firſt Fathers of New-England, with the Hiſtory of whoſe Exemplary Lives, the Faithful have been entertained, conſiderable; but ſome among the Sons of thoſe Fathers alſo, have bin ſo exemplary for their Holineſs, that their Lives alſo deſerve to fill the Pages of an Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory. One of thoſe is now going to be ſet before my Reader; and one, who, whether we conſider his Early Sanctity, or his Fervent Miniſtry, will appear ſo much of a John Baptiſt unto us, that I chooſe the Confeſſion of, Joſephus the Jewiſh Hiſtorian (who, if he were admitted into the Diſcipline of Banus, a Diſciple of John, as he ſays, he was, he might well make ſuch a Confeſſion) concerning that John, to expreſs the Character of this Worthy Man; He was an Excellent Man, and One that ſtirred up the People to Piety and Virtue, Holineſs and Purity. This was Mr. Samuel Mather.

§. 2. Mr. Samuel Mather, was Born May 13. A. D. 1626. at Much-Wootton in Lancaſhire. But was the Queſtion of Saul concerning David, Whoſe Son is this Youth ? About the Meaning of which Queſtion, there may be ſome Wonder, becauſe David had already been ſerviceable, at the Court of Saul, ſome while before: And therefore ſome take the Meaning of the Queſtion to be, What Manner of Man's Son is this ? It was Obſerved, that ſome of the Notableſt Men in the Land, were of this Family, and, among the reſt, Joab was of it, Joab, who for his Valour was made General of the Field, Joab, who never once in his Life miſs'd of the Victory ; He was the Son of Jeſſe's Daughter. Now Saul was inquiſitive, What manner of Man this Jeſſe was, that all his Children prov'd ſo Eminent. If my Reader, thereto excited by the Figure, which as well this Perſon, as divers of his Brothers have made in the Church of God, ſhall accordingly enquire Whoſe Son was this Youth ? It muſt be anſwered, that his Father was the Famous Mr. Richard Mather, whoſe Life has been already a Conſiderable Part not only in our own Church-Hiſtory, but alſo in the laſt Volume of Mr. Clark's Collections. Brought up, and brought over by this his Father, our Samuel came to New-England, in the Year 1635. delivered with the reſt of his Family, from as Eminent Danger of Death, as ever was eſcaped by Mortal Men, in a Fierce and Sore Hurricane on the New-Engliſh Coaſt.

§. 3. Let the Silly Romaniſt pleaſe himſelf with his Romance of St. Rumald, who as ſoon as he drew his Firſt Breath, cryed Three Times I am a Chriſtian ! and then making a plain Confeſſion of his Faith, deſired, that he might be baptized : It is moſt certainly True, that Samuel Mather, did not ſuffer two Times Three Years to paſs him after his Firſt Breath, before he had, many times, manifeſted himſelf to be a Chriſtian, under the Regenerating Impreſſions of that Spirit, into whoſe Name and Faith, he had been baptized. The Holy Spirit of God made Early Viſits unto our Samuel, who from his Childhood was devoted unto the Tabernacle. He was in his Early Childhood, an Extraordinary Inſtance of Diſcretion, Gravity, Seriouſneſs, Prayerfulneſs, and Watchfulneſs, which accompanied with a certain Generoſity of Temper, and an uſual Progreſs in Learning, wherein ——— Rerum Prudentia Velox,

Ante Pilos venit ; ———

render'd him the Delight of all that part of Mankind, that know him ; and as the Name of Παιδαριογέρων, was of Old given to Macarius, thus this Bleſſed Young Man was commonly called, The Young Old Man, by thoſe that mentioned him. R. Eliezer, the Son of R. Azariah, when made Preſident of the Jewiſh Sanhedrin, at ſixteen Years of Age, was not one of a more compoſed Behaviour. A certain Arabian Commentary upon the Alchoran reports, That when John Baptiſt was a Child, other Boys asked him to play with them ; which he refuſed, ſaying, I was not ſent into the World for Sport. Such great Thoughts inſpired our Samuel Mather, while he was yet a Child ! To Demonſtrate and Illuſtrate this Part of his Character, I ſhall only recite an Extract of a Letter, ; which he wrote from his Lodging in Cambridge, to his Father in Dorcheſter, when he was no more than Twelve Years of Age.

'—— Though (ſaith he) I am thus well in my Body, yet I queſtion whether my Soul doth proſper as my Body doth ; for I perceive, yet to this very Day little Growth in Grace ; and this makes me queſtion, whether Grace be in my Heart or no. I feel alſo daily Great Unwillingneſs to good Duties, and the Great Ruling of Sin in my Heart ; and that God is angry with me, and gives me no Anſwers to my Prayers, but many times, He even throws them down as Duſt in my Face ; and He does not Grant my Continual Requeſts for the Spiritual Bleſſing of the Softning of my Hard Heart. And in all this I could yet take ſome Comfort, but that it makes me to Wonder, What God's Secret Decree concerning me may be ; for I doubt whether ever God is wont to deny Grace and Mercy to His Choſen (though Uncalled) when they ſeek unto Him, by Prayer, for it ; and therefore, ſeeing he doth thus deny it to me, I think, that the Reaſon of it is moſt like to be, becauſe I belong not unto the Election of Grace. I deſire that you would let me have your Prayers, as I doubt not but I have them ; and reſt

Your Son,

Samuel Mather.

Behold the Language of One, more able than the Famous Cornelius Mus, to have been a Preacher (as they ſay he was) when Twelve Years of Age ! Now albeit, ſuch Early Accompliſhments, uſe to be threatned with Cicero's, Non poteſt in eo ſuccus eſſe diuturnus, quod nimis celeriter maturitatem eſt aſſecutus : And with Quintilian's, Ingeniorum præcox Genius, non temerè unquam pervenit ad Frugem ; and with Curtius's, Nullus eſt et Diuturnus & Præcox Fructus ; which our Proverb has Engliſhed, Soon Ripe, ſoon Rotten ; there was no ſuch Obſervation to be made of our Samuel, who ſtill continually grew in his Accompliſhments, and inſtead of loſing them, like the Hermogenes mentioned by C. Rodiginus, he kept advancing in all Wiſdom and Goodneſs, 'till he was found Ripe for Eternal Glory.

§. 4. In the Catalogue of the Graduates proceeding from Harvard-Colledge, our Samuel Mather, was the Firſt, who appears as a Fellow of that Happy Society ; wherein his careful Instruction, and exact Government of the Scholars under his Tuition, cauſed as many of them as were ſo, to mention him afterwards with Honour, as long as they lived ; and ſuch was the Love of all the Scholars to him, that, not only when he read his Laſt Philoſophy-Lecture, in the Colledge-Hall, they heard him with Tears, becauſe of it's being his Laſt, but alſo, when he went away from the Colledge, they put on the Tokens of Mourning in their very Garments for it. But by this his Living at Cambridge, under the Miniſtry of Mr. Shepard, he had the Advantage to conform himſelf, in his younger Years, more than a little, unto the Spirit and Preaching of that Renowned Man; (of whoſe Life, he afterwards publiſhed certain Memoirs unto the World) Of which Thing the Famous Mr. Cotton ſpeaking to this our young Mather, did Congratulate his Happineſs therein; adding, that in like manner, one Great Reaſon, why there came ſo many Excellent Preachers out of Cambridge, in England, more than out of Oxford, in ſome former Days, was the Miniſtry of Mr. Perkins, in that Univerſity. Our Mather being not only by Notable Parts, both Natural and Acquired, and by an Eminently Gracious Diſpoſition of Soul, but alſo by a certain Florid and Sparkling Livelineſs of Expreſſion, admirably fitted for the Service of the Goſpel, ſeveral Congregations in this Wilderneſs, applied themſelves unto him, for the Enjoyment of his Labours among them. In Anſwer to their Applications, he ſpent ſome time with the Church of Rowly, as an Aſſiſtant unto Old Mr. Ezekiel Rogers; where the Zeal of the People to have him ſettled, was the Cauſe of his not ſetling there at all; but when the Temptations ariſing from the Zeal of the People, cauſed him to chooſe a Removal from thence, it went ſo near unto the Hearts of ſome Good Men there, that it contributed, as 'twas thought, even unto ſhortning of their Days, in the World. Here, although in his Rich Furniture of Learning, from the Schools, the Lamps were lighted, before he did venture to bring his Incenſe unto the Altar, yet his Great Learning did not make his Preaching ſo obſcure, as to give the plain Country-People Occaſion for the Complaint, which they ſometimes made of another; This Man may be a Great Scholar, but he wants Beetle and Wedges to hew our knotty Timber withal. Afterwards a Church being to be gathered, in the North Part of Boſton, they had their Eyes upon Him to be their Paſtor, and accordingly He entertained a Vaſt Auditory of Chriſtians, with ſo incomparable a Sermon upon the Day, when that People publickly embodied themſelves into their Eccleſiaſtical State, that Old Mr. Cotton, with whom he then ſojourned, ſaid upon it, Such a Sermon from ſo young a Man as this, is a Matter of much more Satisfaction, than ſuch an One from One of us Elder Men; for this young Man is, Spes Gregis. And with this People he continued the Winter following; among whom, he was long after ſucceeded, by One of his Worthy Brethren.

§. 5. Having in him, the true Spirit of a Witneſs for our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, he did, even while he was a Young Man, in this Country ſet himſelf, with a prudent, but yet fervent Zeal; upon all Occaſions to bear a juſt Witneſs, againſt every thing which he judged contrary unto the Intereſts of Holineſs. But there was hardly any one thing, againſt which he uſed more of Thunderbolt, than that Unholy Spirit of Antinomianiſm, wherewith many People in thoſe Days were led aſide. It was with a particular Agony of Diſſatisfaction, that he would ſtill ſpeak of thoſe Ungodly Men, who turned the Grace of God into Wantonneſs. He would ſpeak of them in ſuch Words as theſe [Reader, they are of his own Words, in a Sermon about Hardneſs of Heart:] 'The ſame Word is uſed for Blindneſs and Hardneſs (Eph. 4. 18. & Rom. 11. 7, 8.) when Ahaſhuerus was offended with Haman, his Face was covered; and amongſt us, when the Cloath is pulled over the Face, at an Execution, the Wretch is preſently to be turn'd off. Thus, when the Eyes of the Soul are covered, and the God of this World blinds them, and they are Given over to believe a Lye, this is the Beginning of their utter Hardneſs, and Eternal Perdition. There are now many Principles of Darkneſs, whereby Mens Hearts are Hardened in Sin; whereof One is, The Abrogation of the Moral Law, as a Rule of Life unto a Chriſtian: A Conceit that came out of Hell; and is directly againſt the Cleareſt Light of Scripture; Mat. 5. 17, 18, 19. And blaſphemouſly injurious to the Blood of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; who dyed for this End, to make his People Zealous of good Works, and therefore it makes him to Dye in vain. This Principle works extream Hardneſs of Heart; for when a Man hath drunk in this Poiſon, he may ſin without Sorrow, yea, and without any Check of Conſcience for it. If he be not bound to Keep to the Rule, why ſhould he be troubled for Breaking of it? What are ſuch Errors but as Calvin ſpeaks, Exundantis in Mundum Furoris Dei Flagella, the Scourges of the Overflowing Fury of an Angry God againſt this Wicked World? Hence alſo there comes to be ſuch Extreme Blindneſs and Blockiſhneſs, and Blackneſs of Hell, upon the Spirits of ſome, as to Deny the Neceſſity of a Broken Heart, and Sorrow for Sin, in theſe Times. Miniſters muſt preach Old Errors, and call them by the Name of New Light. Why, becauſe they are Goſpel Times, as if it were the Work of the Goſpel to Harden Mens Hearts, and make them Stocks or Stones, or like the Sturdy Oaks of Baſhan, before the Words of the God of Iſrael.

Nor could he with eaſier Terms, at any time, ſpeak of the Licentious Diſpoſition, engendred by the Antinomianiſm broached and Rampant, at that time, among many Profeſſors of Chriſtianity.

§. 6. But he that Holds the Stars in his Right Hand, intending that a Star of this Magnitude, ſhould move in an Orb, where his Influences might be more Extended than they could have been by any Opportunities, to be enjoyed and improved in an American Wilderneſs, He inſpired our Mather with a ſtrong Deſire to paſs over into England, and by the Wiſdom of Heaven, there fell out ſeveral Temptations in this Wilder-

Wilderneſs, which occaſioned him to be yet more deſirous of ſuch a Removal. To England then he went, in the Year 1650. Where the Right Honourable Thomas Andrews, Eſq; then Lord Mayor of the City of London, quickly took ſuch Notice of his Abilities, as to make Choice of him, for his Chaplain; and by the Advantage of the Poſt, where he was now placed in that Chaplainſhip, he came into an Acquaintance, with the moſt Eminent Miniſters in the Kingdom; who much Honoured and Valued him, and, though of different Perſwaſions, Loved, Chriſtum habitantem in Mathero. Here his Inclination To do Good, produced Good and Great Effects; but yet One that had like to have proved fatal unto himſelf: For being a Man of ſuch Excellent Accompliſhments, he was Courted ſo often to preach in the Biggeſt Aſſemblies, that by Overdoing therein, he had like to have undone his Friends, and loſt his Life. The Famous Mr. Sydrach Sympſon, obſerving this Inconvenience, did with a Brotherly, yea, with a Fatherly Care, obtain of him a Promiſe, that he would not Preach abroad at all, except when He ſhould give his Conſent; and accordingly when any publick Sermons were asked of him, he would refer thoſe that asked unto Mr. Sympſon, who with a Wiſe and Kind Conſideration of this his Friend's Health, would give his Conſent, but when it ſhould be convenient.

§. 7. Mr. Mather, was after this, invited unto a Settlement, in ſeveral Places; and in Anſwer to thoſe Invitations, he did preach for a while, at Graves-End, and after that, at the Cathedral, in the City of Exeter. But having from his Childhood, a Natural and Vehement Affection to a Colledge-Life, he retired unto Oxford, where he became a Chaplain in Magdalen-Colledge; and he had therewithal an Opportunity, ſometimes at St. Maries, to preach the Goſpel of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which for the Sake of the Lord Redeemer, whom he loved always to preach, he gladly took. And having before this, proceeded Maſter of Arts in the only Proteſtant College of America, he was now admitted, Ad Eundem, not only in the Renowned Univerſity of Oxford, but in that of Cambridge alſo. But having been ſome time reſident in Oxford, the Engliſh Commiſſioners, then going into Scotland, were willing to carry with them ſome Engliſh Miniſters, whoſe Eminent Learning, Wiſdom, Goodneſs and Reputation, might be ſerviceable unto the Intereſts of Truth and Peace in that Nation. Accordingly Mr. Mather was one of the Perſons choſen for that Service; and there he continued at Leigh, preaching the Goſpel of God our Saviour, for Two Years together.

§. 8. In the Year 1655. he returned into England: And the Lord Henry Cromwel, then going over Lord-Deputy for Ireland, there were ſeveral Miniſters of great Note pitched upon to go over with him, for the Service of the Chriſtian Religion there, whereof was Dr. Harriſon, Dr. Winter, Mr. Charnock and our Mr. Mather. When Mr. Mather came to Dublin, he was made a Senior Fellow of Trinity-Colledge; and from that Univerſity he had the Offer of a Baccalaureatus in Theologiâ, but he modeſtly declined it, and ſeemed inclinable to the Jewiſh Rule, about the Rabbinate, Love the Work, but Hate the Rabbiſhip; yet he that had already proceeded Maſter of Arts, in ſo many Univerſities, did here again proceed Ad Eundem. Of any further Degrees our Mather was ready to ſay with the Great Melancthon, who would not accept an Higher Title than that of Maſter; Vides meum Exemplum; Nemo me perpellere potuit, ut illum quamlibet Honorificum Titulum Doctoris mihi decerni ſinerem. Nec ego Gradus illos parviſacio, ſed ideò, quià judico eſſe magna Onera, et neceſſaria Reipublicæ, verecundè petendos eſſe, et conferendos ſentio. But now in preaching to that Renowned City, and in the Paſtoral Charge of the Church there, he was joined as a Colleague with Dr. Winter; and here preached every Lord's Day Morning at St Nichol's Church; beſides his Turn which he took once in ſix Weeks, to preach before the Lord Deputy and Council. A Preacher he now was of Extroardinary Eſteem and Succeſs; and as the whole Kingdom took Notice of him, ſo he did Service for the whole Kingdom, in the Eminent Station, where God had placed him. The more ſpecial Excellencies for which his Miniſtry was here obſerved, were, Firſt, A moſt Evangelical Endeavour to make the Lord Jeſus Chriſt the Scope and Sum of all that he ſaid. Secondly, A moſt Angelical Majeſty, wherewith his Meſſages were ſtill uttered, as coming from the Throne of God; And Thirdly, Such a Clearneſs of Reaſon and Method, that it was commonly remark'd, Mr. Charnock's Invention, Dr. Harriſon's Expreſſion, and Mr. Mather's Logick, meeting together, would have made the Perfecteſt Preacher in the World. And if the Sloathful Man in Prov. 19. 24. who Will not ſo much as bring his Hand unto his Mouth, were by the Ancients underſtood concerning the Unholy Miniſter, who will not bring Voci ſuæ Vitam ſuam, our Mr. Mather was no Sloathful Preacher; for beſides his being a Preacher, who, as Melchior Adam deſcribes Jacobus Andreæ, Si quando opus erat, mera ſonabat Tonitrua, he was alſo a Preacher very Eminent for Holineſs, and he Taught the People at other Times, beſides when he Opened his Mouth.

§. 9. A certain Writer, who does continually ſerve the Romanizing Faction in the Church of England, with all manner of Malice and Slander againſt the beſt Men in the World, that were in any meaſure free from the Spirit of that Faction, yet mentioning our Samuel Mather, in his Athenæ Oxonienſes, gives this Account of him; ‘ Tho’ ‘ he was a Congregational Man, and in his Principles an High Non-Conformiſt, yet he was obſerved by ſome to be Civil to thoſe of the ‘ Epiſcopal Perſwaſion, when it was in his Power ‘ to do them a Diſpleaſure. And when the Lord-Deputy gave a Commiſſion to him, and others, ‘ in Order unto the Diſplacing of Epiſcopal Miniſters, in the Province of Munſter, he decli‘ ned it; as he did afterwards to do the like Matter in Dublin; alledging, that he was called into that Country, To Preach the Goſpel, and not to hinder others from doing it. He was a Religious Man in the Way he profeſt, [This Author confeſſes] and was valued by ſome, who differ'd from him as to Opinion in Leſſer, and Circumſtantial Points of Religion. Thus One of themſelves, even a Bigot of their own, has reported, and his Report is true! For which Cauſe when the Storm of Perſecution, fell upon the Non-Conformiſts in Ireland, Mr. Mather, in his Addreſs to the Lord-Chancellor for his Liberty, uſed theſe, among many other Paſſages; I can truly ſay, I deſire no more, not ſo much Favour for my ſelf now, as I have ſhewed unto others formerly, when they ſtood in need of it. But I will not ſay, how much cauſe I have to reſent it, and to take it a little unkindly, that I have met with ſo much of Moleſtation from thoſe of that Judgment, whom I have not provoked unto it, by my Example, but rather have obliged by ſparing their Conſciences, to another manner of Deportment. For indeed, I have always thought, that it is an Irkſome Work, to puniſh or trouble any Man, ſo it is an Evil and Sinful Work, to trouble any Good Man with Temporal Coercions, for ſuch Errors in Religion, as are conſiſtent with the Foundation of Faith and Holineſs. It is no Good Spirit in any Form, to fight with Carnal Weapons; I mean, by External Violence, to Impoſe and Propagate it ſelf, and ſeek by ſuch means, the ſuppreſſing of Contrary Ways, which by Argument it is not able to ſubdue. But let the Merits of Mr. Mather have bin what they will, he could not avoid the Hardſhips, which the Hiſtorian proceeds to relate in theſe Terms ‘ After his Majeſty's Reſtauration, he was ſuſpended from Preaching, 'till his Majeſty's Pleaſure ſhould be known for Two Sermons, which were judged Seditious. Thus writes the verieſt Zoſimus, that ever ſet Pen to Paper; even that Zoſimus the Younger, who cannot mention any Well-wiſher to the Reformation of the Church of England, without giving One Occaſion to think on Dr. Howel's Obſervations upon the Old Zoſimus; We know it to be the Practice, in all Reformations, of thoſe who are addicted unto the Old Way, to render Infamous ſuch, as have bin Inſtruments in the Alteration; and by a Prejudice againſt the Perſons moſt ridiculouſly to inſinuate an ill Opinion of the Thing, or Cauſe it ſelf.

§. 10. One Principal Character upon the Spirit of Mr. Mather, and One Remarkable in the Studies and Sufferings of his Life, will be given to my Reader, in an Account of the Two Sermons, which were the pretended Occcaſions of his being ſilenced. Know then, that the Epiſcopal Party in Ireland, immediately upon the King's Reſtauration, haſtning to reſtore their Spiritual Courts, and ſummon the Miniſters of the Goſpel to appear before them, and ſubmit unto thoſe Unſcriptural Impoſitions, which many Years had bin laid aſide Ratione Belli (as they expreſſed it) Rabieq; Hæreticorum & Schiſmaticorum, and anſwer for the Breach of Canons, which (as the Others anſwered) We bleſs God, we have never kept, to His Praiſe we ſpeak it, and we hope through His Grace, we never ſhall: It was thought neceſſary on this Occaſion, that a Publick Teſtimony ſhould be born againſt the Revival of thoſe Dead Superſtitions. Accordingly Mr. Mather, being the fitteſt Perſon on many Accounts to be put upon that Service, He did in the Capital City of the Kingdom, in a Great Auditory, preach Two Sermons upon K. Hezekiah's breaking in pieces the Brazen Serpent, and calling it Nehuſtan, and thence advance this Aſſertion, That it is a Thing very pleaſing in the Sight of God, when the Sin of Idolatry, and all the Monuments, all the Remembrances and Remainders of it, are quite deſtroyed and rooted out from among His People: Wherein his Note upon the Text, was indeed but the very ſame with what his Adverſaries, who are uſually Great Admirers of every thing ſaid by Grotius, might have read in the Commentary of that admirably Learned (though frequently Socinianizing, and at laſt Romanizing) Interpreter, upon the very ſame Text; Egregium Documentum Regibus, ut quamvis benè Inſtituta, ſed non Neceſſaria, ubi ἐπὶ τὸ πλυ, malè uſurpantur, è Conſpectu tollant; nè ponant Offendiculum Cæcis. In the Proſecution of this Aſſertion, he offered many Arguments, why the Ceremonies of the Church of England, which were but the Old Leaven of Humane Inventions and Popiſh Corruptions remaining in the Worſhip of a Church, whoſe Doctrine he yet approv'd, as generally owned by Good Men, ſhould not be reaſſumed, and by the Old Cruel Methods of Pœnal Laws, reinforced. Againſt the Ceremonies in General, he argued, That the Preface to the Common-Prayer-Book, expreſly declared them to be Myſtical and Significant, and ſo they differed nothing from Sacraments, but that they wanted a Divine Inſtitution; and, ſaid he, The Promoters of them do pretend only the Authority of the Church; but if the Second Commandment was given to the Church, Thou ſhalt not make any Graven Image, or Form of Worſhip to thy ſelf; They are a manifeſt Breach of that Commandment. He added, That, as they were the Monuments of the Old Papal and Pagan Idolatry, and Men did therein, but Symbolize with Idolaters, thus, by the Greater Weight almoſt perpetually laid upon them, than upon Greater Things, they were ſtill made further Idols. Particularly, he argued againſt the Surplice, That it was a Continuation of the Superſtitious Garments, wherein the Falſe Worſhippers did uſe to officiate; That the Aaronical Garments being Typical of the Graces attending the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, they are by His Coming antiquated; That the Scriptures give not the leaſt Intimation of any Garments, whereby Miniſters are to be diſtinguiſhed. He added, That among the Firſt Reformers, the moſt Eminent were in their Undiſtreſſed Judgments, againſt the Veſtment; and that when the Canons of 1571. forbad the Gray Amice, or Any other Garment defiled with the like Superſtition, the Æquity of that Canon would exclude This alſo. He argued againſt the Sign of the Croſs in Baptiſm, That whatever was to be ſaid againſt Oyl, Cream, Salt, Spittle, therein, is to be ſaid againſt the Croſs, which indeed never had bin uſed, in the Worſhip of God, as Oyl had bin of Old. That there is as much Cauſe to worſhip the Spear that pierced our Lord, as the Croſs which hanged him, or that it were as Reaſonable, to ſcratch a Child's Forehead with a Thorn, to ſhew that it muſt ſuffer for him, who wore a Crown of Thorns: That the Croſs thus employed is a Breach of the Second Commandment in the very Letter of it, being an Image in the Service of God of Man's Deviſing, and fetch'd, as Mr. Parker ſays, From the Brothel-Houſe of God's greateſt Enemy. He argued againſt Kneeling at the Lord's-Supper, That it is contrary to the Firſt Inſtitution, which had in it none but a Table-Geſture; That it is groſs Hypocriſie to pretend unto more Devotion, Holineſs, and Reverence, in the Act of Receiving, than the Apoſtles did, when our Lord was there Bodily preſent with them; That it countenanced the Error of the Papiſts, who Kneel before their Breaden God, and profeſs; that They would be ſooner torn in pieces than do it, if they did not believe that Chriſt is there Bodily preſent: And, That ſince it was a Rule in the Common-Prayer-Book, ſet forth in K. Edward's Time, 1549. As touching Kneeling and other Geſtures, they may be uſed or left, as every Man's Devotion ſerveth, it was a ſhameful Thing to be ſo retrograde in Religion, as now to eſtabliſh that Geſture. He argued againſt Bowing at the Altar, and ſetting the Communion-Table Altarwiſe, That the Communion-Table is in the Sacred Oracles called a Table ſtill, and, no where, an Altar; and if it were an Altar, it would imply a Sacrifice, which the Lord's Supper is not; yea, it would be Greater and Better, than the Lord's Supper it ſelf, and ſanctifie it; That if it were an Altar, yet it ſhould not be faſten'd unto the Wall, Dreſſer-Faſhion; but ſo ſtand, as that it might be Compaſſed about; That the placing of it at the Eaſt-End of the Church, with Steps going up to it, and eſpecially the Setting of Images, or other Maſſing Appurtenances over it, ſmells rank of Paganiſm: And, That, whereas in the very Beginning of the Reformation, this Abuſe, was One of the Firſt Things put down, it were a moſt Romiſh Vergency, Now to Conjure it up again. He argued againſt Bowing at the Name of Jeſus, That the Phraſe of Bowing ἐν τῷ ὀνόματι, in the Text, wreſted unto this purpoſe, is but very untowardly tranſlated, AT the Name of Jeſus, inſtead of IN the Name; and it were as proper to ſpeak of, Baptizing AT the Name of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit, and of Believing AT God the Father, and AT Jeſus Chriſt his Son our Lord, and AT the Holy Ghoſt. That by the Name of JESUS, is not meant the Sound of the Syllables in the Word JESUS, but the Power, Majeſty, Dominion and Authority of the Perſon of the Lord Jeſus; and it is a Piece of Cabaliſtical Magic, to make an Incurvation at the Sound of this Name, without paying the like Reſpect unto other Names of the Bleſſed God, or particularly the Name Chriſt, which is more diſtinguiſhing for our Lord, than that of JESUS; or, why not at the Sight as well as the Sound? That the Apoſtle ſpeaks of ſuch a Name to be acknowledged with Bowing, as was given to our Lord after His Reſurrection, and as the Effect and Reward of his Humiliation, which the Name JESUS was not; it is the Name of Chriſt Exalted, or Chriſt the Lord; and by Bowing the Knee, is meant the Univerſal Subjection of all Creatures unto his Lordſhip, eſpecially at the Day of Judgment. He argued againſt The Stated Holydays, That being Feaſts which the Jeroboam of Rome had deviſed of his own Heart, yea ſome of them, eſpecially the December-Feſtival, an Imitation of an Heatheniſh Original, if the Apoſtle forbad the Obſervation of the Jewiſh Feſtivals, becauſe they were a Shadow of Good Things to come, it could not but be amiſs in us, to obſerve the Popiſh Ones, which were Ethnic alſo; That it was a deep Reflection upon the Wiſdom of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, our Lawgiver, the Lord of Time, and of the Sabbath, to add unto His Appointments, and it is an Infringement of our Chriſtian Liberty; That an Occaſional Deſignation of Time for Lectures, for Faſtings, for Thankſgivings, which are Duties required by God, is vaſtly different from the Stating of Times for Holy, ſo that the Duties are then to be done for the ſake of the Times. He added, the Wiſh of Luther, then ſevenſcore years ago, in his Book, De Bonis Operibus; That there were no other Feſtival Days among Chriſtians, but only the Lord's Day: And the Speech of K. James, to a National Aſſembly in Scotland, wherein, He praiſed God, that he was King in the Sincereſt Church in the World; ſincerer than the Church of England, for their Service was an Ill-ſaid Maſs in Engliſh; ſincerer than Geneva it ſelf, for they obſerved Paſche and Yoole, that is Eaſter and Chriſtmas; and (ſaid the King) What Warrant have they for that? Againſt Holineſs of Places, he argued, That they were the ſtanding Symbols of God's Preſence, which made ſtated Holy Places under the Law, and thoſe Places were Holy becauſe of their Typical Relation to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and there was a further Inſtitution of God, which did make them to be Parts of His Worſhip, and Ways and Means of Men's Communion with Himſelf, and to Sanctifie the Perſons and Actions approaching to them; which cannot be ſaid of any Places under the New-Teſtament; That under the New-Teſtament, God has declared Himſelf to be, both no Reſpecter of Perſons, and no Reſpecter of Places; and our Meeting-Places are no more ſacred, than the Ancient Synagogues: That ſome Excellent Men of the Epiſcopal Way it ſelf, have been above the Conceit of any Difference in Places; Dr. Uſher more particularly, who ſays, In Times of Perſecution, the Godly did often meet in Barns, and ſuch Obſcure Places, which indeed were public, becauſe of the Church of God there; the Houſe or Place availing nothing to make it Public or Private; even, as whereſoever the Prince is, there is the Court, although it were in a poor Cottage. He added, That yet the Churches (as they were Metonymically, and almoſt Catechreſtically called) in the Engliſh Nation, were not for the ſake of Old Abuſes to be demoliſhed, as were the Temples of the Canaanites, inaſmuch as they were built for the Worſhip of God; and thoſe Places are no longer polluted, when they are no longer ſo Abuſed. He argued againſt Organs and Cathedral Muſic, That there was a Warrant of Heaven for Inſtrumental Muſic in the Service of God under the Law, when alſo this was not a Part of their Synagogue-Worſhip, which was Moral, but of their Ceremonial Temple-Worſhip, whereas there is no ſuch Warrant under the Goſpel: That the Inſtrumental Muſic under the Law, was intended for a Shadow of good Things to come, which being now come, it was aboliſhed; That even Aquinas himſelf, as late as four Hundred Years ago, pleaded againſt this Inſtrumental Muſic, as being uſed among the Jews, Quia Populus erat magis Durus & Carnalis; the Church of Rome it ſelf, it ſeems, had not then generally introduced it, as he ſays, Ne videatur judaizare. Finally, againſt the Book of Common-Prayer, he argued, That it is a Setting of Mens Poſts by God's, to introduce into the Public Worſhip of God, as a ſtanding Part thereof, and impoſe by Force, another Book beſides the Books of God; nor is there any Præcept or Promiſe in the Book of God, for the Encouragement of it, nor any Example that any Ordinary Church-Officers, impoſed any ſtinted Liturgies upon the Church: That K. Edward VI. in his Declaration acknowledged, It ſeemeth unto you a New-Service, but is indeed no other, but the Old, the ſelf-ſame Words in Engliſh, that were in Latin, ſaving a few things taken out, which were ſo fond, that it had bin a ſhame to have heard them in Engliſh: Yea, ſome of the Biſhops themſelves have reported, that Pope Paul IV. did offer Q. Elizabeth to ratifie it by his Authority, Ut Sacra hic omnia, hoc ipſo, quo nunc ſunt apud nos modo, procurari fas eſſet; Now inaſmuch as the Church of Rome is the Mother of Harlots, let any Proteſtant judge, whether it be fit for us, to fetch the Form of our Worſhip from thence, and indeed a great part of the Form from that Old Conjurer Numa Pompilius: That for Miniſters, inſtead of uſing their own Miniſterial Gifts, to diſcharge the Work of their Miniſtry, by the Preſcriptions of others, is as bad as carrying the Ark upon a Cart, which was to have bin carried upon the Shoulders of the Levites; and it is a Sin againſt the Spirit of Prayer, for Miniſters in theſe Days to be diverted from the Primitive Way of Praying, which was according to Tertullian's Account, Sine Monitore, quia de Pectore, in Oppoſition to the Præſcript Forms of Prayer amongſt the Pagans. He alſo touched upon the Corruptions in the very Matter of the Common-Prayer; the grievous Preference therein given unto the Apocryphal above the Canonical Writings; the Complementing of the Almighty To give us thoſe things, which for our Unworthineſs we dare not preſume to ask; the Nonſence of calling the Leſſons out of the Prophets, Epiſtles; and many more ſuch Paſſages, which he but briefly touched, though, he ſaid, It would fill a Volume to reckon them. He concluded theſe Diſcourſes with an Admonition to the Biſhops and Epiſcopal Party, that they would not now Revive, or, at leaſt, not Impoſe, the Superſtitions of the former Times: But among Many things which he ſpake in his Exhortation, I ſhall only tranſcribe theſe Words, ‘When you have ſtopt our Mouths from Preaching, yet we ſhall Pray; and not only We, but all the Souls that have bin Converted, or Comforted and Edified by our Miniſtry, They will all cry to the Lord againſt you for Want of Bread, becauſe you deprive them of thoſe that ſhould Break the Bread of Life unto them. Now I had rather be environed with Armies of Armed Men, and compaſſed round about with Drawn Swords, and Inſtruments of Death, than that the leaſt Praying Saint ſhould bend the Edge of his Prayers againſt me, for there is no ſtanding before the Prayers of the Saints. Yea, I teſtifie unto you, that as the Saints will Pray, ſo the Lord Himſelf will Fight againſt you, and will take you into His own Revenging Hand: I ſpeak it Conditionally, in Caſe you Perſecute, and I wiſh all the Biſhops in Ireland heard me! For in the Name, and in the Love of Chriſt, I ſpeak it to you, and I beſeech you ſo to take it. I ſay, if once you fall to the Old Trade of Perſecution, the Lord Jeſus will never bear it at your Hands, but He will bring upon you a Swift Deſtruction. And your Second Fall will be worſe than the Firſt; for, Dagon, the firſt Time, did only Fall before the Ark of God; but when the Men of Aſhdod had ſet him up in his Place again the Second Time, than he Brake himſelf to pieces by his Second Fall, inſomuch that there was Nothing but the Stump of Dagon left. Perſecution is a very Ripening Sin; and therefore if once you ſuperadd the Sin of Perſecution, to the Sin of Superſtition, you will be quickly Ripe for final Ruine; and in the Day, when God ſhall viſit you, the Guilt of all the Righteous Blood, that hath bin ſhed upon the Face of the Earth, from the Blood of Abel, to the Blood of Udal, and unto this Day, will come down the Hill upon your Heads, even upon the Perſecutors of this Generation. The Lord Jeſus, when the Day of Vengeance is in his Heart, and when the Year of His Redeemed is come, which is not far off, He will then Require all that Blood, and Revenge it all upon your Heads, if you juſtifie the Ways of former Perſecutors, by Walking in the ſame Steps of Blood and Violence.

Mr. Mather having thus faithfully born his Teſtimony, his Perſecutors yet let him live quietly for more than Five Months after it; but Then they thought it their Time to call theſe Two Sermons (though there were not one Word therein, directly, or indirectly againſt the King, or His Government) Seditious Preaching; and thereupon they ſilenced him, though with ſo much Noiſe, that both Engliſh and French Gazets took Notice of it: But all the Notice, which he took of that Charge himſelf, was to ſay, ‘If it be Sedition to diſturb the Devil's Kingdom, who rules by his Antichriſtian Ceremonies, in the Kingdom of Darkneſs, as the Lord Jeſus Chriſt doth by His own Ordinances, in His Church, which is the Kingdom of Heaven, I may ſay, I did it before the Lord, who hath choſen me to be a Miniſter, and if this be to be Vile, I will yet be more Vile than thus. Indeed there belong'd unto him the Character once given of Eraſmus Sarcerius; Lucebat in hoc Viro commemorablis Gravitas & Conſtantia; non Minas, non Exilia, non ullam ullius Hominis Potentiam aut vim pertimeſcebat: pene dixeram, ſolem facilius de Curſu dimoveri potuiſſe, quam Matherum, a Veritatis Profeſſione.

§. 11. Mr. Mather being ſo ſilenced by thoſe Dwellers on the Earth, who had bin thus tormented by him, he did with the Conſent of his Church, in the Latter End of the Year 1660. go over to England; where he continued a Publick Preacher in great Reputation, at Burton-Wood in Lancaſhire, until the General Death upon the Miniſtry of the Non-Conformiſts, at the Black Bartholomew-Day, Auguſt 24. 1662. The Act of which Day doubtleſs made the Presbyterians think on the Bartholomew-Day, which had been in another Kingdom Ninety Years before; after which, the Deputies of the Reformed Religion, treated with the French King, and the Queen Mother, and ſome others of the Council, for a Peace, and Articles were on both ſides agreed; but there was a Queſtion upon the Security for the Performance of thoſe Articles; whereupon the Queen ſaid, Is not the Word of a King a ſufficient Security? but one of the Deputies anſwered, No, by St. Bartholomew, Madam, It is not! Mr. Mather being one of the Twenty Hundred Miniſters, expelled from all Public Places, by that Act, which was compleated by the Active Concurrence (as that Excellent and Renowned Perſon, Dr. Bates, has truly obſerved) of the Old Clergy from Wrath and Revenge, and the Young Gentry from their Servile Compliance with the Court, and their Diſtaſt of ſerious Religion; His Church in Dublin ſent unto him, to Return unto his Charge of them; having, by this time, Opportunity to uſe that Argument with him, for his Return, The Men are dead that ſought thy Life. Accordingly, he ſpent all the Reſt of his Days with his Church in Dublin; but he preached only in his Own Hired Houſe, which being a very large One, was well fitted for that purpoſe. And there was This Remarkable concerning it; That although no Man living uſed a more Open and Generous Freedom, in Declaring againſt the Corruptions of Worſhip, reintroduced into the Nation, yet ſuch was his Learning, his Wiſdom, his known Piety, and the true Loyalty of his whole Carriage towards the Government, that he lived without much further Moleſtation; yea, the God of Heaven recompenced the Integrity of this his Faithful Servant, wherein he expoſed himſelf above moſt other Men for the Truth by granting him a Protection above moſt other Men, from the Adverſaries of it. For which Cauſe he did in the Year 1668. thus write unto his Aged Father in New-England. 'I have 'enjoy'd a Wonderful Protecting Providence in the 'Work of my Miniſtry. I pray Remember me 'daily in your Prayers, that I may Walk worthy 'of this Goodneſs of God, and be made uſeful 'by him, for the Good of the Souls of his People. 'If any had told me in April 1660. that I ſhould 'have exerciſed the Liberty of my Miniſtry and 'Conſcience, either in England or Ireland, and 'that without Conforming to the Corruptions of 'the Times; and this for ſeven or eight Years 'together; I ſhould not have believed it, I ſhould 'have thought it next to an Impoſſibility; but With 'God all Things are poſſible.

§. 12. Although Mr. Mather was thus full of Zeal againſt Corruptions in the Worſhip of God, and in that Juſt Zeal, he alſo wrote a Treatiſe containing Reaſons againſt Stinted Liturgies, and the Engliſh One in particular, and Anſwers to the Lamentable Conceſſions, which a Reverend Perſon (whoſe Name, for Honours ſake he yet ſpared) had made, in his Diſputations, for them; nevertheleſs, like the Apoſtle John, whom he had, long before, imitated, when he was a Young Diſciple, upon other Accounts, he was full of Love towards the Perſons of Good Men, that were too much led away with thoſe Corruptions. Hence he carried it with all poſſible Reſpect unto Godly, and Worthy Men of that Way, which he ſo much diſliked; the Epiſcopal: However, while they excluded the Scripture from being the Rule of Church-Adminiſtration, and made Unſcriptural Rites, with promiſcuous Admiſſions to the Lord's Table, and the Denial of Church-Power unto the proper Paſtors of the Churches, to be the Terms of Communion he thought it impoſſible for Non-Conformiſts to coaleſce, in the ſame Eccleſiaſtical Communion with them. Albeit he had the Union of Charity and Affection, with all Pious Conformiſts, of whom his Words were, There is Chriſtian Love and Eſteem due to ſuch, as perſonally conſidered, and we ſhould be willing and ready to receive them in the Lord; yet for the Union of an Eccleſiaſtical Combination, with Men that were of ſuch Principles, and by ſuch Principles became the Authors of a Schiſm, he ſaid, Unto their Aſſembly, my Glory, be not thou United; and he added, The beſt Way for Union with them, is to labour to reduce them from the Error of their Way. Nevertheleſs, Mr. Mather beholding, that they who appeared ſtudious of Reformation in the Nations, were unhappily ſubdivided into Three Forms, or Parties, commonly known by the Name of Presbyterians, Independents, and Antipædo-Baptiſts, he ſet himſelf to endeavour an Union among all the Good Men, of theſe three Perſwaſions. To this purpoſe, he did Compoſe a moſt Judicious Irenicum (afterwards Printed(wherein he ſtated the Agreement of theſe Parties: He found, That they were agreed in all the Fundamental Points of the Chriſtian Faith, and Rules of a Chriſtian Life: That they were agreed in the Main Acts of Natural Worſhip, namely Prayer, and Preaching, and Hearing of the Word; and in the Special Time for Publick Worſhip, namely, The Lord's Days: That as to Matters of Inſtitution, they were agreed in Declaring for the Scriptures, as the Direction of all; they were agreed, that the Lord hath appointed a Miniſtry in the Church, who are bound by Office to publiſh the Goſpel, and in His Name therewith to diſpeuce Sacraments, and the Diſciplines of the Goſpel, and and that all Ignorant and Ungodly Perſons, are to be debarred from the Holy Myſteries; and finally, that the Humane Inventions uſed and urged in the Service of the Church of England, are unlawful. He proceeded then to Conſider the Articles of Difference, which were betwixt them; and he found thoſe Articles to be moſtly ſo meerly Circumſtantial, that if the ſeveral Sides would but patiently underſtand one another, or Act according to the Conceſſions and Confeſſions which are made in their moſt Allowed Writings, they might eaſily Walk together, wherein they were of One Mind, and wherein they were not ſo, they might willingly bear with One another, Until God reveal unto them. Only ſuch as Unchurch all others beſides themſelves, he found by the Severity of their own Diſuniting Principle, rendered uncapable of Coming into this Union: But unto all the Societies of theſe Chriſtians, that made Union and Communion with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Foundation of Church-Communion, he did, with a moſt Evangelical Spirit, offer, Firſt, That they ſhould mutually give the Right Hand of Fellowſhip, unto each other, as true Churches of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Secondly, That they ſhould kindly Adviſe and Aſſiſt each other in their Affairs, as there ſhould be Occaſion for it: Thirdly, That they ſhould admit the Members of each other's Congregations, unto Occaſional Communion, at the Table of the Lord. In this Uniting Scheme of his, as there was a due Tenderneſs towards Various Apprehenſions, without Scepticiſm in Religion, ſo there was a Bleſſed Eſſay to remove the Greateſt Stumbling-Blocks of Chriſtianity. Indeed ſuch a Generous Largeneſs of Soul there was in our Mather, that he could with the Excellent-ſpirited, Mr. Burroughs, have written it as the Motto, upon his Study-Door, Opinionum Varietas, et Opinantium Unitas, non ſunt Ἀσύστατα.

§. 13. While Mr. Mather was fulfilling his Miniſtrry in Dublin, as One, who might juſtly have claimed the Name of the Spaniſh Biſhop, Fructuoſus, there were many Salleys to the Doing of Good, which he added unto the Weekly and Conſtant Services of his Miniſtry; whereof One was this. A certain Roman Catholick having publiſhed a ſhort, but ſubtil Diſcourſe, Entitled, Of the One, Only, Catholick and Roman Faith, whereby the Faith of ſome Uncatechized Proteſtants was not a little endangered. Mr. Mather was deſired by Perſons of Quality, to give the World an Anſwer to this Diſcourſe. And in Anſwer to their Deſire, he Compoſed and Emitted, a moſt Elaborate, Pertinent, Judicious, though Brief Treatiſe, Entitled, A Defence of the Proteſtant, Chriſtian Religion againſt Popery, wherein the manifold Apoſtaſies, Hereſies, and Schiſms of the Church of Rome, as alſo the Weakneſs of their Pretenſions from the Scriptures and the Fathers are briefly laid open. But there was another Thing, which gave the Studies of this Learned and Holy Man, a Conſiderable Exerciſe. There was one Mr. Valentine Greatreats, who felt a vehement Impreſſion, or Suggeſtion upon his Mind, of this Import; [I have given thee the Gift of Curing the Evil!] In Compliance with which Impulſe, he ſtroked a Neighbour grievouſly afflicted with the Kings-Evil, and a Cure ſucceeded. For about a Twelve-month he pretended unto the Cure of no other Diſtemper; but, then, the Ague being rife in the Neighbourhood, the ſame ſort of Impulſe told him [I have given thee the Gift of Curing the Ague!] After which, when he laid his Hand, on People in their Fits, the Ague would leave them. About half a Year after this, the Impulſe became yet more General, and ſaid [I have given thee the Gift of Healing] and then our Stroker attempted the Relief of all Diſeaſes indifferently: But frequently with ſuch violent Rubbing, as from any One, would have had a Tendency to diſperſe Pains ariſing from Flatulencies. All this while, he doubted, whether there were any thing more in the Cauſe of the Cure, that followed this Friction, than the ſtrong Fancy of the feeble People that addreſſed him; Wherefore to convince his Incredulity, as he lay in his Bed, he had one Hand ſtruck Dead, and the uſual Impulſe then bid him, to make a Trial of his Virtue upon himſelf; which he did with his other Hand, and immediately it returned unto its former Liveline ſs: This happened for two or three Mornings together. But after this, there were Thouſands of Perſons, who flockt from all Parts of Ireland, unto this Gentleman, for the Cure of their various Maladies, among whom there were ſome Noble, ſome Learned, and ſome very Pious Perſons, and even Miniſters of the Goſpel; and although it was obſerved, That a Cure ſeldom ſucceeded without Reiterating Touches; That the Patients often relapſed; That ſometimes he utterly fail'd of doing any thing at all, eſpecially, when there was a Decay of Nature; and that there were many Diſtempers, that were not at all Obedient unto the Hand of this Famous Practitioner: Nevertheleſs his Touches had Thouſands of Wonderful Effects. There were ſome Philoſophical Heads, who refer'd all this Virtue in the Hand of our New ſort of Chyrurgion, unto a particular Complexion in him, or a ſort of Sanative or Balſamic Ferment, which was in the Spirits of the Man; and who conceived the Impulſe upon him to be, but a Reſult of his Temper, and like Dreams, that are uſually according to our Conſtitution; or perhaps, there might be ſomething of a Genius they thought, alſo in the Caſe. But Mr. Mather apprehended the Hand of Joab in all this; and a Plot of Satan, that Μυριοτεχνίτης, Generis Humani Hoſtis, lying at the Bottom of all. Mr. Greatreats had confeſſed unto him, that before theſe things, he had bin a Student in Cornelius Agrippa, and had eſſay'd the Cure of Diſtempers, by his Abra kat Abra: And Mr. Mather now feared, that the Devil, with whom he had bin ſo far familiar, did not only now Impoſe upon the Man himſelf, but alſo Deſign upon multitudes of other People. Wherefore to rectifie the Thoughts of People, about the Danger of Unaccountable Impulſes, which had precipitated Greatreats into his preſent Way of Cures; and about the Nature and Intent of Real Miracles, whereof 'twas evident there were none in the Cures by Greatreats pretended unto; and moreover, to prevent the Superſtitious Neglect of God, and of Means, which People were apt, on this Occaſion, Profanely, to run into; and Finally, to prevent the Hazards, which might ariſe unto our Sacred Religion by our Popular Apotheiſing of a Blade, who made Scepticiſm in Religion, one part of his Character; Mr. Mather drew up a Diſcourſe relating thereunto. This Diſcourſe, being ſhown to ſome of the King's Privy-Council in Ireland, was approved and applauded, as moſt worthy to be printed; but the Primate's Chaplain, at laſt, obſtructed it, becauſe forſooth; the Geneva Notes, and Dr. Ames, were quoted in it, and it was not convenient, that there ſhould be any Book printed, wherein any Quotations were made from ſuch Dangerous Fanaticks. However, God bleſſed this Manuſcript, for the ſetling of many Unſtable Minds, and the ſtopping of Miſchiefs that were threatned.

§. 14. It is reported, in the Life of Mr. Rothwel, that being adviſed by a Clergy-man more Great than Wiſe, to forbear medling with the Types, as Themes not convenient for him to ſtudy upon, he made that very Prohibition, but as an Invitation, to expect ſomething of an extraordinary Concernment in them; and accordingly falling upon the Study of the Types, he found no part of his Miniſtry moreadvantagiouſly employed for himſelf or others. Our Mr. Mather on the other Hand, was earneſtly deſired by the Non-Conformiſt Miniſters, in the City of Dublin, to preach upon the Types of Evangelical Miſteries, in the Diſpenſations of the Old Teſtament; in Compliance with which, he had not proceeded very far, before he ſaw Cauſe to Write unto One of his Brothers, The Types and Shadows of the Old Teſtament, if but a little underſtood, how full are they of Goſpel-Light and Glory! Having gone through diverſe of them, I muſt acknowledge, with Thankfulneſs to the Praiſe of the Freeneſs of the Grace of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that I have ſeen more of Him, than I ſaw before. With much Labour and Judgment, at length, he finiſhed his Undertaking, and in a Courſe of Sermons, from March 1666. to Feb. 1668. on firſt the Perſonal Types, and then the Real Ones, whether firſt, the more Occaſional Types, and, then, the more Perpetual Ones. And his Church after his Death, calling another of his Worthy Brothers, namely, Mr. Nathanael Mather, to ſucceed him, that Brother of his, in Imitation of what Ludovicus Capellus, did for His Brother, and what Mr. Dyke, Mr. Culverwel, and others have done for theirs, in Publiſhing the profitable Works of the Deceaſed, Publiſhed this Courſe of Sermons unto the World; with ſome Judicious Diſcourſes, againſt Modern Superſtitions, intermixed. Here, the Waxen Combs of the Ancient and Typical Cells, being melted down is (as One expreſſes it) Rolled up into ſhining Tapers, to illuminate the Students of thoſe Myſteries, In finding out the Honey, that couches in the Carcaſe of the ſlain Lion of the Tribe of Judah. All the Talents which Cato ſpent in Erecting a Tomb of Thracian Marble for his Dead Brother Cæpio, turned not unto ſo much Account, as the Care uſed by Mr. Nathnael Mather, thus to bring into the Light the Meditations of his Excellent Brother Samuel; upon a Subject wherein but few had ever waded before him. And if there be a Truth in that Opinion of ſome Divines, That the Glory and Gladneſs of the Saints in Heaven, receives Additions, as the Good Effects of what they formerly did, on Earth are there increaſing; his Action herein, was yet more Worthy, the Relation of a Brother. But Mr. Mather did not ſo converſe with one more Obſcure Part of the Sacred Scripture, as to leave Another Uncultivated with his Induſtrious, and Inquiſitive Studies thereupon: The Difficulties in the Prophetical Part of the New-Teſtament, as well as in the Figurative Part of the Old, were happily aſſail'd by his Learned Contemplations. When he had made a conſiderable Progreſs herein, he wrote unto his Youngeſt Brother, who was then a Miniſter in New-England, and ſince Preſident of the Colledge there; I muſt needs tell you, how much I do rejoyce, that it hath pleaſed God to ſtir up your Spirit, to ſearch into the Prophetical Parts of the Scripture; of which I have often thought and ſtill do, That it is great pity, they are ſo little minded and ſeen into, by many, both Miniſters and others, who do deprive themſelves of much Satisfaction, which they might receive thereby. It is not good, to deſpiſe any part of the Mind and Counſel of God, revealed in his Word; there are Unknown Treaſures and Pleaſures there ſtored up, more precious than Gold and Silver; and ſhall we not, in the Strength of His Spirit ſearch for them? And as the Brother to whom he thus wrote, gave in ſundry Treatiſes, and in diverſe Languages, unto the Church of God, ſeveral Happy Fruits of his Enquiries into the Inſpired Prophecies, which Bleſſed are they that read and hear; ſo our Mr. Mather himſelf arrived unto ſuch Attainments herein, that he had no Cauſe to make the Confeſſion (tho' ſuch was his Modeſty, that he was ready enough to do it) of ſome Eminent Perſons, Nullus ſum in Propheticis. When 'tis ſaid, Bleſſed are they that Keep the things written in this Prophecy, a Mathematician will tell us, that what we render Keep, is rather to be render'd Obſerve, or Watch, or Mind; for Τηρεῖν, is uſed by the Greeks, as a Term of Art, expreſſing the Aſtronomical Obſervation of Eclipſes, Planetary Aſpects, and other Cœleſtial Phænomena. Mr. Mather accordingly counted it his Bleſſedneſs, to take an Obſervation of what Fulfillment the Divine Books of Prophecy already had received, and thence make a Computation of the Times, that were yet before us, and of the Things to be done in thoſe Times. But of all his Apocalyptical Explications, or Expectations, I ſhall here take the Liberty to inſert no more, than this One, which may deſerve perhaps a little thinking on. That whenever God ſets up in any of the ten Kingdoms, which made the ten Horns of the Papal Empire, ſuch an Eſtabliſhment, Sovereign and Independent, wherein Antichriſt ſhall have neither an Ἐξουσία, nor a Δύναμις, neither Power of Laws, nor Force of Arms, to defend him and his Corruptions; Doubtleſs, then, the Witneſſes of our Lord, are no more trodden down, to prophecy in Sackcloth, any longer. Then therefore expires the 1260 Years, and ſince that ſuch a Kingdom well may be called The Lord's, then will the ſeventh Trumpet begin to ſound. Which, that it is Near, even, at the Door, I may ſay, through Grace I doubt not.

§. 15. While Mr. Mather was thus employ'd, it pleas'd the God of Heaven, to Take away from him the Deſire of his Eyes. He had in the Year 1656. married a moſt Accompliſhed Gentlewoman, the Siſter of Sir John Stevens, by whom he had Four or Five Children, whereof there lived but One, which was a Daughter. But in the Year 1668. this Gentlewoman fell into a Sickneſs, that laſted Five or Six Weeks; all which Time ſhe continued full of Divine Peace and Joy, and uttered many extraordinary Expreſſions of Grace, wherewith her pious Friends were extreamly ſatisfied. When ſhe drew near her End, her Husband, ſeeing her in much Pain, ſaid, You are going where there will be no more Pain, Sighing or Sorrow: Whereto ſhe anſwered, Ay, my Dear, and where there will be no more Sin! And her Siſter ſaying to her, You are going to Heaven, ſhe anſwered, I am there already! So ſhe went away, having thoſe for her laſt Words, Come, Lord, Come, Lord Jeſus! Not very long after this did Mr. Mather fall Ill himſelf, of an Impoſtume in his Liver: But as in the Time of his Health and Strength, he had maintained an Even Walk with God, without ſuch Raptures of Soul, as many Chriſtians have bin carried forth unto, ſo now in the Time of his Illneſs, he enjoyed a certain Tranquility of Soul, without any Approaches toward Rapturous Extaſie. He never was a Man of Words, but of a Silent, and a Thinking Temper, a little tinged with Melancholly; and now he lay ſick, he did not ſpeak much to thoſe that were about him; yet, what he did ſpeak, was full of Weight and Worth, nor will his Friends ever forget, with what Solemnity, he then told them; That he had preached unto them the Truths of the Great God, and that he now charged them to adhere unto thoſe Truths, in the firm and full Faith whereof, he was now entring into Glory: And that he did particularly exhort them to waſh every Day, in the precious Blood of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and by Faith apply His perfect and ſpotleſs Righteouſneſs unto their own Souls. It has indeed bin commonly obſerved, that Children, Who honour their Father and their Mother, according to the Firſt Commandment, in the Second Table of the Law, which has a peculiar Promiſe annexed unto it, have the Recompence of a Long Life upon Earth. And I take Notice, that in the Commandment, what we Tranſlate, That thy Days may be long, is to be Read, That they may prolong thy Days; that is, Thy Father and thy Mother, They ſhall prolong thy Days, by Bleſſing of thee, in the Name of God, if thou carry it well unto them. But when the Sovereign Providence of Heaven makes Exceptions unto this General Rule, we may believe, that what is not fulfilled in the Letter, is fulfilled in the Better; and ſome, that Live long in a little time, alſo have their Days prolonged in the Enjoyment of Life with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, our Life, throughout Eternal Ages. Thus our Mr. Mather had bin as Dutiful a Joſeph, as perhaps ever any Parents had; and by his Yearly and Coſtly Preſents to his Aged Father, after he came to be a Maſter of Poſſeſſions in Ireland, he continued the Expreſſions of his Dutifulneſs unto the laſt; nevertheleſs he now dyed, Octob. 29. 1671. When he wanted about ſix Months of being Six and Forty Years Old: And yet as they, who have gone to prove Adam, a longer-lived Perſon than Methuſelah, uſe to urge, that Adam, was to be ſuppoſed Fifty or Sixty Years old, being in the Perfect Stature of Man, at his Firſt Creation, ſo, if it be conſider'd how much of a Man, our Mather was, while he was yet a Child, and if it be further conſidered how much Work he did for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, after he came to the Perfect Stature of Man, he muſt be reckoned, An Old Man full of Grace, though not full of Days; and that Epitaph, which was once the Great JEWEL's, may be Written on his Grave, in the Church of St. Nicholas, in the City of Dublin, where his Aſhes lye covered.

Diu vixit, licet non diu fuit.

But now,

Gone where the Wicked ceaſe from Troubling, and where the Weary are at Reſt.

CHAP. III.

THE LIFE OF Mr. Samuel Danforth.

§. 1. MOſt Chriſtian and Candid, is the Speech of a Certain Author, who yet writes himſelf, A Beneficed Miniſter, and Regular Son of the Church of England, when he ſays, I never thought them good Painters, who draw the Pictures of the Diſſenting Brethren with Dirt and Soot; but I, knowing them to be unlike thoſe Pictures, have with juſt Offence beheld their Injuries, and would have been pleaſed to have ſeen them deſcribed by ſome Impartial and Ingenious Maſter, Maſter, as fit to adorn the Palaces of Princes. Reader, I am going to draw the Picture of another Miniſter, who was a Nonconformiſt unto Emendables, in the Church of England; wherein tho' I am not Ingenious, yet I will be Impartial, and therefore inſtead of the Dirt and Soot, which the Perſecuting Bigots for a few Ceremonies, would employ upon the Memory of ſuch Men, I will with an Honeſt and Modeſt Report of his Character cauſe him to be remembred next unto the Firſt Fellow of that Colledge, whereof He was the Next.

§. 2. This was Mr. Samuel Danforth, Son to Mr. N. Danforth; a Gentleman of ſuch Eſtate and Repute in the World, that it coſt him a Conſiderable Sum to eſcape the Knighthood, which K. Charles I. impoſed on all of ſo much Per Annum; and of ſuch Figure and Eſteem in the Church, that he procured that Famous Lecture at Framlingham in Suffolk, where he had a fine Mannour; which Lecture was kept by Mr. Burroughs, and many other Noted Miniſters in their Turns; to whom, and eſpecially to Mr. Shepard, he prov'd a Gaius, and then eſpecially when the Laudian Fury ſcorched them. This Perſon had Three Sons, whereof the Second was our Samuel, born in September in the Year 1626. and by the Deſire of his Mother, who died Three Years after his Birth, earneſtly Dedicated unto the Schools of the Prophets. His Father brought him to New-England in the Year 1634. and at his Death, about four Years after his Arrival here, he committed this Hopeful Son of many Cares and Prayers, unto the Paternal Overſight of Mr. Shepard, who proved a kind Patron unto him. His Early Piety, anſwered the pious Education beſtowed upon him; and there was One Inſtance of it ſomewhat ſingularly circumſtanced: When he was reciting to his Tutor, out of the Heathen Poets, he ſtill made ſome Ingenious Addition and Correction, upon thoſe Paſſages, which aſcribed thoſe Things unto the Falſe Gods of the Gentiles, that could not without Blaſphemy be aſcribed unto any, but the Holy One of Iſrael: His Tutor gave him a ſharp Reprehenſion for this, as for a meer Impertinency; but this Conſcientious Child reply'd, Sir, I can't in Conſcience recite the Blaſphemies of theſe Wretches, without Waſhing my Mouth upon it! Neverthele$ſ$s, a freſh Occaſion occuring, his Tutor gave him another ſharp Reprehenſion, for his doing once again as he had formerly done; but the Tutor to the Amazement of them all, was terribly and ſuddenly ſiezed with a Violent Convulſion-Fit; out of which when he at laſt recovered, he acknowledg'd it as an Hand of God upon him, for his Harſhneſs to his Pupil, whoſe Conſcientiouſneſs he now aplauded.

§ 3. His Learning with his Virtue, e're long brought Him into the Station of a Tutor; being made the Second Fellow of Harvard-Colledge, that appears in the Catalogue of our Graduates. The Diary, which even in thoſe Early Times, he began to keep of Paſſages belonging to his Interior State, gave great Proof of his Proficiency in Godlineſs, under the Various Ordinances and Providences of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; the Watchfulneſs, Tenderneſs and Conſcientiouſneſs of Aged Chriſtianity accompanied him, while he was yet but Young in Years. His Manner was to Riſe before the Sun, for the Exerciſes which Iſaac attended in the Evening; and in the Evening likewiſe he withdrew, not only from the Converſation then uſually maintained, which he thought hurtful to his Mind by its Infectious Levity, but from Supper it ſelf alſo, for the like Exerciſes of Devotion. Although he was preſerved free from every Thing Scandalous, or Immoral, yet he ſeem'd as Tertullian ſpeaks, Nulli Rei natus niſi Pænitentiæ; and the Sin of Unfruitfulneſs gave as much Perplexity to him, as more Scandalous and Immoral Practices do to other Men; for which Comprehenſive Sin, keeping a Secret Faſt, once before the Lord, the Holy Spirit of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt ſo powerfully and rapturouſly comforted him, with thoſe Words, He that abideth in me, and I in him, the ſame bringeth forth much Fruit; without me ye can do nothing: That the Remembrance thereof, was all his Days, afterwards Comfortable unto him.

§. 4. Mr. Welds returning for England, the Church at Roxbury invited Mr. Danforth, to become a Colleague to Mr. Eliot, whoſe Evangelical Employments abroad among the Indians, made a Collegue at Home to be neceſſary for him. The Paſtoral Charge of that Church he undertook in the Year 1650. and no Temptations ariſing, either from the Incompetency of the Salary, allow'd him to ſupport an Hoſpitable Family, or from the Provocation, which unworthy Men in the Neighbourhood ſometimes tried him withal, could perſwade him to accept of Motions, which were made unto him, to remove unto more Comfortable Settlements; but keeping his Eye upon the Great Man's Motto, Prudens, qui patiens, he continued in his Roxbury Station, for Three Years more than Thrice ſeven together. All this time, as he ſtudied Uſe, by Endeavours to Do good, not only in that particular Town, but with Influences more General and Extenſive, ſo he did endeavour to ſignalize himſelf, by ſtudying of Peace, with a Moderating and Interpoſing Sort of Temper, in riſing Differences; being of the Opinion, That uſually they have little Peace of Conſcience, who do not make much Conſcience of Peace. And when he then came to Dye, ſpending one whole Sleepleſs Night, in a Survey of his paſt Life, he ſaid, He could find no Remarkable Miſcarriage (through the Grace of Chriſt) in all this time, to charge himſelf withal, but that with Hezekiah, he had ſerved the Lord with a perfect Heart all his Days.

§. 5. The Sermons with which he fed his Flock, were Elaborate and Subſtantial; He was a Notable Text-Man, and one who had more than Forty or Fifty Scriptures diſtinctly quoted in One Diſcourſe; but he much recommended himſelf by keeping cloſe to his Main Text, and avoiding of all remote Excurſions and Vagaries; and there was much Notice taken of it, that though he were a very Judicious Preacher, yet he was therewithal ſo Affectionate, that he rarely, if ever ended a Sermon without Weeping. On the Lord's Days in the Forenoons, he expounded the Books of the Old-Teſtament; in the Afternoons, he diſcourſed on the Body of Divinity, and many Occaſional Subjects, and ſome Chapters in the Epiſtle to the Romans, until the Year 1661; and then he began to handle the Harmony of the Four Evangeliſts, proceeding therein to thoſe Words of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, in Luke 14. 14. Thou ſhalt be recompenced at the Reſurrection of the Juſt: On which, having preached his Laſt Sermon, it proved indeed his Laſt; and from thence he had no more to do, but now Waits all the Days of his appointed time, until his Change come, at that Reſurrection, when our Lord Jeſus Chriſt ſhall Call, and he ſhall Anſwer that Call, and the Lord ſhall have a Deſire to the Work of His Hands. He alſo preach'd a Monthly Lecture, and on many Private Occaſions, at Meetings of Chriſtians, in the Families of the Faithful. But inſtead of ever venturing upon any Extemporaneous Performances, it was his Manner to write his Sermons twice over; and it was in a fair long Hand that he wrote them. His Utterance was free, clear, and giving much in a little time; his Memory very tenacious, and never known to fail him, though he allow'd it no Aſſiſtances. And unto all the other Commendable Things obſerved in the Diſcharge of his Miniſtry; he added that of a moſt Paſtoral Watchfulneſs over his Flock. Hence he not only viſited the Sick, as a Meſſenger from Heaven to them, One among a Thouſand, but when he met Perſons recovered from Sickneſs, he would, at this Rate accoſt them, Well, you have been in God's School, but what have you learnt? What Good have you got? And notable were the Effects of theſe his Applications. Hence alſo he took much Care, that none ſhould keep an Houſe of Publick Entertainment in his Town, but ſuch as would keep Good Orders and Manners in their Houſe; and the Tavern being in View of his own Study-Window, when he ſaw any Town-Dwellers tipling there, he would go over and chide them away. Hence likewiſe he would animadvert upon Miſcarriages that came in his Way, with all Watchful and Zealous Faithfulneſs, and One Inſtance of his Doing ſo, had ſomething peculiar in it. A Day of Humiliation was to be attended, and a Man of another Town, by unſeaſonable Driving a Cart through the Street, cauſed this good Man to come out and reprove him, for the Affront he thereby put upon the Devotions of the People in the Neighbourhood: The Man made him an Obſtinate and Malapert Anſwer, but when he came home, he found One of his Children ſuddenly Dead; upon this he could have no Reſt in his Mind, until he came to this Reprover in the Gate, with Humble and many Tokens of Repentance.

§. 6. After his Contraction, according to the Old Uſage of New-England, unto the Virtuous Daughter of Mr. Wilſon (whereat Mr. Cotton preached the Sermon) he was married unto that Gentlewoman, in the Year 1651. Of Twelve Children by her, there are Four now at this Day, ſurviving; whereof Two are now Worthy Miniſters of the Goſpel. When his Wife was under Diſcouragements at any time, through Domeſtick Straits, he would reply, Ben't you diſcouraged; if you undergo more Difficulties than other Gentlewomen, ſtill we have the Lord's part, and at laſt you ſhall have an Ample Recompence, a Prophet's Recompence! As his End approached he had ſtrong Apprehenſions of its Approach; and the very Night before he fell ſick, he told his Wife, He had been much concerned, how ſhe with her Children would ſubſiſt, if he ſhould be removed; but now he had got over it, and firmly believed in the Covenant of God for them, that they ſhould be, by the Divine Providence, as well provided for, as they could be, if he were alive: Which has been ſince accompliſhed unto Admiration! Immediately after this, he fell ſick of a putred Fever, occaſioned by a Damp, Cold, Nocturnal Air, on a Journey; and in the Space of ſix Days, paſſed from Natural Health, to Eternal Peace, Nov. 19. 1674. Of his Dying Prayers for his Conſort, one of the moſt Lively was, that her Daughter (now the Wife of Edward Bromfield, Eſq;) might be made a Rich Bleſſing and Comfort unto her; and this alſo hath not been without its Obſervable Accompliſhment! But if we now Enquire after an Epitaph, to be Incribed on the Tomb, where his Aſhes now lye, with thoſe of our Governour Dudley, for whoſe Honourable Family he always had a Great Friendſhip, I know not, whether One might not be taken out of the Words of his Venerable Old Collegue Mr. Eliot, who would ſay, My Brother Danforth made the moſt Glorious End, that ever I ſaw! Or, from a Poem of Mr. Weld's upon him, which had a Clauſe to this purpoſe.

Mighty in Scripture, ſearching out the Senſe,
All the Hard Things of it, unfolding thence:
He Liv'd Each Truth; His Faith, Love, Tenderneſs
None can to th' Life, as did his Life expreſs:
Our Minds with Goſpel, his Rich Lectures fed;
Luke, and his Life, at once are finiſhed:
Our New Built Church now ſuffers too by this,
Larger its Windows, but its Lights are leſs.

§. 7. The leaſt Pupils in Aſtronomy, cannot now without ſome Diverſion, reflect upon the Aſtronomy of the Ancients, when we read them declaiming againſt the Sphærical Figure of the Heavens: The many Paſſages to this purpoſe in Juſtin Martyr, and Ambroſe, and Theodoret, and Theophylact, and the Great Auſtin himſelf, I will not recite, leaſt, Reader, we ſhould, before we are aware, play too much with the Beards of the Fathers: Nor would we lay aſide our Value for Good Old Chryſoſtom's Theology, becauſe we we find him in a Confident and a Triumphing Manner upbraiding the World with ſuch an Opinion as, Πȣ̃ εἰσιν οἱ σφαιροειδῆ ȣ̓ρανὸν εἶναι ἀποφαινόμενοι; Where are thoſe Men that imagine, that the Heavens have a Sphærical Form? Since the Scripture ſaith, God ſtretched forth the Heavens as a Curtain, and he ſpread them as a Tent to Dwell in, which are not Sphærical. We will not call them Fools for theſe Harangues; but leave it unto One of themſelves, even Jerom, to paſs his Cenſure upon them, Eſt in Eccleſiâ ſtultiloquium, ſi quis Cœlum putet fornicis modo curvatum, Eſaiæ, quem non intelligit, Sermone deceptus. 'Tis Fooliſh Speaking in the Church, if any through Miſapprehenſions of the Words of Iſaiah, ſhall affirm, That the Heavens are not round. The Divines of the Latter Ages, are (though to our Surprize, the Voluminous Toſtatus was not!) better Aſtronomers, than thoſe of the former; and among the Divines that have been Aſtronomers, our Mr. Samuel Danforth, comes in with a Claim of ſome Conſideration. Several of his Aſtronomical Compoſures have ſeen the Light of the Sun; but one eſpecially on this Occaſion. Among the Four Hundred and Odd Comets, the Hiſtories whereof have preſerved in the Records of Learned Men, a ſpecial Notice was taken of that, which Alarum'd the Whole World in the Year 1654. Now although our Danforth had not the Advantages of Hevelius, to diſcover how many Odd Clots, compact and lucid, there were in the Head of that Blazing-Star, with One thicker than the reſt, until it was grown to Twenty four Minutes Diameter, nor to determine that it was, at leaſt, ſix Times as big as the Earth, and that its Parallax rendred it at length, as Remote from the Earth, as Mars himſelf; nevertheleſs, he diligently obſerved the Motions of it, from its firſt Appearance in Corvus, whence it made a Deſcent, croſſing the Tropick of Capricorn, till it arrived unto the Main Top-ſail of the Ship, and then it returned through Canis Major, and again croſſed the Tropick of Capricorn, paſſing through Lepus, Eridanus; and the Equinoctial, and entred into the Mouth of the Whale, and ſo into Aries; where it retired not leaving any Philoſopher able to fulfil the Famous Prophecy of Seneca, in predicting the New Appearance of it. He therefore publiſhed a little Treatiſe, Entitled, An Aſtronomical Deſcription of the late Comet, with a Brief Theological Application thereof; In which Treatiſe he not only proves, that a Comet can be no other than a Cœleſtial Luminary moving in the Starry Heavens, whereof eſpecially the Largeneſs of the Circle, in which it moves is a Mathematical and Irrefragable Demonſtration, but alſo he improves the Opinion of a Comet's being portentous, endeavouring as it became a Devout Preacher, to awaken Mankind by this Portent, out of a ſinful Security. Now, though for my own part, I am ſometimes ready to ſay, with a Learned Man, Tædet me Divinationis in Re tam incertâ; yet when I conſider, how many Learned Men have made Laborious Collections of Remarkable and Calamitous Events, to render Comets ominous, I cannot reproach the Eſſays of Pious Men, to perſwade us, That when the Hand of Heaven is thus writing MENE TEKEL, it is not amiſs for us Mortals to make ſerious Reflections thereupon. But beſides this, there are Two other Diſcourſes of this Worthy Man printed among us. One is, The Cry of Sodom, enquired into, or, a Teſtimony againſt the Sins of Uncleaneſs, which with much Wonder and Sorrow, he ſaw too many of the Riſing Generation, in the Country carried away withal. Another is, A Recognition of New-England's Errand into the Wilderneſs, or a Sermon preached unto the General Aſſemby of the Colony, at their Anniverſary Election; the Deſign of which was to remind them, of what he ſummarily thus expreſſes, You have ſolemnly expreſſed before God, Angels and Men, that the Cauſe of your leaving your Country, Kindred and Father's Houſes, and tranſporting your ſelves, with your Wives, Little Ones, and Subſtance over the Vaſt Ocean, into this Waſte and Howling Wilderneſs, was your Liberty to walk in the Faith of the Goſpel with all good Conſcience, according to the Order of the Goſpel, and your Enjoyment of the pure Worſhip of God, according to his Inſtitution, without Humane Mixtures and Impoſitions.

EPITAPHIUM.

Non dubium eſt, quin eò iverit, quò Stellæ eunt, DANFORTHUS, qui Stellis ſemper ſe aſſociavit.

In December 1659. the (until then unknown) Malady of Bladders in the Windpipe, invaded and removed many Children; by Opening of one of them the Malady and Remedy (too late for very many) were diſcovered. Among thoſe many that thereby expired, were the Three Children of the Reverend Mr. S. D. the Eldeſt of whom (being upward of five Years and half; ſo Gracious and Intelligent were her Expreſſions and Behaviour both living and dying, and ſo Evident her Faith in Chriſt) was a Luculent Commentary on that Marvellous Prophecy, that the Child ſhould dye an Hundred Years old. How the Sorrowful Father entertained this Solemn Providence may be partly gathered from what he expreſſed unto ſuch as came to attend his Branches unto their Graves; of which may be ſaid, as was ſaid of Job, In all this he ſinned not He ſaw meet to pen down the Minutes of what he ſpake, and they are faithfully taken out of his own Manuſcript.

My Friends,

If any that ſee my Grief ſhould ſay unto me as the Danites unto Micah, What aileth thee? I thank God, I cannot anſwer as he did, They have taken away my Gods. My Heart was indeed ſomewhat ſet upon my Children, eſpecially the Eldeſt; but they were none of my Gods, none of my Portion; my Portion is whole and untoucht unto this Day. To underſtand my ſelf, and to communicate unto my Hearers, the Spiritual Meaning and Compaſs of the Law and Rule, and the Nature of Goſpel Obedience hath been my Deſign and Work, upon which I have employ'd much Reading and Study, and what Faith, Hope, Love, Patience, &c. the Glorious Wiſdom, Power and Mercy of God do oblige us to render. I have endeavoured to ſet forth before you, what if God will now try whether they were meer Notions and Speculations that I ſpake, or whether I believed as I ſpake, and whether there be any Divine Spark in my Heart? I remember him that ſaid to Abraham, Hereby I know that thou feareſt me, in that thou haſt not with-held from me thy Son, thine only Son. It is the Pleaſure of God, that (beſides all that may be gain'd by Reading, and Studying, and Preaching) I ſhould learn and teach Obedience by the Things that I ſuffer. The Holy Fire is not to be fetcht for you, out of ſuch a Flint, as I am, without ſmiting. Not long before theſe Stroaks light upon us, it pleaſed God marvellouſly to quicken our Hearts (both Mine and my Wife's) and to ſtir up in us moſt Earneſt Deſires after Himſelf: And now he hath taken our Children, will he accept us unto freer and fuller Communion with Himſelf, Bleſſed be his Holy Name. I truſt the Lord hath done, what he hath done in Wiſdom, and Faithfulneſs, and Dear Love, and that in taking theſe pleaſant Things from me, He exerciſeth and expreſſeth as Tender Affection unto me, as I now expreſs towards them in Mourning for the Loſs of them. I deſire with Ephraim, to bemoan my ſelf, &c. Jer. 31. 18, 19. O that I might hear the Lord anſwering me, as he did Ver. 20. It is meet to be ſaid to God, We have born Chaſtiſement, we will not offend; What we ſee not, teach thou us; and if we have done Iniquity, we will do ſo no more, We know, and God much more knows enough in us, and by us to Juſtifie his repeated Stroaks, tho' we cannot tax our ſelves with any known Way of Diſobedience. My Deſire is, that none may be overmuch diſmayed at what hath befallen us; and let no Man by any means be offended. Who may ſay to the Lord, What doſt Thou? I can ſay from my Heart, tho' what is come upon us is very dreadful and amazing, yet I conſent unto the Will of God that it is good. Doth not the Goldſmith caſt His Metal into the Furnace? And you Husbandmen, do you not cauſe the Flail to paſs over your Grain, not that you hate your Wheat, but that you deſire Pure Bread! Had our Children replyed when we Corrected them, we could not have born it: But, poor Hearts, they did us Reverence; how much rather ſhould we be ſubject to the Father of Spirits and live. You know, that Nine Years ſince, I was in a deſolate Condition without Father, without Mother, without Wife, without Children: But what a Father, and Mother, and Wife have been beſtow'd upon me, and are ſtill continued tho' my Children are removed. And above all, although I cannot deny, but that it pierceth my very Heart to call to Remembrance the Voice of my Dear Children, calling Father, Father! a Voice, now not heard: Yet I bleſs God, it doth far more abundantly refreſh and rejoyce me, to hear the Lord continually calling unto me, My Son, my Son! My Son, deſpiſe not the Chaſtening of the Lord, nor faint thou when thou art corrected of Him. And bleſſed be God, that doth not deſpiſe the Affliction of the Afflicted, nor hides his Face from Him. 'Twas the Conſideration that God had ſanctify'd and glorify'd Himſelf, by ſtriking an Holy Awe and Dread of his Majeſty into the Hearts of his People, that made Aaron hold his Peace: And if the Lord will glorifie himſelf by my Family, by theſe Awful Stroaks upon me, quickning Parents unto their Duty, and awakening their Children to ſeek after the Lord, I ſhall deſire to be content, tho' my Name be cut off: And I beſeech you be earneſt with the Lord for us, that he would keep us from ſinning againſt him; and that he would teach us to ſanctifie his Name, and tho' our Dear Branches have forſaken us, yet that He that hath promiſed to be with his Children in ſix Troubles and in ſeven, would not forſake us. My Heart truly would be conſum'd, and would even dye within me, but that the Good Will of Him that dwelt in the Burning Buſh, and His good Word of Promiſe are my Truſt and Stay.

To the Church at Cambridge in New-England, and to the Students of the Colledge there.

Right Worſhipful, Reverend, and Dearly Beloved,

THERE have been few Churches in the World ſo Lifted up to Heaven, in reſpect of a Succeſſion of Supereminent Miniſters of the Goſpel, as the Church in Cambridge has been. Hooker, Shepard, Mitchel, Oakes (all of them yours) were Great Lights. You know that if Light has been brought into a Room, when it is removed, the Place becomes Darker, than if never any ſuch Light had been there. A Learned Pen in an Epiſtle Dedicatory to the Inhabitants of Boſton in Lincolnſhire, puts them in Mind what an Happy People they once were, while under the Teaching of Mr. Cotton, who was from them removed to plant Churches for Chriſt, in this American Deſart : And prays them to conſider, ‘ That as Empires and Kingdoms, ſo particular Churches have had their Periods. Bethel has prov'd a Beth-haven : In after times we find young profane Mockers in Bethel, and ſcornful Neuters in Penuel. Go to Shiloh; think of the ſometimes Glorious Churches in Aſia, ſays he. And he adds, That he had on purpoſe viſited ſome Places, where God had before planted his Church, and a Faithful Miniſtry, to ſee, if He could diſcern any Footſteps and Remembrances of ſuch a Mercy, and Lo, they were were all overgrown with Thorns, and Nettles had over-covered the Face thereof, and the Stone-wall thereof is broken down. And as he further well obſerves, when the Lord has been provoked to remove the Candleſtick, He is very hardly induced to reſtore it again. The Ark never returned to the ſame Place, from whence it was in a Way of Judgment removed, and the Glory of the Lord, when after its Gradual Removes, was at laſt quite gone from the Firſt Temple, was not reſtored in the Second, till Chriſt's Firſt Coming, nor will it be in this their Rejection, till His Second. Mercy forbid that ſuch Things as theſe ſhould be verified in New-England, or in Cambridge ! That this may not be your Caſe, it concerns you not wantonly to Play or Fight by the Light yet remaining, but to make the beſt Improvement of your preſent Advantages, giving all due Encouragement to that Worthy Perſon, who is now over you in the Lord.

Dr. Tuckney's Epiſtle prefixed to Mr. Cotton on Eccleſiaſtes.

Concerning your Famous Paſtor, Mitchel, I confeſs, I had the Happineſs of a ſpecial Intimacy with him, in his Life time, nor do I know any one Death (that of Natural Relations excepted) that ever has been ſo Grievous and Afflictive to my Spirit, as was his. By reaſon of his Eminent Parts and Piety, he had an happy Influence on all theſe Churches. Many of them fare the better at this Day, becauſe the Preachers whom they are now inſtructed by, whilſt Students at the Colledge, lived under his Miniſtry. The Colledge, Cambridge, New-England may Glory, that ever ſuch an One had his Education there! As for the Deſcription of his Life, by my SON Emitted herewith, I have nothing thing to ſay concerning the Writer, or this Endeavour of his, becauſe of my Relation to him; Only, that it is what he could Collect, whether by Informations from thoſe that knew that Excellent Man, or from his private Manuſcripts, which he had the Peruſal of. It is not without the Providence of Chriſt, that it ſhould be committed to the Preſs, at ſuch a Time, when there are Agitations about ſome Diſciplinary Queſtions amongſt your ſelves. What the Judgment of that Man of God was, you have in the ſubſequent Relation of his Life preſented to your View.

The Original Manuſcript written by Mr. Mitchel's own Hand, I have by me. Whether he committed his Thoughts to Writing, with any Deſign of Publication, or for the Satisfaction of ſome Perſons in a more private Way, I know not; but it is now Evident, that when his Spirit was inclined thereunto, Heaven deſigned his Meditations ſhould be brought into Publick View. Whilſt he was Living, you that were of his Flock, had (and conſidering his Great Worth and Wiſdom, it would have been a Reproach to you, if you had not had) an High Eſteem of his Judgment. Being Dead he yet ſpeaketh to you, out of his Grave. Thoſe of you that retain a Living Remembrance of him, in your Hearts, will eaſily diſcern ſomething of Mr. Mitchel's Spirit, in the way of his Arguing. He does therein (according to his wonted Manner) expreſs himſelf with great Caution and Prudence, avoiding Extreams, in the Controverted Subject. It cannot be denied; but that there has been an Error in ſome Churches, who have made this or that Mode to be a Divine Inſtitution, which Chriſt has not made to be ſo: And that there has been an unjuſtifiable Severity, in Impoſing Circumſtantials not inſtituted, whereby ſome truly Gracious Souls have been diſcouraged from Offering themſelves to joyn in Fellowſhip with ſuch Churches. Thus it has been, when an Oral Declaration of Faith and Repentance has been enjoyned on all Communicants, and that before the whole Congregation; when as many an Humble Pious Soul has not been Gifted with ſuch Confidence. So likewiſe has it been, when the Exact Account of the Time and Manner of Converſion has been required: Whenas there have been multitudes of true Believers (ſuch eſpecially as have been advantaged with a Religious Education) that the Seed of Grace has ſprung up in their Souls, they know not how Mark 4. 27. Mr. Baxter relates, that he was once at a Meeting of many Chriſtians as Eminent for Holineſs, as moſt in the Land, of whom divers were Miniſters of Great Fame; and it was deſired, that every one ſhould give an Account of the Time and Manner of his Converſion, and there was but One of them all, that could do it. And (ſays he) I averr from my Heart, that I neither know the Day nor the Year, when I began to be ſincere. For Churches, then to expect an Account of that from all, that they receive into their Fellowſhip, is Unſcriptural and Unreaſonable. Nevertheleſs, it concerns them to Beware of the other Extream of Laxneſs in Admiſſion unto the Lord's Holy Table. You know that your Paſtor Mitchel had a Latitude in his Judgment as to the Subject of Baptiſm (as alſo Dr. Ames, Mr. Cotton, and others of the Congregational Perſwaſion had) but as to Admiſſions to the Sacrament of the Lord's-Supper. I know no Man, that was more Conſcientiouſly careful to keep unqualified Perſons from partaking therein than was he. As for this or that Mode in Examining of Perſons, that offer themſelves to be Communicants in our Churches, whether it ſhall be by a more continued Relation of the Work of Grace, in their Hearts, or by Queſtions and Anſwers (as was practiſed in the Church at Hartford in Mr. Hooker's Time, and which may poſſibly be as Edifying a Way, as the former) or whether the Perſons deſigning to partake in the Lord's-Supper, ſhall Declare their Experiences Orally, or in Writing, are Prudentials, which our Lord has left unto Churches to Determine as they ſhall find moſt Expedient for their own Edification. Nevertheleſs the Subſtance of the Thing (viz. Either a Relation, as 'tis called, or an Equivalent) ought to be inſiſtep on. Churches are bound in Duty to Enquire, not only into the Knowledge and Orthodoxy, but into the Spiritual Eſtate of thoſe whom they receive into full Communion in all the Ordinances of Chriſt. Some have thought, that ſuch Qualifications are not to be expected from Children born in the Church, as from Strangers; but they never had that Opinion out of the Scripture, which ſays expreſly concerning them that would Eat the Paſſoever, that, There is One Law to him that is Home-born, and to the Stranger. Exod. 12. 49. Numb. 9. 14. Wherefore in the Platform of Diſcipline it is ſaid, The like Trial is to be Required of ſuch Members of the Church as were born in the ſame, or Received their Memberſhip, and were baptized in their Infancy, or Minority, by virtue of the Covenant of their Parents, when being grown up to years of Diſcretion, they ſhall deſire to be made Partakers of the Lord's Table, unto which, becauſe Holy Things are not to be given to the Unworthy, therefore it is requiſite, that thoſe as well as others ſhould come to their Trial and Examination, and manifeſt their Faith and Repentance by an open Profeſſion thereof, before they are received to the Lord's Supper, and otherwiſe not to be admitted thereunto; Theſe are the Words, in the Platform of Diſcipline, agreed unto by the Elders and Meſſengers of the Churches in the Synod at Cambridge; In which Synod, were Mr. Cotton, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Norton, Learned and Aged Divines, beſides many others of Great Eminency. It is not the Opinion of Men, but the Scripture which muſt decide the Controverſie. Nevertheleſs, the Judgment of thoſe Eminent Divines who had deeply ſearched into theſe Matters, is not to be ſlighted. Nor is the Private Sentiment of this or that Perſon, to be laid in the Ballance, with the Judgment of a Synod, conſiſting of Perſons, of far greater Authority than any younger Ones pretended to be of a Contrary Opinion. Nor is there Weight in that Allegation, that when a Man declares his own Experiences, he Teſtifies concerning himſelf, and therefore his Teſtimony is of no Validity. By the ſame reaſon it may be ſaid, Churches are not to Examine thoſe, that eſſay to joyn themſelves to them, about the ſoundneſs of their Faith. For they may (as Arius did) profeſs, that they Believe Articles of Faith, which God knows, they do not Believe, nor is there any thing but their own Teſtimony to prove that they do believe as they profeſs. But above all, their Notion is to be rejected, as a Church-corrupting Principle, who aſſert that the Sacrament is a Converting Ordinance. Papiſts, Eraſtians, and ſome others, whom I forbear to mention have ſo taught; but their Heterodoxy has been abundantly Refuted, not only by Congregational Writers, ſuch as Mr. John Beverly againſt Timpſon, but by Worthy Authors of the Presbyterian Perſwaſion, particularly by Mr Gelapſy in his Aarons Rod, Dr. Drake in his Anſwer to Mr. Humphrys, and Mr. Vines, in his Treatiſe of the Lord's-Supper. If the Sacrament were appointed to be a Converting-Ordinance, then the moſt Scandalous Perſons in the World, yea, Heathen People ought to have it Adminſtred unto them, for we may not with-hold from them the Means appointed for their Converſion. The Scripture ſays, Let a Man examine himſelf, and ſo let him eat of that Bread. 1 Cor. 11. 28. which clearly intimates, that if upon Examination, he finds himſelf in a State of Sin and Unregeneracy, he ought not to Eat of that Bread.

Bleſſed Mr. Mitchel would frequently aſſert, That if it ſhould paſs for Current Doctrine in New-England, That all Perſons Orthodox in Judgment, as to Matters of Faith, and not Scandalous in Life, ought to be admitted to partake of the Lord's-Supper, without any Examination, concerning the Work of Saving Grace in their Hearts, it would be a Real Apoſtacy from former Principles, and a Degeneracy from the Reformation, which we had attained unto. I am willing upon this Occaſion, to bear my Teſtimony to the preſent Truth, and to leave it upon Record unto Poſterity; not knowing how ſoon the Lord Jeſus may by one Providence or other (of which I have had ſeveral Warnings) remove me from my preſent Station among theſe Churches. The Arguments which have induced me to believe and teſtifie, as now I do, are ſuch as theſe.

1. Time was when Churches in New-England, believed there was Clear Scripture Proof for the Practice we plead for. Particularly that Scripture, Pſal. 4. 10. I have not hidden thy Righteouſneſs from the great Congregation. And that, Pſal. 66. 16. Come and Hear all ye that fear God, and I will declare what he has done for my Soul, And that Scripture, 1 Pet. 3. 15. Be ready always to give an Anſwer to every Man, that asks you a Reaſon of the Hope that is in you, does by juſt Conſequence intimate as much as what we aſſert. Some have been bold to ſay, that ſince the Apoſtle in the Place alledged, ſpeaks of Believers Apologizing for their Hope before Perſecutors, it is an Abuſe of Scripture from thence to infer, that any thing of that Nature ought to be done for the Satisfaction of Churches. But Renowned Mr. Hooker in a Manuſcript, which I have ſeen, anſwering the Objections of ſome who diſliked the Practice of theſe Churches, in Examining and Inquiring into the Spiritual Eſtate of their Communicants (eſpecially their requiring an Account from the Children of the Church) argues Judiciouſly that if Chriſtians are bound to give an Account of the Grounds of their Hope to Perſecutors, much more to Churches that ſhall deſire it. So Mr. Shepard, the Faithful and Famous Paſtor of the Church in Cambridge, in his Anſwer to Mr. Ball. And to the ſame purpoſe, in the Platform of Diſcipline it is inferred, that Men muſt declare and ſhew their Repentance, and Faith, and Effectual Calling, becauſe theſe are the Reaſon of a Well-grounded Hope. Now for any Man to charge theſe Worthies of the Lord, and the Platform of Diſcipline, with abuſing Scripture when they made ſuch an Inference, is a very unbecoming Preſumption. It was formerly thought, that Scripture Examples are not wanting, to Warrant the Practice of our Churches in this Matter, ſince John required thoſe whom he admitted to his Baptiſm, to make a Confeſſion of their Sins. And the Apoſtles expected a Declaration of their Repentance from ſuch as they admitted into the Primitive Church. Acts 2. 38. And Philip examined the Eunuch concerning the Sincerity of his Faith. Acts 8 37.

2. That Principle which tends to bring Perſons not duly qualified, to partake in Holy Things, muſt needs be diſpleaſing to the Holy Lord Jeſus Chriſt. He would have his Servants to Diſtinguiſh betwixt the Precious and the Vile. Jer. 15. 19. And to Turn away from ſuch as have only the Form, and not the Power of Godlineſs in them, 2 Tim. 3. 5. they that have only a Doctrinal Knowledge, and an External Converſion free from Scandal, without Regeneration, have no more than a Form of Godlineſs. If Chriſtians ſhould not make ſuch Perſons their Familiars, certainly they ought not admit them to their Sacred Communion. It is a very ſolemn Word, which the Lord has ſpoken, ſaying, You have brought into my Sanctuary Uncircumciſed in Heart, to be in my Sanctuary to pollute it; even in my Houſe, when you Offer the Bread and the Blood. No Stranger uncircumciſed in Heart, ſhall enter into my Sanctuary. Ezek. 44. 7, 9. That Man does but defile the Sanctuary of the Lord, that has not the Water of Separation (the Blood of Chriſt through Faith) Sprinkled upon him. Numb. 19. 20. But this Principle or Poſition, That Perſons are to be admitted to the Table of the Lord, without Enquiring into their Regeneration, tends to bring the Uncircumciſed in Heart, into the Sanctuary. If Churches ſhould neglect all Examinations concerning the Orthodoxy of thoſe they receive into their Communion; would not that have a Natural Tendency to bring Heterodox, and it may be Heretical Perſons into their Communion? By a Parity of Reaſon, the Omitting all Enquiries, as to the Spiritual Experience of them that come to the Table of the Lord, has a Tendency to fill the Sanctuary with thoſe, who never had any Experimental Knowledge of the Things of God.

3. The Church ought to know, as far as Men can judge, that the Perſons whom they admit to the Lords Table are fit, and have a right to be there. Now none are meet to partake of the Lord's Supper, excepting ſuch as have experienced a Saving Work of Grace. They muſt be ſuch as can and will, Examine themſelves. 1 Cor. 11. 28. And therefore muſt have the Matter of Self-Examination, which is Faith, Repentance, and Love, and other Graces. Thus it was in the Primitive Apoſtolical Church, Acts 2. 47. The Lord added to the Church daily, ſuch as ſhould be ſaved, Churches are to receive ſuch as the Lord has received, Rom. 14. 1, 2, 3. Such as are United to Chriſt, 1 Cor. 12. 27. 1 Theſ. 1. 1. Living Stones muſt be in that Building, 1 Pet. 2. 5. Made ready by a Work of Divine Grace on and in them, before they are laid there; of which the Prepared Materials in Solomon's Temple were a Type, 1 Kings 6. 7. They ought to be Saints and Faithful in Chriſt Jeſus. Eph. 1. 1. How ſhall the Churches know, that the Perſons who offer themſelves to their Communion are ſuch, unleſs they paſs under their Trial. Rev. 2. 2. If a Man claim Right to a Priviledge, and yet ſheweth no ſufficient Reaſon, he ought to be debarred until he can ſome way or other prove his Claim. It is true, the Judgment of Churches is fallible: Grace being a Secret Thing, hid in the Heart; only Chriſt ſeeth it: Churches cannot always diſcern the Tares from the Wheat. Nevertheleſs, they may not willingly receive in Hypocrites. Bellarmine himſelf is fain to Confeſs, as much as that comes to. When ſuch were found in Churches in the Apoſtolical Times, it is ſaid, that they Crept in privily and unawares. Gal. 2. 4. Jude v. 4. Which intimates unto us, that they did not willingly admit ſuch into their Fellowſhip. When the Enemy ſowed Tares in the Field, a Culpable Sleeping in thoſe, that ſhould have been more Watchful was the Cauſe of it. Math. 13. 25. They who object, that we are bound in Charity to believe, that the Perſons, who offer themſelves to our Communion, are Regenerate, without ever making any Enquiry into their Spiritual Eſtate, may with as good Reaſon affirm, that we are bound in Charity to believe, that they are ſound in the Faith, without Examining them about that Matter. A Rational Charity, grounded upon Evidence, and not a Blind Charity is the Rule according to which Churches are to proceed.

4. That Practice, which Chriſt has owned with His ſpecial Bleſſing and Preſence, ought not to be decryed as an Humane Invention, but rather owned as a Divine Inſtitution. Was not the Lord's Bleſſing Aaron's Rod an Effectual Demonſtration, that his Miniſtry had a Divine Approbation? Is not Paul's calling to the Miniſtry, and Peter's alſo, proved from this Argument, that God owned and Bleſſed them both? 1 Cor. 9. 1, 2. Gal. 2. 7, 8, 9. That Chriſt has owned His Churches, in their Enquiries into the Spiritual Eſtate of ſuch as they admit into their Communion with His ſpecial Gracious Preſence, is moſt certain. Have not ſome been Converted by hearing others give an Account of their Converſion? How many have been Comforted, and how many Edified thereby! which proveth, that this Practice is Lawful and Laudable, and that to Stigmatize it ſo, as ſome have done is not pleaſing to the Lord.

5. To uſe all Lawful Means to keep Church Communion pure, is a Duty incumbent upon all Churches, and moſt eminently on Churches in New-England. It is known to all the World, that Church Reformation, and Purity as to all Adminiſtrations therein, was the Thing deſigned by our Fathers, when they followed the Lord into this Wilderneſs: And therefore Degeneracy in that Reſpect would be a greater Evil in us, than in any People. We ſhall not act like Wiſe Children, if we ſeek to pull down with our Hand, That Houſe (or any Pillar-Principle, whereon it is founded) which our Wiſe Fathers have built. The Debaſing the Matter of Particular Churches muſt needs Corrupt them. A Learned and Renowned Author has Evinced, That the Letting go this Principle, That Particular Churches ought to Conſiſt of Regenerate Perſons, brought in the Great Apoſtacy of the Chriſtian Church. The Way to prevent the like Apoſtacy in theſe Churches, is to Require an Account of thoſe, that offer themſelves to Communion therein, concerning the Work of God on their Souls, as well as concerning their Knowledge and Belief. If once this Practice and Principle of Truth be deſerted, A World of unqualified Perſons will ſoon fill, and peſter and corrupt the Houſe of God, and cauſe Him to Go far off from His Sanctuary. We may then juſtly fear, that theſe Golden Candleſticks, will be no longer ſo, but become Droſs and Tin, and Reprobate Silver, until the Lord has rejected them. Let us Dread to have an Hand, in cauſing it to be ſo! It is a ſolemn Paſſage which Mr. Cotton (whom Dr. Goodwin calls the Apoſtle of this Age) has in his Judicious Treatiſe of the Holineſs of Church Members. p. 60. Methinks (ſays he) the Servants of God ſhould Tremble to Erect ſuch a State of the viſible Church, in Hypocriſie and Formal Profeſſion, as whoſe very Foundation threatneth certain Diſſolution and Deſolation. True it is, That we may not Do Evil, that Good may come of it. We may not Uſe any unlawful Practice to prevent Impurity, as to the Matter of our Churches. But no Man can ſay, That the Practice we plead for is Sinful. If then the Uſe of it may (by the Bleſſing of Chriſt) be a Means to keep our Churches and Communion pure, why ſhould it be laid aſide? Mr. Mitchel in a Manuſcript of his, which I have ſeen, has theſe weighty Words, 'The Over-enlarging
'of full Communion or Admiſſion of Perſons
'thereunto, upon ſlight Qualifications, without
'inſiſting upon the Practical and Spiritual Part
'of Religion, will not only loſe the Power of 'Godlineſs, but in a little time, bring in Profaneneſs, and Ruine the Churches theſe two 'Ways. 1. Election of Miniſters will ſoon be 'carried by a formal, looſer Sort. 2. The 'Ex-

Owen Theol: Lib. 6. Cap. 8.

‘ Exerciſe of Diſcipline, will by this means be rendred impoſſible. Diſcipline falling, Profaneneſs riſeth like a Flood. For the Major Part wanting Zeal againſt Sin, will foſter Licentiouſneſs. It is not ſetting down good Rules and Directions, that will ſalve it: For the Specification of Government is from Men, not from Laws. Let never ſo good a Form of Government be agreed upon, it will ſoon degenerate, if the Inſtruments (or Men) that manage it, be not Good Bleſſed Mitchel! Theſe are thy Words; This was thy Spirit!

6. In the Primitive and Pureſt Times of the Church, there was great Strictneſs uſed in Examining ſuch as were admitted to Sacraments, concerning the Sincerity of their Repentance towards God, and their Faith in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. There are who pretend, That this is a New Practice, begun by a few Separatiſts in Amſterdam, not an Hundred Years ſince. But ſuch Perſons diſcover their Ignorance, and that they are unacquainted and unſtudied in Eccleſiaſtical Story. Juſtin Martyr (who lived 150 Years after Chriſt) in his Second Apology for the Chriſtians, writeth, That they did Examine ſuch as were admitted to their Communion, whether they were able to conform themſelves in all things to the Word and Will of God. If we would know what Things were practiſed by the Churches in the Primitive Times, the Writings of Tertullian and Cyprian, (as Learned Uſher has truly obſerved) give us the cleareſt Diſcovery thereof. It is evident from them, that in thoſe Days, there was rather too much Rigidity, than too much Laxneſs, in their Admiſſion to Sacraments. They would keep Men, who were Catechumens and Competentes a long time, before they did receive them into full Communion in the Church. They required not only a Profeſſion of Faith, and a Confeſſion of Sins, but a Submiſſion to a Severe Scrutiny concerning their Sincerity therein. Fiant Scrutinia, ut ſæpius explorentur, an poſt Renunciationem Satanæ ſacra verba datæ Fidei radicitus Corde defixerint. They were to be Examined again and again, to find out, whether the Words of the Faith they profeſſed, were indeed fixed in their Hearts. Cyprian in his third Epiſtle ſays, Mihi labor eſt perſuadere fratribus ut recipiendis Conſentiant, Vix Plebi perſuadeo, ut tales patiantur admitti, quia nec cum vera pœnitentia venerant. That he could not eaſily perſwade the Brethren in Churches, to conſent to the Admiſſion of ſuch Perſons to their Communion, of whoſe Sincere Repentance, there was any doubt. Origen declares, as much as that amounts to. When in after Ages, Churches degenerated, Chryſoſtom complains, that by Admitting ungodly Men into the Church, they had filled the Temple with Beaſts, and he profeſſed, that he would ſooner chooſe to have his Right Hand cut off, than Adminiſter the Sacrament to a Known wicked Man. It is well known, that the Waldenſes, amongſt whom Religion was preſerved, during the Reign of Popery, were ſtrict in this matter. And ſo were the Bohemian Brethren: Commenius teſtifies concerning them, that they uſed a Diligent Exploration concerning the Faith and Repentance of their Communicants, leſt haply it ſhould be only Superficiary and Fallacious, There was an Examen Conſcientiarium uſed amongſt them. It muſt be acknowledged, that in the Proteſtant Reformation, there has been a great Neglect and Defect, as to what concerns the Diſcipline and Government of Chriſt in His Church. As the Apoſtacy was gradual, ſo has the Reformation been. And there was (as Dr. Owen well obſerves) a Wiſe Providence in ordering it to be ſo. ‘ For had the Firſt Reformers ſet themſelves to remove out of the Church all ſuch as were unmeet for its Communion, and to have reduced Things to their Primitive Inſtitution., by Reaſon of the Paucity of the Number of ſuch Church Members, the Endeavour for a General Reformation of Doctrine and Worſhip would have been obſtructed. Hence it comes to paſs, That the Reformation of the Church, as unto the Matter of it, was not attempted, until Calvin ſet up his Diſcipline in Geneva, which has filled the World with Clamours againſt him to this Day. In moſt other Places the Matter or Members of Churches were, as to their Lives and Converſation as bad as the Papiſts. Nevertheleſs, Eminent Divines of the Reformation, in this and the laſt Century, have approved of that which we are pleading for. Beza laments the Remiſsneſs of Proteſtant Churches in not taking more Care about the Qualifications of their Members; concluding, that there will never be ſuch a Reformation as ought to be endeavoured after, niſi a Converſione Cordium Initium Inſtaurationis ſumatur, except Men with Converted Hearts, be laid in the Foundation. Bucer finds fault with the Engliſh Churches for Admitting Children who had been baptized, unto the Lord's Supper, upon too low Terms. He ſays, there ſhould be manifeſt Signs of Regeneration in them firſt: That they ſhould appear to be ſuch as had upon their Hearts a Senſe of the Word of God, and that they did uſe Secret Prayer, &c. But how ſhould ſuch Things be known concerning them without Enquiry into their Spiritual State! Chamier commends the Strictneſs uſed in the Primitive Times, in Examining thoſe that deſired to joyn to the Church, ne quantum fieri poterit lateant Simones, that ſo Simon Magus may not creep into the Church, if it were poſſible to prevent it. Luther did at laſt ſorrowfully bewail it, That he began his Reformation with ſuch Promiſcuous Admiſſions to the Table of the Lord, heartily wiſhing, that he had taught and practiſed ſuch a Church Diſcipline, as that which was profeſſed by the Bohemian Brethren. Chemnitius wiſheth, that the Strictneſs uſed among the Ancients in the Probation of Communicants were reſtored, and revirevived in the Churches of the Reformation. His Godly Deſire and Hope that in Time it will be ſo, is approved of by Gerbard in his Common Place, de Sacra Cœna.

Some of thoſe that are called Presbyterians fully concur with us, as to the Subſtance of what we plead for. When Mr. Norton in his Anſwer unto Apollonius, does aſſert, That four Things are to be required of thoſe, that deſire Admiſſion into Church Fellowſhip. 1. A Confeſſion of Faith. 2. A Declaration of their Experience concerning a Work of Faith. 3. A Blameleſs Converſation. 4. Profeſſed Subjection to the Goſpel, and the Order of it. That Learned and Worthy Profeſſor of Divinity, in the Univerſity of Leyden, Dr. Hornbeck declares his Concurrence with him therein, and that in theſe Particulars, thoſe of the Congregational Way, agree with ſome other Reformed Churches. To my certain Knowledge, Eminent Miniſters of the Presbyterian Perſwaſion, in London, Examine their Communicants (before they admit them to partake with them, at the Lord's Table) concerning their Faith and Repentance. And ſo (notwithſtanding what is pleaded for by the Godly Learned Mr. Rutherford) ſome do in Scotland, as divers Worthy Miniſters of that Nation, have aſſured me.

Hornbeck Epiſtola ad Duraum p. 299.

The Difference as to this Matter, between a Presbyterian and a Congregational Man, (who are nevertheleſs United Brethren) is this. There is no Congregational Man but he reports to the Church ſomething of what the Perſon deſiring Communion with them, has related to him; which the Presbyterian does not, only Declares his own Satisfaction, and giveth the Brethren a Liberty to object againſt the Converſation of the Admittendi. I know Presbyterians, who are ſtricter in their Examinations and Admiſſions, than ſome Congregational Men. It appears therefore, that ſuch Enquiries into the Spiritual Eſtate of them, who are to be admitted unto full Communion, in all the Ordinances of the Goſpel, is no Singular or Novel Practice: Nothing but what is confirmed by Reverend Antiquity, and has been ingenuouſly aſſerted by the Great Reformers, both of the former, and this preſent Age. Whether the Brethren, as well as the Elders ſhould not be concerned as Judges, concerning the Qualifications of thoſe whom they Receive into their Communion, is another Queſtion, which I ſhall not here enlarge upon. It is certain, that in the Primitive Ages of the Church, they had that Liberty; otherwiſe Cyprian would never have ſaid, Vix Plebi perſuadeo ut Tales patiantur admitti, &c. And elſewhere confeſſed his Obligations, and Reſolutions, Nihil ſine conſenſu plebis, privata ſententia genere.

It is alſo certain, that this is an avowed Principle of all who are eſteemed Congregational. In the Declaration of the Faith and Order owned and practiſed in Congregational Church in England, agreed and conſented unto, by their Elders and Meſſengers, in their Meeting at the Savoy, Octob. 12. 1658. They declare, That the Members of Particular Churches are Saints by calling, viſibly manifeſting their Obedience to the Call of Chriſt, who being further known to each other by their Confeſſion of Faith wrought in them by the Power of God, declared by themſelves, or otherwiſe manifeſted, conſent to walk together according to the appointment of Chriſt. I have known many in England of that way; but never any that did not concern the Brethren as well as themſelves, to be Judges of the fitneſs of thoſe who have deſired to be received into their Communion. It is evident, that the Church, (and not the Officers only) have Power given them by Chriſt, to Judge who are meet to be put out of their Communion. Mat. 18. 17. 1 Cor. 5. 12. Then they muſt needs have the like Power as to thoſe that are to be taken into their Communion. Ejuſdem eſt poteſtatis conſtituere et deſtituere, is a known received Axiom. If the whole Church has power to Judge of the Repentance of one that is to be Re-admitted, then of the Repentance of one that is to have his firſt Admiſſion. But the Apoſtle ſpeaks to the Church, and not to the Officers only to reſtore the penitent Corinthian to their Communion. 2 Cor. 2. 8. Again, If the whole multitude of Diſciples have Power to Judge, whether Perſons are qualified with that Wiſdom and Grace, as to be meet for Office-Relation in the Church, then they have Power to Judge concerning the Knowledge and Grace of Communicants. The Argument is a majori ad minus. They that are meet Judges in a greater Matter, much more in that which is leſs. But the former is clear from the Scripture. Acts 6. 2, 3, 4. For further Satisfaction in this point, Mr. Norton, and Mr. Shepard may be conſulted, with that Man of vaſt Reading and Learning, Mr. Robert Parker.

Theſe Things I have ſuppoſed to be proper for me to Write to you the Church of Chriſt in Cambridge; not as doubting of your Stedfaſtneſs in the Truth to this day profeſſed and practiſed by you, but as deſiring that thoſe who ſhall ſucceed you, may continue to walk therein; and that ſo I might teſtifie, the peculiar Reſpect, that I do (and ought to) bear unto you, on the Account of the Undeſerved Love, which all of you have manifeſted towards me. Five Years are not expired, ſince you were pleaſed unanimouſly to Invite me to Accept of the Paſtoral Office over you. But the Unwillingneſs of the Dear People, among whom I have been Labouring in the Goſpel for the Space of Thirty ſix Years, that I ſhould leave them, in Conſideration with ſome other Obſtacles, kept me from complying with that your Loving Motion. Nevertheleſs, I cannot but whilſt I Live, have a Dear Affection for you, and know not how to expreſs it more, than by Endeavouring what in me lies, that you and your Children after you, may be confirmed in thoſe Ways of the Lord, which your Fathers, and your ſelves too, have experienced ſo much of His Preſence in. And I have alſo conſidered, that you are ſingularly circumſtanced, in that there are Reſiding with you, the Sons of the Prophets, whoſe Eſtabliſhment in the preſent Truth, I am more than any Man in the World, under an Obligation to promove, and I certainly know (not altogether without an Awful Senſe of it) that the Son of God, will e're long Enquire of me, whether I did in this Matter, Diſcharge my Duty, according to his Expectation, to whom I muſt be accountable concerning the Improvement of whatever Talents or Opportunities to Serve His Intereſts, He has or ſhall Truſt me with, whilſt I am in this World.

A few Words let me further ſpeak to you, who belong to that Nurſery, for Religion and Learning, which has for a long time been the Glory, not of Cambridge only, but of New-England. Sixteen Years will this Summer be lapſed, ſince God, by his Providence, devolved the Preſidentſhip of that Society into my Hands, to manage it (ſo far as my Inſufficiencies for ſuch a Service will permit) for the Ends, which He (and our Fathers, as his Inſtruments) did at firſt Erect a Colledge in New-England upon ; which was chiefly, that ſo Scholars might there be Educated for the Service of Chriſt and His Churches, in the Work of the Miniſtry, and that they might be ſeaſoned in their Tender Years with ſuch Principles as brought their Bleſſed Progenitors into this Wilderneſs. What my Sollicitudes for this have been in both Englands, is known to to Him, who ſaid to the Churches, I know your Works. There is no One Thing of Greater Concernment to theſe Churches, in preſent and after-times, than the Proſperity of that Society. They cannot ſubſiſt without a Colledge. There are are at this day not above Two or Three of our Churches but what are ſupplyed from thence. Nor are the Churches like to continue pure Golden Candle-ſticks, if the Colledge, which ſhould ſupply them, prove Apoſtate. If the Fountain be corrupted, How ſhould the Streams be pure, which ſhould make Glad the City of God? How ſhould Plants of Renown ſpring up from thence, if the Colledge it ſelf become a Degenerate Plant? You that are Tutors there, have a Great Advantage put into your Hands (and I pray God give you Wiſdom to know it!) to prevent it. The Lord hath made you Fathers to many Pupils. You will not deny, but that He has made me a Father to you. It was my Recommendation, that brought you into that Station. And therefore, as my Joy will be Greater to ſee you Acquit your ſelves Worthily, ſo my earneſt Sollicitudes for it muſt needs be the more, on that Account. There are many (I believe, you wiſh you could ſay ſo of all of them) who were once under your Tuition, that do worthily in Ephratah, and are like to be famous in Bethlehem, for which you ought to (and I doubt not but you do) humbly Bleſs the Lord, That you (and they who ſhall ſucceed you) may be yet Greater Bleſſings, Let me commend unto you the Example of this Bleſſed Man, whoſe Life is here deſcribed. When Jerom had conſidered the Life of Hilarion, he Reſolved Hilarion ſhall be the Champion, whom I will follow! Say each of you, Mitchel, (once a Tutor in Harvard-Colledge) ſhall be the Example, whom I will imitate! You will ſee in the Story of his Life, that he did not only Inſtruct his Pupils in the Knowledge of the Tongues and Arts, but that he would ſometimes diſcourſe them about the Spiritual Eſtate of their Immortal Souls. Such private Perſonal Inſtructions, are many times more Effectual to Converſion than Publick Sermons. Some very worthy Perſons who were once his Scholars, have a Living Remembrance of his Words, to this Day. Others of them are now with him in Glory, bleſſing God to Eternity, whoſe Providence diſpoſed them under ſuch a Tutor. Famous Dr. Preſton choſe rather to Live in Cambridge, than in any Place of England, becauſe by Reaſon of the Univerſity there, he had an Opportunity, Non modo dolare Lapides ſed Artichitectos, to prepare Builders for the Houſe of God. The Angels in Heaven would not think it beneath them, to be employed in ſo Great a Work and Service for the Churches of Chriſt, as that which Infinite Grace has call'd you unto. If you follow thoſe, that have gone before you (Mitchel in particular) as they have followed Chriſt, your Names will be Precious and Honourable like theirs, and you ſhall Live after you are Dead, as they now do.

As for you that are the Students in the Colledge: I have often (as you know) in my Diſcourſes among you, Exhorted you above all Things to Study Chriſt, and to be mindful of, The one Thing Neceſſary. Gifts without Grace will be of no Avail unto you at laſt. You may excel in Knowledge, and yet be of all in the World the moſt Miſerable, and moſt like to the Devils, as a Converted Indian once ſaid concerning ſome Scholars. You know, that many Philoſophers who were Heathen excelled in that which is called, Humane Learning. And ſo have ſome Popiſh Authors (Jeſuites eſpecially) done, whoſe Books have been very Edifying to others. I muſt confeſs, that as to that ſmall meaſure of Knowledge which I have attained unto, I have, (for ſome part of it) been beholden to the Divine Providence for the Works of Ricciolus, Galtruchius, and others of that Fraternity, who were very Learned Men, tho' Enemies of the True Proteſtant Religion. Knowledge then without Chriſt and Holineſs, will never bring you to Heaven. One has written a Book, De Salute Ariſtolis; And another, De Animabus Paganorum endeavouring to prove, that the Philoſophers who Knew not the Only True God, nor Jeſus Chriſt, have Eternal Life. Let ſuch and all other Pelagian and Arminian Principles be far from you. But do not think it is enough, if you be Orthodox, in the Fundamental Points of Religion. It was not (I can aſſure you) on any ſuch Account that your Fathers followed Chriſt into this Wilderneſs, when it was a Land not ſown. If you degenerate from the Order of the Goſpel (as well as from the Faith of the Goſpel) you will juſtly merit the Name of Apoſtates and of Degenerate Plants. And ſuch Degeneracy in the Children of New-England, and moſt of all in you will be worſe, than in any Children in the World. If any of you ſhall prove ſuch, Remember that you were told, that you take an unhappy Time to Degenerate in. He whoſe Fan is in his Hand, will throughly purge his Floor. The Day is near, when the Lord Jeſus Chriſt will make His Churches more Pure and Reformed, than in the former Ages; and will you at ſuch a time corrupt your ſelves with looſe and large Principles in Matters relating to the Houſe of God, Whoſe Houſe Holineſs becomes for ever! How if ſome of you ſhould live to ſee that Scripture verified, where the Lord ſays, The Levites that are gone far from me, when Iſrael went aſtray, they ſhall not come near unto me, to do the Office of a Prieſt unto me, but the Sons of Zadok that kept the Charge of my Sanctuary, they ſhall enter into my Sanctuary, and they ſhall come near to my Table to Miniſter unto me! Ezek. 44. 10, 15. Let me Recommend unto you the weighty Words of my moſt Dear and Worthy Friend and Predeceſſor, Mr. Oakes, once your Learned Preſident, which he delivered (and afterwards Printed) on a very ſolemn Occaſion. He ſpeaketh to you thus,

‘Conſider (ſaith he) what will be the End of Receding or making a Defection from the Way of Church-Government eſtabliſhed amongſt us. I profeſs, I look upon the Diſcovery and Settlement of the Congregational Way, as the Boon, the Gratuity, the Largeſs of Divine Bounty, which the Lord graciouſly beſtowed on His People, that followed Him into this Wilderneſs; and a great part of the Bleſſing on the Head of Joſeph, and of them who were Separate from their Brethren. Theſe Good People that came over, ſhewed more Love, Zeal, and Affectionate Deſire of Communion with God in pure Worſhip and Ordinances, and did more in Order to it than others, and the Lord did more for them than for any People in the World, in ſhewing them the Pattern of His Houſe, and the true Scriptural-way of Church Government and Adminiſtrations. God was certainly in a more than ordinary Way of Favour preſent with his Servants in laying of our Foundations, and in ſetling the Way of Church Order according to the Will and Appointment of Chriſt. Conſider, what will be the ſad Iſſue of Revolting from the Way fixed upon, to one Extream or to another, whether it be to Presbyterianiſm or Browniſm; as for the Presbyterians, it muſt be acknowleged, that there are among them as Pious, Learned, Sober, Orthodox Men, as the World affords; and that there is as much of the Power of Godlineſs among that Party, and of the Spirit of the good Old Puritans, as among any People in the World. And for their Way of Church-Government, it muſt be confeſſed, that in the Day of it, it was a very Conſiderable Step to Reformation. The Reformation in K. Edward's Days was then a Bleſſed Work. And the Reformation of Geneva and Scotland, was then a larger ſtep, and in many reſpects purer than the other. And for my part I fully believe, that the Congregational Way far exceeds both, and is the Higheſt Step that has been taken towards Reformation, and for the Subſtance of it, it is the very ſame way, that was eſtabliſhed and practiſed in the Primitive Times, according to the Inſtitution of Jeſus Chriſt. I muſt needs ſay, that I ſhould look upon it, as a ſad Degeneracy, if we ſhould leave the Good Old Way, ſo far as to turn Councils and Synods into Clauſes and Provincial Aſſemblies, and there ſhould be ſuch a Laxneſs in Admiſſion of Members to Communion, as is pleaded for, and practiſed by many Presbyterians, and Elders ſhould manage all themſelves in an Autocratorical Way, to the Subverſion of the Liberty and Priviledge of the Brethren. Thus Mr. Oakes. As for that Excellently Learned and Holy Man Mr. Charles Chauncey, who for many Years Preſided over Harvard-Colledge, none of you, who now belong to that Society, can remember him. But you have heard what his Dying Charge to his Sons (who through Grace tread in their Father's Steps) was in his Laſt Will and Teſtament, which you may ſee Publiſhed with his Life in due Time. He that is now your Preſident — A longe ſequitur veſtigia ſemper adorans; yet is willing not to Evert or Undermine the Foundation, which his Bleſſed Predeceſſors, have laid, but to Build thereon. I remember Buchanan (who was Tutor to K. James I.) in the Preface to his Baptiſtes, which he Dedicates to that K. ſays, That the Reaſon why he did ſo, was, ‘That in caſe He ſhould through the Influence of Evil Counſellors, or from any other Cauſe, be Guilty of Male-Adminiſtration in His Government, after Ages ſhould know, that the Blame ought to be imputed not to His Tutor, but to Himſelf. So let me ſay, If you the Students in Harvard-Colledge, or any of you, ſhall deviate and degenerate from the Holy Principles and Practices of your Fathers, the World ſhall know, and Poſterity ſhall know, That the Reaſon of it is not for want of being otherwiſe inſtructed by your Preſent, as well as by Former Preſidents,

OF

Mr. Jonathan Mitchel.

Sanctorum Vitas Legere & non Vivere, fruſtra eſt;
Sanctorum Vitas Degite, non Legite.

§. 1. IT is Reported concerning the Ancient Phrygians, that when a Prieſt expired among them, they Honoured him with a Pillar Ten Fathom high, whereon they placed his Dead Body, as if he were to continue after his Death, from thence Inſtructing of the People. Nor can a Miniſter of the Goſpel have any more Honourable Funeral, than That, by which his Inſtructon of the People, may be moſt continued unto the People, after his Expiration. But I may without any Danger of Miſtake, venture to affirm, That there cannot eaſily be found a Miniſter of the Goſpel in our Days, more worthy to have the Story of his Life employed for the Inſtruction of Mankind after his Deceaſe, than our Excellent Mitchel. And therefore I ſhall now endeavour to ſet him on as high a Pillar, as the beſt Hiſtory, that I can give of his Exemplary Life, can erect, for that Worthy Man; for whom Statues of Corinthian Braſs, were but Inadæquate Acknowledgments.

§. 2. If it were counted an Honour to the Town of Halifax in Yorkſhire, that the Famous John de Sacro Boſco, Author of the well-known Treatiſe De Sphæra, was born there; this Town was no leſs Honoured by its being the Place of Birth to our no leſs worthily Famous Jonathan Mitchel, the Author of a better Treatiſe Of Heaven, who being deſcended (as a Printed Account long ſince has told us) of Pious and Wealthy Parents, here drew his firſt Breath, in the Year 1624. The preciſe Day of his Birth is loſt, nor is it worth while for us to enquire by an Aſtrological Calculation, what Aſpect the Stars had upon his Birth, ſince the Event has proved, That God the Father was in the Horoſcope, Chriſt in the Mid-Heaven, the Spirit in the Sixth Houſe, Repentance, Faith and Love, in the Eighth: And in the Twelfth, an Eternal Happineſs, where no Saturn can dart any malignant Rays. Here, while the Father of his Fleſh was endeavouring to make him Learned by a proper Education, the Father of Spirits uſed the Methods of Grace to make him Serious; eſpecially by a ſore Feavour, which had like to have made the Tenth Year of his Life the Laſt, but then ſettled in his Arm with ſuch Troubleſome Effects, that his Arm grew, and kept a little bent, and he could never ſtretch it out Right until his Dying Day. And upon this Accident he afterwards wrote this Reflection; Thus the Lord ſought to make me Serious (Oh! when will it once be!) by ſteeping my firſt Entrance into Years of Underſtanding, and into the Changes of Life, and my firſt Motions to New-England, in Eminent and Special Sorrows. Now his Firſt Motions to New-England, mentioned in this Reflection, invite us to Haſten unto that part of our Hiſtory, which is to relate, that his Parents were ſome of thoſe Exemplary Chriſtians, which by the Unconſcionable Impoſitions and Perſecutions of the Engliſh Hierarchy upon the Conſciences of People, as Remarkable for True Chriſtianity as any in the Realm, were driven out of it in the Year 1635. the Ship, which brought over Mr. Richard Mather, and many more of thoſe Puritans, which had found the Church of England, then governed by ſuch an Aſſembly of Treacherous Men, (a Faction to whom that Name, The Church of England never truly belonged) that they were put upon wiſhing with the perſecuted Prophet, Oh! that I had in the Wilderneſs a Lodging-place of Way-faring Men! was further enriched by having on Board our Jonathan, than a Child of about Eleven Years of Age; whoſe Parents with much Difficulty and Reſolution carried him unto Briſtol to take Shipping there, while he was not yet recovered of his Illneſs. On the Coaſt of New-England, they were delivered from a moſt Eminent and Amazing Hazard of periſhing, in a moſt Horrible Tempeſt; upon which Deliverance Mr. Mather preached a Sermon from that Scripture, John 5. 14. Sin no more leaſt leaſt a worſe thing come unto thee; whereby further Impreſſions of Seriouſneſs were made upon the Soul of this Young Diſciple.

§. 3. The Godly Father of our Jonathan found, that America as well as Europe, New-England as well as Old England, was a part of Old Adam's World; well ſtocked every where with the Thorns of Worldly Vanities and Vexations; and that a Wilderneſs was a Place, where Temptation was to be met withal.) All his Family, and the Jonathan of the Family, with the Reſt, were viſited with Sickneſs, the Winter after their firſt Arrival at Charlſtown, and the Scarcity then afflicting the Countrey added unto the Afflictions of their Sickneſs. Removing to the Town of Concord, his greater Matters continually became ſmaller there, his Beginnings were there conſumed by Fire, and ſome other Loſſes befel him in the Latter End of that Winter. The next Summer he removed unto Say-brook, and the next Spring unto Weathersfield upon Connecticut River, by which he loſt yet more of his Poſſeſſions, and plunged himſelf into other Troubles. Towards the Cloſe of that year he had a Son-in-law Slain by the Pequot Indians; and the Reſt of the Winter they lived in much fear of their Lives from thoſe Barbarians, and many of his Cattel were deſtroyed, and his Eſtate unto the Value of ſome Hundreds of Pounds was damnified. A Shallop, which he ſent unto the River's Mouth was taken, and burned by the Pequots, and Three Men in the Veſſel ſlain, in all of whom he was nearly concerned: So that indeed the Pequot Scourge fell more on this Family, than on any other in the Land. Afterward there aroſe unhappy Differences in the place where he lived, wherein he was an Antagoniſt againſt ſome of the Principal Perſons in the place, and hereby he that had hitherto Lived in precious Eſteem with Good Men, wherever he came (as a Record I have ſeen, teſtifies concerning him) now ſuffered much in his Eſteem among many ſuch Men, as 'tis uſual in ſuch Contentions, and he met with many other Injuries: For which Cauſes, he transferred himſelf, with his Intereſts, unto Stamford in the Colony of New Haven. Here his Houſe Barn and Goods were again conſumed by Fire; and much Internal Diſtreſs of Mind accompanied theſe Humbling Diſpenſations. At laſt, that Moſt Horrible of Diſeaſes, the Stone, arreſted him, and he underwent unſpeakable Dolours from it, until the Year 1645. when he went unto his Reſt about the Fifty Fifth Year of his Age.

§. 4. Although the Good Spirit of God, gave our Jonathan to improve much in his Holy Diſpoſitions while he was yet a Youth, by the Calamities, which thus befel his Father; and particularly upon Occaſion of a ſad thing befalling a Servant of his Father's, who inſtead of going to the Lecture at Hartford, as he had been allowed and Adviſed, would needs go fell a Tree for himſelf, but a broken Bough of the Tree ſtruck him dead, ſo that he never ſpoke or ſtirred more; our Jonathan, who was then about Fifteen Years old, in one of his Papers does Relate, This Amazing Stroke did much ſtirr my Heart, and I ſpent ſome time in Endeavouring the work of Repentance according to Mr. Scudder's Directions in his Daily Walk: nevertheleſs he had this Diſadvantage, that he was thereby Diverted from Study and Learning, for the firſt ſeven years after his Coming into the Country. Had it not been for the Diſadvantage of this Intermiſſion, we had ſeen ſome Lively Emulation of Bellarmine's open Lectures of Divinity, at Sixteen years of Age, or Torquato Quaſſo's Receiving his Degrees in Philoſophy and Divinity at Seventeen, or Grotius's publiſhing of Commentaries at the like Seventeen. For he was, as the Hiſtorian obſerves, all that will prove Conſiderable, muſt be, Puer, qui Seminario Virtutum Generoſiore concretus, aliquid Inclytum deſignaſſet. But after ſo long an Intermiſſion, as until September in the year 1642. and the Eighteenth year of his Age, upon the Earneſt Advice of ſome that had Obſerved his great Capacity, and eſpecially of Mr. Mather. with whom he came into New-England, he Reſumed his Deſigns for Study and Learning: wherein he made ſo vigorous a Progreſs, that in the year 1645. he was upon a ſtrict Examination Admitted into Harvard Colledge. Nor was it very long before Mr. Mather, who was the Adviſer of this matter, had the Conſolation of ſeeing the Excellent Labours of this perſon in the Pulpit worthy of his own Conſtant Journeys to his monthly Lectures; yea, and the moſt Conſiderable Fathers of the Country, with himſelf, treating this perſon, as not Coming behind the very Chiefeſt of them all, and Taſting his Communications, not as Unripe Grapes, or Wine juſt out of the Preſs.

§ 5. But before we can fairly Arrive to that part of our Story, it will be as profitable, as neceſſary for us to Obſerve the Steps whereby God made him Great. The Faculties of Mind, with which the God that Forms the Spirit of man, enriched him, were very Notable. He had a Clear Head, a Copious Fancy, a Solid Judgment, a Tenacious Memory, and a certain Diſcretion, without any Childiſh Laſchete, or Levity in his Behaviour, which commanded Reſpect from all that viewed him: So that it might be ſaid of him, as it once was of a Great Perſon in the Engliſh Nation, They that knew him from a Child, never knew him any other than a Man. Under theſe Advantages, he was an Hard Student, and he ſo Proſpered in his Indefatigable Studies, that he became a Scholar of Illuminations, not far from the Firſt Magnitude: Recommended by which Qualifications, it was not long before he was Choſen a Fellow of the Colledge. But the main Strokes of his Colledge-Life, that I ſhall ſingle out for my Readers Obſervation, are of yet an higher Character. Know then, that as it was his own Counſel to his Brother, The Writing of ſometimes your former and preſent Life, would be a Thing of Endleſs Uſe, thus it was his manner, whilſt in the Colledge, to keep a brief Diary, written in the Latine Tongue, which he wrote indeed fluently and handſomely; and from a part of this Diary, by him Entituled, Vitæ Hypomnemata, happily fallen into my Hands, I ſhall note ſome few Remarkables.

He kept a ſtrict Eye upon his Interior State, before God; and upon the Diſpoſitions of his Heart, as well in Sacred as in Civil Entertainments: but with an Extreme Severity of Reflection upon himſelf, when perhaps, at the ſame time the Severeſt Spectator upon Earth beſides would have judged every thing in him worthy to have been Admired, rather than Cenſured. He would Record ſuch Things as theſe.

One Time,
Inter precandum, Deus ab Inſipido ac Deſolato Corde juſte abſuit, ut me (quo nihil magis neceſſarium) humiliaret; Nam aliter (ſi paulo melius aliquando ſe habeat Cor) eſt in me, quod prophana Spirituali Superbia titillatur. Eram tamen inde nonnihil ad Deum Excitatior.

At another Time,
Jejunio privato interfui, ubi multo Stupore, & multa vanitate Oppletus ſum; aliqua tamen viguerant Suſpiria & Deus non viſus eſt me omnino abdicare, ſed paulo meliorem fecit; utinam tenuiſſem & foviſſem Deſideria, quæ tunc accendit.

At another Time,
Locum communem habui; vix abſtinu ia ſecreta ſuperbia; Licet turpiſſima vanitas Animi (quæ nunquam non omnia mea venenantur) me coram Deo proſtraviſſet, præter alia mea peccata, quæ me infra vermes ponunt, Neque ſane unquam aliquid aut facio aut dico, unde plus pudoris quam Honoris, mihi non naſcitur, ſi omnia mecum perpendo; & Deus ſolet ſemper aliquid relinquere, unde me (ſaltem apud me) pudefacit.

At another Time,
Colloquiis Hilaribus, cum Sociis quibuſdam nimis indulſi.
At another Time,
Adibam Boſtonium, & ibi Libertatem Civilem accepi, ſed ex Oblectamentis Leve & Inſipidum Cor.
At another,
Liberius quam prudentius quædam locutus ſum, unde mihi pudor.

In my Prayer, God was juſtly withdrawn from my Unſavoury and Deſolate Heart, that ſo He might Humble me; than which there is nothing more needful for me. For otherwiſe (if my Heart be at any time in a little better frame) there is that in me, which is tickled with Spiritual Pride. Neverthleſs I was from hence more Excited God-ward.

I was preſent at a private Faſt, where I was filled with much Sottiſhneſs and Vanity: Yet I had ſome Lively Sighs; and God ſeemed not wholly to caſt me off, but made me a little Better than I was before. I wiſh I had Retained and Cheriſhed the Deſires, which He then Enkindled!

I Common-placed. I could Scarce abſtain from Secret Pride; altho' a very baſe Vanity of mind (with which every thing of mine is poiſon'd!) had laid me low in the Duſt before God, beſides my other Sins, which lay me lower than the very Worms of the Duſt. But indeed, I never Do or Say any thing, from whence there ariſes not more of Shame than of Honour to me, if I Conſider all things; and God uſes in all ever to leave ſomething, by which He makes me at leaſt aſhamed of my ſelf.

I gave too much Liberty unto Merry Talk, with ſome of my Friends.

I went unto Boſton, and there took a Civil Liberty: But from ſuch Entertainments my Heart grew light and unſavoury.

I diſcourſed ſome things with more Freedom than Wiſdom; for which, I was aſhamed of my ſelf.

Again; He laid up the more eſpecial Admonitions which touched him, in the Sermons that he heard Preached, or in other more private and uſeful Conferences, and the Reſolutions, which he thereupon asked the Help of Heaven to follow. He would Record ſuch Things as theſe,

One Time,
Vix aliquid apud Deum ſapui, ſed excitavit me Concio Magiſtri Shepardi, Tremenda plane et præſtantiſſima. Docuit Aliquos eſſe qui videntur inveniri & Servari a Chriſto & tamen poſtea pereunt. Hæc me terrebant (& utinam infixa hærerent!) ne tantum viderer eſſe Chriſti, & ne ad mortem uſque ſic pergerem. Rogavi Deum, ut mei Miſertus totam rem ageret. Illa Nocte multo pudore, apud me ſuffuſus eram, quod hactenus nihil in Meditatione quotidiana, feceram, & hinc cæcus & ignarus in Divinis, extra meipſum, & ſine Deo, per Integras Septimanas vixeram. Jam Statui Meditandi opus quotidie urgere, quod ante hac aliquoties ſtatui, ſed, heu!

I had little Savour on my Spirit before God: but a terrible and Excellent Sermon of Mr. Shepards awakened me. He taught, that there are ſome who ſeem to be found and Sav'd by Chriſt, and yet afterwards they periſh. Theſe things terrified me, (and I wiſh, they had ſtuck faſt in me!) leſt I ſhould only ſeem to belong unto Chriſt, and leſt I ſhould thus go on unto Death. I Beg'd of God, that He would have mercy on me, and accompliſh the whole work of His Grace for me. That Night I was covered with no little ſhame, becauſe I had hitherto done in a manner, nothing at the work of DAILY MEDITATION, and hence I had lived Blind, and Ignorant in Divine Things, a ſtranger to my ſelf, and without God, for whole Weeks together. I now Reſolved, every Day to urge the work of MEDITATION, which heretofore I have often Reſolved, but alas, Propoſita violavi; unde ſuccenſet Deus. Ah, Quot & Quanta ſcire potuiſſem de Deo, ſi ſerius & Conſtans in Meditatione fuiſſem!

At another Time,

D. Shepardus utiliſſime docuit. Illa Nocte Seriæ inſequebant Cogitationes, de infanda mea miſeria, qua ſine Deo, ſine Redemptione, a Sabbato ad Sabbatum miſerrimus pergo. Inde Tria ſtatuebam mihi Obſervanda, quæ etiam Deo commendabam, ut in me efficeret. Primo, Non Quiete manendum in hac mea conditione; Intolerabile eſſe, ut ſic pergerem, Secundo, Precandum conſtanter, ſine Languore, aut Intermiſſione, mane nocteque Implorandum Deum, intimis & ineffabilibus ſuſpiriis. Tertio, ſi Deus non auſcultaverit, & quæ opus ſunt præſtarit, in Amore ſuo manifeſtando, ſaltem Lugeam & Lachrymem, & pergam in Amaritudine Animæ; ſi Conſolationem & Pacem a Deo, non habuero, ſaltem nullam omnino habeam!

I have Violated my purpoſes; for which cauſe, God is Angry with me. Ah! How many, how mighty Things of God might I have underſtood, if I had been Serious and Conſtant in MEDITATION!

Mr. Shepard Preached moſt profitably. That night, I was followed with Serious Thoughts, of my Inexpreſſible miſery, wherein I go on moſt miſerably from Sabbath to Sabbath, without God, and without Redemption. From hence I determined, That there are Things which I muſt Obſerve; and I Commended theſe Things unto God, that he would Effect them in me. Firſt; That I muſt not remain quietly in this my condition; but that it is Intolerable for me to proceed as I am. Secondly; That I muſt pray conſtantly, without fainting, or any Intermiſſion: Day and Night I muſt cry unto the Lord, with Groans that cannot be uttered. Thirdly; If God will not Hear me, nor do the Things that are needful for me in manifeſting to me His Love, let me at leaſt Mourn, and Weep, and go on in the Bitterneſs of my Soul. If I ſhall not have Comfort, and Peace, from God, let me have None at all!

At another Time,

D. Samuel Matherus eximie concionatus eſt, de Immutabilitate Dei. Inde Redarguebat mutabilitatem & Inconſtantiam Hominum erga Deum. Hæc me tetigerunt: Conſcius eram Inconſtantiæ meæ; Et ſerio, intimeque perculſus, proſtratus coram Deo vehementer Orabam Gratiam.

Mr. Samuel Mather Preached Excellently, concerning, The Unchangeableneſs of God. From hence he Rebuked the Changeableneſs and Inconſtancy of men, towards God. Theſe Things Touched me; for I was Conſcious to my own Inconſtancy; and being Seriouſly and Inwardly Smitten with the ſenſe of it, I caſt my ſelf down at the Feet of God, with Vehement Supplications for His Favour.

Furthermore, He Acquitted himſelf, as One concerned for the Souls of his Pupils, when he came to have ſuch under his Charge; and was very deſirous to ſee their Hearts renewed by Grace, the (Beginning or) Head of Knowledge, as well as their Heads furniſhed with other Knowledge. He would Record ſuch Things as theſe.

At One Time,

Alloquebar M. W. de Salutis Negotio. Multis illum hortabar, monebam, & dirigebam, ad illud curandum, ne ſuffocaret Convictiones, & inconſtantia Deum luderet, ſed precibus ΠΡΟΣΚΑΡΤΕΡΗΣΗ. Utinam ipſe præſtarem, quæ dixi! Deus, ſerva illum Juvenem!

I ſpoke unto M. W. about the matters of Eternal Salvation, I largely exhorted him, adviſed him, directed him to be careful of This, that he did not Stifle his Convictions, and mock God by Inconſtancy, but be inſtant in Prayer. I wiſh I could my ſelf Do, what I ſpoke! Lord, Save that Young man!

At another Time,

S. M. primus e Pupillis meis, me allocutus eſt de Animæ ſuæ ſtatu; plura quidem quam ſperaſſem Lætus audivi; & (quod Deus dedit) Conſilium addidi, ut pergeret diligenter Deum ſequi, Animabam ad ſequendum Deum; At pudebat me Ariditatis Animi mei.

S. M. the firſt of my Pupils had ſome Speech with me, about the State of his own Soul; I Glad-heard more from him, than I Expected; and (with the Help of God) I Counſelled him, that he would go on to follow hard after God. I Encouraged him to follow the Lord; but I was aſhamed of the Barrenneſs of my own Soul!

Yea, How Watchful he was, on all Occaſions, to Obſerve what Occaſions he might have to Do Good among all the Scholars. I ſhall no more than Tranſcribe the following Paſſage, to intimate.

Nocte, inter Scholares, multa ſeria dixi de Cognoſcendis Rebus Pacis Noſtræ, in Die noſtro. Utinam ipſe mihimet Auſcultarem! Die ſequenti plura ego collocutus ſum cum Contubernalibus,

At Night, among the Scholars, I uttered many Serious Things, about Knowing the Things of our Peace in our Day. Oh! that I could my ſelf herein but hearken to my ſelf! The Day following, I diſcourſed more, with my Chamber-fellowes, ad probandum, eſſe Deum, & Scripturas eſſe ipſius verbum. Ah, nimium ſerpit inter nos ATHEOTES, & video Satanam multos pernicioſiſſimos Dialogiſmos in Nonnullorum Mentes injicere! Hoc malo peribunt multi Juvenes, ni miserearis, O Deus! Et ſenſi me adhuc in his miſerrime tenebricoſum, nec magis aliquid Rogandum, quam ut Stabiliret me quoad Fundamentales iſtas veritates, claramque hic viſionem daret! Hinc aliquando Occaſiones Capto Realitatem, ΤΩΝ ΘΕΟΥ inculcandi, & illuſtrandi: quod non prorſus mane video. Utinam majori Cordis ſenſu, ego poſſem Deum prædicare. Sed quid mirum me oppleri Tenebris, qui Oppletus ſum Cupiditatibus!

Reader, ſee how impoſſible it was, for this Excellent young Man to Record any thing in this Diary, without ſome ſtroke of Humiliation and Admonition to himſelf in the Cloſe of all: The ready way of becoming Excellent!

And while he was thus a young man, reſiding in the Colledge, he would ſometimes, on the Saturday, Retire into the Woods, near the Town, and there ſpend a great part of the Day, in Examining of his own Heart and Life, Bewailing the Evils, which made him want the Mercies of God, and Imploring the Mercies which he wanted of the Lord: which Cuſtom of ſpending Saturday, he had formerly attended alſo at South-Hampton, while he was yet, but as a School-Boy there. Moreover, it was, while he thus Reſided at the Colledge, that his Brother David, under deep Diſtreſſes of mind about his Everlaſting Intereſts, addreſſed him for Counſel; and our Jonathan then wrote unto his Brother that Golden Letter, which was almoſt Thirty years after, publiſhed in London, at the End of his Diſcourſe of Glory; A Letter whereof the famous Collins makes this Remark, Every Reader ſenſible of Spiritual Things, will ſee it written with an Excellent Spirit, the Spirit of God, and drawn out of his own Experiences, and this when but newly Entring upon his Miniſtry. A Letter, wherein he Diſcovers that Experimental Acquaintance with the Operations of Sin, and of Grace, upon the Souls of Men, which may Intimate how Eminent he was in One of the Accompliſhments moſt neceſſary to the Miniſtry of the Goſple, before he had yet Entred upon it. If Chryſoſtom, the Ancient, were ſometimes called Inſignis Animorum tractandorum Artifex, Reader, here was a young man, who effectually proved himſelf, An Artiſt, at handling the Caſes of a Soul! I Remember, that Alexander More judges Three certain Epiſtles, to be the moſt Conſummate Pieces, that ever the World ſaw; Namely, That of Calvin before his Inſtitutions; That of Thuanus, before his Hiſtory; and That of Caſaubon, before his Polybius. Now though this Epiſtle of our young Mitchel, come not into that Claſs, for the Embelliſhments of Literature, yet it has been Reckoned one of the moſt Conſummate Pieces, in the Methods of Addreſſing a Troubled Mind.

to prove, That there is a GOD, and that the Scriptures are His Word. Alas, Atheiſm creeps in too much among us, and I ſee that Satan does caſt many moſt Pernicious Reaſonings into the minds of ſome. Many Young men, will periſh by this Miſchief, Except thou, O Lord God, have Mercy on them! I found my ſelf alſo moſt miſerably dark in theſe things; nor is there any thing that I have more cauſe to ask, than this; That He would Eſtabliſh me in theſe Fundamental Truths, and give me a Clear Viſion of them! From hence I ſometimes do Snatch at Occaſions, to inculcate and illuſtrate the Reality of the Things of God: which I ſee, is not altogether in vain I wiſh, I could Preach God, with greater ſenſe upon my Heart. But what wonder is it, if I that am full of Luſts, be alſo full of Darkneſs!

§ 6 The Extraordinary Learning, Wiſdom, Gravity and Piety of this Incomparable Young Man, cauſed ſeveral of the moſt Conſiderable Churches in the Countrey, to contrive how they might become Owners of ſuch a Treaſure, even before ever he had, by one Publick Sermon, brought forth any of the Treaſure wherewith Heaven had Endowed him. The Church of Hartford in particular, being therein Countenanced and Encouraged by the Reverend Mr. Stone, ſent a Man, and Horſe, above an Hundred miles, to obtain a viſit from him, in expectation to make him the Succeſſor of their ever famous Hooker, and though upon the firſt motion to him from Hartford, his Humble Soul, wrote theſe words, I had more need get alone into a Corner, and weep, than think of Going out into the World, to Do ſuch Work: Darkneſs and Death clouds my Soul! Yet he was prevailed withal to viſit them. At Hartford he Preached his Firſt Sermon. June 24, 1649.) upon Heb. 11. 27. He Endured, as ſeeing Him who is Inviſible; On which Action, though with his uſual Humility, he wrote this Reflection in his Diary; In Preaching I was not to ſeek of what I had prepared; but my own Heart was Drie, Carnal and Unaffected, and methought I could not ſpeak with any Evidence, or Preſence of the Spirit of God; ſo that when I had done, I was deeply aſhamed within my ſelf, and could not but Loath my ſelf, to think how miſerably I had behaved my ſelf, in that High Employment, and how unſavoury, ſottiſh and fooliſh my Heart had been therein; I thought I, and all I did, well deſerved to be Loathed by God and man: Yet that Judicious Aſſembly of Chriſtians, were ſo well pleaſed with the Labours whereof he himſelf thought ſo meanly, that in a Meeting the Day following, they Concluded to give him an Invitation to Settle among them: Adding, That if he ſaw it his beſt way to continue a year longer at the Colledge, they would however immediately upon his Acceptance of their Invitation advance a conſiderable Sum of Money, to aſſiſt him in furniſhing himſelf with a Library (not unlike what the Vratiſlavian Senate once did for the Hopeful young Lucas Pollio, when they ſaw him, Juvenem Dotibus Ornatum a Deo, non vulgaribus:) which they ſaid, was, No new thing unto them, having had Mr. Hooker's Inſtruction for Doing ſo.

But he durſt not then Accept of their kind Propoſals: For before his Journey to Hartford, the Renowned Mr. Shepard, with the Principal Perſons in Cambridge, had importunately pray'd him, that he would come down from Hartford, as free as he went up, inſomuch as he did upon divers Accounts moſt belong to Cambridge, and Cambridge did hope, that he would yet more belong unto them. When Mr. Shepard firſt mentioned this thing unto him, he did with his conſtant Humility record it in his Diary, with this Reflection, Ego mirabar hinc rem: Quid in me videt Populus Dei. Totum Negotium Reliqui Deo agendum. I wondred at this matter! What is it that the People of God ſees in me? I left the whole Buſineſs to the Divine Management! And now Returning to Cambridge, he no ſooner came into the Pulpit (Aug. 12. 1649.) but Mr. Shepard, muſt go out of it! Mr. Shepard in the Evening told him, This was the Place where he ſhould, by right, be all the reſt of his Dayes: and enquiring of ſome good People, How Mr. Mitchel's firſt Sermon was approved among them; they told him, Very well. Then ſaid he, My Work is done! And behold, within a few Dayes more, that Great Man was by Death taken off, ſo that the Unanimous Deſire of Cambridge for Mr. Mitchel to be their Paſtor was Haſtened, with ſeveral Circumſtances of Neceſſity for him to Comply with their Deſire. But as the Jews uſed to ſay about the Birth of R. Jehuda, on the very ſame Day that another famous Rabbi dyed, Eo die occidit Lux Iſraelis, et iterum Orta eſt; So I may now ſay, The ſame Day was the Light of New-England, Extinguiſhed and Revived!

§. 7. Occubuit Sol; Nox nulla Secuta eſt. Upon the ſetting of Shepard there aroſe Mitchel, in whoſe Light not only the Church of Cambridge, but the Colledge, and the whole Country, were now to Rejoyce for a Seaſon. The Eyes of all New-England were upon him with Great Expectations; and he did more than anſwer their Expectations: for he was indeed an Extraordinary Perſon. But ſcarce a Paragraph of his Life can be written to the Life, without ſome Reflection upon that Humility, with which the Spirit of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath prepared him for, and adorned him in all of that Figure, whereto he Arrived in the Service of the Churches. Juſt upon the Time of his Beginning his Miniſtry at Cambridge, he was taken dangerouſly Sick of the Small Pox, but though he were Sick nigh unto Death, God had Mercy on him, and not on him only, but on all the Churches thro' this Wilderneſs in him. No ſooner was he Recovered of that Sickneſs, but this Humble Soul wrote, Octob 4. 1649. in his Diary, (which after this time ſpoke Engliſh,) theſe among other paſſages: It has been of late Weeks a ſpecial time of Adverſity with me, The Lord Help me to Conſider it! I might ſay, My ſkin is Broken, and become Loathſome; and There is no Reſt in my Bones becauſe of my Sin, my Loins are filled with a loathſome Diſeaſe, and there is no ſoundneſs in my fleſh; By ſuch a foul noiſom, filthy Diſeaſe, it well appeared, what I indeed was; as the Prophet ſpeaks, Full of putrefying Sores, It being at this Time, I was as a City ſet upon an Hill; That when I was attempting the Pure and Sacred Work of the Miniſtry, I ſhould be ſurprized with that Horrible Diſeaſe! Do I begin to be ſome Body in the world? God will make me Vile in the Eyes of the whole Country; God will Humble me before the Sun, and in the Sight of all Iſrael. He will have me begin my Miniſtry with this Diſeaſe: He knows, that I have need of a Great Deal of Purifying, before I come to that. A loathſome Sinner ſhall have a loathſome Sickneſs! And the Grace of Heaven that made this Fit of Sickneſs, to be Conſidered thus as an Humiliation by this Eminent young man, then Entring upon his Miniſtry, did by continually Infuſing other Thoughts full of Humiliation into him, lay the Foundation of ſtately Superſtructures. As our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, entring upon His Miniſtry, endured the ſoreſt Conflict of Temptation, that He had ever met withal, ſo did this Excellent Embaſſador of that Lord; He had his Mind ſorely Buffeted with Amazing and Confounding Apprehenſions. Perhaps it will be many ways profitable unto ſome Candidates of the Miniſtry, as well as others to ſee theſe Papers Recite ſome of the ſad Paſſages, that rolled over the Soul of a moſt Lovely Preacher, when he was Beginning to Preach the Goſpel of Peace. We then find him at a Time, when every one admired the Excellencies that Beautifyed him, thus Writing and Thinking of himſelf, as the Deformedeſt Sinner in the World. At one time 'I have Lived in this World almoſt Twenty five years, and unto this Day have known little of God in Chriſt, made little Proviſion for Eternity, got little Acquaintance with the favour and love of God. How I have Improved this Time, Wo to me, I may be aſhamed to ſpeak, amazed to think! At another time. 'Lord, I know not whether ever ſuch a Sinner as I, came to Thee for Mercy; whether ever ſuch a work was done to any poor Wretch, as the ſaving of my Soul muſt be. At another time. 'I have run through all the means of Knowledge, and yet ſee no Truth Really, and in the Glory of it; All Afflictions, and yet am not Humbled nor Serious; All Mercies, and yet am not Thankfull; All Means of Good, and yet am Evil, only Evil, Tranſcendently Evil, in the higheſt Degree to this Day. At another time. 'If God do me any Good, or do any Good by me, it muſt be a Creating work. Lord, I am fit for nothing; (Good for nothing at all) neither to Live, nor Dye; neither to Teach, nor Learn; neither to Think, nor Speak; neither to Do, nor ſuffer; neither to Communicate Good, nor receive any; Go through all that I am, either within, or without, what am I, but Vileneſs, and Abomination? At another time. 'The Church will (I ſuppoſe) this day conſider, and determine a Day for Ordination; but did there ever ſuch a Creature, as I am, go about ſuch a buſineſs? I was low, and vile this time Twelvemonth, when they firſt made the Motion; but I am far lower and viler now. Great is the wrath of God that lyes upon me; and the tokens of it are in ſome reſpects increaſed. I cannot with Confidence go to God as my Father in Jeſus Chriſt. I know no Truth of God to any purpoſe. I have no Treaſure of Chriſtian Experience: I know not what belongs to the main Matters of Converſion and Salvation. My Sin is enough to bring a Curſe upon all I do, and upon the whole place: I am under the very Feet of Satan, in reſpect of it. Object. But ſhall not my Sin then hinder me, and make me Refuſe this Work of the Miniſtry? Anſw. 'That is to mend one Sin with another. The more evil, and the leſs good I have done, the more need I have to give my ſelf up to do what Good I can now; I ſhould not chooſe my Sin, and leave God's Work; and if I caſt it away, and go to God to take it away, and wait on Him, 'tis poſſible with Him, to deliver me from it, and to Help me in His Work: Though that would be the greateſt Wonder, that ever was done! However, let me lye at his Feet, and leave my ſelf with Him. Queſt. Why do I enter upon it? Anſw. Becauſe God bids me, and commands me? Luke 5. He will have it ſo, and why ſhould my ſelf, or Sin, or Satan, ſay, What doſt Thou? Object. But it may be God will take no pleaſure in me? Anſw. I deſerve He ſhould not, but yet He deſerves to be Honoured and Served; and let it be my Happineſs and Joy to do that, whatever becomes of me at laſt. At another time. 'My Caſe is now ſuch (ſo Dreadful, Deſperate and Forlorn) as I think, there never was the like upon Earth, ſince Adam was formed, unto this Day: There is only this place of Hope, That there is a Degree of Mercy in God, beyond what any ever yet made uſe of! for no Man ever came to the End of Infinite Mercy: Lord, Honour Thy ſelf by me, ſome way or other, whatever become of me. At another time. Lord, It is the Hour and Power of Darkneſs with me; I feel the Dreadful Rage of Satan, and my vile Heart, now againſt me, to overturn me, and to cut off thy Name, which Thou calleſt me to bear in this place. I know not what will become of me, nor what to ſay to Thee; but I leave my Woful Soul, and ſelf to thy Diſpoſing, Lord, I am in Hell, wilt thou let me lye there? At another time. 'God hath put this Fear into my Heart, leſt this be the Fruit and Recompence of my Sin, that I ſhall never know God for mine in Truth, but Live and Dye, in an unſound and ſelf Deceiving way; that I ſhould have many Fears and Prayers, and good Affections, and Duties, and Hopes, and Ordinances, and Seemings, but never an Heart ſoundly Humbled, and ſoundly Comforted unto my Dying Day, but be a Son of Perdition to the laſt, and never have God's ſpecial Love Revealed and Aſſu-to me! Lord, keep this Fear alive in my Heart! Such Paſſages as theſe, abundantly diſcover the Contritions, that laid him exceeding Low, in his own Apprehenſion of himſelf, at the Time when God was raiſing him to High Improvements among His People; and it was by theſe Abaſements, that Heaven prepared him for thoſe Improvements. But being, after ſuch Preparations, called forth to the Service of the Churches, his Employments came in ſo thick upon him, that he had not ſuch leiſure as heretofore to Enrich his Diarys, with his Obſervations. He was at length reduced unto this Cuſtom, that Ordinarily, on the Week before he adminſtred the Sacrament of the Lord's-Supper, which was once in two Months, he ſpent a Day in Prayer with Faſting before the Lord; and one of his Exerciſes on ſuch a Day, was to Remind and Record, ſuch Paſſages of Divine Providence towards Himſelf, his Houſe, his Flock, the whole Country, yea, and the whole Nation, as he judged Uſeful to be Remembred with him; and ſuch eſpecially as might Quicken the Humiliations and the Supplications, wherein he was engaged.

§. 8. The Death of Mr. Shepard, was a Death-wound unto the Soul of Mr. Mitchel, whoſe Veneration for the Great Holineſs, Learning, and Wiſdom, of his Predeceſſor, cauſed him to Lament exceedingly the Loſs of ſo Rich a Bleſſing, and begin his own Publick Miniſtry, at Cambridge with Sermons full of thoſe Lamentations. Indeed when he had Occaſion to mention his own Living Four Years under Mr. Shepard's Miniſtry, he added, Unleſs it had been four years living in Heaven, I know not how I could have more cauſe to bleſs God with Wonder, than for thoſe Four Years. Under an Affliction, which he ſo much reſented, the Comfort which he ſo ſought for himſelf, he thus expreſſed: What a bleſſed Thing is it to have this Mediator, the Man Chriſt Jeſus to go unto, when I have no Friend that I can fully ſpeak to, and open all my Complaints and Ails into his Boſom? I think, were Mr. Shepard now alive, I would go and intreat his Counſel and Help, and Prayer. Why, now I may go freely into the Boſom of the Man Chriſt Jeſus, who is able, faithful, tender-hearted above the beſt of meer Men. And I may go, and tell him not only my Sorrows (and yet that is no ſmall matter) but alſo my Sins, all my Sins; though not without ſhame, yet without fearful Deſpair. I may complain to Him of a ſtrong Luſt, and of an hard Heart. And He does not only Pity me (and that He does more than any Man could do) but is alſo fully able to Help me againſt Sorrow, yea, and againſt Sin too. And in him, I may ſee, and take hold of the Pity, and Love, and Grace of God the Father, who through Him, is well-pleaſed. But that he might ſignalize his Affection to the Predeceſſor, he ſpeedily took the Pains to peruſe and publiſh the Sermons of that Worthy Man, upon the Parable of the Ten Virgins, which make a Volumn in Folio; with a moſt Excellent, and Judicious Preface of his thereunto. Which afterwards, was not without its Recompence in the Providence of God, when after his own Death, his own Sermons upon The Glory to which God hath called Believers by Jeſus Chriſt (carefully Tranſcribed, and ſo Tranſmitted by Captain Laurence Hammond of Charlſtown, to whoſe Cares about it, the Church is now beholden for this Treaſure) were by ſome ſurviving Friends, printed at London. And he whom I have once already compared unto Pollio, who dyed, when between Forty and Fifty Years old, was in this alſo, like that German Divine, who left behind him a Book of Sermons, De Vita æterna, whereof Melchior Adam ſays, Non ſolum ſuæ Confeſſionis Homines omnium Ordinum in Deliciis habuerunt, atque habent; ſed etiam Adverſariorum nonnulli, minus moroſi probaverunt: Both Friends and Foes approved it. The young Gentlewoman, whom his Predeceſſor had married a little before his Deceaſe, He now alſo married upon the General Recommendations of that Widow unto him; and the Epithalamiums, which the Students of the Colledge then Celebrated that Marriage withal, were expreſſive of the Satisfaction, which it gave unto all the Good People in the Vicinity. Howbeit, before this, he had addreſſed himſelf unto the Venerable Old Mr. Cotton, for Leave to become his Son-in-law, and Mr. Cotton prognoſticating the Eminency, which he would arrive unto, had given Leave unto it: But the Immature Death of that Hopeful Young Gentlewoman Mrs. Sarah Cotton preventing ſo deſirable a Match, made way for his purſuing and obtaining this other Settlement. Being ſo ſettled; he wholly gave himſelf up to the Services of his Miniſtry, with ſuch a Diſpoſition, as he expreſſed in his Parting Advice to another, who Travelling from hence to England, had theſe Words from him at his Farewel; My ſerious Advice to you is, That you keep out of Company, as far as Chriſtianity and Civility will give you leave; Take it from me; The Time ſpent in your Study you will generally find ſpent the moſt Profitably, Comfortably and Accountably.

§. 9. Eighteen Years did he continue a Paſtor to the Church of Cambridge. And as that which encouraged him to Accept at firſt the Paſtoral Charge of that Flock, was his being able to write that Character of them, That they were a Gracious, Savoury-ſpirited People, principled by Mr. Shepard, liking an Humbling, Mourning, Heart-breaking Miniſtry and Spirit; Living in Religion, Praying Men and Women: Here (ſaid He) I might have Occaſions of many ſweet Heart-breakings before God, which I have ſo much need of! So the Continual Prayers of ſuch a People to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt for him doubtleſs contributed more than a little unto his being furniſhed from Heaven with ſuch Rich Treaſures of Light and Grace, as made his Miniſtry richly ſerviceable unto them all. In this his Miniſtry he preached over a great part of the Body of Divinity. And as Paul appealed unto his two firſt Chapters to the Epheſians, thus in ſome Degree, an Appeal might have been made unto thoſe Labours of this Admirable Preacher, to demonſtrate his Knowledge of the Myſtery of Chriſt. He made a moſt Entertaining Expoſition on the Book of Geneſis, and part of Exodus; [an Evangelical Targum of Jonathan] he made many Incomparable Diſcourſes on the four firſt Chapters of John: Occaſional Subjects he alſo Handled many with much Variety: He likewiſe kept a Monthly Lecture, where he largely Handled Man's Miſery by Sin, and Salvation by Chriſt, and entred on the Doctrine of Obedience due thereupon; and vaſt Aſſemblies of People from all the Neighbouring Towns reckoned it highly worth their Pains to repair unto that Lecture. The Sermons, wherewith he fed the Church of God, were admirably Well-ſtudied; they ſtill ſmelt of the Lamp; and, indeed, if there were nothing elſe to prove it, yet the Notes which he wrote in his Preparations for his Publick Exerciſes, were Proof enough of his being an Indefatigable Student. He ordinarily medled with no Point, but what he managed with ſuch an extraordinary Invention, Curious Diſpoſition, and Copious Application, as if he would leave no material Thing to be ſaid of it, by any that ſhould come after him. And when he came to Utter what he had Prepared, his Utterance had ſuch a becoming Tuneableneſs, and Vivacity, to ſet it off, as was indeed Inimitable; though many of our Eminent Preachers, that were in his Time Students at the Colledge, did eſſay to Imitate him. It has been obſerved by others, as well as Jerom, that Quæ firmiter concepimus, bene loquimur, ſiquidem Talia in Animæ Subſtantiam quaſi Concoquendo ſunt Converſa; And our Mitchel, having accordingly well Concocted what he was to deliver, with clear and ſtrong Thoughts upon it, expreſſed it with a Natural Eloquence, which, (as Tully ſays of all True Eloquence) caſt the Hearers into Wonderment. Profound Meditation having firſt, in his Heart got ready a well compoſed Meat-Offering for the Houſe of God, his Tongue was as the Pen of a Ready Writer to bring it forth: and his Auditories uſually counted themſelves at a Feaſt with the Inhabitants of Heaven, while he was thus Entertaining of them. His Preaching was not that which Dr. Manton would juſtly Rebuke under the Name of Gentleman-Preaching: Or, a ſort of Harangue finely laced and guilded with ſuch Phalerate Stuff, as plainly diſcovers the Vanity of them, that jingle with it: but he ſtill ſpoke, as reckoning, that if Seneca's Philoſopher was to remember, Ad miſeros vocatus es; opem laturus Naufragis, Captis, Ægris, Intentæ ſecuri ſubjectum præſtantibus Caput: Such a thing is much more to be Remembred by a Miniſter of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Hence, though he had a very Clean Style, and ſpoke, — Munda, ſed e medio, Conſuetaque verba; — by the ſame Token, that when he had once uſed one Word, in the Pulpit, which it may be, no Body elſe beſides himſelf would have ſo ſeverely Criticiſed upon, after he came home, he wrote a ſevere Animadverſion upon it; I was after in my ſelf aſhamed of it (he wrote) as being a Phraſe too courſe for the Pulpit! Nevertheleſs, he had alſo a Plain Style, for which he might have been juſtly called, as Melancthon was by Keckerman, Ille, ut ſic dicam, Perſpicuitatis Genius; but ſo pungently improved, that what he ſpoke, was felt by his Hearers, as Quick and Powerful. One, that hath addreſſed the World with a Treatiſe of Eccleſiaſtical Rhetorick, ſaith, Credat mihi Miniſterii Candidatus; Tria ſunt, quæ valde commendant Concionatorem; Vocis Amabilitas, Epithetorum Empha- ſis, & Connexionis Concinnitas : Now all of theſe Three Commendations did belong to the Preaching of our Mitchel. And, as it was the Remark of that then Matchleſs Preacher Bucholtzer, to whom I have often in my Thoughts match'd our Mitchel, That a Preacher was known by his Peroration, ſo 'twas remarkt of our Mitchel, that tho' he were all along in his Preaching, as a very lovely Song of one that hath a pleaſant Voice, yet as he drew near to the Cloſe of his Exerciſes, his Comely Fervency would riſe to a marvellous Meaſure of Energy ; He would ſpeak with ſuch a Tranſcendent Majeſty and Livelineſs, that the People (more Thunderſtruck than they that heard Cicero's Oration for Ligarius) would often Shake under his Diſpenſations, as if they had Heard the Sound of the Trumpets from the Burning Mountain, and yet they would Mourn to think, that they were going preſently to be diſmiſſed from ſuch an Heaven upon Earth. He had indeed an Uncommon Meaſure of that Priviledge, that is Reported of Bucholtzer, Ut, licet nonniſi finita Hora Altera peroraret, nullum tamen Audiendi Tædium, vel e media cuiquam plebe, Obrepſerit : Though he preached Long Sermons, the People were never weary of Hearing them. Vaſt was the Happineſs of the Scholars at the Colledge, and (in them) of all the Churches in the Country, while Cambridge was illuminated with ſuch a Miniſtry ! It was a Reflection upon this Matter long ſince Printed unto the World ; Reaſon and Prudence requireth, that the Miniſter of that Place, be more than Ordinarily endowed with Learning, Gravity and Wiſdom, Orthodoxy, Ability, Excellent Gifts in Preaching, that ſo the Scholars, which are Devoted to be Preachers of the Goſpel, might be ſeaſoned with the Spirit of ſuch an Elijah : In which Regards this Holy Man of God was eminently furniſhed ; and his Labours were abundantly bleſſed : For, very many of the Scholars bred up in his time (as is obſerved) do ſavour of his Spirit for Grace, and a moſt attractive manner of Preaching. Truly, as it was no rare thing for a German Divine to give ſolemn Thanks unto God, For being born in the Days of Melancthon ; ſo there is many a New-Engliſh Divine, who has given Thanks to God, For their being at the Colledge in the Days of Mitchel. But it muſt here be added, That altho' the chief Labours of this Exemplary Paſtor were in the Study, and the Pulpit, yet he did not think himſelf thereby excuſed from thoſe Paſtoral Viſits which his Flock expected from him. Herein he viſited at fit Hours, which he ſet apart for it, the ſeveral Families of his Flock ; not upon Trivial Deſigns, but with ſerious and ſolemn Addreſſes to their Souls upon Matter of their Everlaſting Peace ; and the Gildas Salvianus of Mr. Baxter was herein our Mitchel himſelf, as well as much Read and Priz'd by this Faithful Paſtor, who Watch'd for Souls, as one that was to give an Account.

§. 10. What he was in his Miniſtry, the ſame he was in his Diſcipline, when Offences aroſe, that called for his Conſideration, in the Church whereto he was related : Faithful, Prudent, Zealous, Holy, and like an Angel of a Church, Not Bearing with thoſe that are Evil. When a publick Admonition was to be diſpenſed unto any One, that had offended ſcandalouſly, one could have heard nothing more Pathetical, or more Powerful, than his Diſcourſes, on thoſe unwelcome Occaſions ; the Hearers would be all drowned in Tears, as if the Admonition had been, as indeed he would with much Artifice make it be directed unto them all ; but ſuch would be the Compaſſion, and yet the Gravity, the Majeſty, the Scriptural and Awful Pungency of theſe his Diſpenſations, that the Conſcience of the Offender himſelf, could make no Reſiſtance thereunto. But when the Lord Jeſus Chriſt intends to make any Steward in His Houſe, eminently Prudent and Faithful, He commonly Tries that Perſon, by Ordering ſome very Difficult Church Caſes to ariſe, quickly after his firſt Entrance upon the Stewardſhip. Some ſuch Thorny Church-Caſes did ſoon Exerciſe the Thoughts of this truly Aged young Man ; in all of which he conſcientiouſly conſidered the Rights of the Fraternity to judge in their own Church-Caſes, as that Renowned Miniſter, and Martyr, the Bleſſed Cyprian did, when he could ſay in one of his Epiſtles unto his Flock, From the very Beginning of my Miniſtry, I determined to do nothing without the Conſent of my People : And again, All Church Affairs, as mutual Reſpect requireth [in commune tractabimus] we will manage them in common ; and again, He would Reſtore and Admit none, but thoſe who ſhould plead their cauſe before all the people ; [Acturi apud plebem univerſam Cauſam ſuam :] and order none of their Matters, but [præſentibus et Judicantibus vobis,] with their Preſence and Judgment. And if Mr. Mitchel had heard any reckon the Liberty of the Brethren thus confeſſed in the Days of Cyprian, to be an Apoſtaſy from what was in the Beginning, he would have ask'd them, whether they reckon'd the Loſs of this Liberty afterwards in the Riſe of Popery, to be any Beginning, or Tendency towards Church-Reformation, and Recovery ? Now tho' this Liberty of the Brethren, which our Mitchel according to the Primitive Congregational Church-Diſcipline allow'd, be that wherein for the moſt part the Repoſe of the Paſtors has been by the Compaſſionate Wiſdom of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt provided for, yet ſome Trouble ſometimes has ariſen to the Paſtors from the Brethrens abuſe of their Liberty, which has call'd for much Patience and Prudence in thoſe that have the Rule over them. And ſo there did unto our Mitchel, who on this Occaſion, as on all others, was readier ſtill to condemn himſelf, than any others ; and once particularly recorded this Paſſage in his Diary. I was Troubled, [at ſome improper Cavils from the Brethren] and I fear ſpake not ſo Lovingly and Prudently as I ſhould have done. I feel my Spirit ready to riſe, and forget my Principles of Lying low in the Duſt, and bearing with others Infirmities, and becoming all Things to all Men, for their Edification. Oh ! Lord Humble me, and Teach me how to carry it ! Thus did this Excellent Perſon write, when he was Enumerating his Humbling Circumſtances, in a Secret Faſt before the Lord. But there was an Harder Caſe than any of theſe to Exerciſe him. Our Mitchel, preſently upon his becoming the Paſtor of Cambridge, met with a more than ordinary Trial, in that the Good Man, who was then the Præſident of the Colledge, and a Member of the Church there, was unaccountably fallen into the Briars of Antipædobaptiſm; and being briar'd in the Scruples of that Perſwaſion, he not only forbore to preſent an Infant of his own unto the Baptiſm of our Lord, but alſo thought himſelf under ſome Obligation to bear his Teſtimony in ſome Sermons againſt the Adminiſtration of Baptiſm to any Infant whatſoever. The Brethren of the Church were ſomewhat vehement and violent in their ſignifying of their Diſſatisfaction at the Obſtruction, which the Renitencies of that Gentleman threatned unto the Peaceable Practice of Infant-Baptiſm, wherein they had hitherto walked; and judged it neceſſary for the Vindication of the Churches Name abroad in the Country, and for the Safety of the Congregation at home, to deſire of him, that he would ceaſe Preaching as formerly, until he had better ſatisfied himſelf in the Point now doubted by him. At theſe things extream was the Uneaſineſs of our Mitchel, who told the Brethren, That more Light and leſs Heat would do better: but yet ſaw the Zeal of ſome againſt this Good Man's Error, to puſh this Matter on ſo far, that being but a Young Man, he was likely now to be Embaraſſed in a Controverſie with ſo Conſiderable a Perſon, and with one who had been his Tutor, and a Worthy and a Godly Man. He could give this Account of it, Through the Churches being apt to Hurry on too faſt, and too impatiently, I found my ſelf much oppreſſed; eſpecially Conſidering my own Weakneſs to grapple with theſe Difficulties; This Buſineſs did lye down, and riſe up, ſleep and wake with me: It was a diſmal Thing to me, that I ſhould live to ſee Truth or Peace dying or decaying in poor Cambridge. But while he was with a Prudence incomparably beyond what might have been expected from a Young Man managing this Thorny Buſineſs, he ſaw Cauſe to Record a Paſſage, which perhaps will be judged worthy of ſome Remembrance. That Day (writes he, Decemb. 24. 1653.) after I came from him, I had a ſtrange Experience: I found Hurrying and Preſſing Suggeſtions againſt Pædobaptiſm, and injected Scruples and Thoughts whether the other way might not be right, and Infant-Baptiſm an Invention of Men; and whether I might with good Conſcience baptiſe Children, and the like. And theſe Thoughts were darted in with ſome Impreſſion, and left a ſtrange Confuſion and Sicklineſs upon my Spirit. Yet methought, it was not hard to diſcern, that they were from the EVIL ONE. Firſt, Becauſe they were rather injected, hurrying Suggeſtions, than any deliberate Thoughts, or bringing any Light with them. Secondly, Becauſe they were Unſeaſonable; Interrupting me in my Study for the Sabbath, and putting my Spirit into a Confuſion, ſo as I had much ado, to do ought in my Sermon. It was not now a time to Study that Matter; but when in the former part of the Week, I had given my ſelf to that Study, the more I ſtudied it, the more Clear and Rational Light I ſaw for Pædo-baptiſm. But now theſe Suggeſtions hurryed me into Scruples. But they made me cry out to God for His Help; and He did afterward Calm and clear up my Spirit. I thought the End of them was, Firſt, To ſhew me the Corruption of my Mind; How apt that was to take in Error, even as my Heart is to take in Luſt. Secondly, To make me walk in Fear, and take hold on Jeſus Chriſt to keep me in the Truth; and it was a Check to my former Self-Confidence, and it made me fearful to go needleſly to Mr. D. for methought I found a Venom and Poiſon in his Inſinuations and Diſcourſes againſt Pædobaptiſm. Thirdly, That I might be mindful of the Aptneſs in others to be ſoon ſhaken in Mind, and that I might warn others thereof, and might know how to ſpeak to them from Experience. And indeed my former Experience of Irreligious Injection was ſome Help to me to diſcover the Nature of Theſe. I Reſolved alſo on Mr. Hooker's Principle, That I would have an Argument able to remove a Mountain, before I would recede from, or appear againſt a Truth or Practice, received among the Faithful. After the Sabbath was over, and I had time to reflect upon the Thoughts of thoſe things, thoſe Thoughts of Doubt departed, and I returned unto my former Frame. The Troubles thus impending over the Church of Cambridge, did Mr. Mitchel happily wade through; partly, by much Prayer with Faſting, in ſecret, before God, for the good Iſſue of theſe things; partly, by getting as much Help as he could from the Neighbouring Miniſters, to be interpoſed in theſe Difficulties; and partly, by uſing much Meekneſs of Wiſdom towards the Erroneous Gentleman; for whom our Mr. Mitchel continued ſuch an Eſteem, that although his Removal from the Government of the Colledge, and from his Dwelling Place in Cambridge, had been procured by theſe Differences, yet when he dyed, He Honoured him with an Elegy, from which I will tranſcribe one Stanza or two, becauſe it very truly points out that Generous, Gracious, Catholick Spirit, which adorned that Perſon, who wrote it.

Where Faith in JESUS is Sincere,
That Soul, He Saving, pardoneth;
What Wants, or Errors elſe be there,
That may and do Conſiſt therewith.

And though we be Imperfect here,
And in One Mind can't often meet,
Who Know in part, in part may Err,
Though Faith be One, All do not ſee't:

Yet may we once the Reſt obtain,
In Everlaſting Bliſs above,
Where Chriſt with Perfect Saints doth Reign,
In Perfect Light and Perfect Love:

Then ſhall we all Like-minded be,
Faith's Unity is there full-grown;
There One Truth, all both Love and See,
And thence are Perfect made in One.

There Luther both and Zuinglius,
Ridley and Hooper, there agree;
There all the truly Righteous,

But there was a ſpecial Deſign of Heaven in Ordering theſe Trials to befal our Mitchel, thus in the Beginning of his Miniſtry. He was hereby put upon Studying and Maintaining the Doctrine of Infant-Baptiſm; and of Defending the Viſible Intereſt of the Children of the Faithful in the Covenant of Grace, under the New Adminiſtration of it, as well as under the Old, wherein we all know the Infants of Believers enjoyed the Seal of being made Righteous by Faith. In the Defence of this Comfortable Truth, he not only Preached more than half a ſcore ungainſayable Sermons, while his own Church was in ſome Danger by the Hydrophobie of Anabaptiſm, which was come upon the Mind of an Eminent Perſon in it; but alſo when afterwards the Reſt of the Churches were Troubled by a ſtrong Attempt upon them from the Spirit of Anabaptiſm; there was a Publick Diſputation appointed at Boſton two Days together, for the clearing of the Faith in this Article, this Worthy Man was he, who did moſt Service, in this Diſputation; whereof the Effect was, that although the Erring Brethren, as is uſual in ſuch Caſes, made this their Laſt Anſwer to the Arguments, which had caſt them into much Confuſion, Say what you will, We will Hold our Mind!

[Concurrat veterum licet in Te turba, potes Tu,
Hac omnes una vincere voce, Nego:]

Yet others were happily eſtabliſhed in the Right Ways of the Lord. Nor was this all the Good and Great Work, for which this rare Perſon was marvellouſly prepared, by theſe Temptations: There is a further Stroke of our Church-Hiſtory, to be here briefly Touched, though elſewhere more fully to be given.

§. 11. New-England was a Wilderneſs Planted by a People, generally ſo Remarkable in their Holy Zeal for the Ordinances belonging to the Houſe of God, that for the ſake of Enjoying the Adminſtrations of thoſe Ordinances with Scriptural Purity, they had undergone the ſevere Perſecutions which at laſt Exiled them into that American Wilderneſs: And hence there were few People of any Significancy in the Tranſplantation, but what at their firſt Coming over, joyned themſelves unto the full Communion of the Churches in all ſpecial Ordinances, though many of them had (I ſay not, juſtifiably) made the Terms of their Communion ſo ſtrict, that it might juſtly have been reckoned a difficult thing for ſome Sincere Chriſtians of ſmaller Attainments in Chriſtianity to come up unto them. For this cauſe, although ſeveral of our Seers did ſo far See the State, which our Matters would e're long devolve into, that they Laboured much to have the Principles of Truth concerning The Church State of the Children born in the Church Declared and Aſſerted, in the Platform of Church Diſcipline, among the Firſt Principles of New-England, nevertheleſs many Worthy Men were ſlow to make any Synodical Deciſion of thoſe Principles, until there ſhould ariſe more Occaſion for the Practices, that were to be deduced from them. This Occaſion did in Twenty or Thirty Years time come on with ſome Importunity and Impetuoſity, when the Country began to be filled with the Adult Poſterity of the Firſt Planters; among which there were Multitudes of Perſons, who by the good Effects of a pious Education under the Means of Grace obſervable upon them in their Profeſſion of the Faith, not contradicted by any thing ſcandalous in their Life, deſerved another Conſideration in the Churches, than what was allowed unto Pagans; and yet were not ſo far improved in all the Points of Experimental Godlineſs, that they could boldly Demand an Admiſſion unto the Myſteries at the Table of the Lord; the Conditions whereof confined it unto Perſons that were ſenſibly Grown in Grace, and in the Knowledge of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. The moſt of the Miniſters then, and before then, in the Land, were deſirous to have the thus Qualified Poſterity of the Faithful, acknowledged in the Churches, as the Nurſery, from whence a ſucceſſive Supply of Communicants was to be expected; and it was their Deſire that this Nurſery might be Watered with Baptiſm, and Pruned with Diſcipline, as well as otherwiſe Dreſſed by the Miniſtry of the Word. Yea, they thought, that beſides the Internal Benefits of the New Covenant unto the Elect of God, the Sealing of that Covenant unto them, that were viſibly the Right Subjects of it, would be an Aſſurance from God, that when theſe Perſons grew up to years of Diſcretion, He would infallibly make them the Offer of His Covenant, and ſo continue the Goſpel of it among them: Whereas if They and Theirs were no other accounted of than Heathens, there would not paſs many Generations, before the Sacred Religion of Chriſt, would, through the juſt Wrath of Heaven be loſt among them in utter Heatheniſm. However, all Men did not then ſee all things! When the Church of Roxbury particularly in the Year 1653. was put upon Doing what was their Duty in this reſpect, our Mitchel was yet (he ſaid) in the dark about it; he wiſhed and wrote, That it might not yet be preſſed; and added, The Lord teach me Humility, Modeſty, and Wiſdom in theſe things! Many a day did this Excellent Man ſpend now in Praying with Faſting before God; and when he was thus engaged in the Exerciſes of a Sacred and Secret Faſt, I find him, inſerting this, as not the leaſt cauſe of his being ſo engaged: The Caſe of the Children of the Church in Regard of the Doctrine and Practice about it. Oh! that God would ſhew me His Mind and Way clearly in thoſe things: Enable me to Teach them convincingly, and ſet upon the Practice thereof: and that the whole Country might be guided aright therein; That Abraham's Commanding Power might have its due Exerciſe as to the Children of our Churches. And that all the remaining Knots and Difficulties a- bout Church-Diſcipline, and the Management of Chriſt's viſible Kingdom might once be reſolved according to the Word. Lord, Humble me, and proſper my poor Studies, and Teach me to know and do thy whole Will herein! as Ezek. 43. 11. And at another Time ; The Points about Church-Diſcipline, I have been long aiming to look more throughly into. Lord, Help and Guide me therein! and Grant that I may be kept from Extreams (the great Undoing of the World ;) both from immoderate Rigidneſs on the one Hand, either in Principles, Spirit, or Practice ; and on the other hand, from wronging either Truth, or Conſcience, by any ſinful Compliance. To theſe Devotions, he joyned indefatigable Studies upon the great Queſtion then agitated ; and the Determination of the Queſtion at laſt, was more Owing unto him, than unto any One Man in the World: For He was a Great Part in that Renowned Synod ; that met at Boſton in the Year 1662. The Reſult of the Synod afterwards publiſhed, was chiefly of his Compoſure, and when a moſt Elaborate Anſwer to that Reſult was publiſhed by ſome very worthy Perſons, that were then Diſſenters, the Hardeſt Service in the Defence was aſſigned unto him. In fine, Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt made this Great Man, even while he was yet a Young Man, one of the Greateſt Inſtruments we ever had, of Explaining and Maintaining the Truths, relating to the Church-State of the Poſterity in our Churches, and of the Church Care, which our Churches owe unto their Poſterity : And I have laid before the Reader one of the moſt Extenſive and Expenſive Labours, that exhauſted his Life, when I have mentioned The Propoſitions of the Synod about the Subject of Baptiſm. All that remains neceſſary to Illuſtrate this Paragraph of our Hiſtory, is to Deſcribe in a Line or two, the Diſpoſition which our Mitchel did proſecute this Grand Concern withal ; and I will therefore only Tranſcribe a little from a Judicious Letter of his, to Mr. Increaſe Mather upon that Subject, which that Reverend Perſon afterwards Printed unto the World ; with an Unanſwerable Vindication of theſe Firſt Principles of New-England, both from the Imputations of Apoſtacy, by ſome ignorantly caſt upon them, and from whatever other Objections might be advanced againſt them. ‘ As for the Subſtance of the Cauſe wherein we have Engaged (ſaith he) I am daily more and more confirmed, that it is the Cauſe of Truth, and of Chriſt, and that wherein, not a little of the Intereſt of Chriſt's Kingdom, and of the Souls of Men, is laid up. We have been reflected upon by ſome, as ſeeking our ſelves, and Driving on, I know not what Deſign ; though I cannot readily Imagine, what ſelf-Intereſt or ſelf-End, we here ſhould be led by in this matter ; Sure I am, that for my own part, I prejudice my ſelf much, as to Name, Intereſt, and Eaſe, for my appearing in this Cauſe : Neither was I ſo unſenſible, as not to feel it from the Firſt. I know my ſelf to be a poor, vile, ſinful Creature, and I can with ſome feeling ſay, Chief of Sinners, and Leaſt of Saints ; but in this particular matter, I have often ſaid, I wiſh my Brethren could ſee through me ; for I know not any Deſign or Deſire I have in it in all the World, but only that the Will of God might be done among us, His Kingdom be advanced, theſe Churches ſettled on Right Baſes, and flouriſh in the Ways of Truth, Purity and Peace, and that the Good of the Souls of Men might be promoted both in this, and after Generations. Touching the Matter it ſelf, that hath been in Debate pleaſe to conſider at leiſure, theſe Three Propoſitions.

‘ Thirdly, If the Parent be in the Viſible Church, his Infant Child is ſo alſo.

‘ Whether the Perſons deſcribed in the Fifth Propoſition of the Synod ſhould be Baptized, as a Catholick, or in a Particular Church-ſtate, is another Queſtion : And I confeſs my ſelf not altogether ſo peremptory in this Latter, as I am in the Thing it ſelf ; [viz. That they ought to be baptized,] yet ſtill I think, when all Stones are turned it will come to this, That all the Baptized are and ought to be under Diſcipline in particular Churches.

And now 'tis more than time for us to diſmiſs this part of our Mitchellian Pourtraiture, from any further Elaborations.

§. 12. Mr. Mitchel's Deſire had been, To be kept from Extreams ; and indeed there was nothing more Obſervable in his Temper, than ſuch a Study of a Temper in all Difficult Matters, as renders a Perſon aimable, wherever 'tis Obſervable. I remember, I have met with a Note of a very famous Preacher, who, in the midſt of many Temptations on both Hands, relieved himſelf by Interpreting from the Context that Paſſage in Eccleſ. 7. 18. He that feareth God ſhall come forth from them all, to be meant of a Deliverance out of all Extreams. The Fear of God in our Mitchel had this Effect, and Reward : And his wiſe coming forth from all Extreams, was no where more Conſpicuous, than in thoſe points of Church-Diſcipline, for the clearing of which he had been, (I may ſay Extreamly) exerciſed. Had the ſweet, Charitable, Amicable Spirit, that ſignalized this Good Man, been expreſſed by all good Men, as much as it was by him, a great part of the Eccleſiaſtical Differences in the World had been evaporated, and it had not been ſo long before the Names of Presbyterian and Congregational, had been melted down into that One of United Brethren. It was the Wiſh of our Mitchel, to have thoſe Two Things in the State of the Church, livelily repreſented unto the Senſe of the World : Firſt, the Grace, and then at the ſame time, the Holineſs, of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the King of the Church ; and for the Obtaining of ſuch a Repreſentation, he thought nothing more effectual, than the Middle Way ; For the Children of the Faithful to be taken within the Verge of the Church, under the Wings of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in his Ordinances, and under Church Care, Diſcipline,

§. 11. New-England was a Wilderneſs Planted by a People, generally ſo Remarkable in their Holy Zeal for the Ordinances belonging to the Houſe of God, that for the ſake of Enjoying the Adminſtrations of thoſe Ordinances with Scriptural Purity, they had undergone the ſevere Perſecutions which at laſt Exiled them into that American Wilderneſs: And hence there were few People of any Significancy in the Tranſplantation, but what at their firſt Coming over, joyned themſelves unto the full Communion of the Churches in all ſpecial Ordinances, though many of them had (I ſay not, juſtifiably) made the Terms of their Communion ſo ſtrict, that it might juſtly have been reckoned a difficult thing for ſome Sincere Chriſtians of ſmaller Attainments in Chriſtianity to come up unto them. For this cauſe, although ſeveral of our Seers did ſo far See the State, which our Matters would e're long devolve into, that they Laboured much to have the Principles of Truth concerning The Church State of the Children born in the Church Declared and Aſſerted, in the Platform of Church Diſcipline, among the Firſt Principles of New-England, nevertheleſs many Worthy Men were ſlow to make any Synodical Deciſion of thoſe Principles, until there ſhould ariſe more Occaſion for the Practices, that were to be deduced from them. This Occaſion did in Twenty or Thirty Years time come on with ſome Importunity and Impetuoſity, when the Country began to be filled with the Adult Poſterity of the Firſt Planters; among which there were Multitudes of Perſons, who by the good Effects of a pious Education under the Means of Grace obſervable upon them in their Profeſſion of the Faith, not contradicted by any thing ſcandalous in their Life, deſerved another Conſideration in the Churches, than what was allowed unto Pagans; and yet were not ſo far improved in all the Points of Experimental Godlineſs, that they could boldly Demand an Admiſſion unto the Myſteries at the Table of the Lord; the Conditions whereof confined it unto Perſons that were ſenſibly Grown in Grace, and in the Knowledge of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. The moſt of the Miniſters then, and before then, in the Land, were deſirous to have the thus Qualified Poſterity of the Faithful, acknowledged in the Churches, as the Nurſery, from whence a ſucceſſive Supply of Communicants was to be expected; and it was their Deſire that this Nurſery might be Watered with Baptiſm, and Pruned with Diſcipline, as well as otherwiſe Dreſſed by the Miniſtry of the Word. Yea, they thought, that beſides the Internal Benefits of the New Covenant unto the Elect of God, the Sealing of that Covenant unto them, that were viſibly the Right Subjects of it, would be an Aſſurance from God, that when theſe Perſons grew up to years of Diſcretion, He would infallibly make them the Offer of His Covenant, and ſo continue the Goſpel of it among them: Whereas if They and Theirs were no other accounted of than Heathens, there would not paſs many Generations, before the Sacred Religion of Chriſt, would, through the juſt Wrath of Heaven be loſt among them in utter Heatheniſm. However, all Men did not then ſee all things! When the Church of Roxbury particularly in the Year 1653. was put upon Doing what was their Duty in this reſpect, our Mitchel was yet (he ſaid) in the dark about it; he wiſhed and wrote, That it might not yet be preſſed; and added, The Lord teach me Humility, Modeſty, and Wiſdom in theſe things! Many a day did this Excellent Man ſpend now in Praying with Faſting before God; and when he was thus engaged in the Exerciſes of a Sacred and Secret Faſt, I find him, inſerting this, as not the leaſt cauſe of his being ſo engaged: The Caſe of the Children of the Church in Regard of the Doctrine and Practice about it. Oh! that God would ſhew me His Mind and Way clearly in thoſe things: Enable me to Teach them convincingly, and ſet upon the Practice thereof: and that the whole Country might be guided aright therein; That Abraham's Commanding Power might have its due Exerciſe as to the Children of our Churches. And that all the remaining Knots and Difficulties a- bout Church-Diſcipline, and the Management of Chriſt's viſible Kingdom might once be reſolved according to the Word. Lord, Humble me, and proſper my poor Studies, and Teach me to know and do thy whole Will herein! as Ezek. 43. 11. And at another Time; The Points about Church-Diſcipline, I have been long aiming to look more throughly into. Lord, Help and Guide me therein! and Grant that I may be kept from Extreams (the great Undoing of the World:) both from immoderate Rigidneſs on the one Hand, either in Principles, Spirit, or Practice; and on the other hand, from wronging either Truth, or Conſcience, by any ſinful Compliance. To theſe Devotions, he joyned indefatigable Studies upon the great Queſtion then agitated; and the Determination of the Queſtion at laſt, was more Owing unto him, than unto any One Man in the World: For He was a Great Part in that Renowned Synod; that met at Boſton in the Year 1662. The Reſult of the Synod afterwards publiſhed, was chiefly of his Compoſure, and when a moſt Elaborate Anſwer to that Reſult was publiſhed by ſome very worthy Perſons, that were then Diſſenters, the Hardeſt Service in the Defence was aſſigned unto him. In fine, Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt made this Great Man, even while he was yet a Young Man, one of the Greateſt Inſtruments we ever had, of Explaining and Maintaining the Truths, relating to the Church-State of the Poſterity in our Churches, and of the Church Care, which our Churches owe unto their Poſterity: And I have laid before the Reader one of the moſt Extenſive and Expenſive Labours, that exhauſted his Life, when I have mentioned The Propoſitions of the Synod about the Subject of Baptiſm. All that remains neceſſary to Illuſtrate this Paragraph of our Hiſtory, is to Deſcribe in a Line or two, the Diſpoſition which our Mitchel did proſecute this Grand Concern withal; and I will therefore only Tranſcribe a little from a Judicious Letter of his, to Mr. Increaſe Mather upon that Subject, which that Reverend Perſon afterwards Printed unto the World; with an Unanſwerable Vindication of theſe Firſt Principles of New-England, both from the Imputations of Apoſtacy, by ſome ignorantly caſt upon them, and from whatever other Objections might be advanced againſt them. ‘As for the Subſtance of the Cauſe wherein we have Engaged (ſaith he) I am daily more and more confirmed, that it is the Cauſe of Truth, and of Chriſt, and that wherein, not a little of the Intereſt of Chriſt's Kingdom, and of the Souls of Men, is laid up. We have been reflected upon by ſome, as ſeeking our ſelves, and Driving on, I know not what Deſign; though I cannot readily Imagine, what ſelf-Intereſt or ſelf-End, we here ſhould be led by in this matter; Sure I am, that for my own part, I prejudice my ſelf much, as to Name, Intereſt, and Eaſe, for my appearing in this Cauſe: Neither was I ſo unſenſible, as not to feel it from the Firſt. I know my ſelf to be a poor, vile, ſinful Creature, and I can with ſome feeling ſay, Chief of Sinners, and Leaſt of Saints; but in this particular matter, I have often ſaid, I wiſh my Bretbren could ſee through me; for I know not any Deſign or Deſire I have in it in all the World, but only that the Will of God might be done among us, His Kingdom be advanced, theſe Churches ſettled on Right Baſes, and flouriſh in the Ways of Truth, Purity and Peace, and that the Good of the Souls of Men might be promoted both in this, and after Generations. Touching the Matter it ſelf, that hath been in Debate pleaſe to conſider at leiſure, theſe Three Propoſitions.

‘First, The whole viſible Church, under the New Teſtament is to be Baptized.

‘Thirdly, If the Parent be in the Viſible Church, his Infant Child is ſo alſo.

‘Whether the Perſons deſcribed in the Fifth Propoſition of the Synod ſhould be Baptized, as a Catholick, or in a Particular Church-ſtate, is another Queſtion: And I confeſs my ſelf not altogether ſo peremptory in this Latter, as I am in the Thing it ſelf; [viz. That they ought to be baptized,] yet ſtill I think, when all Stones are turned it will come to this, That all the Baptized are and ought to be under Diſcipline in particular Churches.

And now 'tis more than time for us to diſmiſs this part of our Mitchellian Pourtraiture, from any further Elaborations.

§. 12. Mr. Mitchel's Deſire had been, To be kept from Extreams; and indeed there was nothing more Obſervable in his Temper, than ſuch a Study of a Temper in all Difficult Matters, as renders a Perſon aimable, wherever 'tis Obſervable. I remember, I have met with a Note of a very famous Preacher, who, in the midſt of many Temptations on both Hands, relieved himſelf by Interpreting from the Context that Paſſage in Eccleſ. 7. 18. He that feareth God ſhall come forth from them all, to be meant of a Deliverance out of all Extreams. The Fear of God in our Mitchel had this Effect, and Reward: And his wiſe coming forth from all Extreams, was no where more Conſpicuous, than in thoſe points of Church-Diſcipline, for the clearing of which he had been, (I may ſay Extreamly) exerciſed. Had the ſweet, Charitable, Amicable Spirit, that ſignalized this Good Man, been expreſſed by all good Men, as much as it was by him, a great part of the Eccleſiaſtical Differences in the World had been evaporated; and it had not been ſo long before the Names of Presbyterian and Congregational, had been melted down into that One of United Brethren. It was the Wiſh of our Mitchel, to have thoſe Two Things in the State of the Church, livelily repreſented unto the Senſe of the World: Firſt, the Grace, and then at the ſame time, the Holineſs, of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the King of the Church; and for the Obtaining of ſuch a Repreſentation, he thought nothing more effectual, than the Middle Way; For the Children of the Faithſul to be taken within the Verge of the Church, under the Wings of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in his Ordinances, and under Church Care, Diſcipline, and Government, and to be in a State of Initiation and Education in the Church of God, and conſequently to have Baptiſm, which is the Seal of Initiation: But that they ſhall not come up to the Lord's Table, nor be admitted unto an equal ſhare with the Communicants in the Management of Church Affairs peculiar to them, until, as a Fruit of the aforeſaid Helps and Means, they attain unto ſuch Qualifications, as may render their Admiſſion fair, ſafe, and comfortable, both to themſelves and others. His Words were, We make account. that if we keep Baptiſm within the Compaſs of the Non-Excommunicable, and the Lord's Supper, within the Compaſs of thoſe that have (unto Charity) ſomewhat of the Power of Godlineſs (or, Grace in Exerciſe) we ſhall be near about the Right Middle-way of Church-Reformation. And hence, when he had pleaded with as Irreſiſtible Reaſon, as Indefatigable Study, for the Grace of the Kingdom of Heaven to be exhibited in our Churches, by Adminiſtring the Baptiſm of the Lord unto the Perſons, and Infants of all, who underſtand the Doctrine of Faith, and publickly profeſs their Aſſent thereunto, and are not ſcandalous in Life, and Solemnly own the Covenant of Grace before the Church, and Subject themſelves, and theirs unto the Lord in His Church: He then ſet himſelf to plead for the Holineſs of that Kingdom, to be exhibited in the Churches, not only by Cenſuring the Baptized, when they fell into Scandalous Evils, but alſo by Requiring further Degrees of Preparation, in thoſe that they received unto the Supper of the Lord. Nothing was more agreeable unto him, than ſuch a Notion of Things, as Polanus had, when Writing of the Lord's Supper, he had theſe Words; Nec ad eam admittendi ſunt ulli, niſi prius Paſtoribus Eccleſiæ exploratum ſit, eos veram Fidei Doctrinam recte tenere et profiteri, ac intelligere quid in ſacra cæna agatur, quove fine, et ſeipſos probare poſſent, an ſint in Fide. — Quocirca etiam Catechumeni aut Imperiti, e vulgo, tamdiu differendi donec de Fide, et vita eorum Paſtoribus probe conſtet. Now, becauſe it may be a ſingular Service unto the Churches, to lay before them the Judgment of ſo Eminent a Perſon, upon a Concern of ſome Curious and Critical Conteſtation in them, I ſhall reckon it no Digreſſion from the Story of his Life, to recite the Reſult of thoſe Meditations, in the Digeſting of which no little part of his Life did roll away. He thus wrote for his own Satisfaction, on Januar. 4. 1664. And I ſhall be glad, if it may now be for my Reader's.

PROPOSITIONS.

'I. It is a Neceſſary Qualification, in Worthy Receivers of the Lord's Supper, that they Examine themſelves, and Diſcern the Lord's Body. 1 Cor. 11. 28, 29.

'II. Thoſe whom the Church admits to the Lord's Supper, muſt be ſuch as ſhe in Charity judgeth, that they can and will Examine themſelves, and Diſcern the Lord's Body; becauſe ſhe muſt admit none, but ſuch as are in Charity (or viſibly) Worthy Receivers; and they only are in Charity Worthy Receivers, who in Charity have the neceſſary Qualifications of ſuch. Either ſhe muſt give it only to viſibly Worthy Receivers, or ſhe may give it to viſibly Unworthy Receivers, which were to profane and pollute it. We muſt diſpence Ordinances, unto fit and proper Subjects, as Chriſt's faithful Stewards. 1 Cor. 1. 1, 2.

'III. None can be ſuch Self-Examining and Diſcerning Chriſtians without ſome Experience of a Work of Grace, (or without Grace in Exerciſe) ſo as to have an Experimental Savoury Acquaintance, with the Eſſentials of Effectual Calling, viz. Conviction of Sin and Miſery by Nature, Illumination in the Knowledge of the Goſpel, and Converſion of Heart, by Repentance towards God, and Faith towards our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 1. Self-Examination implies both, that there is the Grace of Faith and Repentance (or of Vocation) the Matter to be Examined: And alſo an Ability to Reflect upon that Grace, that is and hath been wrought in us; to Prove it, and find it to be Approved, at leaſt by a præponderating Hope. 2. Diſcerning the Lord's Body, the ſhewing forth or Annunciation of His Death, imports ſome Acquaintance with, and Actual Eying of the main and moſt Spiritual Myſteries of the Goſpel, concerning Chriſt, His Death, Righteouſneſs, Redemption, and all the Benefits thereof; and thoſe as exhibited in this Ordinance of the Supper. 3. That a lively or ſpecial Exerciſe of Grace, (by Reviving and Renewing our Faith, Repentance and Love) is required in Preparation for, and Participation of the Lord's Table, is abundantly evident, both by the Senſe of the Expreſſions aforeſaid, and by the Scope of this Ordinance, which is to Seal not only Union, but Actual Communion and Fruition. 1 Cor. 10. 16. By the Active Uſe of all the Outward Senſes, in Receiving the Sacrament, implying that there muſt be an Actual, and Active Uſe of Exerciſed Senſes, in Reference to the Inward Part of it.

'IV. None can appear unto Rational Charity to have the Qualifications aforeſaid, without Holding forth the ſame in ſome way or other. Man can judge of Internal Qualifications no way but by External Signs. Inviſible Grace is made viſible to us by ſome Outward Tokens and Manifeſtations. Here, Eſſe, et Apparere, Non Eſſe, et Non Apparere, are all One.

'V. Beſides a Doctrinal Knowledge of the Principles of Religion, there are Two Things required to the Holding forth of Grace in Exerciſe (or of an Experimental Savoury Acquaintance with the Eſſentials of Effectual Calling) viz. 1. A Gracious Converſation. 2. Gracious Expreſſions. By a Gracious Converſation, I mean, not only Freedom from Notorious Scandal and Obſtinacy therein, but a Converſation wherein ſome poſitive Fruits of Piety do appear, ſo as they that know the Parties, can give a poſitive Teſtimony for them. Gal. 5. 6. Jam. 2. 18, 26. Gracious Expreſſions, or Words are, when a Perſon can ſo ſpeak of the Eſſentials of Effectual Calling, as doth ſignifie, not only a Doctrinal, but a Practical or Spiritual Acquaintance therewithal. That theſe are Neceſſary to ſhew Grace in Exerciſe, appears; Becauſe 1. Good Words are in Scripture made the great Sign of a Good Heart. Mat. 12. 34, 35, 37. Prov. 10. 20. And if it be ſo in Ordinary Converſion, much more may this Sign be expected, when a Man comes to Hold forth, and give Evidence of the Grace that God has beſtowed upon him, in Order to Partaking of the Lord's Table. 2. Confeſſion with the Mouth is that by which Faith evidences it ſelf to be Saving and Effectual. Rom. 10. 9, 10. 3. It cannot be imagined, how a Perſon can have had Experience of a Work of Grace, and that unto a Comfortable Diſcerning thereof in himſelf, but that he can ſpeak of it, in ſome way or other, after a ſavoury manner.

‘ VI. Hence, either a Relation of the Work of Converſion, ſuch as hath been ordinarily uſed, in moſt of our Churches, or Some what Equivalent thereunto, is neceſſary in order unto Full Communion, or to Admiſſion unto the Lord's Table. There is an Equivalent thereunto. 1. When an Account of the Eſſentials of Converſion is given in way of Anſwers, unto Queſtions propounded thereabout. 2. In a Serious, Solemn and Savoury Profeſſion, or Confeſſion, De Præſenti, i. e. when a Perſon doth with Underſtanding and Affection, expreſs and declare himſelf ſenſible of his Sin and Miſery, and Abſolute Need of Chriſt, his Believing or Caſting himſelf on Chriſt in the Promiſe, for Righteouſneſs and Life, and his unfeigned Purpoſe and Deſire through the Grace and Strength of Chriſt, to renounce every Evil Way, and walk with God in the Ways of New Obedience; pointing alſo to ſome ſpecial Truths, Conſiderations or Scriptures, that have or do affect his Soul with Reference to theſe Things, though he do not Relate the Series of former Paſſages and Experiences. 3. When a Perſon is eminently known to Excel in Gifts and Grace, (as a long approved Miniſter of the Goſpel, or other eminently Holy Chriſtian;) This is more than Equivalent to ſuch a Relation.

‘ The Sum is, The Modus Agendi may be various and mutable, and much therein left unto the Prudence of Church-Officers; But the Thing is neceſſary; viz. To Hold forth in one way or other, Experience of a Work of Grace, or a Practical Acquaintance with the Eſſentials of Effectual Calling. The Reaſon is, Becauſe without This they cannot ſhew themſelves able to Examine themſelves, and Diſcern the Lord's Body, which is eſſentially Neceſſary to Worthy Receiving, and hence the Appearance of it Neceſſary in a Subject of orderly Admiſſion to the Lord's Table. A Man muſt make a Relation to himſelf; viz. by Reviewing of his Faith and Repentance, or at leaſt an Equivalent preſent Renewing thereof in Preparation for the Lord's Table; i. e. To give himſelf a Comfortable Regular Admiſſion thereunto. And ſhould he not Declare and Manifeſt ſuch a Thing to the Church or Officers thereof, to give them a Comfortable Ground to Admit him?

‘ Object. But why may it not ſuffice, for a Man publickly to ſay, I believe on Chriſt, or do unfeignedly Repent of my Sins? Or to conſent to ſuch Expreſſions being Read, or propounded unto him, without any more adoe?

‘ Anſw. 1. He that can Groundedly ſo ſay, or profeſs before God, Angels and Men, that he hath, (yea, knows that he hath) unfeigned Faith and Repentance, can ſay ſomewhat more particularly to ſhow the Reality of his Acquaintance with thoſe things. And if he cannot ſay it, Groundedly, it is not meet to put him ſo to ſay.

‘ 2. He that either Cannot, or Will not ſay any more than ſo, (eſpecially in Times of ſuch Light and Means as we live in) he renders the Truth of his Faith and Repentance ſuſpicious, ſo as that Rational Charity cannot acquieſce in it. For all Men know, that Faith is not dropt into Mens Hearts out of the Clouds, without prævious, concomitant and ſubſequent Operations; or if it was firſt wrought in Infancy, yet it will (eſpecially when grown to ſuch a Lively Exerciſe, as fits for the Lord's Supper) ſhew it ſelf in Effects, Renewings and Increaſings by the Word and Ordinances, ſo as a Man will be able to hold forth ſome Experience of the Operations of Grace.

‘ 3. That Mode of Profeſſion, which the Objection mentioneth, hath been found by plentiful Experience, to be a Nurſe of Formality and Irreligion. Now it is a Rule concerning the Modus Agendi, or ſuch like Circumſtances, That when by Experience a thing proves inconvenient, and ſubject to Abuſe, there ought to be an Alteration thereof.

‘ VII. Beſides this, from the Qualifications requiſite to the Lord's Supper, there be other Reaſons ſerving to confirm the Neceſſity of Practical Confeſſions (viz. by Relations, or otherways, as was before ſaid) in thoſe that are admitted unto full Communion.

‘ As, 1. Let thoſe Scripture Examples be conſidered, wherein the Grace wrought in the faithful is Evidenced, or Collected from the Lord's Dealings with them in the Work of Converſion, and Experiences relating thereto, or to the Fruits thereof. See 1 Theſ. 1. 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10. Let thoſe Words be paraphraſed according to their obvious Senſe, they will make up a full Relation. And if Paul knew, or gathered the Grace that was in the Theſſalonians from ſuch Things as thoſe, does it not ſhow, that ſuch things are a proper and rational Ground for us to gather Grace from? If they be famouſly known otherwiſe (as they were in that caſe to Paul) it ſufficeth, as was abovesaid; but otherways how ſhould they be known, but from the Party's own Mouth? So Col. 1. 4, — 8. Is there not a kind of Relation, of the Work, and Manner of the Converſion of thoſe 3000 in Acts 2. ſet down in that Chapter? And conſequently, the Subſtance of ſuch a Relation or Work was then de facto obvious to the Apoſtles. And ſo, of the Converſion of Paul Chap. 9. and of Cornelius, Chap. 10. Yea, if we look into moſt of the Examples in the ‘ Acts. Conſider, if they be not more immediately reducible to [A manifeſtation of a Work of Grace] than to that of Knowledge, and a Blameleſs Life ? Paul had little to ſay for a foregoing Blameleſs Life to the Diſciples of Damaſcus ; but a Work of Converſion he could hold forth to them, and a Profeſſion de præſenti thereupon. So Acts 9. 26, 27.

‘ 2. Miniſters in giving the Lord's Supper to Perſons, do give a Great and Solemn Teſtimony to them, [Take, Eat, This is Chriſt's Body, that was broken for you ;] therefore ſurely they may take, and require a Solemn Teſtimony from them, and had not need to be ſlight therein.

‘ 3. The Power of Godlineſs will ſoon be loſt, if only Doctrinal Knowledge, and Outward Blameleſsneſs be accounted ſufficient for all Church-Priviledges, and Practical Confeſſions, (or, Examinations of Mens Spiritual Eſtate) be laid aſide. For that which People ſee to be publickly required, and held in Reputation, that will they look after, and uſually no more, but content themſelves with That. Conſider ; if this hath not been a Reaſon of the Formality and Deadneſs, that hath overgrown many Churches.

‘ January 4. 1664.

Thus did a Manuſcript of this Worthy Man's, now in my Hands, Harmonize with a Notable Paſſage about the Bohemian Churches.

Demum. quia Objiciebatur, Fratres non habere Eccleſiam apertam cum plena Sanctorum Communione, ſed Adminiſtrare Sacramenta Quibusdam tantum ſibi addictis : Reſponſum fuit, Sancta dare non Sanctis, probibuiſſe Coriſtum ; Coriſtianiſmumque a pænitentia, auſpicandum, non a Sacramentis ; neque Secundum Inſtituta Chriſti Abſolutionem nunciandam niſi Reſipiſcentibus et Credentibus, quod utrumque (Pænitentiam & Fidem) ne Superficiarium ſit et fallax, Exploratione indigere ; Exploratione vero Tempore Juſto : et quia Nudis Sacramentis Salutis Vim adſcribere, ex Opere Operato, Errorum in Papatu Baſis eſt, Errorem hunc corrigi non poſſe aliter, quam ut certa probatione, nec illa Subitanea, Cordium Arcana Revelentur, Novitiique diu & caute tum Informentur, tum Explorentur.

Ratio Diſcipl. Fatr. Bohem. p. 4, 5.

Becauſe it was objected, That the Brethren have not an Open Church with the full Communion of Saints, but adminiſter the Sacraments only to ſome of their own party ; it was anſwered, That Chriſt hath forbid our Giving of Holy Things unto Unholy Perſons ; and that Chiſtianity is to be begun with Repentance, and not with the Sacraments ; and that according to the Inſtitutions of our Lord, Abſolution is not to be pronounced upon any but thoſe that Repent and Believe ; both of which (Repentance and Faith) that it may not be Superficiary and Fallacious, it muſt have ſome Exploration ; and this Exploration muſt have a Sufficient Time for it. And becauſe to aſcribe a Saving Vertue unto the bare Sacraments Ex Opere Operato, is the bottom of the Errors of Popery, this Error cannot otherwiſe be Corrected, than by this means ; That by a certain, and no ſudden Trial, the Secrets of Mens Hearts may be laid open, and Novices may be, with a long Caution, both inſtructed and examined.

Reader, If the Beating out of Truth in Controverſies, that have riſen among us relating to our Church Diſcipline, had not been the ſpecial Service, wherein all our Churches beheld the Lord Jeſus Chriſt making uſe of this our Learned, Able, Holy, and no leſs Conſiderate, than Conſiderable Mitchel, I had not given thee ſo long an Entertainment as that of theſe Propoſitions ; Propoſitions, which if they ſhould in the Opinion of any, fall ſhort of Demonſtrations, and contribute nothing to Unite and Settle the various Apprehenſions of ſome very Worthy Men among us about an Important Point in our Church Government, yet they will in the Opinion of all ſerve to expreſs the Diſpoſitions of Mind, which the rare Spirited Author of them did both Live and Dye withal : They ſhow how much he was againſt that Rigid, Unſcriptural, Uninſtituted, and Unwarrantable Inſiſting upon Modes, wherein ſome of our Churches had ſinned ſometimes againſt the Grace of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt ; and yet how much he was for all Scriptural and Rational Methods to preſerve the Churches from ſinning againſt the Holineſs, which does become thoſe Houſes of God for ever.

§. 13. I have ſaid, that the Life of our Mitchel was in a ſpecial manner Engroſſed by the Services of Explaining, Maintaining and Perfecting thoſe Principles, whereby the Chriſtian Religion muſt be preſerved, with a True and Pure Church ſtate among us, and conveyed and ſecured unto Poſterity ; and this leads me to that part of his Character, which diſtinguiſhed him, as much as any One whatſoever ; Namely, A Care of all the Churches. Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt complains, That the Children of this World are (for ſo I read it) wiſer for their own Generation, than the Children of Light. But our Mitchel was Wiſe for his Generation, and Exerciſed his Wit with much Contrivance, and much Diligence, that his Generation, even the Faithful People of God in the World might be accommodated in all their Intereſts. He was endued with a certain ſoaring and ſerious Greatneſs of Soul, which rendred Fly-catching too low a Buſineſs for him ; though he were One of a very Lowly Spirit in his Diſpoſition to be always condemning of himſelf, yet he nouriſhed in himſelf a Generous Diſdain of Low, Little, Trifling Matters, and was of a Leading Spirit where hard Service was call'd for, and of a

Publick Spirit, for Doing of Service to as many as he could: His Thoughts moved in a large Sphere of Uſefulneſs, and he was continually projecting how to Do good, in the moſt Extenſive Manner unto more than an whole Country. The Bucholtzerian Expreſſion of the Apoſtolical ΠΑΝΤΑΧΟΥΣΙΑ might be transferred into our Account of Mr. Mitchel: He was a Circle, whereof the Center was at Cambridge, and the Circumference took in more than all New-England. Hence, when he ſet apart his Days for Secret Prayer with Faſting before God, he would recapitulate in his private Papers the Humbling Occaſions for Supplication, which he ſaw not only in Afflictive Things on his own particular Flock, but alſo in all the ſad Sights, which in Diſaſters either upon the Civil or Sacred Concerns throughout all our Three Colonies, and all Gradual Decays of our Glory, occur'd unto him; yea, and he would then Travel ſo far, as to Obſerve the Condition of the Church throughout Great Britain, and the Nations of the European World; and all theſe Occaſions of Diſtreſs and Requeſt, he would enumerate before the Lord, with the Matters of his own Everlaſting Welfare. From the ſame Heroick Vertue (as I may properly call it) in him it was, that in the Weekly Meetings of the Neighbouring Paſtors, after the Weekly Lectures in the Towns which he could viſit; and at all other ſuch Meetings, he would with a moſt becoming Diſcretion and Modeſty, be ſtill putting forward ſomething or other, that might be for General Advantage: And when the Miniſters met at any time ſo much without Advantageous Effects of their Diſcourſes, that it could be ſaid, The Time had been ſmoaked away to no purpoſe, he would be Troubled at it: It cauſed him once to write this Lamentation; Little done! I have begun to feel the ſadneſs of the preſent time, and the Lord's withdrawing from us and our Chariot wheels taken off: I find that in all Societies, where I have any thing to do, Commonwealth, and Church and Colledge Things ſtick, and we draw heavily, and nothing can be gotten forward: All Things, and all the Spirits of Men, ſeem to be off the Hinges: Oh! Lord, Affect my Heart therewithal! In this Lamentation, the Reader finds the Colledge mentioned, and indeed the Colledge was nearer unto his Heart, than it was to his Houſe, though next adjoyning to it. He was himſelf an Accompliſhed Scholar, and he loved a Scholar dearly; but his Heart was fervently ſet upon having the Land all over illuminated with the Fruits of a Learned Education. To this End, he became a Father to the Colledge, which had been his Mother, and ſought the Proſperity of that Society, with a very ſingular Sollicitude; but among other Contrivances which he had for the Proſperity of the Colledge, One was, A Model for the Education of Hopeful Students at the Colledge in Cambridge. His Propoſals were, for Septennial Subſcriptions by the more Worthy and Wealthy Perſons, in this poor Wilderneſs; to be diſpoſed of by Truſtees (namely, the Magiſtrates and Miniſters of the ſix next Towns, for the time being, with ſeven other Gentlemen by them choſen out of the ſaid Towns, of which any Seven to be a Quorum, if three Miniſters were among them,) who ſhould ſingle out Scholars eminently pregnant and pious, and out of this Bounty ſupport them in ſuch Studies, as they ſhould by theſe Truſtees be directed unto, until they had either performed ſuch profitable Services, as were Impoſed on them in the Colledge it ſelf, or prepared themſelves for other Services abroad in the World. He was mightily affected with a Paſſage of Luther's, If ever there be any Conſiderable Blow given to the Devil's Kingdom, it muſt be by Youth excellently educated. And therefore, Res ſeria eſt, Ingens eſt, It is a Serious Thing, a Weighty Thing, and a Thing that hath much of the Intereſt of Chriſt, and of Chriſtianity in it, that Youth be well trained up, and want no Helps for that end; that Schools, and School-Maſters, and poor Scholars be maintained. It is the Flouriſhing of a Common-Wealth, to be well furniſhed with Learned, Worthy and Able Men for all Purpoſes. And God will not give us ſuch Men by Miracle, ſeeing He hath vouchſafed us other ways, and means to obtain them. Learning is an Unwelcome Gueſt to the Devil, and therefore he would fain ſtarve it out. But we ſhall never long retain the Goſpel without the Help of Learning. And, if we ſhould have no Regard unto Religion, even the Outward Proſperity of a People in this World would neceſſarily require Schools and Learned Men. Alas, that none are carried with Alacrity and Seriouſneſs to take Care for the Education of Youth, and to help the World with Eminent and Able Men. 'Twas from Conſiderations, like theſe of Luther's, that he did with an Accurate and Judicious Pen, ſhape theſe Propoſals. But if New-England then had not many Perſons in it, of the ſame Inclination with Pope Paul 2. who pronounced them, Hereticks, that ſhould mention the Name of an Academy, and exhorted People, that they would not put their Children to Learning, inaſmuch, as it was enough if they could but Read and Write: yet, through the Diſcouragements of Poverty and Selfiſhneſs, the Propoſals came to nothing. Moreover, the Remarkable Acuteneſs joined with an Extraordinary Holineſs in this Renowned Man, cauſed the Churches in all Quarters far and near, when their Difficult Church-Caſes called for the Help of Councils, to make their Applications unto Cambridge, for Mr. Mitchel to come and help them in their Difficulties. And in theſe Councils, as well as when Weighty Caſes have been laid before the Elders of the Churches, by the General Courts, though uſually moſt of the Miniſters preſent were Elder than he, yet the Senſe and Hand of no Man, was relied more upon than His, for the Exact Reſult of all. With ſo much humble Wiſdom and Caution, did he Temper the Significant Forwardneſs at Well-doing which he ſtill carried about him, that the Diſproportion of Age, hindered not the moſt Aged and Able, and Venerable Angels in our Churches, from their Paying a very ſtrange Reſpect unto him. Yea, as the Jewiſh Midraſch upon that Paſſage in the firſt Pſalm, His Leaf ſhall not wither; I remember is this, Omnes neceſſitatem habent Colloquii ejus; even ſuch a neceſſary Tree of Life, was Mitchel accounted, in the Garden of New-Eng- land. However, he encountred with ſuch Temptations as muſt buffet all that have in them any thing of Significancy; for which cauſe, once particularly, when he had been admirably acquitting himſelf in an Undertaking of Great Conſequence to the Churches, he came home, and wrote theſe Words. My Spirit was carried out in too much forwardneſs: I ſee cauſe to be deeply abaſed and loath my ſelf, and hang down my Head before God and Men. How do I marr God's Work, and marr what he gives me therein, by my own Folly! Sometimes I am ready to reſolve to put forth my ſelf no more in Publick Work, but keep my ſelf ſilent, and uningaged, as I ſee others do. But then I perceive, that this taſteth of Frowardneſs and Pride. Lord, Give me more Wiſdom to manage and demean my ſelf! But if thy Service and Honour may be promoted by my Weakneſs and Folly, Let me be willing to be Vile, that God may be exalted, 2 Sam. 6. 21, 22. Upon the whole, he was unwilling to affect ſuch an Unſerviceable Privacy, that they who paſſed by his Houſe, might ſay, Hic ſitus eſt Mitchellus.

§. 14. I know not how far that Learned Frenchman, who Writes, The Conformity of the Congregational Church-Government unto that of the Ancient Primitive Chriſtians, hath ſeen verified his Obſervation, All Diſintereſted Perſons may eaſily be perſwaded that the Congregational Communion retains moſt of the Apoſtolick, becauſe it is not only the Cream and beſt of the others, but alſo becauſe it hath more Charity. 'Tis very rarely ſeen (ſaith he) that any One of the Congregational Way does not love all Good Men of what Communion ſoever they be, and that they do not ſpeak of them, as of the True Churches of Jeſus Chriſt: Whereas even the moſt Sober and Honeſt Party of the Epiſcopal Men, and ſome of the Preſbyterians, are ſo ſtrongly poſſeſſed with Prejudices againſt thoſe of Congregations. that they are in their Account, no better than Hypocrites, Schiſmaticks, and Men of ſtrange Enthuſiaſms. If any of the Congregational Way do not anſwer this Character, Let theſe Words condemn them; as I know thoſe of the Preſbyterian Way in this Country have by their Charitable Temper much confuted that part of the Diſcourſe, by which they are here Characterized. But the Obſervation I am ſure, was verified in our Mitchel; who was one fully ſatisfied and eſtabliſhed in the Congregational Way of Church Government, and yet had a Spirit of Communion for all Godly Men in other Forms, and was far from Confining of Godlineſs unto his own. It was a frequent Speech with him, The Spirit of Chriſt, is a Spirit of Communion! And I can tell, what he would have ſaid, if he had lived to ſee the Books of ſo Ridiculous a Schiſmatick, as he that has made himſelf infamous by attempting to prove, That where there is no Epiſcopal Ordination, there is no True Church, Miniſter, Sacrament, or Salvation. His Great Worth cauſed him to be called forth ſeveral times with an Early and Special Reſpect from the General Court of the Colony, to preach on the Greateſt Solemnity that the Colony afforded; Namely, The Anniverſary Election of Governour and Magiſtrates: And one of the Sermons which he preached on thoſe Occaſions, was after his Death, publiſhed unto the World under the Title of Nehemiah upon the Wall. In that Sermon, Reader, Take notice of the Diſcovery which he gave of his own Catholick Charity, when he ſays, 'Do not wrong and marr an Excellent Work, and Profeſſion, by Mixing and Weaving in Spurious Principles, or Practices; as thoſe of Separation, Anabaptiſm, Morellian (Anarchical) Confuſion. If any would ſecretly 'twiſt in, and eſpouſe ſuch things as thoſe, and make them part of our Intereſt, we muſt needs renounce it as none of our Cauſe, no part of the End, and Deſign of the Lord's faithful Servants, when they followed him into this Land, that was not ſown. Separation and Anabaptiſm, are wonted Intruders, and ſeeming Friends, but ſecret fatal Enemies, to Reformation. Do not, on pretence of avoiding Corruption, run into ſinful Separation from any True Churches of God, and what is Good therein; and yet it is our Errand into the Wilderneſs to ſtudy and practiſe true Scripture-Reformation, and it will be our Crown in the Sight of God and Man, if we find it and hold it, without Adulterating Deviations. Thus, though he were a Reformer, yet he had nothing in him of a Donatiſt: For which cauſe Mr. Baxter hearing of him, ſaid, If an Oecumenical Council could be obtained, Mr. Mitchel were worthy to be its Moderator. And this Diſpoſition of Charity in him, was rewarded with the Reſpects which he found from Learned and Pious Men, that were in many things not of his own perſwaſion: Such Holineſs, and Patience, and ſweet Condeſcenſion, were his Incomparable Abilities accompanied withal, that Good Men, who otherwiſe differed from him would ſtill ſpeak of him with Reverence. To give one particular Inſtance: 'Tis well known that the Reverend Charles Chancey, Preſident of the Colledge, and a Neighbour in the Town and Church with our much younger Mitchel, at the Time of the Synod, zealouſly and publickly, by Pen as well as by Speech oppoſed the Synodalian Principles whereof Mr. Mitchel was no ſmall Defender: But ſo far was the Diſſent between them, in the very Heat and Heighth of all the Controverſie, from cauſing the Reverend Old Man to handle his Antagoniſt, in any meaſure as the Angry Dioſcorus did the Diſſenting Flavian, in the Council of Epheſus, that he would commonly ſay of him, I know no Man in this World, that I could envy ſo much, as Worthy Mr. Mitchel, for the Great Holineſs, Learning, Wiſdom and Meekneſs, and other Qualities of an Excellent Spirit, with which the Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath adorned him.

§. 15. And ſhall we a little more particularly Deſcribe that Holineſs of this Excellent Man, which we have ſo often mentioned? It is an Aphoriſm of a Machiavel, [and, Reader, was it not worthy of a Machiavel!] That he who writes an Hiſtory, muſt be a Man of no Religion. By that profane Rule, the firſt and the beſt Hiſtorian in the World, the moſt Religious MOSES, was ill accompliſhed for a Writer of Hiſtory. But the Hiſtory, which we are now writing, does profeſſedly intend nothing ſo much as the Service of Religion, even of that Religion whereof our Mitchel made an Exemplary Profeſſion. Wherefore we go on, to ſay; Know, Reader, That he was a Great Example of a Walk with God; and of Religion he was much in Prayer, much in Faſting, ſometimes taking his Vertuous Wife, therein to make a Conſort with him; and ſometimes alſo he kept whole Days of Thankſgiving privately with his Family, beſides what he did more publickly; Devoting himſelf as a Thank Offering to God for his Mercies, with a Reaſonable Service. In his Diary, He betimes laid that Rule upon himſelf, Oh! that I could remember this Rule, never to go to Bed, until I have had ſome renewed, ſpecial Communion with God! He kept a ſtrict Watch, over not only his Words, but alſo his very Thoughts; and if by the Reflections, which he was continually making on himſelf, he judged that his Mind had not been always full of Heaven, and his Heart had been, what he called, hard and ſlight, that he had been Formal in his Devotions, that he had not profited abundantly by the Sermons of other Men, that he had not made Conſcience of Doing all the Good he could, when he had been in any Company; he would put Stings into his Reflections, and rebuke and reproach himſelf with an Holy Indignation. Severe might ſeem the Rule of R. Hanina. If two ſit together and there be no Diſcourſe of the Law, 'tis the Seat of the Scornful: Severe might ſeem the Rule of R. Simeon, If Three do Eat at one Table, and ſay nothing about the Law, they are as if they Eat the Sacrifices of the Dead: And ſevere might be the Rule of R. Hananiah, He that wakes in the Night or walks by the way, and let's his Heart lie idle, ſins againſt his own Soul: But our Mitchel reckoned it no Severity unto himſelf, to impoſe upon himſelf ſuch Rules as theſe for his Converſation. I have read, That Five Devout Perſons being together, there was this Queſtion ſtarted among them, How, in what ways, by what means, they ſtrengthened themſelves in abſtaining from Sin againſt the God of Heaven? The Firſt anſwered, I frequently, meditate on the Certainty of Death, and the Uncertainty of the Time for my Death, and this makes me live in the Fear of Sin every Day as my laſt. The Second anſwered, I frequently meditate on the ſtrict Account of Sin that I am to give at the Day of Judgment, and the Everlaſting Torments in Hell, to be inflicted on them that can give no Good Account. The Third anſwered, I frequently meditate on the vileneſs, and filthineſs, and loathſomeneſs of Sin, and the Excellency of Grace, which is contrary unto ſo vile a Thing. The Fourth anſwered, I frequently meditate on the Eternal Rewards and Pleaſures reſerved in Heaven for them that avoid the Pleaſures of Sin, which are but for a moment. The Fifth anſwered, I frequently meditate on the Lord JESUS CHRIST, and his wondrous Love to miſerable Sinners, in dying a curſed and a bitter Death for our Sin; and this helps me to abſtain from Sin, more than any other conſideration whatſoever; And the Anſwer of this laſt was indeed the greateſt of all. Now all theſe were the Subjects, which our Holy Mitchel, obliged himſelf to an aſſiduous Meditation upon; and by Meditating on theſe it was, that he became very Holy. Moreover, he was as Holy Men uſe to be, very ſolicitous to make a due Improvement of all Afflictions, that the Providence of Heaven diſpenſed unto him. He would ſay, When God perſonally afflicts a Man, it is as if He called unto the Man by Name, and jogged him, and ſaid, Oh! Repent, be humbled, be ſerious, be awakened: Yea, he could not ſo much as be kept a little from the Labours of his Miniſtry by an Hoarſe Cold arreſting him, without writing down this Improvement of it; My Sin is legible in the Chaſtiſement: cold Duties, cold Prayers (my Voice in Prayer, i. e. my Spirit of Prayer fearfully gone) my Coldneſs in my whole Converſation, chaſtiſement with a Cold; I fear that I have not improved my voice for God formerly as I might have done, and therefore He now takes it from me. But the Affliction which moſt of all Exerciſed him, ſeems to have been in the ſucceſſive Death of many and Lovely Children, though all of them, in their Infancy. 'Tis an Obſervation made by ſome, upon ſeveral Paſſages in the Scripture concerning that Generous and Gracious Man, David, that he was Liberorum Amantiſſimus, full of Affections to his Children; and that was to be obſerved in our Mr. Jonathan Mitchel; for which cauſe, when his Children were Sick, his Paternal Bowels felt more than ordinary Wounds; and when they were Dead, his Humiliations thereupon were extraordinary. He wrote whole Pages of Lamentations on theſe Occaſions; and one of his Infants particularly expiring before it could be brought forth to an orderly Baptiſm, I cannot but recite a little of the Meditations then written by him: It was a further ſad Hand of the Lord (ſays he) that it ſhould dye unbaptiſed. Though I do not think they are Orthodox, that hang Salvation upon Baptiſm, and not rather upon the Covenant, yet as it is appointed to be a Confirming Sign, and as it is an Ordinance of Grace, ſo to be Deprived of it is a great Frown, and a ſad Intimation of the Lord's Anger: And though it may be well with the Child notwithſtanding (that it becomes me to leave unto the Lord!) yet it is to us a Token of Diſpleaſure. And what Conſtruction or Thoughts tending to the Lord's Diſhonour it may occaſion, I know not: That after my Labours in Publick about Infant-Baptiſm, the Lord ſhould take away my Child without and before Baptiſm! Hereby the Lord does again and again make me an Example of His Diſpleaſure before all Men, as if He did ſay openly, that He hath a ſpecial Controverſie with me; Thus remarkably taking away One after another. The Lord brings me forth, and makes me go up and down, as one ſmitten of God: The Lord ſpits in my Face by this thing. See 2 Sam. 12 12. Numb. 12. 12. Deut. 28. 45, 46, 58, 59. Such, and many more were the Workings of his Tender Soul under his repeated Afflictions. And ſuch were the Unſearchable Dealings of God, that beſides the Children which he ſent unto Heaven before him, when he went unto Heaven himſelf, he left behind Three Sons, and Two Daughters, all of which lived unto ſomewhat of Youth, yet they have all of them ſince dyed in their Youth: except only a Vertuous Young Gentlewoman, married unto Captain Stephen Sewal of Salem; unto whom (with her Off-ſpring, the only Poſterity of this Great Man) may the Lord multiply all the Bleſſings of that Covenant, for which their Progenitor proved ſo ſerviceable a Pleader in his Generation!

The laſt Thing that ever he wrote in his Reſerved Papers, after he had bitterly reproached The Sinful Deadneſs, Straitneſs, Enmity, and Unſavourineſs (as he called it) upon his own Heart, upon which he added this Pathetical Expreſſion, I feel I ſhall fall, and tumble down into the Pit of Hell, if left unto my ſelf; It was June 7. 1668. To quicken his Cares of Daily Meditation.

‘First, Far younger than I, ſome of them now got to Heaven, have done much this way. Nulla Dies ſine Linea.

‘Secondly, Meditation, yea, Daily Meditation, in general, is an indiſpenſible Duty. Pſal. 1. 2. and Pſal. 119. 97. And becauſe it is ſo, there may be ſomething of Meditation in Prayer, in Reading the Word; Joſh. 1. 8. with Deut. 17. 19. and in Occaſional Tranſient Thoughts; yet ſurely ſome ſett Meditation daily beſides theſe, is at leaſt to me a Duty, who am ſet apart, for the Holy Work of the Miniſtry, wherein it would be Helpful, as well as to my own Soul.

‘Thirdly, Heaven is here begun upon Earth: ſhall I be Thinking on, and Talking with, Chriſt, to all Eternity, and not Diſcourſe with Him, one quarter of an Hour in a Day now?

§. 16. But what and when, was the End of this Holy Walk? The Incongruities and Inconſiſtencies of Hiſtorians, are not more notorious in any one Article, than in that of the Deaths of the Heroes, whoſe Lives they have Eternized. With what Varieties are the Deaths of Cyrus, of Antiochus, of Alexander, of Hannibal, of Romulus, of Scipio, of Plato, of Ariſtotle, reported? There is hardly any Philoſopher, but he dies Twice or Thrice over in Laertius; and there is hardly one of Plutarch's Worthies, but he dies as many Ways. The Death of our Mitchel remains now to be related with more of Certainty. Though Bodily Exerciſe does profit a little, as the Apoſtle concedes, namely, to the Health of the Body; and Mr. Mitchel had from a Principle of Godlineſs, uſed himſelf to Bodily Exerciſe; nevertheleſs he found it would not wholly free him from an ill Habit of Body. Of extream Lean, he ſoon grew extream Fat; and at laſt, in an extream hot Seaſon, a Fever arreſted him, juſt after he had been Preaching on thoſe Words, I know that thou wilt bring me to Death, and unto the Houſe appointed for all the Living. The Fever did not ſeem to threaten his Death; however in his Illneſs, to them that viſited him, he ſaid, If the Lord Jeſus Chriſt have any Service for me, to do for Him, and His Dear People, I am willing to do it; but if my Work be done, His Will be done! But the Diſtemper ſuddenly aſſaulting him with a Mortal Malignity, and ſummoning him to the Houſe appointed for all the Living, he fell to admiring the manifold Grace of God unto him, and broke forth into theſe Words, Lord, Thou calleſt me away to Thee; I know not why, if I look to my ſelf; but at thy Bidding I come! which were ſome of the laſt Words, which he ſpoke in the World: For his Friends, who had not for many Hours, entertained the Expectation of any ſuch diſmal Event, were compelled in Floods of Tears, to ſee him dye on July 9. 1668. in the Forty Third Year of his Age: When (as one expreſſes that Matter) he left his Body to be dipped in the River of Jordan, that afterwards in it's Reſurrection, paſſing into Canaan, it may, beyond the Story of Achilles, become impenetrable and invulnerable. Wonderful were the Lamentations, which this Deplorable Death fill'd the Churches of New-England withal; for as the Jewiſh Rabbies lamented the Death of R. Joſe, with ſaying, That after his Death, Ceſſarunt Botri, i. e. Viri tales, in quibus omnes, tum Eruditionis, cum Virtutis, cumuli erant: So, after the Departure of our Mitchel, it was fear'd there would be few more ſuch Rich Grapes to be ſeen growing in this Unthankful Wilderneſs. Yea, they Speak of this Great Man in their Lamentations to this Day; and what they ſpeak is briefly the ſame, that One of our moſt Eminent Perſons has Writ in thoſe Terms, All New-England ſhook, when that Pillar fell to the Ground.

EPITAPH.

AND now, Reader, Let us go to the beſt of Poets in the Engliſh Nation for thoſe Lines, which may, without the leaſt Wrong to Truth be applied as an EPITAPH to this beſt of Preachers in our little New-Engliſh Nation. The Incomparable Dr. Blackmore's Orator Tylon, ſhall now be our MITCHEL.

TIS the Great Mitchel, whoſe Immortal worth
Raiſes to Heav'n the Iſle that gave him Birth.
A Sacred Man, a Venerable Prieſt,
Who never ſpake, and Admiration miſt.
Of Good and Kind, he the juſt Standard ſeem'd,
Dear to the Beſt, and by the Worſt eſteem'd.
A Gen'rous Love, diffus'd to Humane Kind,
Divine Compaſſion, Mercy unconfin'd,
Still reign'd Triumphant, in his Godlike Mind.
Greatneſs and Modeſty their Wars compoſe,
Between them here a perfect Friendſhip grows.
His Wit, His Judgment, Learning, equal riſe;
Divinely Humble, yet Divinely Wiſe:
He ſeem'd Expreſs, on Heav'ns High Errand ſent,
As Moſes Meek, as Aaron Eloquent.
Nectar divine flows from his Heav'nly Tongue,
And on his Lips, charming Perſwaſion hung.

When he the Sacred Oracles reveal'd,
Our Raviſh'd Souls in bleſt Enchantments held,
Seem'd loſt in Tranſports of Immortal Bliſs ;
No Simple Man could ever ſpeak like This !
Arm'd with Cæleſtial Fire; his Sacred Darts
Glide thro' our Breaſts, & melt our yielding Hearts.
So Southern Breezes, and the Springs mild Ray,
Unbind the Glebe, and thaw the Frozen Clay.
He Triumph'd o'er our Souls, and at his Will,
Bid this Touch'd Paſſion riſe, and that be ſtill.
Lord of our Paſſions, he, with wondrous Art,
Could ſtrike the Secret Movements of our Heart;
Releaſe our Souls, and make them ſoar above,
Wing'd with Divine Deſires, and Flames of Heav'nly Love.

But what need I travel, as far as Europe for an Elegy upon this Worthy Man ? Let it be known, that America can Embalm Great Perſons, as well as Produce them, and New-England can beſtow an Elegy, as well as an Education upon its Heroes. When our Mitchel was dying, he let fall ſuch a Speech as this unto a young Gentleman, that lodg'd in his Houſe, and now ſtood by his Bed, My Friend, As a Dying Man I now charge you, that you don't meet me out of Chriſt in the Day of Chriſt. The Speech had a marvellous Impreſſion upon the Soul of that Young Gentleman ; who then compos'd the Enſuing Lines.

To the MEMORY of the
JONATHAN MITCHEL.

Quicquid Agimus, quicquid Patimur,
venit ex Alto.

THE Countries Tears, be ye my Spring ; my Hill
A General Grave ; let Groans inſpire my Quill.
By a warm Sympathy, let Feaveriſh Heat
Roam thro' my Verſe unſeen : And a Cold Sweat
Limning Deſpair, attend me : Sighs diffuſe
Convulſions thro' my Language. ſuch as uſe
To Type a Gaſping Fancy ; laſtly, Shroud
Religions Splendor in a Mourning Cloud,
Replete with Vengeance, for Succeeding Times,
Fertile in Woes, more Fertile in their Crimes.
Theſe are my Muſes ; Theſe Inſpire the Sails
Of Fancy, with their Sighs, inſtead of Gales.
Reader, Read Reverend Mitchel's Life, & then
Confeſs the World a Gordian Knot agen.
Read his Tear-delug'd Grave, and then decree,
Our preſent Woe, and future Miſery.
Stars falling ſpeak a Storm ; when Samuel dies,
Saul may expect Philiſtia's Cruelties,
So when Jehovah's Brighter Glory fled
The Temple, Iſrael ſoon was Captive led.
Geneva's Triple Light made one Divine :
But here that vaſt Triumvirate combine
By a bleſt Metempſychoſis to take
One Perſon for their larger Zodiack.
In Sacred Cenſures, Farels dreadful Scrol
Of Words, broke from the Pulpit to the Soul.
In Balmy Comforts, Virets Genius came
From th' Wrinkled Alps, to wooe the Weſtern Dame ;
And Courting Cambridge, quickly took from thence Her Laſt Degrees of Rhetorick and Senſe.
Calvin's Laconicks thro' his Doctrine Spred,
And Childrens Children with their Manna fed.
His Expoſition Geneſis begun,
And fatal Exodus eclips'd his Sun.
Some ſay, that Souls oft ſad Preſages give :
Death-breathing Sermons taught us laſt to Live.
His Syſtem of Religion, half unheard,
Full double, in his Preaching Life appear'd.
He's gone, to whom his Country owes a Love,
Worthy the Prudent Serpent, and the Dove.
Religion's Panoply, the Sinner's Terrour,
Death ſummon'd hence ; ſure by a Writ of Error !
The Quaker trembling at his Thunder fled ;
And with Caligula reſum'd his Bed.
He, by the Motions of a Nobler Spirit,
Clear'd Men, and made their Notions Swine inherit.
The Munſter Goblin, by his Holy Flood
Exorcis'd, like a Thin Phantaſma ſtood.
Brown's Babel ſhatter'd by his Lightning fell,
And with Confuſed Horror pack'd to Hell.
The Scripture, with a Commentary bound,
(Like a Loſt Calais) in his Heart was found.
When he was Sick, the Air a Feaver took,
And Thirſty Phœbus quaff'd the Silver-brook :
When Dead, the Sphæres in Thunder, Clouds, & Rain
Groan'd his Elegium, mourn'd and wept our pain.
Let not the Brazen Schiſmatick aſpire ;
Lots leaving Sodom left them to the Fire.
'Tis true, the Bee's now dead ; but yet his Sting
Death's to their Droniſh Doctrines yet may bring.

DRUSIUS NOV-ANGLICANUS.

Mr. Urian Oakes.

O Utinam plures ſimiles tibi pectore noſſem,
Aut in Doctrinâ, aut Sedulitate pares.

§. 1. I Remember, 'tis the Report given by Sylvius concerning Rhodes, That it is bleſſed with a perpetual Shine of the Sun; imagine, that there paſſes not a Day in the Year, wherein the Sun ſhines not upon it. And methinks our Cambridge, had not been much otherwiſe priviledged for more than Forty Years together; being ſhined upon by a ſucceſſive Triumvirate of ſuch Eminent and Heavenly Lights, as, Firſt, Shepard, then Mitchel; and Laſtly our Excellent Urian Oakes. Thoſe three Golden Men and very Chryſoſtoms, have given to Cambridge its Golden Age! The Church of Cambridge had a Succeſſion in ſome ſort like that in the Church of Epheſus, a Paul, a Timothy, and a Tychicus.

§. 2. 'Tis Remarkable, That in the Sacred Story at leaſt Forty Dukes of Edom have their whole Story crouded into one ſhort piece of a Chapter; Three or Four of them are joſtled into a Line, Seven or Eight of them into Two; all but their meer Name is buried in a Dark Vault of Eternal Oblivion: While above a dozen Chapters are employ'd, in deſcribing the Vertues, and relating the Actions of one Younger Son of Iſrael, the Son of a Plain Man who dwelt in Tents. If the Greateſt Perſons of Edom [that is to ſay, of Rome] have their Hiſtory loſt, the Church of God would have no great Loſs in it; A Son of Iſrael may more worthily, and more uſefully have his Memory preſerved in Church-Hiſtory with the moſt Extended Paragraphs: Yea, the Son of a Plain Man, who dwelt in Tents, may deſerve an Everlaſting Remembrance among them, who moſt conſider what they have moſt Reaſon to remember. Make Room then, for Urian Oakes, Ye Records of New-England. He was born in England, and now in his Childhood brought over to New-England, by his pious Parents, who were bleſſed with ſeveral Worthy Sons, the Effects of whoſe Liberal Education in our Colledge have rendred the Family not the Leaſt in our little Iſrael. While he was yet a Child, he was delivered from an Extream Hazard of Drowning by a Mirable, I had almoſt ſaid, a Miracle of Divine Providence; God reſerving him to be a Moſes among his People. And the ſweet Nature, which accompanied him all his Days, did now ſo remarkably recommend him, that Obſervers have made this Reflection, If good Nature could ever carry One to Heaven, this Youth has enough to carry him thither

§. 3. His prompt Parts adorned and advanced with the Grace of God at ſuch a Rate, as to make the Conſiderate ſay of him, as they ſaid of young Ambroſe, To what will this Child grow? were improved in our Colledge; where he took his two Degrees. Being here yet a Lad of ſmall, as he never was of great Stature, he publiſhed a little parcel of Aſtronomical Calculations with this appoſite Verſe in the Title Page, Parvum parva decent, ſed ineſt ſua Gratia parvis.

But here, being furniſhed with the Armour, and the Treaſure of the Schools, he went from hence unto the Work of Building the Temple of God; preaching his firſt Sermon at Roxbury.

§. 4. Returning back to England, he there Grew in Favour with God and Man. After he had been a while Chaplain to One of the moſt Noted Perſons then in the Nation, Titchfield was the place, where this Bright Star became fixed; there 'twas that he ſettled in the Charge of Souls, which he diſcharged in ſuch Lively Preaching and ſuch Holy Living, as became a Miniſter of the New-Teſtament; there 'twas that like a Silkworm, he ſpent his own Bowels or Spirits, to procure the Garments of Righteouſneſs for his Hearers; there 'twas, that he might challenge the Device and Motto of the Famous Dr. Sibs, a waſting Lamp with this Inſcription, Prælucendo pereo, or, My Light is my Death.

§. 5. But the Expenſive Labours of his Miniſtry did not ſo haſten a Natural Death upon him, as to anticipate a Civil Death by the Perſecution, that ſilenced the Non-conformiſt Miniſters throughout the Nation. A Civil Death, I ſay; becauſe although the Authors of that Act, XIV Car. 2. would not be reckoned among The Slayers of our Lord's Witneſſes, yet it may ſurprize the moſt attentive Conſideration, to read how much oftner than Twice or Thrice in that Act, the ſilenced Miniſters are pronounced as Dead, and, as if naturally Dead! This Act ſlew the Miniſtry of this Faithful Witneſs to the Truths of the Goſpel, whereof he was a Miniſter; but that Worthy and Well-known Collonel Norton, proved the Obadiah, who then gave this Good Man a Reſidence in his Houſe; where his Preſence and Prayers produced a Bleſſing, like that on the Houſe of Obed-Edom. Nevertheleſs, when the Heat of the Perſecution was a little abated, he returned unto the Exerciſe of his Miniſtry, in a Congregation, where Mr. Symmons was his Colleague.

§. 6. Our Cambridge deprived of their Incomparable Mitchel, and lamenting, that, Of all her Sons, there were ſo few to take her by the Hand; after ſolemn Addreſſes unto the Great Shepherd of the Sheep for His Direction, ſent over their Agents into England, with an Invitation to Mr. Oakes, to Come over and Help them. A Council, upon that Occaſion, called approving of the Invitation, the Good Stork flew over the Atlantick Ocean to feed his Dam. Whereupon One wrote,

Welcome, Great Prophet, to New-England Shore,
The Fam'd Utopia, of more Famous MORE,
Unfabled, for New-England is by thee,
Now Twiſſe's Gueſs too muſt Accompliſht be;
That for the New-Jeruſalem, there may
A Seat be found in Wide America.

§. 7. The Church of Cambridge could now ſhow this Orient Jewel for divers Years, before the Almighty would have it made up Among his Jewels; though the Troubles and Sorrows of a Quartan Ague, often diverted him from his Publick Services. And here he had the Opportunity, for which Dr. Preſton choſe rather to preach at Cambridge, than any other place, Dolare non tantum Lapides ſed Artifices. Of the Divine Favour to them, in their Enjoyment of ſuch a Paſtor, the Church was now ſo ſenſible, that they kept a Day of Publick Thankſgiving for it. At this Thankſgiving a Sermon being expected from himſelf, he took for his Text thoſe Words in 2 Cor. 12. 11. I be nothing. And the Holy Endeavours that he uſed in the Sermon, to take off the Thoughts of the Faithful from any thing in Man, to every thing in Chriſt; were very agreeable to a Man, whom Chriſt had made ſomething among the People. But the Colledge in Cambridge languiſhing under ſomewhat worſe than an Ague, by the Want of a Præſident, this Accompliſhed Man was invited unto that Place: For divers Years, he would admit no other Title to this Place, but that of Pro Tempore, which indeed ſeems to have been a little Proleptical and Prophetical. From this Time, and But for a Time, he was the Jerom of our Bethlehem!

§. 8. Soon after he had accepted his Preſidentſhip, he was arreſted with a Malignant Fever, which preſently put an End unto his Days in this World. The Prayer of ſome Great Saints has been contrary to that in the Litany for a Sudden Death; and ſuch was the Death of this deſirable Perſon, if any Death may be accounted ſudden to him, that was always prepared for it. When he had lain ſick about a Day or Two, and not ſo long as to give the People of God Opportunity to pray for his Recovery, his Chuch coming together with Expectation to have the Lord's-Supper on the Lord's Day adminiſtred unto them, to their Horror, found the Pangs of Death ſeizing their Paſtor, that ſhould have broken to them the Bread of Life. And, indeed, I have often ſeen the Lord of Heaven, taking off His Miniſters, perhaps to Heaven, at that Seaſon, when the Euchariſt ſhould have been celebrated! which is a thing that might admit of ſome Uſeful Reflections.

§. 9. He was upon all Accounts truly, an Admirable Perſon. Conſider'd as a Chriſtian, he was Full of all Goodneſs, and like a full Ear of Corn, he ſtoop'd with a moſt profound Humility, adorning all his other Graces; but though he were Low in his own Opinion of himſelf, yet he was High in his Attainments; High in his Principles. He carried Heaven in his Name Urianus, q. ȣράνιος,] but much more in his Heavenly Mind. Conſidered as a Scholar, he was a Notable Critick in all the Points of Learning; and well Verſed in every Point of the Great Circle. Vaſt the Treaſures lodged in the Soul of ſuch a Scholar! Conſider'd as a Preacher, He was an Orpheus, that would have drawn the very Stones to Diſcipline; had Auſtin been here, he might now have ſeen Paul in the Pulpit: indeed, he was, as one ſaid, An Uncomfortable Preacher; Why? He drove us to Deſpair, namely, Of ſeeing ſuch another. Finally, I cannot ſpeak more Comprehenſively of him, than Mr. Increaſe Mather does in his Preface to a Diſcourſe of this Renowned Man's, publiſhed juſt after his Deceaſe.

'There have been ſeveral of the ſame Name, 'heretofore Renowned for their Rare Accom'pliſhments in ſome particular Faculty, where'in they have excelled. Joſephus Quercetanus was 'a Learned and Famous Phyſician. Johannes 'Dryſius (the Greek Word for Oakes) was a 'Great Divine, and Eminent for his Critical 'Genius. But an Age doth ſeldom produce One 'ſo many Ways excelling as this Author was.

If we conſider him as a Divine, as a Scholar, as a Chriſtian, it is hard to ſay, in which he did moſt excel. I have often in my Thoughts, compared him unto Samuel among the Prophets of Old; in as much as he did truly Fear God from his Youth, and was Betimes improved in Holy Miniſtrations, and was at laſt called to be Head of the Sons of the Prophets in this New-Engliſh Iſrael, as Samuel was Preſident of the Colledge at Najoth. And in many other Particulars, I might enlarge upon the Parallel, but that it is inconvenient to extend ſuch Inſtances beyond their proportion.

——— Heu, tua nobis
Morte ſimul tecum Solatia rapta!

' It may without Reflection upon any be ſaid, That He was one of the Greateſt Lights, that ever ſhone in this Part of the World, or that is ever like to ariſe in our Horizon. He is now become a Royal Diadem in the Hand of the Lord; being, as One ſpeaks concerning a Great Worthy, An Ornament unto Heaven it ſelf.

§. 10. As for his Works, 'tis an Exceeding Pity, that the Preſs has given to the Light no more of them; for Quicquid tam Docta condidit Manus, Cœlum eſt: Nevertheleſs, Four or Five of his Publiſhed Compoſures are carried about among us, like Paul's Handkerchiefs, for the Healing of our Sick Land. We may read ſomething of what he was, in a Sermon, called The Conquering and Unconquerable Chriſtian Soldier, on Rom. 8. 37. preached unto the Artillery-Company in Boſton, on their Election: And in a Sermon preached on the like Occaſion in Cambridge, from Eccleſ. 9. 11. ſhowing, That Chance is infallibly determined by God: And in a Sermon upon a Faſt, which from Iſa. 43. 22. preſſes for Sincerity and Delight in the Service of God: But moſt of all in a Sermon on Deut. 32. 22. preached unto the General Court of the Maſſachuſet-Colony; wherein, he pleaded with his Countrey, to Conſider what would be the Latter End of the Evils then growing in the Country; after a Manner, ſo Faithful, ſo Solemn, ſo Affectionate as was hardly to be equalled. Now, that the Reader may ſee ſome Account of this Learned Man's Judgment in the Matters of Church-Diſcipline, without which we may not ſay, that we have written his Life, we will from that Sermon only Tranſcribe the few following Lines.

' I profeſs, I look upon the Settlement of the Congregational Way, as the Boon, the Gratuity, the Largeſs of Divine Bounty, which the Lord graciouſly beſtow'd upon His People, that followed him into this Wilderneſs; and a great part of the Bleſſing on the Head of Joſeph, and of them that were Separate from their Brethren. Thoſe Good People that came over hither ſhewed more Love and Zeal, and Affectionate Deſire of Communion with God in pure Worſhip and Ordinances, and did more in Order to it than others, and the Lord did more for them, than for any People in the World, in ſhewing them the Pattern of his Houſe, and the true Scriptural Way of Church-Government and Adminiſtrations, I do not think, that they were at a Ne plus ultrà, and that nothing was left unto the Diſcovery of after-times; but the Beginning-Work was ſubſtantially done by them; they were ſet in the Right Way, wherein we are now to proceed, and make a Progreſs. It will be our Wiſdom, Intereſt, and Duty to follow them, as they followed the Guidance of the Spirit of Chriſt. The Reformation in K. Edward's Days was then a Bleſſed Work; and the Reformation of Geneva and Scotland was a larger Step, and in many Reſpects purer than the other; and for my part, I fully believe, that the Congregational-Way far exceeds both, and is the higheſt Step that has been taken towards Reformation, and for the Subſtance of it, is the very way that was eſtabliſhed and practiſed in the Primitive Times according to the Inſtitution of Jeſus Chriſt. There is a Sweet Temperament in the Congregational-Way; that the Liberties of the People may not be overlaid and oppreſſed, as in the Claſſical-Way, nor the Rule and Authority of the Elders rendred an inſignificant thing, and trampled under foot as in the Way of the Browniſts; but that there may be a Reconciliation or due Concurrence in the Ballancing of the One juſtly with the Other: And herein, the Wiſdom of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in the Frame of Church-Government (for it is not any Politick or Prudential Contrivance of Man, but modell'd by the great Law-Giver, the Lord Jeſus) is greatly to be admired by us.

§. 11. The Reſt of the Report that we will give of this Memorable Perſon, ſhall be but a Tranſcript of the Epitaph on the Tomb-ſtone in the Sleeping-place at Cambridge, dedicated unto his Memory. And know, Reader, that though the Stones in this Wilderneſs are already grown ſo Witty as to Speak, they never yet, that I could hear of, grew ſo Wicked as to Lye.

CHAP. VI.

THE LIFE OF Mr. Thomas Shepard.

§. 1. WHEN We find that Paſſage in the Oracles of Heaven, Behold, Philiſtia, and Tyre, with Ethiopia; this Man was born there; it follows, And of Sion, it ſhall be ſaid, This and That Man was born in her: And the Meaning and the Reaſon of this different Expreſſion hath been a Matter of ſome Enquiry. It ſeems, that of Rahab, Babylon, Philiſtia, Tyre and Ethiopia, it was ſaid, Behold (as being almoſt a Wonder!) that This Man, ſome one ſingle Man of Eminency a Rara Avis in Terris, was born there. But of Zion, it might be ſaid, [איש וְאיש] Man and Man, This and That Man, that is to ſay, Very many Eminent Men, Multi pietate, Doctrinâ Ingenio, Rerum Bellicarum Gloriâ aliisq; Virtutibus Inſignes, were Born in her. That little Spot of Ground, where God planted His Church, afforded more Excellent Men for Holineſs and other Noble Accompliſhments, in proportion, than all the World beſides. I will now make no Odious Compariſons between Harvard-Colledge and other Univerſities, for the proportion of Worthy Men therein educated: But New-England, compared with other Parts of America, may certainly boaſt of having brought forth Very many Eminent Men, in proportion, more than any of them; and of Harvard-Colledge (herein truly a Sion-Colledge) it may be ſaid, This and That Man was bred there; of Whom, not the leaſt was Mr. Thomas Shepard.

§. 2. Reader, Eſteem it not præpoſterous, if I begin the Life of this Worthy Man, with Relating that his Death fell out, on Decemb. 22. A. D. 1677. When the Peſtilence raged ſo much in Alexandria of Old, that There was not an Houſe, wherein there were not many Dead, it was the Obſervation of Mankind, that while the Pagans caſt off all Humanity and inhumanely forſook their Deareſt Friends, in the Diſtreſſes of their Sickneſs, the Chriſtians without any regard unto their own Life, boldly ventured into the Sick-Chambers, and cheerfully aſſiſted and relieved their Infected Brethren, and very often dyed that they might preſerve others from Death, or attend them in it. Mr. Thomas Shepard had in him that Spirit of the Primitive Chriſtians. He was the Paſtor of the Church in Charlſtown; and the Small-Pox growing as Epidemically Mortal as a Great Plague in that place, this Excellent Man, who had for many Years moſt faithfully done all the Duties of a Paſtor unto his Flock, apprehended it now his Duty to Viſit One of his Flock, who lying ſick of this Diſtemper, deſired a Viſit from him. He went with His Life in his Hand, and which he couragiouſly, and undauntedly expected, the Contagious Diſtemper arreſting of him, did put an End unto his Life, and therein, ſurely, after ſome ſort entitle him unto the Crown of Martyrdom. Thus, as an Elegy upon his Death expreſſed it,

Rather than run from's Work, he choſe to dye,
Running on Death, ſooner than Duty fly.

Behold, a Shepherd, who was (as the Emperor Probus had it ſaid of him) Vir ſui Nominis!

§. 3. And now, that the Pourtraiture of this Perſon, who was, as Great a Bleſſing and Glory as ever Charlſtown had, may be drawn to the Life, it is fit, that other Pencils, than ſuch poor ones as mine, ſhould be employ'd; for indeed it was very truly confeſſed in an Elegy, made upon him,

Here's Worth enough to overmatch the Skill,
Of the moſt Stately Poet Laureat's Quill.

We will therefore employ Three other Teſtimonies and Deſcriptions to give Poſterity the Knowledge of him; whereof the Firſt ſhall be the Epitaph engraved on his Tomb-ſtone, in ſuch Terms as theſe,

§. 4. The whole Country was fill'd with Lamentations upon the Deceaſe of the Perſon thus Entomb'd, and many beſtowed their Elegies upon him with Reſentments like thoſe, which One of them thus uttered ;

Next to the Tears our Sins do need and crave,
I would beſtow my Tears on Shepard's Grave.

But there was none who found a deeper Wound at this Deceaſe, than the Reverend Preſident of the Colledge, Mr. Urian Oakes ; who was his Particular Friend. For, as Auſtin had his Alipius, as Baſil had his Nazianzen, as Jerom had his Heliodorus, as Euſebius had his Pamphilus, or, if you will, as Paul had his Barnabas ; even ſuch was the Friendſhip, that Unanimated our Oakes and our Shepard. He beſides other ways of expreſſing his Value for this his Departed Jonathan, took the Opportunity of the next Commencement, with no ſmall part of his Elegant Oration, thus to Embalm his Memory.

The Second Edition.

JOSH. XXIV. 22, 23 29.

JOSHUA ſaid unto the People, ye have choſen you the Lord, to ſerve Him.
Now therefore, incline your Heart unto the Lord.
And it came to paſs, after theſe things, that Joſhua, the Servant of the Lord dyed.

READER,

TELL me not, that the People's being taken with Publicola's Funeral Oration in Praiſe of the Dead Brutus, or the Decree of the Roman Senate, That it ſhould be Lawful to make a Funeral Oration on ſuch as deſerved well of the Common-wealth, made Polydore Virgil ſay, Hinc mortuos Laudandi mos fluxit, quem nos hodie Servamus. The Book of Lamentations, on the Death of Joſiah, is of an Elder Date; the Roll of Lamentations on the Death of Jonathan, is of yet an Elder; and certainly, to be imitated among the Faithful People of God. Tell me not, that ſome Eminent Nonconformiſts have therefore ſcrupled, the Preaching of any Funeral Sermons: That in ſome Reformed Churches, the Practice of them is wholly omitted; that in the Primitive Churches they were not practiced until the Apoſtacy began; and that there have been Decrees of Councils againſt them. I readily grant, That the Cuſtom of Praiſing the Dead, has been ſcandalouſly abuſed; but I cannot grant, That the Abuſe is beſt corrected, by taking away all Publick Meditations on the Funerals of thoſe, in whoſe Deaths God from Heaven ſpeaks Great Things unto the Living. We do but wiſely fulfil our Miniſtry by Watching, to ſuit the Words of God unto thoſe Works of His, which occur to our Notice, when Men of Note are taken away. Behold, According to the Laudable Uſage in the Churches of New-England, the Meditations which have been awakened by the falling Aſleep of an Eminent Perſon, who was, A Memorable Servant of thoſe Churches! I am out of meaſure aſtoniſhed, when I read in an Author as Old, and as great as Auſtin, the Wonderful Effects which the pretended Reliques of the Martyr Stephen had upon thoſe who repaired thereunto for the Cure of Maladies. Howbeit, When I find that Great Man in his Epiſtle to the Clergy of Hippo, denying that any Miracles were then done in Africa (which he alſo again ſaid, in his Book, De Utilitate Credendi) and in his Book of True Religion, affirming that God permitted not Miracles to continue until then leſt the Minds of Men ſhould be too much taken up with Viſible Matters, I perſwade my ſelf, that the Story of the Reliques of Stephen was foiſted into his Book, De Civitate Dei; by ſome later Hand. The beſt ſort of Reliques after all are thoſe which we have here preſerved and propoſed; and it will be no Superſtition, to hope, that a Cure of Spiritual Maladies too generally prevailing, may be promoted by repairing unto them. And, I do not more queſtion the Opinion of a very Learned Man concerning the Angels, whom we find mention'd in the Scriptures as doing very Humane Actions, Veros Homines fuiſſe, qui a Spiritu Meſſia, et a Spiritibus Angelicis agebantur; et movebantur ad ea agenda, quæ ipſi non intelligebant, phantaſia Eorum obſeſſa, et a Cogitationibus conſuetis abducta: Qui Homines, Negotio peracto, ad quod fuerant a Deo adhibiti, diſcuſſo veterno, et ceſſante Ecſtaſi, ad Conſueta munera reverſi ſunt, immemores eorum, quæ Impulſore Spiritu Divino, aut Angelico egerant: Than I do believe, That in our Actions, there is an Imitation of the Holy Angels to be endeavoured, by which a Man may become another Stephen.

The

The Way to Excel.

Acts VI. 15.

—— Looking ſtedfaſtly on him, they ſaw his Face, as it had been the Face of an ANGEL.

SInce the Oracles of Heaven, have (with a moſt Significant Admonition!) allow'd a well ſerved Church, to call its Paſtor by the Name of its Angel, we may now ſay, The Angel of the Church of Portſmouth has newly taken Wing! Yea, not the leaſt of the Angelical Chariots and Horſemen of New-England, have departed from us, in the Withdrawing of One, after whom that bereaved Church is crying, My Father, My Father!

To preſerve the Idea and Memory of his Face, as far as the Infirmities of this Mortal State permitted any Approaches to the Angelical Character in it, is that whereto not only Nature does invite us: 'Twill be but a Compliance with that Edict of Heaven, Remember them who have ſpoken to you the Word of God; whoſe Faith follow, conſidering the End of their Converſation.

'Tis well known, That among the Chief Works of the Moſt High, Created by the Son of God, at the Firſt Beginning of Time, there were His Good ANGELS: Angels, which are Spiritual and Rational Subſtances, Created by the Lord, for His own Immediate Service and Honour. None deny, none diſpute, the Exiſtence of thoſe Good Angels, but Men that are under a more than ordinary Poſſeſſion of Evil Ones.

Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt has given it, as a Deſcription of that Future State, wherein He will make us Happy for ever, Mat. 22. 30. They are as the Angels of God in Heaven And if we hope to be Happy in that Future State, we muſt endeavour to anticipate it, by being very Holy in our Preſent State. But the way for us, to be very Holy, is to reſemble, and imitate, the Angels of God in Heaven, while we are on Earth, as far as we are able. Every Holy Man does a little of This; and how much of it, was done by that Holy Man, who is now gone to live and praiſe, and ſee CHRIST among the Angels for ever, may be propoſed with ſome Advantage unto the Exhortation, wherein I have a few Things to preach unto the People.

But my Exhortation muſt be introduced with a Report of that Glory, which the Martyr Stephen, while he was yet on Earth, attain'd unto.

There being occaſion to chooſe Deacons in the Primitive Church, that ſo they who were to give themſelves continually unto the Miniſtry of the Word, might be releaſed by the faithful Cares of thoſe Deacons, from Secular Encumbrances; One of them was the Bleſſed Stephen; who being the Firſt that arriv'd unto the Crown of Martyrdom for our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in the New-Teſtament, had in the Name of Stephen, which ſignifies, A Crown, a Notable Specification of the Event and Reward, which will attend all our Sufferings for the Lord.

It was then an Age of many Miracles wrought by the Spirit of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and ſuch a meaſure of that Spirit poſſeſſed this Excellent Man, that by the Impulſe of that Spirit, He could with all Aſſurance perceive, when the Spirit was going to work Miracles, and apply himſelf to accompany the Miracles of the Spirit, by ſome wonderful Actions of his own. This illuſtrious Worker of Miracles was accuſed before the Council at Jeruſalem, for ſaying, That it was the Deſign of Jeſus to deſtroy the Temple and the City, and alter the Rites, which Moſes had from God commanded unto Iſrael. When he appear'd before the Council to anſwer this Accuſation, 'tis here ſaid, They ſaw his Face, as it had been the Face of an Angel.

Concerning the Face of an Angel, we have a Remarkable Account, in what we read about one of the Angels, in Mat. 28. 3. His Countenance was like Lightning. And we read concerning a Great Man, who had got the Face of an Angel, by being much with the Angels, in Exod. 34. 10. Behold, the Skin of his Face ſhone If we carry the Paſſage now before us unto the Higheſt Senſe, which it would lay Claim unto, we are to ſuppoſe, That ſuch a Splendor was diſcernible upon the Face of Stephen: And ſurely, if they who diſcerned it, had not the Heart of a Devil in them, they durſt not have gone on, to abuſe a Man, that appeared before them with the Face of an Angel. Alas, the more of an Angel there is in any Man, the more Stones will the Devil procure to be thrown at ſuch a Man! But behold the Agreeableneſs of the Matter; Stephen was perſecuted for vilifying of Moſes; and behold, at this very Time, he is vindicated with a Shine upon his Face, like that once upon the Face of Moſes. The Things here ſpoken by Stephen, were thoſe very Things, which the Angel Gabriel, had formerly ſpoken unto the Prophet Daniel; and behold, the Aſpect of an Angel adorns him in his Diſcourſe.

We may from hence take Leave to Obſerve,

> That a Saint on Earth, may arrive to thoſe Attainments, that ſhall make him look like an Angel of Heaven.

There are Angelical Excellencies, a Degree whereof, poor Man, ſorry Man, ſinful Man, even while ſuch, may very much attain unto.

But now, this CASE calls for our Attention; What are thoſe Excellencies that would make a Saint, Look like an ANGEL?

And the General Anſwer hereunto is, The Excellencies of Holineſs. For,

Firſt, The Angels of God have many Excellencies, the Imitation whereof cannot by Men in this Life, be reaſonably propoſed. The Angelical Majeſty, as a Mortal Eye would not be able ſteadily to Behold it, much leſs, in this Mortal State may we affect it. A Man may not wiſh to ſhine like Stephen in this World, and have a Face that may dazzle the Spectators. Or, what would it avail, if a Man could make a Glare on his Face, by ſmearing it with ſome of the Noctiluca's invented by the Modern Chymiſtry ? A Devil has before now, pretended unto ſuch a Face. 'Tis not the Face, but the Grace of an Angel, which is here to be aſpired after. It were a Fooliſh, and a Faulty Thing, for any Man to be ambitious of wearing in this World ſuch a Figure as that in Dan. 10. 6. His Body like the Beryl, and his Face as the Appearance of Lightning, and his Eyes as Lamps of Fire, Immortality it ſelf is one of the Angelical Excellencies. But, while we are among Mortals here, we muſt ſubmit unto the Laws of Mortality and be willing to dye, When and How, the Sovereign God ſhall order it. There are alſo thoſe Flights of Wiſdom, and thoſe Heights of Power among the Angelical Excellencies, wherein, 'tis not for us, to Dream of being like them, until we are become, The Children of the Reſurrection. It was the Ruine of our Firſt Parents, to imagine in Gen. 3. 5. They might be as Elohim! No, this cannot be, until our Lord Jeſus Chriſt has by a New Birth brought us into that World to come, where the Wiſe Converters of many to Righteouſneſs, will be thoſe who ſhall Shine as the Brightneſs of the Firmament, and as the Stars for ever and ever! Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt will make us the Angels of the New World. Indeed the Angels now turn and move all the Wheels of the Kingdoms of this World, but we are they that ſhall Receive the Kingdom that cannot be moved.

But, Secondly, The Excellencies of Holineſs [For, the Saints are the Excellent!] Theſe are They, wherein the Imitation of the Angels by Men, may be very far proceeded in. The Angels of God, are ſtyled in Mat. 25. 31. The Holy Angels; and in Dan. 4. 17. The Holy Ones. 'Tis not as they are Mighty Angels, but as they are Holy Angels, that we muſt propound our Coming to look like unto them. Theſe Holy Angels never did, and never will ſin againſt their God; but are continually ſerving of him; They ſerve Him Day and Night in his Temple! And it may be, the Bright Garments, wherein theſe Angels of Light have appeared, may be an Emblem of their Holineſs and their Purity. Now it hath been the Will of God in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt concerning us, that there ſhould be ſet before us the Greateſt Examples of Holineſs for our Imitation. And hence, as we have the Greater Example of our Lord JESUS CHRIST Himſelf given unto us, to Direct and Excite and Promote our Holineſs, with a Charge, To be Holy, as He that hath called us is Holy; So, we have alſo the Example of the Holy Angels given unto us, That we may ſtrive as far as may be, to be like unto them in their Holineſs. Hence when the Pſalmiſt of old ſaw the Angels praiſing of God, he cryed out, O my Soul, do Thou ſo too! Yea, ſome Interpreters judge, That when the Face of Stephen look'd like an Angel, it was no more than what you and I may thro' Chriſt who ſtrengthens us reach unto. q. d. The Conſolations of the Holy Spirit of God ſo filled him, that he diſcovered not the leaſt Conſternations in his Face: His Face was as Joyful and Serene, as if he had ſtood free from all the Sorrows of this World, among the Angels of God.

I remember the Apoſtle enjoins the Woman in the Church to have a covering on her Head in Token of Subjection to her Husband; Becauſe of the Angels [2 Cor. 11. 10.] Why, if you turn to the Beginning of the ſixth Chapter of Iſaiah, you'll find the Angels before their Superiour, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in the Temple aſſuming a Covering, out of the Reverence which they pay unto Him. Hence then, ſays the Apoſtle, it becomes Women to take Example by the Angels; let them conſider, how the Angels behave themſelves in the Preſence of the Son of God, who is the Grand Repreſentative of the Image and Glory of God; and let them in their Habit ſhow ſome Analogy to the Habit of the Angels, betokening their Subjection to the Man, who is under the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Image and Glory of God, while They the Women, are ſo of the Man. But I only touch on this Gloſs by the by. What I inſiſt on, is, That the Angelical Example is to be imitated.

Indeed, we ſhall, as long as we Live in this World, come far ſhort of the Original, when we go to Write after the Angelical Example. In this Preſent Evil World, we cannot approach near to the Holineſs of the Good Angels: Much of Sin, and Fault, and Folly, will unavoidably cleave unto us: That Leproſie will never wholly out of the Walls, until the Clay-houſe be utterly demoliſhed: There will be as much Diſtance between the Bleſſed Spirits and Us, as between Giants and Children, as between Stars and Gloworms, as between the Cedars of Lebanon and the Hyſop that grows out of the Wall; Thus it will be, until we come at length to dwell [And, Oh! Why do we no more long for it!] with the Innumerable Company of Angels, in another World.

However, to Attempt the Imitation, is the ready way to be Excellent. Particularly in the Enſuing Inſtances.

I. If a Man could have his Eye upon the Face of God continually, would not that procure the Face of an Angel for him? It would make a Man look like an Angel, if he were looking unto God, in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt continually. Of the Angels there is that Account given, in Mat. 18. 10. In the Heavens, they do always behold the Face of my Father which is in the Heavens. The Angels do converſe with GOD continually. And, why may not we preſs after a Converſe with GOD, a little Emulating the Angelical? To be Heavenly-minded, by having the God of Heaven almoſt always in our Minds, and by being in the Fear of God all the Day long; This were to be as the Angels gels are! Oh! That we were thus Filled with the Fulneſs of God.

Firſt, We may have a continual Apprehenſion of GOD in our Minds. In every Place, we may Apprehend GOD. Wherever we are, we may ſubſcribe to that Article of the Ancient Faith, in Pſal. 139. 7. Lord, Whither ſhall I flee from thy Preſence? What if we ſhould never be from under the Awe of ſuch a Thought as that, The Omnipreſent God obſerves all my Ways! And we may apprehend GOD in every Thing. We need not ſtay at any Second Cauſes; but we may with a Spiritualized Soul, ſoar up to ſome Notice of God in all. Upon all the Works of Creation we may ſay, The Finger of God is here! And we may make the Poſitions of the Pauline Philoſophy, in Acts 17. 24, 28. God made the World, and all Things therein; In Him we live and move and have our Being. Upon all the Works of Providence, we may ſay, This comes from that God whoſe Kingdom ruleth over all. And we may make the Concluſions once taught by our Lord, no doubt alluding to the Two Birds, whereof one was to be killed, the other to be Let looſe into the Open Field, at the cleanſing of the Leper in Mat. 10. 29. Two Sparrows, one of them ſhall not fall to the Ground without our Father. To be led into ſome Notice of GOD continually, This, O This, it is Angelical. 'Tis Godlineſs. What is Holineſs, but Godlineſs? This were a little of the Angelical Holineſs.

Secondly, Our continual Apprehenſion of GOD, may bring a continual Dedication to GOD, upon all that we Have, and all that we Do. If we Glance at Inferiour Ends, yet we may not Stop there: All our Ends are to be ſwallowed up in GOD. We ſhould not, with any patience conſent unto it, that any but GOD, ſhould have our Strength, our Time, our All. Whatever Poſſeſſions are beſtow'd upon us, we may put them under that Conſideration, which the Houſe of David had, in Pſal. 30. Tit. Dedicated Things. All our Poſſeſſions, all the Powers of our Spirits, all the Members of our Bodies, our Eſtates, our Credit, our Deſirable Friends; we may contrive with our ſelves, What Acknowledgments may GOD have out of theſe Things! And improve them no farther, than as Inſtruments, whereby GOD may be acknowledged. Yea, and our daily Actions; may we not be driving a Trade for GOD in all? As 'tis ſaid in 1 Cor. 10. 31. Whatever ye do, do all to the Glory of God: So, our Eating, our Drinking, our Sleeping, what is it for? We may diſtinctly ſay, I do This, that I may be ſupported in the Service of God, Thus, our Labours, our Travels, our Viſits, and our Exerciſes of Religion, we may thus Ennoble them, I do This, I will do it carefully and cheerfully, becauſe God hath commanded my doing of it. A Dedication to GOD, is the proper meaning of Holineſs: And very Angelical would be our Holineſs, if we could be frequent, and conſtant in ſuch Acts of Dedication.

Thirdly, Our continual Apprehenſion of GOD, may produce our continual Satiſfaction in GOD, under all His Diſpenſations. Whatever Enjoyments are by God conferred upon us, where lies the Reliſh, where the Sweetneſs of them? Truly, we may come to reliſh our Enjoyments, only ſo far as we have ſomething of GOD in them. It was required in Pſal. 37. 4. Delight thy ſelf in the Lord. Yea, And what if we ſhould have no Delight, but the Lord? Let us ponder with our ſelves, over our Enjoyments; In theſe Enjoyments I ſee God, and by theſe Enjoyments I ſerve God! And now, let all our Delight in, and all our Value and Fondneſs for our Enjoyments, be Only, or Mainly, upon ſuch a Divine Score as This. As far as any of our Enjoyments lead us unto GOD, ſo far let us reliſh it, affect it, embrace it, and rejoyce in it; O Taſte, and Feed upon God in all; and ask for nothing, no, not for Life it ſelf, any further than as it may help us, in our Seeing and our Serving of our GOD. And then, whatever Afflictions do lay Fetters upon us, let us not only remember, that we are concerned with GOD therein, but let our Concernment with GOD procure a very profound Submiſſion in our Souls. Be able to ſay with him, in Pſal. 39. 9. I opened not my mouth, becauſe, thou didſt it. In all our Afflictions, let us remark the Juſtice of that GOD, before whom, Why ſhould a Living Man complain for the Puniſhment of his Sin? The Wiſdom of that GOD, whoſe Judgments are right; the Goodneſs of that GOD, who Puniſhes us leſs than our Iniquities do deſerve. Let us behave our ſelves, as having to Do with none but GOD, in our Afflictions: And let our Afflictions make us more conformable unto GOD; which Conformity being effected, Let us then ſay, 'Tis Good for me that I have been afflicted. Sirs, what were this, but a pitch of Holineſs, almoſt Angelical! Oh! Mount up as with the Wings of Eagles, of Angels; be not a ſorry, puny, mechanick Sort of Chriſtians any longer; but reach forth unto theſe things, that are thus before you!

But, in fine, 'Tis our Lord JESUS CHRIST, who is The Face of God. That is His Name, frequently in the Old Teſtament; and in this Hint, I have given you a Golden Key to come at the ſenſe of many Paſſages in the Sacred Pages, about The Face of God, and The Light of that Face: 'Twas the Meſſiah. 'Tis then our Lord JESUS CHRIST, who is to be the more Immediate Object of our Apprehenſions, when we would become Angelical; tis God in our Lord JESUS CHRIST: Whenever we entertain any Thing of GOD in our Minds, it ſhould be with a CHRIST, and thro' a CHRIST. Thoſe who do all they can, to forge a CHRISTIANITY without a CHRIST, are ſo far from being like Angels of the Lord, that they are Traitors to the King of Heaven!

II. We may render our ſelves Angelical, by our Endeavours of a preſent, and a pleaſant and an Univerſal Obedience, unto the Lord JESUS CHRIST, the Lord of Angels. Whoſe are the Angels, but the Angels of the Lord? And [as in 1 Kings 18. 12. and Acts 8. 39.] The Spirits of the Lord. Our Lord JESUS CHRIST is the Lord General of all the Angels; He is the Lord of Hoſts; and all thoſe Hoſts of Heaven are under His Command; We read in Pſal. 103. 20, 21. They do His Commandments, hearkening unto the Voice of His Word: They are His Miniſters which do His Pleaſure. The very Higheſt Angel in Heaven deſires and ſtudies to be a Servant of the Lord JESUS CHRIST: The Great God would ſoon ſtrike him down from Heaven, with Hot Thunder-bolts if he did ſo. Even Michael the Archangel has received that Charge from God, concerning our Lord Redeemer, Do thou Worſhip Him! Gabriel himſelf muſt give this Account of himſelf, I ſtand in the preſence of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; namely, as a Servant ſtanding in the Preſence of his Maſter.

Come then; Let every one of us, become the Servants of our Lord JESUS CHRIST. By conſenting to the Methods of Grace in the New Covenant, let us yield our ſelves unto our Lord JESUS CHRIST, as unto our LORD; and ſay with him in Pſal. 119. 38. Lord, I am thy Servant, devoted unto thy Fear. Let us reckon it the Higheſt Pleaſure unto our ſelves, to be always Pleaſing of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt: Let us eſteem it the higheſt Honour unto our ſelves, to be always Honouring of Him. To be A Man of God, is to be like an Angel, an Angel was called in Judg, 13. 8. The Man of God. We are Men of God, when we become the Devoted Servants of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Sirs, The Bright Angels of Heaven invite us, to become their Fellow Servants, by giving our ſelves up unto the Work of Witneſſing to the Truth and Ways of their Heavenly Lord. When we have ſolemnly conſecrated our ſelves unto this Work, then, whatever Commands our Lord Jeſus Chriſt lays upon us, let us readly, joyfully, univerſally yield Obedience thereunto. Be upon the Wing as the Angels, to do every thing, that our Lord Jeſus Chriſt would have to be done. *D*elay none, deſpiſe none, refuſe none of the Commandments, which our Lord Jeſus Chriſt ſhall give unto us; but ſay, as in 1 John 5, 3. His Commandments are not grievous. And whatever we ſhall know to be Acceptable unto our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, let us immediately do what we know: Let this be Argument enough unto us for any thing, though Fleſh and Blood [Body and Soul] be never ſo much againſt it: My Lord JESUS CHRIST would have me to do this thing! Thus our Labour ſhould be according to our Prayer, that The Will of God may be done on Earth, as it is in Heaven.

III. To be very Serviceable is to be Angelical: To do Good is the Diſpoſition of a Good Angel. Thoſe Men, whoſe perpetual Buſineſs 'tis, To go about for the doing of Good, as they are like the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [Acts 10. 38.] So they are like the Angels that wait upon our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. The Angels are always employ'd in ſome Service for our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and for thoſe that belong unto Him. 'Tis ſaid in Heb. 1. 14. Are they not all miniſtring Spirits? Oh! let it in like ſort, be our Ambition to miniſter ſome way or other for the Good of them, that are to be the Heirs of Salvation; and let us be much and oft, in ſtudying with our ſelves, What Good may I do with thoſe Talents, wherewith my Lord Jeſus Chriſt has betruſted me? How many Goood Offices does the Bible report, as done by the Angels of God for the People of God? And how many ſuch Good Offices are ſtill done for the People of God, by the Angels of God, which Encamp as an Hoſt about them that fear Him? Chriſtians, If we are adviſed of any Opportunity to do Good, let us be as ready to do, as the Angel that came down to the Pool of Betheſda, was to help the Miſerables aſſembled there. Yea, though they ſhould be never ſo poor, never ſo ſmall, never ſo mean People, that we may do Good unto, let us be ready to do it with all our Hearts. The firſt Apparition of an Angel that we read in Scripture, was to relieve a poor Maid in Trouble of Spirit. The Martyr Bradford, that Man had the Face of an Angel, concerning whom it was noted, He was always, either with Purſe, or Tongue, or Pen, doing of Good. Whatever Company we fall into, 'tis eaſie for us ordinarily to think, What Good may I do in this Company before I leave it? That Man ſpeaks with the Tongue of Angels, who will never diſmiſs his Company, without ſome Conſcientious Eſſay, to ſpeak what ſhall be profitable unto them. And, Inventions to do Good, and be Benefactors to all that are about us, the more Upright we are, the more we ſhall Seek out many ſuch Inventions. There is an Angelical Air upon them!

IV. Near Approaches to God in Devotions and Communions, full of Intimacy with Him, will give a Man, if not the Face, yet the Heart of an Angel. When was it, that the Face of Moſes had an Angelical, and an Extraordinary Luſtre upon it? It was, when he had been with God in the Mount. We read in Exod. 34. 29. When Moſes came down from Mount Sinai, with the two Tables of Teſtimony the Skin of his Face ſhone. They that are very much with God in thoſe Exerciſes, wherein the Power of Godlineſs does mainly conſiſt, will contract a Luſtre therefrom, and be ſomewhat like the Angels, made Partakers of the Divine Nature. To be often in Secret Prayers and Secret Praiſes, with raiſed Strains of Heavenly Zeal before the Lord, This is to be as it were, of the Angelical Fraternity! Yea, 'Tis a Golden Paſſage of Chryſoſtom, That the very Angels themſelves, cannot but honour the Man, whom they ſee Familiarly and Frequently admitted unto the Audience, and as it were Diſcourſe with the Divine Majeſty. Truly, whether the Angels may reverence theſe Men or no, theſe Men do reſemble the Angels. It becomes more notably thus, when Men do often ſet apart whole Days for their Prayers and their Praiſes, and are With God in the Mount for whole Days together. Great Things did the Angels do for Moſes, great Things for Elias, who often ſpent whole Days alone with the Lord; and what ſaid an Angel unto Daniel, when he had been ſpending whole Days at ſuch a rate, Thou art a Man of Deſires, and an Angel thinks not much to fly down from Heaven unto thy Converſation! Such Days do leave an Angelical Savour upon the Souls of Men; they leave our Souls, for many Days afterward, under ſuch a Gracious, and Generous, and Serious, and Watchful, and Uſeful Biaſs, as has the Face of an Angel thereupon. And therefore, the Lords Days; Let us keep them with a peculiar Sollicitude, a ſingular Elevation of Sanctity. It was the Priviledge of John in Rev. 1. 10. To be in the Spirit on the Lord's Day. Sirs, If we are ſo, we ſhall be with the Angels on the Lord's Day; and if with them, then like them. To be wholly under the Confinement [I miſtook the Word, I ſhould ſay Liberty!] of Religious Applications, throughout our whole Chriſtian Sabbath, let us not count it as a Ceremonious Perſon once call'd it, A being on the Rack an whole Day together. Angels have ſtrangely viſited and comforted ſome on the Rack; but never ſuch as complain'd, that a ſtrict Lord's Day put 'em on a Rack. During the whole Day, let our Thoughts be full of God, and Chriſt, and Heaven; during the whole Day, let our Words be few, and fit, and ſavoury, and ſuch as may miniſter Grace unto the Hearers; during the whole day, let our Earthly Defilements be baniſhed from us; let our Hearts be every Hour ſallying forth with numberleſs Ejaculations to the Lord. Such Lord's Days will ripen Men into Angels at the laſt! But on the Lord's Day, there ſometimes does recur a moſt ſpecial and ſignal Opportunity to Draw near unto God, namely, The Lord's Supper; an Ordinance of the Neareſt Fellowſhip with Heaven; an Ordinance wherein a CHRIST ſuffering for us, is by the Symbols of Bread and Wine ſo tendred unto the Faithful, that in their Obeying His Appointment thereof, they do with ineffable Advantage partake of Him. Well then, let our Preparations for this Great Ordinance be with as much of Solemnity, as if we were to dye our ſelves at the Time, when we do annunciate here the Death of our Lord. Let us examine our ſelves and ſupplicate our God, before we come to the Table of the Lord, as if we were to dye when we come. And at this Holy Table, where Man eats Angels Food, let us fix our Meditations on our Lord JESUS CHRIST, with all poſſible Attention, with all ſuitable Affection. Thus, Beholding, as in a Glaſs, the Glory of the Lord, we ſhall be changed into the ſame Image, from Glory to Glory, as by the Spirit of the Lord. Now, 'tis that Glory that makes an Angel!

V. An Heart much affected with the Lord JESUS CHRIST will procure the Face of an Angel, unto the Man who hath an Heart ſo affected. Unto the Angels there is nothing ſo precious, and nothing ſo glorious as the Lord JESUS CHRIST; yea, 'tis our CHRIST that makes the beſt part of their Heaven for them. Our Lord JESUS CHRIST is, as the Apoſtle enumerates it among the Miſteries and Evidences of our Faith, in 1 Tim. 3. 16. Seen of Angels. But how ſeen? Truly, ſeen with Wonders, and ſeen with Raptures, and ſeen with Endleſs Hallelujahs. Would we be like the Angels? Then let our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be ſeen by us, as the Beſt Thing in Heaven and Earth, and as infinitely Better than the very Angels themſelves. At the Incarnation of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, what were the Songs of Angels? in Luke 2, 14. There was a multitude of the Heavenly Hoſt, praiſing of God, and ſaying, Glory to God in the Higheſt! Would we be like the Angels? Let us then join in a Conſort with thoſe Morning Stars, and Sons of God. It was with Joy unſpeakable and full of Glory, that the Angels attended upon our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, firſt throughout His Humiliation, and then unto His Exaltation. Let the whole of That, be the moſt Raviſhing Subject of our Contemplation; Let us love to ſee our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, firſt Suffering and then Entring into His Glory. And let our Acclamations be like thoſe of the Angels, upon thoſe marvellous Diſpenſations of the Grace of God! When the Angels do look on Jeſus Chriſt, they are covered with Aſtoniſhment, and cry out, O Holy, Holy, Holy Lord of Hoſts, all Heaven is full of thy Glory! And ſhall not we ſo look on that our Lord of Glory? When the Angels do ſpeak of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, they make a moſt Reverent Mention of His Holy and Reverend Name, and ſay, Oh! there is none among the Sons of the Mighty, that may be compared unto this Lord. And ſhall not we ſo ſpeak of that Great King, with a Tongue like the Pen of a ready Writer? Something of Chriſt the Angels muſt have, they would think themſelves to be ſtarved, if they had not this Manna to feed upon! Sirs, Let the Meat of our Souls be the Fruit growing on this Tree of Life; and let the Drink of our Souls be, the Honey of this Rock: This is the daily Repaſt of Angels; this Nouriſhment will Angeliſie us in a little while. What ſhall I ſay? The Myſtery of CHRIST is the moſt grateful Contemplation of the Angels: Thoſe Cherubims about the Ark of God, we are told in 1 Pet. 1. 12. They deſire to look into theſe Things. I ſay then, Go and do likewiſe.

VI. If we would always behave our ſelves as before the Face of Angels, we ſhould at length obtain the Face of an Angel by the Exactneſs, the Circumſpection, the Accuracy of our Behaviour. It was a Good Memento written upon a Study-Wall, Angeli adſtant; or, The Angels of God ſtand by! Did Men remember the Eye of the Inviſible Angels upon them in all their Ways, how grave, how cautious, how pious would they be? and at laſt, how like unto thoſe Angels! If a Man were as bad as Balaam himſelf, yet the bare Suſpicion of having the Eye of ſome Angel upon him, would be enough to ſtop him from ruſhing on to Sin. Why ſhouldeſt thou ſin, ſays the Wiſe Man, in Eccl. 5. 6. before the Angel? If we were wiſe, we ſhould often think, I am now before ſome Angel! and that Thought would make us wiſe. The Aged Apoſtle ſaid unto a younger Miniſter, I charge thee before the Elect Angels: From whence 'tis infallibly ſure, That the Elect Angels take notice, how we acquit our ſelves, each one in his Charge. Said the Pſalmiſt, in Pſal. 238. 1. Before the Gods I will ſing praiſe unto thee: The LXX. tranſlate it, I will ſing praiſe unto thee, before the Angels. Chriſtians, The Angels take notice of us in all our Employments, yea, in our cloſeſt Retirements. We give no Praiſes to God, we perform no Duties, we endure no Troubles, we reſiſt no Temptations, but the Angels of God are the Witneſſes of what we do; we are a Spectacle to Angels in all of our Encounters. Well, Now let our Deportment be mightily under the Influence of this Conſideration; The Angels take notice; what Report will the Angels of God give of my Behaviour! It has been propounded as a Rule of Prudence, for a Man wherever he comes, to imagine, that there is preſent ſome Eminent, Wiſe, and Good Man, to ſee and hear all that paſſes. Man, There is an Angel to ſee and hear all that paſſes, wherever thou comeſt; this is no meer Imagination. Could we, like the Servant of the Prophet in the Mount, ſee the unſeen Regiment of the World by the ſubordinate Government of Angels, what an Awe would it ſtrike us with! The Angels of the Lord ſee how Men are diſpoſed and employed for the Service of their Lord, and gladly contribute their unknown Aſſiſtances unto that Service. But it cannot be any other than a Grief unto thoſe Angels to ſee Enormities in thoſe, for whoſe Welfare they are concerned. If they have Joy over a Penitent, they muſt needs have ſome ſort of Grief over a Tranſgreſſor. Yea, in all probability, the miſcarriages of ſuch Offenders, work in them a ſort of Diſtaſte, which inclines them on many Accounts, to withdraw from the Offenders, until they have waſhed themſelves over again, In the Fountain ſet open for Sin and for Uncleanneſs. Now, let this Conſideration accompany us in all our Walk; and let the Eye of an Angel be more to us, than the Eye of a Cato, could be to any Roman. The Face of Angels will at laſt be gain'd by ſuch a Conſideration!

VII. Let us beware of every Sin; for Sin will turn a Man into a Devil. Oh! Vile SIN, horrid SIN, curſed SIN; or, to ſpeak a more pungent Word, than all of That; Oh, SINFUL Sin; how pernicious art thou unto the Souls of Men! 'Tis ſaid, in 1 John 3. 8. He that committeth ſin is of Devil. Holineſs will make Men Incarnate Angels; but Wickedneſs will make them Devils Incarnate. An impenitent Sinner, hath he the Face of an Angel No, but the Heart of a Devil in him. Let your Zeal againſt all Sin then be like that of the Seraphim. The Angels are Seraphims, or burning Ones; they burn [and ſo let us!] againſt all Sin, becauſe of its being ſo contrary and provoking to their moſt Holy Lord. Sirs, Mark it; if any of you wittingly and willingly ſin againſt God, you do as the Devils do, and as the Devils would have you to do, and as our Lord Jeſus Chriſt ſpeaks, in John 8. 44. Ye are of your Father the Devil, and the Luſts of your Father ye will do. Dreadful words! There is the Image of the Devil, and there is the Practice of the Devil in every SIN. To commit SIN is Humane; to indulge it will be Diabolical. But eſpecially, there is much of the Devil in Apoſtacy from good Beginnings. Of the Devils, we find in Jude 6. They kept not their firſt Eſtate: They once joined, it ſeems, in praiſing of God with the Angels of the Bleſſed Regions; but they left it all. You that have left the Societies, and the Exerciſes of Chriſtianity, wherein you were at firſt engaged; behold, who your Leader is! The firſt and great Apoſtate, the Devil is your Leader in this Deſertion; and, alas whither will he lead you? There is much of the Devil alſo in Hypocriſie under good Profeſſions. When there was a ſecret, rotten Hypocrite among the Diſciples of our Lord. Our Lord ſaid in John 6. 70. He is a Devil: Indeed, the Devil is never ſo much a Devil, as when Transformed into an Angel of Light. When ſtrict Pretenders and Pleaders, and it may be Preachers of the Goſpel ſhall yet Cloak ſome Hidden Practices of Diſhoneſty under their fair Pretences, Behold, Men playing the Devil horribly. What ſhall I ſay more? The Devil is an Unclean Spirit, a Lying Spirit, a Proud Spirit, a Spirit full of Envy. Oh! Take heed leſt you be of ſuch a Spirit, and ſo, leſt you periſh with the Devil and his Angels throughout Eternal Ages.

Thus, the Rules of becoming Angelical have been ſet before us.

But if we do now Humbly reflect upon our ſelves, for our not living up to theſe Rules; we cannot eaſily be more Humble in ſuch Reflections, than was that MAN OF GOD, the Reverend JOSHUA MOODEY, who from his Eſſays, to obtain the Face of Angels, is now gone unto the Place of Angels.

All the Churches of NEW-ENGLAND conſidered him, as a Perſon, whom an Eminency both in Senſe and in Grace, had made conſiderable. All the Churches of BOSTON enjoy'd and admired, his Accompliſhments for the Evangelical Miniſtry, many years together. The Church of Portſmouth (a part of the Country that very much ow'd its Life unto him!) crys out, of a Deadly Wound in his Death; and is ready to cry out, Our Breach is great like the Sea; who can heal it? His Labours in the Goſpel were frequent and fervent; whereof the Preſs hath given ſome Laſting, as the Pulpit gave many Lively Teſtimonies: Yea, if it were counted one of the moſt Memorable Things in St. Francis de Sales, that he made Four Thouſand Sermons to the People, I can relate as Memorable a Thing of our Moodey: At the Beginning of his Sermons he ſtill wrote in his Notes (which were fairly and largely written) how the Number of them advanced; and before he died, he had numbred ſome Hundreds more than Four Thouſand of them. And unto his Cares to edifie his Flock by Sermons, he added more than Ordinary Cares to do it by Viſits: No Man perhaps being a kinder Viſitant. He was not only ready to Do good, but alſo to Suffer for doing it; and as he was Exemplarily zealous for a Scriptural Purity in the Worſhip of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, ſo he cheerfully ſubmitted unto an Impriſonment, for that Cauſe of God, and of this Country; wherein, like Stephen, he had the Honour to be the Firſt, that ſuffered in that way for that Cauſe in theſe parts of the World. Briefly, For Piety, for Charity, and for Faithfulneſs to the main Intereſts of our Churches; all that knew him, and know the Worth of theſe Things, wiſh that among the Survivors he may have many Followers.

He was of a very Robuſt and Hardy Conſtitution, and a notable Exception to the General Remark, Raro ſolent Ingenia inſigniter fœlicia, Robuſta ſortiri Corpora; and it may be, too Prodigal of his Athletick Strength, in doing the Service whereto a Good Maſter called him. Nevertheleſs, when a Complication of Diſtempers was divers Months before his Diſſolution brought thereby upon him, he exceedingly lamented His Neglect (as he accounted it) of his paſt Opportunities to be ſerviceable. At length, coming to Boſton for Advice about the Recovery of his loſt Health, his Diſtempers here ſo grew upon him, as to threaten a quick Period unto his Pilgrimage. His diſtreſſed Church at Portſmouth now importunately made their Prayer with Faſting before the Great Shepard of the Sheep, Sheep, that they might not be deprived of ſo Rich a Bleſſing; and he was himſelf exceedingly deſirous to have retured unto Portſmouth, that he might eſtabliſh his Flock yet further againſt all Temptations to forſake the Right Ways of the Lord. But Heaven determines otherwiſe.

When the Laſt Summons of Death came to be ſerved upon him, he had neither Time nor Strength to ſpeak very much; and they that have ſpoken much while they live, ſometimes muſt not ſpeak very much at their Death. His Diſcourſes were generally full of Self-condemnation; and indeed, that Man knows not how to dye, who thinks to dye otherwiſe, than Condemning of himſelf exceedingly. The moſt of what he ſaid was, I ſuppoſe, unto a Miniſter who viſited him the Day before his Expiration. Unto that Miniſter he ſignified, That he was Rejoycing in the Hope of the Glory of God; That he was Longing to go to the Precious Chriſt, whom he had choſe and ſerv'd; That the Spirit of Chriſt had comfortably taken away from him the Fear of DEATH. When that Miniſter urged him, to leave with him any ſpecial Deſire, that he ſhould judge proper to be mentioned, he ſaid, The Life of the Churches! The Life of the Churches! and the Dying Power of Godlineſs in them; I beſeech you to look after that; The Miniſter at laſt ſaid, The Lord Jeſus Chriſt is now, Sir, going to do for you, as once for Joſhua [your Names-ſake!] He is juſt going to take from you, your old, ſorry, ragged Garments, Thoſe of your Fleſh, and cloath you with change of Raiment, with the Garments of Heavenly Glory, and give you a place among His Angels: Whereto he replied with ſome Tranſport, I believe it! I believe it! After this, he ſaid little, but lay in an uneaſie Drowſineſs until the Afternoon of the day following; which was The Lord's Day; and then, even on the Day, whereon he had ſo often been in the Spirit, he went unto the Bleſſed World of Spirits; on the Day, which he had ſo often ſanctified in a Sacred Reſt, he went unto his Eternal Reſt. A Fatal Day was this unto our Land! It is an Omen of a ſad Fate unto a Land, when the Angels do ſay, Migremus hinc; Let us be gone! How far he had the Face of an Angel while he ſojourned here, no doubt Envy may cavil; and I have ſometimes with wonder ſeen it, in the poor Energumens among us, that when the Miniſter, who might be the moſt likely to do them good, came unto them, the Fiends that poſſeſſed them, would make the Miniſter's Face look ſo dirty and ſwarthy, that they muſt by no means acknowledge him. This I may venture to ſay without Flattery: It is long ago, that in another ſenſe than Aquinas, we call'd him An Angelical Doctor; and he has now attained the Face of an Angel, without the leaſt Wrinkle in it. He is, with Stephen, and the Angels of God, gone to behold the Glory of the Lord JESUS CHRIST, and bear a part with the Many Angels round about the Throne, ſaying, Worthy is the Lamb that was ſlain! I cannot but recommend him to you, as one that was, A Candidate of the Angelical Life; and ſollicit you to remember, not only the Leſſons, and Counſels, and Warnings, which you have had from him, in private or publick Diſpenſations, but alſo his Example, to follow him wherein he followed [and in many things he followed!] the Lord JESUS CHRIST.

FINIS.

CHAP. VIII. GEMINI.

THE LIFE OF THE COLLINS's.

§. 1. WHEN ſeveral Sons of Diagoras had ſo acquitted themſelves, as to merit and obtain Applauſe in their publick Actions, he, that brought the Old Man the Report of it, gave him that Salutation, Dye quickly, or, I am going to tell you that which will keep you out of Heaven! There was a good Old Man, called COLLINS, the Deacon of the Church at Cambridge, who is now gone to Heaven; but before he went thither had the Satisfaction to ſee ſeveral moſt Worthy Sons become very Famous Perſons in their Generation: Sons, that having worthily ſerved their Generation, are now gone thither as well as he; Two of them are found among the Graduates of Harvard Colledge.

§. 2. Mr. JOHN COLLINS in his Youth received a Wound by a Fall, which had like to have coſt him his Life; but whilſt he lay gaſping, the Renowned Mr. Thomas Shepard came to him with this Conſolation; I have juſt now been wreſtling with the Lord for thy Life, and God hath granted me my Deſire; Young Man, thou ſhalt not dye but live; but remember, that now the Lord ſays, Surely, thou wilt now fear Him, and receive Inſtruction. The Life, then continued unto that Young Man, afterwards proved ſo very Conſiderable among the Congregational Divines of Great Britain, and eſpecially in the Great City of London; where he moſtly ſpent his Days of publick Service, that it well deſerves a Room in our Account of Worthies. His Abilities as he was a Preacher, did chiefly ſignalize him; for ſuch was the Life and Charm, which accompanied his Exerciſes in the Pulpit; that none but Perſons of the ſame Humour with him, who wrote certain Things like Books, to prove, That Cicero wanted Eloquence, went away Vnmoved or Vnpleaſed from them. Nevertheleſs, being under Diſadvantages to come at the more perfect Story of his Life, my Reader ſhall have only the Contracted Report, which his Epitaph has thus given of it. Reader, The Stones will ſpeak, if his Friends do not Celebrate him!

M. D^{ris} Die III^{o}. Anno Ære Chriſtianæ
M DC LXXXVII.

This is the Language of the Epitaph, the Truth-Speaker.

And as I have thus found the Story of his Life, ſo I can in a yet more unſuſpected Quarter now find a Sermon on his Death. In the Third Volume of the Morning-Exerciſes publiſhed by that Good Man, the very Barnabas of London, that very Reverend and Excellent Man, Dr. Anneſley; there is a Sermon wearing the Name of no other Author, but N. N. on that Caſe, How the Religious of a Nation are the Strength of it? Now the Author of that Sermon was this Mr. John Collins, who tho' he thus reckoned himſelf a No Body, yet was by Others eſteemed ſo Conſiderable a part of the Strength of the Nation, that at the Affectionate Prayer of the Reverend Mr. Mead, poured out before God for his Recovery when he lay ſick; I have been told, there was hardly one dry Eye to be ſeen in the Great Congregation of the Lecture at Pinners-Hall, where he alſo had been a Lecturer. Let the Reader but make the Application of that Sermon to the Author of it; and read this as the Running Title, The Engliſh Nation weakned by the Death of Mr. JOHN COLLINS: Thus a Funeral Sermon upon him will not be wanting!

§. 3. A Younger Brother, but yet a Brother to him, was Mr. NATHANAEL COLLINS, at whoſe Death, Dec. 28. 1684. in the Forty Third Year of his Age (wherein he got the ſtart for Heaven!) there were more Wounds given to the whole Colony of Connecticut in our New-England, than the Body of Cæſar did receeive, when he fell wounded in the Senate-Houſe. Reader, I would have made an Eſſay to have lamented the Fate of this our Collins in Verſe, were it not for Two Diſcouragements: Not becauſe Annatus the Jeſuite reckon'd it a Thing worthy of a Scoff in our Dr. Twiſs, to be guilty of a little Flight at Poetry; for the Nobleſt Hands have ſcann'd Poetical Meaſures on their Fingers: But becauſe my Mean Faculties would not carry me beyond the Performances, whereof the Gentleman in Thuanus was afraid, when he made it a Clauſe in his Laſt Will, That they ſhould not burden his Hearſe with bad Funeral Verſes; and becauſe that Sacred Thing Verſe, hath been by the Licentious Part of Mankind ſo proſtituted, that now the Truth of whatever is therein offered, therefore does become ſuſpected. Nevertheleſs his Merits were ſuch, that his Life muſt be written, or at leaſt ſo much of it as this, That he merited highly to have his Life written. But our Hiſtory of him is to be abridged into this brief Account, That the Church of Middletown upon Connecticut-River was the Golden Candleſtick from whence this Excellent Perſon illuminated more than that whole Colony; and that all the Qualities of moſt Exemplary Piety, Extraordinary Ingenuity, Obliging Affability, join'd with the Accompliſhments of an Extraordinary Preacher did render him truly Excellent. In ſaying this of him, I may confirm what I ſay, in Words like thoſe of Jerom on a like Occaſion, Teſtor, Chriſtianum de Chriſtiano, vera proferre; and for his Character add this Epitaph.

Ille pius Paſtor, quo non præſtantior Vnus,
Qui faciendo docet, quæ facienda docet.

But indeed, as the Mother of Braſidas bravely comforted her ſelf, upon the Death of her much lamented Son, Vir bonus eſt Braſidas et fortis, ſed habet multos Sparta ſimiles: Even ſuch was the Conſolation of Connecticut, by the Special Favour of Heaven to the Colony; That though in the Death of COLLINS they loſt an Excellent Man, yet he was not the only Excellent Man they had among them. In the Acknowledgments of Worth, there may come in for a great Share with him, ſeveral moſt Worthy Men, wherewith Connecticut Colony has been ſingularly favoured Whiting of Hartford, Woodbridge of Wetherſfield, Wakeman of Fairfield will never be forgotten, till Connecticut Colony, do forget it ſelf, and all Religion.

CHAP. IX.

THE LIFE OF Mr. Thomas Shepard.

Cur præmaturum, Mortemque queramur Acerbam ?
Mors Matura Venit, cum Bona Vita fuit.

§. 1. IF it were accounted a Great Honour to the Family of the Curii in Rome, that there aroſe from that Stock Three Excellent Orators, One ſucceeding another; we may account it a greater Honour ſignalizing the Family of the Shepards of New-England, that no leſs than Three Excellent Miniſters have ſucceſſively iſſued from it. The Eldeſt Son of Mr. Thomas Shepard, the Ever Memorable Paſtor to the Church of Cambridge, was Mr. Thomas Shepard, the Paſtor to the Church of Charlſtown; and the Only Son of Mr. Thomas Shepard that Paſtor of Charlſtown, was our laſt Mr. Thomas Shepard, Paternæ Virtutis ex aſſe Hæres, his Grandfather's and his Father's Genuine Off-ſpring. The Lives of thoſe his Predeceſſors make a Figure in our Church-Hiſtory, and though this our Third Mr. Thomas Shepard muſt have it ſaid of him, That he did not attain to the Days of the Years of the Life of his Fathers in the Days of their Pilgrimage; nevertheleſs his Life had that in it, which may juſtly render it Obſervable and Exemplary. Yea, ſuch a Similitude of Spirit, there was deſcending from the Father to the Son, and from the Son to the Grandſon in this Holy Generation, that albeit, they were all of them ſeverally Short-lived, the Two Firſt not living much more than Forty, and the laſt not ſo much as Thirty Years in the World, yet there might a ſort of Jointed Longævity be aſcribed unto the Generation; for when the Father went away, Non totus receſſit, we had him ſtill ſurviving to the Life in the Poſterity. As the Name of Abner may be taken both ways, either Pater Lucernæ, or Lucerna Patris; either the Father was the Brightneſs of the Son, or the Son was the Brightneſs of the Father: Such a Luſtre did Father, and Son, and Grandſon, mutually reflect upon One another, in this Happy Family. It might be ſaid of them as Nazianzen, I remember, ſpeaks about the Family of a Baſil; The Parents were ſuch, that, if they had not ſuch bleſſed Children, they had been of themſelves Renowned; and the Children were ſuch, that if the Parents had not been ſo of themſelves, yet for the ſake of Theſe they had been Famous in the Church of God. Or, they may make us think of the Glory, with which the moſt Illuſtrious Family in the Oracles of God, is uſually ſet off when Abraham, and Iſaac, and Jacob, are ſo often together introduced, where the Root gives a Verdure to the Branches, and the Flouriſhing Branches again commend the Root.

§. 2. When Mr. Thomas Shepard the Second of New-England, and the Firſt of Charlſtown, died, he left behind him ſuch a Picture, as that which Tully mentions of Sextus Sulpicius; Nullum unquam Monumentum clarius. S. Sulpicius relinquere potuit, quam Effigiem Morum ſuorum, Virtutis, Conſtantiæ, Pietatis, Ingenii Filium; A Son that was the Lively Picture of his Virtues. And now that Son alſo is dead without any Male-Off ſpring, we will make an Eſſay at the Drawing of his Picture after another manner; even by ſuch a Narrative of his Life, as may be indeed his Picture to the Life: In the Doing whereof, perhaps the Children of Godly and Worthy Anceſtors, may find the Encouragement of a Confirmation to that Obſervation, That as the Snow-Ball, the further it rolls, the greater it grows, thus the further that the Grace of God is continued, and received, and valued in any Family, the Greater Effects of that Grace will be ſtill appearing. For there were ſome ſingular Circumſtances of Early Bleſſedneſs, attending this our youngeſt and lateſt Shepard, wherein it might be ſaid of him, as it was of the Well-known Grandſon, of whom this was indeed a True Son, His Bleſſings exceeded the Bleſſings of his Progenitors. And we may the rather take Notice of this Matter, becauſe there was hardly One Conſideration, which oftner poſſeſſed the Mind of this our Shepard, or more powerfully operated upon him to make him Eminent, than The Obligations laid upon him from his Anceſtors to do worthily. As the Famous Boleſlaus always carried about with him, the Picture of his Father in his Boſom, upon which often looking, he would ſay, Let me never do any thing unworthy the Son of ſuch a Father: This was the very Spirit of our Shepard, who always bore about with him the Image of his Father, and as often as perhaps almoſt any one Thing, thought on this, How he might approve himſelf the Son of ſuch a Father.

§. 3. Deſcended from ſuch Anceſtors, our Thomas Shepard was born at Charlſtown in New-England on July 5. 1658. How he was in his Earlieſt Years diſpoſed, I chooſe to relate by reciting ſome of the Words, afterwars uſed by himſelf, when he addreſſed the Church of Charlſtown for Admiſſion to their Sacred Communion. ‘As to the Thing of that which is commonly called Firſt Converſion or Regeneration, I have had many Thoughts about it; but have been afraid, and am ſtill, to determine it unto this or that particular. What I have found by my ſelf, hath made me oftentimes to queſtion, whether the Former Operations of the Spirit of God about me, were any more than Common; or, whether ſuch and ſuch Sins were conſiſtent with Saving Grace; that which hath helped me in this Caſe, hath been partly, what I have heard from a Reverend Man of God, ‘That ſuch as are from time to time diſquieted with ſuch Thoughts, the beſt, if not the only way to put it out of doubt, that they have True Faith, is by Exerciſing Faith, to convert again unto God. And putting my Soul in the way of the Breathings of God's Spirit, and then obſerving the Actings thereof, I have by the Help of the ſame Spirit, found ſomething of Relief under thoſe Doubts. On my Childhood and Youth, I have too much cauſe to ſay (as Solomon of the things of this World) Vanity of Vanities, all is Vanity! Yet by the Bleſſing of God on the faithful Endeavours, and fervent Prayers of my Religious Parents; eſpecially of my Honoured, Bleſſed, and moſt Exemplary Father, who of all, as the moſt Able to further, ſo was moſt Sollicitous, Studious, and tenderly Careful, always about the Everlaſting Well-being of a Son, from the very Beginning of my Days, to the End of his, I do think, I was by Precept and Holy Example, imbued with a Natural Love and Liking to the Word and Ways of God; though not ſaving, yet ſuch as whereby a Prejudice againſt Religion was prevented. Now as God bleſſed the Religious Cares of his Father to tinge him with ſuch a Savour of Religion in his Childhood; and he would not only on the Lord's Days, while he was yet a Boy, ſo notably repeat by heart in his Father's Family, all the Heads of the Longeſt Sermons preached in the Publick, that it might have ſerved for a ſufficient Repetition, inſtead of uſing the Notes uſually produced on ſuch Occaſions, but alſo his Virtuous Carriage on the Week Days, he ſhow'd, that the Sermons had indeed their Impreſſions on his Heart: So his Childhood was remarkable for the Diligence of it, and his Love of his Book. And ſuch was the Effect of this Diligence, that though he had not in his Attainments the Præcocity of Jacobus Martini, the Venetian Boy, who not many years agoe) when he was but ſeven years old, publickly diſputed at Rome, on Theſes, which he publiſhed of Theology, Law, Phyſick, and the other Diſciplines, unto the Aſtoniſhment of all the Orders there, yet he did attain unto ſuch Learning, as gave him an Early Admiſſion into the Colledge, and rais'd great Hopes in good Men concerning him.

§. 4. Being admitted into the Colledge, never was Father more Careful of his Aſcanius, than the Father of this our Shepard was of this his Only Son. And the Care of his Father for his Welfare, cauſed him then, in imitation of what the Grandfather had once done for him, to give him, in Writing a Paper of Golden Inſtructions, directing his Behaviour, while he ſhould continue a Student in that Society.

The Sum of thoſe Inſtructions was,

‘I. To remember the great End of his Life even the Glorifying of God through Chriſt, and the End of this Turn of his Life, even The fitting him for the moſt Glorious Work of the the Holy Miniſtry. For this End (wrote that Excellent Man) Your Father hath ſet you apart with many Tears, and hath given you up to God that He might delight in you. And (he proceeded) I had rather ſee you buried in your Grave, than grow light, looſe, wanton or profane: God's Secrets in the Holy Scriptures are never made known to common and profane Spirits; and (added he) therefore be ſure you begin and end every Day, wherein you ſtudy with earneſt Prayer to God; reading ſome part of the Scripture daily, and ſetting apart ſome time ev'ry Day (though but one Quarter of an Hour) for Meditation of the Things of God.

‘II. To remember, that theſe are Times of much Knowledge, and therefore One had almoſt as good be no Scholar, as not to Excel in Knowledge; Wherefore (ſaid he) abhor one Hour of Idleneſs, as you would be aſhamed of one Hour of Drunkenneſs. Though (as he alſo ſaid) I would not have you neglect Seaſons for Recreation a little before and after Meals, and though I would not have you ſtudy late in the Night uſually, yet know, that God will curſe your Soul, while the Sin of Idleneſs is nouriſhed, which hath ſpoiled ſo many hopeful Youths, in their firſt Bloſſoming in the Colledge. Hence (he ſaid likewiſe) don't content your ſelf to do as much as your Tutor ſets you about, but know, that you will never excel in Learning, unleſs you do ſomewhat elſe in private Hours, wherein his Care cannot reach you.

‘ III. To make his Studies as Pleaſant, and as Fruitful as could be, Firſt by ſingling out Two or Three Scholars, the moſt Godly, Learned, and Studious, and ſuch as he could Love beſt, and ſuch as would moſt Love him, of any that he could find among his Equals, as alſo ſome that were Superiours, and often manage Diſcourſes with them on all Subjects, which he had before him; and mark diligently what occur'd remarkable in every ones Conferences, Diſputations and other Exerciſes, but, by no means letting too much leak away in Viſits. Next, by having a Variety of Studies before him, that when he ſhould be weary of one Book or Theme, he might have recourſe to another. Then, by proſecuting of Studies in ſome Order and Method ; and therefore, every Year at leaſt, if not oftner, fixing the Courſe thereof, ſo as he might not allow himſelf to be Ordinarily therein interrupted. Fourthly, By giving of Difficult Studies the Flower of his Thoughts, and not ſuffering any Difficulty to paſs him, till by Induſtry or Inquiry he had maſtered it. Fifthly, By keeping an Appetite for Studies, by intermixing Meditation, and at fit Seaſons Recreation, but by ſuch as might moderately ſtir the Body, and render the Spirit more lively for its Duties. Sixthly, By making of Choice Collections from what Authors he peruſed, and having proper Indices to his Collections ; and therewithal contriving ſtill how to reduce all unto his own more peculiar Service in his Exerciſes or otherwiſe. Seventhly, By taking pains in preparing for his Recitations, Declamations, Diſputations, and not upon any pretence whatever hurry them off indigeſtedly. (Said he) Reading without Meditation will be uſeleſs ; Meditation without Reading will be barren. But here I would not have you forget a Speech of your Bleſſed Grandfather to a Scholar, that complained to him of a bad Memory, which diſcouraged him from Reading, Lege, Lege, aliquid hærebit. That Sentence [he added] in Prov. 14. 23. deſerves to be written in Letters of Gold on your Study-Table, In all Labour, there is Profit. But, Laſtly, By praying much not only for Heavenly, but alſo Humane Learning ; For (ſaid he) Remember that Prayer at Chriſt's Feet, for all the Learning you want, ſhall fetch you in more in an Hour, than poſſibly you may get by all the Books, and Helps you have otherwiſe in many Years.

‘ IV. To be Grave and Kind in his Carriage towards all the Scholars ; but be Watchful againſt the Two great Sins of many Scholars. Whereof his Words were theſe. The firſt is youthful Luſts, ſpeculative Wantonneſs, and ſecret Filthineſs, for which God hardens and blinds young Men's Hearts, his Holy Spirit departing from ſuch unclean Styes. The Second is, Malignancy and ſecret Diſtaſte of Holineſs, and the Power of Godlineſs, and the Profeſſors of it. Both of theſe Sins (ſaid he) you will quickly fall into, unto your own perdition, if you be not careful of your Company : For there are, and will be ſuch in every Scholaſtical Society, for the moſt part, as will teach you how to be filthy, and how to jeſt, and ſcoff, and ſcorn at Godlineſs, and at the Profeſſors thereof ; whoſe Company, I charge you to fly as from the Devil, and abhor : And that you may be kept from theſe, read often that Scripture, Prov. 2. 10, 11, 12, 16.

‘ V. Remember (ſo wrote he) to intreat God with Tears, before you come to hear any Sermon, that thereby God would powerfully ſpeak to your Heart, and make His Truth precious to you. Neglect not to Write after the Preacher always in handſom Books, and be careful always to preſerve and peruſe the ſame. And upon Sabbath Days, make exceeding Conſcience of Sanctification ; mix not your other Studies, much leſs vain and carnal Diſcourſes with the Duties of that Holy Day, but remember that Command, Lev. 19. 30. Ye ſhall keep my Sabbaths, and reverence my Sanctuary, I am the Lord.

‘ VI. Remember (ſo likewiſe wrote he) that whenſoever you hear, read, or conceive any Divine Truth, you ſtudy to affect your Heart with it, and the Goodneſs of it. Take heed of receiving Truth into your Head, without the Love of it in your Heart, leſt God give you to ſtrong Deluſions. If God reveal any Truth to you, be ſure you be Humbly and deeply Thankful.

Theſe Excellent Inſtructions his Father concluded with theſe Words.

My Son, if thine Heart be wiſe, my Heart ſhall rejoyce even mine.

And I may now abridge the whole Academical Life of our young Shepard, even until he proceeded Maſter of Arts, into this brief Account of him, That he did make the Heart of his Worthy Father to rejoice by his Conſcientious and Exemplary Attendance unto theſe Inſtructions. Yea, when he had Occaſion to mention them, it was in theſe Terms, My, next-to Chriſt, moſt Beloved Father's Advice : Nor was there any one part of his Character more conſpicuous than this, A Reverence for the Perſon and Advice of his Father.

§. 5. But before he could proceed Maſter of Arts, a Terrible Hand of God upon (more than) Charlſtown, put an End unto the Days of his Father in the World. And albeit that very conſiderable Church, under this Bereavement, had now a proſpect of a Supply from ſeveral Quarters, yet after much Praying and Faſting before the Great Shepherd of the Sheep for His Direction, they could fix no where, but upon this Hopeful Son of their former Paſtor. Indeed, for the moſt part, A Prophet is without Honour in his own Country, neverthelеſs in this Country, as well as among ſome of the Primitive Churches, there have been more than two or three Inſtances of Sons, that have happily ſucceeded (yea, and aſſiſted) their their Fathers in the Evangelical Propheſie. And Charlſtown particularly (not altogether unlike the Magiſtrates of Baſil, who from their Eſteem of the Excellent Buxtorf, choſe his very young Son to ſucceed him in the Hebrew Profeſſorſhip) knowing the Prayers, the Tears, the Faith, which their Firſt Shepard had uſed for this Only Son, concluded, that like the Son of Monica, It was impoſſible, that he ſhould not be bleſſed, and made a Bleſſing; and ſeeing alſo the Early Diſpoſition of our Young Shepard, in all things to imitate his Excellent Father, they believed, that nothing would more continue Day-light after Sun-ſet unto them, than for them here to make their choice. Accordingly, at their Deſire, he preached his Firſt Sermon among them, while he was yet little more than twenty Years of Age; and with a very Charming, Solid and Serious Gravity, he diſcourſed on Exod. 15. 2. He is my Father's God, and I will exalt Him. Upon this, and other ſuch Experiments of his Abilities; his Father's Flock were at no Reſt, until they had obtained his Eſtabliſhment with Ordination, to be their Feeder; which was conſummated on May 5. 1680, And the laſt VVords uſed in the Sermon by a Reverend Perſon, who then preached on that Paſſage in Ezek. 33. 7. Son of Man, I have ſet thee a Watchman, will by being here tranſcrib'd, help to finiſh the Picture, which we have undertaken.

‘ Be much in Prayer for your Watchmen, and particularly for him, who is this Day to be eſtabliſhed in the VVork of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt among you; You have honoured Your ſelves in thus expreſſing the Love and Honour which you had for his Excellent Father; and as it was ſaid in Ruth 2. 20. Bleſſed be he of the Lord, who hath not left off his Kindneſs to the Living, and to the Dead; ſo I will ſay to you, Bleſſed be this Church of the Lord, that you ſhow Kindneſs unto your Dead Paſtor, and to his Living Son. As for him, that is now to become your Watchman, he needs your Prayers; I may ſay of him as David of Solomon, My Son is young and tender, and the Houſe is magnificent! I know not whether any ſo young as he, was ever left alone with ſuch a Charge. Now tho' the Work be great, yet the Lord Jeſus Chriſt is able to carry him well through it all; but it muſt be through the Help of your Prayers, that he comes to have ſuch a Supply of the Spirit, pray for him in particular, and that ev'ry Day! VVho knows what God may do for you, in him, and by him, as in and by his Father before him? Let it be your Prayer, that He would take of the Spirit, that was in his Father and his Grandfather; who were both of them Great Men in their Generation, and beſtow thereof a Double Portion upon him. And let that VVord encourage you, My Spirit which is upon thee, and my Word which I have put in thy Mouth, ſhall not depart out of thy Mouth, nor out of the Mouth of thy Seed, nor out of the Mouth of thy Seed's Seed; ſaith the Lord.

Thus did he become the Paſtor of Charlſtown, and herein he did not leap from a vain, lewd and unſanctified Youth into the Pulpit, as into a Shop, where to earn a Living, and there ſuddenly put on juſt ſo much External Devotion, as may ſerve to recommend one's Performances unto an Auditory of the Faithful. Evan the Heathen Moraliſt, obſerved the great Miſchief done in the VVorld by the Mercenary Maſters of Precept, who endeavoured more to talk juſt Things, than to do them; τὰ δίκαια μὲν λέγειν πράττειν δὲ ὐδαμῶς. Our Shepard was none of theſe. But after long Preparations of a Renewed Heart and a Religious Life, and with Awful Apprehenſions of the Account, which he was to give unto the Lord of the Flock, and of the Worth and Charge of Immortal Souls in his Flock, he was thruſt forth into publick Labours. And the Lord encouraged his Holy Labours by making of ſuch Additions unto his Church, as few Churches in the Country for the time had the like; but yet, as when Peter had a mighty Draught of Fiſhes, he cryed out, Lord! I am a ſinful Man! Thus the mighty Draught of Souls, which this young Diſciple found in his Goſpel-Net, was indeed ſo far from Lifting of him up, that he ſenſibly grew in his Humility, and in his low and vile Thoughts of his own Attainments.

§. 6. Although he were a Young Man, yet might be applied unto him, a Stroke in the Epitaph on one of Mr. Henries Children, Præterquam ætatem, nil Puerile fuit: And he made the moſt Judicious of his People paſs this Judgment on him, that he was no Novice: And ſuch an Example was he In Word, in Converſation, in Civility, in Spirit, in Faith, in Purity, that he did Let no Man deſpiſe his Youth. Such indeed was his whole Conduct of him, that he made one think of thoſe Words of Origen, Senum eſt prophetare; etiamſi videas aliqando Juvenem prophetantem, non dubites dicere de eo, quià ſecundum interiorem hominem ſenuit, propterea Propheta eſt. By the Gravity by his Deportment he kept up his Authority among all ſorts of Perſons, and by the Courteſie of it he won their Affection. He ſet himſelf to Do good unto all among his People, and the Charity of his Purſe, as well as of his Tongue and Heart, was felt on all juſt Occaſions. But there were none dearer to him than the Good Old People; thoſe Holy Devout Aged Souls, who had grown well towards Ripe for Heaven under his Bleſſed Father's Miniſtry: He was much in their Company, and he valued their Prayers for him, and their Serious and Savoury and Heavenly Communications at no ordinary Rate. Nor ſhall I ever forget the Conſolation, which he told me, he had received from the Words, which one of thoſe plain, old Saints uſed unto him, when he was under diſcouraging Fears, how he ſhould go through his Work: Sir (ſaid he) If you'll give up your ſelf to do the Work of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, never fear but He will help you to do yours. When he came to have a Family of his own, it was a Well-Ordered One: He Morning and Evening read in it a Portion of the Scripture, and then pray'd out of what he read: But on the Satur-day Nights, he choſe to Repeat a Sermon, commonly what had been preached on ſome Lecture the forgoing Week, or One of his deceaſed Father's; and on Lord's-

Day

D*ay Nights* he Repeated the Sermon of the Day foregoing. And while he made his Houſe a Bethel, for the Devotion therein performed; he made it a Betheſda, for the Hoſpitable Entertainment which he gave unto thoſe that repaired unto him: And Munerarius Pauperum et Egentium, candidatus ſic feſtinavit ad Cœlum For all other things he ſo made the Hundred and Firſt Pſalm the Rule of his Houſe, as to give therein a Demonſtration of his Ability to Rule the Church of God. From hence, if we follow him unto his Beloved Study, there we ſhall find him affording yet a more Notable, and Eminent Inſtance of an Holy Walk. Here beſides his Daily Supplications, he did One Thing, which had a mighty Tendency, to Keep his own Spirit in an healthy, vigorous, thriving Temper, and bring down the manifold Bleſſings of God upon all the Weighty Concerns, which he had in his Hands; and a Thing it was, without which he thought, he could never prove either a VVatchful Chriſtian, or a very Uſeful Miniſter: This was that he ſcarce permitted one Month to paſs him, without ſpending at leaſt One Day in the Exerciſes of a Secret-Faſt before the Lord. It is remarkable, that ev'ry One of thoſe Three, who are famous in the Book of God for Miraculous Faſting, were honoured by God with the Miraculous Feeding of other Men Our Shepard thought, that he ſhould never do any great Things in Feeding of his Flock, if he did not great Things in Faſting by himſelf. The Commendations given to Faſting, by Baſil and Cyprian, in their Orations about it, and by Ambroſe in his Book of Elias, were believed by our Shepard; his Holy Heart could ſubſcribe unto the VVords of Chryſoſtom concerning this Duty, who in his Homily ſays, Faſting is, as much as lies in us, an Imitation of the Angels, a Contemning of Things preſent, a School of Prayer, a Nouriſhing of the Soul, a Bridle of the Mouth, an Abatement of Concupiſcence: It mollifies Rage, it appeaſes Anger, it calms the Tempeſts of Nature, it excites Reaſon, it clears the Mind, it diſburthens the Fleſh, it chaſes away Night-Pollutions, it frees from Head-ach. By Faſting, a Mangets compoſed Behaviour, Free Utterance of his Tongue, Right Apprehenſions of his Mind. VVherefore he ſtill would ſet apart a Day every Month, wherein he would ſtrictly examine the Error of his Heart and Life, and confeſs and bewail thoſe Errors, and obtain the Sealed Pardon thereof, by a Renewed Faith in the Obedience of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and then wreſtle with Heaven for New Supplies of Grace, to carry him well thro' the whole Service incumbent on him; and therewithal implore the Smiles of Heaven on all the Souls that were under his Charge, and on the Land and World. And this his Piety was accompanied with proportionable Induſtry, wherein he devoured Books even to a Degree of Learned Gluttony; inſomuch, that if he might have changed his Name, it muſt have been into Bibliander. VVhence, tho' he had a fine, and large, and a continually growing Library, yet, that he might avoid the Diſgrace of that Salutation, Salvete Libri ſine Doctore, he took a very particular courſe, to make himſelf Maſter of the Learning, which was lodg'd in ſo Rich a Treaſury: For ſo little did he deſerve to be numbred among the Chaplains of K. Lewis the X the French King, who ſeeing their Learning to bear no proportion unto their Libraries, wittily ſaid of them, They were like ſuch as had crooked Backs, carrying a Burden about with them, which they never ſaw in their Lives, that he had hardly left a Book of Conſequence to be ſo uſed, in his Library (ſhall I now call it, or his Laboratory) which he had not ſo peruſed as to leave with it in an Inſerted Paper, a Brief Idea of the whole Book, with Memorandums of more Notable Paſſages occurring in it, written with his own Diligent and ſo Enriching Hand. He might ſay with Seneca, Nullus mihi per otium exit Dies, partem etiam Noctium ſtudiis vendico; and it is well if he were not a little too much of a Seneca, in hurting of his Health by ſo ſpending of his Life.

§. 7. He faithfully ſet himſelf to diſcharge the whole Duty of a Paſtor; and as he walked humbly under the Awe of that VVord in Heb. 13. 17. They watch for your Souls, as thoſe that muſt give an Account; ſo methinks, I hear him give up this Account unto the Judge of all.

' Gracious Lord; I watch'd, that I might ſee what
' ſpecial Truths from time to time, were moſt pro-
' per to be inculcated on my Flock, and I throughly
' preached thoſe Truths. I watch'd, that I might
' ſee what ſort of Temptations did moſt threaten
' my Flock, and I ſet my ſelf to ſtrengthen them
' againſt thoſe Temptations. I watch'd, that I
' might ſee what ſort of Afflictions did moſt aſ-
' ſault my Flock, and I ſet my ſelf to comfort them
' under thoſe Afflictions. I did watch, to Learn
' what ſort of Duties, were moſt ſeaſonable to be ' recommended to my Flock, and I vigorouſly re-
' commended them in the Seaſons thereof. I did
' watch, to ſee what Souls of my Flock did call for
' my more particular Addreſſes, and I often ad-
' dreſs'd one or other of them. Yet not I, but
' the Grace which was with me!

But if we conſider him yet more particularly, as a Preacher, he did thus acquit himſelf. In the writing of his Diſcourſes for the Pulpit, he did, as they ſay, Ariſtotle did, when he wrote one of his Famous Books, Dip his Pen into his very Soul! VVhen he was going to compoſe a Sermon, he began with Prayer; thinking, Benè oraſſe eſt benè ſtuduiſſe. He then read over his Text in the Original, and weigh'd the Language of the Holy Ghoſt. If any Difficulty occur'd in the Interpretation, he was wary, how he ran againſt the Stream of the moſt ſolid Interpreters, whom he ſtill conſulted. He was then deſirous to draw forth his Doctrines, and perhaps other Heads of his Diſcourſe in the Beginning of the Week, that ſo his Occaſional Thoughts, might be uſeful thereunto. And he would ordinarily improve his own Meditations to ſhape his Diſcourſe, before he would conſult any other Authors who treated on the Subjects, that ſo their Notions might ſerve only to Adorn or Correct his own. Laſtly, Having finiſhed his Compoſure, he concluded with a Thankſgiving to the Lord, his Helper. And then for the Utterance of the Sermons thus prepared, though his Pronunciation were not ſet off with all the Advantages, that Itching Ears would have asked for, yet he had the Divine Rhetorick, recommended by Dr. Stoughton in that Speech of his, This I know and dare avouch, that ‘the higheſt Myſtery in Divine Rhetorick is, To feel what a Man ſpeaks, and then to ſpeak what he felt. In thus fulfilling his Miniſtry, he went through a Variety of Subjects; but there were eſpecially Two Subjects, that were ſingled out by him towards the Cloſe of it. Firſt, It being a Time, when a Conjunction of Iniquity and Calamity made but an Ill Aſpect upon the Countrey, he did in One part of the Lord's Day chooſe to inſiſt upon the Prayer of Jonas; which he handled in Forty five Sermons, whereof the laſt was uttered about a Month before his End. Secondly, A Synod of Churches having diſcovered, and condemned a Number of Provoking Evils, by degenerating whereinto, the Land was expoſed unto the Judgments of Heaven, he did on the other part of the Lord's Days inſiſt on thoſe Provocations; and having diſpatch'd what he intended hereof alſo, he took Two Texts; the One to awaken the Obſtinate, namely, that in Jer. 13. 17. If you will not hear, my Soul ſhall weep in ſecret places for your Pride. The Other to encourage the Penitent, namely, that in Mat. 11. 28. Come to me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you Reſt. And he was never after heard ſpeaking in the Name of the Lord.

§. 8. A while before his Death, he preached Thirteen Sermons on that Paſſage Eccleſ. 12. 5. Man goeth to his Long Home. And he had a ſtrange and ſtrong Præſage on his own Mind, that he was himſelf to be not long from that Home.

I find the Patriarch Iſaac, in Gen. 27. 2. fill'd with many Thoughts about the Day of his Death at hand, and enquiring after ſome ſpecial Reaſon for it, I find that Iſaac was now come to that Age, at which his Brother Iſhmael died fourteen Years before. This probably now, above any other time, awakened him to think of his own Death as near unto him. It may be, the Præſage of our Shepard, that he ſhould not outlive the Age of Twenty ſeven, might be ſomewhat excited, by his calling to Mind, the Age at which his Uncle expired.

Our Firſt Shepard of Cambridge had Three Sons, whereof, if the Eldeſt, namely, Thomas (the Father of our Thomas of Charlſtown) were one ſingularly Enlarged in his Endowments and Improvements; I am ſure, the Second was one, whoſe Heart was a Tent in which the Lord remarkably choſe to Dwell: It was Mr. Samuel Shepard, of whoſe Holy Life and Death I may here interweave a diſtinct Account, by but reciting the Words which I find written in a private Manuſcript of our Excellent Mr. Mitchel concerning him. His Words are theſe,

On April 7. 1668. dyed Mr. Samuel Shepard, ‘Paſtor of the Church of Rowly (juſt two Months after his Wife) a very Precious, Holy, Meditating, Able and Choice Young Man; One of the Firſt Three. His Attainments in Communion with God, and in daily Meditation and Cloſe Walking, may ſhame thoſe that are Elder than he. He was but Twenty ſix years of Age in October laſt. He was an Excellent Preacher, moſt dearly Beloved at Rowly, and of all that knew him; but juſt ſettled among them. The People would have Plucked out their Eyes for him, to have ſaved his Life. But he was ripe for Heaven, and God took him thither: A Gain to him but an invaluable Loſs to us.

Now this our Thomas had an almoſt unaccountable Apprehenſion, that in his Early Death he ſhould be like his Uncle Samuel; and under the Influence of this Apprehenſion, he ſo liv'd, and ſo preach'd, as to avoid the Danger of a Sudden Death, by being always prepared for it. Accordingly, it came to paſs that about June 5. 1685. on Friday, being indiſpoſed in his Bowels, he yet continued his Pains and Hopes, all the Saturday following, to be ready for the Exerciſes of the Lord's Day, when the Lord's-Supper alſo was to have been adminiſtred. But on the Saturday Night his Illneſs grew ſo much upon him, that he ſaid unto his Wife, I would gladly have been, once more, at the Table of the Lord, but I now ſee that I ſhall no more partake thereof, until I do it after a new Manner in the Kingdom of Heaven. On Lord's Day Noon I viſited him, and at my parting with him, he ſaid, My Hopes are built on the Free Mercy of God, and the Rich Merit of Chriſt, and I do believe, that, if I am taken out of the World, I ſhall only change my Place; I ſhall neither change my Company, nor change my Communion: And as for you, Sir, I beg the Lord Jeſus to be with you unto the End of the World! After this, he ſpoke little to his Attendants; but was often over-heard pouring out Prayers, eſpecially for the Widow-Church; (as he often expreſſed it) which he was to leave behind him. And in the Night following, to the extream Surprize of his Friends on Earth, he went away to thoſe in Heaven! If his Age be now enquired after, it is remarked, that altho' the Scripture doth mention the particular Age of many Heroes eternized in it's Oracles, yet after the Lord Jeſus Chriſt came, and continued in this lower World, no longer than Thirty two Years and an half, the Scripture does not mention the Age of any one Perſon whatſoever, as if the time of any one's Continuance in this World more or leſs, were not worth minding, ſince the Son of the Moſt High Tabernacled ſo little a while among us. However, we will here mention the Age of our Shepard; it was a Month ſhort of Twenty ſeven. But,

An miſerum dices, citò quòd Terrena reliquit!
Fœlicem certè, quòd meliora tenet.

§. 9. Wiſdom, Gravity, Prudence, Temperance (as One ſpeaks) are not always confined unto them, that have wrinkled Faces, furrowed Brows, dim Eyes, and palſey Hands, leaning on a Staff; nor is a Young Man uncapable of being a Divine. Although our Shepard had not outlived the Years of Youth, when he went from hence, yet he had outgrown the Airs of it; and among all the Vertues of an Old Man which adorn'd him, not the leaſt of his Ornaments was, his being well eſtabliſhed in the Study of Divinity. To accompliſh himſelf in that Study, he did not apply himſelf unto the Reading of thoſe Authors, who, pretending to deſcribe unto us, The Whole Duty of Man,

Man, and the Condition of our Obtaining the Benefits purchaſed by Chriſt, are careful to inſiſt on any thing rather, than that a Reliance on the Righteouſneſs of the Obedience, yielded by the Lord Jeſus Chriſt as our Surety unto God for us, which is the One thing needful, or that Faith, whereby we come to have the Union with our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, from which alone all Good Works ariſe: And thoſe, who amidſt their Voluminous Harangues upon Moral Virtue, are very careful to avoid the leaſt Inſinuation, that a Man cannot be truly Virtuous, until the Spirit of God by a Supernatural Operatiou, infuſing a New Principle into him hath regenerated him, and that a Man can do nothing truly Virtuous without the Supernatural Aids of that Spirit. He look'd upon many late Books written to undermine the Orthodox Articles of the Church of England, in theſe Matters, by Perſons, who perhaps had got into Preferments by ſuſcribing thoſe very Articles, as Books that indeed betray'd the Chriſtian Religion, under the Pretence of Upholding it. And the Mercy of God having preſerved the Mind of this our Young Student from the wrong Schemes, which might have afterwards entailed ſuch an Eternal Unſucceſsfulneſs upon his Miniſtry, as uſes to attend the Miniſtry, wherein the Grace of the Goſpel is not acknowledged, he choſe to read thoſe Authors, which have the Truer Spirit of the Goſpel in them. I find therefore under his own Hand, a Liſt of ſuch Authors as theſe, to be conſidered by him, as indeed worthy to be peruſed and conſidered; Mr. Perkins, Dr. Preſton, Dr. Uſher, Dr. Manton, Mr. Jeans, Mr. Strong, Mr. Caryl, Mr. Swinnock, Dr. Jacomb, Dr. Owen, Mr. Polhill. And however he ſaw a Sherlock, after a very Unevangelical Manner, abuſing the Writings of his Grandfather Shepard, his Value for thoſe Writings, and the Writings of ſuch Men as Mr. Hooker or Dr. Goodwin, was thereby not abated; but his Deteſtation of the New-Divinity, wherein he ſaw the Myſteries of Union with Chriſt confounded, Acquaintance with Chriſt reproached, and Living by Faith on Chriſt, and Coming to Chriſt with nothing for all things made a Ridicule, was more than a little augmented. And as it was a Principal Endeavour with him, to ſettle himſelf in the True, Proteſtant, New-Engliſh Anti-Arminian Points of Truth, ſo on all Occaſions he prov'd himſelf One able to maintain the Truth againſt all Oppoſers: Whence, the Immature Death of ſo Accompliſh'd a Divine, cannot but be a ſenſible Wound unto our Churches. But He that Holds the Stars in his Right Hand, can, if we addreſs him for it, upon the Setting of ſome, cauſe others to riſe; yea, it is poſſible, and it is indeed propoſed, that by writing the Lines of ſome ſuch, others may be excited and aſſiſted, in ſhining like unto them.

This was the Short Life of my Dear Shepard. I confeſs my Affection unto him to have been ſuch, that if I might uſe the Poet's Expreſſion of his Friend, Animæ dimidium meæ, I muſt ſay, I am half buried ſince he is dead, or, He is but half dead ſince I am alive. Nevertheleſs, this Affection hath not bribed my Veracity in any part of the Character which I have given of him; for as on the one ſide, I count it baſe to throw Dirt on the Face, which Duſt hath been caſt upon; ſo, on the other ſide, I think, that Painting becomes Dead People worſe than Living.

A Line or Two of Emanuel Theſaurus, upon that Firſt and Young Shepherd ABEL, we may now leave upon him for his

EPITAPH.

Conditur ſub hoc Ceſpite, Virgineus PASTOR,
Qui mortem, omnibus, vitam nemini flendam tranſegit.

Or This,

Great Minds muſt like New Stars, but look about,
Be wondred at a little, and go out.

Or, This.

Dear Shepard, ſure we dare not call thee Dead:
Tho' gone, thou'rt but unto thy Kindred fled.

EARLY PIETY, Exemplified in the Life and Death of Mr. Nathanael Mather; Who having become at the Age of Nineteen, an Inſtance of more than Common Learning and Virtue, changed Earth for Heaven, Octob. 17. 1688

Si Mores ſpectes, Moribus eſſe Senex.

The Fourth Edition.

With a Prefatory Epiſtle by Mr. Matthew Mead.

To the READER.

O*F all Reading, Hiſtory hath in it a moſt taking Delight, and no Hiſtory more delightful than the Lives of good Men, it being not only pleaſant but profitable; and ſo while other Pleaſures become a* Bait to Vice, this becomes a Motive to Virtue. It may be ſaid of ſuch Lives, as that Excellent Mr. Herbert ſaid of Verſes,

A Life may find him who a Sermon flies,
And turn Delight into a Sacrifice.

Thou haſt here a rare Hiſtory of a Youth, that may be of great Uſe and Advantage both to Old and Young: That the Aged ſeeing themſelves out-done by Green Years, may Gird up their Loins, and mend their Pace for Heaven; and that Young Ones may be ſo wrought into the Love of Religion, as it is Exemplified in this Holy Perſon, as to endeavour with all Diligence to write after his Excellent Copy.

It is a great Work to dye, and to dye well is a greater; and no Work calls for greater Diligence than this, becauſe the Errours of the firſt Work can never be corrected in a ſecond. One great Reaſon why this Duty is ſeldom well done, is becauſe we grudge Time to do it in, and leave it to be done at once. It is never like to be well done, unleſs it be always doing; and therefore we ſhould, in Conformity to that great Apoſtle, die daily.

This was the Practice of this Young Diſciple, who among all his other Learning (wherein for his time he excelled moſt) had in Nineteen Years ſo perfectly learned this Leſſon, that the Wiſe God ſaw it fit he ſhould take out.

About Fourteen Years old he did dedicate himſelf wholly to God and his Service, and entred into a Solemn Covenant with God to that purpoſe; which as he did not begin raſhly, and without great deliberation, ſo he did not tranſact it ſlightly, but with great Senſe and Seriouſneſs: The Matter and Form of which Covenant you have in this enſuing Narrative ſigned with his own Hand, according to that Word of the Prophet, (Iſa. 44. 5.) One ſhall ſay, I am the Lord's, and another ſhall call himſelf by the Name of Jacob, and another ſhall ſubſcribe with his Hand to the Lord. And with what Care and Conſcience he performed this Covenant in Faſting, in Prayer, in Watchings, in Self-Examination, in Meditation, in Thanksgiving, in Walking with God in all, is fully witneſſed in what follows, which ſhews that he was a true Nathanael, an Iſraelite indeed in whom was no Guile. Not like thoſe Iſraelites which the Prophet reproveth, for that they flattered God with their Mouth, —— lied to him with their Tongues, their Hearts not being right with him, nor ſtedfaſt in his Covenant. For having once given up himſelf to God, He kept the Ways of the Lord, and did not wickedly depart from his God.

When his Worthy Father (my Dear Friend) was pleaſed to ſend this Narrative to me, I confeſs I could not read it without great Reflection and Shame: Thought I, God will not gather his Fruit till it is ripe. and therefore I live ſo long; nor will he let it hang till it is rotten, therefore Nathanael dyed ſo ſoon. We are not ſent into the World meerly to fill up a Number of Years, but to fill up our meaſures of Grace, and whenever that is done, our Time is done, and we have lived to Maturity, and ſo did this Youth, and therefore came to his Grave in a full Age (tho' at Nineteen) like as a Shock of Corn comes in in his Seaſon.

The following Hiſtory is written by his own Brother, (a Worthy Miniſter) the fitteſt of any for ſuch a Province, the Nearneſs of Relation occaſioning that Intimacy which others could not eaſily have. In what he hath done herein, he hath deſerved highly of all who love Goodneſs and Virtue, having uſed great Faithfulneſs, and great Modeſty: Great Faithfulneſs, and that both to the Dead and to the Living; to the Dead, in raiſing up the Name of ſuch a Brother; and to the Living, in giving us a Narration of his Life, without an Oration in his Praiſe ; which indeed was altogether needleſs, when it was ſo fairly written by himſelf, for his own Works praiſe him in the Gates. And he hath uſed great Modeſty, in ſpeaking for the moſt part out of the Journal of the Deceaſed, ſo that it is the Dead who ſpeaks while the Living writes. And ſince his End is more to provoke to Imitation than to beſpeak Admiration, How greatly doth it concern them into whoſe Hands this Narrative ſhall happily fall, to joyn earneſt Prayer and diligent Endeavour together in following this great Example, otherwiſe he that gave it, and he that writes it, will both riſe up in Judgment againſt an unteachable Generation.

To the READER.

IT is not for me to ſay much of the Perſon who is the Subject of the Enſuing Hiſtory, for that I am his younger Brother. I have read a Letter (dated October 25. 1688.) written to his and my Ever Honoured Father, wherein are theſe Expreſſions.

Never could Parent have cauſe of more Comfort in a Child, than you have in that Son of yours. I have ſeen his private Papers, and in them ſuch an Inſtance of a Walk with God, as few Ancient Miniſters perhaps have Experience of, eſpecially for the three laſt years of his Life, I find that he maintained a Courſe of wonderful Devotion, Supplication and Meditation, every Day ; that ſolemn Humiliations and Thankſgivings in ſecret, were no Strangers to his Practice, that he would be often thinking with himſelf, What ſhall I do for God ? And in a Word, that Dr. Owen's Book about Spiritual Mindedneſs, has been in a very rare Manner tranſcribed into his Converſation.

He has bin for his Years a great Scholar, but a better Chriſtian. The Life of the Famous Young Janeway, I think, has not more of Holineſs illuſtrious in it, than that of your Dear Nathanael's.

I write theſe Things, becauſe I judge you have no greater Joy. Some Eminent Miniſters here, have maintained a pleaſant, intimate, familiar Converſation with him, and the Character which they gave of him, is very Extraordinary. Thus that Letter.

I have likewiſe heard my Father ſay, that he was more grieved for the Loſs which the Church of God has ſuſtained in the Death of that my Brother, than for his own Loſs thereby.

When I parted from him not a Year ago, I hoped that would not have been my Ultimum Vale ; but I now lament my Unhappineſs, in that I gain'd no more by him : And yet muſt acknowledge, that the little Underſtanding which God has given me in the Hebrew or Greek Tongues, was by that my Brother as the Inſtrument ; So that I have cauſe whilſt I ſhall live, to honour his Memory. His Death makes me remember the Poet's Words.

Ὃν φιλεῖ Θεὸς ἀποθνήσκει νέος.

I cannot but know, that if I ſhould not fear and ſerve the God of my Brothers, and of my Fathers, and of my Grand-Fathers, the neareſt Relations I ever had in the World, will be Witneſſes againſt me at the Laſt Day. The Lord give us a joyful Meeting in Day of Chriſt.

The INTRODUCTION.

MY Reader will quickly diſcern what it is that I attempt the doing of ; and I ſuppoſe he will then ſee no Occaſion of enquiring Why. The Apology's wherewith Writers uſually fill the Prefaces of their Books, Do come of Evil ; either the Vanity of the Compoſers is diſcovered, or the Candor of the Peruſers queſtioned in them. That I write the Life of a Chriſtian, cannot be faulted by any one who conſiders, That the Lives of Pious Men have been juſtly eſteemed among the moſt uſeful Hiſtories which the Church of God enjoys ; or that the beſt Pens in the World have been employ'd in thus helping the Juſt unto Eternal Memory. Our Lord will have as mean a Thing as one Act of Devotion and Charity, in a poor Woman, to be mentioned wherever his Goſpel comes. That I write the Life of a Brother, will not be reckoned abſurd by them who underſtand what Patterns I have, both Ancient and Modern, for my doing ſo. James Janeway among the reſt has had our Thanks for what an Account he has given of his Brother John. Indeed, if I ſhould not thus raiſe up for my Departed Brother a Name in Iſrael, I were not worthy to wear a Shoo, or to have a Face unſpit upon. My Natural Relation to him doth oblige me to beſtow an Epitaph upon his Grave ; that the Survivers may not forget whoſe Duſt they tread upon: But I am by (that which Ambroſe calls) a Greater and Better Fraternity, concerned to Embalm the Memory of One, who maintained ſuch a Walk with God, as he did until God took him to Himſelf. It has been obſerved, That they who Live in Heaven while they are on Earth, often Live on Earth after they are in Heaven. It were lawful for me to deſire and ſtudy ſuch a Thing on the behalf of my Brother, whoſe Early Piety is at once my own Shame and Joy: But I purſue an higher End than this, deſigning rather to procure Followers, than to beſpeak Admirers of this good Example: That this is my Main Scope, in what I am now doing of, I declare ſincerely and very ſolemnly. And hence I have not here made an Oration in his Praiſe, but given barely a Narrative of his Life, and this moſtly by tranſcribing of his own Memorials, in all affecting the plain Style of a juſt Hiſtorian. I do therefore addreſs this Exemplary Life unto the young People of New-England, and eſpecially unto thoſe of North-Boſton, who are the Lambs that I have received a peculiar Charge from the Lord Jeſus about the Feeding of. To you do I preſent this Mirrour, wherein you may ſee the Exerciſes of a Virtuous Youth, not only preſcribed, but alſo practiſed before your Eyes: You ſhall ſee, as what ſhould be done, ſo what may be done by a Young Perſon, in order to Everlaſting Felicity; ſee him and hear him as One come from the Dead, ſaying, Do as I have done. The Father of him whom I deſcribe has laboured exceedingly for the Converſion of the Riſing Generation in New-England; and his CALL to them has been printed and reprinted here among us. Tho' the News of a Sons Death muſt needs be afflictive to him, when he ſhall have the Report of it arriving to him in the other England, yet I make no doubt, but his Parental Griefs will be not a little mitigated, when he ſhall behold that Son thus renewing his CALL by ſpeaking after he is dead. This young Man did pray much for you while he was alive, that you might be truly converted unto God; he does preach now to you from the Grave, or rather from the Sky, that you would Remember your Creator in the Days of your Youth. I wiſh that he may (to uſe Chryſoſtom's Phraſe) become a Brother to you by Faith, as he is to me by Blood: And I extend this my Wiſh with a moſt Affectionate Application to the young Gentlemen, who belong to the Colledge which he was a Member of. As you have had in his Father a Rector, whoſe Generous and Expenſive Cares have not been for your Diſadvantage; ſo you have in his Diligence and his Devotion, a Copy which is not altogether unworthy of your Imitation: I am ſetting before you the Exerciſes and Accompliſhments of a Scholar, whoſe Chief Study it was, to be wiſe unto Salvation; a Scholar, which laboured while he was learning all other Things, not to be ignorant of Him, Whom to know was Life Eternal. I am not without Hope, that ſome of you will now reſolve as Jerom did when he had read the Life of Hilarion, ſhutting up the Book and ſaying, Well, here ſhall be the Champion whom I will follow: When you come to dye, you will certainly commend ſuch a Life as his; God grant that none of you may then have cauſe to ſigh Qualis Artifex pereo! Or to complain, Surgunt Indocti & rapiunt Cœlum; Nos cum noſtris Doctrinis mergimur in Infernum. That Great Man Hugo Grotius near his End profeſſed, That he would gladly give all his Learning and Honour for the Integrity of a poor Man in his Neighbourhood, that ſpent Eight Hours of his Time in Prayer, Eight in Labour, and Eight in Sleep and other Neceſſaries; and unto ſome that applauded his marvellous Induſtry, he ſaid, Ah, Vitam perdidi operoſe nihil Agendo! But unto ſome that aſked, the beſt Counſel which a Man of his Attainment could give, he ſaid, Be Serious. 'Tis with this Counſel that I humbly offer you the Enſuing Hiſtory.

LIFE and DEATH
Mr. Nathanael Mather.

I Write the Life and Death of a Young Man, whoſe Ornaments will awaken in the Reader, an Enquiry like that which the Atchievements of David, produced concerning him, Whoſe Son is this Youth?

To Anticipate that Enquiry:

Nathanael Mather had for his Grand-Fathers Two of New-England's Fathers, the Famous Richard Mather, and the not leſs Famous John Cotton; whoſe Names have been in the Church of God, as an Ointment poured forth, and whoſe Lives bear no little Figure in the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtories of our Engliſh Iſrael. His Parents being yet living, it's too ſoon to give them their Character; yet I may venture to ſay, It's no Diſgrace unto him in the Opinion of Men that love Learning and Virtue, that he was the Son of Increaſe Mather, the well known Teacher of a Church in Boſton, and Rector of Harvard-Colledge in New-England. What Gregory Nazianzen judged not improper to be ſaid about his yet ſurviving Father, in his Funeral Oration upon his Deceaſed Brother, I may without any culpable Adulation on this Occaſion, ſay of him, He is another Aaron or Moſes in the Houſe of his God.

Our Nathanael was born on July 6th. 1669. which I find him recording in his Diary, when he was fourteen Years old, with ſuch an humble Reflection thereupon, How little have I improved this time to the Honour of God as I ſhould have done! He wanted not the Cares of his Father to beſtow a good Education on him, which God bleſſed for the Reſtraining him from the lewd and wild Courſes by which too many Children are betimes reſigned up to the poſſeſſion of the Devil, and for the Furniſhing him with ſuch Accompliſhments as give an Ornament of Grace unto the Head of Youth. He did Live where he might learn, and under the continual Prayers and Pains of ſome that looked after him, he became an Inſtance of unuſual Induſtry, and no Common Piety; ſo that when he dyed, which was Octob. 17th. 1688. he was become in leſs than twenty Years, An Old Man without gray Hairs upon him.

To thoſe Two Heads, with a ſorrowful Addition of a Third, I ſhall confine my Account of this Young Man; in which the Picture to be now drawn, has nothing but the Truth, and at leaſt ſo much of Life in it, as to look upon every Reader, yea, ſpeak unto every young Reader, ſaying, Go and Do likewiſe.

I. His INDUSTRY.

He was an hard Student, and quickly became a good Scholar. From his very Childhood, his Book was perhaps as dear to him as his Play, and hence he grew particularly acquainted with Church-Hiſtory, at a rate not uſual in thoſe that were above thrice as Old as He. But when he came to ſomewhat more of Youth, his Tutor (who now writes) was forced often to chide him to his Recreations, but never that I remember for them. To be Bookiſh was natural unto him, and to be plodding eaſie and pleaſant rather than the contrary. Indeed he afforded not ſo much a Pattern as a Caution to young Students; for it may be truly written on his Grave, Study kill'd him. When One told the Excellent Mr. Charnock, that if he Studied ſo much it would Coſt him his Life; he replied, Why? It coſt Chriſt his Life to ſave, and what if it coſt me my Life to ſtudy for Him? Our Studious Nathanael was of this Diſpoſition. The Marks and Works of a Studious Mind were to be diſcerned in him, even as he walked in the Streets; and his Candle would burn after Midnight, until, as his own Phraſe for it was, He thought his Bones would all fall aſunder. This was among the Paſſages once noted in his Diary.

10 M. 26 D. three quarters of an Hour after 12 at Night.

'After the many weariſom Hours, Days, Months, nay, Years, that I have ſpent in humane Literature; and after my many toilſom Studies in thoſe Hours, when the General Silence of every Houſe in Town, proclaimed it high time for me to put a ſtop unto my working Mind, and urged me to afford ſome Reſt unto my Eyes, which have been almoſt put by my Intenſeneſs on my Studies; after theſe, I ſay, and when I am ready to do it: Oh! how unwilling am I to do it, conſidering; How little have I ſerved God in the Day!

While he thus devoured Books, it came to paſs that Books devoured him. His weak Body would not bear the Toils and Hours, which he uſed himſelf unto; and his Neglect of Moderate Exerciſe, joyned with his Exceſs of Immoderate Lucubration, ſoon deſtroyed the Digeſtion which his Blood ſhould have had in the laſt Elaboration of it; by that time ſixteen Winters had ſnow'd upon him, he began to be diſtempered, with many Pains and Ails, eſpecially in ſome of his Joynts, which at laſt were the Gates of Death unto him; not without ſuch very afflictive Touches of Melancholy, too, as made him ſometimes to write himſelf Deodatus Melancholicus. This was his Way of Living, ſhall I ſay, or of Dying? And the Succeſs of this Diligence was according to the Temper of it, Great. When he was but twelve Years old he was admitted into the Colledge, by ſtrict Examiners: And many Months after this paſſed not, before he had accurately gone over all the Old Teſtament in Hebrew, as well as the New in Greek, beſides his going through all the Liberal Sciences, before many other Deſigners for Philoſophy do ſo much as begin to look into them. He commenced Batchelour of Arts at the Age of ſixteen, and in the Act entertained the Auditory with an Hebrew Oration, which gave a good Account of the Academical Affairs among the ancient Jews. Indeed the Hebrew Language was become ſo Familiar with him, as if (to uſe the Expreſſion which one had in an Ingenious Elegy upon his Death) he had apprehended, it ſhould quickly become the only Language, which he ſhould have Occaſion for. His Second Degree, after ſeven Years being in the Colledge, he took juſt before Death gave him a Third, which laſt was a promotion infinitely beyond either of the former. He then maintained for his Poſition, Datur vacuum; and by his Diſcourſes upon it (as well as by other Memorials and Experiments left behind him in Manuſcripts) he gave a Specimen of his Intimate Acquaintance with the Corpuſcularian (and only right) Philoſophy. By this time he had informed himſelf like another Mirandula, and was admirably capable of arguing about, almoſt every Subject that fell within the Concernments of a Learned Man. The Difficulties of the Mathematicks he had particularly overcome, and the abſtruſe parts both of Arithmetick and Aſtronomy, were graſped in his Knowledge.

His Early Almanacks and Calculations do ſomething, but the MSS Adverſaria, left behind him in his Cloſet, much more, ſpeak ſuch Attainments in him. His Chronology was exact unto a Wonder, and the State of Learning with the Names and Works of Learned Men, in the World, this American Wilderneſs hath few that underſtand as well as he. Beſides all this, for the vaſt Field of Theology, both Didactick and Polemick, it is hardly credible how little of it his Travel had left unknown. Rabbinick Learning he had likewiſe no ſmall meaſure of; and the Queſtions referring unto the Scriptures which Philology is converſant about, came under a very Critical Notice with him. Indeed he was a Perſon of but few Words, and his Words with his Looks, made the Treaſure in him wholly unſuſpected by Strangers to him; yet they that were intimately acquainted with him, can atteſt unto the Veracity of him that giveth this Deſcription; and there are no mean Perſons who will profeſs with Admiration, That they could ſcarce encounter him in any Theme of Diſcourſe, which he was not very notably acquainted with.

But the Bark is now ſplit in which all theſe Riches were ſtowed. A Spaniſh Wrack hath not more Silver than the Grave of ſuch a Young Man hath Learning buried in it. Indeed theſe things, Mortis Erunt; perhaps they dyed with him: But there is a more Immortal Thing to be obſerved in him; and that is,

II. His PIETY.

Tho' a fine Carriage was the leaſt thing that ever he affected, yet a Good Nature made him dear to thoſe that were familiar with him. He was always very obliging and officious, and more ready to do, than others could be to ask a good turn at his Hands: But he was above all happy, by being Early in pure Religion.

The Common Effects of ſuch a Pious Education, as the Family in which he lived afforded unto him, were ſeen even in his Childhood; and ſecret Prayer became very betimes one of his Infant Exerciſes. He does in his MSs. particularly take notice of a Scripture Copy ſet for him when he learned to Write, as a thing that had much Efficacy on him; but when he was Twelve (or more) Years old, more powerful Conviction did the Spirit of God ſet home upon him than he had been uſed unto; ſome Records therefore I find in his Papers, with this Clauſe in the Head of the Account, Rejoyce, O my Soul, for the Lord hath dealt bountifully with thee. Now it was that he allowed his Pen to write theſe, among other Expreſſions of his Trouble about his Eſtate.

Feb. 19. 1682.

'What ſhall I do? What ſhall I do to be ſav'd? Without a Chriſt I am undone, undone, undone for Evermore! O Lord, let me have Chriſt, tho' I lye in the Mire for ever! O for a Chriſt! O for a Chriſt! a Chriſt! Lord, Give me a Chriſt or I dye!

It was now another of his regiſtred Meditations.

'I have been in a great Heſitancy, whether I ſhould chooſe Jeſus Chriſt for my Prophet, Prieſt and King, with all his Inconveniencies, to take up my Croſs and follow him: Wherefore I do now take him as mine; my whole Chriſt, and my only Chriſt; and I am reſolved to ſeek him. All that I have ſhall be at his Service, and all my Members, and all my Power, ſhall endeavour his Glory.

And yet again there were theſe Conſiderations in his Mind.

'Had I not better ſeek the Lord Chriſt, while I have a Time of Proſperity and Peace, while he offers himſelf to me, ſaying, Come unto me, and I will ſave thee, and lay all thy Burdens upon me, and I will ſuſtain thee: Than in Affliction to cry and not be heard? when he ſtretcheth forth his Hand and ſays, Believe on me and thou ſhalt be ſaved; and now to Day he offers himſelf, ſhall I refuſe, and ſay, Lord, To Morrow? No ſurely. And theſe pathetical Groans then likewiſe got a Room in his Papers.

'O that I had a Chriſt! O that I had Him who is the Delight of my Soul! Then, O then I ſhould be perfectly Bleſſed, and want no Food that would make me ſo!

This is a Copy of the Paſſages then recorded in this Young Believers Diary.

Thus did he now labour to affect his own Soul with his own State, and leave things no more at peradventures between God and him. He read many ſavoury Books about Faith, and Repentance, and Converſion, and he tranſcribed many Notes therefrom, not reſting ſatisfied within himſelf, until he had ſome Experience of a true Regeneration. Among other Workings of his Heart at this Age, his Papers have ſuch things as theſe.

'Reaſons for my ſpeedy cloſing with Jeſus Chriſt.

'Firſt, It's the Command of Jeſus Chriſt, that I ſhould come unto him.

'Secondly, Jeſus Chriſt Invites me alſo in Mat 11. 28. Come unto me.

'Thirdly, He hath laid me under many Obligations to turn unto him, in that he hath recover'd me from Sickneſs ſo often, and now given me a curious Study.

'Fourthly, In that I have vow'd unto the Lord, if he would do ſo and ſo for me, I would make a Solemn Covenant with him, and endeavour to ſerve him.

And again elſewhere.

'O that God would help me to ſeek Him while I am Young! O that he would give unto me me His Grace! However, I will lay my ſelf down at his Feet. If he Save me, I ſhall be happy for ever; if he Damn me, I muſt juſtifie him. O thou Son of God, have mercy on me! I know not what to ſay, but I will take thee at thy Word: Thou ſayſt, Come unto me; my Soul anſwers, Lord, at thy Command I will come.

He thus continued following hard after God, enjoying and anſwering many Strivings of his Holy Spirit until he was about Fourteen Years old.

In this time he did not a little acquaint himſelf with profitable Godlineſs, being frequent and fervent in his Prayers to God upon all Occaſions, and careful not only to hear Sermons, but alſo to conſider after them what Improvement he ſhould make of what he heard. Not only his Prayers, but his Praiſes too now took Notice of even the ſmalleſt Affairs before him. I know not whether you can ſee any thing Childiſh, I am ſure I ſee ſomething ſerious, in a paſſage or two that I ſhall fetch out of his Diary, written when he was was about Thirteen teen Years old: On March 13. he wrote, This day I received of my Father, that Famous Work, The Biblia Polyglotta, for which I deſire to praiſe the Name of God: Again on June 29. he wrote, This day my Brother gave me Schindlers Lexicon, a Book for which I had not only longed much, but alſo prayed unto God: Bleſſed be the Lord's Name for it. The Thoughts of Death alſo now found a Lodging in his Heart, and he rebuked himſelf becauſe he had been ſo much without them. Tho' at this Age for the moſt part, Perſons think of any thing, every thing more than of their dying Day. And his Writings diſcovered him to be peculiarly affected with that Ancient Hiſtory (or Apologue) of him who after a diſſolute and ungodly Youth, going to repent in Age, heard that Voice from Heaven to him, Des illi Furfurem cui dediſti Farinam: The Devil had thy Flower, and thou ſhalt not bring thy Bran to me.

Self-Examination was alſo become one of his Employments; and once particularly in one of his Diaries, he does thus expreſs himſelf.

April 8. 1683.

'This Morning I was much caſt down with the Senſe of my Vileneſs. I Examin'd,

'I. What Sins I had that were not mortified: 1. My Sin of Pride. 2. My Sin of Unthankfulneſs. 3. My not improving the Means of Grace, as I ought to do.

'II. What Graces I find need of. 1. Converting and Regenerating Grace. 2. Humiliation for my many Sins againſt ſuch a good God as the Lord is.

'III. What Mercies I had received, for which I deſire to bleſs the Lord's Name. 1. He hath given me to be born of Godly Parents. 2. I have always had the Means of Grace lengthen'd out unto me. 3. The Lord Lord hath graciouſly pleaſed to give me ſome Anſwers of Prayer 1. As to the lengthning out of my Health. 2. As to the Increaſe of my Library, What ſhall I render to the Lord for all his Loving Kindneſs towards me? I reſolved to Dedicate my ſelf wholly to God and his Service.

And he did accordingly.

This Year did not roll about, before he had in a manner very ſolemn entred into Covenant with God. This weighty and awful thing was not raſhly done by him, or in a ſudden Flaſh and Pang of Devotion: He Thought, he Read, he Wrote, and he Prayed not a little before this Glorious Tranſaction between God and him, and upon mature Deliberation, he judged it moſt adviſeable for him to make his Covenant with God as Explicit as Writing and Signing could render it; that ſo it might leave the more Impreſſion upon his Heart and Life, and be an Evidence likewiſe, which in Temptation or Deſertion he might have recourſe unto: Wherefore he ſet apart a Time for (I think) ſecret Faſting and Prayer before the Lord, and then behold how this Young Man counting it high time for him to be bound out unto ſome Service, took a courſe for it: He ſubſcribed an holy Covenant, of which this was the Matter, this the Form.

'The Covenant between God and my Soul, renewed, confirmed and ſigned, Nov. 22. 1683.

'Whereas not only the Commands of God [who hath often called upon me, by his Word preached, to give up my ſelf, both Body and Soul, to be at his Diſpoſal, which calls by the publick Miniſtry, were enough to engage me unto this] but alſo the Chriſtian Religion which I profeſs, and my Baptiſm in which I took the Lord to be my God, and promiſed to renounce the World, the Fleſh, and the Devil, and to dedicate my ſelf unto the Service, VVork and VVill of God, do bind me hereunto; In that God is ſuch a God as deſerves this, yea, infinitely more than this, at my hands; my Creator, the Fountain of my Being; my Preſerver, my Benefactor, my Lord, my Soveraign, my Judge; He in whoſe Hands my Life, my Breath, and all my Concerns are; He that doth protect me from all Dangers, and ſupply me in all Wants, ſupport me under all Burdens, and direct me in all Streights; He alone that can make me happy or miſerable; He alone that can ſave me or damn me; He alone that can give inward Peace and Joy, that is my Friend, my God; In that, Self-Dedication is the Creatures Advancement; theſe Firſt-Fruits, if in Sincerity, putting upon me a Gloriouſneſs and Excellency.

'In that Felicity hereafter depends upon my dedicating of my ſelf unto God now.

'In that this is the higheſt piece of Gratitude I am capable of expreſſing unto God, and I know no better way to Obey the Will of God, than firſt to give up my ſelf unto him.

'And whereas the Mercies which the Lord hath been pleaſed graciouſly to beſtow upon me, are ſo many, that even bare Morality, doth ſhew me that I can never enough requite one that hath done ſo much for me, except by Giving up my ſelf wholly to him.

'Whereas God hath given me a Godly Father and Mother.

[1674]

'In that when I was like to dye, being twice ſick of a Feaver, God was pleaſed to bleſs means for my Recovery, and lengthen out the Thread of my Life.

[1675]

'Whereas, when I by an Accident fell down, and had like to have been deprived of the uſe of my Tongue, God was in his good Providence graciouſly pleaſed to give me the uſe of it.

[1678]

'Whereas, when I was ſick of the Small-Pox, God was pleaſed to bleſs Means for my Recovery.

'Whereas, then I made Promiſes unto God, that if he would give me my Health, I would endeavour to become a New-Creature, and he hath done ſo for theſe five Years: And whereas God hath of late been beſtowing many and wonderful Mercies upon me, What can I do leſs than give up my ſelf wholly to him?

'Which now I do.

'And, O Lord God, I beſeech thee to accept of thy poor Prodigal, now proſtrating of himſelf before thee. I confeſs, O Lord, I have fallen from thee by my Iniquity, and am by Nature a Son of Hell; but of thy Infinite Grace 'thou haſt promiſed Mercy to me in Chriſt, if I will but turn unto thee with all my Heart: Therefore upon the Call of thy Goſpel, I come in, and from the bottom of my Heart I renounce all thy Enimies; with whom I confeſs I have wickedly ſided againſt thee, firmly Covenanting with thee, not to allow my ſelf in any known Sin, but conſcientiouſly to uſe all Means which I know thou haſt preſcribed, for the utter Deſtruction of all my Corruptions. And whereas I have inordinately let out my Affections upon the World, I here reſign my Heart unto thee that made it; humbly proteſting before thy Glorious Majeſty, that it is the firm Reſolution of my Heart (and that I do unfeignedly deſire Grace from thee, that when thou ſhalt call me thereunto, I may put in Practice my Reſolution) through thine Aſſiſtance, to forſake all that is dear unto me in the World, rather than to turn from thee to the Ways of Sin; and that I will watch againſt all its Temptations, whether of Proſperity or Adverſity, leſt they ſhould withdraw my Heart from thee, beſeeching thee to help me.

'I renounce all my own Righteouſneſs, and acknowledge that of my ſelf I am helpleſs and undone, and without Righteouſneſs.

'And whereas, of thy bottomleſs Mercy, thou haſt offer'd to accept of me, and to be reconciled to me, and to be my God through Chriſt, if I would accept of thee, I do this Day avouch thee to be the Lord my God. I do here take the Lord Jehovah, Father, Son and Holy Ghoſt, for my Portion and Chief Good, and do give up my ſelf Body and Soul for thy Servant, promiſing to endeavour to ſerve thee in Righteouſneſs and Holineſs. I do here alſo on the bended Knees of my Soul, accept of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt as the only and living Way, by which Sinners may have acceſs to thee, and do here joyn my ſelf in a Marriage-Covenant with him. O Lord Jeſus, I come to thee, hungry, poor, miſerable, blind and naked, and a moſt loathſome Creature, a condemned Malefactor: Who am I, that I ſhould be married unto the King of Glory!

'I do accept of thee for my Head and Husband, and embrace thee in all thy Offices. I renounce my own Worthineſs, and do chooſe thee the Lord my Righteouſneſs. I do renounce my own Wiſdom, and do take thine for my Guide. I take thy Will for my Will, and thy VVord for my Law. I do here willingly put my Neck under thy Yoke; I do ſubſcribe to all thy Laws as Holy, Juſt and Good; and do promiſe to take them as the Rule of my Thoughts, VVords and Actions; but becauſe I am ſubject to many Failings through Frailty; I do here proteſt, here before thee, that unallowed Miſcarriages, contrary to the conſtant bent of my Heart, ſhall not diſanull this Everlaſting Covenant.

Nathanael Mather.

It may be juſtly taken for granted, that ſuch a Work as this, would have an Influence into his Converſation afterwards; and ſo it had, producing in him, a Converſation which became the Goſpel of Chriſt. He kept waiting upon God, not only in the Family, but alſo under the Miniſtry of two that were a-kin unto him; namely, his Father and his Brother, whereby the Grace thus begun in him was not little cheriſhed and promoted: And unto all known Sins he now kept ſaying, as I find once in Short-hand written by him.

To my Luſts.

I have had Communion with you all this while, but I dare not have ſo any longer: VVherefore I renounce all Communion with you any more; I will cleave to the God that made me. But a Year or two after this, it was with him, as I have obſerved it is too commonly with ſuch as are Converted betimes unto God. And unhappy gradual Apoſtacy carried him aſide from thoſe Degrees of Seriouſneſs and Intenſeneſs in Divine Things, which he had been uſed unto: 'Tis poſſible an Entanglement in a Familiarity with ſome that were no better than they ſhould be, did abate of the good Savour which had been upon him, and decoy him by inſenſible Steps to ſome Vanities (tho' not to any ſcandalous Immoralities) that were diſadvantageous to him. For divers Months he ſeemed ſomewhat, yet not totally, much leſs finally, forſaken of that VViſdom and Vertue which he had before been an Example of; but the good Spirit of God will not let go his Intereſt in a Soul of which he hath taken a ſaving Hold. This Young Man ſoon entertained juſt Reſentments of his own Declenſions, and it was impoſſible for the moſt Badger-tooth'd Malice in the World to aggravate any of his Errors half ſo much as he did himſelf in his own Repentance for them. In the Year 1685. God viſited him with ſore Terrors and Horrors in his wounded Soul, the anguiſh whereof he thought intollerable; yet he made not his Condition known to any Body all the while. He could ſay, My Complaint is not to Man, but he made it unto the Lord; This poor Man cryed and the Lord heard, and delivered him out of Diſtreſſes. He arrived in time unto ſettlement and renewal of his Peace with God: He confeſſed and bewailed his own Sins before the Lord, and declared his Deteſtation of them, and applied himſelf unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt for Salvation from them all. Good Terms being thus eſtabliſh'd between the Almighty Lord and this Immortal Soul, he maintained, I think, a conſtant and an even VValk with God, until he dyed. I find now that Language in his MSS: Let me be as active a Servant of Chriſt, as I was of Satan heretofore. For more than the three laſt years of his Life, he lived at a ſtrange rate for Holineſs and Gravity, and retired Devotions. He read Mr. Scudder's Chriſtians daily VValk, and Dr. Owen of Spritual Mindedneſs, and had a reſtleſs raging Agony in his Mind until the Methods of Religion adviſed by thoſe Worthy Men, were Exemplified in his own Behaviour. 'Tis a Note in one of his Diaries.

'O my great Unprofitableneſs under the means of Grace! I have cauſe to bleſs God for ever for the Writings of that never enough to be admired

‘ mired and loved by me, Dr. Reynolds, and for ‘ the Light I have received thereby, concerning
‘ the Sinfulneſs of Sin; as alſo that Excellent
‘ Book of him whom I ſhall always honour, Dr.
‘ Owen of Spiritual-mindedneſs, and Mr. Scudder's
‘ Chriſtians daily VValk, by which three Books
‘ I have profited more than by any other (S.
‘ Scripturis exceptis) in the World.

He was at firſt ſurprized at the meaſure of Spiritual-mindedneſs, without which that Great Saint Dr. Owen, apprehends the Life and Peace of Souls to labour under Prejudices; and he thought a Mind ſwallowed up in ſuch Heavenly Frames and Works as were needful thereunto, almoſt wholly to be deſpair'd of; until (as himſelf a few Hours before he dyed ſaid unto me) he deem'd he ſaw an Inſtance of ſuch a Walk with God, not very far from the Place of his Abode: To which purpoſe his reſerv'd Papers have a large Diſcourſe, of which this is in the Concluſion: There might be a greater Progreſs in Religion, than is commonly thought for. What have I Examples for, but to imitate them? Abraham is fam'd for believing ſo ſtrongly, when he had no Example before him: Let me try and ſee, whether I having ſuch Opportunities may not arrive to as high a pitch in Chriſtianity, as any that I have known. He then in the Strength and thro' the Love of God ſet himſelf into a way of ſtrict, ſecret, laborious Devotion; whereby tho' none but God and He fill'd the Theatre, which he acted upon, he would be in the Fear of the Lord all the Day long. He withdrew from the Delights of this World, and gave himſelf up to an aſſiduous Contemplation of God and Chriſt, and a ſedulous Endeavour after utmoſt Conformity unto him: Thus he kept abounding in the Work of the Lord, until three Years of wonderful Holineſs had ripened him for Eternal Happineſs.

My Account of him will be an Unfiniſhed Piece, unleſs all the Enſuing Strokes go to make it up. Theſe Things he was Exemplary for.

Firſt, He was one that walked by RULE. He was very Studious to learn the VVay of Converſing with God in every Duty, and there was a Rule which he attended ſtill unto.

In his private Papers, I find a wiſe Collection of Rules, by which he governed himſelf in the ſeveral Duties of Chriſtianity, and in all the Seaſons and Stations of his Life. He conſulted the beſt Authors for Inſtruction in the Affairs of Practical Religion, and not into Paper only, but into Action to be tranſcribed what he moſt approved; in all which The will of God was the bright Pole-Star by which he ſteer'd his Courſe.

The Reader ſhall enjoy (and O that he would follow) two of this Young Man's Directories. One of them was this.

‘ I. O that I might lead a Spiritual Life! Where‘ fore let me regulate my Life by the VVord of ‘ God, and by ſuch Scriptures as theſe.
‘ 1. For regulating my Thoughts, Jer. 4. 14.
‘ Iſa. 55. 7. Mal. 3 17. Pſal. 104 34. Phil. 4. 8.
‘ Prov. 23. 26. Deut. 15. 9. Eccleſ. 10. 20. Prov.
‘ 24. 9. Mat. 9. 4. Zec. 8. 17.
‘ 2. For regulating my Affections, Col. 3. 2, 5.
‘ Gal. 5. 24.
‘ For my Delight, Pſal. 1. 2. Pſal. 37. 5. For ‘ my Joy, Phil 4. 4. Pſal. 43. 4. My Deſire, Iſa.
‘ 26. 8, 9. Ezek. 7. 16. My Love, Mat. 22. 37.
‘ Pſal. 119 97. My Hatred, Pſal. 97. 10. My ‘ Fear, Luke 12. 4, 5. My Hope, Pſal. 39. 7. My ‘ Truſt, Pſal. 62. 8. Iſa. 26. 4.
‘ 3. For regulating my Speech, Eph. 4. 29. Col.
‘ 4. 6. Deut. 6. 6, 7. Pſal. 119. 46. Pſal. 71. 8,
‘ 24. Prov. 31. 26.
‘ 4. For regulating my VVork, Tit, 3. 8. 2 Tim.
‘ 2. 12. 1 Tim. 5. 10. Titus 2. 14. Mat. 5. 47
‘ 1 Tim. 6. 8. Rev. 3. 2. Rom. 13. 12. Acts 26

Another of them was form'd into an Hymn, the ſinging of which might produce freſher and ſtronger Efforts of Soul towards the Thing that is good.

It ſhall be here inſerted.

II. ‘ Lord, what ſhall I return unto ‘ Him from whom all Mercies flow?

‘ (I.) To me to live, it Chriſt ſhall be
‘ For all I do I'll do for Thee.

‘ (II.) My Queſtion ſhall be oft beſide,
‘ How thou may'ſt moſt be Glorify'd?

‘ (III.) I will not any Creature love,
‘ But in the Love of Thee above.

‘ (IV.) Thy Will I will embrace for mine,
‘ And every Management of thine
‘ Shall pleaſe me. (V.) A Conformity
‘ To thee ſhall be my Aim and Eye.

‘ (VI.) Ejaculations ſhall aſcend
‘ Not ſeldom from me. (VII.) I'll attend
‘ Occaſional Reflections, and
‘ Turn all to Gold that comes to hand.

‘ (VIII) And in particular among
‘ My Cares, I'll try to make my Tongue
‘ A Tree of Life, by ſpeaking all
‘ As be accountable who ſhall.

‘ (IX.) But laſt, nay firſt of all, I will
‘ Thy Son my Surety make, and ſtill
‘ Implore him, that he would me bleſs
‘ With Strength as well as Righteouſneſs.

Beſides theſe Rules which concerned his whole Walk, he treaſur'd up many more, that referr'd to this and that Step in it; and it was the predominant Care and Watch of his Heart, not to tread awry? Thus one might ſee a Skilful Chriſtian in him. And as he was deſirous to live by Precept, ſo he was to live by Promiſe too.

He fell into a particular Conſideration, how to improve the Promiſes of God in all the Occaſions of Life; which is indeed one of the moſt ſanctifying Exerciſes in the World.

It was a Propoſal which I find he made unto himſelf.

‘ Let me ſalute theſe Promiſes once a Day.

‘ 1. For ſupplying the Wants of the Day, Phil. 4. 19.

‘ 2. For Growth in Grace, Hoſ. 14. 5.

‘ 3. For ſubduing my Sins, Mic. 7. 19.

‘ 4. For Succeſs in my Undertakings, Pſal. 1. 3.

‘ 5. For turning all the Events of the Day for good, Rom. 8. 28.

‘ 6. For Audience of my Prayers, Joh. 14. 13, 14.

‘ 7. For Strength to manage all the Work of the Day, Zech. 10. 12.

‘ 8. For Direction in Difficulty, Pſal. 32. 8.

‘ 9. For Life Eternal, Luke 12. 31. Joh. 3. 16.

Beſides theſe two, Mat. 11. 28. and Iſa. 44. 3.

Certainly that Man muſt quickly grow another Enoch, who does thus Walk with God.

Secondly, He was one that lived in PRAYER. He was oft and long in the Mount with God: It was his Cuſtom every Day to Enter into his Cloſet, and ſhut his Door, and pray to his Father in ſecret. And I gueſs from ſome of his Writings, that he did thus no leſs than thrice a Day, when he met with no Obſtruction in it: Nor did he ſlubber over his Prayers with haſty Amputations, but wreſtle in them for a good part of an Hour together.

It was a moſt refreſhing Communion with God, which his Devotions brought him ſometimes unto. Thus in one of his Diaries.

Dec. 10.

In the Margin he wrote, Remember.

‘ I prayed earneſtly unto God, earneſtly petitioning that Jeſus Chriſt might be my Compleat Redeemer. There was immediately Something that did as it were perſwade me it ſhould be ſo.

Again, Aug. 19.

‘ My Thoughts were ſome little while buſied about the Condeſcenſion of Chriſt in taking of humane Nature on him; but for the moſt part in Ejaculations, and Acts of Faith on a Crucified (ah! ſweet Word) Jeſus. I ſaw I gained not much by thoſe: Wherefore I addreſſed my ſelf to ſolemn Prayer, and had ſome Aſſurance in it.

Once more, Aug. 20.

‘ I was much affected in Prayer, and exerciſed (I hope) many Acts of Faith, and Love, and Delight in God. I ſeveral times was breaking off, but I was as it were conſtrain'd to go on in the Duty with much Enlargement. Lord, Anſwer me for the ſake of Chriſt.

Thus under the Fig-tree did our Lord Jeſus often behold this Nathanael; yea, unto Prayer he became ſo habituated, that while others can ſleep in Prayer, he ſometimes would pray in Sleep. He records it among his Experiences, that upon Aſſaults of Imagined Temptations, when he has been aſleep, he has quickly been at Prayer; and ſo cauſed the Phantaſms to leave annoying of him.

And Extraordinary Prayer was alſo with him not altogether Extraordinary. Tho' he were a Bottle that ſeemed incapable of holding it, yet this Wine agreed with him very well. As Young as he was, he knew the Myſtery of a Soul fatning by faſting, and thriving by hungring and thirſting after Righteouſneſs. He was very inquiſitive after the right way to manage a Day of Faſting and Prayer, and he would ſometimes keep ſuch a Day. On ſuch a Day it was his Cuſtom to make a very particular and penitent Confeſſion of all the Sins that he could perceive himſelf guilty of; and renew his Covenant with the Holy One of Iſrael; to this End, he had by him in writing a large Catalogue of Things forbidden and required in the Commandments of God, which was the Glaſs in which he then viewed his Ways; and having found what Achans might procure Trouble to him, he then fell to ſtoning of them. One may ſhape ſome Conjecture at his Humiliations, by the Indignation with which he ſpoke, and wrote of the Vanities which his Childhood had. ‘ I came into the World (ſaith he in one of the Papers penn'd by him on a Day of ſecret Faſting and Prayer, October the 17th. 1685.) without the Image of the Holy God on my Soul; my Underſtanding, my Will, my Affections, and my whole Soul were altogether depraved, and wounded. When very Young I went aſtray from God, and my mind was altogether taken with Vanities and Follies; ſuch as the remembrance of them doth greatly abaſe my Soul within me. Of the manifold Sins which then I was guilty of, none ſo ſticks upon me, as that being very young, I was whitling on the Sabbath-day; and for fear of being ſeen, I did it behind the door. A great Reproach of God! A Specimen of that Atheiſm that I brought into the World with me!

This was more than the more meagre and feeble ſort of Chriſtians, though much older than he, are us'd to do. But paulo majora! There was a Sublimer Way of Drawing near to God, which he was not willing to leave unattempted. He underſtood that ſecret Days of Thankſgiving had not been unpractiſed by ſome whom he deſigned to imitate; and therefore he would make ſome Eſſays for ſuch an Intimate Fruition of God, and generous Devotion to him, as would fill ſuch Days as theſe.

Hence this I find among the Records of his Soul: ——

‘ Reſolved, To ſet apart every two Months, a Day for Solemn Examination and Meditation, to humble my ſelf; and every two Months to keep a Day of Private Thankſgiving.

But though his Prayers were chiefly in, yet they were not confined to his Cloſet. There were divers private Praying Meetings of younger People in North-Boſton, which he viſited as often as he could; and one of thoſe might peculiarly be called His. Yea, it was his Deſire, though with as little Aim to be ſeen of Men as could be, to ſupport all ſuch Opportunities of Good among them, that were of the ſame Age with him.

Wherefore I find this among the Notes in his Diary:

‘ Queſt. What ſhall I do for God?

‘ Anſw. It was ſuggeſted to me, to get ſome of my Acquaintance to ſpend ſome while every Friday night in Prayer, for the Succeſs of the Work of Grace in New-England, eſpecially in Boſton, on the Souls of the Riſing Generation.

‘ Let me propound this to ſome ſerious devout young Perſons.

Thus was his Prayer as it were his Breath, and thus he was always fetching of it, until at laſt it expir'd in Eternal Praiſe.

Thirdly, He was one that Thought much of his GOD, and his END. There was a ſort of Heaven formed in the juſt Soul of this Young-man, by the Thoughts that were continually ſparkling there. He had an unpacifiable Diſſatisfaction at himſelf until good Thoughts were lodg'd in him, and vain ones were forced to gnaſh their Teeth, and melt away: Nothing would content him, but the bringing of his Thoughts into a Subjection to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Wherefore he chew'd much on the Excellent Sermon of Mr. Charnock about Thoughts; which he wrote out not only with his Hand, but in his Heart, and made it the very Mould of his Gracious Mind. There are none, but very Renew'd Souls, that are at great Pains in a Courſe of Meditation on the Things of God. Yet this Young-man, like another Iſaac, was grown very expert at it, and frequent in it. It was his manner in the Morning to meditate very ſeriouſly and fixedly upon ſome Truth, or ſome Text, for a good part of an Hour together. He had collected a good variety of Subjects and Scriptures to handle, in thus communing with himſelf, and went over more than a little Divinity in this transcendent Exerciſe. Sometimes, when thus he ſeparated himſelf to intermeddle with all Wiſdom, I find him committing his Thoughts, or ſome breviate of them, unto the durable Cuſtody of his Papers; from which Memoirs I will produce but an Inſtance or two of many.

Auguſt 16. 1685.

‘ Med. about, The Reaſon I have to love God; becauſe of what he has been to me, and what he is in himſelf. And I thought, is not God the Beſt Good? Surely then he is worthy to be my Laſt End. Has he not been ſhewing many Mercies to me? and what! ſhall I not give up my ſelf to Live unto God, becauſe of his Goodneſs to me? Much affected with the Thoughts of theſe Things: And, I hope, I cloſed with the Motion.

Again, October 1.

‘ I Meditated on that; If a Man does intend to be truly Religious, he muſt expect nothing but to ſave his Soul?

‘ But how can this be true?

‘ Muſt I loſe my Body altogether?

‘ Muſt I be willing that the Union between my Body and Soul ſhould for evermore be looſed?

‘ Muſt I be willing to be for ever without a Body? No, no.

‘ All that the Lord requires of me, is, to have my Body for a few Days or Years (a few I ſay, for they cannot be many) to be wholly at the Service of my Soul, and to be willing that the Union between thoſe two Mates, then ſhould be diſſolved; the Soul firſt taking its progreſs into everlaſting Bliſs; the Body being laid in the Duſt, to riſe at the Reſurrection, accompanying the Soul into its Eternal Felicity.

‘ My preſent Notion of this Thing is this:

‘ This Diſſolution of the Union between the Soul and Body, is but a Diſmiſſion of the Spirit into its Happineſs, after a weariſom Conflict here. And as long as it ſhall be beſt for me to be here, here I ſhall continue. Infinite Wiſdom is to be the Orderer of this; and it will be a grievous and ſhameful Reflection thereupon, for me to ſay, It will be better for me to live, than to dye, at ſuch a time when I am called thereunto.

‘ With my Body I muſt expect to loſe all the pleaſant Enjoyments of this World, Liberty, Library, Study and Relations. But yet neither ſhall I loſe thoſe. As for my Liberty, by True Religion, and by Dying for it too, when Need requires, I ſhall gain the only Liberty, even from the Body of Sin.

‘ As for my Library, if I dye for Chriſt, or in the Lord, I ſhall have no need of it. My Underſtanding ſhall be enough enlarged, and I ſhall not need to turn over Books for Learning. As for my Study (my Paradice) I ſhall have a better, a larger, and a more compleat than this.

‘ As for my Relations, thoſe of them that are truly pious, I ſhall only go before them; and if there ſhould be any of them not pious, the longer I ſhould ſtay with them here (if they continue impenitent) it would but make my Grief more intolerable, to think when I leave them, that I ſhall have no hopes to ſee them again for ever.

‘ But this is not all neither. ——

‘ My Body muſt be uſed as the Souls Inſtrument; and here all that Strength and Eaſe which I have, muſt be uſed for the Soul: And truly there is Reaſon enough for it, that ſo there may be Eternal Happineſs for both together.

‘ In Marriage, the Husband and Wife ſhould have the ſame Deſign. Would it not be inhumane, for the one to have a Deſign which tends to the Ruine of the other? Juſt ſo my Soul and Body ſhould have the ſame Deſign; and the Body being the more vile of the two, ſhould be ſubordinate to the Soul. And it is a neceſſary Disjunction, either the Body, the Strength, and Eaſe, and Members of it, muſt be uſed for the good, or for the Hurt of the Soul; for there is no Medium here.

‘ Let me then herein make my Body uſeful to my Soul, in accompliſhing all the good Deſigns of it, which it is capable of being intereſted in.

‘ Let me then herein make my Body uſeful to my Soul, in accompiſhing all the good Deſigns of it, which it is capable of being intereſted in.

‘ Nor is there is any thing elſe worth ſpeaking of, that muſt be foregone, except Health, and the Momentaneouſneſs of all bodily Torments, will make them very tolerable.

‘ My Reſolutions be.

‘ That I will not expect, by devoting my ſelf unto the Fear of God, to gain any thing as to my Body in this World.

‘ That through the Grace of Chriſt, I will uſe the Strength, Eaſe, and Health of my Body, yea, my whole Body in ſubordination to my Soul, in the Service of the Lord Jeſus.

With ſuch Meditations as theſe, he kept mellowing of his own Soul, and preparing it for the ſtate wherein Faith is turned into Sight.

But there was yet a more delightful and ſurprizing way of Thinking, after which he did aſpire. He conſidered, that the whole Creation was full of God; and that there was not a Leaf of Graſs in the Field, which might not make an Obſerver to be ſenſible of the Lord. He apprehended that the idle Minutes of our Lives were many more than a ſhort Liver ſhould allow: That the very Filings of Gold, and of Time, were exceeding precious; and, that there were little Fragments of Hours intervening between our more ſtated Buſineſſes, wherein Thoughts of God might be no leſs pleaſant than frequent with us.

The Elegant and Excellent Meditations of Sir William Waller had particularly affected him unto a commendable Emulation of them; and hence he did attempt to make even the more common and more trivial Occurrents of Humane Life, the Occaſions of Great Thoughts within him. He would with the Chymiſtry of Occaſional Reflections, diſtill ſublime Spirits from Earthly Bodies; and from the view of mean things, fill his nobly employed Mind with Leſſons and Prayers, which only the Father of Spirits was a Witneſs to.

Some of theſe his Occaſional Reflections I find in his private Papers; and of one or two for a Taſte, I will beſpeak the Reader's Acceptance.

Jan. 8. A. M.

‘ Being about to riſe, I felt the Cold in a manner extraordinary; which inclin'd me to ſeek more Warmth in my Bed before I roſe; but ſo extream was the Cold, that this was not feaſible: Wherefore I reſolved to dreſs my ſelf without any more ado; and ſo going to the Fire in my Cloaths, I ſoon became warm enough.

‘ Turn this, O my Soul, into an uſeful Meditation. There is a neceſſity of my riſing out of my Bed, the Bed of Security which I am under the Power of, and to live unto Chriſt, and to walk in the Light.

‘ In order hereunto, I muſt put on my poor Soul the Garments which are to be had from the Lord Jeſus To awaken me out of my Sleep, and my Security, I am to ſet before me the Sun, the Goſpel of the Sun of Righteouſneſs doth enlighten my Mind, and tell me, that I was before muffled up in Darkneſs; and that if I continued therein, I ſhould ſtarve and periſh. I am alſo taught, That when Men are convinced of their miſerable Condition, they will rather endeavour to Eaſe, and comfort and cheriſh themſelves by ſomething in themſelves, than put on the Spiritual Garments which the Lord Jeſus Chriſt has provided for them. An Evil to be by me avoided.

Again, another time.

‘ Upon Water taken from the Fire, I ſaw a Lukewarmneſs quickly ſeize; like the Frame of Spirit, which many Pretenders to Religion have after a glorious and affectionate Profeſſion of it. Of this ſort were ſome among the Laodiceans of old; which is exceedingly diſpleaſing to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: Whence it is that he ſaith, I will ſpew thee out of my Mouth. Let me endeavour to beware of this hateful and odious frame of Spirit; and let the contrary thereto be my Deſire, my Endeavour.

Once more.

‘ Among ſome Gentlemen that were ſitting in a Room illuminated with a Candle, one beginning to read unto us, there was another Candle brought unto him, for his aſſiſtance in it. Which afforded me ſuch a Meditation as this:

‘ That thoſe who are to be Teachers of others, have need of as much Light again as ordinary Chriſtians have. They, if any, need a double Portion of the Gifts that are in other Men; and the Helps of Knowledge that other Perſons have, they much more ſhould be furniſh'd withal.

‘ It was not becauſe they had better Eyes than him whoſe Office it was to read, that they needed but One Candle, when he had Two provided for him; but the Work incumbent on him, and expected from him was the Occaſion of it.

But I deſign little more than a Confirmation with an Illuſtration of my Hiſtory, for which a touch or two upon every Article will ſerve. I am now to add, That this Young Man had a principal Regard unto the Scriptures for the Subjects of his Meditations, and he was very expenſive of his Thoughts on the Book of God. He was daily digging in the ſacred Mines, and with delight he fetched thence Riches better than thoſe of both the India's; and he could ſay, O how I love thy Law! it is my Meditation every Day!

Even in the time of his Mortal Sickneſs, he was very angry at himſelf, if he had not heard a Portion of the Bible read unto him from Day to Day.

Once when he was near his End, a good part of a Day having paſs'd before he had enjoyed his Meal of Scripture; he ſaid unto his Siſter with ſome impatience, Alas! what an ungodly Life do I lead! pray come and read my Bible to me; and read me the forty ninth Pſalm. Indeed he read the Scripture not curſorily, but very deliberately and conſiderately; and as an Effect of his doing ſo, he could give ſuch an Account of the Difficulties in it, as the moſt not only of Chriſtians, but of Divines too, would judge an Attainment extraordinary. Not long before he dyed, he had read over all the large and great Annotations on the Bible, lately publiſhed by Mr. Pool, and ſome other Non-conformiſt Miniſters; but having diſpatched thoſe two Noble Folio's, he ſaid unto one that was intimate with him, Thus have I read the Bible, but I have now learnt a better way! And that way was this. He would oblige himſelf in reading to fetch a Note and a Prayer out of every Verſe in all the Bible; to dwell upon every Verſe until it had afforded at leaſt one Obſervation, and one Ejaculation to him.

He imagined that an incredible deal both of Truth and Grace, would in this way make its impreſſion upon his Mind (beſides what Exerciſe of Wit it muſt have call'd for) and ſo moſt certainly it would have done; but before he had made much Progreſs in it, the Chariots of God fetcht him away to that place, in which a Jeſus is a Bible to the there perfect Spirits of the Righteous.

Such a thinking Perſon was he; and yet after ſo many kind of Thoughts in the Day, he could not reſt a Night quietly, unleſs he compos'd himſelf for ſleeping by thinking a little more.

He knew that no better a Man than one of the Moral Heathens propounded a Nocturnal Self-Examination, as a part and cauſe of no little Wiſdom, and that much more a ſober Chriſtian ſhould endeavour to maintain a good Underſtanding of himſelf, by ſuch Nightly Recollections. Wherefore before the Slumbers of the Evening, this Young Man would put three General Queſtions to himſelf, with divers particular ones that were ſubordinate thereunto. The Queſtions were,

Queſtion 1.

What has God's Mercy to me been this Day?

Here he conſidered what Favours God had newly ſmil'd upon his Inward, or his Outward Man withal.

Queſtion 2.

What has my Carriage to God been this Day?

Here he conſidered what Frames, and Words and Works, and what Snares and Sins he had newly been concerned with.

Queſtion 3.

If I dye this Night, is my Immortal Spirit ſafe?

Of this he judged by his Cloſure with God, as his beſt good, and laſt end, and with Chriſt as his Prophet, and his Prieſt, and his King, and by his Reſolution always to be a Witneſs for the Lord, and an Enemy to every Sin: Tho' ſometimes he would with a more large and long Attention Examine his own Hopes of Eternal Happineſs, for which purpoſe he had in Writing by him, his Bundles of Marks and Signs which teſtifie a Man to be born of God. When he had thought on theſe things, he was able to lay himſelf down in peace and ſleep; but this was a way to keep a Soul awake.

I begin to ſuſpect that my Reader's patience is almoſt expir'd; and therefore I ſhall cauſe the Remainder of this Narrative to omit where it cannot contract, what is yet well worthy to be the Matter of it.

Fourthly, He was one that mortified and conquer'd the SINS which were a Vexation to him. There were ſome Sins which gave to this young Man a more violent and outragious diſturbance than he could without much paſſion bear: Theſe did he contrive and conflict much in his Oppoſitions to, and gave not over till he had a certain Proſpect of a Victory.

Of all the things which ever troubled him, I know not whether any were more grievous than the Blaſphemous Injections which like fiery venemous Darts inflam'd ſometimes his very Soul within him.

It may be ſome Teſtimony of Sincerity, when Perſons are not a little afflicted for, as well as aſſaulted with, Blaſphemous Imaginations about God; which riſe within us in contradiction to all that Reverence of him, which we know not how to lay aſide.

This Perſon on his Death-bed complained to me, that Horrenda de Deo, Horrible Conceptions of God, buzzing about his Mind, had been one of the bittereſt of all his Trials; and I find his private Papers making ſad Lamentations over the Miſeries of this Annoyance. You ſhall read how he did encounter theſe Fiends, as one that was no Stranger to the Wars of the Lord.

Once in his Diary, he ſays;

‘Troubled exceedingly with Blaſphemous Suggeſtions, my Soul bleeds at the Thoughts of them.

‘O that Chriſt would deliver me from them! they make my Life unpleaſant, I do believe that Satan never ſtruggled ſo hard to keep any one from Chriſt, as he has done to keep me!

‘From hence I learn, 1. My great Enmity to, 2. My great Need of, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

At another time:

‘Troubled with Blaſphemous Thoughts, I learn from hence,

‘1. Seeing theſe would have me to entertain a low Eſteem of Chriſt and God.

‘I will endeavour to have a more high and eminent Eſteem of God and Chriſt.

2. Seeing theſe do ſo perplex me continually,

‘I learn that I am unable of my ſelf to raiſe good Thoughts, much leſs to perform good Acts of Obedience. I would be deeply humbled, that my Soul ſhould be thus defiled.

‘Seeing, I have often ſo much Experience and Stirrings of Enmity in my Soul to God, I would be excited thereby more heartily to cleave unto him.

Once more.

‘I hope I have now got Strength over my Blaſphemous Thoughts, after this manner.

‘1. Humbling my ſelf under a ſenſe of my own Vileneſs and Wretchedneſs.

‘2. Praying earneſtly for the removal of the Enmity that is in my Soul to the Things of God; eſpecially as to this matter.

Thus diſcreetly did he manage the Shield of Faith againſt thoſe barbed Arrows of Hell: Nor did his other Corruptions eſcape the Offenſive, as well as the Defenſive Weapons of his Soul.

Under the moſt furious of their Aſſaults, I find this to be one of his Honourable Retreats.

‘For the Relief of my Soul under the Power

‘ of Corruption; let me by Faith apply theſe Scriptures.

‘ Firſt, Rom, 6, 14.

‘ Secondly, Ezek. 36. 26.

‘ Thirdly, Mic. 7. 19.

‘ Fourthly, Zec. 13. 1.

‘ Beſides Zec. 9. 12. Mat. 16, 18. John 12. 31. and Rom. 16. 20. and theſe Conſiderations:

‘ Firſt, Chriſt is a Compleat Redeemer, Heb. 7. 25. 1 John 1. 7. Heb. 9. 14.

‘ Secondly, God's Infinite Power is engaged on my behalf, if I be in Covenant with him.

‘ Thirdly, God will perfect Holineſs where he hath begun it.

In ſuch Engagements as theſe againſt his Inviſible Adverſaries he continued, until he is now a Conqueror, and more than a Conqueror.

Fifthly, He was one that wiſely prepared for the CHANGES that were before him. It is a Remark in one of his Papers: ‘ I think it convenient for me to obſerve the Temptations, I am, or ſhall be obnoxious unto, and get ſuitable Remedies againſt them.

He ſeem'd indeed to have a ſtrange Preſage of what he was to meet withal, and O how he laid in that he might not be unprovided for it! A Prudence rarely ſeen among the Children of Men, whoſe Miſery is great upon them becauſe they know not their Time.

There were eſpecially two Calamities which he had a fore-boding of, Diſmal Pain and Early Death, As for his Pain, he was it ſeems to undergo exquiſite Anguiſhes, for many Months before his Diſſolution; but before ever it came upon him, how ſtrangely did he fortifie himſelf againſt it! He ſaid in his Diary ſome Years before he left the World,

Sept. 2.

‘ I had not in the Morning time enough for ſolemn Meditation: Great Deadneſs and Dulneſs was in my Heart, as to Spiritual Thoughts afterwards; the Reaſon was, becauſe I did not perform my ſolemn Meditation as I ſhould.

‘ I had now Apprehenſions that I muſt undergo ſore Tryals and Conflicts, and great Afflictions.

‘ Whereſore it highly become me to get as great a meaſure of Grace, as the Opportunities which I enjoy may afford, and therefore I purpoſe to be more ſerious in my Meditations, not omitting other Duties therewithal.

‘ I ſee my Reſolutions muſt every Day be renewed, as to great diligence in my ſerving God.

‘ And ſince I muſt expect great Afflictions, I muſt make it my daily Work by ſolemn Meditation to go over the whole Body of Chriſtianity, and particularly to have daily Thoughts on the Condeſcention of Jeſus Chriſt: I muſt alſo endeavour to get a large meaſure of ſanctified Knowledge; wherefore,

‘ Firſt, There is need of Earneſt Prayer; and ‘ Secondly, Of very Holy Walking.

‘ Thirdly, Of Entertaining the Truth with greateſt Affection; and ‘ Fourthly, Looking on it as it is in Jeſus; and ‘ Fifthly, Solemn Meditation; and

‘ Sixthly, Much Reading; and

‘ Seventhly, Living upon the Truths which I know, and Thankfulneſs for the Knowledge which I have already,

And at another time there was this written in his Diary.

‘ This Morning I meditated about a part of Self-denial; Namely, the denial of Bodily Health, and of Eaſe from Torment.

‘ My Reſolution was, that it was better to part herewithal, than to ſin. I hope there is a thorough purpoſe in my Heart to perform accordingly, when I ſhall be call'd thereunto.

‘ I do feel the Stirrings of Self in my ſelf this day: It would fain be in the Throne of God within me; but I am reſolved Chriſt ſhall be my King.

And as he thus put on the whole Armour of God, that he might be able to ſtand when he ſhould be tryed, ſo he found the Benefit of it, when he came into the Field. Few in the World ever bore ſuch Dolours with ſuch a ſilent and a quiet and compoſed Temper as he. Some that were intimate with him, would ſay, He was one of an Iron Patience, and they had rarely if ever ſeen ſuch a Patient Patient. But his Death he ſeem'd all along moſt careful to be ready for.

In his Papers.

Meditations on the four laſt things, was a Title mentioning a Subject of his moſt ſolicitous Contemplations. Above three Years before his Tranſlation, his Diary hath ſuch a Note as this.

‘ Speaking to Day ſomething concerning my Commencement, I was ſtrangely ſurprized, and had many Thoughts, yea, Perſwaſions, That I ſhould not live till then.

In the Margin he wrote, Deceived.

‘ Reſt. What may be the Import hereof I cannot tell; yet I gather thus much: That is incumbent on me without further delay, to make my Calling and Election ſure.

He hath alſo left behind him, Some Meditations tending to the Exerciſe of Repentance, and Faith, and Preparation for Death, as he hath himſelf intitled them; but the Reader by this time will eaſily pardon my forbearing the Communication of them.

Indeed, Preparation for Death, in one word, contains the Subſtance of what he had been doing divers years before the King of Terrors took his Clay Houſe away.

And as he was deſirous to prepare for what Paſſive Obedience he might be put upon, ſo he was loath to have his Heart not well ordered or furniſhed, when Active Obedience might be called for at his Hands. Tho' he never liv'd to preach any other than ſome private Sermons, yet he was not unthoughtful of the Time when publick Ones might be expected from him. It may not be unuſeful for me to inſert one of his Meditations here; it runs in ſuch terms as theſe.

¶ Whether I ſhould be a Miniſter ?

'I conſidered all Objections which Perſons might make againſt it, and anſwer'd them every one. But one Objection ſtartled me more than the reſt, to wit, Perſonal Unfitneſs, from my Hebetude, or want of Invention. To which I anſwer'd, with minding that Promiſe in Exod. 3. 12. Certainly I will be with thee. And the beginning of ver. 18. They ſhall hearken to thy voice. And where God finds Work, there he will give Strength. I likewiſe conſidered 1 Chron. 28. 10, 20. and Mat. 28. 19, 20. and Joſh. 1. 9. and Judg. 6. 12, 14.

'And then I thought with my ſelf, That as for living in a remote part of the Country, I ſhould be willing thereunto, if ſo I might do Service for God, and bring Glory to his Name. And whilſt I was muſing on theſe Things, I was melted into a Frame, that I thought heretofore I ſhould nevet be in, namely, Humble Submiſſion to the Good Pleaſure of God, however he ſhould diſpoſe of me. I knew, that though I were reproached for what Meanneſs I ſhould this way be expoſed unto, there is an Anſwer in Rom. 1. 16. and in Mark 8. 38. and in Pſal. 31. 19. and in Prov. 16. 7. and in Pſal. 37. 5, 6. So were the Apoſtles, 1 Cor. 4. 3, 9. If I ſerve Chriſt, God will honour me, John 12. 26.

Every one muſt own, that however ſuch things as theſe, in an old Man, may be below our Admiration; yet in a young Man, that out-lived not the Years which the Nodes of the Moon take to diſpatch a Revolution, they deſerve a Memory among them that may be edified by ſuch Exemplary Practices. Indeed, he was himſelf extreamly unſenſible of the leaſt Worth or Shine adorning of him; and in his whole Deportment he diſcovered a modeſt, an humble, and a reſerved Mein; which might be reck'ned to bear little proportion with his other Accompliſhments, were it not that the more gracious Men are, the more humble they always are; and they are the Fulleſt and Richeſt Ears of Corn, which moſt hang down towards the Ground. But while he in a ſort wronged himſelf, to eſcape the Bane and Blame of Pride; it is a piece of pure Juſtice in the Survivers, to Embalm the Name of a Perſon thus deſirable, ſince he is gone thither where he has no Chaff to take fire at the Sparks of our Praiſes.

Sic oculos, ſic ille manus, ſic ora ferebat ?

Such a young Man as this it is, that the Church of God is now deprived of! What a Bleſſing might his Living have proved unto the World! But as the Long-liv'd Patriarchs, before the Flood, have ſtill that Clauſe introduced of them, And he dyed; which Clauſe awakened and converted a Perſon of Quality, who came in occaſionally while the Miniſter was reading the Fifth Chapter of Geneſis to the Congregation; ſo muſt I now ſay of the Short-liv'd Perſon, whom we have been paying our laſt Reſpect unto, he lived thus long in a little time, And he died.

Before I break off, I muſt relate,

III. His DEATH.

Too ſoon and too ſad a thing for me to mention without Sighing, Ah my Brother, in my Lamentation over it. He had contracted an univerſal Ill Habit of Body; which was attended with a particular Generation of Ill Humours, where the Os Ileon and Os Sacrum joyn; from whence it fell into his Thigh, until there was a very large collection of it there.

There was an Inciſion, with mature Advice made into the Tumour, about a Month before his Expiration, which gave good hopes of his Recovery into a capacity of ſerving the Church of God; but the Circulation, which was now given unto the putrid Juices which his Blood, through his continual and ſedentary Studies, had been annoyed withal, ſoon enkindled a Fever, which burnt aſunder the thread of this pious Life.

One might ſuppoſe, that ſuch a Walk with God as the Reader has newly had pourtrayed before him, ſhould end in Raptures and Extaſies of Aſſurance; but I am to tell him, That this Young Perſon had them not. And there wanted not Reaſon for it. For his Natural Diſtemper diſpoſed him to what is contrary to Joy; but his deep Humility had a greater ſhare in the Jealouſies and Suſpicions which he would ſtill cheriſh of himſelf. He was indeed ſo afraid of being an Hypocrite, and he would ſcarce allow himſelf to be called a Chriſtian, and he did not care ſo much as to tell any of his own Experiences, no, nor his Inclinations, unleſs to one or two Divines, who kindly refreſhed him with their daily Viſits; and with them too he would uphold his Diſcourſe only in Latin, if any one elſe were by.

Never did I ſee more Caution againſt Hypocriſie, than what was in him; and a certain Self-abhorrence accompanying of it, cauſed to proceed from him no Expreſſions, but thoſe of an Abaſed Soul. When his Brother having recited the Terms of the Goſpel to him, with a deſign to obtain from him a Renewal of his Explicit Conſent thereunto, asked him, Whether he did not judge himſelf ſincere in that Conſent? He only replied, I ſhould think ſo, if it were not for the Seventeenth of Jeremiah, and the Ninth.

He was Dejected, yet not Deſpairing; and he diſcovered a wonderfully Gracious, when he had not a Joyful Frame. He was all made up of Longings and Breathings after all the Fulneſs of God, when he could not or would not pretend unto any Confidence of his Acceptance with the Lord.

In the time of his Health, he had not been without the comfortable Perſwaſions for which he follow'd hard after God. In one place, I find him ſaying (on ſuch a day) I had Fears leſt I ſhould not love the Bleſſed God; but yet I was ſure I deſired to keep his Commandments. Another time ſo; For three Quarters of an Hour, I pleaded earneſtly for aſſurance of the Love of God unto me, and I ſaid, As many as received Chriſt Jeſus, to them he gave Power to become the Sons of God; And I did receive Jeſus Chriſt, as the the Free Gift of God, and received him to ſave me on his own Terms: I choſe him to be my Prieſt, and Prophet, and King. Now I begg'd of him that he would manifeſt his Acceptance of me, and give me the Spirit of Adoption: I had then, I hope, ſome Aſſurance. But when Sickneſs came, he was loth to own a clear Title to the Reſt of God: Yet before he died, he ſuffered ſome ſober Intimations of his Hopes to fall from him. There was a good Man in this Land, whoſe laſt Words yet were, It had been good for me that I had never been born. The Words of this humble Self-loathing Young-Man were of another ſtrain. In the laſt Night, that we had him with us, he would have his Watcher to read, The Song of Simeon, unto him, Now letteſt thou thy Servant depart in Peace: And in the Morning after, he ſaid, I have now been with Jeſus Chriſt! which, from ſuch a little Speaker as he, we could not have his Explication of.

In one of his laſt Minutes, a faithful Miniſter ſaid unto him, Find you not Comfort in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt? To which he made only this diſcreet and humble Anſwer, I endeavour to do thoſe things which will iſſue in Comfort; and then he quickly ſurrendred up his Redeemed and Renewed Soul unto him who had loved him, and waſhed away his Sins in his own Blood.

Thus he went away to the Heavenly Society, where he is beholding the Face of God in Righteouſneſs, and ſolacing himſelf in the Company not only of his bleſſed Grandfathers and Uncles, and all the Spirits of the Juſt; but of the amiable Jeſus himſelf, which is by far the beſt of all. His Tears are all dried up, his Fears vaniſhed away, and his Hopes more than anſwered in Joys unſpeakable, and full of Glory.

His Elder Brother having thus written of him, now ſatisfies himſelf in the Duty therein done to God and Man; and would keep waiting for his own Change, until Thy Free Grace, O my God, ſhall give unto the moſt miſerable Sinner in the World, an Admiſſion into Emmanuel's Land.

Cotton Mather.

One that had an Acquaintance with him, did him the Juſtice of weeping over his Grave ſuch an Epitaph as this.

INcloſed in this Sable Cheſt,
The Hoſt once of an Heavenly Gueſt
Here lies: Upright Nathanael,
True Off-ſpring of God's Iſrael.
Him Dead, how term we, from his Birth,
Who liv'd in Heaven whilſt on Earth?
His Head had Learning's Magazine,
His Heart the Altar, whence Divine
Whole Hecatombs, which Love had fir'd
Of high Praiſe, and warm Pray'r aſpir'd:
His Life, the Decalogue unfolded;
A Meat-Off'ring, his Speech well-moulded;
His rare Devotion, ſuch now ſeen,
A Sign of Ninety at Nineteen.
Years but in bloom, Grace at full growth
Angels, you Know and Think his Worth.
Thus Time, Youth's Glaſs, turn'd e're 'twas run,
And Ages too, before begun.

Reſt, Glorious Duſt, and let thy perfum'd Name
Sound in the Trumpets of Immortal Fame.
For tho' Times Teeth Mauſolæan Monuments deface,
They'll never gnaw thy Name which with the Stars has place.

THE FAITH
Profeſſed by the Churches of New-England.

Periculoſum nobis ac miſerabile eſt, tot Fides exiſtere quot voluntates, & tot nobis Doctrinas eſſe, quot mores. Hilar.

§ 1. IT was once an unrighteous and Injurious Aſperſion caſt upon the Churches of New-England, That the World knew not their Principles: Whereas they took all the Occaſions imaginable to make all the World know, That in the Doctrinal Part of Religion, they have agreed entirely with the Reformed Churches of Europe: And that they deſired moſt particularly to maintain the Faith profeſſed by the Churches of Old England, the Country whereto was owing their Original. Few Paſtors of Mankind ever took ſuch pains at Catechiſing, as have been taken by our New-Engliſh Divines: Now let any Man living read the moſt judicious and elaborate Catechiſms publiſhed, a leſſer and a larger by Mr. Norton, a leſſer and a larger by Mr. Mather, ſeveral by Mr. Cotton, one by Mr. Davenport, one by Mr. Stone, one by Mr. Norris, one by Mr. Noyes, one by Mr. Fiſk, ſeveral by Mr. Eliot, one by Mr. Sea-born Cotton, a large one by Mr. Fitch; and ſay, whether true Divinity were ever better handled; or, whether they were not the trueſt Sons of the Church of England, who thus maintained its Fundamental Articles, which are ſo many of them firſt ſubſcribed, and then denyed and confuted by ſome that would monopolize that Name unto themſelves: But as a further Demonſtration hereof, when there was a Synod aſſembled at Cambridge, Sept. 30. 1648. even that Synod which framed, agreed and publiſhed, The Platform of Church Diſcipline, there was a moſt unanimous Vote paſſed in theſe Words; This Synod having peruſed and conſidered (with much gladneſs of Heart and Thankfulneſs to God) the Confeſſion of Faith, publiſhed by the late Reverend Aſſembly in England, do judge it to be very Holy, Orthodox and Judicious, in all Matters of Faith, and do therefore freely and fully conſent thereunto for the Subſtance thereof. Only in thoſe Things which have reſpect to Church-Government and Diſcipline, we refer our ſelves to the Platform of Church-Diſcipline, agreed upon by this Preſent Aſſembly: And we do therefore think it meet, that this Confeſſion of Faith, ſhould be commended to the Churches of Chriſt among us, and to the Honoured Court, as worthy of their due Conſideration and Acceptance. This Vote was paſſed by the Miniſters and Meſſengers of the Churches, in that Venerable Aſſembly, when the Government recommended unto their Conſideration, A Confeſſion of Faith, as one Thing, which the Tranſmarine Churches expected from them. And they hoped, that this Proof of them being Fellow Heirs of the ſame Common Salvation, with the Churches beyond Sea, would not only free them from the Suſpicion of Hereſie, but clear them from the Character of Schiſm alſo; in as much as their Diſſent from thoſe Churches, was now evidently but in ſome leſſer Matters of Eccleſiaſtical Polity; And a Diſſent not managed either with ſuch Arrogancy or Cenſoriouſneſs, as are the Eſſential Properties of Schiſmaticks.

§ 2. As to make a Confeſſion of Faith, is a Duty wherein all Chriſtians are to be made Confeſſors; and Multitudes of 'em have been made Martyrs; thus to write a Confeſſion of Faith, is a Work which the Faithful in all Ages have approved and practiſed, as moſt ſingularly profitable. The Confeſſions thus emitted by ſuch Worthies as Irenæus and Athanaſius formerly, and Beza, as well as others more lately, have been of ſignal Advantage to the Church of God: But when many Churches do join together in ſuch Confeſſions, the Teſtimony born to the Truth of God, is yet more glorious and effectual. How remarkably the Confeſſions of the four General Councils, were owned for the Suppreſſion of the Hereſies then ſpawned, is well known to all that have ſet foot but as far as the Threſhold of Church-Hiſtory; and ſurely the fabulous Muſick of the Spheres, cannot be ſuppoſed more delicious than that Harmony, which is to be ſeen in the Confeſſions of the Reformed Churches, that have therefore been together publiſhed. Wherefore, beſides the Vote of the New-England Churches, for a Concurrence with the Confeſſion of Faith made by the Aſſembly at Weſtminſter, a Synod aſſembled at Boſton, May 12. 1680. whereof Mr. Increaſe Mather was Moderator, conſulted and conſidered, what was further to be done for ſuch a Confeſſion. Accordingly, the Confeſſion of Faith conſented by the Congregational Churches of England in a Synod met at the Savoy; which, excepting a few Variations, was the ſame with what was agreed by the Reverend Aſſembly at Weſtminſter, and afterwards by the General Aſſembly of Scotland; was twice publickly read, examined and approved; and ſome ſmall Variations made from that of the Savoy in compliance with that at Weſtminſter; and ſo, after ſuch Collations, but no Contentions, voted and printed, as the Faith of New-England. But they choſe to expreſs themſelves in the Words of thoſe Aſſemblies; That ſo (as they ſpeak in their Preface) we might not only with one Heart, but with one Mouth, glorifie God and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

§ 3. It is true, that particular Churches in the Country have had their Confeſſions by themſelves drawn up in their own Form; nor indeed were the Symbols in the moſt primitive Times always delivered in ipſiſſimis verbis. It is alſo true, that few Learned Men have been admitted as Members of our Churches, but what have, at their Admiſſions, entertained them with notable Confeſſions of their own compoſing; inſomuch, that if the Proteſtants have been by the Papiſts call'd Confeſſioniſts, the Proteſtants of New-England have, of all, given the moſt laudable occaſion to be called ſo. Nevertheleſs, all this Variety has been the exacteſt Unity; all thoſe Confeſſions have been but ſo many Derivations from, and Explications and Confirmations of, that Confeſſion, which the Synods had voted for them all; for, Ut plures Rivuli, ab uno Fonte, ita plures Fidei Confeſſiones ab una eademq; Fidei Veritate, manare poſſunt. Now that Good Confeſſion remains to be exhibited.

Reader, 'Tis a memorable Paſſage, that is related by Ruffinus in his Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, that a Pagan Philoſopher, in a publick Diſputation, evaded and rejected the moſt powerful Arguments for Chriſtianity, brought by the moſt Learned Chriſtians in the Aſſembly: Until an honeſt Elder of one of the Churches, but of Abilities which were ſo much inferior to the reſt, that the reſt were afraid and ſorry to ſee his Undertaking, did undertake to ſilence him. This honeſt Man, after this manner addreſſed the Adverſary: ‘In the Name of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, I require you to hear the Truth: There is but one God, who made the Heavens and the Earth, and hath formed Man of the Duſt thereof, with an Immortal Soul inſpired into him: He, by his Word and Power brought forth this whole Creation, and ſanctifies us by his Holy Spirit: And He, who is the Word, whom we own to be the Son of God, taking Compaſſion on fallen Man, hath become a Man: He was born of a Virgin, and by ſuffering, even to death, for us, he hath delivered us from Eternal Death, and by his Reſurrection he hath made ſure of Life Eternal for us. Him we look for again to be the Judge of the World: Believeſt thou this, O Philoſopher? The Man found himſelf Thunder-ſtruck, into a more than ordinary Conſternation at this Diſcourſe, and cry'd out, I believe it, I confeſs it! Whereupon the holy Man ſaid, Then follow me, and be baptiſed. He did ſo, and unto his Party then preſent he ſaid, While I had to do with the Words of Men, I could oppoſe Words unto them; but when I felt a Power from God, I could not reſiſt it. I find that Man cannot oppoſe himſelf to God.

Our Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory ſhall now give a plain and a pure Confeſſion of our Faith. May the Reader now find an irreſiſtible Power of God, and of Grace irradiating his Mind, with all Satiſfaction in it. 'Tis compoſed of Things, which as Chryſoſtom ſpeaks, τῶν ἡλιακῶν ἀκτίνων φανερώτερα, Clearer than the Beams of the Sun.

A
Confeſſion of Faith;

Owned, and conſented to, by the Elders and Meſſengers of the Churches, Aſſembled at Boſton in New-England, May 12. 1680. Being the Second Seſſion of that SYNOD.

CHAP. I.
Of the Holy Scriptures.

I. Although the Light of Nature, and the Works of Creation and Providence do ſo far manifeſt the Goodneſs, Wiſdom and Power of God, as to leave Men inexcuſable; yet are they not ſufficient to give that knowledge of God and of his Will, which is neceſſary unto Salvation: Therefore it pleaſed the Lord, at ſundry times, and in divers manners to reveal himſelf, and to declare that his Will unto his Church; and afterwards for the better Preſerving and Propagating of the Truth, and for the more ſure Eſtabliſhment and Comfort of the Church againſt the Corruption of the Fleſh, and the Malice of Satan, and of the World, to commit the ſame wholly to Writing: Which maketh the Holy Scripture to be moſt neceſſary; thoſe former ways of God's revealing his Will unto his People being now ceaſed.

II. Under the Name of Holy Scripture, or the Word of God written, are now contained all the Books of the Old and New Teſtament, which are theſe:

Of the Old Teſtament.

Geneſis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy, Joſhua, Judges, Ruth, 1 Samuel, 2 Samuel, 1 Kings, 2 Kings, 1 Chronicles, 2 Chronicles, Ezra, Nehemiah, Eſther, Job, Pſalms, Proverbs, Eccleſiaſtes, The Song of Songs, Iſaiah, Jeremiah, Lamentations, Ezekiel, Daniel, Hoſea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah, Malachi.

Of the New Teſtament.

Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, The Acts of the Apoſtles, Paul's Epiſtle to the Romans, 1 Corinthians, 2 Corinthians, Galatians, Epheſians, Philippians, Coloſſians, 1 Theſſalonians, 2 Theſſalonians, 1 To Timothy, 2 To Timothy, To Titus, To Philemon, The Epiſtle to the Hebrews, The Epiſtle of James, The firſt and ſecond Epiſtles of Peter, The firſt, ſecond and third Epiſtles of John, The Epiſtle of Jude, The Revelation.

All which are given by the Inſpiration of God to be the Rule of Faith and Life.

III. The Books commonly called Apocrypha, not being of Divine Inſpiration, are no part of the Canon of Scripture; and therefore are of no Authority in the Church of God, nor to be any otherwiſe approved or made uſe of than other Humane Writings.

IV. The Authority of the Holy Scripture, for which it ought to be believed and obeyed, dependeth not upon the Teſtimony of any Man or Church, but wholly upon God (who is Truth it ſelf) the Author thereof; and therefore, it is to be received becauſe it is the Word of God.

V. We may be moved and induced by the Teſtimony of the Church, to an high and reverend Eſteem of the Holy Scripture. And the Heavenlineſs of the Matter, the Efficacy of the Doctrine, the Majeſty of the Style, the Conſent of all the Parts, the Scope of the whole (which is to give all Glory to God) the full Diſcovery it makes of the only way of Man's Salvation, the many other incomparable Excellencies, and the entire Perfection thereof, are Arguments, whereby it doth abundantly Evidence it ſelf to be the Word of God; yet notwithſtanding our full Perſuaſion and Aſſurance of the infallible Truth and Divine Authority thereof, is from the inward Work of the Holy Spirit, bearing Witneſs by and with the Word in our Hearts.

VI. The whole Counſel of God concerning all things neceſſary for his own Glory, Man's Salvation, Faith and Life, is either expreſly ſet down in Scripture, or by good and neceſſary Conſequence may be deduced from Scripture; unto which nothing, at any time, is to be added, whether by new Revelations of the Spirit, or Traditions of Men. Nevertheleſs, we acknowledge the inward Illumination of the Spirit of God to be neceſſary for the ſaving underſtanding of ſuch things as are revealed in the Word: And that there are ſome Circumſtances concerning the Worſhip of God and Government of the Church, common to humane Actions and Societies, which are to be ordered by the Light of Nature and Chriſtian Prudence, according to the general Rules of the Word, which are always to be obſerved.

VII. All things in Scripture, are not alike plain in themſelves, nor alike clear unto all; yet thoſe things which are neceſſary to be known, believed and obſerved for Salvation, are ſo clearly propounded and opened in ſome place of Scripture, or other, that not only the learned, but the unlearned, in a due uſe of the ordinary means, may attain unto a ſufficient Underſtanding of them.

VIII. The Old Teſtament in Hebrew, (which was the Native Language of the People of God of old) and the New Teſtament in Greek, (which at the time of writing of it, was moſt generally known to the Nations) being immediately inſpired by God, and by his ſingular Care and Providence kept pure in all Ages, are therefore Authentical; ſo as in all Controverſies of Religion the Church is finally to appeal unto them. But becauſe theſe Original Tongues are not known to all the People of God, who have Right unto, and Intereſt in the Scriptures, and are commanded in the Fear of God to read and ſearch them; therefore they are to be tranſlated into the vulgar Language of every Nation into which they come, that the Word of God dwelling plentifully in All, they may worſhip him in an acceptable manner, and through Patience and Comfort of the Scripture may have help.

IX. The infallible Rule of Interprepation of Scripture, is the Scripture it ſelf; and therefore when there is a Queſtion about the true and full Senſe of any Scripture (which is not manifold, but one) it muſt be ſearched and known by other Places that ſpeak more clearly.

X. The Supreme Judge, by which all Controverſies of Religion are to be determined, and all Decrees of Councils, Opinions of ancient Writers, Doctrines of Men, and private Spirits, are to be examined, and in whoſe Sentence we are to reſt, can be no other, but the Holy Scripture delivered by the Spirit; into which Scripture ſo delivered our Faith is finally reſolved.

CHAP. II.

Of God and the Holy Trinity.

I. THere is but one only Living and True God; who is infinite in Being and Perfection, a moſt pure Spirit, inviſible, without Body, Parts or Paſſions, Immutable, Immenſe, Eternal, Incomprehenſible, Almighty, moſt Wiſe, moſt Holy, moſt Free, moſt Abſolute, working all things according to the Counſel of his own Immutable and moſt Righteous Will, for his own Glory; moſt Loving, Gracious, Merciful, Long-ſuffering, abundant in Goodneſs and Truth, forgiving Iniquity, Tranſgreſſion and Sin; the Rewarder of them that diligently ſeek him; and withal moſt Juſt and Terrible in his Judgments, hating all Sin, and who will by no means clear the Guilty.

II. God hath all Life, Glory, Goodneſs, Bleſſedneſs, in and of himſelf; and is alone in and unto Himſelf, All-ſufficient; not ſtanding in need of any Creatures, which he hath made, nor deriving any Glory from them, but only manifeſting his own Glory in, by, unto, and upon them. He is the alone Fountain of all Beings; of whom, through whom, and to whom are all Things; and hath moſt Sovereign Dominion over them, to do by them, for them and upon them, whatſoever himſelf pleaſeth: In his ſight all things are open and manifeſt; his Knowledge is Infinite, Infallible and Independant upon the Creature, ſo as nothing is to him contingent or uncertain. He is moſt Holy in all his Counſels, in all his Works, and in all his Commands. To him is due from Angels, and Men, and every other Creature, whatſoever Worſhip, Service or Obedience, as Creatures they owe unto the Creator, and whatever he is further pleaſed to require of them.

III. In the Unity of the God-head, there be Three Perſons, of one Subſtance, Power and Eternity, God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghoſt: The Father is of none, neither begotten nor proceeding; The Son is eternally begotten of the Father; The Holy Ghoſt eternally proceeding from the Father and the Son. Which Doctrine of the Trinity is the Foundation of all our Communion with God and comfortable Dependence upon him.

CHAP. III.

Of God's Eternal Decree.

I. GOD from all Eternity did by the moſt Wiſe and Holy Counſel of his own Will, freely, and unchangeably ordain, whatſoever comes to paſs; yet ſo, as thereby neither is God the Author of Sin, nor is Violence offered unto the Will of the Creatures, nor is the Liberty or Contingency of ſecond Cauſes taken away, but rather eſtabliſhed.

II. Although God knows whatſoever may or can come to paſs upon all ſuppoſed Conditions, tions, yet hath he not decreed any thing becauſe he foreſaw it, as future, or as that which would come to paſs upon ſuch Conditions.

III. By the Decree of God, for the manifeſtation of his Glory, ſome Men and Angels are predeſtinated unto everlaſting Life, and others fore-ordained unto everlaſting Death.

IV. Theſe Angels and Men, thus predeſtinated and fore-ordained, are particularly and unchangeably deſigned, and their Number is ſo certain and definite, that it cannot be either increaſed or diminiſhed.

V. Thoſe of Mankind that are predeſtinated unto Life. God before the Foundation of the World was laid, according to his eternal and immutable Purpoſe, and the ſecret Counſel, and good Pleaſure of his Will, hath choſen in Chriſt unto everlaſting Glory, out of his meer Free-Grace and Love, without any foreſight of Faith or good Works, or Perſeverance in either of them, or any other thing in the Creature, as Conditions or Cauſes moving him thereunto, and all to the Praiſe of his Glorious Grace.

VI. As God hath appointed the Elect unto Glory, ſo hath he by the eternal and moſt free Purpoſe of his Will, fore-ordained all the means thereunto: Wherefore they who are elected being fallen in Adam, are redeemed by Chriſt, are effectually called unto Faith in Chriſt by his Spirit working in due ſeaſon, are juſtified, adopted, ſanctified, and kept by his Power through Faith unto Salvation. Neither are any other redeemed by Chriſt, or effectually called, juſtified, adopted, ſanctified and ſaved, but the Elect only.

VII. The reſt of Mankind, God was pleaſed according to the unſearchable Counſel of his own Will, whereby he extendeth or withholdeth Mercy, as he pleaſeth, for the Glory of his Sovereign Power over his Creatures, to paſs by, and to ordain them to Diſhonour and Wrath, for their Sin, to the Praiſe of his Glorious Juſtice.

VIII. The Doctrine of this high Myſtery of Predeſtination, is to be handled with ſpecial Prudence and Care, that Men attending the Will of God revealed in his Word, and yielding Obedience thereunto, may from the certainty of their effectual Vocation be aſſured of their eternal Election.

So ſhall this Doctrine afford Matter of Praiſe, Reverence and Admiration of God, and of Humility, Diligence and abundant Conſolation to all that ſincerely obey the Goſpel.

CHAP. IV.

Of Creation.

I. IT pleaſed God the Father, Son and Holy Ghoſt, for the manifeſtation of the Glory of his eternal Power, Wiſdom and Goodneſs in the Beginning, to create or make of Nothing the World and all things therein, whether viſible or inviſible, in the ſpace of ſix Days, and all very good.

II. After God had made all other Creatures, he created Man Male and Female, with reaſonable and immortal Souls, endued with Knowledge, Righteouſneſs and true Holineſs, after his own Image, having the Law of God written in their Heart, and Power to fulfil it; and yet under a poſſibility of tranſgreſſing, being left to the Liberty of their own Will, which was ſubject to change. Beſides this Law written in their Hearts, they received a Command not to eat of the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil; which whiles they kept, they were happy in their Communion with God, and had Dominion over the Creatures.

CHAP. V.

Of Providence.

I. GOD the Great Creator of all things, doth uphold, direct, diſpoſe and govern all Creatures, Actions and Things, from the greateſt even to the leaſt, by his moſt Wiſe and Holy Providence, according to his infallible Foreknowledge, and the free and immutable Counſel of his own Will to the Praiſe of the Glory of his Wiſdom, Power, Juſtice Goodneſs and Mercy.

II. Although in relation to the Fore-knowledge and Decree of God, the Firſt Cauſe, all things come to paſs immutably and infallibly, yet by the ſame Providence he ordereth them to fall out, according to the Nature of Second Cauſes, either neceſſarily, freely, or contingently.

III. God in his ordinary Providence, maketh uſe of means, yet is free to work without, above and againſt them at his Pleaſure.

IV. The Almighty Power, unſearchable Wiſdom, and the infinite Goodneſs of God, ſo far manifeſt themſelves in his Providence, in that his determinate Counſel extendeth it ſelf, even to the firſt Fall and all other Sins of Angels and Men, (and that not by a bare permiſſion) which alſo, he moſt wiſely and powerfully boundeth, and otherwiſe ordereth and governeth in a manifold Diſpenſation, to his own moſt Holy Ends, yet ſo as the ſinfulneſs thereof proceedeth only from the Creature, and not from God, who being moſt Holy and Righteous, neither is, nor can be the Author or Approver of Sin.

V. The moſt wiſe, righteous and gracious God doth oftentimes leave for a Seaſon his own Children to manifold Temptations, and the Corruption of their own Hearts, to chaſtiſe them for their former Sins, or to diſcover unto them the hidden Strength of Corruption, and Deceitfulneſs of their Hearts, that they may be humbled, and to raiſe them to a more cloſe and conſtant Dependance for their Support upon himſelf, and to make them more watchful againſt all future Occaſions of Sin, and for ſundry other juſt and holy Ends.

VI. As for thoſe wicked and ungodly Men, whom God, as a righteous Judge, for former Sins, doth blind and harden, from them, he not only with-holdeth his Grace, whereby they might have been enlightned in their Underſtandings, and wrought upon in their Hearts; but ſometimes alſo withdraweth the Gifts which they had, and expoſeth them to ſuch Objects, as their Corruption makes Occaſions of Sin; and withal gives them over to their own Luſts, the Temptations of the World, and the Power of Satan, whereby it comes to paſs that they harden themſelves, even under thoſe Means, which God uſeth for the ſoftning of others.

VII. As the Providence of God doth in General reach to all Creatures, ſo after a moſt ſpecial manner, it taketh Care of his Church, and diſpoſeth all Things for the Good thereof.

CHAP. VI.

Of the Fall of Man: Of Sin, and of the Puniſhment thereof.

I. GOD having made a Covenant of Works and Life thereupon, with our Firſt Parents, and all their Poſterity in them, they being ſeduced by the Subtilty and Temptation of Satan, did wilfully tranſgreſs the Law of their Creation, and break the Covenant, in eating the forbidden Fruit.

II. By this Sin, they and we in them, fell from Original Righteouſneſs and Communion with God, and ſo became dead in Sin, and wholly defiled in all the Faculties and Parts of Soul and Body.

III. They being the Root, and by God's Appointment ſtanding in the room and ſtead of all Mankind, the Guilt of this Sin was imputed, and corrupted Nature convey'd to all thir Poſterity deſcending from them by ordinary Generation.

IV. From this Original Corruption, whereby we are utterly indiſpoſed, diſabled and made oppoſite to all Good, and wholly inclined to all Evil, do proceed all actual Tranſgreſſions.

V. This Corruption of Nature, during this Life doth remain in thoſe that are regenerated; and altho' it be, through Chriſt, pardoned and mortified, yet both it ſelf and all the Motions thereof are truly and properly Sin.

VI. Every Sin both Original and Actual being a Tranſgreſſion of the righteous Law of God, and contrary thereunto, doth, in its own Nature, bring Guilt upon the Sinner, whereby he is bound over to the Wrath of God, and Curſe of the Law, and ſo made ſubject to Death, with all Miſeries Spiritual, Temporal and Eternal.

CHAP. VII.

Of God's Covenant with Man.

I. THE Diſtance between God and the Creature is ſo great, that altho' reaſonable Creatures do owe Obedience to him as their Creator, yet they could never have attained the Reward of Life, but by ſome voluntary Condeſcenſion on God's Part, which he hath been pleaſed to expreſs by way of Covenant.

II. The firſt Covenant made with Man was a Covenant of Works, wherein Life was promiſed to Adam, and in him to his Poſterity, upon Condition of Perfect and Perſonal Obedience.

III. Man by his Fall having made himſelf uncapable of Life by that Covenant, the Lord was pleaſed to make a Second, commonly call'd the Covenant of Grace; wherein he freely offereth unto Sinners Life and Salvation by Jeſus Chriſt, requiring of them Faith in him, that they may be ſaved, and promiſing to give unto all thoſe that are ordained unto Life, his Holy Spirit to make them willing and able to believe.

IV. This Covenant of Grace is frequently ſet forth in Scripture, by the Name of a Teſtament, in reference to the Death of Jeſus Chriſt, the Teſtator, and to the everlaſting Inheritance, with all things belonging to it, therein bequeathed.

V. Although this Covenant hath been differently, and variouſly adminiſtred in reſpect of Ordinances and Inſtitutions in the time of the Law, and ſince the coming of Chriſt in the Fleſh; yet for the Subſtance and Efficacy of it, to all its ſpiritual and ſaving Ends, it is one and the ſame; upon the Account of which various Diſpenſations it is called the Old and New Teſtament.

CHAP. VIII.

Of Chriſt the Mediator.

I. IT pleaſed God in his Eternal Purpoſe, to chuſe and ordain the Lord Jeſus, his only begotten Son, according to a Covenant made between them both, to be the Mediator between God and Man: The Prophet, Prieſt and King, the Head and Saviour of his Church, the Heir of all things, and Judge of the World, unto whom he did from all Eternity give a People to be his Seed, and to be by him, in time, redeemed, called, juſtified, ſanctified and glorifyed.

II. The Son of God, the ſecond Perſon in the Trinity, being very and eternal God, of one Subſtance, and equal with the Father, did, when the fulneſs of Time was come, take upon him Man's Nature with all the Eſſential Properties, and common Infirmities thereof, yet without ſin, being conceived by the Power of the Holy Ghoſt in the Womb of the Virgin Mary of her Subſtance: So that two whole perfect and diſtinct Natures, the Godhead and the Manhood were inſeparably joined together in one Perſon without Converſion, Compoſition or Confuſion; which Perſon is very God and very Man, yet one Chriſt, the only Mediator between God and Man.

III. The Lord Jeſus in his humane Nature, thus united to the Divine, in the Perſon of the Son, was ſanctified and anointed with the Holy Spirit above Meaſure, having in him all the Treaſures of Wiſdom and Knowledge, in whom it pleaſed the Father that all fulneſs ſhould dwell, to the end that being holy, harmleſs, undefiled and full of Grace and Truth, he might be throughly furniſhed to execute the Office of a Mediator and Surety, which Office he took not unto himſelf; but was thereunto called by his Father, who alſo put all Power and Judgment into his Hand, and gave him Commandment to execute the ſame.

IV. This Office the Lord Jeſus Chriſt did moſt willingly undertake; which that he might diſcharge, he was made under the Law, and did perfectly fulfil it, and underwent the Puniſhment due to us, which we ſhould have born and ſuffered, being made ſin and a curſe for us, enduring moſt grievous Torments immediately from God in his Soul, and moſt painful Sufferings in his Body, was crucified and died, was buried, and remain'd under the Power of death, yet ſaw no Corruption; on the 3d day he aroſe from the dead with the ſame Body, in which he ſuffered, with which alſo he aſcended into Heaven, and there ſitteth at the right hand of his Father, making Interceſſion, and ſhall return to judge Men and Angels at the end of the World.

V. The Lord Jeſus by his perfect Obedience, and Sacrifice of himſelf, which he, through the Eternal Spirit, once offered up unto God, hath fully ſatisfied the Juſtice of God, and purchaſed not only Reconciliation, but an everlaſting Inheritance in the Kingdom of Heaven, for all thoſe whom the Father hath given unto him.

VI. Altho' the Work of Redemption was not actually wrought by Chriſt, till after his Incarnation, yet the Virtue, Efficacy and Benefits thereof, were communicated unto the Elect in all Ages ſucceſſively from the beginning of the World, in and by thoſe Promiſes, Types and Sacrifices, wherein he was revealed and ſignified to be the Seed of the Woman, which ſhould bruiſe the Serpent's Head, and the Lamb ſlain from the beginning of the World, being yeſterday and to day the ſame, and for ever.

VII. Chriſt in the Work of Mediation acteth according to both Natures, by each Nature doing that which is proper to it ſelf; yet by reaſon of the Unity of the Perſon, that which is proper to one Nature is ſometimes in Scripture, attributed unto the Perſon denominated by the other Nature.

VIII. To all thoſe for whom Chriſt has purchaſed Redemption, he doth certainly and effectually apply and communicate the ſame, making Interceſſion for them, and revealing unto them in and by the Word, the Myſteries of Salvation, effectually perſwading them by his Spirit to believe and obey, and governing their Heart, by his Word and Spirit, overcoming all their Enemies, by his Almighty Power and Wiſdom, in ſuch Manner and Ways, as are moſt conſonant to his wonderful and unſearchable Diſpenſation.

CHAP. IX.

Of Free-Will.

I. GOD hath endued the Will of Man with that Natural Liberty and Power of Acting upon Choice, that it is neither forced, nor, by any abſolute Neceſſity of Nature, determined to do Good or Evil.

II. Man in his State of Innocency had Freedom and Power to Will and to Do that which was Good and well-pleaſing to God; but yet mutably, ſo that he might fall from it.

III. Man by his Fall into a State of Sin, hath wholly loſt all Ability of Will to any Spiritual Good, accompanying Salvation, ſo as a Natural Man being altogether averſe from that Good, and dead in ſin, is not able by his own ſtrength to convert himſelf or to prepare himſelf thereunto.

IV. When God converts a Sinner, and tranſlates him into the State of Grace, he freeth him from his natural Bondage under Sin, and by his Grace alone enables him freely to Will and to Do that which is Spiritually Good; yet ſo, as that, by reaſon of his remaining Corruption, he doth not perfectly nor only Will that which is Good, but doth that which is alſo Evil.

V. The Will of Man is made Perfectly and Immutably Free to Good alone, in the State of Glory only.

CHAP. X.

Of Effectual Calling.

I. ALL thoſe whom God hath prædeſtinated unto Life, and thoſe only, he is pleaſed in his appointed and accepted Time effectually to call by his Word aud Spirit, out of that State of Sin and Death, in which they are by Nature, to Grace and Salvation by Jeſus Chriſt, inlightning their Minds Spiritually and Savingly to underſtand the Things of God, taking away their Heart of Stone, and giving unto them an Heart of Fleſh, renewing their Wills, and by his Almighty Power determining them to that which is Good, and effectually drawing them to Jeſus Chriſt: Yet ſo, as they come moſt Freely, being made willing by his Grace.

II. This effectual Call is of God's Free and Special Grace alone, not from any thing at all foreſeen in Man, who is altogether Paſſive therein, until being quickned and renewed by the Holy Spirit, he is thereby enabled to anſwer this Call and to embrace the Grace offered and conveyed in it.

III. Elect Infants dying in Infancy, are Regenerated and Saved by Chriſt, who worketh when, and where, and how he pleaſeth: So alſo are all other Elect Perſons, who are uncapable of being outwardly called by the Miniſtry of the Word.

IV. Others not elected, altho' they may be called by the Miniſtry of the Word, and may have ſome common Operations of the Spirit, yet not being effectually drawn by the Father; they neither do nor can come unto Chriſt, and therefore cannot be ſaved; much leſs can Men, not profeſſing the Chriſtian Religion, be ſaved in any other way whatſoever, be they never ſo diligent to frame their Lives according to the Light of Nature, and the Law of that Religion they do profeſs: And to aſſert and maintain that they may, is very pernicious and to be deteſted.

CHAP. XI.

Of Juſtification.

I. THoſe whom God effectually calleth, he alſo freely Juſtifieth, not by infuſing Righteouſneſs into them, but by pardoning their Sins, and by accounting and accepting their Perſons, as Righteous, not for any thing wrought in them, or done by them, but for Chriſt's ſake alone; nor by imputing Faith its ſelf, the act of Believing, or any other Evangelical Obedience to them, as their Righteouſneſs, but by imputing Chriſt's Active Obedience unto the whole Law, and Paſſive Obedience in his Sufferings and Death, for their whole and ſole Righteouſneſs, they receiving and reſting on him and his Righteouſneſs by Faith, which Faith they have not of themſelves, it is the Gift of God.

II. Faith thus receiving and reſting on Chriſt, and his Righteouſneſs is the alone Inſtrument of Juſtification; yet it is not alone in the Perſon juſtified, but is ever accompanied with all other ſaving Graces, and is no dead Faith, but worketh by Love.

III. Chriſt by his Obedience and Death did fully diſcharge the Debt of all thoſe that are juſtified, and did, by the Sacrifice of himſelf in the Blood of his Croſs, undergoing in their ſtead the Penalty due unto them, make a proper, real, and full Satisfaction to God's Juſtice in their Behalf: Yet inaſmuch, as he was given by the Father for them, and his Obedience and Satisfaction accepted in their ſtead, and both freely, not for any thing in them, their Juſtification is only of free Grace, that both the exact Juſtice and rich Grace of God might be glorified in the Juſtification of Sinners.

IV. God did from all Eternity decree to juſtifie all the Elect, and Chriſt did in the fulneſs of time dye for their Sins, and riſe again, for their Juſtification: Nevertheleſs they are not juſtified perſonally, until the Holy Spirit doth in due time actually apply Chriſt unto them.

V. God doth continue to forgive the Sins of thoſe that are juſtified, and altho' they can never fall from the State of Juſtification, yet they may by their Sins fall under God's Fatherly Diſpleaſure: And, in that Condition, they have not uſually the Light of his Countenance reſtored unto them, until they humble themſelves, confeſs their Sins, beg Pardon, and renew their Faith and Repentance.

VI. The Juſtification of Believers under the Old Teſtament was in all theſe Reſpects, one and the ſame with the Juſtification of Believers under the New Teſtament.

CHAP. XII.

Of Adoption.

I. ALL thoſe that are juſtified, God vouchſafeth in and for his only Son Jeſus Chriſt to make Partakers of the Grace of Adoption, by which they are taken into the number and enjoy the Liberties and Priviledges of the Children of God, have his Name put upon them, receive the Spirit of Adoption, have Acceſs to the Throne of Grace with Boldneſs, are enabled to cry Abba Father, are pitied, protected, provided for, and chaſtned by him, as by a Father yet never caſt off, but ſealed to the Day of Redemption, and inherit the Promiſes, as Heirs of Everlaſting Salvation.

CHAP. XIII.

Of Sanctification.

I. THey that are effectually called and regenerated being united to Chriſt, having a new Heart, and a new Spirit created in them, thro' the Virtue of Chriſt's Death and Reſurrection, are alſo further Sanctified really and perſonally, through the ſame Virtue, by his Word and Spirit dwelling in them, the Dominion of the whole Body of Sin is deſtroy'd, and the ſeveral Luſts thereof are more and more weakned and mortified, and they more and more quickned and ſtrengthened in all ſaving Graces, to the practice of all true Holineſs, without which no Man ſhall ſee the Lord.

II. This Sanctification is throughout in the whole Man, yet imperfect in this Life; there abide ſtill ſome Remnants of Corruption in every part, whence ariſeth a continual and irreconcileable War, the Fleſh luſting againſt the Spirit, and the Spirit againſt the Fleſh.

III. In which War, altho' the remaining Corruption, for a time, may much prevail, yet thro' the continual ſupply of Strength from the ſanctifyng Spirit of Chriſt, the Regenerate part doth overcome, and ſo the Saints grow in Grace, perfecting Holineſs in the fear of God.

CHAP. XIV.

Of Saving Faith.

I. THE Grace of Faith, whereby the Elect are enabled to believe to the ſaving of their Souls, is the Work of the Spirit of Chriſt in their Hearts, and is ordinarily wrought by the Miniſtry of the Word; by which alſo, and by the Adminiſtration of the Seals, Prayer and other Means, it is increaſed and ſtrengthened.

II. By this Faith, a Chriſtian believeth to be true, whatſoever is revealed in the Word; for the Authority of God himſelf ſpeaketh therein, and acteth differently upon that which each particular Paſſage thereof containeth, yielding Obedience to the Commands, trembling at the Threatnings, and embracing the Promiſes of God for this Life, and that which is to come. But the principal Acts of ſaving Faith are accepting, receiving, and reſting upon Chriſt alone for Juſtification, Sanctification and eternal Life, by Virtue of the Covenant of Grace.

III. This Faith altho' it be different in Degrees, and may be weak or ſtrong, yet it is in the leaſt Degree of it, different in the Kind or Nature of it (as is all other ſaving Grace) from the Faith and common Grace of temporary Believers; and, therefore, tho' it may be many times aſſailed and weakned, yet it gets the Victory, growing up in many to the attainment of a full Aſſurance through Chriſt, who is both the Author and Finiſher of our Faith.

CHAP. XV.

Of Repentance unto Life and Salvation.

I. SUch of the Elect as are converted at riper Years, having ſometime lived in the ſtate of Nature, and therein ſerved divers Luſts and Pleaſures, God in their effectual Calling giveth them Repentance unto Life.

II. Whereas there is none that doth Good and ſinneth not, and the beſt of Men may through the power and deceitfulneſs of their Corruptions dwelling in them, with the prevalency of Temptation, fall into great Sins and Provocations; God hath in the Covenant of Grace mercifully provided that Believers ſo ſinning and falling be renewed, through Repentance unto Salvation.

III. This ſaving Repentance is an Evangelical Grace, whereby a Perſon being by the Holy Ghoſt made ſenſible of the manifold Evils of his Sin, doth by Faith in Chriſt humble himſelf for it with godly ſorrow,. deteſtation of it, and ſelf-abhorrency, praying for Pardon and ſtrength of Grace, with a purpoſe and endeavour by ſupplies of the Spirit, to walk before God unto all well-pleaſing in all things.

IV. As Repentance is to be continued through the whole Courſe of our Lives, upon the account of the Body of Death and the Motions thereof; ſo 'tis every Man's Duty to repent of his particular known Sins particularly.

V. Such is the Proviſion which God hath made, through Chriſt, in the Covenant of Grace, for the preſervation of Believers unto Salvation, that altho' there is no ſin ſo ſmall, but it deſerves Damnation; yet there is no ſin ſo great, that it ſhall bring Damnation on them, who truly repent; which makes the conſtant preaching of Repentance neceſſary.

CHAP. XVI.

Of Good Works.

I. Good Works are only ſuch as God hath commanded in his holy Word, and not ſuch as, without the warrant thereof, are deviſed by Men out of blind Zeal, or upon any pretence of good Intentions.

II. Theſe good Works done in Obedience to God's Commandments, are the Fruits and Evidences of a true and lively Faith; and by them Believers manifeſt their Thankfulneſs, ſtrengthen their Aſſurance, edifie their Brethren, adorn the Profeſſion of the Goſpel, ſtop the Mouths of the Adverſaries, and glorifie God, whoſe Workmanſhip they are created in Chriſt Jeſus thereunto, that having their Fruit unto Holineſs, they may have the End, eternal Life.

III. Their Ability to do good Works, is not at all of themſelves, but wholly from the Spirit of Ghriſt. And that they may be enabled thereunto, beſides the Graces they have already received, there is required an actual Influence of the ſame Holy Spirit, to work in them to will and to do of his good Pleaſure; yet are they not hereupon to grow negligent, as if they were not bound to perform any Duty, unleſs upon a ſpecial Motion of the Spirit, but they ought to be diligent in ſtirring up the Grace of God that is in them.

IV. They who in their Obedience attain to the greateſt height which is poſſible in this Life, are ſo far from being able to ſupererogate, and to do more than God requires, as that they fall ſhort of much which in Duty they are bound to do.

V. We cannot by our beſt Works merit Pardon of Sin, or eternal Life at the Hand of God, by reaſon of the great diſproportion that is between them and the Glory to come, and the infinite diſtance that is between us and God, whom by them we can neither profit, nor ſatisfie for the Debt of our former Sins; but when we have done all we can, we have done but our Duty, and are unprofitable Servants: And becauſe, as they are good they proceed from his Spirit, and as they are wrought by us, they are defiled and mixed with ſo much Weakneſs and Imperfection, that they cannot endure the Severity of God's Judgment.

VI. Yet notwithſtanding, the Perſons of Believers being accepted through Chriſt, their good Works alſo are accepted in him, not as tho' they were in this Life wholly unblameable and unreprovable in God's ſight, but that he looking upon them in his Son is pleaſed to accept and reward that which is ſincere, although accompanied with many Weakneſſes and Imperfections.

VII. Works done by unregenerate Men, although, for the Matter of them, they may be things, which God commands, and of good uſe both to themſelves and to others: Yet becauſe they proceed not from an Heart purified by Faith, nor are done in a right manner according to the Word, nor to a right End, the Glory of God; they are therefore ſinful and cannot pleaſe God, nor make a Man meet to receive Grace from God; and yet their neglect of them is more ſinful and diſpleaſing to God.

CHAP. XVII.

Of the Perſeverance of the Saints.

I. They whom God hath accepted in his Beloved, effectually called and ſanctified by his Spirit, can neither totally nor finally fall away from the ſtate of Grace, but ſhall certainly perſevere therein to the End, and be eternally ſaved.

II. This Perſeverance of the Saints depends not upon their own free-will, but upon the immutability of the Decree of Election, from the free and unchangeable Love of God the Father upon the Efficacy of the Merit and Interceſſion of Jeſus Chriſt, and Union with him, the Oath of God, the abiding of his Spirit, and the Seed of God within them, and the Nature of the Covenant of Grace; from all which ariſeth alſo the certainty and Infallibility thereof.

III. And although they may, through the temptation of Satan, and of the World, the prevalency of Corruption remaining in them, and the neglect of the means of their Preſervation fall into grievous Sins, and for a time continue therein, whereby they incur God's Diſpleaſure, and grieve his Holy Spirit, come to have their Graces and Comforts impaired, have their Hearts hardened, and their Conſciences wounded, hurt and ſcandalize others, and bring temporal Judgments upon themſelves; yet they are and ſhall be kept by the Power of God through Faith unto Salvation.

CHAP. XVIII.

Of the Aſſurance of Grace and Salvation.

I. Although Temporary Believers and other unregenerate Men may vainly deceive themſelves with falſe Hopes, and carnal Preſumptions of being in the Favour of God, and State of Salvation, which hope of theirs ſhall periſh, yet ſuch as truly believe in the Lord Jeſus and love him in Sincerity, endeavouring to walk in good Conſcience before him, may, in this Life, be certainly aſſured, that they are in the State of Grace, and may rejoyce in the Hope of the Glory of God, which Hope ſhall never make them aſhamed.

II. This Certainty is not a bare conjectural and probable Perſwaſion, grounded upon a fallible Hope, but an infallible aſſurance of Faith, founded on the Blood and Righteouſneſs of Chriſt, revealed in the Goſpel; and alſo upon the inward Evidence of thoſe Graces, unto which Promiſes are made, and on the immediate Witneſs of the Spirit, teſtifying our Adoption, and as a Fruit thereof, leaving the Heart more Humble and Holy.

III. This infallible Aſſurance doth not ſo belong to the Eſſence of Faith, but that a true Believer may wait long, and conflict with many Difficulties before he be Partaker of it; yet being enabled by the Spirit to know the Things which are freely given him of God, he may without extraordinary Revelation, in the right uſe of ordinary Means attain thereunto: And therefore it is the Duty of every one to give all diligence to make his Calling and Election ſure, that thereby his Heart may be enlarged in Peace and Joy in the Holy Ghoſt, in Love and Thankfulneſs to God, and in Strength and Cheerfulneſs in the Duties of Obedience, the proper Fruits of this Aſſurance; ſo far is it from inclining Men to Looſeneſs.

IV. True Believers may have the Aſſurance of their Salvation diverſe ways ſhaken, diminiſh'd, and intermitted, as by Negligence in preſerving of it, by falling into ſome ſpecial Sin, which woundeth the Conſcience and grieveth the Spirit, by ſome ſudden or vehement Temptation, by God's withdrawing the Light of his Countenance, ſuffering even ſuch as fear him to walk in Darkneſs, and to have no Light, yet are they neither utterly deſtitute of that Seed of God, and Life of Faith, that Love of Chriſt and the Brethren, that Sincerity of Heart, and Conſcience of Duty, out of which by the Operation of the Spirit, this Aſſurance may, in due time, be revived, and by the which, in the mean time, they are ſupported from utter Deſpair.

CHAP. XIX.

Of the Law of God.

I. GOD gave to Adam a Law of Univerſal Obedience written in his Heart, and a particular Precept of not eating the Fruit of the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil, as a Covenant of Works, by which he bound him, and all his Poſterity to perſonal, entire, exact and perpetual Obedience, promiſed Life upon the fulfilling and threatned Death upon the Breach of it, and endued him with Power and Ability to keep it.

II. This Law, ſo written in the Heart, continued to be a perfect Rule of Righteouſneſs after the Fall of Man, and was delivered by God on Mount Sinai in Ten Commandments, and written in two Tables; the four firſt Commandments containing our Duty towards God, and the other ſix our Duty to Man.

III. Beſides this Law commonly called Moral, God was pleaſed to give to the People of Iſrael, as a Church under Age, Ceremonial Laws, containing ſeveral Typical Ordinances, partly of Worſhip, prefiguring Chriſt, his Graces, Actions Sufferings and Benefits, and partly holding forth divers Inſtructions of Moral Duties: All which Ceremonial Laws being appointed only to the time of Reformation, are by Jeſus Chriſt the true Meſſiah, and only Law-giver, who was furniſhed with Power from the Father for that end, abrogated and taken away.

IV. To them alſo he gave ſundry Judicial Laws, which expired together with the State of that People, not obliging any now by Virtue of that Inſtitution, their general Equity only being ſtill of Moral uſe.

V. The Moral Law doth for ever bind all, as well juſtified Perſons, as others, to the Obedience thereof; and that not only in regard of the Matter contained in it, but alſo in reſpect of the Authority of God the Creator, who gave it; neither doth Chriſt in the Goſpel, any ways diſſolve, but much ſtrengthen this Obligation.

VI. Altho' true Believers be not under the Law as a Covenant of Works, to be thereby juſtified, or condemned; yet it is of great Uſe to them as well as to others, in that, as a Rule of Life, informing them of the Will of God and their Duty, and directs and binds them to walk accordingly, diſcovering alſo the ſinful Pollutions of their Natures, Hearts and Lives, ſo as examining themſelves thereby, they may come to further Conviction of, Humiliation for, and Hatred againſt Sin, together with a clearer ſight of the need they have of Chriſt and the Perfection of his Obedience. It is likewiſe of uſe to the Regenerate, to reſtrain their Corruptions, in that it forbids Sin, and the threatnings of it ſerve to ſhew what even their Sins deſerve, and what Afflictions in this Life they may expect for them, altho' freed from the Curſe thereof threatned in the Law. The Promiſes of it in like manner ſhews them God's Approbation of Obedience, and what Bleſſings they may expect upon performance thereof, altho' not as due to them by the Law as a Covenant of Works; ſo as a Man's doing Good, and refraining from Evil, becauſe the Law encourageth to the one, and deterreth from the other, is no Evidence of his being under the Law, and not under Grace.

VII. Neither are the fore-mentioned Uſes of the Law, contrary to the Graces of the Goſpel, but do ſweetly comply with it, the Spirit of Chriſt ſubduing and enabling the Will of Man to do that Freely and Cheerfully, which the Will of God revealed in the Law requireth to be done.

CHAP. XX.

Of the Goſpel and of the Extent of the Grace thereof.

I. THE Covenant of Works, being broken by Sin, and made unprofitable unto Life, God was pleaſed to give unto the Elect the Promiſe of Chriſt the Seed of the Woman, as the means of calling them, and begetting in them Faith and Repentance: In this Promiſe, the Goſpel, as to the Subſtance of it was revealed, and was therein effectual for the Converſion and Salvation of Sinners.

II. This Promiſe of Chriſt and Salvation by him, is revealed only in and by the Word of God; neither do the Works of Creation or Providence, with the Light of Nature, make diſcovery of Chriſt, or of Grace by him, ſo much as in a general or obſcure way; much leſs, that Men deſtitute of the Revelation of him by the Promiſe or Goſpel, ſhould be enabled thereby to attain ſaving Faith or Repentance.

III. The Revelation of the Goſpel unto Sinners, made in diverſe Times, and by ſundry Parts, with the Addition of Promiſes and Precepts, for the Obedience required therein, as to the Nations and Perſons to whom it is granted, is meerly of the Sovereign Will and Good Pleaſure of God, not being annexed by Virtue of any Promiſe to the due improvement of Mens Natural Abilities, by Vertue of Common Light received without it, which none ever did make or can ſo do. And therefore, in all Ages, the preaching of the Goſpel hath been granted unto Perſons and Nations, as to the extent or ſtraitning of it in great Variety according to the Council of the Will of God.

IV. Altho' the Goſpel be the only outward Means of revealing Chriſt and ſaving Grace, and is, as ſuch, abundantly ſufficient thereunto; yet that Men, who are dead in Treſpaſſes, may be born again, quickned or regenerated, there is, moreover neceſſary an effectual, irreſiſtible work of the Holy Ghoſt upon the whole Soul for the producing in them a Spiritual Life, without which no other Means are ſufficient for their Converſion unto God.

CHAP. XXI.

Of Chriſtian Liberty, and Liberty of Conſcience.

I. THE Liberty which Chriſt hath purchaſed for Believers under the Goſpel, conſiſts in their Freedom from the Guilt of Sin, the condemning Wrath of God, the Rigour and Curſe of the Law, and in their being delivered from this preſent Evil World, Bondage to Satan, and Dominion of Sin, from the Evil of Afflictions, the Fear and Sting of Death, the Victory of the Grave, and everlaſting Damnation, as alſo in their free Acceſs to God, and their yielding Obedience unto him not out of ſlaviſh Fear, but a Child-like Love, and willing Mind: All which were common alſo to Believers under the Law, for the Subſtance of them, but under the New Teſtament the Liberty of Chriſtians is further enlarged in their Freedom from the Yoke of the Ceremonial Law, the whole legal Adminiſtration of the Covenant of Grace to which the Jewiſh Church was ſubjected, and in greater boldneſs of Acceſs to the Throne of Grace, and in fuller Communications of the free Spirit of God, than Believers under the Law did ordinarily partake of.

II. God alone is Lord of the Conſcience, and hath left it free from the Doctrines and Commandments of Men, which are, in any thing contrary unto his Word; or not contained in it; ſo that to believe ſuch Doctrines, or to obey ſuch Commands, out of Conſcience, is to betray true Liberty of Conſcience, and the requiring of an implicit Faith; and an abſolute blind Obedience, is to deſtroy Liberty of Conſcience and Reaſon alſo.

III. They who upon pretence of Chriſtian Liberty do practiſe any Sin, or cheriſh any Luſt, as they do thereby pervert the main deſign of the Grace of the Goſpel to their own Deſtruction, ſo they wholly deſtroy the End of Chriſtian Liberty, which is, that being delivered out of the hands of our Enemies, we might ſerve the Lord without fear in Holineſs and Righteouſneſs before him all the Days of our Life.

CHAP. XXII.

Of Religious Worſhip, and of the Sabbath-day.

I. THE Light of Nature ſheweth that there is a God, who hath Lordſhip and Sovereignty over all, is juſt, good and doth good unto all, and is therefore to be feared, loved, prais'd, call'd upon, truſted in, and ſerved with all the Heart, and all the Soul, and with all the Might: But the acceptable way of worſhipping the true God is inſtituted by himſelf, and ſo limited by his own revealed Will, that he may not be worſhipped according to the Imaginations and Devices of Men, or the Suggeſtions of Satan, under any viſible Repreſentations, or any other way not preſcribed in the Holy Scripture.

II. Religious Worſhip is to be given to God the Father, Son and Holy Ghoſt, and to him alone, not to Angels, Saints or any other Creatures, and ſince the Fall not without a Mediator, nor in the Mediation of any other but of Chriſt alone.

III. Prayer with Thankſgiving being one ſpecial part of Natural Worſhip, is by God requir'd of all Men; but that it may be accepted, it is to be made in the name of the Son, by the help of his Spirit, according to his Will, with Underſtanding, Reverence, Humility, Fervency, Faith, Love and Perſeverance: and when with others, in a known Tongue.

IV. Prayer is to be made for Things Lawful, and for all ſorts of Men living, or that ſhall live hereafter, but not for the dead, nor for thoſe, of whom, it may be known, that they have ſinned the Sin unto Death.

V. The reading of the Scriptures, preaching and hearing of the Word of God, ſinging of Pſalms, as alſo the Adminiſtration of Baptiſm, and the Lord's Supper, are all parts of Religious Worſhip of God, to be performed in Obedience unto God with Underſtanding, Faith, Reverence and Godly Fear. Solemn Humiliations, with Faſtings and Thankſgiving upon ſpecial Occaſions are, in their ſeveral Times and Seaſons to be uſed in an Holy and Religious manner.

VI. Neither Prayer, nor any other part of Religious Worſhip, is now under the Goſpel, either tyed unto, or made more acceptable by any Place, in which it is performed, or towards which it is directed: But God is to be worſhipped every where in Spirit and in Truth, as in private Families daily, and in ſecret, each one by himſelf, ſo more ſolemnly in the publick Aſſemblies, which are not careleſly nor wilfully to be neglected, or forſaken, when God by his Word or Providence calleth thereunto.

VII. As it is of the Law of Nature, that in general a Proportion of time by God's Appointment be ſet apart for the Worſhip of God; ſo by his Word in a poſitive, moral, and perpetual Commandment, binding all Men in all Ages, he hath particularly appointed one Day in ſeven for a Sabbath to be kept holy unto him, which from the beginning of the World to the Reſurrection of Chriſt, was the laſt Day of the Week, and from the Reſurrection of Chriſt was changed into the firſt Day of the Week, which in Scripture is called the Lord's Day, and is to be continued unto the end of the World, as a Chriſtian Sabbath, the obſervation of the laſt Day of the Week being aboliſhed.

VIII. This Sabbath is then kept Holy unto the Lord, when Men after a due preparing of their Hearts, and ordering their common Affairs before-hand, do not only obſerve an holy Reſt all the day from their own Works, Words, and Thoughts about their worldly Employments and Recreations, but alſo are taken up the whole time, in the publick and private Exerciſes of his Worſhip, and in the Duties of Neceſſity and Mercy.

CHAP. XXIII.

Of Lawful Oaths and Vows.

I. A Lawful Oath, is a part of Religious Worſhip, wherein the Perſon ſwearing in Truth, Righteouſneſs and Judgment, ſolemnly calleth God to witneſs what he aſſerteth, or promiſeth, and to judge him according to the Truth or Falſhood of what he ſweareth.

II. The name of God only is that by which Men ought to ſwear, and therein it is to be uſed with all Holy Fear and Reverence: Therefore to ſwear vainly or raſhly by that Glorious and Dreadful Name, or to ſwear at all, by any other thing, is ſinful and to be abhorred. Yet, as in matters of Weight and Moment an Oath is warranted by the Word of God; under the New Teſtament, as well as under the Old; ſo a Lawful Oath being impoſed by Lawful Authority in ſuch Matters ought to be taken.

III. Whoſoever taketh an Oath warranted by the Word of God, ought duly to conſider the weightineſs of ſo ſolemn an Act, and therein to avouch nothing, but what he is fully perſuaded is the Truth; neither may any Man bind himſelf by Oath to any thing, but what is good and juſt, and what he believeth ſo to be, and what he is able and reſolved to perform. Yet it is a ſin to refuſe an Oath touching any thing that is good and juſt, being lawfully impoſed by Authority.

IV. An Oath is to be taken in the plain and common Senſe of the Words, without Equivocation, or mental Reſervation: It cannot oblige to ſin; but in any thing, not ſinful, being taken, it binds to performance, although to a Man's own hurt; nor is it to be violated, although made to Hereticks or Infidels.

V. A Vow, which is not to be made to any Creature, but God alone, is of the like nature with a Promiſſory Oath, and ought to be made with the like Religious Care, and to be performed with the like Faithfulneſs.

VI. Popiſh Monaſtical Vows of perpetual ſingle Life, profeſſed Poverty, and regular Obedience, are ſo far from being Degrees of higher Perfection, that they are ſuperſtitious and ſinful Snares, in which no Chriſtian may intangle himſelf.

CHAP. XXIV.

Of the Civil Magiſtrate.

I. GOD the Supreme Lord and King of all the World, hath ordained Civil Magiſtrates to be under him, over the People for his own Glory and the publick Good: And to this End has armed them with the Power of the Sword for the Defence and Encouragement of them that do good, and for the Puniſhment of evil Doers.

II. It is lawful for Chriſtians to accept, and execute the Office of a Magiſtrate, when called thereunto: In the management whereof, as they ought eſpecially to maintain Piety, Juſtice and Peace, according to the wholſom Laws of each Common-wealth, ſo for that End, they may lawfully now under the New Teſtament wage War upon juſt and neceſſary Occaſion.

III. They who upon pretence of Chriſtian Liberty ſhall oppoſe any lawful Power, or the lawful Exercices of it, reſiſt the Ordinance of God; and for their publiſhing of ſuch Opinions, or maintaining of ſuch Practices, as are contrary to the Light of Nature, or to the known Principles of Chriſtianity, whether concerning Faith, Worſhip, or Converſation, or to the Power of Godlineſs, or ſuch erronious Opinions or Practices, as either in their own nature, or in the manner of publiſhing or maintaining them, are deſtructive to the external Peace and Order which Chriſt hath eſtabliſhed in the Church, they may lawfully be called to Account and proceeded againſt by the Cenſures of the Church, and by the Power of the Civil Magiſtrate; yet in ſuch Differences about the Doctrines of the Goſpel, or Ways of the Worſhip of God, as may befal Men, exerciſing a good Conſcience, manifeſting it in their Converſation, and holding the Foundation, and duly obſerving the Rules of Peace and Order, there is no Warrant for the Magiſtrate to abridge them of their Liberty.

IV. It is the Duty of People to pray for Magiſtrates, to honour their Perſons, to pay them Tribute and other Dues, to obey their lawful Commands, and to be ſubject to their Authority for Conſcience ſake. Infidelity or Difference in Religion doth not make void the Magiſtrates juſt and legal Authority, nor free the People from their due Obedience to him: From which Eccleſiaſtical Perſons are not exempted, much leſs has the Pope any Power or Juriſdiction over them in their Dominions, or over any of their People, and leaſt of all to deprive them of their Dominions or Lives, if he ſhall judge them to be Hereticks, or upon any other Pretence whatſoever.

CHAP. XXV.

Of Marriage.

I. MArriage is to be between one Man and one Woman: Neither is it lawful for any Man to have more than one Wife, nor for any Woman to have more than one Husband at the ſame time.

II. Marriage was ordained for the mutual help of Husband and Wife, for the increaſe of Mankind with a legitimate Iſſue, and of the Church with an holy Seed, and for preventing of Uncleanneſs.

III. It is lawful for all ſorts of People to marry, who are able with Judgment to give their Conſent. Yet it is the Duty of Chriſtians to marry in the Lord; and, therefore, ſuch as profeſs the true Reformed Religion ſhould not marry with Infidels, Papiſts, or other Idolaters: Neither ſhould ſuch as are godly be unequally yoaked, by marrying ſuch as are wicked in their Life, or maintain damnable Hereſie.

IV. Marriage ought not to be within the Degrees of Conſanguinity or Affinity forbidden in the Word; nor can ſuch inceſtuous Marriages ever be made lawful by any Law of Man or Conſent of Parties, ſo, as thoſe Perſons may live together, as Man and Wife.

CHAP.

CHAP. XXVI.

Of the Church.

I. THE Catholick or Univerſal Church, which is inviſible, conſiſts of the whole Number of the Elect, that have been, are or ſhall be gathered into One under Chriſt the Head thereof, and is the Spouſe, the Body, the Fulneſs of him that filleth All in All.

II. The whole Body of Men, throughout the World, profeſſing the Faith of the Goſpel, and Obedience unto God by Chriſt, according unto it, not deſtroying their own Profeſſion, by any Errors everting the Foundation, or Unholineſs of Converſation, they and their Children with them are and may be called the Viſible Catholick Church of Chriſt, although, as ſuch, it is not intruſted with any Officers, to rule or govern over the whole Body.

III. The pureſt Churches under Heaven, are ſubject both to Mixture and Error, and ſome have ſo degenerated, as to become no Churches of Chriſt, but Synagogues of Satan: Nevertheleſs, Chriſt always hath had, and ever ſhall have a viſible Kingdom in this World, to the end thereof, of ſuch as believe in him, and make Profeſſion of his Name.

IV. There is no other Head of the Church but the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; nor can the Pope of Rome in any Senſe be Head thereof, but is that Antichriſt, that Man of Sin, and Son of Perdition that exalteth himſelf in the Church againſt Chriſt, and all that is called God, whom the Lord ſhall deſtroy with the Brightneſs of his coming.

V. As the Lord, in his Care and Love towards his Church, hath in his infinite wiſe Providence exerciſed it with great variety in all Ages, for the good of them that love him and his own Glory: So, according to his Promiſe, we expect that in the latter Days, Antichriſt being deſtroyed, the Jews called, and the Adverſaries of the Kingdom of his dear Son broken, the Churches of Chriſt being enlarged, and edified through a free and plentiful Communication of Light and Grace, ſhall enjoy in this World a more quiet, peaceable, and glorious Condition than they have enjoyed.

CHAP. XXVII.

Of the Communion of Saints.

ALL Saints that are united to Jeſus Chriſt their Head by his Spirit and Faith, although they are not made thereby one Perſon with him, have Fellowſhip in his Graces, Sufferings, Death, Reſurrection and Glory: And being united to one another in Love, they have Communion in each others Gifts and Graces, and are obliged to the performance of ſuch Duties, publick and private, as do conduce to their mutual good both in the inward and outward Man.

II. All Saints are bound to mention an Holy Fellowſhip and Communion in the Worſhip of God, and in performing ſuch other Spiritual Services, as tend to their mutual Edification, as alſo in relieving each other in outward things according to their ſeveral Abilities and Neceſſities; which Communion, though eſpecially to be exerciſed by them in the Relations, wherein they ſtand, whether in Families or Churches, yet as God offereth Opportunity, is to be extended unto all thoſe, who, in every Place, call upon the Name of the Lord Jeſus.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Of the Sacraments.

I. SAcraments are Holy Signs and Seals of the Covenant of Grace, immediately inſtituted by Chriſt, to repreſent him and his Benefits, and to confirm our Intereſt in him, and ſolemnly to engage us to the Service of God in Chriſt, according to his Word.

II. There is in every Sacrament a Spiritual Relation, or Sacramental Union between the Sign and the Thing ſignified; whence it comes to paſs that the Names and Effects of the one are attributed to the other.

III. The Grace which is exhibited in or by the Sacraments, rightly uſed, is not conferred by any Power in them, neither doth the Efficacy of a Sacrament depend upon the Piety or Intention of him that doth adminiſter it, but upon the Work of the Spirit and the Word of Inſtitution, which contains, together with a Precept authorizing the Uſe thereof, a Promiſe of Benefit to worthy Receivers.

IV. There be only two Sacraments ordained by Chriſt our Lord in the Goſpel; that is to ſay Baptiſm and the Lord's Supper; neither of which may be diſpenſed by any but by a Miniſter of the Word lawfully called.

V. The Sacraments of the Old Teſtament, in regard of the Spiritual Things thereby ſignified and exhibited, were for ſubſtance the ſame with thoſe of the New.

CHAP. XXIX.

Of Baptiſm.

I. BAptiſm is a Sacrament of the New-Teſtament, ordained by Jeſus Chriſt, to be unto the Party baptized a Sign and Seal of the Covenant of Grace, of his ingraffing into Chriſt, of Regeneration, of Remiſſion of Sins, and of his giving up unto God thro' Jeſus Chriſt, to walk in newneſs of Life; which Ordinance is by Chriſt's own Appointment to be continued in his Church until the end of the World.

II. The outward Element to be uſ'd in this Ordinance is Water, wherewith the Party is to be baptized in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghoſt, by a Miniſter of the Goſpel lawfully called thereunto.

III. Dipping of the Perſon into the Water is not neceſſary, but Baptiſm is rightly adminiſtred by pouring or ſprinkling Water upon the Perſon.

IV. Not only thoſe that do actually profeſs Faith in, and Obedience unto Chriſt, but alſo the Infants of one or both believing Parents are to be baptized and thoſe only.

V. Altho' it be a great Sin to contemn or neglect this Ordinance, yet Grace and Salvation are not ſo inſeparably annexed to it, as that no Perſon can be regenerated or ſaved without it; or that all that are baptized, are undoubtedly regenerated.

VI. The Efficacy of Baptiſm is not tyed to that moment of Time, wherein it is adminiſtred; yet notwithſtanding by the right uſe of this Ordinance, the Grace promiſed is not only offered, but really exhibited and conferred by the Holy Ghoſt to ſuch (whether of Age or Infants) as that Grace belongeth unto, according to the Counſel of God's own Will, in his appointed time.

VII. Baptiſm is but once to be adminiſtred to any Perſon.

CHAP. XXX.

Of the Lord's Supper.

I. OUR Lord Jeſus in the Night when he was betray'd, inſtituted the Sacrament of his Body and Blood, call'd the Lord's Supper, to be obſerved in his Churches to the end of the World, for the perpetual Remembrance and ſhewing forth of the Sacrifice of himſelf in his Death, the ſealing of all Benefits thereof unto true Believers, their Spiritual Nouriſhment, and Growth in him, their further Engagement in and to all Duties, which they owe unto him, and to be a Bond and Pledge of their Communion with him, and with each other.

II. In this Sacrament Chriſt is not offered up to his Father, nor any real Sacrifice made at all for Remiſſion of Sin of the Quick or Dead, but only a Memorial of that one offering up of himſelf upon the Croſs, once for all, and a Spiritual Oblation of all poſſible Praiſe unto God for the ſame; ſo that the Popiſh Sacrifice of the Maſs (as they call it) is moſt abominably injurious to Chriſt's own only Sacrifice, the alone Propitiation for all the Sins of the Elect.

III. The Lord Jeſus hath in this Ordinance appointed his Miniſters to declare his Word of Inſtitution to the People, to pray and bleſs the Elements of Bread and Wine, and thereby to ſet them apart from a Common, to an Holy Uſe, and to take and break the Bread, to take the Cup and (they communicating alſo themſelves) to give both to the Communicants, but to none, who are not then preſent in the Congregation.

IV. Private Maſſes, or receiving the Sacrament by a Prieſt, or any other alone, as likewiſe the denyal of the Cup to the People, worſhipping the Elements, the lifting them up, or carrying them about for Adoration, and the reſerving them for any pretended Religious Uſe, are all contrary unto the Nature of this Sacrament and to the Inſtitution of Chriſt.

V. The outward Elements in this Sacrament duly ſet apart to the Uſes ordained by Chriſt, have ſuch Relation to him crucified, as that truly yet Sacramentally only, they are ſometimes call'd by the Name of the things they repreſent, to wit, The Body and Blood of Chriſt; albeit in Subſtance and Nature they ſtill remain truly and only Bread and Wine, as they were before.

VI. The Doctrine which maintains a Change of the Subſtance of Bread and Wine into the Subſtance of Chriſt's Body and Blood (commonly called Tranſubſtantiation) by Conſecration of a Prieſt, or by any other way, is repugnant not to the Scripture alone, but even to common Senſe and Reaſon, overthroweth the Nature of a Sacrament, and hath been, and is the Cauſe of manifold Superſtitions, yea, of groſs Idolatries.

VII. Worthy Receivers outwardly partaking of the viſible Elements in this Sacrament, do, then, alſo, inwardly by Faith, really and indeed, yet not carnally and corporally, but ſpiritually receive and feed upon Chriſt crucified, and all Benefits of his Death; the Body and Blood of Chriſt being then not corporally or carnally in, with, or under the Bread and Wine, yet as really, but ſpiritually preſent to the Faith of Believers in that Ordinance, as the Elements themſelves are to their outward Senſes.

VIII. All ignorant and ungodly Perſons, as they are unfit to enjoy Communion with Chriſt, ſo are they unworthy of the Lord's Table, and cannot without great Sin againſt him, whilſt they remain ſuch, partake of theſe Holy Myſteries, or be admitted thereunto; yea, whoſoever ſhall receive unworthily, are guilty of the Body and Blood of the Lord, eating and drinking Judgment unto themſelves.

CHAP. XXXI.

Of the State of Man after Death, and of the Reſurrection of the Dead.

I. THE Bodies of Men, after death, return to Duſt, and ſee Corruption, but their Souls (which neither dye nor ſleep) having an Immortal Subſiſtence, immediately return to God, who gave them; the Souls of the Righteous being then made perfect in Holineſs, are received into the higheſt Heavens, where they behold the Face of God in Light and Glory, waiting for the full Redemption of their Bodies: And the Souls of the wicked are caſt into Hell, where they remain in Torment and utter Darkneſs, reſerved to the Judgment of the Great Day: Beſides theſe two Places of Souls ſeperated from their Bodies, the Scripture acknowledgeth none.

II. At the laſt Day, ſuch as are found alive ſhall not dye but be changed; and all the dead ſhall be raiſed up with the ſelf-ſame Bodies, and none other, altho' with different Qualities, which ſhall be united again to their Souls for ever.

III. The Bodies of the unjuſt ſhall by the Power of Chriſt be raiſed to diſhonour; the Bodies of the Juſt by his Spirit unto Honour, and be made conformable unto his own glorious Body.

CHAP. XXXII.

Of the Laſt Judgment.

I. GOD hath appointed a Day wherein he will judge the World in Righteouſneſs by Jeſus Chriſt, to whom all Power and Judgment is given of the Father; in which Day, not only the Apoſtate Angels ſhall be judged, but likewiſe all Perſons that have lived upon Earth, ſhall appear before the Tribunal of Chriſt to give an Account of their Thoughts, Words and Deeds, and to receive according to what they have done in the Body, whether Good or Evil.

II. The end of God's appointing this Day, is for the manifeſtation of the Glory of his Mercy in the Eternal Salvation of the Elect, and of his Juſtice in the Damnation of the Reprobate, who are wicked and diſobedient: For, then ſhall the Righteous go into everlaſting Life, and receive that fulneſs of Joy and Glory, with everlaſting Reward in the Preſence of the Lord; but the wicked, who know not God, and obey not the Goſpel of Jeſus Chriſt, ſhall be caſt into eternal Torments, and be puniſhed with everlaſting Deſtruction from the Preſence of the Lord, and from the Glory of his Power.

III. As Chriſt would have us to be certainly perſwaded, that there ſhall be a Judgment, both to deter all Men from Sin, and for the greater Conſolation of the godly in their Adverſity; ſo will he have that Day unknown to Men, that they may ſhake off all carnal Security, and be always watchful, becauſe they know not at what hour the Lord will come, and may be ever prepared to ſay, Come Lord Jeſus, come quickly. Amen.

The Second PART.

THE DISCIPLINE

Practiſed in the Churches of New-England.

Nihil ſine, nihil contra, nihil præter, nihil ultra, divinam Scripturam, Admittendum. P. Martyr.

§ 1. THE Churches of New-England enjoying ſo much Reſt and Growth as they had now ſeen, for ſome Sevens of Years, it was, upon many Accounts, neceſſary for them to make ſuch a Declaration of the Church-Order, wherein the good hand of God had moulded 'em, as might convey and ſecure the like Order unto the following Generations. Next unto the Bible, which was the profeſſed, perpetual and only Directory of theſe Churches, they had no Platform of their Church-Government, more exact, than their famous John Cotton's well-known Book of, The Keys; which Book endeavours to lay out the juſt Lines and Bounds of all Church Power, and ſo defines the Matter; That as in the State there is a Diſperſion of Powers into ſeveral Hands, which are to concur in all Acts of Common Concernment; from whence ariſeth the healthy Conſtitution of a Common-wealth: In like ſort, he aſſigns the Powers in the Church unto ſeveral Subjects, wherein the united Light of Scripture and of Nature have placed them, with a very Satisfactory Diſtribution. He aſſerts, That a Presbyterated Society of the Faithful, hath within its ſelf a compleat Power of Self-Reformation, or, if you will, of Self-Preſervation, and may within its ſelf manage its own Choices of Officers, and Cenſures of Delinquents. Now a ſpecial Statute-Law of our Lord, having excepted Women and Children from enjoying any Part of this Power, he finds only Elders and Brethren to be the Conſtituent Members, who may act in ſuch a Sacred Corporation; the Elders, he finds the firſt Subject entruſted with Government, the Brethren endowed with Priviledge, inſomuch, that tho' the Elders only are to rule the Church, and without them, there can be no Elections, Admiſſions, or Excommunications, and they have a Negative upon the Acts of the Fraternity, as well as 'tis they only that have the Power of Authoritative Preaching and Adminiſtring the Sacraments; yet the Brethren have ſuch a Liberty, that without their Conſent nothing of common Concernment may be impoſed upon them. Neverthleſs becauſe particular Churches of Elders and Brethren may abuſe their Power with manifold Miſcarriages, he Aſſerts the neceſſary Communion of Churches in Synods, who have Authority to determine, declare and injoin, ſuch Things as may rectifie the Male-Adminiſtrations, or any Diſorders, Diſſentions and Confuſions of the Congregations, which fall under their Cognizance: But ſtill ſo, as to leave unto the Particular Churches themſelves the Formal Acts, which are to be done purſuant unto the Advice of the Council; upon the ſcandalous and obſtinate Refuſal whereof, the Council may determine, to withdraw Communion from them, as from thoſe who will not be counſelled againſt a notorious Miſmanagement of the Juriſdiction which the Lord Jeſus Chriſt has given them. This was the Deſign of that judicious Treatiſe, wherein was contained the ſubſtance of our Church-Diſcipline; and whereof I have one remarkable thing to relate, as I go along. That great Perſon, who afterwards proved one of the greateſt Scholars, Divines and Writers in this Age, then under the prejudices of Converſation, ſet himſelf to write a Confutation of this very Treatiſe, Of the Keys; but having made a conſiderable Progreſs in his Undertaking, ſuch was the Strength of this unanſwerable Book, that inſtead of his confuting it, it conquered him; and the Book of, The Keys was happily ſo bleſſed of God for the conveyance of Congregational Principles into the now opened Mind of this learned Man, that he not only wrote in Defence of Mr. Cotton againſt Mr. Cawdry, but alſo expos'd himſelf to more than a little Sorrow and Labour, all his Days, for the maintaining of thoſe Principles. Upon which occaſion, the words of the Doctor [Owen in his Review of the true Nature of Schiſm] are; this way of impartial examining all Things by the Word, and laying aſide all prejudicate Reſpects unto Perſons or preſent Traditions, is a Courſe that I would admoniſh all to beware of, who would avoid the Danger of being made (what they call) Independents. Having ſaid thus much of that Book, all that I ſhall add concerning it is, That the famous Mr. Rutherford himſelf, in his Treatiſe intituled, A Survey of the Spiritual Antichriſt, has theſe Words; Mr. COTTON in his Treatiſe of the Keys of the Kingdom of Heaven, is well ſound in our way, if he had given ſome more power to Aſſemblies and in ſome leſſer points. But it was convenient, the Churches of New-England ſhould have a Syſtem of their Diſcipline, extracted from the Word of God, and exhibited unto them, with a more effectual, acknowledged and eſtabliſhed Recommendation: And nothing but a Council was proper to compoſe the Syſtem, The Reader is now to expect, a Council at Cambridge: And in truth, another ſort of Council, than that ſham Council of Trent, whereof one that was preſent, wrote this Account unto the Emperor Maximilian II. We daily ſaw hungry and needy Biſhops come to Trent. Youths, for the moſt part, given to Luxury and Riot, hired only to give their Voice, as the People pleaſed. They were both unlearn'd and ſimple, yet fit for the purpoſe, in regard of their impudent Boldneſs. When theſe were added unto the Pope's old Flatterers, Iniquity triumph'd; it was impoſſible to determine any thing, but as they pleaſed. The Council ſeemed not to conſiſt of Biſhops, but of diſguiſed Maſquers; not of Men, but of Images, ſuch as Dædalus made, moved by Nerves none of their own. They were hireling Biſhops which as Country Bag-pipes, could not ſpeak, but as Breath was put into them. The Difference between the Biſhops now to aſſemble at Cambridge, and the Biſhops which then made ſuch a noiſe by their Conventicle at Trent, was in truth not much leſs than that between Angels and Devils.

§ 2. Wherefore, a Bill was preferred unto the general Court in the Year 1646. for the calling of a Synod, whereby, a Platform of Church Diſcipline, according to the Direction of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in his bleſſed Word, might moſt advantagiouſly be compoſed and publiſhed. The Magiſtrates in the general Court, paſſed the Bill, but the Deputies had their little Scruples, how far the Civil Authority might interpoſe in matters of ſuch Religious and Eccleſiaſtical Cognizance; and whether Scaffolds might not now be raiſed, by the means whereof the Civil Authority ſhould pretend hereafter to impoſe an Uniformity, in ſuch Inſtances which had better be left at Liberty and Variety. It was reply'd, that it belonged unto Magiſtrates, by all rational ways to encourage Truth and Peace among their People; and that the Council now called by the Magiſtrates was to proceed but by way of Council, with the beſt Light which could be fetched from the Word of God; but the Court would be after all free, as they ſaw cauſe to approve or to reject what ſhould be offered.

After all, tho' the Objections of the Deputies were thus anſwered, yet in Compliance with ſuch as were not yet ſatisfied, the Order for the calling of the intended Aſſembly was directed only in the form of a Motion, and not of a Command, unto the Churches. But certain Perſons come lately from England, ſo inflamed the Zeal for Liberty of Conſcience among the People, that all this Compliance of the Authority could not remove the Fear of ſome Churches, leſt ſome Invaſion of that Liberty were threatned, by a Clauſe in the order of the Court which intimated; That what ſhould be preſented by the Synod, the Court would give ſuch allowance, as would be meet, unto it. The famous and leading Church of Boſton particularly, was enſnared ſo much by this Fear, that upon the Lord's Day, when the Order of the Court was firſt communicated unto them, they conld not come unto an immediate Reſolution of ſending any Delegates unto the Synod; but Mr. Norton, then of Ipſwich, at Boſton Lecture the Thurſday following, preached an elaborate Sermon unto a vaſt Auditory, on Moſes and Aaron kiſſing each other in the Mount of God: And in that Sermon, he ſo repreſented the Nature and Power of Synods, and the Reſpect owing from Churches to Rulers calling for Synods, that on the next Lord's Day, the Church voted the ſending of three Meſſengers, with their Elders unto this Aſſembly. Indeed the happy Experience of New-England has taken away from its Churches, all occaſion for any Complaint, like that of Luther's; Mihi conciliorum nomen, penè tam ſuſpectum & inviſum, quàm nomen Liberi Arbitrii.

§ 3. It being ſo near Winter before the Synod could convene, that few of the Miniſters invited from the other Colonies could be preſent at it, they now ſat but fourteen Days; and then adjourned unto the eighth of June, in the Year enſuing. Nevertheleſs at their firſt Seſſion, there was an occaſion which they took to conſider and examine an important Caſe; and it came to this Reſult.

A PROPOSITION about the Magiſtrate's Power in Matters of Religon.

‘THE Civil Magiſtrate in matters of Religion, or of the firſt Table, hath Power, civilly to command or forbid things reſpecting the outward Man which are clearly commanded or forbidden in the Word, and to inflict ſuitable Puniſhments, according to the Nature of the Tranſgreſſions againſt the ſame.

Several Arguments with Teſtimonies for the Confirmation of this Poſition, annexed thereunto were, afterwards printed at London in the Year 1654. accompanied with a Diſcourſe of Mr. Tho. Allen, wherein this Doctrine was further explained, and I would hope ſo explained, that if ſo renowned a Saint, as the famous Martin, who, to the Death renounced Communion with the Synods, which had perſwaded the Emperor to employ the Civil Sword againſt the Gnoſtick Priſcillianiſts, had been alive, even he would not have altogether diſallowed the Deſires of theſe good Men, to ſee the Civil Magiſtrate employing his Power to diſcountenance Profane and Wicked Hereſies.

But the Platform of Church-Diſcipline to be commended unto the Churches, was the main Chance which the Aſſembly was to mind; in order whereunto they directed three eminent Perſons, namely, Mr. John Cotton, Mr. Richard Mather and Mr. Ralph Partridge, each of them to draw up a Scriptural Model of Church-Government; unto the end, that out of thoſe, there might be one educed, which the Synod might after the moſt filing thoughts upon it, ſend abroad. When the Synod met, at the time to which they had adjourned, the Summer proved ſo ſickly that a delay of one Year more was given to their Undertaking; but at laſt the deſired Platform of Church-Diſcipline was agreed upon, and the Synod broke up, with ſinging the Song of Moſes and the Lamb, in the fifteenth Chapter of the Revelation. Adding another ſacred Song from the nineteenth Chapter of that Book; which is to be found metrically paraphraſed in the New-England Pſalm-Book: So it was preſented unto the General Court, in the Month of October 1648.

And the Court moſt thankfully Accepted and Approved of it. It now follows.

Church-Diſcipline:

Gather'd out of the Word of GOD, and agreed upon by the Elders and Meſsengers of the Churches aſſembled in the SYNOD, at Cambridge, in New-England. To be preſented to the Churches and General Court for their Conſideration and Acceptance in the Lord, the Eighth Month, Anno 1649.

CHAP. I.

Of the Form of Church-Government; and that it is One, Immutable and Preſcribed in the Word.

Eccleſiaſtical Polity, or Church-Government or Diſcipline, is nothing elſe but that Form and Order that is to be obſerved in the Church of Chriſt upon Earth, both for the Conſtitution of it, and all the Adminiſtrations, that therein are to be performed.

2. Church-Government is conſidered in a double reſpect, either in regard of the Parts of Government themſelves, or neceſſary Circumſtances thereof. The Parts of Government are preſcribed in the Word, because the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the King and Law-giver in his Church, is no leſs faithful in the Houſe of God, than was Moſes, who from the Lord delivered a Form and Pattern of Government to the Children of Iſrael in the Old Teſtament; and the Holy Scriptures are now alſo ſo perfect, as they are able to make the Man of God Perfect, and throughly furniſhed unto every good Work; and therefore doubtleſs to the well-ordering of the Houſe of God.

Heb. 3. 5, 6. Exo. 25. 40. 2 Tim. 3. 16

3. The Parts of Church-Government, are all of them exactly deſcribed in the Word of God, being parts or means of inſtituted Worſhip according to the ſecond Commandment, and therefore to continue one and the ſame unto the Appearing of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as a Kingdom that cannot be ſhaken, until he ſhall deliver it up unto God, even to the Father. So that it is not left in the Power of Men, Officers, Churches, or any State in the World to add, or diminiſh or alter any thing in the leaſt meaſure therein.

4. The neceſſary Circumſtances, as Time and Place, &c. belonging unto Order and Decency, are not ſo left unto Men, as that under pretence of them, they may thruſt their own Inventions upon the Churches, being circumſcribed in the Word with many general Limitations, where they are determined with reſpect of the Matter to be neither worſhip it ſelf, nor Circumſtances ſeperable from worſhip. pect of their End, they muſt be done unto Edification; in reſpect of the Manner, decently and in order, according to the Nature of the Things themſelves, and Civil and Church Cuſtom. Doth not even Nature its ſelf teach you? Yea, they are in ſome ſort determined particularly, namely, that they be done in ſuch a manner as, all circumſtances conſidered, is moſt expedient for Edification: So, as if there be no Error of Man concerning their Determination, the determining of them is to be accounted, as if it were Divine.

CHAP. II.

Of the Nature of the Catholick Church in general, and in ſpecial of a particular viſible Church.

1. THE Catholick Church is the whole Company of thoſe, that are elected, redeemed, and in time effectually called from the State of Sin and Death, unto a State of Grace and Salvation in Jeſus Chriſt.

2. This Church is either Triumphant or Militant. Triumphant, the number of them, who are glorified in Heaven: Militant, the number of them, who are conflicting with their Enemies upon Earth.

3. This Militant Church is to be conſider'd as inviſible and viſible. Inviſible in reſpect of their Relation, wherein they ſtand to Chriſt, as a Body unto the Head, being united unto him by the Spirit of God, and Faith in their Hearts. Viſible, in reſpect of the Profeſſion of their Faith, in their Perſons, and in particular Churches. And ſo, there may be acknowledged an univerſal viſible Church.

4. The Members of the Militant viſible Church, conſidered either, as not yet in Church-Order, or walking according to the Church-Order of the Goſpel. In order, and ſo beſides the Spiritual Union and Communion common to all Believers, they enjoy moreover an Union and Communion Eccleſiaſtical Political.

So we deny an Univerſal viſible Church.

5. The State of the Members of the Militant viſible Church, walking in order, was either before the Law, Oeconomial, that is, in Families; or under the Law, National; or ſince the coming of Chriſt, only Congregational. (The Term Independent, we approve not) therefore neither National, Provincial, nor Claſſical.

Gen. 18. 19.
Exod. 19. 6.

6. A Congregational-Church is by the Inſtitution of Chriſt a part of the Militant viſible Church, conſiſting of a company of Saints by calling, united into one Body by an Holy Covenant, for the Publique Worſhip of God, and the mutual Edification of one another in the Fellowſhip of the Lord Jeſus.

continuance therein, thro' the defect of the Execution of Diſcipline and juſt Cenſures, doth not immediately diſſolve the Being of a Church, as appears in the Church of Iſrael, and the Churches of Galatia and Corinth, Pergamus and Thyatira.

4. The Matter of the Church, in reſpect of its Quantity, ought not to be of greater Number, than may ordinarily meet together conveniently in one place; nor ordinarily fewer than may conveniently carry on Church-work. Hence when the Holy Scripture makes mention of the Saints combined into a Church Eſtate in a Town or City, where was but one Congregation, it uſually calleth thoſe Saints [the Church] in the ſingular Number, as the Church of the Theſſalonians, the Church of Smyrna, Philadelphia, &c. but when it ſpeaketh of the Saints in a Nation or Province, wherein there were ſundry Congregations, it frequently and uſually calleth them by the name of [Churches] in the plural Number, as the Churches of Aſia, Galatia, Macedonia, and the like: Which is further confirmed by what is written of ſundry of thoſe Churches in particular, how they were aſſembled and met together the whole Church in one place, as the Church at Jeruſalem, the Church at Antioch, the Church at Corinth and Cenchrea, tho' it were more near to Corinth, it being the Port thereof, and anſwerable to a Village, yet being a diſtinct Congregation from Corinth, it had a Church of its own as well as Corinth had.

Nor can it with Reaſon be thought but that every Church appointed and ordained by Chriſt, had a Miniſtry appointed and ordained for the ſame, and yet plain it is that there were no ordinary Officers appointed by Chriſt for any other than Congregational Churches; Elders being appointed to feed not all Flocks, but the particular Flock of God, over which the Holy Ghoſt had made them Overſeers, and that Flock they muſt attend even the whole Flock: And one Congregation being as much as any ordinary Elders can attend, therefore there is no greater Church than a Congregation, which may ordinarily meet in one place.

CHAP. IV.

Of the Form of the viſible Church, and of Church Covenant.

1. Saints by calling muſt have a viſible Political Union among themſelves, or elſe they are not yet a particular Church, as thoſe Similitudes hold forth, which the Scripture makes uſe of to ſhew the Nature of particular Churches; as a Body, a Building, Houſe, Hands, Eyes, Feet and other Members, muſt be united, or elſe (remaining ſeperate) are not a Body. Stones, Timber, tho' ſquared, hewen and poliſhed, are not an Houſe, until they are compacted, and united: So Saints or Believers in Judgment of Charity, are not a Church, unleſs orderly knit together.

1 Tim. 3. 15
Eph. 2. 22.
1 Cor. 12. 15, 16, 17.
Rev. 2.

2. Particular Churches cannot be diſtinguiſhed one from another, but by their Forms. Epheſus is not Smyrna, nor Pergamus Thyatira, but each one a diſtinct Society of it ſelf, having Officers of their own, which had not the Charge of others: Virtues of their own, for which others are not praiſed: Corruptions of their own, for which others are not blamed.

3. This Form is the viſible Covenant, Agreement or Conſent, whereby they give up themſelves unto the Lord, to the obſerving of the Ordinances of Chriſt together in the ſame Society, which is uſually call'd the Church-Covenant: For we ſee not otherwiſe how Members can have Church-Power over one another mutually. The comparing of each particular Church to a City, and unto a Spouſe, ſeemeth to conclude not only a Form, but that that Form, is by way of Covenant. The Covenant, as it was that which made the Family of Abraham and Children of Iſrael to be a Church and People unto God, ſo is it that which now makes the ſeveral Societies of Gentile Believers to be Churches in theſe Days.

4. This voluntary Agreement, Conſent or Covenant (for all theſe are here taken for the ſame) altho' the more expreſs and plain it is, the more fully it puts us in mind of our mutual Duty; and ſtirreth us up to it, and leaveth leſs room for the queſtioning of the Truth of the Church-Eſtate of a Company of Profeſſors, and the Truth of Memberſhip of particular Perſons; yet we conceive the Subſtance of it is kept, where there is a real Agreement and Conſent of a Company of Faithful Perſons to meet conſtantly together in one Congregation, for the Publick Worſhip of God, and their mutual Edifica-

Edification: Which real Agreement and Conſent they do expreſs by their conſtant Practice in coming together for the publick Worſhip of God, and by their religious ſubjection unto the Ordinances of God there: The rather, if we do conſider how Scripture-Covenants have been entred into, not only expreſly by word of Mouth, but by Sacrifice, by Hand-writing and Seal; and alſo ſometimes by ſilent Conſent, without any Writing or Expreſſion of Words at all.

5. This Form being by mutual Covenant, it followeth, it is not Faith in the Heart, nor the Profeſſion of that Faith, nor Cohabitation, nor Baptiſm. 1. Not Faith in the Heart, becauſe that is inviſible. 2. Not a bare Profeſſion, becauſe that declareth them no more to be Members of one Church than another. 3. Not Cohabitation, Atheiſts or Infidels may dwell together with Believers. 4. Not Baptiſm, becauſe it preſuppoſeth a Church-Eſtate, as Circumciſion in the Old Teſtament, which gave no Being to the Church, the Church being before it, and in the Wilderneſs without it. Seals preſuppoſe a Covenant already in being. One Perſon is a compleat Subject of Baptiſm, but one Perſon is uncapable of being a Church.

6. All Believers ought, as God giveth them Opportunity thereunto, to endeavour to join themſelves unto a particular Church, and that in reſpect of the Honour of Jeſus Chriſt, in his Example and Inſtitution, by the profeſſed acknowledgment of, and ſubjection unto the Order and Ordinances of the Goſpel: As alſo in reſpect of their good of Communion founded upon their viſible Union, and contained in the Promiſes of Chriſt's ſpecial Preſence in the Church; whence they have Fellowſhip with him, and in him, one with another: Alſo in the keeping of them in the way of God's Commandments, and recovering of them in caſe of wandering, (which all Chriſt's Sheep are ſubject to in this Life) being unable to return of themſelves; together with the Benefit of their mutual Edification, and of their Poſterity, that they may not be cut off from the Privilege of the Covenant. Otherwiſe, if a Believer offends, he remains deſtitute of the Remedy provided in that behalf. And ſhould all Believers neglect this Duty of joining to all particular Congregations, it might follow thereupon, that Chriſt ſhould have no Viſible, Political Churches upon Earth.

Of the firſt Subject of Church-Power; or, to whom Church-Power doth firſt belong.

1. THe firſt Subject of Church-Power is either Supreme, or Subordinate and Miniſterial. The Supreme (by way of gift from the Father) is the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. The Miniſterial is either extraordinary, as the Apoſtles, Prophets and Evangeliſts; or ordinary, as every particular Congregational Church.

2. Ordinary Church Power, is either Power of Office, that is, ſuch as is proper to the Elderſhip; or Power of Privilege, ſuch as belongs to the Brotherhood. The latter is in the Bretheren formally and immediately from Chriſt, that is, ſo as it may be acted or exerciſed immediately by themſelves: The former is not in them formally or immediately, and therefore cannot be acted or exerciſed immediately by them, but is ſaid to be in them, in that they deſign the Perſons unto Office, who only are to act or to exerciſe this Power.

CHAP. VI.

Of the Officers of the Church, and eſpecially of Paſtors and Teachers.

1. A Church being a Company of People combined together by Covenant for the Worſhip of God, it appeareth thereby, that there may be the Eſſence and Being of a Church without any Officers, ſeeing there is both the Form and Matter of a Church; which is implied when it is ſaid, The Apoſtles Ordained Elders in every Church.

Act. 14. 23.

2. Neverthleſs, tho' Officers be not abſolutely neceſſary to the ſimple Being of Churches, when they be called; yet ordinarily to their Calling they are, and to their well-being: And therefore the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, out of his his tender Compaſſion, hath appointed and ordained Officers, which he would not have done, if they had not been uſeful and needful for the Church; yea, being aſcended up to Heaven, he received Gifts for Men, and gave Gifts to Men; whereof Officers for the Church are juſtly accounted no ſmall Parts, they being to continue to the end of the World, and for the perfecting of all the Saints.

3. Theſe Officers were either Extraordinary or Ordinary: Extraordinary, as Apoſtles, Prophets, Evangeliſts; Ordinary, as Elders and Deacons. The Apoſtles, Prophets, and Evangeliſts, as they were called extraordinarily by Chriſt, ſo their Office ended with themſelves: Whence it is that Paul directing Timothy, how to carry along Church-Adminiſtration, giveth no Direction about the Choice or Courſe of Apoſtles, Prophets or Evangeliſts, but only of Elders and Deacons; and when Paul was to take his laſt leave of the Church of Epheſus, he committed the Care of feeding the Church to no other, but unto the Elders of that Church. The like Charge does Peter commit to the Elders.

1 Tim.2.3. Phil. 1. 1. Acts 20. 17, 28. 1 Tim. 5. 17.

4. Of Elders (who are alſo in Scripture called Biſhops) ſome attend chiefly to the Miniſtry of the Word, as the Paſtors and Teachers; others attend eſpecially unto Rule, who are, therefore, called Ruling-Elders.

Eph. 4.11. Rom. 12. 7, 8. 1Cor.12.8. 1 Tim.4. 1, 2. Tit. 1. 9.

5. The Office of Paſtor and Teacher, appears to be diſtinct. The Paſtor's ſpecial Work is, to attend to Exhortation, and therein to Adminiſter a Word of Wiſdom: The Teacher is to attend to Doctrine, and therein to Adminiſter a Word of Knowledge: And either of them to Adminiſter, the Seals of that Covenant, unto the Diſpenſation whereof they are alike called; as alſo to execute the Cenſures, being but a kind of Application of the Word: The preaching of which, together with the Application thereof, they are alike charged withall.

6. Foraſmuch as both Paſtors and Teachers are given by Chriſt, for the perfecting of the Saints, and edifying of his Body; which Saints and Body of Chriſt is his Church: And therefore we account Paſtors and Teachers to be both of them Church-Officers, and not the Paſtor for the Church, and the Teacher only for the Schools: Tho' this we gladly acknowledge, that Schools are both lawful, profitable, and neceſſary, for the training up of ſuch in good Literature or Learning, as may afterwards be called forth unto Office of Paſtor or Teacher in the Church.

Of Ruling Elders and Deacons.

Rom. 12. 7, 8, 9. 1 Tim. 5. 17. 1 Cor. 12. 28. Heb.13.17. 1 Tim. 5. 17.

THE Ruling Elders Office is diſtinct from the Office of Paſtor and Teacher; the Ruling Elders are not ſo called to exclude the Paſtors and Teachers from Ruling, becauſe Ruling and Governing is common to theſe with the other; whereas attending to teach and preach the Word is peculiar unto the former.

1 Tim. 5. 17. 2 Chron. 23. 19. Rev.21.12. 1 Tim. 4. 14. Matth. 18. 17. 2 Cor. 2. 7,8. Acts 2. 6. Acts 21. 18, 22, 23. Acts 6.2,3. & 13. 15. 2Cor. 8.19. Heb. 13. 7, 17. 2 Theſſ. 2. 10, 11, 12. Acts 20. 28, 32. 1 Theſſ. 5. 12. Jam. 5. 14. Act. 20.20.

2. The Ruling Elder's Work is to join with the Paſtor and Teacher in thoſe Acts of Spiritual Rule, which are diſtinct from the Miniſtry of the Word and Sacraments committed to them: Of which ſort theſe be as followeth. 1. To open and ſhut the Doors of God's Houſe, by the admiſſion of Members approved by the Church; by Ordination of Officers choſen by the Church, and by Excommunication of notorious and obſtinate Offenders renounced by the Church, and by reſtoring, or Penitents forgiven by the Church. 2. To call the Church together when there is occaſion, and ſeaſonably to diſmiſs them again. 3. To prepare Matters in private, that in publick they may be carried an end with leſs trouble, and more ſpeedy diſpatch. 4. To moderate the carriage of all Matters in the Church aſſembled, as to propound Matters to the Church. To order the ſeaſon of Speech and Silence, and to pronounce Sentence according to the Mind of Chriſt, with the Conſent of the Church. 5. To be Guides and Leaders to the Church in all Matters whatſoever partaining to Church-Adminiſtrations and Actions. 6. To ſee that none in the Church live inordinately, out of Rank and Place without a Calling, or idlely in their Calling. 7. To prevent and heal ſuch Offences in Life or in Doctrine, as might corrupt the Church. 8. To feed the Flock of God with a Word of Admonition. 9. And as they ſhall be ſent for, to viſit and pray over their ſick Bretheren. 10. And at other times, as opportunity ſhall ſerve thereunto.

3. The Office of a Deacon is inſtituted in the Church by the Lord Jeſus: Sometimes they are called Helps. The Scripture telleth us how they ſhould be qualified. Grave, not double-tongued, not given to much Wine, not given to filthy Lucre. They muſt firſt be proved, and then uſe the Office of a Deacon, being found blameleſs. The Office and Work of a Deacon is to receive the Offerings of the Church, Gifts given to the Church, and to keep the Treaſury of the Church, and therewith to ſerve the Tables, which the Church is to provide for; as the Lord's-Table, the Table of the Miniſters, and of ſuch as are in Neceſſity, to whom they are to diſtribute in ſimplicity.

The inſtituting of all theſe Officers in the Church, is the Work of God himſelf, of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, of the Holy Ghoſt: And therefore ſuch Officers, as he hath not appointed, are altogether unlawful either to be placed in the Church, or to be retained therein, and are to be looked at as humane Creatures, meer Inventions and Appointments of Man, to the great diſhonour of Chriſt Jeſus, the Lord of his, the King of his Church, whether Popes, Cardinals, Patriarchs, Arch-Biſhops, Lord-Biſhops, Arch-Deacons, Officials, Commiſſaries, and the like. 8. We judge it much conducing to the well-being, and Communion of the Churches, that where it may conveniently be done, neighbour Churches be adviſed withal, and their Help be made uſe of in trial of Church-Officers, in order to their choice.

Cant. 8. 8, 9.

9. The choice of ſuch Church-Officers belongeth not to the civil Magiſtrate as ſuch, or Dioceſan Biſhops, or Patrons: For of theſe, or any ſuch like, the Scripture is wholly ſilent, as having any Power therein.

CHAP. IX.

Of Ordination and Impoſition of Hands.

Acts 13. 3. & 14. 23.

1 Tim. 5. 22.

1. CHurch-Officers are not only to be choſen by the Church, but alſo to be ordained by impoſition of Hands and Prayer, with which at the Ordination of Elders, Faſting alſo is to be joined.

Numb. 8. 10. Acts 6. 5, 6. & 13. 2, 3.

Acts 6. 5, 6. & 14. 23.

2. This Ordination, we account nothing elſe, but the ſolemn putting a Man into his Place and Office in the Church, whereunto he had Right before by Election: Being like the Inſtalling of a Magiſtrate in the Common-Wealth. Ordination therefore is not to go before, but to follow Election. The Eſſence and Subſtance of the outward calling of an ordinary Officer in the Church, does not conſiſt in his Ordination, but in his voluntary and free Election by the Church, and his accepting of that Election: Whereupon is founded that Relation, between Paſtor and Flock, between ſuch a Miniſter and ſuch a People. Ordination does not conſtitute an Officer, nor give him the Eſſentials of his Office. The Apoſtles were Elders, without impoſition of Hands by Men: Paul and Barnabas were Officers before that Impoſition of Hands, Acts 13. 3. The Poſterity of Levi were Prieſts and Levites, before Hands were laid on them by the Children of Iſrael.

1 Tim. 4. 10. Acts 13. 3. 1 Tim. 5. 22.

3. In ſuch Churches where there are Elders, Impoſition of Hands in Ordination, is to be performed by thoſe Elders.

Numb. 3. 10.

4. In ſuch Churches where there are no Elders, Impoſition of Hands may be performed by ſome of the Bretheren orderly choſen by the Church thereunto. For, if the People may elect Officers, which is the greater, and wherein the Subſtance of the Office doth conſiſt, they may much more (occaſion and need ſo requiring) impoſe Hands in Ordination; which is leſs, and but the accompliſhment of the other.

1 Tim. 4. 14. Acts 13. 3.

5. Nevertheleſs, in ſuch Churches where there are no Elders, and the Church ſo deſire, we ſee not why Impoſition of Hands may not be performed by the Elders of other Churches. Ordinary Officers laid Hands upon the Officers of many Churches: The Preſbytery at Epheſus laid Hands upon Timothy an Evangeliſt; the Preſbytery at Antioch laid Hands upon Paul and Barnabas.

1 Pet. 5. 2. Act. 20. 28.

6. Church-Officers are Officers to one Church, even that Particular over which the Holy Ghoſt hath made them Overſeers. Inſomuch as Elders are commanded to feed not all Flocks, but the Flock, which is committed to their Faith and Truſt, and dependeth upon them. Nor can conſtant reſidence at one Congregation be neceſſary for a Miniſter, no nor yet lawful, if he be not a Miniſter to one Congregation only, but to the Church univerſal; becauſe he may not attend one part only of the Church, to which he is a Miniſter, but he is called to attend unto all the Flock.

Act. 20. 28.

7. He that is clearly releaſed from his Office-relation unto that Church, whereof he was a Miniſter, cannot be looked at, as an Officer, nor perform any act of Office in any other Church, unleſs he be again orderly called unto Office: Which, when it ſhall be, we know nothing to hinder; but Impoſition of Hands alſo in his Ordination ought to be uſed towards him again: For ſo Paul the Apoſtle received Impoſition of Hands twice at leaſt from Ananias, Acts 9. 17. & 13. 3.

Of the Power of the Church and its Presbytery.

Pſ. 2. 6. Eph. 1. 21, 22. Iſa. 9. 6. Mat. 28. 18.

SUpreme and Lordly Power over all the Churches upon Earth doth only belong to Jeſus Chriſt, who is King of the Church, and the Head thereof. He hath the Government upon his Shoulders, and hath all Power given to him both in Heaven and Earth.

In chooſing their own Officers, whether Elders or Deacons. 2. In admiſſion of theſe Members; and therefore there is great Reaſon they ſhould have power to remove any from their Fellowſhip again. Hence, in caſe of offence, any Brother hath power to convince and admoniſh an offending Brother: And, in caſe of not hearing him, to take one or two more to ſet on the Admonition: And in caſe of not hearing them, to proceed to tell the Church: And as his Offence may require, the whole Church has power to proceed to the cenſure of him, whether by Admonition or Excommunication: And upon his Repentance to reſtore him again unto his former Communion.

The Holy Ghoſt frequently, yea, always, where it mentioneth Church-Rule, and Church Government, aſcribeth it to Elders: whereas the work and duty of the People is expreſſed in the Phraſe of obeying their Elders, and ſubmitting themſelves unto them in the Lord. So as it is manifeſt that an Organick or compleat Church, is a Body Politick, conſiſting of ſome that are Governours, and ſome that are govern'd in the Lord.

10. This Power of Government in the Elders doth not any wiſe prejudice the Power of Priviledge in the Brotherhood; as neither the Power of Privilege in the Brethren, doth prejudice the Power of Government in the Elders, but they may ſweetly agree together; as we may ſee in the Example of the Apoſtles, furniſh'd with the greateſt Church-Power, who took in the Concurrence and Conſent of the Brethren in Church-Adminiſtrations. Alſo that Scripture, 2 Cor. 2. 9. & 10. 6. do declare that what the Churches were to act and to do in theſe Matters, they were to do in a way of Obedience, and that not only to the direction of the Apoſtles, but alſo of their ordinary Elders.

11. From the Promiſes, namely, that the ordinary Power of Government belonging only to the Elders, Power of Priviledge remaining with the Brotherhood (as the Power of Judgment in Matters of Cenſure, and Power, of Liberty in Matters of Liberty) it followeth, That in an Organick Church and Right Adminiſtration, all Church-Acts proceed after the manner of a mixt Adminiſtration, ſo as no Church-Act can be conſummated, or perfected without the conſent of both.

CHAP. XI.

Of the Maintenance of Church-Officers.

1. THE Apoſtle concludes, that neceſſary and ſufficient Maintenance is due unto the Miniſters of the Word from the Law of Nature and Nations, from the Law of Moſes, the Equity thereof, as alſo the Rule of common Reaſon. Moreover the Scripture doth not only call Elders Labourers and Workmen, but alſo ſpeaking of them doth ſay that the Labourer is worthy of his Hire: And requires that he which is taught in the Word, ſhould communicate to him in all good Things, and mention it, as an Ordinance of the Lord, that they which preach the Goſpel, ſhould live of the Goſpel, and forbiddeth the muzling of the Mouth of the Ox, that treadeth out the Corn.

Gal. 6. 6.
1 Cor. 9. 9, 14.
1 Tim. 5. 18

2. The Scriptures alledged, requiring this Maintenance as a bounden Duty, and due Debt, and not as a matter of Alms and free Gift, therefore People are not at Liberty, to do or not to do, what and when they pleaſe in this Matter, no more than in any other commanded Duty, and Ordinance of the Lord; but ought of Duty to Miniſter of their Carnal Things, to them that labour among them in Word and Doctrine, as well as they ought to pay any other Workmen their Wages, and to diſcharge and ſatisfie their Debts, or to ſubmit themſelves to obſerve any other Ordinance of the Lord.

Rom. 15. 27
1 Cor. 9. 21.

3. The Apoſtle (Gal. 6. 6.) enjoyning that he which is taught communicate to him that teacheth in all good Things, doth not leave it Arbitrary, what or how much a Man ſhall give, or in what proportion, but even the latter, as well as the former is preſcribed and appointed by the Lord.

1 Cor. 16. 2.

4. Not only Members of Curches but all that are taught in the Word, are to contribute unto him that teacheth in all good Things. In caſe that Congregations are defective in their Contributions, the Deacons are to call upon them to do their Duty: If their Call, ſufficeth not, the Church by her Power is to require it of their Members; and where Church Power thro' the Corruption of Men doth not, or cannot attain the End, the Magiſtrate is to ſee that the Miniſtry be duly provided for, as appears from the commended Example of Nehemiah. The Magiſtrates are Nurſing-Fathers and Nurſing-Mothers, and ſtand charged with the Cuſtody of both Tables; becauſe it is better to prevent a Scandal, that it may not come, and eaſier alſo, than to remove it, when it is given. It's moſt ſuitable to rule, that by the Churche's Care each Man ſhould know his Proportion according to rule, what he ſhould do before he do it, that ſo his Judgment and Heart may be ſatisfied in what he doth, and juſt Offence prevented in what is done.

CHAP. XII.

Of the Admiſſion of Members into the Church.

1. THE Doors of the Churches of Chriſt upon Earth, do not by God's Appointment ſtand ſo wide open, that all ſorts of People Good and Bad, may freely enter therein at their Pleaſure, but ſuch as are admitted thereto, as Members, ought to be examin'd, and tryed firſt, whether they be fit and meet to be received into Church-Society or not. The Eunuch of Ethiopia before his Admiſſion, was examined by Philip, whether he did believe on Jeſus Chriſt with all his Heart. The Angel of the Church at Epheſus, is commended for trying ſuch as ſaid they were Apoſtles and were not. There is like reaſon for trying of them that profeſs themſelves to be Believers. The Officers are charged with the keeping of the Doors of the Church, and therefore are in a ſpecial manner to make tryal of the fitneſs of ſuch, who enter. Twelve Angels are ſet at the Gates of the Temple, leſt ſuch as were were Ceremonially Unclean ſhould enter thereinto.

2. The Things which are requiſite to be found in all Church-Members, Acts 2. 38. to 42. & 8. 37. are Repentance from Sin, and Faith in Jeſus Chriſt: And therefore theſe are the Things whereof Men are to be examined, at their Admiſſion into the Church, and which then they muſt profeſs and hold forth in ſuch ſort, as may ſatisfie Rational Charity that the Things are Mat. 3. 6. Acts 19.18. indeed. John Baptiſt admitted Men to Baptiſm confeſſing and bewailing their Sins: And of others it is ſaid, that they came and confeſſed, and ſhewed their Deeds.

3. The weakeſt meaſure of Faith is to be accepted in thoſe that deſire to Rom. 14. 1. be admitted into the Church, if Sincere, have the Subſtance of that Faith, Repentance and Holineſs, which is required in Church-Members; and ſuch have moſt need of the Ordinances for their Confirmation and Growth in Grace. The Lord Jeſus would not Mat. 12. 20. Iſa. 40. 11. quench the ſmoaking Flax, nor break the bruiſed Reed, but gather the tender Lambs in his Arms and carry them gently in his Boſom.

Such Charity and Tenderneſs is to be uſed, as the weakeſt Chriſtian, if Sincere, may not be excluded nor diſcouraged. Severity of Examination is to be avoided.

4. In caſe any thro' exceſſive Fear, or other Infirmity, be unable to make their perſonal Relation of their Spiritual Eſtate in Publick, it is ſufficient, that the Elders having received private Satisfaction, make Relation thereof in publick before the Church, they teſtifying their Aſſents thereunto: This being the way that tendeth moſt to Edification. But whereas Perſons are of greater Abilities, there it is moſt expedient, that they make their Relations Pſal. 66. 6. and Confeſſions perſonally with their own Mouth, as David profeſſeth of himſelf.

5. A perſonal and publick Confeſſion and Declaring of God's manner of working upon the Soul, is both Lawful, Expedient and Uſeful, in ſundry Reſpects and upon ſundry Grounds. Thoſe three thouſand, Acts 2. 37, 41. before they were admitted by the Apoſtles did manifeſt that they were pricked at the Heart by Peter's Sermon, together with earneſt Deſire to be delivered from their Sins, which now wounded their Conſciences, and their ready receiving of the Word of Promiſe and Exhortation. We are to be ready to render a Reaſon of the Hope 1 Pet. 3. 15. Heb. 11. 1. Eph. 1. 18. that is in us, to every one that asketh us; therefore we muſt be able and ready upon any Occaſion to declare and ſhew our Repentance for Sin, Faith unfeigned, and effectual Calling, becauſe theſe are the Reaſon of a well grounded Hope. I have not hidden thy Righteouſneſs from the great Congregation. Pſalm 40. 10.

6. This Profeſſion of Faith and Repentance, as it muſt be made by ſuch at their Admiſſion, that were never in Church Society before; ſo nothing hindereth but the ſame way alſo be performed by ſuch as have formerly been Members of ſome other Church, Mat. 3. 5, 6. Gal. 2. 4. 1 Tim. 5. 24 and the Church to which they now join themſelves as Members, may lawfully require the ſame. Thoſe three thouſand, Acts 2. which made their Confeſſion were Members of the Church of the Jews before; ſo were thoſe that were Baptiſed by John. Churches may Err in their Admiſſion; and Perſons regularly admitted, may fall into Offence. Otherwiſe, if Churches might obtrude their Members, or if Church Members might obtrude themſelves upon other Churches without due trial, the matter ſo requiring, both the Liberty of Churches would thereby be infringed in that they might not examine thoſe, concerning whoſe fitneſs for Communion they were unſatiſfied: And beſides the infringing of their Liberty the Churches themſelves would unavoidably be corrupted, and the Ordinances defiled, whilſt they might not refuſe, but muſt receive the Unworthy: Which is contrary unto the Scripture, teaching that all Churches are Siſters, and therefore equal. Cant. 8. 8.

7. The like Trial is to be required from ſuch Members of the Church as were born in the ſame, or received their Memberſhip, or were baptized in their Infancy, or Minority by Virtue of the Covenant of their Parents, when being grown up into Years of Diſcretion, they ſhall deſire to be made Partakers of the Lord's Supper: Unto which becauſe Holy Things muſt not be given unto the Unworthy, therefore it is requiſite, that theſe as well Math. 7. 6. 1 Cor. 11. 27. as others, ſhould come to their Trial and Examination, and manifeſt their Faith and Repentance by an open Profeſſion thereof, before they are received to the Lord's Supper, and otherwiſe not to be admitted thereunto. Yet theſe Church Members that were ſo born, or received in their Child-hood, before they are capable of being made Partakers of full Communion, have many Priviledges which others, (not Church-Members) have not; they are in Covenant with God, have the Seal thereof upon them, viz. Baptiſm; and ſo, if not Regenerated, yet are in a more hopeful way of attaining Regenerating Grace, and all the Spiritual Bleſſings both of the Covenant and Seal: They are alſo under Church-Watch, and conſequently ſubject to the Reprehenſions, Admonitions, and Cenſures thereof, for their Healing and Amendment, as need ſhall require.

CHAP. XIII.

Of Church-Members, their removal from one Church to another, and of Recommendation and Diſmiſſion.

1. CHurch-Members may not remove or depart from the Church, and ſo one from another as they pleaſe, nor without juſt and weighty cauſe, but Heb.10.25. ought to live and dwell together, foraſmuch as they are commanded not to forſake the aſſembling of themſelves together. Such Departure tends to the Diſſolution and Ruine of the Body, as the pulling of Stones and pieces of Timber from the Building, and of Members from the Natural Body tend to the Deſtruction of the whole.

2. It is, therefore, the Duty of Church-Members, in ſuch Times and Places, where Counſel may be had to conſult with the Church whereof they Pro.11.16 are Members, about their removal, that, accordingly, they having their Approbation, may be encouraged, or otherwiſe deſiſt. They who are join'd with Conſent, ſhould not depart without conſent, except forced thereunto.

3. If a Member's departure be manifeſtly unſafe and ſinful, the Church may not conſent thereunto; for, in ſo Ro. 14. 23. 1 Tim. 5. 22. doing, they ſhould not act in Faith, and ſhould partake with him in his ſin. If Act. 21. 14. the Caſe be doubtful and the Perſon not to be perſwaded, it ſeemeth beſt to leave the Matter unto God, and not forcibly to detain him.

4. Juſt Reaſons for a Member's Removal of himſelf from the Church, are, 1. If a Man cannot continue without Eph. 5. 11. partaking in Sin. 2. In caſe of Per- Acts 9. 25, 29, 30. & 8. 1. ſonal Perſecution: So Paul, departed from the Diſciples at Damaſcus, alſo in caſe of general Perſecution, when all are ſcattered. 3. In caſe of Real, and not only pretended want of competent Subſiſtence, a Door, being opened Neh.13.20 for better ſupply in another place, together with the means of Spiritual Edification. In theſe, or like Caſes, a Member may lawfully remove, and the Church cannot lawfully detain him.

5. To ſeparate from a Church either out of Contempt of their Holy Fel- 2 Tim.4.10 lowſhip, or out of Covetouſneſs, or for greater Enlargements, with juſt Grief to the Church, or out of Schiſm, or want of Love, and out of a Spirit of Contention in reſpect of ſome Unkindneſs, or ſome Evil only conceived or indeed in the Church, which might and ſhould be tolerated and healed with a Spirit of Meekneſs, and of which Evil the Church is not yet convinced (tho' perhaps himſelf be) nor admoniſhed: For theſe or the like Reaſons to withdraw from publique Communion in Word or Seals, or Cenſures, is Unlawful and Sinful.

6. Such Members as have orderly removed their Habitation, ought to join themſelves unto the Church in or- Iſa. 56. 8. Acts 9. 26. der, where they do inhabit, if it may be; otherwiſe they can neither perform the Duties, nor receive the Priviledges of Members. Such an Example tolerated in ſome, is apt to corrupt others, which if many ſhould follow would threaten the Diſſolution and Confuſion of Churches contrary to the Scripture. 1 Cor. 14. 33.

7. Order requires that a Member thus removing, have Letters Teſtimonial and of Diſmiſſion from the Church, Act. 18.27. whereof he yet is; unto the Church whereunto he deſireth to be joined, leſt the Church ſhould be deluded; that the Church may receive him in Faith, and not be corrupted in receiving Deceivers and falſe Brethren. Until the Perſon diſmiſſed be received into another Church, he ceaſeth not by his Letters of Diſmiſſion to be a Member of the Church whereof he was. The Church cannot make a Member, no Member, but by Excommunication.

8. If a Member be called to remove only for a time, where a Church is, Ro. 16. 1, 2. 2 Cor. 3. 1. Letters of Recommendation are requiſite and ſufficient for Communion with that Church, in the Ordinances, and in their Watch; as Phœbe a Servant of the Church at Cenchrea, had a Letter written for her to the Church at Rome, that ſhe might be received as becometh Saints.

9. Such Letters of Recommendation and Dimiſſion, were written for Apollos, Act. 18.27. for Marcus to the Coloſſians, Col. 4. 10. for Phæbe to the Romans, Rom. 16. 1. for ſundry other Churches. 2 Cor. 3. 5. And the Apoſtle tells us that ſome Perſons, not ſufficiently known otherwiſe, have ſpecial need of ſuch Letters, tho' he, for his part, had no need thereof. The Uſe of them is to be a Benefit and Help to the Party for whom they are written, and for the furthering of his receiving among the Saints, in the place whereto he goeth, and the due Satisfaction of them in their receiving of him.

CHAP. XIV.

Of Excommunication and other Cenſures.

1 Tim. 5. 20. Jude 19. Deu. 13. 11. 1 Cor. 5. 6. Rom. 2. 24. Rev. 2. 14, 15, 16, 20.

1. THE Cenſures of the Church are appointed by Chriſt for the Preventing, Removing and Healing of Offences in the Church; for the Reclaiming and Gaining of offending Brethren, for the deterring others from the like Offences, for purging out the Leaven, which may infect the whole Lump; for vindicating the Honour of Chriſt and of his Church, and the Holy Profeſſion of the Goſpel; and for preventing of the Wrath of God, that may juſtly fall upon the Church, if they ſhould ſuffer his Covenant, and the Seals thereof to be profaned by notorious and obſtinate Offenders.

Matth. 5. 23, 24. Luke 17. 3, 4.

2. If an Offence be private (one Brother offending another) the Offender is to go and acknowledge his Repentance for it unto his offended Brother, who is then to forgive him; but if the Offender neglect or refuſe to do it, the Brother offended is to go, and Mat. 18. 15 convince and admoniſh him of it, between themſelves privately: If therefore the Offender be brought to repent of his Offence, the Admoniſher has won his Brother; but if the Offender hear not his Brother, the Brother offended Verſe 16. is to take with him one or two more, that in the Mouth of two or three Witneſſes every Word may be eſtabliſhed, (whether the Word of Admonition, if the Offender receive it; or the Word of Complaint if he Verſe 17. refuſe it) for if he refuſe it, the offended Brother is by the Mouth of the Elders to tell the Church, and if he hear the Church, and declare the ſame by penitent Confeſſion, he is recovered and gained: And if the Church diſcern him to be willing to hear, yet not fully convinced of his Offence, as in caſe of Hereſie, they are to diſpence to him a publick Admonition; which declaring the Offender to lye under the publick Offence of the Church, doth thereby with-hold or ſuſpend him from the Holy Fellowſhip of the Lord's Supper, till his Offence be removed by penitent Confeſſion. If he ſtill continue obſtinate, they are to caſt him out by Excommunication.

3. But if the Offence be more publick at firſt, and of a more hainous and criminal Nature, to wit, ſuch as 1 Cor. 5. 4, 8, 11. are condemned by the Light of Nature; then the Church without ſuch gradual Proceeding, is to caſt out the Offender from their Holy Communion, for the further mortifying of his Sin, and the healing of his Soul in the Day of the Lord Jeſus.

4. In dealing with an Offender, great Care is to be taken, that we be neither over-ſtrict or rigorous, nor too indulgent or remiſs: Our Proceeding herein ought to be with a Spirit of Meekneſs, conſidering our ſelves, leſt Gal. 6. 1. we alſo be tempted, and that the beſt of us have need of much Forgiveneſs Matth. 18. 34, 35. from the Lord. Yet the winning and healing of the Offender's Soul being Ezek. 13. 10. the end of theſe Endeavours; we muſt not daub with untempered Morter, nor heal the Wounds of our Bretheren ſlightly. On ſome have Compaſſion, others ſave with Fear.

5. While the Offender remains Excommunicate, the Church is to refrain Mat. 18. 17 1 Cor. 5. 11. 2 Theſ. 3. 6, 14. from all Member-like Communion with him in Spiritual Things, and alſo from all familiar Communion with him in civil Things, farther than the neceſſity of Natural or Domeſtical or Civil Relations do require; and are therefore to forbear to eat and drink with him, that he may be aſhamed.

6. Excommunication being a Spiritual Puniſhment, it doth not prejudice the Excommunicate in, or deprive him of his Civil Rights, and therefore toucheth not Princes or Magiſtrates in reſpect of their Civil Dignity or Authority; 1 Cor. 14. 24, 25. 2 Theſ. 3. 14. and the Excommunicate being but as a Publican, and a Heathen, Heathens being lawfully permitted to hear the Word in Church-Aſſemblies, we acknowledge therefore the like Liberty of hearing the Word, may be permitted to Perſons excommunicate, that is permitted unto Heathen. And becauſe we are not without hope of his Recovery, we are not to account him as an Enemy, but to admoniſh him as a Brother.

7. If the Lord ſanctifie the Cenſure to the Offender, ſo as by the Grace of Chriſt he doth teſtifie his Repentance with humble Confeſſion of his Sin, and judging of himſelf, giving Glory unto God, 2Cor.2.7,8 God, the Church is then to forgive him, and to comfort him, and to reſtore him to the wonted Brotherly Communion, which formerly he enjoyed with 'em.

8. The ſuffering of prophane or ſcandalous Livers, to continue in Fellowſhip, and partake in the Sacraments, is Rev. 2. 14, 15, 20. doubtleſs a great Sin in thoſe that have power in their Hands to redreſs it, and do it not: Nevertheleſs, inſomuch as Chriſt, and his Apoſtles in their times, and the Prophets and other godly Men in Mat. 23. 3. Act. 3. 1. theirs, did lawfully partake of the Lord's commanded Ordinances in the Jewiſh Church, and neither taught nor practiſed ſeparation from the ſame, tho' unworthy ones were permitted therein: and inaſmuch as the Faithful in the Church of Corinth, wherein were many 1 Cor. 6. & 15. 12. unworthy Perſons and Practices, are never commanded to abſent themſelves from the Sacraments, becauſe of the ſame; therefore the Godly, in like Caſes, are not to ſeparate.

9. As ſeparation from ſuch a Church wherein profane and ſcandalous Perſons are tollerated, is not preſently neceſſary; ſo for the Members thereof, otherwiſe unworthy, hereupon to abſtain from communicating with ſuch 2Chr.30.18 Gen.18.25 a Church in the Participation of the Srcraments, is unlawful. For as it were unreaſonable for an innocent Perſon to be puniſhed for the Faults of others, wherein he hath no hand, and whereunto he gave no Conſent: So is it more unreaſonable, that a Godly Man ſhould neglect Duty, and puniſh himſelf, in not coming for his Portion in the Bleſſing of the Seals, as he ought, becauſe others are ſuffered to come that ought not; eſpecially conſidering that himſelf doth neither conſent to their ſin, nor to their approaching to the Ordinance in their ſin, nor to the neglect of others, who ſhould put them away, and do not, but, on the contrary, doth heartily mourn for theſe things, Ezek. 9. 4. modeſtly and ſeaſonably ſtir up others to do their Duty. If the Church cannot be reformed, they may uſe their Liberty, as is ſpecified, Chap. 13. Sect. 4. But this all the Godly are bound unto, even every one to his endeavour, according to his Power and Place, that the Unworthy may be duly proceeded againſt by the Church, to whom this Matter doth pertain.

CHAP. XV.

Of the Communion of Churches one with another.

ALtho' Churches be diſtinct, and therefore may not be confounded Rev. 1. 4. Cant. 8. 8. Rom.16.16 1 Cor. 16. 19. Act.15.23. Rev. 2. 1. one with another, and equal, and therefore have not dominion one over another: Yet all the Churches ought to preſerve Church-Communion one with another, becauſe they are all united unto Chriſt, not only as a Myſtical, but as a Political Head: Whence is derived a Communion ſuitable thereunto.

2. The Communion of Churches is exercis'd ſeveral ways. 1. By of mutual Cant. 8. 8. Care in taking thought for one another's Welfare. 2. By way of Conſultation one with another, when we have occaſion to require the Judgment and Counſel of other Churches, touching any Perſon or Cauſe, wherewith they may be better acquainted than our ſelves. As the Acts 15. 2. Church of Antioch conſulted with the Apoſtles and Elders of the Church at Jeruſalem, about the Queſtion of Circumciſion of the Gentiles, and about the falſe Teachers that broached that Doctrine. In which Caſe when any Church wanteth Light or Peace among themſelves, it is a way of Communion of Churches, according to the Word, to meet together by their Elders and other Ver.22.23. Meſſengers in a Synod, to conſider and argue the point in Doubt or Difference: And having found out the way of Truth and Peace to commend the ſame by their Letters and Meſſengers to the Churches, whom the ſame may concern. But if a Church be rent with Diviſions among themſelves; or lye under any open Scandal, and yet refuſe to conſult with other Churches, for healing or removing of the ſame, it is matter of juſt Offence both to the Lord Jeſus, and to Ezek 34. 4. other Churches, as bewraying too much want of Mercy and Faithfulneſs, not to ſeek to bind up the Breaches and Wounds of the Church and Bretheren: And therefore the State of ſuch a Church calleth aloud upon other Churches, to exerciſe a fuller Act of Brotherly Communion, to wit, by way of Admonition. 3. A way, then, of Communion of Churches is by way of Admonition; to wit, in caſe any publick Offence be found in a Church, which they either diſcern not, or are ſlow in proceeding to uſe the Means for the removing and healing of. Paul had Gal. 2. 11. to 14. no Authority over Peter, yet when he ſaw Peter not walking with a right Foot, he publickly rebuked him before the Church.

Tho' Churches have no more Authority one over another, than one Apoſtle had over another, yet as one Apoſtle might admoniſh another, ſo may one Church admoniſh another; and yet without Uſurpation. In which Matth. 18. 15, 16, 17. by proportion. caſe, if the Church, that lieth under Offence, do not hearken to the Church that doth admoniſh her, the Church is to acquaint other neighbour Churches, with that Offence, which the offending Church ſtill lieth under, together with the neglect of their Brotherly Admonition given unto them: Whereupon thoſe other Churches are to join in ſeconding the Admonition formerly given; and if ſtill the offending Church continue in Obſtinacy and Impenitency, they may forbear Communion with them, and are to proceed to make uſe of the help of a Synod, or Counſel of neighbour Churches, walking orderly (if a greater cannot conveniently be had) for their Conviction. If they hear not the Synod, the Synod having declared them to be Obſtinate, particular Churches accepting and approving of the Judgment of the Synod, are to declare the Sentence of Non-Communion reſpectively concerning them: And thereupon out of religious Care to keep their own Communion pure, they may juſtly withdraw themſelves from participation with them at the Lord's-Table, and from ſuch other Acts of Holy Communion, as the Communion of Churches doth otherwiſe allow and require. Nevertheleſs, if any Members of ſuch a Church, as live under publick Offence do not conſent to the Offence of the Church, but do in due ſort Gen. 18. 25. bear Witneſs againſt it, they are ſtill to be received to wonted Communion, for it is not equal that the Innocent ſhould ſuffer with the Offenſive. Yea, furthermore, if ſuch innocent Members, after due waiting in the uſe of all due means for the healing of the Offence of their own Church, ſhall at laſt (with the Allowance of the Counſel of Neighbour-Churches) withdraw from the Fellowſhip of their own Church, and offer themſelves to the Fellowſhip of another, we judge it lawful for the other Church to receive them (being otherwiſe fit) as if they had been orderly diſmiſſed to them from their own Church. 4. A fourth way of Communion with Churches is by way of participation; the Members of one Church occaſionally coming to another, we willingly admit them to partake with them at the Lord's-Table, it being the 1 Cor. 12. 13. Seal of our Communion not only with Chriſt, not only with the Members of our own Church, but alſo of all the Churches of the Saints: In which regard we refuſe not to Baptize their Children preſented to us, if either their own Miniſter be abſent, or ſuch a fruit of holy Fellowſhip be deſired with us. In like caſes ſuch Churches as are furniſhed with more Miniſters than one, do willingly afford one of their own Miniſters to ſupply the abſence or place of a ſick Miniſter of another Church for a needful ſeaſon. 5. A fifth way of Church Communion is by Recommendation, Rom. 16. 1. when the Member of one Church hath occaſion to reſide in another Church, if but for a ſeaſon, we commend him to their watchful Fellowſhip by Letters of Recommendation: But if he be called to ſettle his Abode there, we commit him according to his Deſire to the Fellowſhip of their Covenant by Letters of Diſmiſſion. 6. A ſixth way of Church Communion, is in Acts 18. 27. caſe of need to miniſter Succour one unto another, either of able Members Acts 11. 22. to furniſh them with Officers, or of outward Support to the Neceſſities of Verſe 29. poorer Churches, as did the Churches of the Gentiles contribute liberally to Rom. 13. 26, 27. the poor Saints at Jeruſalem.

3. When a Company of Believers purpoſe to gather into Church-Fellowſhip, it is requiſite for their ſafer proceeding and the mentioning of the Communion of Churches, that they ſignifie their Intent unto the Neighbour-Churches, walking according to the Order of the Goſpel, and deſire their Preſence, and Help, and right-hand of Gal. 2. 1, 2. & 9. by proportion. Fellowſhip; which they ought readily to give unto them, when there is no juſt cauſe to except againſt their Proceedings.

4. Beſides theſe ſeveral ways of Communion, there is alſo a way of Propagation of Churches: When a Church ſhall grow too Numerous, it is a way, and fit ſeaſon to propagate one Church out of another, by ſending forth ſuch of their Members, as are willing to remove, and to procure ſome Officers to them, as may enter with Iſa. 40. 20. Cant. 8, 8, 9 them into Church-Eſtate among themſelves.

As Bees, when the Hive is too full, iſſue out by Swarms, and are gathered into other Hives, ſo the Churches of Chriſt may do the ſame upon the like Neceſſity; and therein hold forth to them the Right-hand of Fellowſhip, both in their Gathering into a Church and in the Ordination of their Officers.

CHAP. XVI.

Of Synods.

Acts 15.2, to 15. SYnods orderly aſſembled, and rightly proceeding according to the Pattern, Acts 15. we acknowledge as the Ordinance of Chriſt: And tho' not abſolutely neceſſary to the Being, yet many times, thro' the Iniquity of Men, and Perverſneſs of Times, neceſſary to the well-being of Churches, for the eſtabliſhment of Truth and Peace therein.

2. Synods being Spiritual and Eccleſiaſtical Aſſemblies, are therefore made up of Spiritual and Eccleſiaſtical Cauſes. The next efficient cauſe of them under Chriſt, is the Power of the Churches ſending forth their Elders and other Acts 15. 2, 3. Meſſengers, who being met together in the Name of Chriſt, are the Matter of a Synod; and they in arguing and Verſe 6. debating and determining Matters of Religion, according to the Word and Ver. 7, to 23. Publiſhing the ſame to the Churches it concerneth, do put forth the proper and Verſe 31. formal Acts of a Synod, to the Conviction and Errors, and Hereſies, and Acts 16. 4, 15. the Eſtabliſhment of Truth and Peace in the Churches, which is the End of a Synod.

3. Magiſtrates have Power to call a Synod, by calling to the Churches to ſend forth their Elders and other 2 Chron. 29. 4, 5, to 11. Meſſengers to counſel and aſſiſt them in Matters of Religion; but yet the conſtituting of a Synod is a Church-Act, and may be tranſacted by the Acts 15. Churches, even when civil Magiſtrates may be Enemies to Churches and to Church-Aſſemblies.

4. It belongeth unto Synods and Councils to debate and determine Acts 15. 1, 2, 6, 7. 1 Chron. 15. 13. 2 Chron. 29. 6, 7. Acts 15. 24, 28, 29. Controverſies of Faith, and Caſes of Conſcience; to clear from the Word holy Directions, for the holy Worſhip of God and good Government of the Church: To bear Witneſs againſt Mal-Adminiſtration and Corruption in Doctrine or Manners, in any particular Church; and to give Directions for the Reformation thereof: Not to exerciſe Church-Cenſures in way of Diſcipline, nor any other Act of Church-Authority or Juriſdiction, which that Preſidential Synod did forbear.

5. The Synods Directions and Determinations, ſo far as conſonant to the Word of God, are to be received with Reverence and Submiſſion; not only for their Agreement therewith Acts 15. (which is the principal ground thereof, and without which they bind not at all) but alſo ſecondarily, for the Power, whereby they are made, as being an Ordinance of God appointed thereunto in his Word.

6. Becauſe it is difficult, if not impoſſible for many Churches to come together in one Place, in their Members univerſally; therefore they may aſſemble by their Delegates or Meſſengers, as the Church at Antioch went not all to Jeruſalem, but ſome ſelect Acts 15. 2. Men for that purpoſe. Becauſe none are, or ſhould be more fit to know the ſtate of the Churches, nor to adviſe of ways for the Good thereof, than Elders: Therefore it is fit, that in the choice of the Meſſengers for ſuch Aſſemblies, they have ſpecial reſpect unto ſuch: Yet, inaſmuch, as not only Paul and Barnabas, but certain Acts 15. 2, 22, 23. others alſo, were ſent to Jeruſalem from Antioch, Acts 15. and when they were come to Jeruſalem, not only the Apoſtles and Elders, but other Bretheren, alſo do aſſemble and meet about the Matter: Therefore Synods are to conſiſt both of Elders and other Church-Members, endued with Gifts, and ſent by the Churches, not excluding the Preſence of any Bretheren in the Churches.

CHAP. XVII.

Of the Civil Magiſtrates Power in Matters Eccleſiaſtical.

IT is lawful, profitable and neceſſary for Chriſtians to gather themſelves together into Church-Eſtate, and therein to exerciſe all the Ordinances of Acts 2. 41, 47. & 4. 1, 2, 3. Chriſt, according unto the Word, altho' the conſent of the Magiſtrate could not be had thereunto; becauſe the Apoſtles and Chriſtians in their time, did frequently thus practiſe, when the Magiſtrates being all of them Jewiſh and Pagan, and moſt perſecuting Enemies, would give no countenance or conſent to ſuch Matters.

2. Church-Government ſtands in no Oppoſition to Civil Government of Commonwealths, nor any way intrencheth upon the Authority of Civil Magiſtrates in their Juriſdictions; nor any whit weakneth their Hands in governing, but rather ſtrengtheneth them, and furthereth the People in yielding more hearty and conſcionable Obedience to them, whatſoever ſome ill-affected Perſons to the ways of Chriſt have ſuggeſted, to alienate the Affections of Kings and Princes from the Ordinances of Chriſt; as if the Kingdom of Chriſt in his Church, could not riſe and ſtand, without the falling and weakening of their Government, which Iſa. 49. 23. is alſo of Chriſt: Whereas the contrary is moſt true, that they may both ſtand together and flouriſh, the one being helpful unto the other, in their diſtinct and due Adminiſtrations.

3. The Power and Authority of Rom. 13. 4. 1 Tim. 2. 2. Magiſtrates is not for the reſtraining of Churches, or any other good Works, but for helping in and furthering thereof; and therefore the conſent and countenance of Magiſtrates, when it may be had, is not to be ſlighted, or lightly eſteemed: But, on the contrary, it is part of that Honour due to Chriſtian Magiſtrates, to deſire and crave their Conſent and Approbation therein; which being obtained, the Churches may then proceed in their way, with much more Encouragement and Comfort.

4. It is not in the Power of Magiſtrates to compel their Subjects to become Church-Members, Ezek. 44. 7, 9. and to partake of the Lord's Supper; for the Prieſts are reproved, that brought unworthy 1 Cor. 5. 11. Ones into the Sanctuary: Then it was unlawful for the Prieſts, ſo it is as unlawful to be done by Civil Magiſtrates, thoſe whom the Church is to caſt out, if they were in, the Magiſtrate ought not to thruſt them into the Church, nor to hold them therein.

5. As it is unlawful for Church-Matth. 2. 25, 26. Officers to meddle with the Sword of the Magiſtrate, ſo it is unlawful for the Magiſtrate to meddle with the Work proper to Church-Officers. The Acts of Moſes and David, who were not only Princes but Prophets, were extraordinary, therefore not imitable. 2 Chron. 26. 16, 17. Againſt ſuch Uſurpation the Lord witneſſed by ſmiting Uzziah with Leproſie, for preſuming to offer Incenſe.

6. It is the Duty of the Magiſtrate to take care of Matters of Religion, and to improve his civil Authority for the obſerving of the Duties commanded in the firſt, as well as for obſerving of the Duties commanded in the ſecond Table. They are called Gods. Pſal. 88. 8. The End of the Magiſtrates Office is not only the quiet and peaceable Life of the Subject in Matters of Righteouſneſs and Honeſty, but alſo in Matters of Godlineſs, yea, of all Godlineſs. 1 Tim. 2. 1, 2. Moſes, Joſhua, David, Solomon, Aſa, Jehoſhaphat, Hezekiah, Joſiah, are much commended by the Holy Ghoſt, for the putting forth their Authority in Matters of Religion: 1King. 15. 14. & 22. 43. 2Kin. 12. 3. & 14. 4. & 15. 35. On the contrary, ſuch Kings as have been failing this way, are frequently taxed and reproved by the Lord. 1 Kings 20. 42. And not only the Kings of Juda, but alſo Job, Nehemiah, the King of Nineveh, Darius, Artaxerxes, Nebuchadnezzar, whom none looked at, as Types of Chriſt, (tho' were it ſo, there were no place for any juſt Objection) are commended in the Books of God, for exerciſing their Authority this way. Job 29. 25. & 31. 26, 28. Neh. 13. Jonah 3. 7. Ezra 7. Dan. 3. 29.

7. The Objects of the Power of the Magiſtrate are not things meerly inward, and ſo not ſubject to his cognizance and view, as Unbelief, hardneſs of Heart, erroneous Opinions not vented, but only ſuch things as are acted by the outward Man: Neither their Power to be exerciſed in commanding ſuch acts of the outward Man, and puniſhing the neglect thereof, as are but meer Inventions and Devices of Men, 1 Kings 20. 28, 42. but about ſuch acts as are commanded and forbidden in the Word: Yea, ſuch as the Word doth clearly determine, tho' not always clearly to the Judgment of the Magiſtrate or others, yet clearly in its ſelf. In theſe he, of Right, ought to put forth his Authority, tho' oft-times actually he doth it not.

8. Idolatry, Blaſphemy, Hereſie, Deut. 13. 1 Kings 20. 28, 42. Dan. 3. 29. Zech. 13. 3. Neh. 13. 31. venting corrupt and pernicious Opinions, that deſtroy the Foundation, open contempt of the Word preached, prophanation of the Lord's-Day, diſturbing the peaceable Adminiſtration and Exerciſe of the Worſhip and Holy Things of God, and the like, are to be reſtrained and puniſhed by Civil Authority. 1 Tim. 2. 2. Rom. 13. 4.

9. If any Church, one or more, ſhall grow Schiſmatical, rending it ſelf, from the Communion of other Churches, or ſhall walk incorrigibly and obſtinately in any corrupt way of their own, contrary to the Rule of the Word; in ſuch caſe the Magiſtrate, is to put Joſh. 22. forth his coercive Power, as the Matter ſhall require. The Tribes on this ſide Jordan intended to make War againſt the other Tribes, for building the Altar of Witneſs, whom they ſuſpected to have turned away therein, from following of the Lord.

FINIS.

Hiſtorical Remarks UPON THE DISCIPLINE Practiſed in the Churches of New-England.

§ 1. WHen the Platform of Church-Diſcipline had been preſented by the Synod unto the General Court which called it, ſeveral Perſons from ſeveral Churches gave into the Court ſome Objections againſt ſundry Paſſages and Paragraphs of this Platform. The Secretary did, by Order, lay theſe written Objections, before the Chief, and moſt of the Miniſters in the COLONY, who appointed Mr. Richard Mather to draw up an Anſwer to them: The Anſwer by him compoſed, and by the Reſt approved was given in; and the Reſult of all was, that the Eccleſiaſtical Model thus fortified, obtained a more abundant Recommendation unto and among this People of God. The Churches have cheerfully embraced it, practiſed it, and been proſpered in it, unto this very Day. And ſome have imagined that there has been herein fulfilled the Obſervation, if not Inſpiration of the Holy Brightman (in Apoc. 17.3.) That ſome Faithful People in a wilderneſs ſhould have the moſt clear Diſcoveries of the Abominations of the Man of Sin.

§ 2. More than thirty Years after this, there was a Synod of all the Churches in the Colony, aſſembled at Boſton, wherein a Vote was propounded, Whether the Platform of Church-Diſcipline were approved by that Aſſembly? Upon which both the Elders and Brethren, unanimouſly lifted up their Hands in the Affirmative, in the Negative not one appearing. The Vote was paſſed in theſe Words.

'A Synod of the Churches in the Colony of 'the Maſſachuſets being called by the honour'd 'General-Court, to convene at Boſton, the 10th 'of September, 1679. having read and conſidered the Platform of Church-Diſcipline, agreed 'upon by the Synod aſſembled at Cambridge, 'Anno 1648. do unanimouſly approve of the 'ſaid Platform, for the Subſtance of it; deſiring 'that the Churches may continue ſteadfaſt, in 'the Order of the Goſpel, according to what is 'therein declared from the Word of God.

Now in this Vote there is that Clauſe, [For the Subſtance of it] which muſt be explain'd by my Acknowledgment, That there are ſeveral Circumſtantials in the Platform, which are diſputed by many judicious Miniſters of the preſent Generation: who upon long Enquiry and Experience think that in thoſe Points the Platform indeed is not Subſtantial. Reader, We will for a while entertain our ſelves with the Particulars.

§ 3. It is very true, that the Platform denies not, the Power of a Paſtor, to adminiſter the Sacraments unto other Congregations beſides his own, upon their Deſires to have their Neceſſities thus relieved; by the ſame Token that in the firſt Copy of the Anſwer to the Objections brought into the General Court, againſt the Platform, there were theſe Words inſerted, As we receive the Members of other Churches to Communion in our Churches, ſo we know no juſt Reaſon, why in the want or abſence of the Miniſter of another Church, we may not at their requeſt, adminiſter an Act of our Office unto them, by virtue of Church-Communion; yet the Platform, in a Complaiſance unto the many Brethren which were otherwiſe perſwaded, aſſerts not ſuch a Power, ſo fully as has been by many wiſhed. The fulleſt Words uſed by the Synod unto this purpoſe are thoſe in the Second Section of the fifteenth Chapter; but they were not ſo full, as to have hitherto encouraged (that I can learn) any one Paſtor in the Country to adminiſter the Supper (tho' ſome do the Baptiſm) of our Lord, in any other Aſſembly but his own, only Mr. Philips the Paſtor of Watertown, did, as I have been inform'd, adminiſter that, as well as the other Sacrament unto the Church of Boſton, when Mr. Wilſon, the Paſtor of that Church was gone for England. However, as 'tis well known that in the primitve times of the New-Teſtament, the Power of a Paſtor to diſpence the Seals of the New-Covenant, as well as to preach and bleſs Authoritatively, in other Churches, beſides his own, calling for it, was not queſtion'd; when ſome Difference in Opinion happened between Anicetus, the Paſtor of the Church at Rome, and Polycarpus, the Paſtor of the Church at Smyrna, the latter took a long Journey, even from Symrna unto Rome, to viſit the former, for the better comprehending and compoſing of the Difference: Anicetus there, to teſtifie his Reſpect unto Polycarpus, requeſted him to adminiſter the Euchariſt unto that pure and great Church, with which he was now but ſojourning as a Viſitant, and the Thing was done by this excellent Man, of whom Irenæus teſtifies, That he always taught the Churches to obſerve thoſe things which he had learned of the Apoſtles; and of whom other Interpreters judge, that, as he was the Scholar of John, ſo he was the unblameable Angel, addreſſed by the Second of the Seven Epiſtles in John's Revelation. Thus, in the primitive Times of our New-England, the moſt Eminent of our Divines, acknowledged this Power, defended it, and maintained it. There is now publiſh'd, A Letter of Mr. Richard Mather unto Mr. Thomas Hooker, which demonſtrates, that it is altogether as lawful for an Officer of a Church to adminiſter the Sacraments to another Congregation, at their entreaty, as it would be to accept a Member of another Congregation, unto an occaſional Communion in the Sacraments with his own; and that the Preſence of his own Church is not at all more neceſſary unto ſuch an Adminiſtration, than the Preſence of the other Congregation would be to the Tranſient Communion of that particular Member. Mr. Norton, in his Anſwer to Apollonius, affirms, A Paſtor may charitably perform the Miniſterial Acts of his Office in another Church. Mr. Shepard, in the Defence of the Nine Poſitions, affirms, (tho' Mr. Davenport, in the Poſitions themſelves, does deny it,) That a Miniſter, occaſionally called thereto, by the deſire of the Church, may lawfully adminiſter the Seals to another Congregation. And I ſuppoſe there are now few Miniſters in the Country, but what Conſent unto the Words of Dr. Owen. Altho' we have no Concernment in the Figment of an indelible Character, accompanying Sacred Orders, yet we do not think the Paſtoral Office is ſuch a thing, as a Man muſt leave behind him every time he goes from Home. For my own part, if I did not think my ſelf bound to preach as a Miniſter authorized in all Places, and on all Occaſions, when I am called thereunto, I think I ſhould never preach more in this World.

Nor are there many that would withold their Conſent from the Thoughts of Dr. Goodwin: An Elder, one ſet apart for that Office in any Church, is truly a Miniſter, occaſionally to exerciſe Miniſterial Acts, as he is called thereunto. Every true Miniſter, actually ſuch to his own Church, is Medium Applicabile: A Means and Inſtrument that may apply any Miniſterial Act, out of his own Church in any other Church, if he be called thereunto.

Wherefore, for the fuller Explanation of the Platform, in this Article, there was this Vote paſſed, in a Meeting of the Neighbouring Miniſters at Cambridge.

¶ Inaſmuch as the Paſtors of any Evangelical Churches, are, tho' not having a Paſtoral Charge of more than One, to be acknowledged in All of them, as Ordained Miniſters of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and are actually acknowledged, as Preaching in that Capacity, when they are occaſionally put upon preaching of the Goſpel abroad.

Inaſmuch alſo as the Communion of Churches, which makes the Members of any capable of admiſſion to the Special Ordinances of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in All of them, doth likewiſe render it reaſonable, for the Paſtors of any to be capable of adminiſtring thoſe Ordinances in All.

It is therefore our Judgment, That the Paſtor of a Neighbouring Church, may, upon the Requeſt of a deſtitute Church, occaſionally adminiſter the Sacraments unto them.

And it is our further Judgment, That the Second Article in the Fifteenth Chapter of our Platform of Church-Diſcipline, is to be underſtood as approving of it.

Nor is it unknown, That Eminent Congregational Churches, have, by their Practice, manifeſted themſelves to have been of this Judgment before us.

And it ſeems in the pureſt and earlieſt of the Primitive Times to have been allowed.

Nevertheleſs, we think it convenient, that as the deſtitute Churches do, by their Vote, call the Neighbouring Paſtors to that Occaſional Service, before they attend it, ſo that the Conſent of the Churches, whereto thoſe Paſtors belong, be not left unconſidered in it.

We do moreover think, That nothing ſhould be done in this Matter, that may, in any wiſe, obſtruct the Welfare of any bereaved Churches, in their ſpeedy ſeeking of a ſettled Supply, for all Ordinances among them; or otherwiſe interrupt and incommode Common Edification.

4. Another Point in the Platform, not univerſally received, is, The diſtinct Office of Ruling Elders, to join with the Paſtors, in thoſe Acts of Church-Rule, which are diſtinct from the Miniſtry of the Word and Sacraments, or to watch over the Converſation of the Church-Members with Authority. There are ſome who cannot ſee any ſuch Officer as what we call a Ruling Elder, directed and appointed in the Word of God; and the Inconveniencies, whereunto many Churches have been plunged by Elders, not of ſuch a Number, or not of ſuch a Wiſdom, as were deſirable, have much increaſed a Prejudice againſt the Office it ſelf; be ſure, partly through a Prejudice againſt the Office, and partly, indeed chiefly, through a penury of Men well qualified for the Diſcharge of it, as it has been heretofore underſtood and applied, Our Churches are now generally deſtitute of ſuch Helps in Government: On the other ſide; there are others, who, if they asked, What Order for Lay-Elders in the Word of God? Anſwer, That properly, the only Lay-Elders known to be in any Church, are the Chancellours in the Church of England; Perſons Entruſted with the Rules of the Church, and yet not Ordained unto any Office in it. But, that unleſs a Church have Divers Elders, the Church-Government muſt needs become either Prelatic or Popular; and that a Church's needing but one Elder, is an Opinion contrary not only to the Senſe of the Faithful in all Ages, but alſo to the Law of the Scriptures, where there can be nothing plainer, than, Elders, who Rule well, and are worthy of Double Honour, though they do not labour in Word and Doctrine; whereas, if there were any Teaching Elders, who do not Labour in Word and Doctrine, they would be ſo far from worthy of Double Honour, that they would not be Worthy of any Honour at all. Towards the adjuſting of the Difference, which has thus been in the Judgments of Judicious Men, ſome Eſſays have been made; and one particularly in ſuch Terms as theſe; 'Let it be firſt Recognized, That all the other Church-Officers are the Aſſiſtants of the Paſtor; who was himſelf (as you find, even about what the Deacon has now to do,) entruſted with the Whole care of all, until the further Pity and Kindneſs of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, joined other Officers unto him, for his Aſſiſtance in it. I ſuppoſe, none will be ſo abſurd as to Deny This at leaſt; That all the Church-Officers are to take the Advice of the Paſtor with them. Upon which I ſubjoin, that a Man may be a Diſtinct Officer from his Paſtor, and yet not have a Diſtinct Office from him; the Paſtor may be the Ruling Elder, and yet he may have Elders to aſſiſt him in Ruling, and in the actual Diſcharge of ſome Things, which They are able and proper to be ſerviceable to him in. This Conſideration being laid, I will perſwade my ſelf, Every Paſtor among us will allow me, That there is much Work to be done for God, in preparing of what belongs to the Admiſſion and Excluſion of Church-Members, in carefully Inſpecting the way and walk of them all, and the firſt Appearance of Evil with them; in preventing the very beginnings of Ill-Blood among them, and inſtructing of all from Houſe to Houſe more privately, and warning of all Perſons unto the Things more peculiarly incumbent on them; in Viſiting all the Afflicted, and Informing of and Conſulting with, the Miniſters, for the welfare of the whole Flock. And they muſt allow me, That this Work is too heavy for any one Man; and that more than one Man, yea, all our Churches, do ſuffer beyond meaſure, becauſe no more of this Work is thoroughly performed. Moreover, They will Acknowledge to me, that it is an uſual Thing, with a Prudent and Faithful Paſtor, himſelf to ſingle out ſome of the more Grave, Solid, Aged Brethren in his Congregation, to Aſſiſt him in many parts of this Work, on many occaſions in a Year; nor will ſuch a Paſtor ordinarily do any Important thing in his Government, without having firſt heard the Counſel of ſuch Bretheren. In ſhort, There are few Diſcreet Paſtors, but what make many Occaſional Ruling Elders, every Year. I ſay then, Suppoſe the Church by a Vote Recommend ſome ſuch Bretheren, the Fitteſt they have, and always more than One, unto the more ſtated Aſſiſtance of their Paſtor, in the Church-Rule, wherein they may be helps unto him; I do not propoſe, that they ſhould be Biennial or Triennial only; tho' I know, very famous Churches throughout Europe have them ſo! Yea, and what, if they ſhould by ſolemn Faſting and Prayer, be commended unto the Benediction of God, in what ſervice they have to do? What Objection can be made againſt the Lawfulneſs? I think none can be made againſt the Uſefulneſs of ſuch a thing. Truly, for my part, if the Fifth Chapter of the Firſt Epiſtle to Timothy, would not bear me out when Conſcience both of my Duty and my weakneſs made me deſire ſuch Aſſiſtance, I would ſee whether the Firſt Chapter of Deuteronomy would not. Such things as theſe have been offered unto the Conſideration of the Diverſly-Perſwaded; and accordingly in a Meeting of Miniſters, that had been Diverſly-Perſwaded in this Matter, at Cambridge, an Unanimous Vote was paſſed for theſe Concluſions.

Concerning the Office of Ruling-Elders.

I. Though the Paſtors of Churches are Originally Entruſted with the whole Care of what is to be done, in the Feeding and Ruling of the Societies, whereof the Holy Spirit hath made them Overſeers, yet the Wiſdom and Goodneſs of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, has made Proviſion for their Aſſiſtance in the Management of thoſe Church-Affairs, which would otherwiſe too much Incumber them, in Devoting themſelves unto the Word and Prayer.

II. Ruling-Elders are appointed for the Aſſiſtance of their Paſtors in the Government of their Churches, and the Inſpection of the Flocks. And although theſe Officers may not be furniſhed with all thoſe Attainments which are neceſſary to a Paſtor, yet if they are ſo accompliſhed, as that they may be Helps to their Paſtor in the Management of their Church Rule, they may be Choſen thereunto with much Benefit and Advantage to the People of God.

III. Whereas 'tis the Buſineſs of a Ruling-Elder to Aſſiſt his Paſtor, in Viſiting of the Diſtreſſed, Inſtructing of the Ignorant, Reducing of the Erroneous, Comforting of the Afflicted, Adviſing of the Defective, Rebuking of the Unruly, Diſcovering the State of the whole Flock, Exerciſing the Diſcipline of the Goſpel upon Offenders, and Promoting the deſirable Growth of the Church; 'tis neceſſary that he be a Perſon of a Wiſdom, Courage, Leiſure, and Exemplary Holineſs and Gravity, agreeable to ſuch Employments.

§ 5. One more Paſſage in the Platform, which hath been but rarely practiſed, and as little approved, is, That in Churches where there are no Elders, Impoſition of Hands for the Ordination of Elders may be performed by ſome of the Brethren, orderly choſen by the Church thereunto; which is indeed mollified with a Conceſſion, That in Churches where there are no Elders, and the Church ſo deſire, the impoſition of Hands, may be performed by the Elders of other Churches. It was the Opinion of theſe worthy Men, that the Call and Power whereof a Paſtor becomes [indeed the Firſt] Recipient Subject, is derived unto him from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, by the choice of a Church, inviting him to the Paſtoral Care of their Souls. The Eſſence of his Vocation, they judged was in an Election by the Multitude of the Faithful, agreeing to ſubmit themſelves unto his Conduct in the Lord, and his Acceptance of, his Compliance with, that Election. Ordination they look'd upon, but as a Ceremony, whereby a called Miniſter, was declared by Impoſition of Hands, to be ſolemnly ſet apart for his Miniſtry, and in the ſame Rite, the Aſſiſtances and Protections and manifold Bleſſings of the Holy Ghoſt, in the Exerciſes of his Miniſtry were ſolemnly implored for him.

Briefly, They reckoned not Ordination to be Eſſential unto the Vocation of a Miniſter, any more than Coronation to the Being of a King; but that it is only a conſequent and convenient Adjunct of his Vocation; and a ſolemn Acknowledgment of it, with an uſeful and proper Benediction of him in it.

Now in as much as the χειροτονία, Lifting up of the Hands of the Fraternity, was that which performed the greater thing; even, to apply the Vocation of a Paſtor; ſaid they, why may not the χειροθεσία laying on of the Hands of the Fraternity alſo perform the leſſer thing; the thing which, indeed, is but the Accompliſhment of what they have already begun, even to publiſh, proclaim and pray over that Vocation? To countenance this Liberty of the Fraternity, they brought the Example of what was done in the Church of Iſrael, when certain Principal Members of the Congregation, which were certainly no Eccleſiaſtical Officers, did in the Name of the reſt, impoſe Hands upon the Levites; and afterwards, when all the Congregation, in the like manner, anointed Zadok, to be the Prieſt: and they further conſidered, that there were ſeveral Caſes, wherein an Ordination by the Hands of Elders, could not be obtained in any tollerable Circumſtances; perhaps America had more than once afforded ſuch; in which Caſes they ſaid, Why may not the People of the Land now take a Man of their Coaſts, and, then, do all that is neceſſary to ſet him up for their Watchman? But whereas it was objected unto our New-Engliſh Divines, by ſuch Writers as the ſweet-ſpirited Herle, and warm-ſpirited Rutherford, That the New-Teſtament affords no Example of Impoſition of Hands by the People, it was anſwered, That the New-Teſtament inſtances not the Impoſition of Hands on Ordinary Paſtors, by any Ordinary Paſtors at all. In all the Examples, there, concerning this matter, either the Perſons by whom, or the Perſons on whom, Hands were impoſed, were Extraordinary-Officers: and thus the Objectors will find as much Diſſonancy from the Scriptural Example, in their own Practice as they could in ours: Beſides, the Example in the Old Teſtament was of a Moral and of a Laſting Equity. And in fine, they ſuppoſed that they had on their ſide, a thouſand Conceſſions, in the chief Defenders and Principles of the Reformation; particularly, the Words of the incomparable Whitaker (De Eccleſ. Quæſ. 5. Cap. 6.) If they grant the Calling of our Miniſters to be Lawful, we care the leſs for Ordination, for they that have Authority to Call, have alſo Authority to Ordain, if Lawful Ordination cannot otherwiſe be gotten; For Ordination doth follow Calling; he that is called is, as it were, thereby put into Poſſeſſion of his Office. And it was the Learned Calderwood, who taught them to diſtinguiſh, between what was received by (διὰ) and what was received only with (μετὰ) the laying on of the Hands of the Presbytery; the former notes a Cauſal Virtue in the Rite, which accordingly is not affirmed in the Text; the latter notes only the Concurring and Approving of them that uſed the Rite; and accordingly our good Men were deſirous to have the Conſent of a Neighbouring Presbytery unto their Elections teſtified, in their Ordinations, where it could be comfortably procured. On the other ſide; Becauſe the Scripture ſo expreſly mentions, the laying on of the Hands of the Presbytery, very Judicious Men, throughout the Country, were altogether averſe to, The laying on of the Hands of the Fraternity. They reckoned, that in the Impoſition of Hands, there was their Conſecration to their Miniſtry, and by this Conſecration they were to be owned, as admitted into the Order of Paſtors, through the whole Church of God; but they could not allow the Rites of this Order to be Regularly and Conveniently performed by any but ſuch as were themſelves of the ſame Order; which Perſwaſion has been ſo general, that ſetting aſide a few plebeian Ordinations, in the beginning of the World here among us, there have been rarely, any Ordinations managed in our Churches but by the Hands of Presbyters: yea, any Ordinations, but ſuch, would be but matters of Diſcourſe and Wonder. The Cuſtom of New-England cannot be better deſcribed, than in the terms which deſcribe the Modes of the African Churches [Synod. African. apud Cyprian. Epiſt. 68. §. 6. p. 202.] Apud nos, & ferè per Provincias univerſas tenetur, ut ad Ordinationes, ritè celebrandas, ad eam plebem, cui Præpoſitus Ordinatur, Epiſcopi Ejuſdem Provinciæ proximi quiq; conveniant, & Epiſcopus deligatur, plebe præſente, quæ ſingulorum vitam pleniſſimè novit, & unius cujuſq; Actum de ejus Converſatione perſpexit; Quod factum videmus in Sabini Ordinatione, ut de Univerſæ Fraternitatis ſuffragio, & de Epiſcoporum Judicio, Epiſcopatus Ei Deferatur.

And ſo much Reſpect have our Churches had unto the Intereſts of the Presbytery in this Point of Ordination, that altho' upon the tranſlation of Paſtors from one Church unto another among us, few of the Paſtors thus tranſlated, have ſcrupled being re-ordained, yet upon the arrival of ſome deſirable Paſtors formerly ordained in England, who ſcrupled at it, our deſtituted Churches have gladly elected them, and embraced them, and ſo ſolemnizing the Tranſaction with Faſting and Prayer, have enjoyed them to all Evangelical Intents and Purpoſes, without their being re-ordained at all.

§ 6. If I have reported three Difficulties in our Platform of Church-Diſcipline, I can add a fourth, which hath been as Difficult as any of the reſt.

The Direction given by the Synod about the Admiſſion of Members into the Church, amounts to thus much. ‘Repentance towards God and Faith towards our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, are the things whereof Men are to be examined at their admiſſion into the Church, and which, then, they muſt profeſs and hold forth in ſuch ſort as may ſatisfie Rational Charity that the things are there indeed. The weakeſt meaſure of Faith is to be accepted in thoſe that deſire to be admitted into the Church: Such Charity and Tenderneſs is to be uſed, as the weakeſt Chriſtian, if ſincere, may not be excluded or diſcouraged. Severity of Examination is to be avoided; in caſe any thro' exceſſive Fear, or other Infirmity be unable to make their perſonal Relation of their Spiritual Eſtate in publick, it is ſufficient, that the Elders having received private ſatisfaction, make Relation thereof in publick before the Church, they teſtifying their Aſſents thereunto: This being the way that tends moſt to Edification. But where Perſons are of greater Abilities, there it is moſt expedient that they make their Relations and Confeſſions, perſonally with their own Mouth, as David profeſſeth of himſelf. A perſonal and publick Confeſſion, and declaring of God's manner of working upon the Soul, is both lawful, expedient and uſeful. And the Platform in Chap. 12. § 5. gives the Grounds of this Direction. The Jews tell us of כליא or a Scare-Crow upon the top of the Temple, which kept off the Fowls from defiling of it; and it has been the Opinion of many that this Cuſtom of Relations, to be made by Candidates for Admiſſion to the Church, of what Operations of the Regenerating Spirit have been upon their Souls, is as a Scare-Crow to keep Men out of the Temple; but, it may be, it has been the Opinion of as many, that none but the Defilers of the Temple would be kept out by ſuch a Scare Crow.

On the one ſide, The Churches demanding an Account of Experiences, from thoſe which they receive to ſtated Church-Fellowſhip, has been by ſome decryed as an humane Invention: And they tell us, that, indeed, according to the Report of Cæſarius, there have been Popiſh Monaſteries which have demanded ſuch an Account from thoſe that entred thereinto; but that few Proteſtant Societies have, till of late, obſerved ſuch an Uſage. Yea, they ſay, that inſtead of having any Divine Precept for the bottom of this Practice, there is no bottom at all for it, but this, that it has been a Practice. The firſt Churches of New-England began only with a Profeſſion of Aſſent and Conſent unto the Confeſſion of Faith, and the Covenant of Communion. Afterwards, they that ſought for the Communion, were but privately examined about a Work of Grace in their Souls, by the Elders, and then publickly propounded unto the Congregation, only that ſo, if there were any ſcandal in their Lives, it might be objected and conſidered. But in the Year 1634, one of the Brethren having leave to hear the Examinations of the Elders, magnified ſo much the Advantage of being preſent at ſuch an Exerciſe, that many others deſired and obtained the like leave to be preſent at it; until, at length, to gratifie this uſeful Curioſity, the whole Church always expected the Liberty of being thus particularly acquainted with the Religious Diſpoſitions, of thoſe with whom they were afterwards to ſit at the Table of the Lord; and that Church which began this way was quickly imitated by moſt of the reſt, who, when all come to, have little elſe to plead for it, but that the good Men find themſelves exceedingly edified, when they hear other good Men deſcribing the Means which the Lord has deviſed, for the bringing back of their baniſhed Souls.

On the other ſide, It has been argued by others, That nothing leſs than a probable and a credible profeſſion of a ſaving Faith muſt be made by a Man, before the Supper of the Lord may be adminiſtred unto him. The Churches to whom the Apoſtles directed their Epiſtles, were ſtill viſibly Saints, and ſuch as were made meet to be Partakers of the Inheritance of the Saints in Light: How many ſcores of Paſſages to this purpoſe have we concerning thoſe Churches, about the underſtanding whereof we may uſe the words of Calvin, Quod exponunt quidam de ſolâ profeſſione mihi frigidum videtur, & ab uſu Scripturæ eſt alienum? It is on all hands agreed, that the Lord's Supper is an Ordinance communicable unto none but Penitents: Now the Primitive Churches, if Dionyſius of Alexandria may be credited, would not accept a Penitent, until having examined him, they diſcerned his Converſion and Repentance to be ſuch as would be accepted by God. And the Council of Nice gave this for a general Rule, That the inward ſtate of Penitents be obſerved in order to their admiſſion to the Communion. Whereupon 'tis argued, If they that are impenitent for this or that particular Sin, may not come to the Table of the Lord, ſurely, they that may be thought impenitent for an whole courſe of Sin, are alſo to be kept out of doors; which is to be eſteemed the Caſe of all them, whom we may not reaſonably as well as charitably, judge renewed by the Holy Ghoſt. Accordingly Origen writes, ‘That the Chriſtians of the firſt Churches did ‘ moſt exquiſitely ſearch the Souls of them that asked a full Communion with them; and ſays, When Men have made ſuch a proficiency, that they appear ſanctified by the Divine Word, then we call them up to our Myſteries. Tertullian, among others, doth adviſe us of the ſtrict Scrutiny uſed in his Days, upon the Hearts of the Catechumens; Whether they did, indeed, renounce all their former Vanities.

It was the Order, Fiant ſcrutinia, an verba Fidei radicitùs Corde defixerint. Cyprian reports, Vix plebi perſuadeo: He could not eaſily perſuade the Fraternity of his Flock to conſent unto the receiving of ſuch in whom Sincerity was queſtionable. Auſtin affirms, That according to the ancient Cuſtom, grounded on the moſt evident Truth, none were admitted into the Church on Earth, who were viſibly ſuch as the Scripture excludes from the Kingdom of God in Heaven. And the Agreement of the Paſtors in the Days of Conſtance, about the diſcerning of the ſincere, is very memorable. If the Queſtion be put, What it is, that we may ſafely judge, a probable and a credible Profeſſion of a ſaving Faith? It has been anſwered, That Scripture muſt be followed and applied by Reaſon in this matter: If the Scripture aſſert ſuch and ſuch Marks to be in the Experiences of all the Regenerate, then Reaſon is in this Caſe to make an Humane Enquiry, Whether our Neighbours have thoſe Marks in their Experiences? 'Tis not enough to reſtore a Man under Church-Cenſure, for the Man barely to ſay I repent; no, but for us to proceed rationally in obſerving, whether the likely Symptoms of Repenting do appear upon him, is to proceed Scripturally: Even ſo, 'tis not enough to qualifie a Man under Church-Trial, for the Man to ſay I believe; while there may be diſcovered in him ſuch an ignorant or inſipid ſtate of Soul, as may render it juſtly ſuſpicious, that he is yet a ſtranger to the New Birth. Briefly the thing has been thus diſcourſed.

We muſt beware of unſcriptural Impoſitions in this Affair; we muſt not impoſe any Modes of Profeſſion, which we have no Warrant for. 'Tis a Tyranny to enjoin upon every Man, A relation about the preciſe time and way of their Converſion unto God. Few that have been reſtrained by a religious Education, can give ſuch an one. Nor is it any other than a Cruelty, to enjoyn upon every Man, an Oral and a publick relation of their Experiences. Every good Man has not ſuch a Courage and Preſence of Mind, as can ſpeak pertinently before a Congregation of many hundreds. But ſtill, as the Probationers for our Communion are to make a Profeſſion of their Faith in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as that Redeemer in whom all fulneſs dwels, and on whom they rely for Communications from that fulneſs to their own Souls: Thus we muſt look for ſome juſtifying Circumſtance of that Profeſſion. Our Charity towards all Men, of whom we know nothing amiſs, is to hope all things, and believe the beſt: But when we come to make a Judgment of them, that lay claim to Privileges with us, 'tis but reaſon that our Charity ſhould require a more poſitive Evidence of the Qualification, on which the claim is made. In the Primitive Times they made ſuch a Profeſſion, at their being added unto the Church; and the Profeſſion had this juſtifying Circumſtance in it, that they made it, when they endangered their very Lives to make it. I make no doubt, but in ſuch a time of Perſecution, the like Profeſſion ought to be eſteemed ſufficient. But in Places where the true Religion is in repute and faſhion, then to look for ſome other juſtifying Circumſtance of a Profeſſion, is but a reaſonable Conformity to the cuſtom and manner of the Apoſtles. Now, Reaſon cannot readily dictate an eaſier, a fairer, a fitter Method for this, than that a Man of a blameleſs and fruitful Converſation, ſhould either by Tongue or Pen expreſs, what Impreſſions the Word of God has made upon him. The ſavour of ſuch a Relation, will uſually very much manifeſt the Spirit of him that makes it; and beſides, nothing is more for the Honour of God, or for the Comfort of his People, than to hear good Chriſtians, thus making that Invitation, Come and hear all ye that fear God, and I will declare what he hath done for my Soul. It is true, that after all, we cannot be infallibly ſure, that we do not admit an Hypocrite in Heart, into our Communion; nor indeed after the diſtincteſt Profeſſion of a Dogmatical and Hiſtorical Faith, can we be ſure that the Perſon, whom we admit, is not an Heretick in Heart. Nevertheleſs, no Man ſcarce ever doubted, that Communicants muſt be examined about their Orthodoxy. But we ſhould go, as far as we reaſonably can to prevent the pollution of Holy Things by the Unregenerate.

Well, the reſult of theſe various Apprehenſions has been this: That ſome unſcriptural Severities urged in this matter by ſeveral of our Churches, in the beginning of the Plantation, are now generally laid aſide; but ſtill, for the moſt part, there is expected from thoſe that would join unto 'em, a brief Addreſs, in the Language of an experimental Chriſtian, intimating ſomething of what the eternal Spirit of God has done to conform their Hearts and Lives unto thoſe Principles of Chriſtianity, whereof they then make a Profeſſion. 'Tis true, in ſome Churches, if the Elders declare their ſatisfaction about the Qualifications of thoſe that offer themſelves, the People are, without any further Inquiry, ſatisfied: But in moſt Churches, the People do deſire the Elders to entertain them with a more particular Account of ſuch things, as the Perſons have to preſent for their own more thorough Recommendation unto the good Affection of thoſe, with whom they are to eat Bread in the Kingdom of God. Nevertheleſs, there ſeems to have been thought needful on both ſides a Conceſſion to what has been ſometimes propounded in ſuch Terms as theſe.

‘ Our Churches do ordinarily expect from ‘ thoſe, whom they admit unto conſtant and ‘ compleat Communion with them, ſome few ſavoury Expreſſions [written, if not oral] of what Regenerating Influences the Ordinances or the Providences of God, have had upon their Souls. There are ſome who demand this, as a thing required by the Word of God, when a Confeſſion with the Mouth, and a Profeſſion of Repentance as well as Faith, and a giving a Reaſon of the Hope that is in us is required: And they look upon this as a juſtifying Circumſtance, which a reaſonable Charity is to ſeek, before it pronounce upon the Credibility of that Confeſſion and Profeſſion, whereupon Men lay claim to Privileges. Others can't ſee thro' this; they rather decry it, as an humane Invention, yet, rather than Church-Work ſhould be at any ſtay, both ſides may grant, that it is but a piece of reaſonable Civility, for any that would be accepted as Members of any Society whatſoever, to addreſs that Society for their acceptance; and that whoever doth addreſs a Church of the Lord Jeſus for their Fellowſhip, ſhould endeavour to do it with ſuch Language and Matter, as may be like that of one returning unto God. If there be any further Conteſt whether the Brethren, of right, are to have an Acquaintance with, or Intereſt in, the management of this Matter, I am confident, that as the Paſtors, who are the Porters to the Houſe of God, will generally examine what Experiences their Communicants have attained unto; ſo, the Paſtors will as generally grant, that it is not unlawful for them to communicate unto the Brethren of the Church, the taſte which they have had of the Graces, in ſuch as they now propound unto them, to be received as Brethren; yea, that it is many ways comfortable and profitable, if not altogether neceſſary. Behold then a Temper, wherein we may, as hitherto we do in this thing unite. I have been concerned with ſome godly People of the Scotch Nation, who have at firſt ſhewn much and hot Antipathy againſt this way of our Churches, and yet asked admittance to the Table of the Lord. Theſe have conſented unto me, that I ſhould put what Queſtions I pleaſed, in my Trials of them; that I ſhould herewithal take in Writing what Minutes I pleaſed of their Anſwers to me; that being my ſelf now ſatisfied concerning them, I might, if I pleaſed, offer that ſatisfaction unto any or all of the Church, who looked for it, at our uſual Opportunity. Theſe Conceſſions immediately opened their way in ours, unto the Table of the Lord, without any Difficulty unto either of us.

§ 7. I think I have now reported the moſt conteſted Paſſages of our Platform; nevertheleſs, to give a further Elucidation of ſome other Paſſages in that Platform, I will ſubjoin the Determination given by a late Aſſembly of our Miniſters at Cambridge, upon theſe two Points; The Power of Synods, and the Power of Elders.

¶ PROPOSITIONS

Concerning the Power of Synods, with reſpect unto particular Churches.

I. PArticular Churches, having the ſame Original Ends and Intereſts, and being mutually concerned in the Good and Evil of each other, there is the Light of Nature as well as of Scripture, to direct the Meeting of Churches by their Delegates, to conſult and conclude things of common Concernment unto them.

II. Synods, duly compoſed of Meſſengers choſen by them whom they are to repreſent, and proceeding with a due regard unto the Will of God in his Word, are to be reverenced, as determining the Mind of the Holy Spirit concerning things neceſſary to be received and practiſed, in order to the Edification of the Churches therein repreſented.

III. All the Commands of God, which bid us to be well-adviſed, and regard a multitude of Counſellors, do particularly oblige us with Reverence to entertain the Advice of Synods aſſembling in the Name and Fear of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for an enquiry after his Directions. And if one Church be to be heard, much more are many Churches to be ſo, in things that properly fall under the Cogniſance thereof.

IV. Synods being of Apoſtolical example, recommended as a neceſſary Ordinance, it is but reaſonable, that their Judgment be acknowledged as deciſive, in the Affairs for which they are ordained; and to deny them the Power of ſuch a Judgment, is to render a neceſſary Ordinance of none effect.

V. The Power of Synods, is not to abate, much leſs to deſtroy the Liberties of particular Churches, but to ſtrengthen and to direct thoſe Churches, in the right uſe of the Powers given by the Lord Jeſus Chriſt unto them. And ſuch Aſſemblies are therefore to be uſed as a Relief ordained by God for thoſe Difficulties, for which the Care and State of a particular Church affords not a ſufficient Remedy.

The Rights allowed unto Synods, in the Irenicum, of the excellent Jeremiah Burroughs, Chap. 7. we fully conſent and ſubſcribe unto.

¶ PROPOSITIONS

Concerning the Power of Elders in the Government of the Church.

I. THe Power of Church Government belongs only to the Elders of the Church.

The Names of the Elders, in the Scriptures are but inſignificant, and unintelligible Metaphors, if the Rule of the Church be not only in the Hands of its Elders.

The Word of God hath ordered the People to obey the Elders of the Church, as having the rule over them, and a watch over their Souls.

An Ability to Rule well is a Qualification particularly required in the Elders of the Church, that they may be able to take a due Care of it.

Governments are enumerated among thoſe things in the Church, which all are not, but which are compatible to ſome only: Now, who but the Elders?

Were the Government of the Church, as much in the Brethren as in the Elders, then the whole Body were all Eye; which it is not.

II. There are yet certain Caſes, wherein the Elders in the management of their Church Government are to take the Concurrence of the Fraternity.

'Tis to be done in thoſe Acts, to attain the ends whereof, there are to follow certain Duties of the Fraternity, namely Elections, and Admiſſions and Cenſures.

Hence, in ſuch things, we find the Injunctions of the Scripture addreſſed unto the whole Church.

Hence, all Antiquity aſſures us, that ſuch Matters were in the Primitive Church, done ſtill Conſentiente plebe.

And the Brethren of the Church might otherwiſe be obliged unto the doing of things, wherein they cannot act in Faith, or be conſcientiouſly ſatisfied that ſuch things are to be done.

III. Nevertheleſs, the Paſtor of a Church may by himſelf Authoritatively ſuſpend from the Lord's-Table, a Brother accuſed or ſuſpected of a Scandal, till the Matter may, and ſhould be regularly examined.

Our Lord forbids the coming of ſuch an Offender to his Altar, if even one of leſs, of no Authority in the Church, do ſignifie a reaſonable diſſatisfaction.

The Paſtors of the Church are the Porters of the Temple, empowered ſufficiently to detain ſuch, as they ſee with moral uncleanneſs upon them.

And its belonging unto the Porters of the Church to direct the Brethren in the Application of the neceſſary Diſcipline; it is not reaſonable that they ſhould be bound in the mean time, to declare practically, what ſhall be contrary to ſuch Direction, by adminiſtring the Lord's Supper unto a Perſon againſt whom the Diſcipline is to be urged.

IV. But the Elders of the Church, have a Negative on the Votes of the Brethren; who, indeed, in the Exerciſe of their Liberty and Privilege are under the Conduct of the Elders.

To take away the Negative of the Elders, or the Neceſſity of their Conſent unto ſuch Acts, indeed is to take away all Government whatſoever, and it is to turn the whole Regimen of the Church into a pure Democracy.

And, if the Poſitive of the Brethren can ſuperſede a Negative of the Elders, either the Elders may be driven to do things quite contrary unto the Light of their Conſcience, or elſe the Brethren may preſume to do things which belong not unto them.

§ 8. Becauſe there are ſeveral Church-Caſes of a very general Importance, which out Platform has not reſolved ſo particularly, as hath been deſired by them, that have been more immediately concerned in thoſe Caſes, an Aſſembly of Miniſters, meeting at Cambridge hath taken Cognizance of them; from whoſe Regiſters I have taken leave to tranſcribe the following Memorials. Reader, allow the general Title of them to be PILLULÆ SINE QUIBUS.

¶ PROPOSITIONS.

Concerning the Obligation lying upon Miniſters of the Goſpel, to viſit the Sick, in Times of Epidemical and Contagious Diſtempers.

I. MIniſters of the Goſpel, are to have a great concern for the Sick, under their Paſtoral Charge, and endeavour the fulfilling of their Miniſtry, not only by fitting the Neceſſities of their Sick, with their Prayers, but alſo by leaving them unacquainted with none of thoſe Counſels, which may prepare them for their End.

II. Nevertheleſs, in times of epidemical Contagion, the Miniſters of the Goſpel may, by various Methods, attend what is neceſſary thus to be attended, without the ordinary Viſitations of the infected Chambers.

III. A Miniſter ſollicitous about his Duty in viſiting the Sick of his Flock, when Peſtilential Contagions are prevailing, may receive much Direction from the Courage wherewith he may find the God of Heaven fortifying his Heart unto ſuch an Undertaking.

IV. The bare deſires of the Sick, to be viſited by a Miniſter, have often ſo much of evident unſeaſonableneſs, unreaſonableneſs, and perhaps of worſe Cauſes in them, that it is no ways fitting a Life ſhould be ſacrificed meerly thereunto.

V. When a Miniſter is well aſſured, that the Sick of his own Flock, are labouring under ſuch Loads upon their Conſciences, as cannot fitly be unburdened unto any but himſelf, he has a Call from Heaven to venture himſelf unto the utmoſt, for the ſervice of ſuch a Soul, and may expect the Protection of Heaven accordingly to be a Shield unto him.

VI. A Miniſter in times of general Mortalities may do well, before he expoſe himſelf unto the evident Hazards of thoſe Mortalities, to take the Advice and Conſent of that Church, unto whoſe Edification the Labours of his Life are dedicated; whether they are willing, that he ſhould ſacrifice his Life unto the private Service of the Sick. And the Opinion of a People thus asked, will afford much ſatisfaction unto a Miniſter, as to what may be, in this caſe incumbent upon him.

VII. In times extraordinarily Peſtilential, if the neighbouring Miniſters, do by a Lott ſolemnly ſingle out One of their Number, to devote himſelf, with the exemption of the reſt, unto the help of the Sick, it were a Courſe not to be diſapproved: But a Miniſter, ſo devoted, may cheerfully commend himſelf unto the acceptance of God, in the Service of the diſtreſſed.

¶ PROPOSITIONS.

Concerning the Caſes, wherein a Miniſter may leave his People.

I. A Paſtor ſettled in the Service of a People, is to be ſo ſenſible of his Deſignation by the Spirit and the Providence of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for that Service, and of the Account that he muſt give unto God about his Behaviour in it, that his removal muſt not be raſhly attempted, but with much Conſideration, Conſultation, Supplication and ſincere Deſire to follow the Conduct of Heaven in it. The frowns of God, uſe to follow Removes, that have not ſo been regulated.

II. That the Will of our Lord, about the removal of any Paſtor from his People may be underſtood, it is requiſite, that the Miniſter do not entirely aſſume to himſelf the Judgment of his own Call to remove, but a great Regard muſt be had unto the Direction of the Churches of our Lord in the Neighbourhood.

III. They unto whom the Judgment of a Paſtor's removal from his People is to be referred, ſhould exactly weigh both the preſent and future Circumſtances of both; and endeavour a Proviſion, that neither Party may ſuffer in the removal of a Miniſter from his Flock.

IV. In caſe there be ariſen thoſe incurable Prejudices, Diſſentions, Animoſities, and implacable Offences between a Paſtor and his People, that all Reverence for, and Benefit by, his Miniſtry is utterly to be deſpaired, he may be removed. The want of ſucceſs, otherwiſe, is not a ſufficient Cauſe of removal, but it is to be endured, with all humble Patience by the Miniſter, as a great Affliction; and, yet with this Encouragement, that God will reward him, Secundum laborem, non ſecundum proventum.

V. A Paſtor may be removed from his People, in caſe his Tranſlation be found neceſſary for the Common-Good. The welfare of the Catholick Church in the general Edification of a Community, ſhould be of ſuch weight, as to make any particular Churches, give way thereunto. But, yet, it becomes not any Miniſter, to ſeek his own Tranſlation, by firſt offering himſelf unto it.

VI. There are ſome things, which diſſolve the Vinculum Paſtorale between a Paſtor and his People; and in caſe thoſe Diſaſters happen, he may be removed. Thus if a Miniſter have a tolerable Subſiſtence, wherewith he may, after a Chriſtian manner provide for his own, deny'd him; or, if a Miniſter have no way to avoid a Storm of Perſecution, purely Perſonal, but by fleeing from one City to another; a remove may be juſtified. And the Diſſolution of a Church, gives the like Liberty, to him, that had been the Shepherd of the now ſcattered Flock.

VII. Although a Paſtor ſhould be willing to encounter many Difficulties and Infirmities with his People; yet, in caſe that Chronical Diſeaſes, which evidently threaten his Life, might hopefully be relieved by his removal, it ſhould then, on all Hands, be allowed and adviſed. Mercy is here to be preferred before Sacrifice, and ſo we find it was in the Primitive Churches accordingly.

VIII. If much of Scandal will certainly enſue, upon the removal of a Paſtor from his People, That ſhould weigh down many Circumſtances, that would rather invite ſuch a removal.

QUESTION.

Whether it be lawful for a Man to Marry his Wife's Siſter?

I. A Marriage between a Man and his Wife's own Siſter, is poſitively prohibited in that Law of God, Lev. 18. 16. That a Man may not marry his Brother's Wife. By the plaineſt Conſequence, a Woman may not marry her Siſters Husband. The Degree prohibited, is exactly the ſame.

II. The Law that has prohibited the Marriage of a Man to his Wife's own Siſter has an Authority and an Obligation reaching even to the Gentiles, upon whom the Ends of the World are come. 'Tis evident, that the Violation of this Law, is declared one of thoſe Abominations, for which the ancient Canaanites were ſpued out of their Land. And we find the New Teſtament, in divers places, inſiſting upon thoſe Prohibitions, among which this Law, is one. The good Order which God has by this Law eſtabliſhed in humane Society, is that which the Light of Nature, in Mankind, as now increaſed, does abundantly teſtifie unto. The Diſpenſation which the Sovereign Law giver once gave, in one Inſtance, hereunto, was extraordinary. The Example of Jacob, in this Matter, is to be diſapproved by all that would be eſteemed his Children, as well as that of his Polygamy.

III. 'Tis the Law of our God, in Lev. 18. 6. None of you ſhall approach (in a Marriage) unto any that is near of kin to him. Now the Kindred betwixt a Man and his Wife's own Siſter, is of the neareſt ſort: For, Inter Virum & Mulierem non contrahitur affinitas, ſed ipſi ſunt affinitatis cauſa: So then this Affinity is not leſs than in Primo Genere, and therefore unlawful. It is likewiſe the concurrent Senſe of the greateſt Divines (particularly aſſerted in the Aſſemblies Confeſſion of Faith,) that of what degree any one is of Conſanguinity to his Wife, in the ſame degree of Affinity is that Perſon to the Husband. And that an Husband is forbidden to marry with the Conſanguines of his Wife, by the ſame Rule that Conſanguines are forbidden to marry among themſelves. And this Aſſertion may be demonſtrated from the Rules given, in the 18th Chapter of Leviticus. Wherefore as a Man may not marry his own Siſter, ſo not the Siſter of his Wife, which is one Fleſh with him.

IV. The Marriage in the Queſtion, has been ſo ſcandalous among the whole People of God, that whoſoever is guilty of it, is therein worthy to be cut off from the Communion of the Catholick Church; yea, it hath been one of the Imperial Laws, Duabus Sororibus Conjungendi, penitus Licentiam ſubmovemus. Much leſs may ſuch an Iniquity be countenanced among the People of our Profeſſion.

QUESTION.

Whether, and how far, the Diſcipline of our Lord in our Churches, is to be extended to the Children therein Baptized?

I. WE judge, that the Diſcipline of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in our Churches ought to be extended unto the Children baptiſed in them: In as much as theſe Perſons are certainly thoſe, which the Scripture calls within, and not without; and the Lambs as well as others in the Flocks of our Lord are to be fed: And the Practice of the pureſt Churches has been agreeable to this Principle, as well the Primitive before, as the Bohemian and others ſince the Reformation: Reaſon alſo ſays, that where a Priviledge is expected, a Diſcipline is to be acknowledged.

II. Although it is a Memberſhip in the Catholick Church, that gives Right unto Baptiſm, yet particular Churches, as well as the Paſtors of thoſe Churches, owe a Duty to the Catholick Church, part of which Duty is the Application of Diſcipline, unto thoſe Baptiſed Perſons, whom the Providence of God ſhall caſt under their Inſpection.

III. The Diſcipline, which we count owing unto theſe Perſons, is, an Inſtruction in the Laws of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, an Admonition upon a ſcandalous violation of thoſe Laws, and upon Incorrigibleneſs in Evil, an open rejection from all Eccleſiaſtical Privileges: And although Perſons are moſt clearly liable to this Proceſs, when they have actually renewed their Baptiſmal Covenant, and recognized their ſubjection to the Government of our Lord, in his Church, and the Children of the Church are to be accordingly laboured withal, that they may be brought hereunto, yet we do not think, that any of the ſaid Perſons,refuſing, or neglecting thus to do,are thereby exempted from ſuch a Care of the Church, to bring them unto Repentance.

QUESTION.

In what Caſes is a Divorce of the Married, juſtly to be purſued, and obtained?

I. TO judge, determine and accompliſh a Divorce, of any married Perſons, the Civil Magiſtrate is to be addreſſed or concerned.

II. In caſe any married Perſons be found under natural Incapacities, and Inſufficiencies, which utterly diſappoint the confeſſed Ends of Marriage, the Marriage is to be declared a Nullity.

III. In caſe any married Perſon, be found already bound in a Marriage to another yet living, a Divorce is to be granted unto the aggrieved Party.

III. In caſe any married Perſon be convicted of ſuch Criminal Uncleanneſſes, as render them one Fleſh, with another Object than that unto which their Marriage has united them, the injured Party may ſue and have their Divorce from the Offending; which is the plain Senſe of the Sentence, paſſed by our Lord, Matth. 19. 9.

V. In caſe there be found Inceſt in a Marriage, a Divorce is to command the ſeparation of the married.

VI. In caſe it be found, that a Perſon married, had by Fornication before Marriage, been made One with a Perſon, related unto the Perſon with whom they are now married, within the Degrees made Inceſtuous by the Law of God, it is a juſt Plea for a Divorce.

VII. In caſe of a malicious Deſertion by a married Perſon, who is obliged and invited to return, a Divorce may be granted by lawful Authority unto the forſaken. For the Word of God is plain, That a Chriſtian is not bound in ſuch Caſes, by the Marriage unto One, which has thus wilfully violated the Covenant; and tho' our Saviour forbids a Man's putting away his Wife, except it be for Fornication, yet he forbids not Rulers to reſcue an innocent Perſon from the enthralling Diſadvantages of another, that ſhall ſinfully go away.

VIII. As for married Perſons long abſent from each other, and not heard of, by each other, the Government may ſtate what length of time in this caſe, may give ſuch a preſumption of Death in the Perſon abroad, as may reckon a Second Marriage free from ſcandal.

IX. A Divorce being legally purſued, and obtained, the innocent Perſon that is releaſed may proceed unto a Second Marriage in the Lord: Otherwiſe the ſtate of Believers under the New Teſtament, would in ſome of theſe Caſes, be worſe than what the God of Heaven directed for his People under the Old.

¶ PROPOSITIONS.

Concerning Ordination.

I. A ſolemn ſeparation to the Service of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in his Church, is Eſſential to the Call of a Church-Officer.

II. The Election of the Church, and a Compliance with, and an Acceptance of that Election, by a Perſon coming under a ſeparation, is that wherein lies the Eſſence of his Call to miniſter unto that particular Church.

III. The Impoſition of Hands, in the Ordination of a Church-Officer, is a Rite, not only lawful to be retained, but it ſeems by a Divine Inſtitution directed and required; ſo that although the Call of a Perſon to Church-Office may not become null and void, where that Rite may have been omitted, as it is to the Seniors and Deacons in moſt of the Reformed Churches: Yet we cannot approve the omiſſion of it. A Ceremonial defect may be blameworthy.

IV. When it is enjoyned, Lay Hands ſuddenly on no Man; there ſeems a plain Poſitive, in that Negative; and it is implied, that Hands are to be laid on ſome. Now when, or where, but in Ordination?

V. The whole Ordination to a Miniſtry, ſeems intended in the Apoſtles Expreſſion, of a Gift given with the laying on of Hands; yea, nothing leſs than the whole Miniſtry, under that Ordination, ſeems compriſed in the Apoſtles Expreſſion of the Doctrine of laying on of Hands: And ſuch a Synecdoche intimates that this Rite is no inconſiderable Part of that, whereof 'tis put for the Whole.

VI. The Church of God, in all Ages, has uſed an Impoſition of Hands, as a Rite, many ways agreeable to the Will of God; and beſides the Uſe of this Rite, ſometimes on miraculous Accounts, there has ſtill been a more conſtant Uſe of it, on Eccleſiaſtical Accounts; not conferring but confeſſing of Qualifications, in the Subjects that received it; which one Reaſon has in it many and weighty Conſiderations.

VII. The Impoſition of Hands, being a Rite uſed by the Primitive Churches in the confirming and reſtoring of Church-Members, and this not altogether without the countenance of Scripture, it ſeems very much to take away all Pretence for laying it aſide in the Ordination of Church Officers.

VIII. 'Tis well known, that the Jews even in their Schools, and in almoſt every ſpecial Work for God, whereto Men were ſet apart, uſed Impoſition of Hands, as a Rite accompanying ſuch a Dedication.

IX. The Impoſition of Hands, having been a Rite, which the People of God under the Old Teſtament in his Name applied unto ſuch purpoſes, as a Benediction of a Perſon, a Deſignation to a Function, an Oblation of what was to be preſented unto God, and a Devolution of certain Burdens, on the Heads of ſuch, as were treated with it: The Lord has continued this Rite in the Ordaining of Church Officers, with ſome to ſuch Intents and Purpoſes.

X. Moſt unexceptionable is the Impoſition of Hands, by a Presbytery; but more exceptionable by a Fraternity. The Word of God mentions the former expreſly, but not the latter, in the New Teſtament. They were ſuch Hands as Titus's, that were left to ordain Elders: What need of that, if the Hands of common Believers were ſufficient? They were ſuch Hands as Timothy's that were to make over Church-Betruſtments, unto faithful Men, able to teach others. Who fitter to ſignifie the needed Approbation of other Churches? And inaſmuch as in Ordination, there is an acknowledgment of Admiſſion into an Order, it is but reaſonable, that ſome who are in ſome Order of Church-Power ſhould give it.

¶ PROPOSITIONS.

Touching the Power of chuſing a Paſtor.

A Society of Believers, combined for the Worſhip of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in all his Ordinances, have the Right of chuſing the Paſtor, that is to adminiſter unto them thoſe Ordinances.

The Scriptures do ſtill call for the Suffrages of the Brethren, in the Churches, for all Elections in thoſe Churches, and particularly that of Elders.

In the oldeſt and pureſt of its Times, we ſtill find the Brethren of the Church, poſſeſſed of a Power to chuſe for its ſelf; and the deſtruction of the Power was amongſt none of the earlieſt Encroachments of Antichriſt.

The Jus Patronatûs in ſome Churches pretended unto, is an Uſurpation upon the Flock of God, juſtly to be exploded.

The Pretences of the Civil Magiſtrate unto the like Diſpoſal, for the ſame Cauſes, were for many Ages no leſs juſtly than ſharply denied.

A particular Church, owing a great Regard unto the Church Catholick, in the uſing of its own Right, is bound in Duty to Conſult the Satisfaction and Edification of others, in their Election of a Paſtor.

Miniſters and Meſſengers, of neighbouring Churches, have Power to except againſt any Election of a Paſtor, who by Errors or Scandals, may be rendred unfit for the common Service of the Goſpel.

Churches in the Election of a Paſtor are to conſider the Benefit of all that are to be his Hearers; and more particularly the Concurrence of ſuch as are by the Covenant and Appointment of God, under the Church-watch among them.

The Reſpect that Churches do ſhew to others in the Election of a Paſtor, ought ſo to be managed, as that they do not permit their own juſt Privileges to be extinguiſhed, by anticipating Impoſitions upon them.

Churches may ſuffer their Elections to be directed, yea, and be diverted by Conſiderations, which they owe to others in the Vicinity, without ſurrendring their Liberties to be ſmothered by any, that would unjuſtly impoſe thereupon.

QUESTION.

Whether there are any Caſes, wherein a Miniſter of the Goſpel, may lay down his Miniſtry?

NO Man can rightly, wiſely, or ſafely become a Miniſter of the Goſpel, without a Call of God, which Call is mediate, and manifeſted by Miniſterial Gifts, with ſome Inclination and Opportunity to exerciſe thoſe Gifts.

When a Miniſter of the Goſpel does by the compelling Providence of God, become deprived of thoſe eſſential things, whereby his Call was diſcovered, without any rational Proſpect of recovering them, he may then lay down his Miniſtry.

But before one called unto the Miniſtry, do relinquiſh it, there ſhould be ſuch a Concurrence of Incapacities, that a Perſon's own Arbitrary Inclinations, acted by Temptations, may not be the things, that ſhall diſmiſs him. One conſecrated unto the Miniſtry, is thus, pro Termino vitæ; nor may a Man ſetting his Hand unto this Plough, at his own Pleaſure look back.

For one in the Sacred Miniſtry to leave it, for the ſake of Riches or Honours, more likely to be acquired in another way of living, or for the ſake of diſcouragements, ariſing from Unſucceſsfulneſs, or Perſecution, or other Difficulties, is no ways allowable.

A Perſon diſabled by the Infirmities of old Age for the Labour of the Miniſtry, ſtill retaining his Office, is to be ſtill conſidered, in the dutiful Regards of the Church, as their Paſtor notwithſtanding.

A Cenſure, though an unjuſt one of a Civil Magiſtrate, ſilencing a particular Miniſter, may in ſome Caſes be a ſufficient Reaſon for his forbearing to do his Work, for ſome time, or in this place, though it releaſe him not from the Obligation of his Holy Calling.

The Diſaſters, which have been obſerved, as frequently following thoſe, who have deſerted ther Spiritual Warfare, without the leave of the Lord, are juſt Admonitions unto all Miniſters of our Lord, againſt any undue Deſertion of the Service wherein they have been liſted.

QUESTION.

Whether the Paſtor of a Church, upon a common Fame of a Scandal, committed by any in his Church, be not bound in Duty to enquire into that Scandal, although there ſhould not be brought any formal Complaint unto him of it?

I. ACcording to the Apoſtolical Direction, an Enquiry into an Offence, was ordered upon this Conſideration, 1 Cor. 5. 1. It is reported commonly.

II. The Elders of Iſrael were to make Enquiry into an Offence after this manner, Deut. 13. 12, 14. If thou ſhalt hear ſay— Then ſhalt thou enquire and make ſearch, and ask diligently.

III. The Commendation of a Civil Ruler, does by proportion and parity of Reaſon belong to an Eccleſiaſtical One, Job 26. 16. The cauſe which I knew not, I ſearched out.

IV. The ſame that may move others to complain of a Scandal, unto the Paſtor, ſhould move the Paſtor to enquire after a reported Scandal; namely, the Glory of the Lord, the Defence of the Church, and the Welfare of the erring Perſon; every one of which will ſuffer, if ſuch Enquiry be not made.

V. The Neighbours may be ſo far under the Power of Temptation, as to forbear making orderly Delations of Scandals committed; and it is therefore neceſſary, that ſuch things fall under the Enquiry of the Paſtor, thereto by common Fame alarmed.

VI. The Paſtor of a Church, is by Office, to watch over the Converſation of the People, and a Noiſe of Scandal ariſen in the Converſation of thoſe under his Watch, is a ſufficient provocation for his Enquiry after it.

VII. Finally, a rumour of a Scandal in a Church-Member, is that wherein the Name of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt is concerned, and for the vindication of that worthy Name, an Enquiry being made into it, there may appear ſuch powerful Preſumptions, while there are not yet ſufficient Convictions of Guilt in the Party concerned, that the Perſon ſhall be bound (except in a Capital Caſe) either to give a poſitive Denial, or to make a penitent Confeſſion, of the Matter commonly famed of him.

QUESTION.

How far the Confeſſions of a guilty and a troubled Conſcience, are to be kept ſecret by the Miniſter or Chriſtian, to whom the Confeſſions have been made?

I. 'TIS very certain, that ordinarily the Confeſſions of a guilty and a troubled Conſcience, are to be kept ſecret by thoſe, to whom they are made. The Ends for which the Lord Jeſus Chriſt has directed unto ſuch Confeſſions, would be all fruſtrated, if they ſhould not be moſt religiouſly concealed; and they are made, as unto the Lord.

II. Nevertheleſs, when evident Miſchief will ariſe, general or perſonal, either in point of Safety or of Juſtice, by the concealment of a ſecret Confeſſion, it is no longer to be kept ſecret. In ſuch Caſes the confeſſing Perſon himſelf can have no eaſe in his own Conſcience (which is the Deſign of Confeſſion) without publiſhing his own Crime; and therefore there can be no Obligation upon any other to aſſiſt him in covering of it.

III. When the endangered Safety or Intereſts of others, make it neceſſary for the Confeſſion of a Secret Sin, to be expoſed, it is fit for the Perſon, who has heard this Confeſſion, to adviſe the Perſon himſelf, that within a Time limited and convenient, he do himſelf make it known unto the Perſons concerned; which if he fail to do, Then is the Time for the firſt Hearer of the Confeſſion to do his Duty.

IV. In the Great Capitals, if there be no other ways, a Divulgation thereof, He that hath had the Confeſſion of ſuch a Secret Sin, may come in as a Second Witneſs, to reveal the Secret, for the Conviction of the Malefactor under Judicial Proceſs.

V. Where the Confeſſion of a Secret Sin is to be further divulged, it is to be examined, Whether the Sin may not be told, without the Name of the Perſon, that has committed and confeſſed it.

VI. A Miniſter of the Goſpel, receiving a Confeſſion, often times has Cauſe to conſider, whether the Perſon that makes it, may not make his Knowledge thereof, many ways injurious to himſelf; and if ſo, he may with his beſt Prudence provide againſt ſuch Injuries.

VII. In thoſe Land defiling Sins, where a Perſon is not bound by a Confeſſion, to deliver himſelf up to the Hazard of the Law, no Miniſter is bound, from the meer Nature of the Crimes, to betray the Confeſſion that has been made unto him.

QUESTION.

What is the Duty owing from the Church, to Perſons who upon private Prejudices, withdraw from the Communion of it?

I. PErſons that have taken up any private Prejudices againſt any in the Communion of the Church, whereto they do belong, are directed by the Commandment of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and are engaged by the Covenant, of Watchfulneſs, to endeavour the Repentance of the Perſons under ſuppoſed Offence by a perſonal Application.

II. They that upon Offences taken, do neglect this way of proceeding, are guilty of Sin againſt the Lord's Commandment, and their own Covenant; and by their withdrawing from the Table of the Lord, their Sin is aggravated.

III. The withdrawing of Perſons thus irregularly from the Communion of the Church at the Lord's Table, does carry an hard and high Imputation upon the Church it ſelf, which adds more of a Fault unto ſo ſinful a Schiſm.

IV. If the Perſon, that hath been offended, hath done his Duty, and either the Paſtor do refuſe to lay the Matter before the Church, for the Inſignificancy of it, or the Church upon the Hearing of it, do pronounce it ſatisfied, the Perſon is obliged ſtill to continue his Communion with the Church, untill a Council of Churches declare the contrary.

V. Such a ſinful Separation from the Communion of the Church, being a Moral Evil, the Scandal is to be by the Diſcipline of the Church proceeded againſt, as other cenſurable Scandals. The Paſtor upon Obſervation and Information of the Sin, is to ſend for the Perſon withdrawing, and inſtruct, and convince and admoniſh him; and upon Contumacious Obſtinacy, the Church is to deal with him, as one unruly, and walking diſorderly.

VI. Nevertheleſs, Compaſſion towards the Ignorant, or Injured, is very much to determine the more or leſs Vigour, wherewith ſuch Offences are to be proſecuted.

QUESTION.

What Loan of Money, upon Uſury, may be practiſed.

I. USury, being an Advance on any thing lent by Contract, it is not reſtrained unto Money only; Victuals or any other Thing (as the Oracles of the Sacred Scriptures declare unto us) are capable of being lent upon Uſury. The main Difference of Uſury from other ways of Dealing, is the Owners not running the Riſque of the Principal.

II. That there is an Uſury lawful to be taken, is from ſeveral Paſſages in the Divine Law, ſufficiently ſignified unto us. For Firſt, under the Old Teſtament, God allowed unto his People the Practice of Uſury; he expreſly ſaid, Deut. 23. 20. Unto a Stranger thou mayſt lend upon Uſury. And the Allowance of Uſury upon a Stranger, had never been given, if Uſury had in it any intriſick Turpitude. Yea, in all the Places of the Old Teſtament, prohibiting unto the Iſraelites the Demand of Uſury upon a Brother, there are Clauſes in the Context, which ſeem to intimate, as if the poor Brother only were intended, in the Prohibition. However, the peculiar Conſtitution of the Iſraelitiſh Commonwealth, is enough to releaſe us Gentiles, from the Obligation of the Edicts againſt Uſury, given thereunto. And the Words of the Pſalmiſt and Prophet, that ſeem to reproach Uſury, muſt accordingly be expounded with a Limitation, to the Uſury, which the Law had countermanded. Hence alſo in the New Teſtament, our Saviour has a Paſſage of ſuch Importance, as to give Countenance, in Matth. 25. 27. unto a Man's receiving his own with Uſury, and in the New Teſtament alſo, John Baptiſt, in Luke 13. 3. forbad not unto the Publicans, that Uſury which their Condition of Life led them unto.

III. There is every ſort of Law, except the Popiſh, to juſtifie a Regulated Uſury. 'Tis juſtified by the Law of Neceſſity and Utility; Humane Society, as now circumſtanced, would ſink, if all Uſury were impracticable. 'Tis juſtified by the Law of Equity; it is very equal that a Man ſhould partake in the Benefits which his Eſtate procures for another Man. Yea, it may be the Duty of another Man to give me a Uſury, namely, namely when he gains by my poſſeſſions; it would be Iniquity in him to do otherwiſe: and certainly then it cannot be a Sin, for me to take, that which 'tis his duty to give. 'Tis juſtified by the Law of Parity; there is no manner of Reaſon, why the Uſury of Money, ſhould be more faulty, than that of any other thing; for Money is as really Improveable a thing, as any other Commodity whatſoever: nor can a Contract in this Caſe, be more blameable, than in any other. Nor is it contrary to the Law of Charity, that a Man ſhould expect ſomething, for the ſupport and Comfort of his own Family, for the profitable uſe, which other Men make of thoſe things whereof he is himſelf the Proprietor.

IV. Nevertheleſs the Law of Charity, is to Regulate our Uſury, that it may not become unlawful, by the Biting Extremity, into which it may otherwiſe be carried. It is an Eternal and a Glorious Rule of Charity, that in Dealing with a Neighbour, a Man moſt propoſe his Neighbour's Advantage, as well as his own, and he ſhould not propoſe to make his own Advantage by adding to his Neighbours Miſery. Moreover, when the General Rules of Charity oblige a Man to Relieve the Neceſſities of a Neighbour, or to remit of what he might have exacted from a Neighbour, if it had not been for thoſe Neceſſities, Uſury muſt not ſuperſede that Charity. Whence alſo, to Demand Uſury from the Poor, when we Accommodate them for their mere neceſſary Suſtenance and Subſiſtence, is a Sin. 'Tis a Sin likewiſe, to Refuſe helping the Poor becauſe we would Keep all that we have to ſerve the Deſigns of Uſury. Nor can it be any other than a Sin to require as much for Uſury, as for Hire, which are Carefully to be Diſtinguiſhed. And an Idle Uſury, which is, when Men ſo confine themſelves to the way of Living upon Uſury, as to render themſelves otherwiſe Unuſeful unto the Publick. This is juſtly become a thing of an Evil Character. But yet in all theſe things, the Application of the Rules of Charity, is to be left unto a Man's own Conſcience, which is to be Adviſed from the Word of God, with the Beſt Helps of Underſtanding that Word.

All theſe things being thus Conſidered, the ſevere Declamations of the Ancients againſt Uſury, muſt be of no further Account with us, than their Diſcourſes againſt Limning, or Swearing, or Fighting, or Sitting and Acting, in a Court of Civil Judicature.

QUESTION.

Whether it be in the Power of Men to State any Days of Publick Worſhip?

I. NO Time is to be made Holy to the Lord, but what is made Holy by the Lord; and if there be no Inſtitution of God, the Great Lord of Time, for a ſtated time to be made Holy to himſelf, 'tis a Superſtition in any Man to make it ſo.

II. Very ſenſible is the Difference, between taking a Time to do a Sacred Work, and Doing a Work to keep a ſtated Time. The Light of Nature tells us there muſt be a Time for every Work; but it is only the Fourth Commandment of God, that ſeparates one time from the reſt, for the conſtant Performance of Religious Work upon it.

III. To eſteem any Good Work the Better, for it's being done on ſuch or ſuch a Return of Time, which God hath not, in his Word, ſet apart for it, is to make the Time it ſelf a part of the Worſhip; and it is an unwarrantable Impoſing upon Heaven with our own Inventions.

IV. Solemn Humiliations and Thankſgivings, are Moral Duties to be obſerved pro Cauſis & Temporibus. And the Direction of Divine Providence in laying before us freſh Occaſions of them, is to be Regarded; which cannot be done, if they be made perpetual.

V. The Church of Iſrael, kept no Days of Religious Worſhip, except what were of Divine Inſtitution. The Days of Purim, are by a Different Hebrew Word for them plainly intimated to have been of no other Character than Political Commemorations; and beſides, Mordechai who ordered them, was a Prophet. The Feaſt of Dedication among the Jews, can have nothing pleaded for it, from the preſence of our Lord at it; nor were the former Dedications of the Temple, under any Anniverſary Commemorations.

VI. 'Tis not a Work, but a Word, that muſt Sanctifie a Day, and if an Extraordinary Work of God, were enough to prefer one Day before another for the Devotions of Chriſtianity, the Proteſtant Kalender muſt ſoon be as full as the Popiſh.

VII. When the Apoſtle blamed the Galatians, for obſerving the Days, which God himſelf had Inſtituted, much more does he blame us, if we Celebrate ſuch Days, as only Men have deviſed. And when the Apoſtle forbad the Coloſſians, to let any Man judge them in reſpect of an Holy Day, he ſuffers not us to Sacrifice our Chriſtian Liberty, unto Humane Impoſitions of ſtated Holy Days upon us, nor a private Perſon to Impoſe it upon himſelf.

QUESTION.

Whether it be Lawful to Eat Blood, and Things Strangled?

I. PLain are the Words of the Apoſtle, in Rom. 14. 14. I know and am perſwaded by the Lord Jeſus, that there is nothing unclean of it ſelf. In which Paſſage there may be reſpect unto thoſe Words of our Lord Jeſus, in Math. 15. 11. Not that which goeth into the mouth, defileth the Man.

II. The Scriptures of the New Teſtament give an Allowance for Eating all ſorts of Meat, wherein Blood is included. The Apoſtle ſpeaks of him as an Orthodox Man, in Rom. 14. 2.

who believeth he may eat all things; intimating that it was from weakneſs in Faith, and Ignorance in the Doctrine of the Goſpel, to doubt about it. The Scripture condemns the Superſtition of thoſe, in 1 Tim. 4. 3, 4. Who abſtain from Meats, which God had created to be received with Thankſgiving; for nothing is to be refuſed: If Nothing, then ſure, not Blood. The Scripture permits us that Liberty, in 1 Cor. 10. 25. Whatſoever is ſold in the Shambles, that Eat, asking no Queſtion for Conſcience ſake. Now it was uſual to ſell Blood in the Shambles.

III. The uſe of Blood, in Medicine, is not queſtioned: The Spirit and the Powder of Blood, is, by the Warrant of the Sixth Commandment, freely uſed, for our Health: Why then ſhould the uſe of Blood in Diet, be any Queſtion?

IV. If a thing ſtrangled may be eaten, then Blood may be ſo too. Chriſtians do not ordinarily ſcruple to Eat a thing ſtrangled; and the Eating of a thing which Dies of it ſelf (which is the ſame caſe) was never unlawful for the Gentiles.

V. The Reaſon of the Precept forbidding Blood, unto the Jews was merely Ceremonial: Namely, becauſe Blood was Typical of that Great Blood, which makes Attonement for our Sins, and becauſe, being the Organ of Life, it muſt be ſacred unto God the Author of Life. Now ſince the Blood of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt has been ſhed; every Precept, which is only Ceremonial, is Abrogated.

VI. The forbidding of Blood unto Noah, in Gen. 9. 4 ſeems to have been living Blood, and for the prevention of that Bloody, Ferocious, Inhumane Diſpoſition, which was then prevailing in the World. And all the Commandments given to Noah, were not Moral.

VII. The forbidding of Blood unto the Primitive Churches, in Acts 15. 20. was a Temporary Advice, for the avoiding of Scandal. It would not only have prejudiced the Jews againſt all Chriſtianity, but alſo it would have confirmed the Pagans, in their Idolatry; For the Principal Entanglements of their Idolatry, lay in theſe four things, of Idolathytes, Fornication, Blood and Strangulates, which are elſewhere ſummed up in two, The eating of things Sacraficed unto Idols, and, committing Fornication. To forbear theſe Things, was to teſtifie a Renunciation of Heatheniſm. To uſe any of theſe things among the Heathens, was to juſtifie their Devil-Worſhip. Now the World is in other Circumſtances, and, Ceſſatio Cauſæ efficit, ut ceſſaret Obſervatio. Fornication yet remains upon other, and farther, and moral, and more general Accounts, a Sin.

QUESTION.

Whether Significant Ceremonies, in the Worſhip of God, not Inſtituted by him, are Lawful to be uſed?

I. THE Sign of Internal, are Parts of External Worſhip; in both whereof, the Great God hath commanded us to glorifie him: Even, with our Spirits, and with our Bodies, which are his.

II. There are Natural Ceremonies, with which the Light of Nature does direct Men to the worſhip of God: And theſe are to be uſed in the worſhip of God, as far as we have the Word of God, reinforcing and countenancing of them.

III. Some Ceremonies of Reſpect among Men, are uſed in Exerciſes of Religion, but as Expreſſions of Civility to the People of God, with whom we Aſſemble, for the Worſhip of God; and theſe are to be diſtinguiſhed from thoſe Actions, which we apply to the Lord himſelf immediately.

IV. There are Ceremonies appointed, for ſome ſignification of Inward Graces and Moral Duties, in the Worſhip of God; which, without that Appointment, would not ſignifie what they do: And it is the Prerogative of God alone, to ordain all ſuch Rights as theſe.

V. For Men to take upon them, to Declare, what Ceremonies of Worſhip, the God of Heaven ſhall Accept, and Reward, and Bleſs, otherwiſe than he hath himſelf, in his Holy Laws declared, is a very Criminal Preſumption: And this Pride of Man has generally been Chaſtized, with a manifold Curſe of God.

VI. The Second Commandment, forbids not all Images (or ſignificant Ceremonies) in the Worſhip of God, but, Thy making them for thy ſelf.

VII. The Authority of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as the glorious King and Prophet, of his Church, is profanely invaded, when the Worſhip of God, with the Significant Ceremonies of it, is taught by the Inventions of Men.

VIII. The Sacred Scriptures pronounce it, an Argument ſufficient, for the Rejecting and Condemning of any thing, in the Worſhip of God, if God himſelf hath not preſcribed it. Thus, Jer. 7. 31. They did that which I commanded them not, neither came it into my Heart. Thus, Heb. 7. 14. Of that Moſes ſpake nothing. Thus, Lev. 10. 1. They offered ſtrange Fire, before the Lord, which he commanded them not.

IX. 'Tis very certain, That under the Old Teſtament, there was not any one ſignificant Ceremony allow'd, in the Worſhip of God, but what God himſelf had inſtituted. If the Churches of the New Teſtament will proceed in this matter, without a Divine Inſtitution, let them then produce their Charter.

X. The Apoſtolical Writings to the Galatians and the Coloſſians, forbid us to practiſe any ſignificant Ceremony in the Worſhip of God which God himſelf had once Appointed, but now Aboliſhed. Much leſs may we now practiſe any which God never appointed at all.

QUESTION.

Whether the Games of Cards or Dice, be Lawful to be uſed, among the Profeſſors of the Chriſtian Religion?

I. THere is, at the leaſt, a great ſuſpicion brought on the Lawfulneſs of theſe Games, by the Lottery, which they turn upon.

Lots being mentioned in the ſacred Oracles of the Scripture, as uſed only in weighty Caſes, and as an Acknowledgment of God ſitting in Judgment, with a deſire of his Power and Providence to be manifeſted, and not without an Invocation of God, for the end of Strife, therein implied: They cannot be made the Tools and Parts of our common Sports, without, at leaſt, ſuch an appearance of Evil, as is forbidden in the word of God.

II. The General Rules, which in all Recreations are to be obſerved, are ſo generally tranſgreſſed in theſe Games, that ordinarily it can be no other than a Sin to uſe them.

Theſe Diverſions Faſcinate the Minds of thoſe that practiſe them, at ſuch a rate, that if ever thoſe Perſons come to be converted unto God, they bitterly lament the loſs of time in which that practice hath involved them. And the many other Paſſions and Follies almoſt inſeparable from theſe Diverſions, render the Diverſions themſelves to be, Sins againſt the Commandments, which prohibit the Evils thereby occaſioned.

III. The Scandal of theſe Games, declares it a Scandalous thing for Chriſtians to meddle with them.

The fit Character given to theſe uſages, not only by Chriſtians of all ſorts and ranks, and in all Ages, whoſe, juſt invectives againſt them would fill Volumes, but by the Sober and Moral Pagans alſo, has brought them among the things of Evil Report, which by Chriſtians are to be avoided. That Man's Heart is inordinately ſet upon Play, who had rather do things under ſuch an univerſal condemnation, than forbear a little Play, that may certainly be forborn without any Damage.

IV. Gains of Money or Eſtate, by Games, be the Games what they will, are a ſinful Violation of the Law of Honeſty and Induſtry, which God has given us.

QUESTION.

What Reſpect is due to Places of Publick Worſhip?

HOly Places were appointed under the Law of old, by the great Law-giver of Iſrael, partly to prevent Idolatry among the People, but chiefly to direct the Thoughts of the Faithful unto the Meſſiah, wherein God was reſolved for to dwell for ever. Notwithſtanding,

I. There is now no Place which renders the Worſhip of God, more acceptable for its being there performed: It's foretold concerning the Times of the Goſpel, in Zeph. 2. 11. Men ſhall worſhip him, every one from his place. 'Tis foretold in Mal. 1. 11. In every place incenſe ſhall be offered to my Name, and a pure offering.

'Tis foretold in John 4. 24. That the Spiritual Worſhip of God, ſhall now be accepted with him, in other Places as well as in Jeruſalem.

We are commanded, in 1 Tim. 2. 8. That Men pray in every place.

There is a Truth, in the famous Dr. Uſher's Obſervation: 'In Times of Perſecution, the Godly did often meet in Barns, and ſuch obſcure Places; which were indeed publick, becauſe of the Church of God there; as whereever the Prince is, there is the Court, tho' it were in a poor Cottage.

There were Parts of Worſhip, in the Moſaick Pedagogy, which could not be performed any where but at the Holy Places, appointed. There are no Parts of the Worſhip confined unto any Places under the New Teſtament.

They who expect the Divine regard for what they do in the Worſhip of God, becauſe 'tis done in this or that Place, do not pray looking towards the Temple; our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the true Temple of God, is therein overlooked.

II. To prepare and repair Places for the Publick Worſhip of God, and keep thoſe Places in ſuch a Condition, that they be not unfit for the ſolemn Exerciſes of Religion: This is but an Act of Obedience to him, who, when he requires Worſhip from us, doth alſo ſuppoſe that there muſt be Places for it. But the ſetting of theſe Places off, with a Theatrical Gaudineſs, does not ſavour of the Spirit of a true Chriſtian Society.

III. While the Duties of Divine Worſhip, are performing in any Places, an agreeable Reverence is to be maintained in thoſe Places; not ſo much out of Reſpect unto the Places, as unto the Duties therein performed, and the Perſons concerned with us in the Duties. Nevertheleſs, the Synagogues alſo are to be conſidered, as the Houſes of God.

IV. To offer Affronts to Places built for the Worſhip of God, with deſign therein to affront the Worſhip for which they are built, is a vile Impiety. Nor will the great God hold them guiltleſs, who ſo take his Name in vain.

V. Places intended for the Sacred Worſhip of God, may lawfully be put unto any civil Service, for which they may be accommodated, at the Times when the Sacred Worſhip is not there to be attended; ſo far as Contempt of God and his Ordinances doth not naturally and neceſſarily follow thereupon; even as Courts were kept in the Synagogues among the Jews.

QUEST-

QUESTION.

Whether, to* drink Healths, *be a thing fit to be practiſed, by the Profeſſors of the Chriſtian Religion?

Anſwered in the following Propoſitions.

I. IT is too notorious to be denied, That it was originally an Heathen Cuſtom to drink thoſe which were called, The Cups of Health, in token of Reſpect to the Object mentioned in their Cups. The great Auſtin truly ſays, De paganorum obſervatione remanſit. It is a Relique of Paganiſm. And inaſmuch as it is not a natural Action, but an Action of a religious Nature, and as themſelves called it, a Devotion, it is now reached by thoſe Oracles of God, which forbid our learning the Ways and the Works of the Heathen, and our walking as the Gentiles in the Vanity of their Minds, and our keeping the vain Converſation received by Tradition from our Fathers.

II. That which very much adds to the Obligations lying upon Chriſtians to abandon this Relique of Paganiſm, is the Idolatrous and Diabolical Intentions that gave the firſt riſe unto it. We are aſſured from all the Monuments of Antiquity, that the Healths drunk by the Pagans were firſt of all Drink-Offerings to their Demons, they were a Cup of Devils; and then ſufficiently to Compliment their Princes and Patrons they carried on the Offerings to thoſe Mortals alſo; and laſtly, the Compliment proceeded ſo far as to take in any Friends, whom they ſaw cauſe to treat with ſuch Flouriſhes of Affection. It becomes Chriſtians to beware of having any Fellowſhip with ſuch unfruitful Works of Darkneſs.

III. To drink a Cup, as a Part, or Sign, of our Invocation upon the bleſſed God, for the Health of any Perſon, is a Superſtition directly forbidden by the Second Commandment: Nor is it ordinarily free from a violation of the Third. And that the drinking of an Health is thus deſigned, and ſo becomes no other than a prophane Sacrament, was the Judgment of Ambroſe, when he wrote thoſe words, Quid memorem Sacramenta? Bibamus pro ſalute Imperatorum. To drink an Health implies an Application to ſome Object for that Health: This way of it is unwarrantable.

IV. To begin or follow Healths, which bind Perſons to drink off their Cups, is a manifold Offence againſt Charity, Juſtice and Reaſon. Such Healths being as the ancients truly called them, The Devils Shooing-Horns to draw on Drunkenneſs, are Scandals wherein much brutiſh Folly is committed, and more occaſioned. The Primitive Chriſtians therefore juſtly refuſed them, and condemned them. Great Emperors have made Edicts againſt them. Pagan Writers have ſatyrically laſhed them. And even Popiſh Writers have reproached the Proteſtant Profeſſion, for their being ſo much practiſed under it.

V. Not only the numberleſs, and prodigious Exorbitancies of Health-drinking, are to be avoided by every Chriſtian, but the very propoſing our Cups to the Proſperity of what is therein remembred. 'Tis a vain Plea, that we drink no more than a civil Remembrance of the Perſon, or Affairs mentioned in our Cups. Why is the Action of drinking ſingled out, rather than any other for the token of the Remembrance? And why is there ſuch ſtreſs laid upon a Concurrence in the Action? It is but a continuation of the old Paganiſm, which had better be utterly aboliſhed, than thus refined and preſerved. Every thing that ſerves either to revive, or to maintain the old Pagan Follies, and harden Men in them, ſhould be declined by them, that would adorn the Doctrine of God our Saviour.

QUESTION.

Whether* Inſtrumental Muſick may lawfully be introduced into the Worſhip of God, in the Churches of the New Teſtament?

Conſidered and anſwered in the following Concluſions.

I. THE Inſtrumental Muſick uſed in the old Church of Iſrael, was an Inſtitution of God: It was [2 Chron. 29. 25.] the Commandment of the Lord by the Prophets. And the Inſtruments are called God's Inſtruments, [1 Chron. 16. 42.] and Inſtruments of the Lord, [2 Chron. 7. 6.] Now there is not one word of Inſtitution in the New Teſtament, for Inſtrumental Muſick in the Worſhip of God. And becauſe the Holy God rejects all he does not command in his Worſhip, he now therefore in effect ſays unto us, I will not hear the Melody of thy Organs. But, on the other ſide, the Rule given doth abundantly Intimate, that no Voice is now to be heard in the Church, but what is ſignificant and edifying, by ſignification; which the Voice of Inſtruments is not.

II. Tho' Inſtrumental Muſick were admitted and appointed in the Worſhip of God under the Old Teſtament, yet we do not find it practiſed in the Synagogue of the Jews, but only in the Temple. It thence appears to have been a part of the Ceremonial Pedagogy, which is now aboliſhed; nor can any ſay it was a part of Moral Worſhip. And, whereas the common Uſage now hath confined Inſtrumental Muſick to Cathedrals, it ſeems therein too much to Judaize; which to do is a part of the Anti-Chriſtian Apoſtacy, as well as to Paganize.

III. In our aſſerting, a Matter of the Old Teſtament, to have been Typical, 'tis not needful, that we be always able to particularize any future Myſteries of the New Teſtament therein referred unto; Truths which were then of a preſent Conſideration, were ſometimes repreſented in the Types then uſed among the People of God, which helps to underſtand the Caſe of Inſtrumental Muſick.

IV. Inſtrumental Muſick in the Worſhip of God, is but a very late Invention and Corruption in the Church of the New Teſtament. The Writings that go under the name of Juſtin Martyr deny it and decry it. Chryſoſtom ſpeaks meanly of it. Even Aquinas himſelf, about 400 Years ago, determines againſt it, as Jewiſh and Carnal. Bellarmine himſelf confeſſes, that it was but late received in the Church.

V. If we admit Inſtrumental Muſick in the Worſhip of God, how can we reſiſt the Impoſition of all the Inſtruments uſed among the ancient Jews? Yea, Dancing as well as Playing, and ſeveral other Judaic Actions? Or, how can we decline a whole Rabble of Church-Officers, neceſſary to be introduced for Inſtrumental Muſick, whereof our Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath left us, no manner of Direction?

QUESTION.

Whether Baptiſm is to be adminiſtred by any but the Ordained Miniſters of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt?

I. WE find no Commiſſion or Permiſſion from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for any to be the Adminiſtrators of Baptiſm, except thoſe whoſe Work it is by his Commiſſion to preach the Goſpel, Matth. 28. 9. And none have a Commiſſion, to make the preaching of the Goſpel their Work, but ſuch as are, with the Call of the Faithful thereunto, ſet apart for that Work, Rom. 10. 15.

Baptiſm is a Seal of the Covenant; for any but an Officer to apply the Seal, in the Name of the Great King of Heaven, is a preſumptuous Arrogance.

Baptiſm is one of the Evangelical Myſteries, and none but Stewards in the Houſe of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, may pretend unto the Diſpenſation of thoſe Myſteries.

The Apoſtolical Writings intimate, that ſome are ſent to Baptiſe. Hence none are to Baptiſe, but thoſe that are ſent.

II. As both the Primitive and Proteſtant Churches, have ſignified their diſlike of Baptiſm adminiſtred by common Hands: Thus the Diſorder, and Confuſion, and the Contempt of the Inſtitutions of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which would be thereby introduced, is a ſufficient prejudice againſt it.

III. The Original of the Allowance and Countenance, given in ſome Churches, unto undue Adminiſtrators of Baptiſm has been from groſs Errors in the Minds of Men, about the Neceſſity and Operation of that Sacrament, whereof, non Privatio ſed Contemptus damnat.

¶ PROPOSITIONS.

Concerning the Marriage of Couſin-Germans.

I. THO' in the firſt Propagation of Mankind from one Head, by the Great God reſolved and required, it was neceſſary for Brothers, to Marry their Siſters, yet that ſo the Bonds of Amity in Humane Society might be the better increaſed, the Lord afterwards prohibited ſeveral Marriages, under the Title of Inceſt; and ſome were now too near akin to be united: there were degrees of Conſanguinity, and ſo of Affinity, wherein Marriages might not be contracted.

II. Albeit the Light of Nature teaches Men to preſerve a Diſtance, and Honour, for ſome that are very nearly related, and Natural Conſcience relucts with Horror at ſome Conjunctions; like, what the Apoſtle calls, a Fornication that is not ſo much as named among the Gentiles, and thoſe which the Poets themſelves call, Vetitos Hymenæos, and Impieties; yet it is a Moral Law of God, poſitively given, or a Law, the general reaſon whereof, is in the Nature of the thing, but the particular Limitation of it is by Revelation from God, that is to determine the Degrees, wherein Marriages are to be judged Unlawful and Inceſtuous.

III. In the Eighteenth Chapter of Leviticus, there is a Law of Heaven, declaring the Degrees, wherein Marriages are forbidden; and there is no doubt, that all that come within thoſe Degrees, are as much forbidden, tho' they be not expreſly mentioned.

What is pronounced a Sin, by that Law, is to be eſteemed a Sin, by the Gentiles, as well as Jews, (which the Concluſion of it, abundantly intimates:) But what falls not within the reach of that Law, is no Sin: and the Canon-Law, which for ſome Covetous and Enſlaving ends, hath made vaſt additions to this Law of God, is to be rejected, as full of Superſtitious Impoſitions.

IV. If we exactly conſider the Line in the Eighteenth Chapter of Leviticus, we ſhall find, that the moſt remote Relations forbidden to Marry, (which are, the Brother, and the Brothers Daughter) ſtand one Degree nearer to the root, than Couſin-Germans do. An Uncle or an Aunt therefore; being the furtheſt, with whom a Marriage is interdicted, it ſeems plain, that the Marriage of Couſin-Germans is not Inceſtuous.

V. Altho' Couſin-Germans, that are Married unto each other, now may and ſhould, with all Peace of Mind, live together in the fear of God, and not give way to diſtreſſing ſcruples; or queſtion the Lawfulneſs of their Marriage any more than the Famous Holoman would have done, who has written to prove it, pium & Chriſtianum eſſe. Nevertheleſs, there is much to be ſaid for the diſſuading of Couſin-Germans, from coming together in Marriage. Inexpedience ence we know ſometimes does produce unlawfulneſs. This Marriage may be very Inexpedient, it borders as near, as is poſſible, to what is unlawful. There is no need of coming ſo near, while we have ſuch a wide World before us. One end of Marriage, namely to promote, and extend alliances, is damnified herein. Some Wiſe and Good Men have been ſo troubled in their Minds, concerning theſe Marriages, that it is an eaſier thing to abſtain here from, than to extirpate ſuch a trouble from the Minds of the Faithful.

Some of the moſt conſiderable among the Ancients, eſpecially Ambroſe, and Auſtin, beſides Five ſeveral Councils, have ſeverly cenſured them; and the Churches of the Auguſtan Confeſſion, do to this Day prohibit them. So that upon the whole, the advice of the renowned Ames may ſeem not amiſs, Tutius eſt abſtinere.

QUESTION.

Whether, or how far the Diſcipline of our Churches upon offences in them, is to depend upon the Conviction of thoſe Offences in the Courts of Civil Judicature?

I. To bring the Diſcipline of the Church, into a dependance on the Direction of the Civil Magiſtrate, is to put it under undue, and unſafe diſadvantages. The mutual dependance of thoſe, on each other, as 'tis not founded in the Oracles of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, ſo it has been the occaſion of no little Confuſion in the World.

II. Some things may be cenſured in the Court, for Tranſgreſſions of the Laws, which may ſcarce deſerve the Cenſures of the Church.

III. Some things may be cenſured in the Church for Offences, againſt which, the Court has no Cenſures by any Law provided.

IV. Perſons may be ſo defective in their defence of themſelves by Legal formalities, as to fall under the Cenſures of the Court; and yet the Church may ſee cauſe, and do well, to acquit them.

V. Perſons may be acquited in the Court of Crimes laid to their Charge, for want of Conviction, and yet the Evidence may be ſo Convictive, that a Church may Condemn them thereupon.

VI. When a Church paſſes a Cenſure on any Delinquent, it is convenient and adviſable, that the Circumſtances of it be ſo managed, as to expoſe as little as may be, the cenſured Perſon unto the Sentence of the Court.

VII. A Church may do well ſometimes, to expreſs it's Faithfulneſs unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, by cenſuring ſome Evils, which a Court may faultily neglect to Animadvert upon.

VIII. Sometimes a Caſe may be ſo dark, that a Church may hope to be eaſed of Labour, and freed from Error, by a Court firſt ſifting of it, and then Chriſtian Prudence would make uſe of that help, to come at the knowledge of the Truth.

IX. When a Seſſion of a Court is very near, a Church may prudently forbear for a little while, a Proceſs, which the neceſſity of a Soul fallen into Sin, and the Vindication of the Name of the Lord, makes not proper to be forborn for a greater while.

X. When things are not very Apparent, or, very Important, it is prudently done of a Church, to defer the early deciſion of a Matter, which will produce between it, and the Court, a Controverſie of dangerous Conſequence.

XI. As 'tis the Duty of a Church to ſee that the Witneſſes of a Crime, to be judged by it, be obliged to ſpeak, as in the ſpecial preſence of the Great God, ſo if it be feared that the Witneſſes will not be Faithful, unleſs they be upon Oath, it is Prudence to defer 'till the Civil Magiſtrate have examined them.

XII. Or, if Witneſſes refuſe to come at all unto the Church, which the Civil Magiſtrate may and will compel to give in their Teſtimonies, a Church can in Prudence do no other than defer, 'till thoſe Witneſſes can be brought to teſtifie what is expected from them.

The Judgment of the Miniſters, met at Boſton, May, 11. 1699. upon a Caſe Addreſſed unto them, concerning LOTTERIES.

I. Great is the Difference, between, a Lottery ſet up, by Perſons acting in a private Capacity; and a Lottery ſet up, by the Government, who have Power to lay a Tax upon the People, but chooſe to leave unto the more eaſie Determination of a Lottery, the Perſons who ſhall pay the Summ which the Neceſſities of the Publick require. A Parliamentary Lottery takes only from the Voluntary, what the Government might have Demanded, with a more general Impoſition; and only when the People are plunged into ſuch diſtreſs, that a more general Impoſition would be grievous to them; and it employs for the welfare of the Publick, all that is thus raiſed by the Lottery. Whereas a more private Lottery, is managed, by thoſe that have no Antecedent claim unto any thing of their Neighbours, and it is deſigned merely for private advantage.

II. It is a Principle embraced among all well-informed Chriſtians, That no calling is Lawful, but what is uſeful unto Humane Society, in ſome of it's Intereſts, except there be in a Calling, ſome Tendency, to make an addition unto the Enjoyments and Intereſts of Humane Society, no Chriſtians may ſet it up. The Oracles of Heaven, tell us, Chriſtians muſt Learn to poſſeſs honeſt Trades for neceſſary uſes. To ſet up a Lottery is to ſet up a Calling. But tho' this or that particular Man may be a Gainer; yet it would puzle any Man to tell, what neceſſary, or convenient uſes, of Humane Society, where the Lottery is opened, are at all ſerved. The Minds, the Bodies, the Riches, the Defence, or the regular Delights, of Humane Society, have by this Lottery, no addition made unto them.

III. Not only the Undertakers of a Lottery, have a certain gain unto themſelves, from Humane Society; but ſo likewiſe have they, who in the Lottery, draw the Tickets of Benefit: and every one that Ventures, doth it with a deſire to fall upon thoſe Tickets in the Drawing. 'Tis very certain, that for this Benefit, none of thoſe can pretend, that they do any one thing Beneficial to Humane Society. They only Hire the Undertakers, to transfer the Eſtates of others unto them, without any ſervice done by them, to the Intereſts of any others under Heaven. But we do not judge this pleaſing unto God, that Mens Rights be ordinarily transferred from one to another, merely in a way of Reference to Divine Providence, without conſidering any ſervice therein intended unto the Community, or any help to Mankind in its true Intereſts. Nor is ventring in a Lottery on Shore, of the ſame Nature with venturing in a Merchandiſe at Sea.

IV. In a Lottery ſo contrived, that when all the Prizes be drawn, they do not make up, and fetch out, near the whole Summ that was depoſited by the Adventurers, there is a plain Cheat upon the People. The Undertakers in ſuch a Lottery, only reſolve to Pillage the People of ſuch a Conſiderable Summ; and invite a number to aſſiſt them in their Action, with hopes of going ſhares with them in the Advantage; and ſuch is the Corruption of Mankind, that the mere hopes of getting the Riches of other Men, without the doing of any ſervice to them for it, will engage Men to run the hazzard of being Loſers.

Upon the whole; we cannot approve it, that any particular Perſons do either undertake, or countenance any ſuch Lotteries, as have been ſometimes practiſed in other places, and the Danger which there is, leſt the Luſts of Men, once engaged in theſe Lotteries, proceed unto a multitude of other Diſorders, to the ruine of their Employments and their Families, does further move us, to withold our approbation from them.

§ 9. Having ſo often produced the Propoſitions voted by an Aſſembly of Miniſters at Cambridge, for the Explanation of our Platform, 'tis not, here, amiſs, on this occaſion to give ſome Hiſtory of that Aſſembly.

Know then, that according to the Advice of Mr. Hooker, who about a Week before he fell ſick of his laſt, let fall theſe words, We muſt Agree upon conſtant Meetings of Miniſters, and ſettle the Conſociation of Churches, or elſe we are utterly undone! It has been the care of the Miniſters, in the ſeveral Vicinages throughout the moſt part of the Countrey, to eſtabliſh ſuch conſtant Meetings, whereat they have informed one another of their various Exerciſes, and aſſiſted one another in the Work of our Lord: beſides a general Appearance of all the Miniſters in each Colony, once a Year, at the Town, and the Time of the General Court for Elections of Magiſtrates in the Colonies. Theſe Meetings have not all obliged themſelves to one Method of Proceeding, in purſuing of mutual Edification; ſome do ſtill Faſt and Pray together, and ſpeak in their turn to a propoſed Subject, much after the manner of the Great Grindal's Lectures: Others do only after the publick Lectures, then, held in the Congregation of that Paſtor, to whoſe Houſe they Adjourn, Confer a while together upon matters of Concernment: but one of theſe Meetings is regulated by the following Orders.

It is agreed by us whoſe Names are underwritten, that we do Aſſociate our ſelves for the promoting of the Goſpel, and our mutual Aſſiſtance and Furtherance in that great Work:

In order thereunto,

I. 'THAT we meet conſtantly, at the College in Cambridge, on a Monday at Nine or Ten of the Clock in the Morning, once in ſix Weeks, or oftner, if need be.

II. 'That in ſuch Meetings, one ſhall be choſen Moderator pro Tempore, for the better Order and Decency of our Proceedings, which Moderator is to be choſen, at the end of every Meeting.

III. 'That the Moderator's Work be,

1. 'To End the Meeting, wherein he is Choſen, and to begin the next with Prayer.

2. 'To propoſe Matters to be Debated, and Receive the Suffrages of the Bretheren.

3. 'To Receive with the Conſent of the Bretheren, the Subſcriptions of ſuch as ſhall join with us; and keep all Papers belonging to the Aſſociation.

4. 'To give and receive Notices, and appoint Meetings, upon Emergent Occaſions.

IV. 'That we ſhall ſubmit unto the Counſils, Reproofs and Cenſures of the Bretheren ſo Aſſociated and Aſſembled, in all things in the Lord [Eph. 5. 21.]

V. 'That none of us ſhall relinquiſh this Aſſociation, nor forſake the appointed Meetings, without giving ſufficient Reaſon for the ſame.

VI. 'That our Work, in the ſaid Meeting ſhall be;

1. 'To Debate any Matter referring to our ſelves.

2. 'To Hear and Conſider any Caſes that ſhall be propoſed unto us, from Churches or private Perſons.

3. 'To Anſwer any Letters directed unto us, from any other Aſſociations or Perſons.

4. 'To Diſcourſe of any Queſtion propoſed at the former Meeting.

§ 10. Such and ſo hath been our Platform of Church Diſcipline: If our Bretheren of the Preſbyterian Perſwaſion be ſtill uneaſie in any Article of it, let theſe things be offered for a Cloſe.

Firſt, The Preſbyterian Miniſters of this Country do find it no Difficulty to Practiſe the ſubſtance of it, in and with their ſeveral Congregations; and when it comes to the practice they do not find ſo much of Difficulty, as, at firſt, appear'd in the Notion.

Secondly, The Reverend Perſons of the Preſbyterian way, who wrote the Jus Divinum Miniſterii Evangelici, as long ſince as the Year 1654. declared,

'As we agree wholly in the ſame Confeſſion of Faith, ſo we agree in many things of greateſt Concernment, in the matters of Church Diſcipline. And thoſe things wherein we differ, are not of ſuch Conſequence as to cauſe a Schiſm between us, either in Worſhip, or in Love and Affection.

'Our Debates are (as it was ſaid of the Diſputes of the Ancient Fathers, one with another about leſſer differences) not Contentiones but Collationes. We can truly ſay, as our Bretheren do in their Preface, That it is far from us ſo to Atteſt the Diſcipline of Chriſt as to Deteſt the Diſciples of Chriſt; ſo to Conteſt for the Seam-leſs Coat of Chriſt, as to Crucifie the Living Members of Chriſt; ſo to divide our ſelves about Church-Communion, as thro' breaches to open a wide Gap, for a deluge of Antichriſtian and profane Malignity, to ſwallow up both Church and Civil State.

Thirdly, The Bretheren of the Preſbyterian way in England, are lately come unto ſuch an Happy Union, with thoſe of the Congregational, that all former Names of Diſtinction, are now ſwallowed up in that Bleſſed one of United Bretheren. And now partly becauſe one of New-England, namely Mr. Increaſe Mather, then Reſident at London, was very ſingularly Inſtrumental in Effecting of that Union; but more becauſe that Union, hath been for many Luſtres, yea, many Decads of Years Exemplified in the Churches of New-England, ſo far, that I believe, 'tis not poſſible for me to give a truer Deſcription of our Eccleſiaſtical Conſtitution, than by Tranſcribing thereof The Articles of that Union ſhall here be Repeated.

Heads of Agreement,

Aſſented to by the UNITED MINISTERS, formerly call'd Preſbyterian and Congregational.

I. Of Churches and Church-Members.

1 WE acknowledge our Lord Jeſus Chriſt to have One Catholick Church, or Kingdom, comprehending all that are united to him, whether in Heaven or Earth. And do conceive the whole Multitude of Viſible Believers, and their Infant-Seed (commonly call'd the Catholick Viſible Church) to belong to Chriſt's Spiritual Kingdom in this World. But for the Notion of a Catholick Viſible Church here, as it ſignifies it's having been collected into any formed Society, under a viſible Humane Head on Earth, whether One Perſon ſingly, or Many Collectively, we, with the reſt of Proteſtants, unanimouſly diſclaim it

2. We agree, that particular Societies of viſible Saints, who, under Chriſt their Head, are ſtatedly joined together, for ordinary Communion with one Author in all the Ordinances of Chriſt, are particular Churches, and are to be owned by each other, as inſtituted Churches of Chriſt, though differing in Apprehenſions and Practice in ſome leſſer Things.

3. That none ſhall be admitted as Members, in order to Communion in all the ſpecial Ordinances of the Goſpel, but ſuch Perſons as are knowing, and ſound in the Fundamental Doctrines of the Chriſtian Religion, without ſcandal in their Lives; and to a Judgment regulated by the Word of God, are Perſons of viſible Holineſs and Honeſty; credibly profeſſing Cordial Subjection to Jeſus Chriſt.

4. A competent number of ſuch viſible Saints, (as before deſcribed) do become the capable Subjects of ſtated Communion in all the ſpecial Ordinances of Chriſt upon their mutual declared Conſent and Agreement to walk together therein according to Goſpel Rule. In which Declaration, different degrees of Explicitneſs, ſhall no ways hinder ſuch Churches from owning each other, as inſtituted Churches.

5. Tho' parochial Bounds, be not of Divine Right, yet for common Edification, the Members of a particular Church ought (as much as coveniently may be) to live near one another.

6. That each particular Church hath right to uſe their own Officers; and being furniſhed with ſuch as are duly qualified and ordained according to the Goſpel Rule, hath Authority from Chriſt for exerciſing Government, and of enjoying all the Ordinances of Worſhip within it ſelf.

7. In the Adminiſtration of Church Power, it belongs to the Paſtors and other Elders of every particular Church, if ſuch there be to rule and govern, and to the Brotherhood to conſent according to the Rule of the Goſpel.

8. That all Profeſſors as before deſcribed, are bound in Duty, as they have opportunity to join themſelves as fixed Members of ſome particular Church; their thus joining being part of their profeſſed Subjection to the Goſpel of Chriſt, and an inſtituted Means of their Eſtabliſhment and Edification; whereby they are under the Paſtoral Care, and in caſe of ſcandalous or offenſive Walking, may be Authoritatively admoniſhed or cenſured for their Recovery, and for Vindication of the Truth and the Church profeſſing it.

9. That a Viſible Profeſſor thus joined to a particular Church ought to continue ſtedfaſt with the ſaid Church; and not forſake the Miniſtry, and Ordinances there diſpenſed, without an orderly ſeeking a Recommendation unto another Church, which ought to be given, when the Caſe of the Perſon apparently requires it.

II. Of the Miniſtry.

1. WE agree that the Miniſterial Office is inſtituted by Jeſus Chriſt for the gathering, guiding, edifying and governing of his Church; and to continue to the end of the World.

2. They who are called to this Office ought to be endued with competent Learning and miniſterial Gifts, as alſo with the Grace of God, ſound in Judgment, not Novices in the Faith and Knowledge of the Goſpel; without ſcandal, of Holy Converſation, and ſuch as devote themſelves to the Work and Service thereof.

3. That ordinarily none ſhall be ordained to the Work of this Miniſtry, but ſuch as are called and choſen thereunto by a particular Church.

4. That in ſo great and weighty a Matter as the calling and chuſing a Paſtor, we judge it ordinarily requiſite, that every ſuch Church conſult and adviſe with the Paſtors of neighbouring Congregations.

5. That after ſuch Advice the Perſon conſulted about, being choſen by the Brotherhood of that particular Church over which he is to be ſet, and he accepting, be duly ordained and ſet apart to his Office over them; wherein 'tis ordinarily requiſite that the Paſtors of Neighbouring Congregations concur with the preaching Elder or Elders, if ſuch there be.

6. That whereas ſuch Ordination is only intended for ſuch as never before had been ordained to the miniſterial Office; if any judge, that in the caſe alſo of the removal of one formerly ordained, to a new Station, or paſtoral Charge, there ought to be a like, ſolemn recommending him and his Labours to the Grace and Bleſſing of God; no different Sentiments or Practice herein, ſhall be any occaſion of Contention or Breach of Communion among us.

7. It is expedient, that they who enter on the work of preaching the Goſpel, be not only qualified for Communion of Saints; but alſo, that except in Caſes extraordinary, they give proof of their Gifts and Fitneſs for the ſaid Work, unto the Paſtors of Churches, of known Abilities to diſcern and judge of their Qualifications; that they may be ſent forth with ſolemn Approbation and Prayer; which we judge needful, that no Doubt may remain concerning their being called unto the Work; and for preventing (as much as in us lyeth) ignorant and raſh Intruders.

III. Of Cenſures.

1. AS it cannot be avoided, but that in the pureſt Churches on Earth, there will ſometimes Offences and Scandals ariſe by reaſon of Hypocriſie and prevailing Corruption; ſo Chriſt hath made it the Duty of every Church, to reform it ſelf by Spiritual Remedies appointed by him to be applyed in all ſuch Caſes, viz. Admonition and Excommunication.

2. Admonition, being the rebuking of an Offending Member in order to Conviction, is in caſe of private Offences to be performed according to the Rule in Matth. 18. 15, 16, 17. and in caſe of publick Offences openly before the Church, as the Honour of the Goſpel, and the nature of the Scandal ſhall require: And, if either of the Admonitions take place for the recovery of the fallen Perſon, all further Proceedings in a way of Cenſure are thereon to ceaſe, and ſatisfaction to be declared accordingly.

3. When all due Means are uſed, according to the Order of the Goſpel for the reſtoring an offending and ſcandalous Brother, and he, notwithſtanding remains impenitent, the Cenſure of Excommunication is to be proceeded unto; wherein the Paſtor and other Elders (if there be ſuch) are to lead and go before the Church; and the Brotherhood to give their Conſent in a way of Obedience unto Chriſt, and to the Elders, as over them in the Lord.

4. It may ſometimes come to paſs, that a Church-Member, not otherwiſe ſcandalous may ſinfully withdraw, and divide himſelf from the Communion of the Church to which he belongeth: In which caſe, when all due Means for the reducing him, prove ineffectual, he having thereby cut himſelf off from that Churches Communion; the Church may juſtly eſteem and declare itſelf diſcharged of any further Inſpection over him.

IV. Of Communion of Churches.

1. WE agree that particular Churches ought not to walk ſo diſtinct and ſeparate from each other, as not to have Care and Tenderneſs towards one another. But their Paſtors ought to have frequent Meetings together, that by mutual Advice, Support, Encouragement, and Brotherly Intercourſe, they may ſtrengthen the Hearts and Hands of each other in the Ways of the Lord.

2. That none of our particular Churches ſhall be ſubordinate to one another, each being endued with equality of Power from Jeſus Chriſt. And that none of the ſaid particular Churches, their Officer or Officers, ſhall exerciſe any Power, or have any Superiority, over any other Church or their Officers.

3. That known Members of particular Churches conſtituted as aforeſaid, may have occaſional Communion with one another in the Ordinances of the Goſpel, viz. the Word, Prayer, Sacraments, ſinging of Pſalms, diſpenſed according to the mind of Chriſt: Unleſs that Church, with which they deſire Communion, hath any juſt Exception againſt them.

4. That we ought not admit any One to be a Member of our reſpective Congregations, that hath join'd himſelf to another, without Endeavours of mutual Satisfaction of the Congregations concerned.

5. That One Church ought not to blame the Proceedings of another, until it hath heard, what that Church charged, its Elders or Meſſengers, can ſay in vindication of themſelves from any charge of Irregular or injurious Proceedings.

6. That we are moſt willing and ready to give an Account of other Church-Proceedings to each other, when deſired; for preventing or removing any Offences, that may ariſe among us. Likewiſe we ſhall be ready to give the Right Hand of Fellowſhip, and walk together according to the Goſpel Rules of Communion of Churches.

V. Of Deacons and Ruling-Elders.

WE agree, the Office of a Deacon is of Divine Appointment, and that it belongs to their Office to receive, lay out, and diſtribute the Churches Stock to its proper Uſes, by the direction of the Paſtor, and, Bretheren, if need be. And whereas diverſe are of Opinion, That there is alſo the Office of Ruling-Elders, who labour not in Word and Doctrine; and others think otherwiſe; we agree that this Difference make no Breach among us.

VI. Of occaſional Meeting of Miniſters, &c.

1. WE agree that in order to Concord, and in other weighty and difficult Caſes, it is needful and according to the mind of Chriſt, that the Miniſters of ſeveral Churches be conſulted and adviſed with about ſuch Matters.

2. That ſuch Meetings may conſiſt of ſmaller or greater Numbers, as the Matter ſhall require.

3. That particular Churches, their reſpective Elders and Members, ought to have a reverential Regard to their Judgment, ſo given, and not diſſent therefrom without apparent Grounds from the Word of God.

VII. Of our Demeanour towards the Civil Magiſtrate.

1. WE do reckon our ſelves obliged continually to pray for God's Protection, Guidance and Bleſſing upon the Rulers ſet over us.

2. That we ought to yield unto them not only Subjection in the Lord, but Support, according to our Station and Abilities.

3. That if at any time, it ſhall be their Pleaſure to call together any number of us, to require an Account of our Affairs, and the State of our Congregations, we ſhall moſt readily expreſs all dutiful Regard to them herein.

VIII. Of a Confeſſion of Faith.

AS to what appertains to ſoundneſs of Judgment in Matters of Faith, we eſteem it ſufficient that a Church acknowledge the Scriptures to be the Word of God, the perfect and only rule of Faith and Practice, and own either the Doctrinal part of thoſe commonly called the Articles of the Church of England, or the Confeſſion or Catechiſms, ſhorter or larger compiled by the Aſſembly at Weſtminſter, or the Confeſſion agreed on at the Savoy, to be agreeable to the ſaid Rule.

IX. Of our Duty and Deportment towards them that are not in Communion with us.

1. WE judge it our Duty to bear a Chriſtian Reſpect to all Chriſtians, according to their ſeveral Ranks and Stations, that are not of our Perſwaſion or Communion.

2. As for ſuch as may be ignorant of the Principles of the Chriſtian Religion, or of Vicious Converſation, we ſhall in our reſpective Places, as they give Opportunity, endeavour to explain to them the Doctrine of Life and Salvation, and to our utmoſt perſwade them to be reconciled to God.

3. That ſuch who appear to have the Eſſential Requiſites to Church-Communion, we ſhall willingly receive them in the Lord, not troubling them with Diſputes about leſſer Matters.

As we aſſent to the fore-mentioned Heads of Agreement, ſo we unanimouſly reſolve as the Lord ſhall enable us to Practiſe according to them.

The Third PART.

THE PRINCIPLES owned, AND THE ENDEAVOURS uſed, BY THE Churches of New=England: Concerning the Church-State of Their Poſterity.

Si Eccleſia debet unquam Refloreſcere, neceſſe eſt, at à puerorum Inſtitutione Exordium fiat. Luther.

1. AS the Engliſh Nation has been honoured above moſt of the Proteſtant and Reformed World, with clearer Diſcoveries of ſeveral moſt conſiderable Points in our Chriſtian Religion; particularly the Points of a true Evangelical Church-Order; ſo the New-Engliſh part of this Nation hath had a ſingular ſhare in receiving and imparting the Illuminations, which the Light ſhining in a dark Place hath given thereabout. Very true and juſt are the printed Words of the well known Mr. Nathanael Mather, on this Occaſion.

‘Amongſt all that have ſuffered for, and ſearched into theſe Truths, they of New-England, juſtly deſerve and will have a Name and a Glory, as long as the Earth ſhall have any Remembrance of an Engliſh Nation. After Ages will honour them for that great and high Adventure of Theirs, in tranſporting themſelves, their Wives and little Ones, upon the rude Waves of the vaſt Ocean into a remote, deſolate and howling Wilderneſs, and there encountring by Faith and Patience with a World of Temptations and Streights and preſſing Wants and Difficulties, and this upon no other Inducements, but that they might meet with him whom their Souls loved, in the midſt of his Golden Candleſticks, and ſee him, as they have there ſeen him in his Sanctuary. It might rationally be now expected, that our compaſſionate Lord Jeſus Chriſt would graciouſly gratifie the Deſires and Labours of ſuch an Holy Generation with as full an Underſtanding of his revealed Will about his inſtituted Worſhip, as he has at any time granted unto any of his People; and that eſpecially the Officers of inſtituted Churches humbly, prayerfully and carefully engaged in Studies for their Service, would lye under as direct an Influence of his Holy Spirit, as any Inquirers whatſoever. But there is one very important Article of Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline whereabouts the Churches of New-England have had a moſt peculiar Exerciſe and Concernment; and that is the Eccleſiaſtical State of their Poſterity.

2. When our Churches were come to between twenty and thirty Years of Age, a numerous Poſterity was advanced ſo far into the World, that the Firſt-Planters began apace in their ſeveral Families, to be diſtinguiſhed by the name of Grand-Fathers: But among the immediate Parents of the Grand-Children, there were multitudes of well diſpoſed Perſons, who partly through their own Doubts and Fears, and partly thro' other culpable Neglects, had not actually come up to the covenanting State of Communicants at the Table of the Lord. The good old Generation could not without many uncomfortable Apprehenſions, behold their Off-ſpring excluded from the Baptiſm of Chriſtianity, and from the Eccleſiaſtical Inſpection which is to accompany that Baptiſm; indeed it was to leave their Off-ſpring under the Shepherdly Government of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in his Ordinances, that they had brought their Lambs into this Wilderneſs. When the Apoſtle bids Churches to Look diligently, leſt any Man fail of the Grace of God, there is an Eccleſiaſtical Word uſed for that looking diligently; intimating that God will ordinarily bleſs a regular Church-watch, to maintain the Intereſts of Grace among his People: And it was therefore the Study of thoſe prudent Men, who might be call'd our Seers, that the Children of the Faithful may be kept as far as may be, under a Church-watch, in expectation that they might be in the fairer way to receive the Grace of God; thus they were looking diligently, that the proſperous and prevailing Condition of Religion in our Churches, might not be Res unius ætatis, a matter of one Age alone. Moreover, among the next Sons or Daughters deſcending from that Generation, there was a numerous Appearance of ſober Perſons, who profeſſed themſelves deſirous to renew their Baptiſmal-Covenant, and ſubmit unto the Church Diſcipline, and ſo have their Houſes alſo marked for the Lord's; but yet they could not come up to that experimental Account of their own Regeneration, which would ſufficiently embolden their Acceſs to the other Sacrament. Wherefore, for our Churches now to make no Eccleſiaſtical Difference between theſe hopeful Candidates and Competents for thoſe our further Myſteries; and Pagans, who might happen to hear the Word of God in our Aſſemblies; was judged a moſt unwarrantable Strictneſs, which would quickly abandon the biggeſt part of our Country unto Heatheniſm. And on the other ſide, it was feared, that if all ſuch, as had not yet expoſed themſelves by cenſurable Scandals found upon them, ſhould be admitted unto all the Priviledges in our Churches, a wordly part of Mankind might, before we are aware, carry all Things into ſuch a courſe of Proceeding, as would be very diſagreeable unto the Kingdom of Heaven.

§ 3. The Queſtions raiſed about theſe Matters, came to ſome Figure firſt, in the Colony of Connecticut; where the pious Magiſtrates obſerving the begun Dangers of Paroxyſms, which might affect the State as well as the Church, on this Occaſion, procured a Draught of the agitated Queſtions, and ſent them to the Magiſtrates of the Maſſachuſet's Colony, with a Requeſt, that ſeveral of the ableſt Miniſters, in both Colonies might upon mature Deliberation, give in their Anſwers thereunto. Accordingly, the Letters of the Government, procured an Aſſembly of our principal Miniſters at Boſton on June 4. 1657. who by the 19th of that Month prepared and preſented an elaborate Anſwer to twenty one Queſtions; which was afterwards printed in London, under the Title of, A Diſputation concerning Church-Members and their Children. Beſides, other Caſes referring to the Church State of Children born in the Boſom of the Church, it is in this Diſputation aſſerted and maintained, ‘ That it is the Duty of Infants, who confederate in their Parents, when grown up unto Years of Diſcretion, tho' not yet fit, for the Lord's Supper, to own the Covenant, they made with their Parents, by entering thereinto, in their own Perſons: And it is the Duty of the Church, to call upon them for the performance thereof; and, if being called upon, they ſhall refuſe the Performance of this great Duty, or otherwiſe to continue Scandalous, they are liable to be cenſured for the ſame, by the Church. And in caſe they underſtand the Grounds of Religion, and are not Scandalous, and ſolemnly own the Covenant in their own Perſons, wherein they give up both themſelves and their Children unto the Lord, and deſire Baptiſm for them, we ſee not ſufficient cauſe to deny Baptiſm unto their Children.

§ 4. The Practice of Church Care, about the Children of our Churches thus directed and commended, was but gradually introduced; yea, it met with ſuch Oppoſition as could not be encountred with any thing leſs than a Synod of Elders and Meſſengers, from all the Churches in the Maſſachuſet Colony. Accordingly, the general Court, having the neceſſity of the Matter laid before them, at their ſecond Seſſion in the Year 1661. iſſued out their Deſire and Order for the convening of ſuch a Synod at Boſton in the Spring of the Year enſuing. And for the Deliberations of that Synod, beſides the grand Queſtion, about the Subject of Baptiſm, there was another Queſtion propounded about the Conſociation of Churches, which was of no ſmall Conſequence to the Intereſts of Chriſtianity in the Country. As the Divines of New-England were Sollicitous that the Propagation of our Churches might hold pace with that of our Off-ſpring, ſo they were induſtrious for the Combination of our Churches into ſuch a Bundle of Arrowes, as might not eaſily be broken. However, they had by their Adverſaries been termed Independents, nevertheleſs they ſolemnly, on this Occaſion, repeated and ſubſcribed, that Profeſſion of their famous Bretheren in the Engliſh Nation; ‘ That it is the moſt to be abhorred Maxim, that any Religion hath made Profeſſion of, and therefore of all other the moſt contradictory, and diſhonourable unto that of Chriſtianity, that a ſingle and particular Society of Men, profeſſing the name of Chriſt, and pretending to be endowed with a Power from Chriſt, to judge them that are of the ſame Body and Society with themſelves, ſhould further arrogate unto themſelves an Exemption from giving Account, or being cenſurable by any other, either Chriſtian Magiſtrate above them, or Neighbour Churches about them. Under the Influence of theſe Concernments, the Elders and Meſſengers of the Churches aſſembled at Boſton, in the Year 1662. who under the Conduct of ſeveral ſucceſſive Moderators, at length agreed upon certain Propoſitions; which being tendred unto the general Court, there was an Order there paſſed on Oct. 8. 1662. for the Publication and Commendation thereof unto all the Churches in the Juriſdiction. They were as followeth.

THE ANSWER OF THE ELDERS and other MESSENGERS of the Churches, aſſembled at Boſton, in the Year 1662. TO THE QUESTIONS propounded to them, by Order of the Honoured General Court.

QUESTION I.

Who are the Subjects of Baptiſm?

ANSWER.

THE Anſwer may be given in the following Propoſitions, briefly confirmed from the Scriptures.

1. ‘ They that, according to Scripture, are Members of the Viſible Church, are the Subjects of Baptiſm.

2. ‘ The Members of the Viſible Church, according to Scripture, are Confederate Viſible Believers, in particular Churches, and their Infant-Seed, i. e. Children in Minority, whoſe next Parents, one or both, are in Covenant.

3. ‘ The Infant-Seed of Confederate Viſible Believers, are Members of the ſame Church with their Parents, and when grown up are perſonally under the Watch, Diſcipline and Government of that Church.

4. ‘ Theſe adult Perſons, are not therefore to be admitted to full Communion, meerly becauſe they are, and continue Members, without ſuch further Qualifications as the Word of God requireth thereunto.

5. ‘ Church-Members who were admitted in Minority, underſtanding the Doctrine of Faith, and publickly profeſſing their Aſſent thereto, not ſcandalous in Life, and ſolemnly owning the Covenant before the Church, wherein they give up themſelves and their Children to the Lord, and ſubject themſelves to the Government of Chriſt in the Church, their Children are to be baptiſed.

6. ‘ Such Church-Members, who either by Death, or ſome other extraordinary Providence, have been inevitably hindred from publick Acting as aforeſaid, yet have given the Church cauſe in Judgment of Charity, to look at them as ſo qualified, and ſuch as had they been called thereunto, would have ſo acted; their Children are to be baptiſed.

7. ‘ The Members of Oxthodox Churches, being ſound in the Faith and not ſcandalous in Life, and preſenting due Teſtimony thereof; theſe occaſionally coming from one Church to another may have their Children baptiſed in the Church, whither they come, by virtue of Communion of Churches: But if they remove their Habitation, they ought orderly to Covenant and Subject themſelves to the Government of Chriſt in the Church, where they ſettle their abode, and ſo their Children to be baptiſed. It being the Churche's Duty to receive ſuch into Communion, ſo far, as they are regularly fit for the ſame.

The Confirmation of theſe Propoſitions from the Scripture, followeth.

PROPOSITION I.

They, that according to Scripture, are Members of the Viſible Church, are the Subjects of Baptiſm.

The Truth hereof may appear by the following Evidences from the Word of God.

1. WHen Chriſt ſaith, Go ye therefore and teach, or (as the Greek is) diſciple all Nations, Baptiſing them, Matth. 28. 19. He expreſſeth the Adæquate Subject of Baptiſm, to be Diſciples or diſcipled Ones. But Diſciples there, is the ſame with Members of the Viſible Church. For the Viſible Church is Chriſt's School, wherein all the Members ſtand related and ſubjected to him, as their Maſter and Teacher, and ſo are his Scholars or Diſciples, and under his teaching, as ver. 20. And it is that viſible Spiritual Kingdom of Chriſt, which he, there, from his kingly Power, v. 18. ſendeth them to ſet up and adminiſter, in v. 19. The Subjects whereof are under his Laws and Government, v. 20. Which Subjects (or Members of that Kingdom, i. e. of the Viſible Church) are termed Diſciples, v. 19. Alſo in the Acts of the Apoſtles, (the Story of their Accompliſhment of that Commiſſion) Diſciples are uſually put for Members of the Viſible Church, Acts 1. 15. In the midſt of the Diſciples, who, with others added to them, are called the Church, Act. 2. 47. The Members whereof are again called Diſciples, Acts 6. 1, 2. Acts 9. 1. Againſt the Diſciples of the Lord; i. e. againſt the Church of God, 1 Cor. 15. 9. Galat. 1. 13. Acts 9. 26. He aſſayed to join himſelf to the Diſciples. The Diſciples of Lyſtra, Iconium and Antioch, Acts 14. 21, 22. are call'd the Church in each of thoſe Places, v. 23. ſo the Church, v. 27. the Diſciples, v. 28. Acts 18. 22. The Church at Cæſarea; Acts 21. 16. The Diſciples of Cæſarea: So Acts 18. 23. with Chap. 15. 41. & Gal. 1. 2. Acts 18. 27. & Chap. 20. 1. From all which it appeareth, that Diſciples in Matth. 28. 19. and Members of the Viſible Church, are Terms equivalent; and Diſciples being, there, by Chriſt himſelf made the Subjects of Baptiſm, it followeth that the Members of the Viſible Church are the Subjects of Baptiſm.

2. Baptiſm is the Seal of the firſt Entrance or Admiſſion into the Viſible Church; as appeareth from thoſe Texts, 1 Cor. 12. 13. Baptiſed into one Body, i. e. our Entrance into the Body or Church of Chriſt, is ſealed by Baptiſm: And Rom. 6. 3, 5. Gal. 3. 27. where 'tis ſhewed that Baptiſm is the Sacrament of Union, or of ingrafting into Chriſt the Head, and conſequently into the Church his Body, and from the Apoſtle's conſtant practice of baptiſing Perſons upon their firſt coming in, or firſt giving up themſelves to the Lord and them. Acts 8. 12. and 16, 15. 33. and 18. 8. and Acts 2. 41. 42. they were baptiſed at their firſt Adding to the Church, or Admiſſion into the Apoſtle's Fellowſhip, wherein they, afterward, continued. And from its anſwering unto Circumciſion, which was a Seal of Initiation or Admiſſion into the Church; hence it belongs to all, and only thoſe that are entred into, that are within or that are Members of the Viſible Church.

3. They that according to Scripture are Members of the Viſible Church, are in Covenant. For it is the Covenant, that conſtituteth the Church, Deut. 29. 12, 13. They muſt enter into Covenant, that they might be eſtabliſhed the People or Church of God. Now the initiatory Seal is affixed to the Covenant, and appointed to run parallel therewith, Gen. 17. 7, 9, 10, 11. ſo Circumciſion was, and hence called the Covenant, Gen. 17. 13. Acts 7. 8. And ſo Baptiſm is being in like manner annexed to the Promiſe or Covenant, Acts 2. 38, 39. and being the Seal that anſwereth to Circumciſion, Col. 2. 11, 12.

4. Chriſt doth ſanctifie and cleanſe the Church by the waſhing of Water, i. e. by Baptiſm, Eph. 5. 25, 26. Therefore the whole Church, and and ſo all the Members thereof (who are alſo ſaid in Scripture to be ſanctified in Chriſt Jeſus, 1 Cor. 1. 2.) are the Subjects of Baptiſm. And altho' it is the Inviſible Church, unto the Spiritual and Eternal Good whereof, this and all other Ordinances laſtly, have reſpect, and which the place mentioned in Eph. 5. may in a ſpecial manner look unto, yet it is the Viſible Church that is the next and immediate Subject of the Adminiſtration thereof. For the Subject of viſible external Ordinances to be adminiſtred by Men, muſt needs be viſible. And ſo the Apoſtle baptized ſundry Perſons, who were of the viſible, but not of the inviſible Church, as Simon Magus, Ananias and Sapharia, and others. And there are viſibly purchaſed and ſanctified by the Blood of Chriſt, the Blood of the Covenant, Acts 20. 28. Heb. 10. 29. Therefore the Viſible Seal of the Covenant and of cleanſing by Chriſt's Blood belongs to them.

5. The Circumciſion is often put for the whole Jewiſh Church, or for the Members of the Viſible Church under the Old Teſtament. Thoſe within are expreſſed by [the circumciſed] and thoſe without by [the Uncircumciſed] Rom. 15. 8. and 3. 30. Eph. 2. 11. Judges 14. 3. and 15. 18. 1 Sam. 14. 6. and 17. 26, 36. Jer. 9. 25, 26. Hence by proportion Baptiſm (which is our Goſpel Circumciſion, Col. 2. 11. 12.) belongs to the whole Viſible Church under the New Teſtament. Actual and perſonal Circumciſion, was indeed proper to the Males of old, Females being but incluſively and virtually circumciſed and ſo counted of the Circumciſion: But the Lord has taken away that Difference now, and appointed Baptiſm to be perſonally applied to both Sexes. Acts 8. 12. and 16. 15. Gal. 3. 28. So that every particular Member of the Viſible Church is now a Subject of Baptiſm. We conclude, therefore, that Baptiſm pertains to the whole Viſible Church, and to all and every one therein, and to no other.

PROPOSITION II.

The Members of the Viſible Church according to Scripture, are confederate Viſible Believers, in particular Churches, and their Infant-ſeed,* i. e. *Children in Minority, whoſe next Parents, one or both are in Covenant.

Sundry Particulars are compriſed in this Propoſition, which we may conſider and confirm diſtinctly.

Partic. 1. Adult Perſons, who are Members of the Viſible Church, are by Rule confederate Viſible Believers, Acts 5. 14. Believers were added to the Lord. The Believing Corinthians were Members of the Church there, Acts 18. 8. with 1 Cor. 1. 2. and 12. 27. The Inſcription of the Epiſtles written to Churches, and calling the Members thereof Saints and Faithful, ſhew the ſame thing, Eph. 1. 1. Phil. 1. 1. Col. 1. 2. And that conſideration, i. e. Covenanting explicite or implicite (the latter preſerveth the Eſſence of Confederation, the former is Duty and moſt deſirable) is neceſſary to make one a Member of the Viſible Church, appears, 1. Becauſe the Church is conſtituted by Covenant; for there is between Chriſt and the Church, the mutual Engagement and Relation of King and Subjects, Husband and Spouſe; this cannot be, but by Covenant (internal if you ſpeak of the Inviſible Church, external of the Viſible) a Church is a Company that can ſay, God is our God and we are his People, this is from the Covenant between God and them. Deut. 29. 12, 13. Ezek. 16. 8. 2. The Church of the Old Teſtament was the Church of God by Covenant, Gen. 17. Deut. 29. and was reformed ſtill by the renewing of the Covenant, 2 Chron. 15. 16. and 23. 12. and 34. 31. 32. Neh. 9. 38. Now the Churches of the Gentiles under the New Teſtament ſtand upon the ſame Baſis or Root, with the Church of the Old Teſtament, and therefore are conſtituted by Covenant, as that was, Rom. 11. 17, 18. Eph. 2. 11, 12, 19. and 3. 6. Heb. 8. 10. 3. Baptiſm enters us into the Church Sacramentally, i. e. by ſealing the Covenant. The Covenant, therefore, is that which conſtitutes the Church, and infers Memberſhip, and is the Vow in Baptiſm commonly ſpoken of.

Partic. 2. The Members of the Viſible Church are ſuch as are confederate in particular Churches. It may be minded that we are here ſpeaking of Members, ſo ſtated in the Viſible Church, as that they are Subjects, to whom Church-Ordinances may regularly be adminiſtred, and that according to ordinary Diſpenſation. For were it granted, that the Apoſtles and Evangeliſts did ſometimes baptiſe ſuch, as were not Members of any particular Church, yet their extraordinary Office large Power and Commiſſion renders them not imitable therein by ordinary Officers. For then they might baptiſe in private, without the Preſence of a Chriſtian aſſembly, as Philip did the Eunuch. But that in ordinary Diſpenſation the Members of the Viſible Church, according to the Scripture, are, ſuch as are Members of ſome particular Church, appears, 1. Becauſe the Viſible Believer that profeſſedly Covenants with God doth therein give up himſelf to wait on God in all his Ordinances, Deut. 26. 17, 18. Matt. 28. 19, 20. But all the Ordinances of God are to be enjoyed only in a particular Church. For how often do we find in the Scripture that they came together into one place, (or met as a Congregational particular Church) for the Obſervation and Enjoyment of the Ordinances, Acts 2. 1, 44, 46. and 4. 31. and 11. 26. and 20. 7. 1 Cor. 5. 4. and 11. 18. and 20. 33. and 14. 23. 2. The Apoſtle in his Epiſtles writing to Saints or Believers, writes to them as in particular Churches, 1 Cor. 1, 2. Eph. 1. 1. Phil. 1. 1. Col. 1. 2. And when the Story of the Acts ſpeaks of Diſciples, other places ſhew that thoſe are underſtood to be Members of particular Churches, Acts 18. 23. with Gal. 1. 2. Acts 21. 16. with 18. 22. and 11. 26. and 14. 22, 23, 27, 28. All which ſhews that the Scripture acknowledgeth no ſettled orderly Eſtate of Viſible Believers in Covenant, with God, but only in particular Churches. 3. The Members of the Viſible Church are Diſciples, as was above cleared, now Diſciples are under Diſcipline, and liable to Church Cenſures: For they are ſtated Subjects of Chriſt's Laws and Government, Matt. 28. 19, 20. but Church-Government and Cenſures are extant now in ordinary Diſpenſation only in a particular Church, Matt. 18. 17. 1 Cor. 5. 4.

Partic. 3. The Infant-ſeed of confederate Viſible Believers are alſo Members of the Viſible Church. The truth of this is evident from the Scriptures and Reaſons following.

Argum. 1. The Covenant of Abraham, as to the Subſtance thereof, viz. That whereby God declares himſelf to be the God of the Faithful and their Seed, Gen. 17. 7. continues under the Goſpel, as appears. 1. Becauſe the Believing inchurched Gentiles under the New Teſtament, do ſtand upon the ſame Root of covenanting Abraham; which the Jews were broken off from. Rom. 11. 16, 17, 18. 2. Becauſe Abraham in regard of that Covenant was made a Father of many Nations, Gen. 17. 4, 5. even of Gentiles as well as Jews, under New Teſtament as well as Old. Rom. 4. 16, 17. Gal. 3. 29. i. e. in Abraham as a Pattern and Root, God not only ſheweth how he juſtifies the Believer, Gal. 3. 6. 9. Rom. 4. but alſo conveyed that Covenant to the Faith, and their Seed in all Nations, Luke 19. 9. If a Son of Abraham, then Salvation, i. e. the Covenant-Diſpenſation of Salvation is come to his Houſe. 3. As that Covenant was communicated to proſelyte Gentiles under the New Teſtament, ſo its Communication to the inchurched Gentiles under the New Teſtament is clearly held forth in diverſe Places, Gal. 3. 14. The Bleſſing of Abraham compriſeth both the internal Benefits of Juſtification by Faith, &c. which the Apoſtle is there treating of; and the external Diſpenſation of Grace in the viſible Church to the Faithful and their Seed, Gen. 28. 4. but the whole Bleſſing of Abraham (and ſo the whole Covenant) is come upon the Gentiles thro' Jeſus Chriſt, Eph. 2. 12, 19. They had been Strangers, but now were no more Strangers from the Covenants of Promiſe, i. e. from the Covenant of Grace, which had often been renewed, eſpecially with Abraham, and the Houſe of Iſrael, and had been in the External Diſpenſation of it, their peculiar Portion, ſo that the Epheſians, who were afar off, being now called and made nigh, v. 13, 17. they have the Promiſe or the Covenant of Promiſe to them and to their Children, according to Acts 2. 39. and ſo are Partakers of that Covenant of Abraham, that we are ſpeaking of, Eph. 3. 6. The Inchurched Gentiles are put into the ſame Inheritance for Subſtance (both as to inviſible and viſible Benefits, according to their reſpective Conditions) are of the ſame Body, and Partakers of the ſame Promiſe with the Jews, the Children of Abraham, of old. The ſame may be gathered from Gen. 9. 27. Mat. 8. 11. & 21. 43. 4. Sundry Scriptures which extend to Goſpel-times do confirm the ſame Intereſt to the Seed of the Faithful which is held forth in the Covenant of Abraham, and conſequently do confirm the Continuance of that Covenant, as Exod. 20. 6. there in the Sanction of a Moral and Perpetual Commandment, and that reſpecting Ordinances, the Portion of the Church, God declareth himſelf to be a God of Mercy to them that love him, and to their Seed after them in their Generations, conſonant to Gen. 17. 7. compare herewith, Pſalm 105. 8, 9. and Deut. 7. 9. Deut. 30. 6. The Grace ſignified by Circumciſion is there promiſed to Parents and Children, importing the Covenant to both, which Circumciſion ſealed, Gen. 17. and that is a Goſpel Promiſe, as the Apoſtles citing part of that Context, as the Voice of the Goſpel ſhews Rom. 10. 6, 8. with Deut. 20. 11, 14. and it reacheth to the Jews in the latter Days, v. 1, 5. Iſa. 65. 23. In the moſt glorious Goſpel-State of the Church, v. 17, 19. The Bleſſing of the Lord is the promiſed Portion of the Offſpring or Children as well as of the Faithful Parents, ſo Iſa. 44. 3, 4. Iſa. 59. 20, 21. Ezek. 37. 25, 26. at the future calling of the Jews, which thoſe Texts have Reference to (Rom. 11. 26. Ezek. 37. 19, 22, 23, 24.) their Children ſhall be under the Promiſe or Covenant of ſpecial Grace to be conveyed to them in the Ordinances, Iſa. 59. 21. and be Subjects of David, i. e. Chriſt their King, Ezek. 37. 25. and have a Portion in his Sanctuary, v. 26. and this according to the Tenor of the Ancient Covenant of Abraham, whereby God will be their God (viz. both of Parents and Children) and they ſhall be his People, v. 26, 27. Now altho' more abundant Fruits of the Covenant may be ſeen in thoſe times, and the Jews then may have more abundant Grace given to the Body of them to continue in the Covenant, yet the Tenor and Frame of the Covenant it ſelf is one and the ſame both to Jews and Gentiles under the New Teſtament, Gal. 3. 28. Col. 3. 11. Heb. 8. 10. The Houſe of Iſrael, i. e. the Church of God both among Jews and Gentiles under the New-Teſtament have that Covenant made with them, the Summ whereof is, I will be their God, and they ſhall be my People, which is a renewing of that Covenant of Abraham in Gen. 17. (as the ſame is very often over in thoſe Terms renewed in Scripture, and is diſtinguiſhed from the Law, Gal. 3. 16, 17. Heb. 8. 9.) wherein is implied God's being a God to the Seed, as well as Parents, and taking both to be his People, tho' it be not expreſſed: even as it is often plainly implied in that Expreſſion of the Covenant in other places of the Covenant in other places of Scripture, Deut. 29. 13. Jer. 31. 1. and 32. 38, 39. and 30. 22, 20. Ezek. 37. 27, 25. Alſo the writing of the Law in the Heart in Heb. 8. 10. is that Heart Circumciſion, which Deut. 30. 6. extends both to Parents and Seed. And the term Houſe of Iſrael doth according to Scripture Uſe fitly expreſs and take in (eſpecially as to the eternal Adminiſtration of the Covenant) both Parents and Children: Among both which are found that Elect and ſaved Number; that make up the inviſible Iſrael, compare Jer. 13. 11. and 9. 26. Iſaiah 5. 7. Hoſ. 1. 6. Ezek. 39. 25. Neither may we exclude the leaſt in Age from the Good of that Promiſe, Heb. 8. 11. (they being ſometimes pointed to by that Phraſe, from the leaſt to the greateſt, Jer. 44. 12. with v. 7.) no more than the leaſt in other Reſpects, compare Iſaiah 54. 13. In Acts 2. 39. At the paſſing of thoſe Jews into New-Teſtament Church-State, the Lord is ſo far from repealing the Covenant Intereſt, that was granted unto Children in the former Teſtament, or from making the Children there loſers by their Parents Faith, that he doth expreſly renew the old Grant, and tells them, that the Promiſe or Covenant (for the Promiſe and the Covenant are Terms that do mutually infer each other, compare Acts 3. 25. Gal. 3. 16, 17, 18, 29. Rom. 4. 16. Heb. 6. 17.) is to them and their Children, the ſame is aſſerted to be the appointed Portion of the far off Gentiles, when they ſhould be called. By all which it appears that the Covenant of Abraham, Gen. 17. 7. whereby God is the God of the Faithful and their Seed, continues under the Goſpel.

Now if the Seed of the Faithful be ſtill in the Covenant of Abraham, then they are Members of the Viſible Church. 1. Becauſe that Covenant of Abraham, Gen. 17. 7. was properly Church-Covenant, or the Covenant which God makes with his Viſible Church, i. e. The Covenant of Grace conſidered in the external Diſpenſation of it, and in the Promiſes and Priviledges that belong to that Diſpenſation. For many were taken into that Covenant, that were never of the Inviſible Church, and by that Covenant the Family of Abraham, as alſo by the renewing thereof the Houſe of Iſrael afterwards were eſtabliſhed the Viſible Church of God, Gen. 17. and Deut. 29. 12, 13. and from that Covenant Men might be broken off, Gen. 17. 14. Rom. 11. 17, 19. and to that Covenant, Circumciſion, the Badg of Church-Memberſhip, was annexed. Therefore the Covenantees therein, were and are Church-Members. 2. Becauſe in that Covenant the Seed are ſpoken of in Terms deſcribing or inferring Church-Memberſhip, as well as their Parents: For they have God for their God and are his People as well as the Parents, Gen. 17. 7, 8. with Deut. 29. 11, 13. They have the Covenant made with them, Deut. 29. 14, 15. and the Covenant is ſaid to be between God and them, (between me and thee and between thy Seed after thee: So the Hebrew runs) Gen. 17. 7. They are alſo in that Covenant appointed to be the Subjects of the Initiatory Seal of the Covenant, the Seal of Memberſhip, Gen. 17. 9, 10, 11. Thefore the Seed are according to that Covenant, Members of the Viſible Church as well as their Parents.

Argum. 2. Such Seed or Children are federally Holy, 1 Cor. 7. 14. the Word [Holy] as applied to any ſort of Perſons, is never in Scripture uſed in a lower Senſe, than for federal or Covenant Holineſs (the Covenant Holineſs of the Viſible Church) but very often in that Senſe, Ezr. 9. 2. Deut. 7. 6. and 14. 2, 21. and 26. 19. and 28. 9. Exod. 19. 6. Dan. 8. 24. and 12. 7. Rom. 11. 16. So that to ſay, they are Holy in this Senſe, viz. by Covenant Relation and Seperation to God in his Church, is as much as to ſay, They are in the Covenant of the Viſible Church, or Members of it.

Argum. 3. From Mark 10. 14, 15, 16. Matt. 19. 14. Children's Memberſhip in the Viſible Church, is either the next and immediate Senſe of thoſe Words of Chriſt, Of ſuch is the Kingdom of Heaven; and ſo the Kingdom of Heaven, or of God, is, not rarely, uſed in other Scriptures to expreſs the Viſible Church, or Church Eſtate, Matth. 25. 1. and 21. 43. and 8. 11, 12. or it evidently follows from any other Senſe, that can rationally be given of the Words. For thoſe may not be denied a place or portion in the Viſible Church, whom Chriſt affirms to have a Portion in the Kingdom either of Inviſible Grace or of eternal Glory: Nor do any in ordinary Courſe paſs into the Kingdom of Glory hereafter, but thro' the Kingdom of Grace in the Viſible Church here. And alſo, that Chriſt, there, graciouſly invites and calls little Children to him, is greatly diſpleaſed with thoſe that would hinder them, aſſerts them, notwithſtanding their Infancy, to be exemplary in their receiving the Kingdom of God, embraceth them in his Arms and bleſſeth them: All which ſhews Chriſt's dear Affection to, and owning of the Children of the Church, as a part of his Kingdom; whom we, therefore, may not diſown, leſt we incur his Diſpleaſure, as the Diſciples did.

Argum. 4. Such Seed or Children are Diſciples, according to Matth. 28. 19. as appears. 1. Becauſe Subjects of Chriſt's Kingdom are equivalent with Diſciples there, as the frame of that Text ſhews, v. 18. 19, 20. but ſuch Children are Subjects of Chriſt's Kingdom, or of the Kingdom of Heaven, Matth. 9. 14. In the diſcipling of all Nations intended in Matth. 28. 19. the Kingdom of God, which had been the Portion of the Jews, was communicated to the Gentiles according to Matth. 21. 43. But in the Kingdom of God theſe Children have an Intereſt or Portion, Mark 10. 14. 2. The Apoſtles in accompliſhing that Commiſſion, Matth. 28. 19. did Diſciple ſome Children, viz. the Children of diſcipled Parents, Acts 2. 39. and 15. 10. They are there called and accounted Diſciples, whom the falſe Teachers would have brought under the Yoke of Circumciſion after the manner of Moſes, v. 1. 5. But many of thoſe were Children; Exod. 12. 48. Acts 21. 21. Lydia and her Houſhold, the Jaylor and all his were diſcipled and baptiſed, Acts 16. 15, 31, 33. Paul at Corinth took in the Children into the Holy School of Chriſt, 1 Cor. 7. 14. 3. Such Children belong unto Chriſt; for he calls them unto him, as his, to receive his Bleſſing, Mark 10. 13, 16. They are to be received in his Name, Mark 9. 37. Luke 9. 48. They have a part in the Lord, Joſh. 22. 24, 25. therefore they are his Diſciples: For to belong to Chriſt, is to be a Diſciple of Chriſt, Mark 9. 41. with Matth. 10. 42. Now if they be Diſciples, then they are Members of the Viſible Church, as from the equivalency of thoſe Terms was before ſhewed.

Argum. 5. The whole Current and Harmony of Scripture ſhews, that ever ſince there was a Viſible Church on Earth, the Children thereof have by the Lord's Appointment been a part of it. So it was in the Old, and it is and ſhall be ſo in the New Teſtament. Eve, the Mother of all Living hath a Promiſe made, Gen. 3. 15. not only of Chriſt the Head-Seed, but thro' him alſo of a Church-Seed, to proceed from her in a continued lineal Succeſſion, which ſhould continually be at viſible Enmity with, and ſtand at a diſtance, or be ſeparated from the Seed of the Serpent. Under that Promiſe made to Eve and her Seed the Children of Adam are born, and are a part of the Church in Adam's Family: Even Cain was ſo, Gen. 4. 1, 3. till caſt out of the Preſence of God therein, v. 14. being now manifeſtly one of the Seed of the Serpent, 1 John 3. 12. and ſo becoming the Father of a wicked unchurched Race. But, then God appointed unto Eve, another, viz. Seth, in whom to continue the Line of her Church-Seed, Gen. 4. 25. How it did continue in his Seed in their Generations, Gen. 5. ſheweth. Hence the Children of the Church are called Sons of God, (which is as much as Members of the Viſible Church) in contradiſtinction to the Daughters of Men, Gen. 6. 2. If righteous Noah be taken into the Ark (then the only preſerving place of the Church) his Children are taken in with him, Gen. 7. 1. tho' one of them, viz. Ham, after proved degenerate and wicked; but till he ſo appears, he is continued in the Church with his Bretheren: So Gen. 9. 25, 26, 27. as the Race of Ham or his Son Canaan (Parents and Children) are curſed; ſo Shem (Parent and Children) is bleſſed, and continued in the place of Bleſſing, the Church, as Japhet alſo, or Japhet's Poſterity (ſtill Parent and Children) ſhall in time be brought in. The Holy Line mentioned in Gen 11. 10, 26. ſhews how the Church continued in the Seed of Shem, from him unto Abraham. When that Race grew degenerate, Joſh. 24. 2. Then God called Abraham out of his Country, and from his Kindred, and eſtabliſhed his Covenant with him, which ſtill took in Parents and Children, Gen. 17. 7, 9. ſo it did after in the Houſe of Iſrael, Deut. 29. 11, 12, 13. and when any Eminent Reſtoration or Eſtabliſhment, is promiſed to the Church, the Children thereof are ſtill taken in as ſharers in the ſame, Pſal. 102. 16, 28. and 69. 35, 36. Jer. 32. 38, 39. Iſa. 65. 18, 19, 23. Now when Chriſt comes to ſet up the Goſpel Adminiſtration of his Church in the New Teſtament, under the term of the King of Heaven, Mat. 3. 2. and 11. 11. He is ſo far from taking away Children's Portion and Memberſhip therein, that himſelf aſſerts it, Mat. 19. 14. The Children of the Gentile, but now Believing Corinthians, are Holy, 1 Cor. 7. 14. The Apoſtle writing to the Church of Epheſus and Coloſſe, ſpeaks to Children, as a part thereof, Eph. 6. 1. Col. 3. 20. The Inchurched Romans and other Gentiles ſtand on the Root of Covenanting Abraham, and in the Olive or Viſible Church, they and their Children, till broken off (as the Jews were) by poſitive Unbelief, or Rejection of Chriſt, his Truth or Government, Rom. 11. 13, 16, 17. 22. The Children of the Jews when they ſhall be called, ſhall be as aforetime in Church-Eſtate, Jer. 30. 20. with 31. 1. Ezek. 37. 25. 28. from all which it appears, that the Series, or whole Frame and Current of Scripture Expreſſions doth hold forth the continuance of Children's Memberſhip in the Viſible Church, from the Beginning to the End of the World.

Partic. 4. The Seed or Children, who become Members together with their Parents (i. e. by means of their Parents Covenanting) are Children in Minority. This appears, 1. Becauſe ſuch Children are Holy by their Parents Covenanting, who would elſe be unclean, 1 Cor. 7. 14. but they would not elſe neceſſarily be unclean, if they were Adult; for then they might Act for themſelves, and ſo be Holy by their perſonal Covenanting; neither,on the other Hand would they neceſſarily be Holy, if Adult, (as he Aſſerts the Children there to be, for they might continue Pagans. Therefore the Apoſtle intends only Infants, or Children in Minority. 2. It is a Principle, that carries Evidence of Light and Reaſon with it, as to all Tranſactions Civil and Eccleſiaſtical, that if a Man be of Age, he ſhould anſwer for himſelf, Joh. 9. 21. They that are come to Years of Diſcretion, ſo as to have Knowledge and Underſtanding fit to act in a matter of that nature, are to Covenant by their own Perſonal Act. Neh. 10. 28, 29. Iſa. 44. 5. 3. They that are regularly taken in with their Parents, are reputed to be viſible Entertainers of the Covenant, and Avouchers of God to be their God, Deut. 26. 7, 18. with Deut. 29. 11, 12. But if Adult Children ſhould without regard to their own perſonal Act, be taken in with their Parents then ſome might be reputed Entertainers, that are manifeſt Rejectors of the Covenant, for ſo an Adult Son or Daughter of a Godly Parent may be.

Partic. 5. It is requiſite unto the Memberſhip of Children, that the next Parents, one or both, be in Covenant. For altho' After-Generations have no ſmall Benefit by their Pious Anceſtors, who derive federal Holineſs to their ſucceeding Generations in caſe they keep their ſtanding in the Covenant, and be not Apoſtates from it; yet the Piety of Anceſtors ſufficeth not, unleſs the next Parent continue in Covenant, Rom. 11. 22.

1. Becauſe if the next Parent be cut or broken off, the following Seed are broken off alſo, Exod. 20. 5. Rom. 11. 17, 19, 20. as the Gentile believing Parents and Children were taken in; ſo the Jews, Parents and Children, were then broken off.

2. One of the Parents muſt be a Believer, or elſe the Children are unclean, 1 Cor. 7. 14.

3. If Children may be accounted Members and Baptiſed, though the next Parents be not in Covenant, then the Church ſhould be bound to Baptiſe thoſe, whom ſhe can have no power over nor hope concerning, to ſee them brought up in the true Chriſtian Religion, and under the Ordinances: For the next Parents being wicked, and not in Covenant, may carry away and bring up their Children to ſerve other Gods.

4. If we ſtop not at the next Parent, but grant that Anceſtors may, notwithſtanding the Apoſtacy of the next Parents convey Memberſhip unto Children, then we ſhould want a ground where to ſtop, and then all the Children on Earth ſhould have right to Memberſhip and Baptiſm.

PROPOSITION. III.

The Infant-Seed of Confederate viſible Believers, are Members of the ſame Church with their Parents, and when grown up are perſonally under the Watch, Diſcipline, and Government of that Church.

I. THAT they are Members of the ſame Church with their Parents, appears; 1. Becauſe, ſo were Iſaac and Iſhmael of Abraham's Family-Church, and the Children of Jews, and Proſelytes of Iſrael's National Church: and there is the ſame Reaſon, for Children now to be of the ſame Congregational-Church with their Parents, Chriſt's Care for Children and the ſcope of the Covenant, as to Obligation unto Order and Government is as great now, as then. 2. Either they are Members of the ſame Church with their Parents, or of ſome other Church, or Non Members: But neither of the latter; therefore the former. That they are not Non-Members was before proved in Propoſ. 2. Particul. 3. and if not Members of the ſame

Church with their Parents, then of no other. For if there be not Reaſon ſufficient to ſtate them Members of that Church, where their Parents have covenanted for them, and where ordinarily they are Baptiſed and do Inhabit, then much leſs is there Reaſon to make them Members of any other: and ſo they will be Members of no particular Church at all, and it was before ſhewed that there is no Ordinary, and Orderly ſtanding eſtate of Church-Members, but in ſome particular Church. 3. The ſame Covenant-Act is accounted the Act of Parent and Child: but the Parents covenanting rendered himſelf a Member of this particular Church; therefore ſo it renders the Child alſo. How can Children come in, with and by their Parents, and yet come into a Church wherein and whereof their Parents are not, ſo that as they ſhould be of one Church, and their Parents of another. 4. Children are in an orderly and regular ſtate: for they are in that ſtate, wherein the Order of God's Covenant, and his Inſtitution therein hath placed them; they being Members by virtue of the Covenant of God. To ſay their ſtanding is diſorderly, would be to impute diſorder to the Order of God's Covenant, or Irregularity to the Rule. Now all will grant it to be moſt orderly and regular, that every Chriſtian be a Member in ſome particular Church, (and in that particular Church) where his regular Habitation is, which to Children uſually is, where their Parents are. If the Rule call them to remove, then their Memberſhip ought orderly to be tranſlated to the Church, whither they remove. Again, Order requires, that the Child, and the power of Government over the Child, ſhould go together. It would bring ſhame and Confuſion, for the Child to be from under Government, Prov. 29. 15. and Parental and Eccleſiaſtical Government concurring do mutually help and ſtrengthen each other. Hence the Parent and the Child muſt be Members of the ſame Church, unleſs the Child be by ſome ſpecial Providence ſo removed, as that ſome other Perſon hath the power over him.

2. That when theſe Children are grown up, they are perſonally under the Watch, Diſcipline and Government of that Church, is manifeſt; for 1. Children were under Patriarchal and Moſaical Diſcipline of old, Gen. 18. 19. and 21. 9, 10, 12. Gal. 5. 3. and, therefore, under Congregational Diſcipline now. 2. They are within the Church, or Members thereof, (as hath been, and after will be further proved) and therefore ſubject to Church Judicature, 1 Cor. 5. 12. 3. They are Diſciples, and, therefore, under Diſcipline in Chriſt's School, Mat. 28. 19, 20. 4. They are in Church-Covenant, and, therefore, ſubject to Church Power, Gen. 17. 7. with Chap. 18. 19. 5. They are ſubjects of the Kingdom of Chriſt, and therefore under the Laws and Government of his Kingdom, Ezek. 37. 25, 26. 6. Baptiſm leaves the Baptiſed (of which number theſe Children are) in a ſtate of ſubjection to the Authoritative Teaching of Chriſt's Miniſters, and to the obſervation of all his Commandments, Mat. 28. 19, 20. and therefore in a ſtate of ſubjection unto Diſcipline. 7. Elders are charged to take heed unto, and to feed, (that is, both to Teach and Rule, compare Ezek. 34. 3, 4.) all the Flock, or Church, over which the Holy Ghoſt hath made them Overſeers, Acts 20. 28. That Children are a part of the Flock, was before proved: and ſo Paul accounts them, writing to the ſame Flock or Church of Epheſus, Eph. 6. 1. 8. otherwiſe Irreligion and Apoſtacy would Inevitably break into Churches and no Church-way left by Chriſt to prevent or heal the ſame: which would alſo bring many Church Members under that dreadful Judgment of being let alone in their wickedneſs, Hoz. 4. 16. 17.

PROPOSITION IV.

Theſe Adult Perſons are not therefore to be admitted to full Communion, meerly becauſe they are and continue Members, without ſuch further Qualifications as the Word of of God requireth thereunto.

The Truth hereof is plain.

1. FROM 1 Cor. 11. 28, 29. where it is required that ſuch as come to the Lord's Supper, be able to examine themſelves, and to diſcern the Lord's Body; elſe they will Eat and Drink unworthily, and Eat and Drink Damnation, or Judgment, to themſelves, when they partake of this Ordinance, but mere Memberſhip is ſeparable from ſuch Ability to examine One's ſelf, and diſcern the Lord's Body: as in the Children of the Covenant that grow up to Years is too often ſeen. 2. In the Old Teſtament, though Men did continue Members of the Church, yet for Ceremonial Uncleanneſs they were to be kept from full Communion in the Holy Things, Levit. 7. 20, 21. Numb. 9. 6, 7. and 19. 13, 20. yea and the Prieſts and Porters in the Old Teſtament, had ſpecial charge committed to them, that Men ſhould not partake in all the Holy things, unleſs duly qualified for the ſame, notwithſtanding their Memberſhip, 2 Chr. 23. 19. Ezek. 22. 26. and 44. 7, 8, 9, 23. and therefore much more in theſe times, where Moral fitneſs and ſpiritual Qualifications are wanting, Memberſhip alone, is not ſufficient for full Communion. More was required to Adult Perſons Eating the Paſſover, than mere Memberſhip, thefore ſo there is now to the Lord's Supper.

For they were to Eat to the Lord, Ex. 12. 14. which is expounded in 2 Chro. 30. where keeping the Paſſover to the Lord, Ver. 5. imports, and requires exerciſing Repentance, ver. 6, 7. their actual giving up themſelves to the Lord, ver. 8. Heart preparation for it, ver. 19. and Holy rejoycing before the Lord, ver. 21, 25. See the like in Ezra 6. 21, 22. 3. Tho' all Members of the Church are ſubjects of Baptiſm, they and their Children, yet all Members may not partake of the Lord's Supper, as is further manifeſt from the different Nature of Baptiſm and the Lord's Supper. Baptiſm firſtly and properly ſeals Covenant-Holineſs; as Circumciſion did, Gen. 17. Church-Memberſhip, Rom. 15. 8. Planting into Chriſt, Rom. 6. and ſo Members, as ſuch, are the ſubjects of Baptiſm, Mat. 28. 19. But the Lord's Supper is the Sacrament of growth in Chriſt, and of ſpecial Communion with him, 1 Cor. 10. 16. which ſuppoſeth a ſpecial Renewing and Exerciſe of Faith and Repentance, in thoſe that partake of that Ordinance. Now if Perſons even when Adult may be and continue Members, and yet be debarred from the Lord's Supper, until meet Qualifications for the ſame do appear in them; then may they alſo (until like Qualifications) be debarred from that Power of Voting in the Church, which pertains to Males in full Communion. It ſeems not Rational, that thoſe, who are not themſelves fit for all Ordinances, ſhould have ſuch an Influence referring to all Ordinances, as Voting in Election of Officers, Admiſſion and Cenſures of Members doth import. For how can they, that are not able to Examine and Judge themſelves, be thought able and fit to Diſcern and Judge in the weighty Affairs of the Houſe of God, 1 Cor. 11. 28, 31. with 1 Cor. 5. 12.

PROPOSITION V.

Church-Members who were admitted in Minority, underſtanding the Doctrine of Faith, and publickly profeſſing their Aſſent thereto; not ſcandalous in Life, and ſolemnly owning the Covenant before the Church, wherein they give up themſelves and Children to the Lord, and ſubject themſelves to the Government of Chriſt in the Church, their Children are to be Baptiſed.

This is Evident from the Arguments following.

Arg. 1. THeſe Children are partakers of that which is the main ground of Baptiſing any Children whatſoever, and neither the Parents nor the Children do put in any Bar to hinder it.

1. That they partake of that, which is the main ground of Baptiſing any, is clear; Becauſe Intereſt in the Covenant is the main ground of Title to Baptiſm, and this theſe Children have. 1. Intereſt in the Covenant is the main ground of Title to Baptiſm; for ſo in the Old Teſtament, this was the ground of Title to Circumciſion, Gen. 17. 7, 9, 10, 11. to which Baptiſm now anſwers, Col. 2. 11, 12. and Acts 2. 38, 39. they are on this ground exhorted to be Baptiſed, becauſe the promiſe of Covenant was to them, and to their Children. That a Member, or one in Covenant, as ſuch, is the ſubject of Baptiſm, was further cleared before, Propoſ. 1. 2. That theſe Children have Intereſt in the Covenant appears; Becauſe if the Parent be in Covenant, the Child is alſo: for the Covenant is to Parents and their Seed in their Generations, Gen. 17. 7, 9. The promiſe is to you, and to your Children, Acts 2. 39. If the Parent ſtands in the Church, ſo doth the Child among the Gentiles now, as well as among the Jews of old; Rom. 11. 16, 20, 21, 22. It is unheard of in Scripture that the Progreſs of the Covenant ſtops at the Infant-Child. But the Parents in queſtion are in Covenant as appears. 1. Becauſe they were once in Covenant, and never ſince Diſcovenanted. If they had not once been in Covenant, they had not warrantably been Baptiſed; and they are ſo ſtill, except in ſome way of God they have been Diſcovenanted, caſt out, or cut off from their Covenant Relation, which theſe have not been: neither are Perſons once in Covenant, broken off from it, according to Scripture, ſave for notorious Sin and Incorrigibleneſs therein, Rom. 11. 20. which is not the caſe of theſe Parents. 2. Becauſe the Tenor of the Covenant is to the Faithful, and their Seed after them, in their Generations, Gen. 17. 7. even to a Thouſand Generations, i. e. conditionally, provided that the Parents ſucceſſively do continue to be keepers of the Covenant, Exod. 20. 6. Deut. 7. 9, 11. Pſal. 105. 8. which the Parents in queſtion are, becauſe they are not (in Scripture Account in this Caſe) forſakers or rejecters of the God and Covenant of their Fathers: See Deut. 29. 25, 26. 2 Kings 17. 15, 20. 2 Chro. 7. 22. Deut. 7. 10.

2. That theſe Parents, in queſtion, do not put any Bar to hinder their Children from Baptiſm, is plain from the Words of the Propoſition, wherein they are deſcribed to be ſuch as underſtand the Doctrine of Faith, and publickly profeſs their Aſſent thereto: Therefore, they put not in any Bar of groſs Ignorance, Atheiſm Hereſie or Infidelity: Alſo they are not ſcandalous in Life, but ſolemnly own the Covenant, before the Church, therefore they put not in any Bar of Prophaneſs, or Wickedneſs, or Apoſtacy from the Covenant, whereinto they entred in Minority. That the Infant Children, in queſtion do themſelves put any Bar, none will imagine.

Arg. 2. The Children of the Parents in queſtion, are either Children of the Covenant, or Strangers from the Covenant, Eph. 2. 12. either Holy or Unclean, 1 Cor. 7. 14. either within the Church or without, 1 Cor. 5. 12. either ſuch as have God for their God, or without God in the World, Eph. 2. 12. But he that conſiders the Propoſition, will not affirm the latter concerning theſe Children: and the former being granted, infers their Right to Baptiſm.

Arg. 3. To deny the Propoſition would be, 1. To ſtraiten the Grace of Chriſt in the Goſpel-Diſpenſation, and to make the Church in New-Teſtament times in a worſe Caſe, relating to their Children ſucceſſively, than were the Jews of old. 2. To render the Children of the Jews, when they ſhall be called, in a worſe Condition, than under the Legal Adminiſtration; contrary to Jer. 30. 20. Ezek. 37. 25, 26. 3. To deny the Application of the Initiatory-Seal to ſuch as regularly ſtand in the Church and Covenant, to whom the Moſaical Diſpenſation, nay, the firſt Inſtitution in the Covenant of Abraham, appointed it to be applied, Gen. 17. 9, 10. Joh. 7. 22, 23. 4. To break God's Covenant by denying the initiatory Seal to thoſe that are in Covenant, Gen. 17. 9, 10, 14.

Arg. 4. Confederate viſible Believers, tho' but in the loweſt degree ſuch, are to have their Children baptized; witneſs the Practice of John Baptiſt and the Apoſtles, who baptized Perſons upon the firſt beginning of their Chriſtianity. But the Parents in Queſtion are confederate viſible Believers, at leaſt in ſome degree. For, 1. Charity may obſerve in them ſundry poſitive Arguments for it; witneſs the Terms of the Propoſition, and nothing evident againſt it. 2. Children of the godly qualified but as the Perſons in the Propoſition, are ſaid to be faithful, Tit. 1. 6. 3. Children of the Covenant (as the Parents in queſtion are) have frequently the beginning of Grace wrought in them in younger years, as Scripture and Experience ſhews. Inſtance Joſeph, Samuel, David, Solomon, Abijah, Joſia, Daniel, John Baptiſt and Timothy. Hence this ſort of Perſons ſhewing nothing to the contrary, are in Charity, or to Eccleſiaſtical Reputation Viſible Believers. 4. They that are regularly in the Church (as the Parents in queſtion be) are Viſible Saints in the Account of Scripture (which is the Account of Truth) for the Church is, in Scripture-Account, A Company of Saints, 1 Cor. 14. 33. & 1. 2. 5. Being in Covenant and Baptized, they have Faith and Repentance indefinitely given to them in the Promiſe, and ſealed up in Baptiſm, Deut. 30. 6. which continues valid, and ſo a valid Teſtimony for them while they do not reject it. Yet it does not neceſſarily follow, that theſe Perſons are immediately fit for the Lord's Supper, becauſe, tho' they are in a Latitude of Expreſſion, to be accounted Viſible Belivers, or in Numero Fidelium, as even Infants in Covenant are, yet they may want that Ability to examine themſelves, and that ſpecial Exerciſe of Faith, which is requiſite to that Ordinance; as was ſaid upon Propoſit. 4.

Arg. 5. The denial of Baptiſm to the Children in Queſtion, hath a dangerous Tendency to Irreligion and Apoſtacy; becauſe it denies them, and ſo the Children of the Church ſucceſſively, to have any part in the Lord; which is the way to make them ceaſe from fearing the Lord, Joſ. 22. 24, 25, 27. For if they have a Part in the Lord, i. e. a Portion in Iſrael, and ſo in the Lord the God of Iſrael, then they are in the Church, or Members of it, and ſo to be baptized, according to Propoſ. 1. The owning of the Children of thoſe that ſucceſſively continue in Covenant to be a part of the Church, is ſo far from being deſtructive to the purity & proſperity of the Church & of Religion therein (as ſome conceive) that this Imputation belongs to the contrary Tenet. To ſeek to be more pure than the Rule, will ever end in Impurity in the Iſſue. God hath ſo framed his Covenant, and conſequently the Conſtitution of his Church thereby, as to deſign a Continuation and Propagation of his Kingdom therein, from one Generation to another. Hence the Covenant runs, To us, and to our Seed after us in their Generations. To keep in the Line, and under the Influence and Efficacy of this Covenant of God, is the true way to the Church's Glory: To cut it off and diſavow it, cuts off the Poſterity of Zion, and hinders it from being (as in the moſt glorious Times it ſhall be) an eternal Excellency and the Joy of many Generations. This Progreſs of the Covenant eſtabliſheth the Church, Deut. 29. 13. Jer. 30. 20. The contrary therefore doth diſeſtabliſh it. This obligeth and advantageth to the Conveyance of Religion down to after Generations; the care whereof is ſtrictly commanded, and highly approved by the Lord, Pſalm 78. 4, 5, 6, 7. Gen. 18. 19. This continues a Nurſery ſtill in Chriſt's Orchard or Vineyard, Iſa. 5. 1, 7. the contrary neglects That, and ſo lets the whole run to ruine. Surely God was an Holy God, and loved the Purity and Glory of the Church in the Old Teſtament; but when he went in this way of a ſucceſſive Progreſs of the Covenant to that End, Jer. 13. 11. If ſome did then, or do now, decline to Unbelief and Apoſtacy, that doth not make the Faith of God in his Covenant of none effect, or the Advantage of Intereſt therein, inconſiderable; yea, the more Holy, Reforming and Glorious that the Times are, or ſhall be, the more eminently is a ſucceſſive Continuation and Propagation of the Church therein deſigned, promiſed and intended, Iſa. 60. 15. & 59. 21. Ezek. 37. 25, 28. Pſalm 102. 16, 28. Jer. 32. 39.

Arg. 6. The Parents, in Queſtion, are perſonal, immediate, and yet continuing Members of the Church.

1. That they are perſonal Members, or Members in their own Perſons, appears, 1. Becauſe they are perſonally Holy, 1 Cor. 7. 14. not Parents only, but [your Children] are Holy. 2. They are perſonally baptized, or have had Baptiſm, the Seal of Memberſhip applied to their own Perſons; which being regularly done, is a Divine Teſtimony, that they are in their own Perſons Members of the Church. 3. They are perſonally under Diſcipline, and liable to Church-Cenſures in their own Perſons; vide Propoſ. 3. 4. They are perſonally (by means of the Covenant) in a viſible State of Salvation. To ſay they are not Members in their own Perſons, but in their own Parents, would be as if one ſhould ſay, They are ſaved in their Parents, and not in their Perſons. 5. When they commit Iniquity, they perſonally break the Covenant, therefore are perſonally in it, Jerem. 11. 2, 10. Ezek. 16.

2. By the like Reaſons, it appears, that Children are immediate Members, as to the Eſſence of Memberſhip (i. e. that they themſelves in their own Perſons, are the immediate Subjects of this adjunct of Church-Memberſhip) though they come to it by Means of their Parents covenanting. For as touching that Diſtinction of Mediate and Immediate, as applied to Memberſhip (which ſome urge) we are to diſtinguiſh. 1. Between the Efficient and Eſſence of Memberſhip. 2. Between the Inſtrumental Efficient, or Means thereof, which is the Parents Profeſſion and Covenanting; and the Principal Efficient, which is Divine Inſtitution. They may be ſaid to be mediate (or rather mediately) Members, as they become Members by means of their Parents Covenanting, as an Inſtrumental cauſe thereof: but that doth nothing vary or diminiſh the Eſſence of their Memberſhip. For Divine Inſtitution giveth or granteth a real and perſonal Memberſhip unto them, as well as unto their Parents, and maketh the Parent a publick Perſon, and ſo his Act theirs to that end.

Hence the Eſſence of Memberſhip, that is, Covenant-Intereſt, or a place and portion within the Viſible Church is really, properly, perſonally and immediately the Portion of the Child, by Divine Gift and Grant, Joſ. 22. 25, 27. their Children have a part in the Lord as well as themſelves. A part in the Lord, there, and Church-Memberſhip (or Memberſhip in Iſrael) are terms equivalent. Now the Children there, and a part in the Lord, are ſubject and adjunct, which nothing comes between, ſo as to ſever the Adjunct from the Subject; therefore they are immediate Subjects of that Adjunct of immediate Members. Again, their viſible Ingrafting into Chriſt the Head, and ſo into the Church his Body, is ſealed in their Baptiſm: but in Ingrafting nothing comes betwixt the Graft and the Stock: Their Union is immediate; hence they are immediately inſerted into the Viſible Church, or immediate Members thereof. The Little Children in Deut. 29. 11. were perſonally and immediately a part of the People of God, or Members of the Church of Iſrael, as well as their Parents. To be in Covenant, or to be a Covenantee is the formalis Ratio of a Church-Member. If one come to be in Covenant one way, and another in another, but both are in Covenant or Covenantees (i. e. parties with whom the Covenant is made, and whom God takes into Covenant) as Children here are, Gen. 17. 7, 8. then both are in their own Perſons the immediate Subjects of the formalis Ratio of Memberſhip, and ſo immediate Members. To Act in covenanting is but the Inſtrumental means of Memberſhip, and yet Children are not without this neither. For the Act of the Parent (their publick perſon) is accounted their's, and they are ſaid to enter into Covenant, Deut. 29. 11, 12. So that what is it that Children want unto an Actual, Compleat, Proper, Abſolute and Immediate Memberſhip? (ſo far as theſe terms may with any propriety or pertinency be applied to the matter in hand) Is it Covenant-Intereſt which is the formalis Ratio of Memberſhip? No, they are in Covenant. Is it Divine Grant and Inſtitution, which is the Principal Efficient? No, he hath clearly declared himſelf, that he grants unto the Children of his People a portion in his Church, and appoints them to be Members thereof. Is it an Act of Covenanting, which is the Inſtrumental means? No, they have this alſo reputatively by Divine Appointment, making the Parent a publick Perſon, and accounting them to Covenant in his Covenanting. A different manner and means of conveying the Covenant to us, or of making us Members, doth not make a different ſort of the Memberſhip, We now are as truly perſonally and immediate Members of the Body of fallen Mankind, and, by Nature Heirs of the Condemnation pertaining thereto as Adam was, though he came to be ſo by his own perſonal Act, and we by the Act of our publick Perſon. If a Prince give ſuch Lands to a Man and his Heirs ſucceſſively, while they continue Loyal; the following Heir is a true and immediate Owner of that Land, and may be perſonally diſinherited if Diſloyal, as well as his Father before him. A Member is one, that is according to Rule, (or according to Divine Inſtitution) within the Viſible Church.

Thus the Child is properly and perſonally, or immediately. Paul caſts all Men into two ſorts, thoſe within, and thoſe without. i. e. Members and Non-Members, 1 Cor. 5. 12. It ſeems he knew of no ſuch diſtinction of mediate and immediate as puts a medium between theſe two. Object. If Children be compleat and immediate Members as their Parents are, then they ſhall immediately have all Church Privileges, as their Parents have, without any further Act or Qualification, Anſw. It follows not. All Privileges that belong to Members, as ſuch, do belong to the Children as well as the Parents: But all Church Privileges do not ſo. A Member as ſuch (or all Members) may not partake of all Priviledges; but they are to make progreſs both in Memberly duties and privileges, as their Age, Capacity and Qualifications do fit them for the ſame.

3. That their Memberſhip ſtill continues in Adult Age, and ceaſeth not with their Infancy, appears; 1. Becauſe in Scripture Perſons are broken off only for notorious Sin, or incorrigible Impenitency and Unbelief, not for growing up to Adult Age, Rom. 11. 20. 2. The Jew Children Circumciſed did not ceaſe to be Members by growing up, but continued in the Church, and were by virtue of their Memberſhip, received in Infancy, bound unto various duties, and in ſpecial unto thoſe ſolemn perſonal profeſſions that pertained to Adult Members, not, as then, entring into a new Memberſhip, but as making a progreſs in Memberly Duties, Deut. 26. 2, 10. and 16. 16, 17. with Gal. 5. 3. 3. Thoſe Relations of Born-Servants and Subjects, which the Scripture makes uſe of to ſet forth the ſtate of Children in the Church by Lev. 25. 41, 42. Ezek. 37. 25. do not (as all Men know) ceaſe with Infancy, but continue in Adult Age. Whence alſo it follows, that one ſpecial end of Memberſhip received in Infancy, is to leave Perſons under Engagement to Service and Subjection to Chriſt in his Church, when grown up, when they are fitteſt for it, and have moſt need of it. 4. There is no ordinary way of Ceſſation of Memberſhip, but by Death, Diſmiſſion, Excommunication, or Diſſolution of the Society: None of which is the Caſe of the Perſons in queſtion. 5. Either they are, when Adult, Members or Non-Members: if Non-Members, then a Perſon admitted a Member, and ſealed by Baptiſm, not caſt out, nor deſerving ſo to be, may (the Church whereof he was ſtill remaining) become a Non-Member and out of the Church, and of the Unclean World; which the Scripture acknowledgeth not. Now if the Parent ſtand Member of the Church, the Child is a Member alſo: For now the Root is Holy, therefore ſo are the Branches, Rom. 11. 16. 1 Cor. 7. 14. The Parent is in Covenant, therefore ſo is the Child, Gen. 17. 7. and if the Child be a Member of the Viſible Church, then he is a Subject of Baptiſm, according to Propoſ. 1.

PROPOSITION VI.

Such Church-Members, who either by Death, or ſome other extraordinary Providence, have been inevitably hindred from publick acting as aforeſaid, yet have given the Church cauſe, in judgment of Charity, to look at them, as ſo qualified, and ſuch, as had they been called thereunto would have ſo acted, their Children are to be Baptiſed.

This manifeſt.

1. BEcauſe the main Foundation of the right of the Child to privilege remains, viz. God's Inſtitution, and the Force of his Covenant carrying it to the Generations of ſuch as continue keepers of the Covenant, i. e. not viſibly breakers of it. By virtue of which Inſtitution and Covenant the Children in queſtion, are Members, and their Memberſhip being diſtinct from the Parents Memberſhip, ceaſeth not, but continues, notwithſtanding the Parent's Deceaſe or neceſſary Abſence: and, if Members, then Subjects of Baptiſm. 2. Becauſe the Parent's not doing what is required in the Fifth Propoſition, is through want of opportunity; which is not to be imputed as their guilt, ſo as to be a bar to the Child's Privilege. 3. God reckoneth that as done in his Service, to which there was a manifeſt Deſire and Endeavour, albeit the acting of it, were hindred; as in David to Build the Temple, 1 King. 8. 18. 19. In Abraham to Sacrifice his Son, Heb. 11. 17. according to that in 2 Cor. 8. 12. Where there is a willing mind, it is accepted according to what a Man hath, and not according to what he hath not: which is true of this Church-Duty, as well as of that of Alms. It is a uſual Phraſe with the Ancients to ſtile ſuch and ſuch Martyrs in Voto, and Baptiſed in Voto, becauſe there was no want of deſire that way, though their deſire was not actually accompliſhed. 4. The terms of the Propoſition import that in Charity, that is here done interperatively, which is mentioned to be done in the Fifth Propoſition expreſly.

PROPOSITION VII.

The Members of Orthodox Churches, being ſound in the Faith, and not ſcandalous in Life, and preſenting due Teſtimony thereof; theſe occaſionally coming from one Church to another, may have their Children Baptized in the Church, whither they come by virtue of Communion of Churches: but if they remove their Habitation, they ought orderly to Covenant and Subject themſelves to the Government of Chriſt in the Church, where they ſettle their abode, and ſo their Children to be Baptiſed. It being the Churches duty to receive ſuch unto Communion, ſo far, as they are Regularly fit for the ſame.

1. SUch Members of other Churches, as are here deſcribed, occaſionally coming from one Church to another, their Children are to be Baptiſed in the Church whither they come, by virtue of Communion of Churches.

1. Becauſe he that is regularly a Member of a true particular Church, is a ſubject of Baptiſm according to Propoſ. firſt and ſecond. But the Children of the Parents here deſcribed are ſuch, according to Propoſ. fifth and ſixth; Therefore they are meet and Lawful Subjects of Baptiſm, or have right to be Baptiſed. And Communion of Churches, infers ſuch Acts as this is, viz. To Baptize a fit Subject of Baptiſm, tho' a Member of another Church, when the ſame is orderly deſired. (ſee Platform of Diſcipline, Chap. 15. Sect. 4.) For look as every Church, hath a double Conſideration, viz. 1. Of it's own Conſtitution and Communion within it ſelf: 2. Of that Communion which it holds, and ought to maintain with other Churches. So the Officer (the Paſtor or Teacher) thereof, is there ſet. (1.) To Adminiſter to this Church conſtantly; (2.) To do Acts of Communion occaſionally, viz. Such as belong to his Office as Baptiſing doth, reſpecting the Members of other Churches, with whom this Church holds, or ought to hold Communion.

2. To refuſe Communion with a true Church in Lawful and Pious Actions, is unlawful, and juſtly accounted Schiſmatical. For, if the Church be true Chriſt holdeth ſome Communion with it; and therefore ſo muſt we: but if we will not have Communion with it in thoſe Acts that are Good and Pious, then in none at all. Total ſeparation from a true Church is unlawful: But to deny a Communion in good Actions is to make a Total ſeparation. Now to Baptize a fit ſubject, as is the Child in queſtion, is a Lawful and a Pious Action, and therefore by virtue of Communion of Churches, in the Caſe mentioned to be attended.

And if Baptiſm Lawfully Adminiſtred, may and ought to be received by us, for our Children, in another true Church, where Providence ſo caſts us, as that we cannot have it in our own, (as doubtleſs it may and ought to be) then alſo we may and ought in like caſe to diſpenſe Baptiſm, when deſired to a meet and Lawful Subject, being a Member of another Church. To deny or refuſe either of theſe, would be an unjuſtifiable refuſing of Communion of Churches, and tending to ſinful ſeparation.

2. Such as remove their Habitation, ought orderly to Covenant and ſubject themſelves to the Government of Chriſt in the Church, where they ſettle their Abode, and ſo their Children to be Baptiſed. 1. Becauſe the Regularly Baptiſed are Diſciples, and under the Diſcipline and Government of Chriſt: but they that are abſolutely removed from the Church, whereof they were, ſo as to be uncapable of being under Diſcipline there, ſhall be under it, no where, if not in the Church where they inhabit. They that would have Church-privileges ought to be under Church-power: but theſe will be under no Church-power, but as Lambs in a large place, if not under it there, where their ſettled abode is. 2. Every Chriſtian ought to Covenant for himſelf and for his Children, or profeſſedly to give up himſelf, and his to the Lord, and that in the way of his Ordinances, Deut. 26. 17 and 12. 5. and Explicite Covenanting is a Duty, eſpecially where we are called to it, and have opportunity for it: nor can they well be ſaid to Covenant Implicitly, that do Explicitly refuſe a profeſſed Covenanting, when called thereunto. And eſpecially this Covenanting is a Duty, when we would partake of ſuch Church-priviledge, as Baptiſm for our Children is. But the Parents, in queſtion, will now be profeſſed Covenanters no where, if not in the Church, where their fixed Habitation is. Therefore they ought orderly to Covenant, there, and ſo their Children to be baptiſed. 3. To refuſe Covenanting and ſubjection to Chriſt's Government in the Church where they live, being ſo removed as to be utterly uncapable of it elſewhere, would be a walking diſorderly, and would too much ſavour of Profaneſs and Separation; and hence to Adminiſter Baptiſm to the Children of ſuch as ſtand in that way, would be to Adminiſter Chriſt's Ordinances to ſuch as are in a way of Sin and Diſorder; which ought not to be, 2 Theſ. 3. 6. 1 Chron. 15. 13. and would be contrary to that Rule, 1 Cor. 14. 40. Let all things be done decently and in order.

QUESTION II.

Whether according to the Word of God there ought to be a Conſociation of Churches, and what ſhould be the manner of it?

ANSWER.

THE Anſwer may be briefly given in the Propoſitions following.

1. Every Church or particular Congregation of viſible Saints in Goſpel-Order, being furniſhed with a Presbytery, at leaſt with a Teaching Elder, and walking together in Truth and Peace, hath received from the Lord Jeſus full Power and Authority Eccleſiaſtical within it ſelf, regularly to Adminiſter all the Ordinances of Chriſt, and is not under any other Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction whatſoever. For to ſuch a Church Chriſt hath given the Keys of the Kingdom of Heaven, that what they bind or looſe on Earth, ſhall be bound or looſed in Heaven, Mat. 16. 19. and 18. 17, 18. Elders are ordained in every Church, Acts 14. 23. Tit. 1. 5. and are therein Authoriſed Officially to Adminiſter in the Word, Prayer, Sacraments and Cenſures, Mat. 28. 19, 20. Acts 6. 4. 1 Cor. 4. 1. and 5. 4, 12. Acts 20. 28. 1 Tim. 5. 17. and 3. 5. The reproving of the Church of Corinth, and of the Aſian Churches ſeverally, imports they had Power each of them within themſelves to Reform the Abuſes that were amongſt them, 1 Cor. 5. Rev. 2. 14, 20. Hence it follows, that Conſociation of Churches is not to hinder the Exerciſe of this Power; but by Counſel from the Word of God to direct, and ſtrengthen the ſame upon all juſt occaſions.

2. The Churches of Chriſt do ſtand in a Siſterly Relation each to other, Cant. 8. 8. being united in the ſame Faith and Order, Eph. 4. 5. Col. 2. 5. To walk by the ſame Rule, Phil. 3. 16. In the Exerciſe of the ſame Ordinances for the ſame end, Eph. 4. 11, 12, 13. 1 Cor 16. 1. under one and the ſame political Head, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, Eph. 1. 22, 23. and 4. 5. Rev. 2. 1. which Union infers a Communion ſuitable thereunto.

3. ‘Communion of Churches is the Faithful Improvement of the Gifts of Chriſt beſtowed upon them, for his Service and Glory, and their mutual Good and Edification, according to Capacity and Opportunity, 1 Pet. 4. 10, 11. 1 Cor. 12. 4, 7. and 10. 24. 1 Cor. 3. 21, 22. Cant. 8. 9. Rom. 1. 15. Gal. 6. 10.

4. ‘Acts of Communion of Churches are ſuch as theſe.

1. ‘Hearty Care and Prayer one for another, 2 Cor. 11. 28. Cant. 8. 8. Rom. 1. 9. Col. 1. 9. Eph. 6. 18.

2. ‘To afford Relief by Communication of their Gifts in Temporal or Spiritual Neceſſities, Rom. 15. 26, 27. Acts 11. 22, 29. 2 Cor. 8. 1, 4, 14.

3. ‘To maintain Unity and Peace, by giving account one to another of their publick Actions, when it is orderly deſired, Acts 11. 2, 3, 4--- 18. Joſh. 22. 13, 21, 30. 1 Cor. 10. 32. and to ſtrengthen one another in their Regular Adminiſtrations; as in ſpecial by a Concurrent Teſtimony againſt Perſons juſtly Cenſured, Acts 5. 41. and 16. 4, 5. 2 Tim. 4. 15. 2 Theſ. 3. 14.

4. ‘ To ſeek and accept help from, and ‘ give help unto each other.

1. ‘ In caſe of Diviſions and Contentions ‘ whereby the Peace of any Church ‘ is diſturbed, Acts 15. 2.

2. ‘ In matters of more than ordinary ‘ Importance, [Prov. 24. 6. and 15. ‘ 22.] as Ordination, Tranſlation and ‘ Depoſition of Elders and ſuch like, ‘ 1 Tim. 5. 22.

3. ‘ In Doubtful and Difficult Queſtions ‘ and Controverſies, Doctrinal or ‘ Practical that may ariſe, Acts 15. ‘ 2, 6.

4. ‘ For the rectifying of Male-Adminiſtrations, and healing of Errors and ‘ Scandals, that are unhealed among ‘ themſelves, 3 Joh. v. 9, 10. 2 Cor. 2. 6, 11. 1 Cor. 15. Rev. 2. 14, 15, 16. 2 Cor. 12. 20, 21. and 13. 2. Churches now have need of help in like caſes, as well as Churches then; Chriſt's care is ſtill for whole Churches, as well as for particular Perſons; And Apoſtles being now ceaſed, there remains the Duty of Brotherly Love, and mutual Care, and Helpfulneſs incumbent upon Churches, eſpecially Elders for that end.

5. ‘ In Love and Faithfulneſs to take ‘ notice of the Troubles and Difficulties, ‘ Errors and Scandals of another Church, ‘ and to Adminiſter help, (when the caſe ‘ neceſſarily calls for it) tho' they ſhould ‘ ſo neglect their own Good and Duty, ‘ as not to ſeek it, Exod. 23. 4, 5. Prov. ‘ 24. 11, 12.

6. ‘ To Admoniſh one another, when there ‘ is need and cauſe for it, and after due ‘ means with Patience uſed, to withdraw ‘ from a Church, or peccant party therein, ‘ obſtinately perſiſting in Error or Scan‘dal; as in the Platform of Diſcipline ‘ (Cap. 15. Sect. 2. Partic. 3.) is more ‘ at large declared, Gal. 2. 11, 14. ‘ 2 Theſ. 3. 6. Rom. 16. 17.

5. Conſociation of Churches is their Mutual ‘ and ſolemn Agreement to exerciſe Communion ‘ in ſuch Acts, as aforeſaid, amongſt themſelves, ‘ with ſpecial reference to thoſe Churches, which ‘ by Providence are planted in a convenient vi‘cinity, though with Liberty reſerved without ‘ Offence, to make uſe of others, as the Na‘ture of the Caſe, or the Advantage of Oppor‘tunity may lead thereunto.

6. ‘ The Churches of Chriſt in this Country ‘ having ſo good opportunity for it, it is meet ‘ to be commended to them, as their Duty thus ‘ to Conſociate. For 1. Communion of Churches being commanded, and Conſociation being but an Agreement to practiſe it, this muſt needs be a Duty alſo, Pſal. 119. 106. Neh. 28. 29. 2. Paul an Apoſtle ſought with much Labour the Conference, Concurrence, and Right Hand of Fellowſhip of other Apoſtles: and Ordinary Elders and Churches have not leſs need each of other, to prevent their Running in Vain, Gal. 2. 2, 6, 9. 3. Thoſe General Scripture Rules, touching the need and uſe of Counſel, and help in weighty Caſes, concern all Societies and Polities, Eccleſiaſtical as well as Civil, Prov. 11. 14. and 15. 22. and 20. 18. and 24. 6. Eccleſ. 4. 9, 10, 14. 4. The Pattern in Acts 15. holds forth a Warrant for Councils, which may be greater or leſſer, as the matter ſhall require. 5. Concurrence and Communion of Churches in Goſpel times, is not obſcurely held forth in Iſa. 19. 23, 24, 25. Zeph. 3. 9. 1 Cor. 11. 16. and 14. 32, 36. 6. There has conſtantly been in theſe Churches a poſſeſſion of Communion, in giving the Right Hand of Fellowſhip in the gathering of Churches, and Ordination of Elders; which importeth a Conſociation, and obligeth to the practice thereof. Without which we ſhould alſo want an expedient, and ſufficient Cure for Emergent Church Difficulties and Differences: with the want whereof our way is charged, but unjuſtly, if this part of the Doctrine thereof were duly practiſed.

7. ‘ The manner of the Church's Agreement ‘ herein, or entring into this Conſociation, may ‘ be by each Church's open conſenting unto ‘ the Things, here, declared in Anſwer to the ‘ ſecond Queſtion, as alſo to what is ſaid there‘about, in Chap. 15. and 16. of the Platform ‘ of Diſcipline, with reference to other Churches ‘ in this Colony and Countrey, as in Propoſ. 5. ‘ is before expreſſed.

8. ‘ The manner of Exerciſing and Practiſing ‘ that Communion, which this Conſent or ‘ Agreement ſpecially tendeth unto, may be, ‘ by making uſe occaſionally of Elders or able ‘ Bretheren of other Churches; or by the more ‘ ſolemn Meetings of both Elders and Meſſen‘gers in Leſſer or Greater Councils. as the mat‘ter ſhall require.

REMARKS UPON THE Synodical Propoſitions.

§ 1. THE Propoſitions thus voted by the Major Part, more than Seven to One, in the Synod, were clog'd by the Diſſent of ſeveral Reverend and Judicious Perſons, in that Venerable Aſſembly; who were jealous leſt the Sacred Ordinance of Baptiſm, ſhould come to be applied unto ſuch unmeet Subjects, as would in a while put an End unto New-England's Primitive and Peculiar Glory of undefiled Adminiſtrations. Tho' we cannot ſay, that in this our Synod, the Obſervation of Thuanus was verified, Colloquia, quæ ut Theologicis controverſiis Finis imponatur, inſtituuntur, majorum excitandarum ſæpe initium exiſtunt; yet the Reciprocations of Argument, which enſued on this Difference, quickly became ſenſible to Mankind, as by ſome other Common Effects of Controverſie, ſo eſpecially by the Diſquiſitions which were, on this Occaſion, publiſhed unto the World. Here, not concerning our ſelves with the Antiſynodalia Americana, compoſed by Mr. Charles Chauncey, the Preſident of the College, and anſwered by Mr. John Allen, Paſtor of Dedham, we ſhall only take Notice of the two Twin-Diſcourſes, which made moſt Figure in the Management of This Diſputation. Firſt, Mr. John Davenport in Oppoſition to the Synod, emitted a Treatiſe, under the Title of, Another Eſſay for Inveſtigation of the Truth: whereto there was by another Hand prefixed, that which the Elders of the Synod judged the diſtincteſt and exacteſt Thing, that has been written on that ſide, under the Title of, An Apologetical Preface for the Defence of the Synod. Mr. Rich. Mather, being thereunto appointed, wrote a full Anſwer to the Eſſay; and Mr. Jonathan Mitchel wrote a fuller Anſwer to the Preface; both of which quickly ſaw the Light.

§ 2. The true State of the Difference cannot be better given than by Epitomizing the Poſitions and Arguments in the cloſe of the Apologetical Preface on the one part, and the Anſwers to thoſe Poſitions and Arguments, on the other. And I am the more willing to give it, becauſe the Eccleſiaſtical Affairs of this Country have ſo much turned upon it.

On the one ſide, thus reaſoned the Learned Apologiſt.

I. The Synod did acknowledge, that there ought to be true ſaving Faith in the Parent, according to the Judgment of rational Charity, or elſe the Child ought not to be baptized. We entreated and urged again and again, that this, which they themſelves acknowledged was a Principle of Truth, might be ſet down for a Concluſion, and then we ſhould all agree. But thoſe reverend Perſons would not conſent to this.

On the other ſide, thus replied the Excellent Anſwerer.

We are to diſtinguiſh betweeen Faith in the hopeful beginning of it, the charitable Judgment whereof runs upon a great Latitude; and Faith in the ſpecial exerciſe of it, unto the viſible Diſcovery whereof, more experienced Operations are to be enquired after. The Words of Dr. Ames are, Children are not to be admitted to partake of all Church Priviledges, till firſt increaſe of Faith do appear; but from thoſe which belong to the beginning of Faith, and entrance into the Church, they are not to be excluded. The Apoſtles conſtantly baptiſed Perſons upon the firſt beginning of their Chriſtianity, but the Lord's Supper followed after, as annexed unto ſome Progreſs in Chriſtianity. The ſame ſtrictneſs as to outward Signs, is not neceſſary unto a charitable Judgment of that Initial Faith, which entitles unto Baptiſm, as there is unto the like Judgment of that exerciſed Faith, which is requiſite unto the Supper of the Lord. We all own, that only Viſible Believers, are to have their Children baptized; and it is expreſſed ſo in the Synod's Reſult; but the Queſtion is, Who are Viſible Believers? Our Brethren ſtrove ſo to ſcrue up the Expreſſions for Baptiſm, that all that have their Children baptiſed muſt unavoidably be brought unto the Lord's Table, and unto a Power of voting in the Churches. This we ſay, will prove a Church-corrupting Principle.

APO-

APOLOGY.

II. We have no warrant in all the Scripture to apply the Seal of Baptiſm unto thoſe Children, whoſe Parents are in a ſtate of Unfitneſs for the Lord's Supper. Thoſe Acts 2. 41. who were baptized, continued breaking Bread alſo, unleſs the Father were in a ſtate of fitneſs for the Paſſover, his Child might not be circumciſed. Neither do we read that in the primitive Times, Baptiſm was of a greater Latitude, as to the Subject thereof, than the Lord's Supper. Catechumeni ad Baptiſterium nunquam admittendi ſunt. Concil Ara, Chap. 19. In the Dawnings of Reformation in England, our Juel could plead againſt Harding, That Baptiſm was as much to be reverenced, as the Body and Blood of Chriſt. Nay, a grievous Error has therefore, been committed in former Ages, and other Churches, to adminiſter the Lord's Supper unto Infants.

ANSWER.

By a ſtate of Unfitneſs, muſt be meant either, Non-Memberſhip: But the Parents, in the Queſtion, are Members of the Church; and ſo to them do belong all Church Priviledges, according as they ſhall be capable thereof, and appear duly qualified for the ſame: They have a Jus ad rem, tho' not Jus in re; as a Child has a right unto his Fathers Eſtate, however he have not the actual Fruition of it, until he be qualified with ſuch and ſuch Abilities. Or elſe is meant, a want of actual Qualifications fitting, whereby a Perſon is either in himſelf ſhort of actual Fitneſs for the Lord's Table, or wanteth a Church-Approbation of his Fitneſs. Now we conceive there is a Warrant in Scripture for the applying of Baptiſm to Children, whoſe Parents do want actual Qualifications, fitting them for the Lord's Supper. The Parent might want actual Fitneſs for the Paſſover by manifold ceremonial Uncleanneſſes, and yet that hindered not the Circumciſion of the Child. He muſt be judged clean by the Prieſt of the Church whereof he was a Member, and ſo, free to partake of the Holy Things. Thus the Parents in the Queſtion muſt have their Fitneſs for the Lord's Table judged by thoſe, to whom the Judgment belongs. But what Fitneſs for the Lord's Supper, had thoſe that were baptized by John Baptiſt, and by Chriſt's Diſciples at his Appointment, in the beginning of his publick Miniſtry? What Fitneſs had the Jaylor, when himſelf and all his were baptized after an hours Inſtruction, wherein probably he had not ſo much as heard any thing of the Lord's Supper? The teaching of which, followed after diſcipling and baptizing, as is hinted by that Order in Matth. 28. 19, 20. and by the antient Practice of not teaching the Catechumeni any thing about the Lord's Supper, till after they were baptized, as is affirmed by Hanmer and Baxter, out of Albaſpinæus. We conſtantly read in the Acts, that Perſons were baptized, immediately upon their firſt entrance into Memberſhip; but we never do read, that they did immediately upon their firſt Memberſhip, receive the Lord's Supper. Yea, ſo far is Baptiſm from being inſeparable from immediate Admiſſion to the Lord's Supper, that we read of no one, (no, not of the Adult) in all the New Teſtament, that was admitted to the Lord's Supper, immediately upon his Baptiſm.

The only place that ſounds, as if it were quickly after, viz. Acts 2. 41, 42. is alledged by our Brethren. But it is here ſaid, they (after their being added and baptized) continued in (or gave ſedulous attendance to) the Apoſtles Doctrine [Firſt] and then breaking of Bread. There was a time of gaining further acquaintance with Chriſt, and with his Ways and Ordinances, by the Apoſtle's Inſtruction, between their baptizing and their Participation of the Lord's Supper. And the Churches of Chriſt in all, eſpecially in the beſt Ages, and the choiceſt Lights therein, both Antient and Modern, have concurred in this Principle, That Baptiſm is of larger Extent, than the Lord's Supper, and that many that are within the Viſible Church, may have Baptiſm for themſelves, at leaſt for their Children, who yet at preſent want actual Fitneſs for the Lord's Supper. The Authors, that write of Confirmation do abundantly prove this Aſſertion. Here is not room to inſert the Evidences, that in the firſt Ages of the Church, there were many within the Church, who were debarred from the Lord's Supper, and yet had their Children Baptized. And ſince the Reformation, the reforming Divines have in their Doctrine unanimouſly taught, and in their Practice many of them endeavoured, a ſtrict Selection of thoſe that ſhould be admitted unto the Lord's Supper; when yet they have been more large in Point of Baptiſm. Plentiful Teſtimonies are cited, firſt from Calvin, from Crotius, from Bucan, from Beza, from Polanus, from Urſin and Paræus, and from the Harmony of Confeſſions; and then from Ames, from Hooker, and from Hilderſham, to this purpoſe.

APOLOGY.

III. The Parents of the Children in Queſtion, are not Members of any inſtituted Church, according to Goſpel-Rules; becauſe they were never under any explicit and perſonal Covenant. If this ſecond Generation do retain their Memberſhip by Virtue of their Parents Covenant, made for them in Minority; then in caſe all the Pro-Parents were dead, this ſecond Generation would be a true Church of Chriſt; without any further Act of Covenanting. But this they are not. For, then, they would have the Power to manage all Church-Affairs, as every true Church hath; which the Synod will not grant unto them.

ANSWER.

We doubt not to affirm with Dr. Ames, that Children are Members of an inſtituted Church, according to Goſpel-Rules; and that they are under perſonal Covenant, or, perſonally taken into Covenant by God, according to his Goſpel-Rules, tho' they have not performed the Act of Covenanting in their own Perſons; yea, under the Explicit Covenant alſo, if the Parent's Covenanting was Explicit. Though we take it for a Principle granted by Congregational Men, with one Conſent, That an Implicit Covenant, preſerves the Being of a true Church, and ſo of true Church-Memberſhip. We alſo ſay, The ſecond Generation, continuing in a viſible Profeſſion of the Covenant, Faith and Religion of their Fathers, are a true Church of Chriſt, though they have not yet made any Explicit perſonal Expreſſion of their Engagement, as their Fathers did. Even, as the Iſraelites, that were Numbred in the Plains of Moab, were a true Church, and under the Covenant of God, made with them in Horeb, though their Parents, with whom it was firſt made, in Horeb, were all Dead; and that before the ſolemn Renewal of the Covenant with them in the Plains of Moab. Our denial of Liberty unto theſe to Vote in Church-Affairs, till they be Qualified for, and Admitted to the Lord's Supper, is no prejudice to our Grant of their being a true Church. For the caſe of a true Church may be ſuch, as that they may be, at preſent, unfit to Exerciſe a Power of acting in Church-Affairs, which yet may be Radically in them; even, till, by the uſe of needful means, They, or a ſelect Number among them, be brought up unto a better Capacity for it. We might alſo ask whether it would prove Women to be no Members of an Inſtituted Church, becauſe if all the Men were Dead, they could not then be a Church? We may add; if Diſcipline, and other Ordinances be kept up, we may hope God will ſo bleſs his Ordinances, that a conſiderable number ſhall, from time to time, have ſuch Grace given them, as to be fit for full Communion, and carry on the things of his Houſe with competent Strength, Beauty and Edification.

APOLOGY.

IV. It is not mere Memberſhip, but qualified Memberſhip that gives Right unto Baptiſm. John's Baptiſm, which was Chriſtian, might not be applied to ſome, who were Members of the Viſible Church, becauſe they were not qualified with Repentance, Luke 3. 8. and 7. 30. This ſeems to cut the Sinews of the ſtrongeſt Argument brought by the Synod, for the Enlargement of Baptiſm; which is the Memberſhip of the Children in Controverſie.

ANSWER.

Some Privileges in the Church belong to Perſons, merely becauſe they are Members of it: ſo doth Baptiſm and Church-watch. But other Privileges belong to them as cloathed with ſuch and ſuch Qualifications: thus the Lord's Supper now, as the Paſſover of Old. If Children in their Minority are Members, as our Bretheren acknowledge them to be, then there are Members that are not yet fit for Full-Communion. And for the Adult, when a Man is by Admonition debarred from the Lord's Table, and yet not Excommunicated; he continues a Member, yea, a Perſonal Member, in our Bretheren's Account, and yet is not in Full-Communion; It is clear then that Memberſhip and Full Communion, are ſeparable things. Beſides, 'tis a Memberſhip de jure, and not only de facto, whereof we ſpeak, when we ſpeak of mere Memberſhip. Now ſuch a Memberſhip implies a Qualification, that a Perſon being a Church Member, is not under ſuch Groſs and Incorrigible Ignorance, Hereſie, Scandal or Apoſtacy, as renders him an immediate ſubject of Excommunication. Hence mere Memberſhip is not ſo to be oppoſed unto qualified Memberſhip, as if it were deſtitute of all Qualifications. Underſtand mere Memberſhip, for [merely this, that a Man is regularly a Member, or, that the Church acting regularly, may own him as accepted by Rule into Covenant] and then the Aſſertion, That it is not ſufficient to give a Perſon a Right unto Baptiſm, that he be regularly a Member of the Viſible Church, but he muſt have ſome further Qualification than ſo, or elſe he hath not a Right thereunto: This is indeed an Antiſynodalian Aſſertion, and we doubt not to affirm, that it is Antiſcriptural.

The Synod builds upon Covenant-Intereſt, or Federal-Holineſs, or Viſible Church-Memberſhip, as that which gives Right unto Baptiſm: and accordingly in their fifth Propoſition, they have compriſed, both the Right to Baptiſm, and the manner of Adminiſtration; which manner is not therefore to be neglected, becauſe Memberſhip alone gives Right; for God hath made it One Commandment of Four, to provide for the manner of his Worſhip, that it be attended in a Solemn, Humble, Reverent and Profitable manner. Hence all Reformed Churches do in their Directories require Profeſſions and Promiſes, from thoſe who preſent the Child unto Baptiſm; tho' they unanimouſly grant the Child's Right unto Baptiſm, by its being Born within the viſible Church. Beſides, what have Infants more than mere Memberſhip, to give them Right unto Baptiſm? We know no ſtronger Argument for Infant-Baptiſm, than this, that Church-Members, or Fœderati are to be Baptiſed. At the Tranſition from Old to New Teſtament Church Memberſhip, ſomething more might well be required, than a mere Memberſhip in the Jewiſh Church, which was then alſo under an extream Degeneracy: It was neceſſary that the Reformed Adminiſtration ſhould penitently be embraced. And much of what was required by John, may be referred unto the manner of Adminiſtration, which the general Scandals then fallen into called for. Nor will he that Reads the Scriptures, think that the Perſons Baptiſed by John, did excel thoſe, who are deſcribed in the Synods Propoſitions. While the Parent that was Born in the Church, regularly continues in it without Scandal, he is Eccleſiaſtically accounted to have the Being of Repentance; and ſo to have the thing that John required. But if any ſtand Guilty of open Scandals, we know not why they ſhould not make a particular Confeſſion of their Sin therein.

APOLOGY.

V. That which will not make a Man capable of receiving Baptiſm himſelf, in caſe he were Unbaptiſed, doth not make him capable of Tranſmitting Right of Baptiſm unto his Child. But a Man may be an Unbeliever, and yet come up to all that the Synod hath ſaid in their fifth Propoſition. Bucer is accounted by Parker, juſtly to mention, That none ought to be confirmed Members of the Church, beſides thoſe who do hold forth not only Verbal Profeſſion of Faith, but apparent ſigns of Regeneration.

ANSWER.

'Tis true, that which doth not put a Man into a State of Right of Baptiſm for himſelf, (that is, into a State of Church Memberſhip) will not enable him to give Baptiſm Right unto his Child. But it is poſſible for an Adult Perſon in ſuch a State nevertheleſs to have ſomething fall in, which may hinder the Actual Application of Baptiſm to himſelf, or his Actual Fitneſs for Baptiſm, in caſe he were Unbaptiſed. And yet the ſame thing may not hinder a Perſon already Baptiſed, and ſtanding in a Covenant State, from Conveying Baptiſm right unto his Child. Beſides, the Synods Propoſition ſpeaks of Church Members. Yea, and he will have an hard task of it, who ſhall undertake to prove, That Adult Perſons, underſtanding, believing and profeſſing publickly, the Doctrine of Faith, not ſcandalous in Life, and now ſolemnly entring into that Covenant, wherein they give up themſelves and theirs, to the Lord in his Church, and ſubject themſelves to the Government of the Lord therein, may be denied Baptiſm upon their deſire thereof. 'Tis not eaſie to Believe, that Multitudes Baptiſed, in the Scriptures had more to render them Viſible Believers, than the Perſons deſcribed by the Synod. It is argued, a Man [may be] an Unbeliever, and yet come up to all this? Simon Magus and Ananias and Sapphira, not only might be, but were Unbelievers, and yet Regularly Baptiſed. But if it be ſaid, that a Man may come up to all that the Synod hath ſaid, and yet be Eccleſiaſtically Judged an Unbeliever, ſhew us any ground for ſuch a Judgment! As for Bucer and Parker, they plainly ſpeak of ſuch a Confirmation, or owning Men for confirmed Members, as imports their Admiſſion to the Lord's Table. But if the Judgment of Bucer and Parker may be taken in this Controverſie, it will ſoon be at an end, for it is evident enough [by Quotations too many for this place] that Bucer and Parker fully concur with the Synod, in the extent of Baptiſm.

APOLOGY.

VI. The Application of the Seal of Baptiſm unto thoſe, who are not true Believers (we mean, viſibly, for De Occultis non Judicat Eccleſia) is a Profanation thereof, and as Dreadful a Sin, as if a Man ſhould Adminiſter the Lord's Supper unto Unworthy Receivers; which is (as Calvin ſaith) as Sacrilegious Impiety, as if a Man ſhould take the Blood or Body of Chriſt, and proſtitute it unto Dogs. We marvel that any ſhould think, that the Blood of Chriſt, is not as much profaned and vilified by undue Adminiſtration of Baptiſm, as by undue Adminiſtration of the Lords's Supper. Yea, that ſaying of Auſtin's is ſolemn and ſerious; Qui Indignè accipit Baptiſma, Judicium accipit, non ſalutem; and the ſame Auſtin in his Book, De Fide & Operibus, pleads for ſtrictneſs in the Adminiſtration of Baptiſm, and ſo did Tertullian before him.

ANSWER.

We readily grant, that Baptiſm is not to be applied to any but Viſible Believers. We marvel, that any ſhould ſpeak, as if any of us did think that the Blood of Chriſt, is not profaned by the undue Adminiſtration of Baptiſm, as well as by undue Obſervation of the Lord's Supper: though we ſuppoſe the Degree of ſinful Profanation of the Lord's Name in any Ordinance, will be intended by the Degree of ſpecial Communion that we have with the Lord in that Ordinance; and by the Danger that ſuch Profanation infers unto the whole Church, and unto the particular partaker. But where is there any thing to ſhew that the Adminiſtration of Baptiſm extended by the Synod, is undue? The Rule concerning the two Sacraments, appoints Baptiſm to all Diſciples; but the Lord's Supper only for ſelf-examining Diſciples: hence the one may be extended further than the other, without undue Adminiſtration. Neither did Calvin conceive it a Profanation to extend Baptiſm further than the Lord's Supper. Nor did ever Auſtin or Tertullian plead for greater ſtrictneſs in Baptiſm than the Synod; except where Tertullian Erroneouſly plead for the delay of Baptiſm: whereas Auſtin requires not more of Adult Converts from Heatheniſm, than is in the Parents, who are deſcribed by the Synod.

APOLOGY.

VII. It hath in it a Natural Tendency, to the hardning of Unregenerates in their ſinful Condition, when Life is not only promiſed but ſealed unto them, by the precious Blood of Jeſus Chriſt. Baptiſm is a Seal of the whole Covenant of Grace, as well as the Lord's-Supper; and therefore thoſe that are not Intereſted in this Covenant by Faith, ought not to have the Seal thereof applied unto them. We might add unto all this, that there is danger of great Corruption, and Pollution, creeping into the Churches by the Enlargement of the ſubject of Baptiſm.

ANSWER.

The Lord's Truth and Grace, however it may be abuſed, by the Corruption of Man's perverſe and ſinful Nature, hath not in its ſelf any natural Tendency to harden any, but the contrary. And how can our Doctrine have any ſuch natural Tendency, when as Men are told over and over, that only outward Advantages are more abſolutely ſealed unto them in Baptiſm; but the ſaving Benefits of the Covenant, conditionally; ſo that if they fail of the Condition, which is effectual and unfeigned Faith, they miſs of Salvation, notwithſtanding their Baptiſm? The outward Priviledges muſt not be reſted in, but improved as Incouragements to the obtaining of internal and ſpecial Grace. On the othet ſide, the Scriptures tell us, that Mens denying the Children of the Church to have any part in the Lord, hath a ſtrong Tendency in it to make them ceaſe from fearing the Lord, and harden their Hearts from his Fear. But the awful Obligations of Covenant-Intereſt, have a great Tendency to ſoften the Heart, and break it, and draw it home to God. Hence when the Lord would powerfully win Men to Obedience, he often begins with this, that he is their God. The natural Tendencies of Man's corrupt Heart, are no Argument againſt any Ordinance of God. 'Tis true, Baptiſm is a Seal of the whole Covenant of Grace; but it is by way of Initiation. Hence it belongs to All that are within the Covenant, or have but a firſt entrance thereinto. And is there no danger of Corruption by overſtraining the Subject of Baptiſm? Certainly, it is a Corruption to take from the Rule, as well as add to it. Moſes found danger in not applying the initiating Seal, to ſuch for whom it was appointed. Is there no Danger of putting theſe out of the Viſible Church, whom our Lord would have kept in? Our Lord's own Diſciples may be in Danger of his Diſpleaſure by keeping poor little Ones away from him. To pluck up all the Tares, was a zealous Motion; but there was Danger in it. Beſides if the enlargment be beyond the Bounds of the Rule, it will bring in Corruption; elſe not. Our Work is therefore to keep cloſe unto the Rule, as the only true way unto the Churches Purity and Glory. The way of the Anabaptiſts to admit none unto Memberſhip and Baptiſm, but adult Profeſſors, is the ſtraiteſt way; one would think it ſhould be a way of great Purity; but Experience hath ſhew'd, that it has been an inlet unto great Corruption, and a troubleſome, dangerous underminer of Reformation. If we do not keep in the way of a converting, Grace-giving Covenant, and keep Perſons under thoſe Church-Diſpenſations, wherein Grace is given, the Church will die of a Lingring, though not violent, Death. The Lord hath not ſet up Churches only, that a few old Chriſtians, may keep one another warm while they live, and then carry away the Church into the cold Grave with them, when they die; no, but that they might with all care, and with all the Obligations and Advantages to that Care, that may be, nurſe up ſtill ſucceſſively another Generation of Subjects to our Lord, that may ſtand up in his Kingdom, when they are gone. In Church Reformation, 'tis an obſervable Truth, (ſaith Paræus) that thoſe that are for too much ſtrictneſs, do more hurt than profit the Church. Finally, there is apparently a greater Danger of Corruption to the Churches, by enlarging the Subjects of full Communion, and admitting unqualified, or meanly qualified Perſons, to the Lord's Table, and voting in the Church; whereby the Intereſt of the Power of Godlineſs, will ſoon be prejudiced, and Elections, Admiſſions, Cenſures, ſo carried, as will be hazardous thereunto. Now 'tis evident, that this will be the Temptation, even, to overlarge full Communion, if Baptiſm be limited unto the Children of ſuch as are admitted thereunto.

§ 3. Theſe were the Summa Capita of the Diſputation between thoſe two reverend Perſons; but the remarkable Event and Effect of this Diſputation is now to be related. Know then, that Mr. Michael partly by the Light of Truth fairly offered, and partly by the force of Prayer for the good Succeſs of the Offer, was too hard for the moſt learned Apologiſt; who after he had written ſo exactly on the Antiſynodalian ſide, that; finding that Scripture, and Reaſon lay moſt on the other ſide, not only ſurrendred himſelf a glad Captive thereunto, but alſo obliged the Church of God, by publiſhing unto the World a couple of moſt nervous Treatiſes, in defence of the Synodical Propoſitions. The former of theſe Treatiſes, was entituled, The firſt Principles of New-England concerning the Subject of Baptiſm, and Communion of Churches: Wherein, becauſe the Antiſynodiſts commonly reproached the Doctrine of the Synod, as being no leſs new, than the Practice of it, he anſwers this popular Imputation of Innovation and Apoſtacy, by demonſtrating from the unqueſtionable Writings of the chief and firſt Fathers in our Churches, that the Doctrine of the Synod was then generally believed by them; albeit the Practice thereof had been buried in the Circumſtances of the New-Plantation. Together with this Eſſay, he ſhews his inexpreſſible Value, for his excellent Opponent and Conqueror, not only by profeſſing a deep reſpect for that bleſſed Man, and uſing about him the Words of Beza about Calvin, Now he is dead, Life is leſs ſweet, and Death will be leſs bitter to me; but alſo by inſerting an elaborate Letter, which that worthy Man had written to him, wherein among other Paſſages there are theſe Words; Pleaſe to conſider, which of theſe three Propoſitions you would deny. 1. The whole Viſible Church under the New Teſtament is to be baptized. 2. If a Man be once in the Church, nothing leſs than cenſurable Evil can put him out. 3. If the Parent be in the Viſible Church, his Infant Child is ſo too. And he adds, Whether they ſhould be baptized, as in a Catholick, or in a particular Church, is another Queſtion, and I confeſs my ſelf not altogether ſo peremptory in this latter, as I am in the thing its ſelf, that they ought to be baptized. Yet ſtill I think, that when all Stones are turned, it will come to this that all the baptized are, and ought to be under Diſcipline in particular Churches.

——— ——— Si pergam Dextrâ
Defendi poterant, etiam hâc defenſa fuiſſent:

The other of theſe Treatiſes was intituled, A Diſcourſe concerning the Subject of Baptiſm; wherein having elaboratly proved, That the Qualifications expreſſed in the fifth Propoſition of the Synod give right to Baptiſm; and that Perſons, thus qualified are Church-Members, and Viſible Believers, and of old had a right unto Circumciſion, and have Church-Diſcipline belonging to them; and that the Apoſtles did baptize Perſons, who were no further qualified: He then diſtinguiſhes between a particular Church, as it is more ſtrictly taken for a particular Company of Covenanting Believers entruſted by our Lord with the Keys of the Kingdom of Heaven, and as it is more largely taken for that ſpecial part of our Lord's Viſible Church, which doth ſubſiſt in this or that particular Place: And he ſhews that a Memberſhip of the Catholick Church, diſcovered by a relation to a particular Church, not in the former but in the latter Senſe, is the formal Reaſon of Baptiſm: Concluding with a full Anſwer to all Objections. Indeed the learned Author of the Book, was not the leaſt Argument in the Book. This alone might have paſſed as no inconſiderable Argument, for the Synodical Propoſitions, that beſides diverſe others who did the like, ſo conſiderate a Perſon as the Apologiſt after he had ſo openly and ſo ſolidly appeared againſt them, ſhould at laſt as publickly declare it, That Study and Prayer and much Affliction had brought him to be of another Belief. It was a notable obſervation of Mr. Cotton, once in his Letter to Mr. Williams, That one might ſuſpect the way of the Rigid Separation to be not of God, becauſe thoſe, who in tenderneſs of Conſcience had been drawn into the Error of that way, yet when they have grown in Grace, they have alſo grown to diſcern the Error of the Separation. Thus it was obſerved, that ſeveral very excellent Men, who did according to their preſent light conſcientiouſly diſſent from the Synod, yet, as they grew in the manifold Grace of God, and in ripeneſs for Heaven, they came to ſee that the Rigidity of their former Principles, had been a failing in them. And if the Apologiſt were one, who ſo ſignalized, a modeſt Senſe of ſecond Thoughts unto the World, it can be reckoned no diſparagement unto him; until the Humility of Auſtin in his Retractations, or the ingenuity of Bellarmine in his Recognitions come to be accounted their Blemiſhes; or until Bucer's, yea, and Luther's, change of their Opinions about Conſubſtantiation, and the recovery of Zinglius from Inclinations to Antipædobaptiſm, ſhall be eſteemed the Diſgrace of thoſe renowned Men; or, until Mr. Robinſon ſhall be blamed for compoſing his weighty Arguments, againſt the Rigid Separation which once he had zealouſly defended. I ſhall to this Occaſion, but apply the Words of Dr. Owen unto Mr. Cawdry, to take off the charge of Inconſtancy laid upon him, for his appearing on behalf of the Congregational Church-Diſcipline, He that can glory that in fourteen Years, he hath not altered nor improved his Conceptions of ſome Things, of no greater Importance than that mentioned, ſhall not have me for his Rival.

§ 4 Very gradual was the Procedure of the Churches to exerciſe that Church-Care of their Children, which the Synodical Propoſitions had recommended: For, though the Paſtors were generally principled for it, yet in very many of the Churches, a number of Bretheren were ſo ſtiffly and fiercely ſet the other way, that the Paſtors did forbear to extend their Practice, unto the length of their Judgment, thro' the fear of uncomfortable Schiſms, which might thereupon enſue. And there fell out one ſingular Temptation which had a great Influence upon this Matter! that famous and faithful Society of Chriſtians, the firſt Church in Boſton, had, after much agitation, ſo far begun to attend the Diſcipline directed in the Doctrine of the Synod, that they proceeded eccleſiaſtically to Cenſure the adult Children of ſeveral Communicants for Scandals, whereinto they had fallen. But that Church, for a Supply of their Vacancy upon the Death of their former more Synodalial Miniſters, applying themſelves unto Mr. John Davenport, the greateſt of the Antiſynodiſts, all the Intereſts of the Synod came to be laid aſide, therein, on that Occaſion. Hereupon, thirty Bretheren of that eminent Church, offered ſeveral Reaſons of their Diſſent, from their call of that worthy Perſon; whereof one was in theſe Terms, ‘We ſhould walk contrary to ‘Rev. 3. 3. not holding faſt what we have received; nor ſhould we, as we have received Chriſt Jeſus the Lord, ſo walk in him. [The Doctrine of the Synod] it having been a received and a profeſſed Truth, by the Body of the Church, who have voted it in the affirmative, and that after much Patience with, and Candor towards thoſe that were otherwiſe minded; diverſe Days having been ſpent about this great Generation-Truth, which ſince hath been confirmed by the Synod. Full Liberty hath alſo been granted, unto thoſe who ſcrupled, to propoſe their Queſtions; and they were anſwered, with ſuch publick ſatisfaction, that thoſe Few, who remained unſatisfied, promiſed to ſit down and leave the Body to act, excepting one or two. Accordingly there was an entrance upon the Work; but the Lord lay it not to the Charge of thoſe that hindred Progreſs therein; which with great Bleſſing and Succeſs has been, and is practiſed in Neighbour Churches. But the Difference produced ſo much Diviſion, that the Major part of the Church, by far, proceeding to their Election of that great Man, this leſſer part neverthleſs carefully and exactly following the Advice of Councils, fetched from other Churches in the Neighbourhood, ſet up another Church in the Town of Boſton, which hath ſince been one of the moſt conſiderable in the Country. Very uncomfortable were the Paroxims, which were the Conſequents of this Ferment; and the whole People of God throughout the Colony, were too much diſtinguiſhed into ſuch as favoured the Old Church, and ſuch as favoured the New Church; whereof, the former, were againſt the Synod, and the latter were for it. Indeed, for a conſiderable while, tho' the good Men on both ſides really Loved, Reſpected and Honoured one another, yet thro' ſome unhappy miſunderſtandings in certain particular Perſons, the Communicants of theſe two particular Churches in Boſton, like the two diſtinguiſh'd Rivers, not mixing, tho' running between the ſame Banks, held not Communion with one another at the Table of the Lord: but in two ſevens of Years, that Breach was healed, and unto the general Joy of the Chriſtians in the Neighbourhood, both the Churches kept a ſolemn Day together, wherein, Lamenting the Infirmities that had attended their former Contentions, they gave Thanks to the Great Peace-Maker for effecting this Joyful Reconciliation. The Schiſm was not ſo long-lived, as that which happened at Antioch, about the Ordination of a Miniſter; whereof, Theodoret ſays, Πέντε καὶ ὀγδοήκοντα διέμεινεν ἔτη, it endured Fourſcore and Five Years. However, the two Churches continued ſtill their various Diſpoſitions to the Propoſitions of the Synod; and it is well known, that the Example of Boſton, has from the beginning, as the Prophets once intimated of Jeruſalem, had no ſmall Efficacy upon all the Land.

——Longa eſt Injuria, Longa Ambages——

§ 5. But it is, at laſt, come to this; that tho' ſome of our Churches yet Baptiſe the Children of none but their Communicants, and extend their Church-watch to none but the Perſons of their Communicants, and tho' ſome of the Churches go a ſtep further, and extend their Church watch to the Children of their Communicants, but yet moſt unaccountably will not Baptiſe the Off-ſpring of theſe, till theſe Parents become themſelves Communicants; nevertheleſs, the moſt of the Miniſters in the Countrey, have obtained of their Churches, not only to forbear all expreſſions of Diſſatisfaction at the Baptiſm of ſuch as the Synod has declar'd the Subjects of it, but to concur with them, when their Votes are upon occaſion demanded for ſuch a Diſcipline, as the Synod has from the Eighteenth of Matthew, directed for the Baptiſed.

Very various, have been the Methods of the Paſtors, to bring their Churches into the deſired Order; many the Meetings, the Debates, the Prayers and the Faſts, with which this matter has been accompliſhed: and much more many the Difficulties, where the matter had been ſo long delayed, that the Retrieval was well nigh to be deſpaired. Yea, it was as late, as the Year 1692, that the laſt Church, which after a long Omiſſion thereof, did effectually ſet upon the Church-Care of the Diſciples formerly neglected, came to their Duty: and they did it with ſuch a further Explanation of their Principles, as diverſe great Oppoſers of the Synod, profeſſed themſelves, at laſt, able to comply withal. Now becauſe the particular Hiſtory of the Proceedings uſed, when things had run on thus far into an inveterate neglect, may be very ſubſervient unto one main Deſign of our Church-Hiſtory, which is to give an experimental Direction, for more arduous Church-Caſes, I ſhall, here, give it unto my Reader.

Know then, that the Paſtor of the Church, after ſolemn Supplications for the Direction of Heaven about it, having previouſly preached and printed, the State of the Truth, which he was now reducing into practice, and having privately with perſonal Conferences, endeavoured the ſatisfaction of ſuch Diſſenters as he counted more ſignificant, he then, avoiding all publick Meetings or Debates, drew up the following Inſtrument, which by the Hands of two or three choſen Perſons, he ſent about unto the Bretheren.

Perſuaſions and Propoſals, laid before the Church, in ———

I. IT is my Perſuaſion, that our Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath in the World, a Catholic-Church, which is his Myſtical Body, and hath all his Elect-called People belonging thereunto.

II. It is my Perſuaſion, that the Catholick Church of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, becomes, in various Degrees, viſible unto us; and according to the Degrees of its Viſibility, it becomes capable of a viſible Communion, with its glorious Head.

III. It is my Perſuaſion, that when Men profeſs the Faith of the Goſpel, with Obedience unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, according to that Goſpel, and overthrow not that Profeſſion by a ſcandalous Converſation, they are to be looked upon as Members of the Viſible Catholick Church of our Lord; they are to be treated as Chriſtians; to call them, or count them Heathen, is to do them a grievous Injury.

IV. It is my Perſuaſion, that when ſuch Profeſſors, regularly combine into a Society, for the Evangelical Worſhip and Service of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and furniſh themſelves with Officers of his Appointment, they then become a part of the Catholick Church, ſo viſible, as to be a Body Politick, entruſted with the Adminiſtration of thoſe Ordinances, which are the Priviledges in that Kingdom of Heaven.

V. It is my Perſuaſion, that a particalar Church thus betruſted with the Ordinances of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, is to be concerned for the applying ſome of thoſe Ordinances, unto Subjects, that have not yet arrived ſo far in viſible Chriſtianity, as to be conſtituent parts of that Holy Society.

VI. It is my Perſuaſion, That Baptiſm is an Ordinance to be adminiſtred unto them, that are in the viſible Catholick Church, while thoſe Chriſtians have not yet joined themſelves unto a particular Church, but are only in a State of Initiation and Preparation for it. In the Scripture we do not read of any that were baptized after their joining to full Communion in a particular Church of the New-Teſtament, but of many that were ſo before.

Under the Influence of theſe Perſwaſions, there are now theſe Propoſals, which I would make unto that particular Church of God, whereof I am an unworthy Overſeer in the Lord.

I. It is my Propoſal, that if any Perſon inſtructed and Orthodox in our Chriſtian Religion, do bring Teſtimonials of a ſober and blameleſs Converſation, and publickly ſubmit themſelves unto the Bonds of ſuch a Sacred Covenant, as now followeth:

‘You now from your Heart profeſſing a ſerious Belief of the Chriſtian Religion, as it has been generally declared and embraced by the Faithful in this Place, do here give up your ſelf to God in Chriſt; promiſing with his Help to endeavour a Walk, according to the Rules of that Holy Religion, all your Days; Chooſing of God as your beſt Good, and your laſt End, and Chriſt as the Prophet, and Prieſt, and King of your Soul for ever. You do therefore ſubmit unto the Laws of his Kingdom, as they are adminiſtred in this Church of his; and you will alſo carefully and ſincerely labour after thoſe more poſitive and increaſed Evidences of Regeneration, which may further encourage you to ſeek an Admiſſion unto the Table of the Lord.

I ſay, I propound, That I may without Offence baptize this Perſon and his Houſe, and that ſuch Perſons may be watched over, if not as Brethren, yet as Diſciples, in the Porch of the Lord's Temple; of whom we have Cauſe to hope, that they will ſhortly expreſs their Deſires after the Lord's Supper, with ſuch Tokens of Growth in Grace upon them, as that we may chearfully receive them thereunto.

II. It is my Propoſal, that as for the Children thus baptized in their Minority, the Elders of the Church may be inquiſitive and induſtrious about their being brought up in the Nurture and Admonition of the Lord. But that when they come to be adult, the Elders of the Church may, to confirm them in their Church-ſtate, put them upon the open Renewal of their Baptiſmal Covenant, with a Subjection of themſelves, unto the Watch of the Church; and if any of them do upon Examination appear to have more ſenſible and plenary Symptoms of Converſion unto God, they may be exhorted immediately to make regular Approaches unto the Table of the Lord; and that if any of them contumaciouſly deſpiſe and refuſe their Duty of Renewing their Covenant, and owning the Government of the Lord over them, they may after proper Admonitions be debarred from that ſtanding among the People of God, which otherwiſe they might lay claim unto.

I, therefore, propound, that the Church may ſeaſonably look after a full ſupply of Officers, whereby this work may be fully proſecuted. In the mean time, I am willing to attend as much of this Work, as God ſhall enable me unto: Asking of you, That none of you would object about my giving of Meat in due Seaſon, to any part of my Bleſſed Maſter's Family, which he hath made me a Steward of; but that all of you would help me with your daily Prayers, and whatever other Aſſiſtances may be uſeful unto,

Your ſolicitous Paſtor and Servant.

This Inſtrument was within a few Days brought back unto the Paſtor, with ſuch a Return at the Cloſe of it.

‘We, the Brethren of the —— Church in —— conſidering how fully thoſe Reverend Perſons that have the Rule over us, and watch for our Souls, have declared what they judge to be the Mind of God, about the Subject of Baptiſm, and apprehending, that we may have lain too long, in an Omiſſion of Duty thereabouts; do now ſignifie, that we are not unwilling to have the Perſwaſions and Propoſals, which our Paſtor hath here laid before us, carefully put into Practice; and that we would have no Obſtruction given to any Holy Endeavours, which may be uſed this Way, to advance the Intereſt of Religion in the midſt of us.

Hereunto the Generality of the Brethren, perhaps twenty to one, had ſubſcribed their Names. And thoſe Few that were not yet ſo wholly reſcued from their Antiſynodalian Scruples, yet verbally ſignified their Chriſtian and Peaceable Aſſurances, that it ſhould give no Uneaſineſs unto their Minds, to ſee the Deſires of their Paſtor accompliſhed; which was done accordingly.

But thus much concerning the Proceedings in a Synod of New-England Churches, for the Church-Care of their Poſterity. We'll conclude all, with an agreeable Speech of the Great Ramus (in Comment. de Relig. l. 4. *c.*6.) Liberi Fidelium Baptizantur, ut participes ſint, & Hæredes Divinorum Beneficiorum Eccleſiæ Promiſſorum, utq; ætate provecti parentum Religionem & pietatem, profiteantur.

The Fourth PART.

Reforming Synod
OF NEW-ENGLAND,
WITH
Subſequent ESSAYS of Reformation in the CHURCHES.

O vera pœnitentia, quid de te Novi referam! Omnia ligata tu ſolvis, omnia clauſa tu reſeras, omnia adverſa tu mitigas, omnia contrita tu ſanas, omnia confuſa tu lucidas, omnia deſperata tu animas. Cyprian.

§ 1. THE ſettlement of the New-Engliſh Churches, with a long ſeries of preſerving and proſperous Smiles from Heaven upon them, is doubtleſs to be reckoned amongſt the more wonderful Works of God, in this Age; the true Glories of the young Plantation had not upon the Face of God's Earth a Parallel, our Adverſaries themſelves being Judges. But when People began more notoriouſly to forget the Errand into the Wilderneſs, and when the Enchantments of this World cauſed the riſing Generation more ſenſibly to neglect the Primitive Deſigns and Intereſts of Religion propounded by their Fathers; a change in the Tenour of the Divine Diſpenſations towards this Country, was quickly the matter of every Body's Obſervation. By Land, ſome of the principal Grains, eſpecially our Wheat and our Peaſe, fell under an unaccountable Blaſt, from which we are not, even unto this Day delivered; and beſides that conſtant Frown of Heaven upon our Husbandry, recurring every Year, few Years have paſſed, wherein either Worms or Droughts, or ſome conſuming Diſaſters have not befallen the Labour of the Husbandman. By Sea, we were viſited with multiplied Shipwrecks, Enemies prey'd on our Veſſels and our Sailors, and the Affairs of the Merchant were clogged with Loſſes abroad; or Fires, breaking forth in the chief Seats of Trade at home, waſted their Subſtance with yet more coſtly Deſolations. Nor did the Land and the Sea, more proclaim the Controverſie of our God againſt us, than that other Element of the Air, by the contagious Vapours whereof ſeveral Peſtilential Sickneſſes did ſometimes become epidemical among us. Yea, the Judgments of God having done firſt the part of the Moth upon us, proceeded then to do the part of a Lion, in lamentable Wars, wherein the barbarous Indians cruelly butchered many hundreds of our Inhabitants, and ſcattered whole Towns with miſerable Ruins. When diſmal Calamities befel the Primitive Chriſtians, as acknowledged by the great Cyprian, prian, That the cauſe thereof was, becauſe they were Patrimonio & Lucro ſtudentes, too much minding to get Eſtates and Riches; Superbiam Sectantes, too Proud; æmulationi & diſſentioni vacantes, given to Contention; ſimplicitatis Fidei negligentes, negligent of the plain Faith of the Goſpel; Sæculo verbis ſolis, & non factis, renunciantes, worldly; unuſquiſque ſibi placentes & omnibus diſplicentes, pleaſing themſelves and vexing others. Theſe were the Sins, which, he ſaid, brought them into Sufferings; for theſe, he ſaid, Vapulamus itaque ut merentur. Truly, if New-England had not abounded with the like Offences, it may be ſuppoſed, ſuch Calamities had not befallen it. It intimated a more than ordinary Diſpleaſure of God for ſome Offences, when he proceeded ſo far, as to put over his poor People into the Hands of tawny and bloody Salvages: And the whole Army had cauſe to enquire into their own Rebellions, when they ſaw the Lord of Hoſts, with a dreadful Decimation, taking off ſo many of our Brethren by the worſt of Executioners. The Cry of the laſt of the Britiſh Kings, then was the Cry of the New-Engliſh Chriſtians, Væ nobis peccatoribus ob immania ſcelera noſtra!

§ 2. The ſerious People throughout the Country, were awakened by theſe Intimations of Divine Diſpleaſure, to enquire into the Cauſes and Matters of the Controverſie. And beſides the Self-reforming Effects of theſe Calamities on the Hearts and Lives of many particular Chriſtians, who were hereby brought unto an exacter Walk with God, particular Churches exerted their Power of Self-reformation, eſpecially in the time of the Indian War; wherein with much ſolemn Faſting and Prayer, they renewed their Covenants with God and one another. Moreover, the General Courts enacted what Laws were judged proper for the extinction of thoſe provoking Evils, which might expoſe the Land unto the Anger of Heaven: and the Miniſters in their ſeveral Congregations, by their Miniſtry, ſet themſelves to teſtifie againſt thoſe Evils. Nor is it a thing unworthy of a great Remark, That great Succeſſes againſt the Enemy accompanied ſome notable Tranſactions both in Church and in Court, for the Reformation of our provoking Evils. Indeed, the People of God in this Land were not gone ſo far in Degeneracy, but that there were further degrees of Diſorder and Corruption to be found, I muſt freely ſpeak it, in other, yea, in all other Places, where the Proteſtant Religion is profeſſed: And the moſt impartial Obſervers muſt have acknowledged, that there was proportionably ſtill more of true Religion, and a larger Number of the ſtricteſt Saints in this Country, than in any other on the Face of the Earth. But it was to be confeſſed, that the degeneracy of New-England, in any meaſure, into the Spirit of the World, was a thing extreamly aggravated, by the greatneſs of our Obligations to the contrary, and even ſinful Omiſſions in this, were no leſs Criminal, than the moſt odious Commiſſions, in ſome other Countries.

§ 3. After Peace was reſtored unto the Country, the evil Spirit of Apoſtacy from the Power of Godlineſs, and the various Diſcoveries and Conſequences of ſuch an Apoſtaſie, became ſtill more ſenſible to them, that feared God. Wherefore, that there might be made a more exact ſcrutiny into the Cauſes of the Divine Diſpleaſure againſt the Land, and into the Methods of removing and preventing the Matter of Lamentation, and that the Eſſays of Reformation, might be as well more extenſive as more effectual, than they had been hitherto, the General Court of the Maſſachuſet Colony were prevailed withal, to call upon the Churches, that they would ſend their Elders and other Meſſengers, to meet in a Synod, for the ſolemn Diſcuſſion of thoſe two Queſtions, What are the provoking Evils of New-England? and, What is to be done, that ſo thoſe Evils may be reformed? It is very certain, That the Controverſie which the God of Heaven had, (and ſtill hath!) with New-England, was a Matter, about which, many did not enquire wiſely. As of old, ſeveral of our Ancients complained, That the Pagans looked upon the Chriſtians (in their way of Worſhip) as the Cauſes of all the Plagues on the Roman Empire: Whatever Miſchief came, forthwith, Chriſtianos ad Leones: Thus, among the People of New-England, many aſſigned the Plagues upon the Country, unto very ſtrange Cauſes, as their ſeveral Intereſts and Affections led them. A Synod was convened therefore, to enquire more wiſely of that Matter: It would aſtoniſh one, to be told, That an Aſſembly of Lutherans coming together to enquire after the cauſe of the Judgments, which God had brought upon their Churches, moſt unhappily determined, That their not paying Reſpect enough unto Images in their Churches, was one Cauſe of the Lord's Controverſie with them. Unhappy Enquirers! Inſtead of their Dream, that they had not ſinned enough againſt the Second Commandment, they ſhould have thought, whether they had not ſinned too much againſt the Fourth. But we hear not a word of their bewailing their univerſal Prophanations of the Lord's-Day to this Day. Our New-Engliſh Aſſembly did enquire to better purpoſe. The Churches, having firſt kept a general Faſt, that the gracious Preſence and Spirit of God might be obtained, for the Direction of the approaching Synod, the Synod convened at Boſton, Sept. 10. 1679. chuſing Mr. John Shermon, and Mr. Urian Oakes, for Joint-Moderators, during the biggeſt part of the Seſſion. There was at firſt, ſome Agitation in this Reverend Aſſembly, about the Matter of a regular Synod, raiſed upon this Occaſion, that ſome of the Churches, notwithſtanding the Deſires of their Elders to be accompanied with other Meſſengers, would ſend no Meſſengers, but their Elders to the Aſſembly. Upon the Debate, it was reſolved, That not only Elders, but other Meſſengers alſo, were to be delegated by Churches, and have their Suffrage in a Synod, repreſenting thoſe Churches; the Primitive Pattern of a Synod in the fifteenth Chapter of the Acts, and the Primitive Practice of the Churches in the Ages next following the Apoſtles; and the Arguments of ſuch eminent Writers as Juel, Whitaker, Parker, and others, againſt thoſe, who mention that Laicks are no fit Matter for ſuch Aſſemblies; being judiciouſly conſidered, as countenancing of this Aſſertion. The Aſſembly kept a Day of Prayer with Faſting before the Lord, and ſpent ſeveral Days in diſcourſing upon the two Grand Queſtions laid before them, with utmoſt Liberty granted unto every Perſon, to expreſs his Thoughts thereupon. A Committee was appointed, then to draw up the Mind of the Aſſembly; which being done, it was read over once and again, and each Paragraph diſtinctly weighed, and then upon a mature Deliberation, the whole was unanimouſly voted, as to the Subſtance, End and Scope thereof. So, 'twas preſented unto the General Court, who by an Act of October 15. 1679. "Commended it unto the ſerious Conſideration of all the Churches and People in the Juriſdiction, enjoining and requiring all Perſons in their reſpective Capacities to a careful and diligent Reformation, of all thoſe provoking Evils mentioned therein, according to the true Intent thereof, that ſo the Anger and Diſpleaſure of God many ways manifeſted, might be averted, and his Favour and Bleſſing obtained.

§. 4. When the puniſhment of ſcourging was uſed upon a Criminal in Iſrael, it was the Order and Uſage, that while the Executioner was laying on his Blows, with an Inſtrument, every ſtroke whereof, gave three Laſhes to the Delinquent, there were ſtill preſent three Judges; whereof, while one did number the Blows, and another kept crying out, Smite him; a Third read three Scriptures, during the Time of the Scourging, and the Scourging ended with the reading of them. The firſt Scripture was that in Deut. 28. 58. If thou wilt not obſerve to do all the words of this Law, then the Lord will make thy Plagues wonderful. The ſecond Scripture was that in Deut. 29. 9. Keep therefore the words of this Covenant, that ye may proſper in all that ye do. The third Scripture was that in Pſalm 78. 38. But he, being full of compaſſion, forgave their Iniquity and deſtroyed them not. This was done partly for the Admonition, partly for the Conſolation, of the Criminal. Truly, when the Scourges of Heaven were imploy'd upon the Churches of New-England for their Miſcarriages, and they were ſorely laſhed with one Blow after another, not only particular Miniſters, but a whole Synod of them, took upon themſelves the Office of Reading to the whole Country, thoſe Words of God which were judged agreeable to the Condition of ſuch a ſcourged People.

Nothing ſhall detain my Reader from the Admonitions of this Reforming Synod, when I have recited the ſolemn Words in the Preface to thoſe Admonitions. "The Things inſiſted on (ſay they) have, at leaſt many of them, been often mentioned and inculcated by thoſe, whom the Lord hath ſet as Watchmen to the Houſe of Iſrael; tho' alas! not with that Succeſs, which their Souls have deſired. It is not a ſmall Matter, nor ought it to ſeem little in our Eyes, that the Churches have in this way confeſſed and declared the Truth, which coming from a SYNOD, as their Joint Concurring Teſtimony will carry more Authority with it, than if one Man only, or many in their ſingle Capacities ſhould ſpeak the ſame things. And undoubtedly the Iſſue of this Undertaking, will be moſt Signal, either as to Mercy or Miſery. If New-England remember whence ſhe is fallen, and do the Firſt-works, there's Reaſon to hope, that it ſhall be better with us than at our Beginnings. But if this, after all other Means in and by which the Lord hath been ſtriving to reclaim us, ſhall be deſpiſed, or become ineffectual, we may dread what is like to follow. 'Tis a ſolemn Thought that the Jewiſh Church had, as the Churches in New-England have this Day, an opportunity to reform, if they would in Joſiah's Time; but becauſe they had no Heart unto it, the Lord quickly removed them out of his ſight. What God out of his Sovereignty may do for us, no Man can ſay; but according to his wonted Diſpenſations, we are a periſhing People, if now we reform not.

And now therefore hear the SYNOD.

Neceſſity of Reformation,
WITH
The Expedients ſubſervient thereunto, aſſerted, in Anſwer to Two Queſtions.

QUESTION I.

What are the Evils that have provoked the Lord to bring his Judgments on New-England ?

ANSWER.

THat ſometimes God hath had ; and pleaded a Controverſie with his People, is clear from the Scripture, Hoſ. 4. 1. & 12. 2. Mich. 6. 1, 2. Where God doth plainly, and fully propoſe, ſtate and plead his Controverſie in all the Parts and Cauſes of it, wherein he doth juſtifie himſelf by the Declaration of his own infinite Mercy,Grace, Goodneſs, Juſtice, Righteouſneſs, Truth and Faithfulneſs in all his Proceedings with them ; and judge his People, charging them with all thoſe provoking Evils, which had been the Cauſes of that Controverſie, and that with the moſt high and heavy Aggravation of their Sins, and exaggeration of the Guilt and Puniſhment, whence he ſhould have been moſt juſt, in pleading out his Controverſie with them unto the utmoſt Extremity of Juſtice and Judgment.

That God hath a Controverſie with his New-England People is undeniable, the Lord having written his Diſpleaſure in diſmal Characters againſt us. Though perſonal Afflictions, do oftentimes come only or chiefly for Probation, yet as to publick Judgments, it is not wont to be ſo ; eſpecially when by a continued Series of Providence, the Lord doth appear and plead againſt his People, 2 Sam. 21. 1. As with us it hath been from Year to Year. Would the Lord have whetted his glittering Sword, and his Hand have taken hold on Judgment ? Would he have ſent ſuch a mortal Contagion, like a Beſom of deſtruction in the midſt of us ? Would he have ſaid, Sword ! Go through the Land, and cut off Man and Beaſt. Or would he have kindled ſuch devouring Fires, and made ſuch fearful Deſolations in the Earth, if he had not been angry ? It is not for nothing that the Merciful God,who doth not willingly afflict nor grieve the Children of Men, hath done all thoſe Things unto us ; yea, and ſometimes with a Cloud hath covered himſelf,that our Prayer ſhould not paſs thorough, And although 'tis poſſible that the Lord may contend with us partly on the Account of ſecret unobſerved Sins, Joſh. 7. 11, 12. 2 Kings 17. 9. Pſalm 90. 8. In which reſpect, a deep and moſt ſerious enquiry into the Cauſes of his Controverſie ought to be attended : Nevertheleſs it is ſadly evident, that there are viſible, manifeſt Evils, which without doubt the Lord is provoked by. For,

I. There is a great and viſible decay of the Power of Godlineſs amongſt many Profeſſors in theſe Churches. It may be feared that there is in too many Spiritual, and Heart Apoſtacy from God, whence Communion with him in the ways of his Worſhip, eſpecially in ſecret is much neglected, and whereby Men ceaſe to know and fear, and love, and truſt in him ; but take up their Contentment and Satisfaction in ſomething elſe : This was the ground and bottom of the Lord's Controverſie with his People of Old, Pſalm 78. 8, 37. & 81.11. *Jer.*2. 5, 11, 13. and with his People under the New-Teſtament alſo, Rev. 2. 4, 5.

II. The Pride that doth abound in New England teſtifies againſt us, Hoſ. 5. 5. Ezek. 7. 10. both ſpiritual Pride, Zeph. 3. 11. Whence two great Evils and Provocations have proceeded,and prevailed among us.

1. A refuſing to be ſubject to Order, according to Divine Appointment, Numb. 16. 3. 1 Pet. 5. 5.

2. Contention. Prov. 13. 10. An Evil that is, moſt eminently againſt the ſolemn Charge of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, Joſh. 13. 34, 35. And that for which God hath by ſevere Judgments puniſhed his People, both in former and latter Ages. This Malady hath been very general in the Country ; we have, therefore, cauſe to fear, that the Wolves, which God in his holy Providence hath let looſe upon us, have been ſent to chaſtiſe his Sheep for Dividings and Strayings one from another ; and that the Wars and Fightings, which have proceeded from the luſt of Pride in ſpecial, have been puniſhed with the Sword, Jam. 4. 1. Job 19. 29.

Yea, and Pride in reſpect of Apparel hath greatly abounded ; Servants and the poorer ſort of People are notoriouſly guilty in this matter, who (too generally) go above their Eſtates and Degrees, thereby tranſgreſſing the Laws both of God and Man, Matth. 11. 8. Yea, it is a Sin that even the Light of Nature and Laws of Civil Nations have condemned, 1 Cor. 11. 14. Alſo, many, not of the meaner ſort have offended God by ſtrange Apparel, not becoming ſerious Chriſtians, eſpecially in theſe Days of Affliction and Miſery, wherein the Lord calls upon Men to put off their Ornaments, Exod. 33. 5. Jer. 4. 30. A Sin which brings Wrath upon the greateſt that ſhall be found guilty of it, Zeph. 1. 8. with Jer. 52. 13. Particularly the Lord hath threatned to viſit with Sword and Sickneſs, and with loathſome Diſeaſes for this very Sin, Iſa. 3. 16.

III. Inaſmuch as it was in a more peculiar manner with reſpect to the ſecond Commandment, that our Fathers did follow the Lord into this Wilderneſs, whilſt it was a Land not ſown, we may fear that the Breaches of that Commandment are ſome part of the Lord's Controverſie with New-England. Church-Fellowſhip and other Divine Inſtitutions are greatly neglected. Many of the riſing Generation are not mindful of that, which their Baptiſm doth engage them unto, viz. to uſe utmoſt Endeavours that they may be fit for, and ſo partake in all the Holy Ordinances of the Lord Jeſus, Matth. 28. 20. There are too many that with profane Eſau ſlight ſpiritual Priviledges. Nor is there ſo much of Diſcipline extended towards the Children of the Covenant, as we are generally agreed ought to be done. On the other hand humane Inventions, and will-worſhip have been ſet up even in Jeruſalem. Men have ſet up their Threſholds by God's Threſhold, and their Poſts by his Poſt. Quakers are falſe Worſhippers; and ſuch Anabaptiſts as have riſen up among us, in oppoſition to the Churches of the Lord Jeſus, receiving into their Society thoſe, that have been for Scandal delivered unto Satan; yea, and improving thoſe as Adminiſtrators of Holy Things, who have been (as doth appear) juſtly, under Church-Cenſures, do no better than ſet up an Altar againſt the Lord's Altar. Wherefore it muſt needs be provoking to God if theſe Things be not duly and fully teſtified againſt, by every one in their ſeveral Capacities reſpectively, *Joſ.*22.19.2.*Ki.*23.13. *Eze.*43.8.*Pſ.*99.8.*Hoſ.*11.6.

IV. The holy and glorious name of God hath been polluted and profaned amongſt us, more eſpecially.

1. By Oaths and Imprecations in ordinary Diſcourſe; yea, and it is too common a thing for Men in a more ſolemn way to ſwear unneceſſary Oaths; when as it is a Breach of the third Commandment, ſo to uſe the bleſſed Name of God. And many (if not the moſt) of thoſe that ſwear, conſider not the Rule of an Oath, Jer. 4. 2. So that we may juſtly fear that becauſe of ſwearing the Land mourns, Jer. 23. 10.

2. There is great Prophaneneſs in reſpect of irreverent Behaviour in the ſolemn Worſhip of God. It is a frequent thing for Men (though not neceſſitated thereunto by any Infirmity) to ſit in Prayer time, and ſome with their Heads almoſt covered, and to give way to their own Sloth and Sleepineſs, when they ſhould be ſerving God with Attention and Intention, under the ſolemn Diſpenſation of his Ordinances. We read but of one Man in Scripture, that ſlept at a Sermon, and that Sin had like to have coſt him his Life, Acts 20. 9.

V. There is much Sabbath-breaking; ſince there are Multitudes that do profanely abſent themſelves or theirs from the publick Worſhip of God, on his Holy Day, eſpecially in the moſt populous Places of the Land; and many under pretence of differing Apprehenſions about the beginning of the Sabbath, do not keep a ſeventh part of time holy unto the Lord, as the fourth Commandment requireth, walking abroad, and travelling (not meerly on the Account of worſhipping God in the ſolemn Aſſemblies of his People, or to attend Works of Neceſſity or Mercy) being a common practice on the Sabbath Day, which is contrary unto that Reſt enjoyned by the Commandment. Yea, ſome that attend their particular ſervile Callings and Employments after the Sabbath is begun, or before it is ended. Wordly, unſuitable Diſcourſes are very common upon the Lord's Day, contrary to the Scripture, which requireth that Men ſhould not on holy Times find their own Pleaſure, nor ſpeak their own Words, Iſa. 58. 13. Many that do not take care ſo to diſpatch their wordly Buſineſſes, that they may be free and fit for the Duties of the Sabbath, and that do (if not wholly neglect) after a careleſs, heartleſs manner, perform the Duties that concern the Sanctification of the Sabbath. This brings Wrath, Fires and other Judgments upon a profeſſing People, Neh. 3. 17, 18. Jer. 17. 27.

VI. As to what concerns Families and Government thereof, there is much amiſs. There are many Families that do not pray to God conſtantly Morning and Evening, and many more, wherein the Scriptures are not daily read, that ſo the Word of Chriſt might dwell richly with them. Some, and too many Houſes, that are full of Ignorance and Profaneneſs, and theſe not duly inſpected, for which cauſe Wrath may come upon others round about them, as well as upon themſelves, Joſ. 22. 20. Jerem. 5. 7. & 10. 25. And many Houſholders who profeſs Religion, do not cauſe all that are within their Gates to become Subjects unto good Order as ought to be, Exod. 20. 10. Nay, Children and Servants, that are not kept in due Subjection, their Maſters and Parents eſpecially being ſinfully indulgent towards them. This is a Sin which brings great Judgments, as we ſee in Eli's, and David's Family. In this reſpect Chriſtians in this Land, have become too like unto the Indians, and then we need not wonder, if the Lord hath afflicted us by them. Sometimes a Sin is diſcerned by the Inſtrument that Providence doth puniſh with. Moſt of the Evils that abound amongſt us, proceed from Defects as to Family-Government.

VII. Inordinate Paſſions. Sinful Heats and Hatreds, and that among Church-Members themſelves, who abound with evil Surmiſings, uncharitable and unrighteous Cenſures, Back-bitings, hearing and telling Tales, few that remember and duly obſerve the Rule, with an angry Countenance to drive away the Tale-Bearer: Reproachful and Reviling Expreſſions, ſometimes to or of one another. Hence Law-Suites are frequent, Brother going to Law with Brother, and provoking and abuſing one another in publick Courts of Judicature, to the ſcandal of their holy Profeſſion, Iſa. 58. 4. 1. Cor. 6. 6, 7. And in managing the Diſcipline of Chriſt, ſome (and too many) are acted by their Paſſions, and Prejudices, more than by a Spirit of Love and Faithfulneſs towards their Brother's Soul, which things are, as againſt the Law of Chriſt, ſo dreadful Violations of the Church-Covenant, made in the preſence of God.

VIII. There is much Intemperance. That Heathenish and Idolatrous practice of Health-drinking is too frequent. That ſhameful Iniquity of ſinful Drinking is become too general a Provocation. Days of Training, and other publick Solemnities, have been abuſed in this reſpect: And not only Engliſh, but Indians have been debauched by thoſe that call themſelves Chriſtians, who have put their Bottles to them and made them drunk alſo. This is a crying Sin, and the more aggravated in that the firſt Planters of this Colony did (as is in the Patent expreſſed) come into this Land with a Deſign to convert the Heathen unto Chriſt, but if inſtead of that they be taught Wickedneſs, which before they were never guilty of, the Lord may well puniſh us by them. Moreover the Sword, Sickneſs, Poverty, and almoſt all the Judgments which have been upon New-England are mentioned in the Scripture, as the woful Fruit of that Sin, Jer. 5. 11, 12. & 28. 1, 2. & 56. 9, 12. Prov. 23. 21, 29, 30, & 21. 17. Hoſ. 7. 5. & 28, 9. There are more Temptations and Occaſions unto that Sin, publickly allowed of, than any Neceſſity doth require; the proper end of Taverns, &c. being for the Entertainment of Strangers, which if they were improved to that end only, a far leſs number would ſuffice: But it is a common practice for Town-Dwellers, yea, and Church-Members to frequent publick Houſes, and there to miſpend precious Time, unto the diſhonour of the Goſpel, and the ſcandalizing of others, who are by ſuch Examples induced to ſin againſt God. In which reſpect for Church-Members to be unneceſſarily in ſuch Houſes, is ſinful, ſcandalous and provoking to God, 1 Cor. 8. 9, 10. Rom. 14. 21. Matth. 17. 27. & 18. 7.

And there are other hainous Breaches of the ſeventh Commandment. Temptations thereunto are become too common, viz. ſuch as immodeſt Apparel, Prov. 7. 10. laying out of Hair, Borders, naked Necks, and Arms, or which is more abominable naked Breaſts, and mixed Dancings, light Behaviour, and Expreſſions, ſinful Company-keeping with light and vain Perſons, unlawful Gaming, an abundance of Idleneſs, which brought ruinating Judgment upon Sodom, and much more upon Jeruſalem, Ezek. 16. 49, and doth ſorely threaten New England, unleſs effectual Remedies be thoroughly and timouſly applied.

IX. There is much want of Truth amongſt Men. Promiſe-breaking is a common Sin, for which New-England doth hear Ill abroad in the World. And the Lord hath threatned for that Tranſgreſſion to give his People into the Hands of their Enemies, and that their Dead Bodies ſhould be for Meat unto the Fowls of Heaven, and to the Beaſts of the Earth, which Judgments have been verified upon us, Jer. 34. 18, 20. And falſe Reports have been too common, yea, walking with Reproaches and Slanders, and that ſometimes againſt the moſt Faithful and Eminent Servants of God. The Lord is not wont to ſuffer ſuch Iniquity to paſs unpuniſhed, Jer. 9. 4, 5. Numb. 16. 41.

X. Inordinate Affection unto the World. Idolatry is a God-provoking, Judgment-procuring Sin. And Covetouſneſs is Idolatry, Eph. 5. 5. There hath been in many Profeſſors an Inſatiable deſire after Land, and Worldly Accommodations; yea, ſo as to forſake Churches and Ordinances, and to live like Heathen, only that ſo they might have Elbow-room enough in the World. Farms and Merchandiſings have been preferred before the things of God. In this reſpect the Intereſt of New-England ſeemeth to be changed. We differ from other out-goings of our Nation, in that it was not any Worldly Conſiderations that brought our Fathers into this Wilderneſs, but Religion, even that ſo they might build a Sanctuary unto the Lord's Name; whereas now Religion is made ſubſervient unto Worldly Intereſts. Such Iniquity cauſeth War to be in the Gates, and Cities to be burnt up, Judg. 8. 5. Mat. 22. 5, 7. Wherefore, we cannot but ſolemnly bear witneſs againſt that Practice of ſettling Plantations without any Miniſtry amongſt them, which is to prefer the World before the Goſpel: When Lot did forſake the Land of Canaan, and the Church, which was in Abraham's Family, that ſo he might have better Worldly Accommodations in Sodom, God fired him out of all, and he was conſtrained to leave his goodly Paſtures, which his Heart (though otherwiſe a good Man) was too much ſet upon. Moreover that many are under the prevailing Power of the Sin of Worldlineſs is evident.

1. From that oppreſſion which the Land groaneth under. There are ſome Traders, who ſell their Goods at exceſſive Rates, Day-Labourers and Mechanicks are unreaſonable in their Demands; yea, there have been thoſe that have dealt Deceitfully and oppreſſively towards the Heathen, among whom we live, whereby they have been ſcandalized and prejudiced againſt the Name of Chriſt. The Scripture doth frequently threaten Judgments for the Sin of Oppreſſion, and in ſpecial the Oppreſſing Sword cometh as a puniſhment of that Evil, Ezek. 7. 11. and 22. 15. Prov. 28. 8. Iſ. 5. 7.

2. It is alſo evident, that Men are under the prevailing Power of a Worldly Spirit, by their Strait-handedneſs, as to Publick Concernments. God by a continued Series of Providence, for many Years, one after another, hath been blaſting the Fruits of the Earth in a great meaſure; and this Year more abundantly: Now, if we ſearch the Scriptures, we ſhall find that when the Lord hath been provoked to deſtroy the Fruits of the Earth, either by noxious Creatures, or by his own immediate Hand in Blaſtings, or Droughts, or Exceſſive Rains (all which Judgments we have Experience of) it hath been moſtly for this Sin of Strait-handedneſs with Reference unto publick and Pious Concerns, Hag. 1. 9. Mal. 3. 8, 9, 11. As when Peoples Hearts and Hands are enlarged upon theſe Accounts, God hath promiſed (and is wont in his Faithful Providence to do accordingly) to Bleſs with outward Plenty and Proſperity, Prov. 3. 9, 10. Mal. 3. 10. 1 Cor. 9. 6, 8, 10. 2 Chron. 31. 10. ſo on the other Hand, when Men withold more than is meet, the Lord ſends impoveriſhing Judgments upon them, Prov. 11. 24.

XI. There hath been oppoſition to the work of Reformation. Although the Lord hath been calling upon us, not only by the Voice of his Servants, but by awful Judgments, that we ſhould return unto him, who hath been ſmiting of us, and notwithſtanding all the good Laws, that are eſtabliſhed for the ſuppreſſion of growing Evils, yet Men will not return every one from his Evil way. There hath been great Incorrigibleneſs under leſſer Judgments; Sin and Sinners have many Advocates. They that have been Zealous in bearing witneſs againſt the Sins of the Times, have been reproached, and other ways Diſcouraged; which argueth an Heart unwilling to Reform. Hence the Lord's Controverſie is not yet done, but his Hand is ſtretched out ſtill, Lev. 26. 23, 24. Iſa. 12. 13.

XII. A publick Spirit is greatly wanting in the moſt of Men. Few that are of Nehemiah's Spirit, Neh. 5 15. all ſeek their own, not the things that are Jeſus Chriſt's; ſerving themſelves upon Chriſt and his Holy Ordinances. Matters appertaining to the Kingdom of God, are either not at all regarded, or not in the firſt place. Hence Schools of Learning and other publick concerns are in a languiſhing ſtate. Hence alſo are unreaſonable Complaints and Murmurings becauſe of publick Charges, which is a great Sin; and a private ſelf-ſeeking Spirit, is one of thoſe Evils that renders the laſt times perilous, 2 Tim. 3. 1.

XIII. There are Sins againſt the Goſpel, whereby the Lord has been provoked. Chriſt is not priſed and embraced in all his Offices and Ordinances as ought to be. Manna hath been loathed, the pleaſant Land deſpiſed, Pſal. 106. 24. Though the Goſpel and Covenant of Grace call upon Men to Repent, yet there are Multitudes that refuſe to Repent, when the Lord doth vouchſafe them time and means. No Sins provoke the Lord more than Impenitency and Unbelief, Jer. 8. 6. Zech. 7. 11, 12, 13. Heb. 3. 17, 18. Rev. 2. 21, 22. There is great Unfruitfulneſs under the means of Grace, and that brings the moſt deſolating Judgments, Iſa. 5. 4, 5. Mat. 3. 10. and 21. 43.

Finally; there are ſeveral Conſiderations, which ſeem to Evidence, that the Evils mentioned are the matters of the Lord's Controverſie.

1. In that (though not as to all) as to moſt of them, they are Sins which many are guilty of.

2. Sins which have been acknowledged before the Lord on Days of Humiliation appointed by Authority, and yet not reformed.

3. Many of them not puniſhed (and ſome of them not puniſhable) by Men, therefore the Lord himſelf doth puniſh for them.

QUESTION II.

What is to be done, that ſo theſe Evils may be reformed?

ANSWER.

I. IT would tend much to promote the Intereſt of Reformation, if all that are, in place, above others, do as to themſelves and Families, become every way Exemplary. Moſes being to Reform others, began with what concerned himſelf and his. People are apt to follow the Example of thoſe, that are above them, 2 Chron. 12. 1. Gal. 2. 14. If then, there be a divided Heart, or any other of the Sins of the Times, found in any Degree among thoſe (or any of them) that are Leaders, either as to Civil or Eccleſiaſtical Order, Reformation there would have a great and happy Influence upon many.

II. In as much as the preſent ſtanding Generation (both as to Leaders and People) is for the greater part another Generation, than what was in New-England Forty Years ago, for us to declare our adherence to the Faith and Order of the Goſpel, according to what is in the Scripture expreſſed in the Platform of Diſcipline, may be likewiſe a good means both to recover thoſe that have erred from the Truth, and to prevent Apoſtacy for the future.

III. It is requiſite that Perſons be not admitted unto Communion in the Lord's Supper without making a perſonal and publick Profeſſion of their Faith and Repentance, either Orally, or in ſome other way, ſo as ſhall be to the juſt ſatisfaction of the Church; and that therefore both Elders and Churches be duly watchful and circumſpect in this matter, 1 Cor. 11. 28, 29. Acts 2. 41, 42. Ezek. 44. 7, 8, 9.

IV. In order to Reformation, it is neceſſary that the Diſcipline of Chriſt in the Power of it ſhould be upheld in the Churches. It is evident from Chriſt's Epiſtles to the Churches in the leſſer Aſia, that the Evils and Degeneracies then prevailing among Chriſtians, proceeded chiefly from the neglect of Diſcipline. It is a known and true Obſervation, that Remiſſneſs in the Exerciſe of Diſcipline, was attended with Corruption of Manners, and that did provoke the Lord to give Men up to ſtrong Deluſions in matters of Faith. Diſcipline is Chriſt's Ordinance, both for the prevention of Apoſtacy in Churches, and to recover them, when collapſed. And theſe New-Engliſh Churches are under peculiar Engagements to be Faithful unto Chriſt, and unto his Truth in this matter, by virtue of the Church Covenant, as alſo that the management of Diſcipline according to the Scripture, was the ſpecial Deſign of our Fathers in coming into this Wilderneſs. The Degeneracy of the Riſing Generation (ſo much complained of) is in a great meaſure to be attributed unto neglects of this nature. If all Church Diſcipline, in theſe reſpects, were Faithfully and Diligently attended, not only towards Parents, but alſo towards the Children of the Church, according to the Rules of Chriſt, we may hope that the ſunk and dying Intereſt of Religion will be revived, and a world of Sin prevented for the future; and that Diſputes reſpecting the Subjects of Baptiſm, would be comfortably iſſued.

V. It is requiſite that utmoſt endeavours ſhould be uſed, in order unto a full ſupply of Officers in the Churches, according to Chriſt's Inſtitution. The defect of theſe Churches, on this account, is very lamentable, there being in moſt of the Churches only one teaching Officer, for the Burden of the whole Congregation to lye upon. The Lord Chriſt would not have inſtituted Paſtors, Teachers, Ruling-Elders (nor the Apoſtles have ordained Elders in every Church, Acts 14. 23. Titus 1. 5.) if he had not ſeen there was need of them for the good of his People; and therefore for Men to think, they can do well enough without them, is both to break the ſecond Commandment, and to reflect upon the Wiſdom of Chriſt, as if he did appoint unneceſſary Officers in his Church. Experience hath evinced, that perſonal Inſtruction and Diſcipline, hath been an happy means to reform degenerated Congregations; yea, and owned by the Lord for the Converſion of many Souls: but where there are great Congregations, it is impoſſible for one Man, beſides his Labours in publick fully to attend theſe other things of great Importance, and neceſſary to be done in order to an effectual Reformation of Families and Congregations.

VI. It is incumbent on the Magiſtrate to take care that theſe Officers have due encouragement and maintenance afforded to them. It is high Injuſtice and Oppreſſion, yea a Sin, that cries in the Lord's Ears for Judgment, when Wages are witheld from Faithful and Diligent Labours, Jam. 5. 4. And if it be ſo to thoſe that labour about carnal things, much more as to thoſe who labour Day and Night, about the ſpiritual, and eternal welfare of Souls, 1 Cor. 9. 11, 13, 14. And the Scripture is expreſs, that not only the Members of Churches, but all that are taught in the Word are bound to Communicate to him that Teacheth in all good things, Gal. 6. 6. Luke 10. 7. 1 Tim. 5. 17, 18. If therefore People be unwilling, to do what Juſtice and Reaſon calls for, the Magiſtrate is to ſee them do their Duty in this matter. Wherefore, Magiſtrates, and that in Scriptures referring to the Days of the New-Teſtament, are ſaid to be the Churches Nurſing Fathers, Iſ. 49. 23. For that it concerns them to take care, that the Churches be fed with the Bread and Water of Life. The Magiſtrate is to be a keeper of both Tables, which as a Magiſtrate he cannot be, if he do not promote the Intereſt of Religion, by all thoſe means, which are of the Lord's appointment. And we find in Scripture, that when the Lord's Miniſters have been forced to neglect the Houſe of God, and go every one into the Field (as too much of that hath been amongſt us) becauſe the People did not allow them that maintenance, which was neceſſary, the Magiſtrate did look upon himſelf as concerned to effect a Reformation, Neh. 13. 10.

VII. Due Care and Faithfulneſs with reſpect unto the Eſtabliſhment and Execution of wholſome Laws, would very much promote the Intereſt of Reformation. If there be no Laws eſtabliſhed in the Common-wealth, but what there is Scripture warrant for, and thoſe Laws ſo worded, as that they may not become a Snare unto any that are bound to animadvert upon the violaters of them, and that then they be impartially executed; Profaneſs, Hereſie, Schiſm, Diſorders in Families, Towns, Churches would be happily prevented and reformed. In ſpecial it is neceſſary that thoſe Laws for Reformation of provoking Evils enacted and emitted by the general Court, in the Day of our Calamity ſhould be duly conſidered, leſt we become guilty of diſſembling and dallying with the Almighty, and thereby Sin and Wrath be augmented upon us: In particular thoſe Laws, which reſpect the Regulation of Houſes for publick Entertainment, that the number of ſuch Houſes do not exceed what is neceſſary, nor any ſo entruſted but Perſons of known approved Piety and Fidelity, and that Inhabitants be prohibited Drinking in ſuch Houſes, and thoſe that ſhall without Licenſe from Authority ſell any ſort of Strong Drink, be exemplarily puniſhed. And if withal Inferior Officers, Conſtables and Tithing Men, be choſen conſtantly of the Ableſt and moſt Prudent in the place, Authorized and Sworn to a faithful Diſcharge of their Reſpective Truſts, and duly encouraged in their juſt Informations againſt any, that ſhall Tranſgreſs the Laws ſo eſtabliſhed, we may hope that much of that Profaneneſs which doth threaten the Ruine of the upriſing Generation will be prevented.

VIII. Solemn and explicit Renewal of Covenant is a Scripture expedient for Reformation. We ſeldom read of any ſolemn Reformation, but it was accompliſhed in this way, as the Scripture doth abundantly Declare and Teſtifie. And as the Judgments which befel the Lord's People of Old are Recorded for our Admonition, 1 Cor. 10. 11.

So the Courſe, which they did (according to God) obſerve, in order to Reformation, and averting thoſe Judgments, is Recorded for our Imitation, and this was an Explicit Renovation of Covenant. And that the Lord doth call us to this Work, theſe Conſiderations ſeem to Evince. 1. If Implicit Renewal of Covenant be an Expedient for Reformation, and to divert Impending Wrath and Judgment, then much more an explicit Renewal is ſo; but the firſt of theſe is indubitable. In Prayer, and more eſpecially, on Days of ſolemn Humiliation before the Lord, there is an Implicit Renewal of Covenant, and yet the very dictates of Natural Conſcience put Men upon ſuch Duties, when they are apprehenſive of a Day of Wrath Approaching. If we may not renew our Covenants with God, for fear leſt Men ſhould not be True and Faithful in Doing what they Promiſe, then we muſt not obſerve Days of Faſting and Prayer; which none will ſay. 2. When the Church was over-run with Idolatry and Superſtition, thoſe whom the Lord raiſed up as Reformers, put them upon ſolemn Renewal of Covenant. So Aſa, Jehoſaphat, Hezekiah, Joſiah. By a Parity of Reaſon, when Churches are over-grown with Worldlineſs, (which is Spiritual Idolatry) and other Corruptions, the ſame Courſe may and ſhould be obſerved in order to Reformation, Nay, 3. We find in Scripture, that when Corruption in Manners (though not in Worſhip) hath prevailed in the Church, Renovation of Covenant hath been the Expedient, whereby Reformation hath been attempted, and in ſome meaſure attained.

The Jews have dreaded the Sin of Idolatry, ever ſince the Babylonian Captivity, John 8. 41. But in Ezra's and Nehemiah's Time, too much Senſuality and Sabbath-breaking, Oppreſſion, Strait-handedneſs reſpecting the publick Worſhip of God (the very ſame Sins that are found with us) were common prevailing Iniquities. Therefore did thoſe Reformers put them upon renewing their Covenant, and ſolemnly to promiſe God that they would endeavour not to offend by thoſe Evils, as formerly, Ezr. 10. 3. Neh. 5. 12, 13. and 10. per totum, and 13. 15. 4. The things which are mentioned in the Scripture, as grounds of renewing Covenant, are applicable unto us, e. g. The averting of Divine Wrath is expreſſed, as a ſufficient Reaſon for attendance unto this Duty, 2 Chron. 29. 10. Ezra 10. 14. Again being circumſtanced with Difficulties and Diſtreſſes is mentioned as the Ground of Explicit Renovation of Covenant, Neh. 9. 38. Hence the Lord's Servants, when ſo circumſtanced have been wont to make ſolemn Vows (and that is an expreſs Covenanting) Gen. 28. 20, 21. Judg. 11. 30. Numb. 21. 1, 2. Now that Clouds of Wrath are hanging over theſe Churches every one ſeeth; and that we are circumſtanced with ſome diſtreſſing difficulties is ſufficiently known. This conſideration alone might be enough to put us upon more ſolemn Engagements unto the Lord our God. 5. Men are hereby brought under a ſtronger Obligation unto better Obedience. There is an awe of God upon the Conſciences of Men, when ſo obliged. As it is in reſpect of Oaths, they that have any Conſcience in them, when under ſuch Bonds are afraid to violate them. Some that are but Legaliſts and Hypocrites, yet ſolemn Covenants with God have ſuch an awe upon Conſcience, as to enforce them unto an outward Reformation, and that doth divert temporal Judgments. And they that are ſincere, will thereby be engaged unto a more cloſe and Holy walking before the Lord, and ſo become more eminently Bleſſings unto the Societies, and places, whereto they do belong. 6. This way is to prevent (and therefore alſo to recover out of) Apoſtacy. In this reſpect, although there were no viſible Degeneracy amongſt us, yet this Renovation of Covenant might be of ſingular Advantage. There was no publick Idolatry (or other Tranſgreſſion) allowed of in the Days of Joſhua, Judg. 2. 7. Joſh. 23. 8. yet did Joſhua perſwade the Children of Iſrael to renew their Covenant; doubtleſs that ſo he might thereby reſtrain them from future Idolatry and Apoſtacy, Joſh. 24. 25.

Laſtly, The Churches, which have lately and ſolemnly attended this Scripture Expedient for Reformation, have experienced the Preſence of God with them, ſignally owning them therein; how much more might a Bleſſing be expected, ſhould there be a general Concurrence in this matter?

IX. In Renewing of Covenant, it is needful that the Sins of the Times ſhould be engaged againſt, and Reformation thereof (in the Name and by the help of Chriſt) promiſed before the Lord, Ezra 10. 3. Neh. 5. 12, 13. and Chap. 10.

X. It ſeems to be moſt Conducive unto Edification and Reformation, that in Renewing Covenant ſuch things as are clear and indiſputable be expreſſed, that ſo all the Churches may agree in Covenanting to promote the Intereſt of Holineſs, and cloſe walking with God.

XI. As an Expedient for Reformation, it is good, that effectual care ſhould be taken, reſpecting Schools of Learning. The Intereſt of Religion and good Literature have been wont to Riſe and Fall together. We read in Scripture of Maſters and Scholars, and of Schools and Colleges, 1 Chron. 25. 8. Mal. 2. 12. Acts 19. 9. and 22. 3. And the moſt Eminent Reformers amongſt the Lord's People of old, thought it their concern to erect and uphold them. Was not Samuel (that great Reformer) Preſident of the College, at Nayoth, 1 Sam. 19. 18, 19. and is thought to be one of the Firſt Founders of Colleges. Did not Elijah and Eliſha, reſtore the Schools Erected in the Land of Iſrael? And Joſiah (another great Reformer) ſhewed reſpect to the College at Jeruſalem, 2 Kings 22. 14. Eccleſiaſtical Story informs that great care was taken by the Apoſtles, and their immediate Succeſſors, for the ſettling of Schools in all places, where the Goſpel had been preached, that ſo the Intereſt of Religion might be preſerved, and the Truth propagated to ſucceeding Generations. It is mentioned as one of the greateſt Mercies, that ever God beſtowed upon his People Iſrael, that he raiſed up their Sons for Prophets, Amos 2. 11. which hath reſpect to their Education in Schools of Learning. And we have all cauſe to Bleſs God, that put it into the Hearts of our Fathers to take care concerning this matter. For theſe Churches had been in a ſtate moſt deplorable, if the Lord had not bleſſed the College, ſo as from thence to ſupply moſt of the Churches, as at this Day. When New-England was poor, and we were but few in Number Comparatively, there was a Spirit to encourage Learning, and the College was full of Students, whom God hath made Bleſſings, not only in this, but in other Lands; but it is deeply to be lamented that now when we are become many, and more able than at our Beginnings, that Society, and other Inferior Schools are in ſuch a Low and Languiſhing ſtate. Wherefore, as we deſire that Reformation and Religion ſhould flouriſh, it concerns us to endeavour that both the College, and all other Schools of Learning in every place, be duly inſpected and encouraged.

XII. In as much as a thorough and hearty Reformation is neceſſary, in order to obtaining Peace with God, Jer. 3. 10. and all outward means will be ineffectual unto that end, except the Lord pour down his Spirit from on High; it doth, therefore, concern us to cry mightily unto God, both in ordinary and extraordinary manner, that he would be pleaſed to Rain down Righteouſneſs upon us, Iſa. 32. 15. Hoſ. 10. 12. Ezek. 39. 29. Luke 11. 13. Amen!

RE-

Reforming Synod.

§ 1. THat a Reforming Synod could not accompliſh an Univerſal Reformation of Provoking Evils in the Country, has been acknowledged as a Matter of moſt ſenſible Obſervation ; and the increaſed Frowns of Heaven upon the Country, ſince that Synod, have been but agreeable to ſuch an increaſe of Provocation. Alas! how many Inſtances have we ſeen, upon which our God might ſay unto us, When I would have healed New-England, then it's Iniquities were but the more diſcovered ! Neverthele ſs, it muſt be mentioned unto the Glory of God, that the Admonitions of the Synod, were not without very deſirable Effects, upon many of his People. Faithful Miniſters were thereby ſtrengthened in Lifting up their Voices like Trumpets to ſhew us our Tranſgreſſions and our Sins, and private Chriſtians were awakned unto an exacter Walk with God. But of all the Effects that followed upon the Synod, there was none more comprehenſive and ſignificant than the Renewal of Covenant, which was attended by many of our Churches, in purſuance of the largeſt Article of the Reforming Expedients, which had been recommended. In this Renewal of Covenant, there were ſome Churches, who, from I know not what Objections, of there being no expreſs warrant for it in the New-Teſtament, and, their doing it, implicitly in every act of Divine Worſhip, and, the imaginary danger of Innovations, would not comply with the Advice of the Synod : But all the Virgins were not ſo ſleepy, and very remarkable was the Bleſſing of God upon the Churches, which did not ſo ſleep, not only by a great Advancement of Holineſs in the People, who in their leſſer Societies for the Exerciſes of Religion, as well as in their Privacies and Retirements often peruſed the Copies of their Covenants ; but alſo by a great Addition of Converts, unto their holy Fellowſhip. In ſhort, many of the Churches, under the Conduct of their holy Paſtors, having on previous Days of faſting and Prayer ſet apart for that purpoſe, conſidered the expectations of God concerning them, they were willing anew, to declare their moſt explicit Conſent unto the Covenant of Grace, and moſt explicitly to engage a growing watchfulneſs in ſuch Duties of the Covenant, as were more peculiarly accommodated unto their preſent Circumſtances. When their preparatory Church-Meetings, had produced a Concurrence in this Reſolution, they publickly devoted another Day to Faſting and Prayer, whereat a vaſt Confluence of other Neighbours were uſually preſent ; and on this Day the Miniſter of the Place having in the Forenoon pray'd and preach'd ſuitably to the Occaſion, he proceeded then to read the Covenant ; whereunto the Aſſent of the Churches was then expreſſed, by the Brethren lifting up their Hands, and by the Women only ſtanding up ; and tho' in ſome Churches none but the Communicants , yet in others thoſe alſo, which we call the Children of the Church, were actively concerned in theſe Tranſactions. But ordinarily in the Afternoon, ſome other Miniſter prayed and preached and inculcated the Covenant Obligations : And many thouſands of Spectators will teſtifie, that they never ſaw the ſpecial Preſence of the Great God our Saviour, more notably diſcovered, than in the Solemnities of theſe Opportunities.

§ 2. The Forms uſed by the ſeveral Churches in the Renewal of Covenant, were not in all Points the ſame, nor did our Churches at all find that this Vari-formity was an Inconvenience ; but that it gave them a Liberty and Advantage to conſult their own Edification, by adapting their Forms unto their own ſpecial Circumſtances. However the Form which, with little Variation, was moſt uſed ſhall be now recited.

‘ living God, and one with another, in manner

‘We do give up our ſelves to that God, whoſe Name alone is Jehovah, Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt, the One only True and Living God, and to our Bleſſed Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as our only Bleſſed Saviour, Prophet, Prieſt and King, over our Souls, and only Mediator of the Covenant of Grace, promiſing (by the help of his Spirit and Grace) to cleave unto God, as our chief Good, and to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, by Faith, and Goſpel-Obedience, as becometh his Covenant-People for ever. We do alſo give up our Off ſpring unto God in Jeſus Chriſt, avouching the Lord to be our God, and the God of our Children, and our ſelves with our Children to be his People; humbly Adoring the Grace of God, that we and our Off-ſpring with us may be looked upon to be the Lords.

‘We do, alſo, give up our ſelves one to another in the Lord, and according to the Will of God; freely Covenanting and Binding our ſelves to walk together as a right ordered Congregation and Church of Chriſt, in all the ways of his Worſhip, according to the Holy Rules of the Word of God; promiſing in Brotherly Love to Watch over one anothers Souls Faithfully, and to ſubmit our ſelves unto the Diſcipline and Government of Chriſt in his Church, and duly to attend all thoſe Ordinances, which Chriſt hath Inſtituted in his Church, and commanded to be attended by his People, according to the Order of the Goſpel, and Degrees of Communion, unto which we have attained; not reſting in meaſures attained, but preſſing after all. And whereas the Meſſengers of theſe Churches, who have met together in the Name of Chriſt, to enquire into the Reaſon of God's Controverſie with his People, have taken notice of many provoking Evils, as the procuring Cauſes of the Judgments of God upon New-England; ſo far as we or any of us have been Guilty of Provoking God by any Sin therein diſcovered to us, We deſire from our Hearts to bewail it before the Lord, and humbly to entreat for pardoning Mercy, for the ſake of the Blood of the Everlaſting Covenant. And as an Expedient to the Reformation of thoſe Evils, or whatſoever elſe, have provoked the Eyes of God's Glory amongſt us, We do freely Engage and Promiſe, as in the Preſence of God;

‘Firſt, That we will (Chriſt helping) endeavour every one of us to Reform our Heart and Life, by ſeeking to mortifie all our Sins, and labouring to walk more cloſely with God, than ever yet we have done; and will continue to worſhip God in Publick, Private, Secret; and this without Formality or Hypocriſie: and more fully and faithfully than heretofore, to diſcharge all Covenant-Duties, one to another in Church Communion.

‘Secondly, To walk before God in our Houſes, with a perfect Heart, and that we will uphold the Worſhip of God therein continually, according as he in his Word doth require; both in reſpect of Prayer and Reading the Scriptures, that ſo the Word of God may dwell richly in us: And we will do what in us lies, to bring up our Children for Chriſt, that they may be ſuch as have the Lord's Name put upon them by a ſolemn Dedication to God in Chriſt, ought to be. And will therefore (as need ſhall be) Catechiſe, Exhort, and Charge them to the Fear of the Lord; and endeavour to ſet an Holy Example before them, and be much in Prayer for their Converſion and Salvation.

‘Thirdly, To endeavour to be pure from the Sins of the Times, eſpecially thoſe Sins, which have been by the late Synod ſolemnly Declared and Evidenced to be the Evils, that have brought the Judgments of God upon New-England; and in our places to endeavour the ſuppreſſion thereof, and be careful ſo to walk, as that we may not give occaſion to others to Sin, or ſpeak Evil of our Holy Profeſſion.

‘Now that we may obſerve and keep this ſacred Covenant and all the Branches of it inviolable for ever, We deſire to deny our ſelves and to depend wholly upon the Power of the Eternal Spirit of Grace, and on the free Mercy of God, and Merit of Chriſt Jeſus: And where we ſhall fail, there to wait upon the Lord Jeſus for Pardon, Acceptance, and Healing for his Name's ſake.

§ 3. The Maſſachuſett Colony was not alone, in ſuch Eſſays of Reformation: but the Colonies of Plymouth and Connecticut ſhewed themſelves in like manner concerned; that they might avert the Tokens of the Divine Diſpleaſure, whereat they who dwelt in theſe uttermoſt parts were afraid. The Rulers, both in Church and State, had their ſerious Deliberations with one another, and they together enquired of the Lord, at the Oracle of his Written Word, what might be the grounds of the Divine Controverſie. The Miniſters drew up the Reſults of their Deliberations, which the Magiſtrates recommended unto the Conſideration of the Inhabitants in the ſeveral Juriſdictions. The Paſtors of the Churches, hence took occaſion, in their lively Sermons, to proſecute the ends of theſe Admonitions; and ſome of them, reduced their Inſtructions into a Catechetical Method, that ſo the Young People in their Congregations, might Echo back, upon fit Queſtions, thoſe things which were needful to be known, and to be done, relating to the Reformation of the Land. Thus particulary, did that moſt worthy Man, Mr. James Fitch, at Norwich; who has obliged more than his whole Colony, by ſuffering to be publiſhed (as well as another Elaborate Catechiſm, containing, a Body of Divinity) in form of a Catechiſm, an Explanation of the ſolemn Advice, recommended by the Council of the Colony to the Inhabitants, reſpecting the Reformation of thoſe Evils, which have been the procuring cauſe of the late Judgments upon New-England.

§ 4. Our manifold Indiſpoſitions to recover the dying Power of Godlineſs, were puniſhed with ſucceſſive Calamities; under all of which our Apoſtacies from that Godlineſs have rather proceeded than abated. Although there hath been a Glorious profeſſion of Religion made by the Body of this People unto this Day; yea, and although there be Thouſands which by keeping their Hearts with all diligence, and by ordering their Converſations aright, juſtifie their Profeſſion, yet the Number of them that ſo ſtrictly walk with God, has been wofully decaying. The Old Spirit of New-England hath been ſenſibly going out of the World, as the old Saints in whom it was, have gone; and inſtead thereof the Spirit of the World with a lamentable neglect of ſtrict Piety, has crept in upon the riſing Generation. At laſt, the Country by ſome Changes paſſing over it, was thrown into a Condition, in which not only the Paſtors, without whom no Reformation is to be hoped, were miſerably cripled as to the doing of any notable thing in Reforming, but alſo the Churches were many ways uncapable of doing any general thing to retrieve our growing Defections. However, when the compaſſion of God by ſtrange Providences, fetched the Country out of that Condition, the General Court, returning to the Exerciſe of their former Authority, were willing to ſhew their Senſe of the preſent Circumſtances, by publiſhing the following Inſtrument.

By the Governour and General Court of the Colony of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay in NEW-ENGLAND.

IT having been a thing too ſenſible and obvious, to eſcape the obſervation of all, who are not wholly ſtrangers in our Iſrael; that this poor Land hath laboured under a long Series of Afflictions, and Calamities, whereby we have ſuffered ſucceſſively in all our precious and pleaſant things, and have ſeen the Anger of the Righteous God againſt us, expreſſed in Characters, which ought to be as terrible, as they muſt needs be viſible unto us; it having alſo both by the Teſtimonies of thoſe that after the moſt humble and exact enquiries into the Mind of God, have diſcovered the ſame unto us, and by their own general and repeated Confeſſions, become undeniable; that a Corruption of Manners, attended with inexcuſable Degeneracies and Apoſtacies, found in too many of this People, is the cauſe of that Controverſie, which the God of our Fathers has, for many Years been maintaining with us: It being likewiſe at this Day, ſuch a Probation time with all New-England as this Country has never before ſeen from the firſt foundation of it, and the Judgments of that Holy God, who hath beheld, how Incorrigible we have hitherto been, under all his Diſpenſations, now arriving to ſuch an Extremity, that the Ax is laid to the Root of the Trees, and we are in eminent Danger of periſhing, if a ſpeedy Reformation of our Provoking Evils prevent it not: This Court have therefore thought it needful to Preface their other Endeavours for the publick welfare, with a very ſolemn Admonition unto this whole People, that they every where give Demonſtrations of a thorough Repentance, without which we have little Reaſon to hope for any Good ſucceſs in our Affairs.

Wherefore, it is ordered that the Laws of this Colony againſt Vice, and all ſorts of Debauchery and Profaneneſs (which Laws have too much loſt their Edge by the late Interruption of the Government) be now Faithfully and vigorouſly put in Execution; particularly the Laws againſt Blaſphemy, Curſing, Prophane-Swearing, Lying, Unlawful-Gaming, Sabbath-breaking, Idleneſs, Drunkenneſs, Uncleanneſs, and all the Enticements and Nurſeries of ſuch Impieties: Together with all other the wholſome Laws and Orders agreeable to the preſent Circumſtances of the Country; by the Execution whereof we may approve our ſelves, a peculiar People, zealous of good Works.

And as all Perſons are hereby warned to avoid thoſe Vices, which theſe Laws are deſigned for the Prevention and Chaſtiſement of, (the Lovers of and Pleaders for ſuch Iniquities, being among the Principal Troublers of their Country:) ſo all Inferiour Officers are enjoined to perform their Duty in finding and bringing out Offenders againſt the aforeſaid Laws, and withal to give notice to ſuch Offenders, that they muſt expect the Juſtice of an Exemplary Puniſhment.

And that no attempt towards Reformation may want that Aſſiſtance which all good Men will be willing to give thereunto, 'tis hoped that the Miniſters of God will, to the publick Reading of this Proclamation, adjoin their own fervent Labours, not only for the rebuking and ſuppreſſing of thoſe provoking Evils, which are marked for Common hatred: but alſo to Witneſs againſt more Spiritual Sins, which fall not ſo much under the Cognizance of Humane Laws, namely, ſuch as Unbelief, Worldlineſs, Hereſie, Pride, Wrath, Strife, Envy, and neglect of Communion with God in both Natural and Inſtituted Worſhip, and the Contempt of the Everlaſting Goſpel, with a ſhameful want of due Family-Inſtruction, which are the Roots of Bitterneſs in the midſt of us.

Moreover, after the Example of Pious Rulers commended in ſacred Writ, the Churches are every where hereby adviſed to give utmoſt Encouragement unto the Faithful, and Watchful Paſtors of their Souls; to ſeek (where they lack) a full ſettlement and enjoyment of ſuch Officers, as the Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath appointed for their edification; to reflect ſeriouſly and frequently on their Covenants; to ſharpen their Diſcipline againſt thoſe that walk Diſorderly; and immediately to compoſe their Differences and Contentions (if ſuch there be) whereby any of them may be diſtempered and enfeebled, that ſo they may become Terrible as an Army with Banners.

Furthermore, it is expected that the ſeveral Towns within this Juriſdiction, do ſpeedily furniſh themſelves with the means for the good Education of Youth, and take ſpecial care to avoid Factions and Quarrels in their other Town-Affairs; and all Plantations are ſtrictly forbidden to continue without the Advantages of having the Word of God conſtantly preached unto them, or without a ſincere and active Induſtry, to obtain the Preſence of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in all his Bleſſed Ordinances.

And Finally, this whole People are hereby advertiſed, that if theſe Eſſays for an Univerſal Reformation ſhall be obſtructed (as thoſe in the Days of the Reforming Joſiah were) by Mens being ſettled on their Lees, and hating to be reformed; they can reaſonably look for no other Iſſue than this, That the Jealous God will puniſh them yet ſeven times more for their Iniquities: But if the God of Heaven ſhall grant unto them the Grace to Remember whence they are fallen, and Repent, and do the firſt Works, it will give a greater Proſpect of Proſperity, than can ariſe from the beſt Counſels and biggeſt Armies.

The Work of Reformation, thus endeavoured, is now recommended unto the Bleſſing of the Almighty, with whom alone it is to recover a backſliding People; perſuading our ſelves, that the event thereof would be Salvation nigh unto us, and Glory dwelling in our Lord.

§ 5. The lamentable Diſaſters, wherewith our God preſently after puniſhed us for our not being Reformed by all theſe things, rendred this Inſtrument worthy to be called a Propheſie, rather than a Proclamation. A War made againſt the Country by both Pagan and Popiſh Adverſaries in the Eaſt; and an almoſt univerſal Miſcariage of our Affairs both by Sea and Land, and eſpecially of the moſt important Expedition ever made by this People, even that againſt Canada; together with Epidemical Diſeaſes which ſwept away near a Thouſand Perſons within a few Months, in one Town; theſe Teſtimonies from Heaven againſt the Land, kept alive the ſollicitous enquiries of good Men, how all that was amiſs might be amended? Many things this way were propounded and attended by good Men in all Orders; but among other things, there was eſpecially one voted by an Aſſembly of Miniſters, met at Cambridge, in ſuch Terms as theſe.

'Whereas the moſt heavy and waſting Judgments of Heaven upon our diſtreſſed Land, loudly call upon us, no longer to delay the taking of ſome hitherto-untaken ſteps towards the Reformation of our provoking Evils, and the Recovery of Practical Religion in our Hearts, and Lives;

'Among other Expedients in order hereunto, We cannot but recommend it, as very adviſeable, that the ſeveral Churches, having in an Inſtrument proper for that purpoſe, made a Catalogue of ſuch things, as can Indiſputably be found amiſs among them, do with all ſeriouſneſs and ſolemnity paſs their Votes, that they count ſuch things to be very Offenſive Evils, and that renouncing all dependance upon their own ſtrength, to avoid ſuch Evils, they humbly ask the help of the Divine Grace to aſſiſt them, in watching againſt the ſaid Evils both in themſelves, and in one another. And that the Communicants do often reflect upon thoſe their Acknowledgments and Proteſtations, as perpetual Monitors unto them, to prevent the Miſcarriages, wherewith too many Profeſſors, are ſo eaſily overtaken.

Copies of this Vote; were communicated unto many parts of the Country; in purſuance whereof, there were ſeveral Churches which did in the Year 1692, ſolemnly make the recommended Recognitions of Duty: Hoping, that God would accept ſuch Acknowledgments of Duty, their Declarations for him, whereupon he would alſo declare for them; and thinking that ſuch humble Acknowledgments were the New-Covenant-way for the obtaining of help from Heaven, for the doing of Duty. Particulary, to avoid the length of tedious varieties; There was one Church, amongſt the reſt, that voted, That they did accept of the following Inſtrument, as containing the ſerious Acknowledgments and Proteſtations of their Souls; whereupon they would often Reflect, for the diſcovering of what may be amiſs in their Hearts and Lives; as alſo, for the directing of the Prayers, and ſtrengthening of the Cares, which they would uſe in their more watchful walk with God. And a Printed Copy thereof, was accordingly put into the Hands of the Communicants.

Acknowledgments and Proteſtations voted, as explaining the Obligations laid upon us by our moſt Holy Covenant.

WE, that through the Goodneſs of God have been combined, and are ſtill continued, a Church of his; having heretofore conſented unto the Covenant of Grace, according to the gracious Terms whereof, we have made choice of the Lord Jehovah, Father, Son and Spirit, as our God, and of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as the glorious Mediator, upon whoſe Fulneſs of Merit and Power we rely, as well to be ſtrengthened for the Duties, as to be inveſted with the Bleſſings, of that well-ordered Covenant; and have, therefore, according to his Will, incorporated our ſelves into that Evangelical Church-ſtate, wherein our Deſires after the ſure Mercies of that Covenant, are to be expreſſed, maintained and anſwered: Being herewithal ſenſible, that our Juſtification, only by Faith in the Righteouſneſs of him, who is a Saviour and a Surety for us, does very ſtrongly oblige us to cloſe with all the Commandments of God, as Holy, and Juſt, and Good; and as thoſe Rules, in Conformity to which alone our Peace can be lengthened out: And, being alſo awakened by the moſt heavy Judgments of Heaven, under which the Country hath been weltring and waſting for many later Years, to ſuſpect, leſt in the Hearts, and Lives of Us in particular, there may be found ſome of thoſe accurſed Things, which have brought upon the Land, ſuch a long Variety of ſore Calamity.

Do therefore acknowledge, That we are under peculiar Bonds to walk circumſpectly, not only by avoiding the groſſer Miſcarriages of Ungodlineſs, but alſo by guarding againſt, whatever Corruptions do ſometimes more eaſily obtain among the profeſſing People of God; behaving our ſelves, not as Fools but as Wiſe, and redeeming the time, becauſe the days are evil.

And in ſpecial manner, to revive the Senſe of the Tyes, which are laid upon us by the Covenant of God, that has not only been accepted, but alſo renewed amongſt us.

I. We acknowledge, It would be a great Evil in us, if our Love to the World ſhould make us omit our Communion with God, and abate of that Zeal and Watch, which we ſhould always keep alive in our Souls; or hinder us from the moſt affectionate reading of his Word, and ſeeking of his Face, every Day in our Houſes, or from the daily uſe of Meditation and Supplication in our Cloſets.

II. It would be a great Evil in us, If, while on the one hand we proteſt againſt any thing in Divine Worſhip, for which we have not a Divine Warrant, and againſt the Uſage of all Papal and Pagan Superſtitions: On the other ſide, we ſhould not, according to the beſt of our Capacities, attend and ſupport the Inſtitutions of God, in the midſt of us, with Endeavours that there may be nothing wanting thereunto.

III. It would be a great Evil in us, If when we draw near to God in his Ordinances, we ſhould allow our ſelves to be Formal, Carnal, or Sleepy in what we do; eſpecially, if we ſhould ordinarily come to the Table of the Lord, without ſerious Examinations and Humiliations preparatory thereunto; or, if in managing of Church-Diſcipline, we ſhould vent our own Paſſions, and ſerve our own Humours, inſtead of acting entirely for the Lord.

IV. It would be a great Evil in us, If we ſhould abuſe the good Creatures of God by Senſualities in Eating, Drinking and Recreation; or, by Extravagancies in our Apparel: And, if whenever we uſe the Titles, and the Scriptures of our God, it ſhould not be with much Reverence in our Souls.

V. It would be a great Evil in us, If we ſhould not keep a ſtrict Guard both on our own Thoughts as well as Words and Works on the Lord's-Day, and alſo on all that are under our Influence, to reſtrain them from the violations of that Sacred Reſt.

VI. It would be a great Evil in us, If we ſhould not make it our careful ſtudy to have our Families well inſtructed, and well governed, and in ſuch a Condition as is agreeable to the Fear of God.

VII. It would be a great Evil in us, If by the prevalency of a private Spirit, we ſhould be backward unto any publick Service, wherein God ſhall call us, with our Perſons or Eſtates to ſerve our Generation; or, if we ſhould with unjuſt Neglect and Cenſure, ill requite ſuch as have been ſerviceable; more eſpecially ſuch as in Government are the Miniſters of God unto us for our Good.

VIII. It would be a great Evil in us, If we ſhould put off a Patient, Peaceable, Forgiving Temper towards our Neighbours; or, not with Meekneſs of Wiſdom decline and ſmother all Cauſes of Contention.

IX. It would be a great Evil in us, If we ſhould ſpend our Days in Idleneſs, and not be Diligent in ſuch Employments, as may adorn the Doctrine of God, by rendering us uſeful unto thoſe that are round about us.

X. It would be a great Evil in us, If we ſhould in any of our Carriage, or ſo much as in our Diſcourſe, admit any thing that may ſavour of a Laſcivious or a Licentious Diſpoſition in our Souls.

XI. It would be a great Evil in us, If we ſhould uſe any Diſhoneſty in our Dealings, and either by Fraud or Force, exact unreaſonably upon thoſe with whom we are concerned.

XII. It would be a great Evil in us, maliciouſly to make, or injuriouſly to ſpread any falſe Reports, or too eaſily to receive Slanders againſt the Innocent, or to Countenance the Broachers of them.

XIII. It would be a great Evil in us, If we ſhould not conſcientiouſly obſerve and fulfil what Promiſes we have lawfully given one unto another.

XIV. It would be a great Evil in us, To be diſcontented either at the Proſperity which God would have others enjoy, or at the Adverſity wherein the Providence of God has at any time confined our ſelves.

XV. It would be a great Evil in us, If we ſhould not be ready Charitably and Liberally to relieve the Neceſſities of the Poor that call for our Bounties.

XVI. It would be a great Evil in us, If we ſhould not with a moſt Brotherly Affection either give or take Reproofs, when there is a cauſe for them; or, if we ſhould with-hold any due Teſtimony againſt whatever may fall out among us, diſpleaſing unto God.

Wherefore by a ſolemn Vote, we Declare againſt all theſe Evils, as abominable Things; and, utterly deſpairing of any ſtrength in our ſelves to keep clear thereof, we do moſt humbly ask the All-ſufficient Grace of God in Chriſt, that neither theſe, nor any ſuch Iniquities may have Dominion over us; but that we watch againſt them all, both in our ſelves, and in one another.

§ 6. Many and various are the Deliberations continued by good Men, unto this Day, concerning the Methods of preventing our Apoſtaſies. But I ſhall ſuperſede the mention of them all, with a Copy of certain Expedients, and Propoſals about Reformation lately agreed by an Aſſembly of Miniſters at Cambridge.

I. There is a large number of People in this Country, which not lying within the reach of our Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline, do from thence encourage themſelves in the Liberty, which they take to do the things, for which the Wrath of God comes upon the Land. It would very much promote the Deſign of Reformation among us, if all due means were uſed, for the bringing of more than there are, and as many as may be, to ſubmit unto the Church-watch; 'twere highly deſirable that the Body of this profeſſing People ſhould thus be brought into the way of Reformation. It hath been by an happy Experience found, that God has given a ſingular Succeſs unto the Admonitions of our Churches, applied unto ſuch as have by their Miſcarriages thereto expoſed themſelves; many have been thereby ſavingly brought home to God.

II. The Expedients for the Reformation of our Land, offered by the Synod in the Year 1679, ought not to be forgotten; but the Remembrance and Conſideration thereof ſhould be revived.

III. The Concurrence of ſuch as do ſuſtain Place in the Civil Government, is of great importance in the Proſecution of our deſired Reformation: And that we may enjoy this, it muſt be endeavoured, that there ſhould be no miſunderſtanding between any in the Government and the Miniſtry. This being obſerved, a general Conſultation upon the Methods of Reformation is to be asked for.

IV. For the Paſtors of our Churches in viſiting of their Flocks, to inform themſelves, about the Morals of their People in every Quarter, and thereupon both publickly and privately, ſet themſelves to Cure what ſhall be found amiſs, would ſignifie very much in a Glorious Reformation.

V. Particular Churches have a Power of Self-Reformation; and they would contribute more than a little to an univerſal one, if they would be Exemplary unto one another in Deliberations upon their own Circumſtances, and in renewing, explaining and enforcing of their Covenants.

VI. It would be well, if the Miniſters in this (as well as any other) Aſſociation, would ſingle out the more obſervable Iniquities in the Country, and ſucceſſively at fit Seaſons publiſh brief, but full, Teſtimonies againſt thoſe Iniquities. A manifold Advantage might accrue to the Attempts of Reformation by thoſe Teſtimonies.

VII. Solemn Days of Prayer with Faſting celebrated in our Churches, to implore the Grace of God for the riſing Generation, would probably be of bleſſed Conſequence, for the turning of our young People unto the God of our Fathers. The more there is this way aſcribed unto Grace, the more is the Grace of God like to be communicated; and there is in this way a natural and plentiful Tendency to awaken our unconverted Youth unto a Senſe of their everlaſting Intereſts. Which, were it generally accompliſhed, a marvellous Reformation were therein effected.

The SIXTH BOOK.

REMARKABLES OF THE Divine Providence Among the People of NEW-ENGLAND.

§. 1. TO Regard the illuſtrious Diſplays of that PROVIDENCE, wherewith our Lord CHRIST governs the World, is a Work, than which there is none more Needful, or Uſeful, for a Chriſtian: To Record them is a Work, than which, none more proper for a Miniſter: And perhaps the Great Governour of the World will ordinarily do the moſt Notable Things for thoſe who are moſt ready to take a wiſe Notice of what He does. Unaccountable therefore and inexcuſable, is the Sleepineſs, even upon the moſt of Good Men throughout the World, which indiſpoſes them to obſerve, and much more to preſerve the Remarkable Diſpenſations of Divine Providence, towards themſelves or others. Nevertheleſs there have been raiſed up now and then thoſe Perſons who have rendred themſelves worthy of Everlaſting Remembrance, by their Wakeful Zeal to have the Memorable Providences of God remembred through all Generations. Among thoſe Worthy Men, a moſt Embalmed Memory is particulary due unto the Reverend MATTHEW POOL, who about the Year 1658, ſet a-foot a Glorious Deſign among ſome Divines of no little Figure throughout England and Ireland, for the faithful Regiſtring of Remarkable Providences. But alas, it came to nothing that was Remarkable. The like Holy Deſign was, by the Reverend INCREASE MATHER, propoſed among the Divines of New England, in the Year 1681, at a General Meeting of them; who thereupon deſired him to begin, and publiſh an Eſſay; which he did in a little while; but therewithal declared, That he did it only as a Specimen of a larger Volume, in hopes that this Work being ſo ſet on foot, Poſterity would go on with it.

§. 2. But as the National Synods in France could not, by their frequent Admonitions unto the Churches to procure a good Regiſter of Remarkable Providences, effectually rouze their Good Men out of their Stupidity: So the Paſtors in the Churches of New-England have moſtly been too much under the Power of a like Indiſpoſition, to Regard the Works of the Lord, and the Operation of his Hands. That this Indiſpoſition might, if it were poſſible, be ſhaken off, there were Propoſals again made and ſent thro' the Country: Whereof I will here annex the Copy; and yet I muſt complain of it, that unto this Hour there have not half Ten Conſiderable Hiſtories been tranſmitted unto us in anſwer unto theſe Propoſals.

Certain Propoſals made by the President and Fellows of Harvard College, to the Reverend Miniſters of the Goſpel in the ſeveral Churches of New-England.

I.

‘TO Obſerve and Record the more Illuſtri-
‘ous Diſcoveries of the Divine Providence,
‘in the Government of the World, is a Deſign ſo
‘Holy, ſo Uſeful, ſo Juſtly approved, that the ‘too general Neglect of it in the Churches of ‘God, is as Juſtly to be lamented.

II.

‘For the Redreſs of that Neglect, although all
‘Chriſtians have a Duty incumbent on them, yet
‘it is in a peculiar manner to be recommended ‘unto the Miniſters of the Goſpel, to improve the ‘ſpecial Advantages which are in their Hands,
‘to Obtain and Preſerve the Knowledge of ſuch
‘notable Occurrents, as are ſought out by all
‘that have Pleaſure in the Great Works of the

III.

‘The Things to be eſteemed Memorable, are ‘eſpecially all Unuſual Accidents, in the Heaven

‘or Earth, or Water: All wonderful Deliverances of the Diſtreſſed: Mercies to the Godly: Judgments on the Wicked; and more Glorious Fulfilments of either the Promiſes or the Threatnings, in the Scriptures of Truth; with Apparitions, Poſſeſſions, Inchantments, and all Extraordinary Things wherein the Exiſtence and Agency of the Inviſible World, is more ſenſibly demonſtrated.

IV.

‘It is therefore propoſed, That the Miniſters throughout this Land would manifeſt their Pious Regards unto the Works of the Lord, and the Operation of his Hands, by reviving their Cares to take Written Accounts of ſuch Remarkables; but ſtill well atteſted with Credible and Sufficient Witneſſes.

V.

‘It is deſired, that the Accounts thus taken of theſe Remarkables, may be ſent in, unto the PRESIDENT, or the FELLOWS of the College; by whom they ſhall be carefully reſerved for ſuch an Uſe to be made of them, as may by ſome fit Aſſembly of Miniſters, be judged moſt conducing to the Glory of GOD, and the Service of his People.

VI.

‘Tho’ we doubt not, that, Love to the Name of GOD, will be motive enough unto all Good Men, to contribute what Aſſiſtance they can, unto this Undertaking; yet for further Encouragement, ſome Singular Marks of Reſpect, ſhall be ſtudied for ſuch Good Men as will actually aſſiſt it by taking Pains to communicate any important Paſſages proper to be inſerted in this Collection.

§. 3. Tho’ we have been too ſlack in doing what hath been deſired and directed in theſe Propoſals; yet our Church Hiſtory is become able to entertain the World with a Collection of Remarkable Providences that have occurr’d among the Inhabitants of New-England. Beſides a conſiderable Number of Memorables, which lie ſcatter’d here and there in every part of our Church-Hiſtory, there is a Number of them enough to make an intire Book by themſelves; whereof having received ſufficient Atteſtations, I ſhall now invite the Reader to conſider them.

A certain Critick ſo admired thoſe Verſes of the Poet Claudian,

> Sæpe mihi dubiam traxit ſententia Mentem,
> Curarent ſuperi terras, an ullus ineſſet
> Rector, an incerto fluerent mortalia curſu, that he ſaid, whoever would be a Poet, muſt perfectly ſettle them in his Memory. This Critick might perhaps be ſomething of a Deiſt. But, Reader, if any Doubts like theſe of Claudian’s, about the Exiſtence and Providence of God begin to poiſon thy Soul, there are ſix or ſeven Chapters of Hiſtory now before thee, that may be thy Antidote.

It is obſerv’d that the Name מזל, (or Fortune) is not once uſed in all the Works of Homer. We will now write a Book of rare Occurrences, wherein a blind Fortune ſhall not be once acknowledged. Auſtin in his Retractations complains of himſelf, that he had uſed the Word Fortune too much; but the Uſe of it ſhall be confuted as well as avoided, in the Book now before us, wherein all the Rare Occurrences will be the evident Operations of the Almighty God, whoſe Kingdom ruleth over all.

Chriſtus ſuper Aquas: Relating wonderful Sea-Deliverances.

Vela damus, vaſtumque cavâ trabe currimus æquor.

THey that go down to the Sea in Ships, theſe do ſee the Works of the Lord, and his Wonders in the Deep. And what if our Collection of Remarkable Providences do begin with a Relation of the Wonderful Works which have been done for them that go down to the Sea in Ships, by that Great Lord whoſe is the Sea, for he made it? I will carry my Reader abroad upon the huge Atlantic, and without ſo much as the Danger of being made Sea-ſick, he ſhall ſee Wonders in the Deep.

I. A Pious Anchorite.

Let Mandelſloe tell of his poor Fleming, who lived an Inſulary Anchorite upon a deſolate Iſland many Months together; I have a Story that ſhall in moſt things Equal it, and in ſome Exceed it.

On Aug. 25. 1676. Mr. Ephraim How with his two Sons, did ſet Sail from New-Haven for Boſton, in a ſmall Ketch of about ſeventeen Tun; and returning from Boſton for New-Haven, Sept. 10. contrary Winds detain'd him for ſome time, and then Ilneſs and Sickneſs till a Month expired. He then renewed his Voyage as far as Cape-Cod; but ſuddenly the Weather became ſo tempeſtuous, that it forced them off to Sea, where the outragious Winds and Seas did often almoſt overwhelm them; and here in about eleven Days his Elder Son died, and in a few Days more his Younger. It is noted in 1 Chron. 7. 22. that when the Sons of Ephraim were dead, Ephraim their Father mourned many days, and his Brethren came to comfort him. This our mourning Ephraim could not have any Comfort from his Friends on ſhoar, when his Two Sons were thus dead; but they died after ſo Holy and Hopeful a manner, that their Father was not without his Conſolations. However, their Straits and Fears were now increaſed, as their Hands were diminiſhed; and another of the Company ſoon after died like the former. Half the Company was now gone; and Mr. How, tho' in a very weak State of Health, now ſtands at the Helm twenty four Hours, and thirty ſix Hours at a time, with the Rude Waves flying over the Veſſel at ſuch a rate, that if he had not been laſh'd faſt, he muſt have been waſh'd over-board. In this Extremity he was at a loſs whether he ſhould perſiſt in ſtriving for the New England Shore, or bear away to the Southern Iſlands; and propoſing the Matter to one Mr. Augur (who, with a Boy, was all that were left for his Help,) they firſt ſought unto God by earneſt Prayer in this difficult Caſe, and then determined the Difficulty by caſting a Lot. The Lot fell for New-England, and 'ere a Month was expired, they loſt the Rudder of their Veſſel, with which they loſt all Hope of being ſaved. In this deplorable Condition they continued a Fortnight: And thus for ſix Weeks together, Mr. Howe, tho' labouring under much Infirmity, was hardly ever dry: Nor had they in all this while the Benefit of warm Food, more than thrice, or thereabouts. When the ſeventh Week dawned upon them, the Veſſel was driven on the Tailings of a Ledge of Rocks, where the Sea broke with no little Violence; and looking out, they ſpied a diſmal doleful Rocky Iſland unto the Lee-ward; upon which, if the Providence of God had not by the Breakers given 'em timely Notice, they had been daſh'd in pieces. This Extremity was Heavens Opportunity! They immediately let go an Anchor, and got out the Boat, and God made that Storm a Calm; ſo that the Waves were ſtill. Being under the Aſtoniſhments of the Circumſtances now upon them, they took little out of the Veſſel; but when they came a ſhoar, they found themſelves on a deſolate Iſland (near Cape Sables) which had not either Man or Beaſt upon it; and a Proſpect of being thereſore ſtarved quickly to death, now ſtared upon them. While they were under this deadly Proſpect, a Storm aroſe that ſtaved their Veſſel to pieces, from whence a Cask of Powder was brought a-ſhoar, a Barrel of Wine, and half a Barrel of Moloſſa's, together with ſeveral other Things which aſſiſted them in making a ſort of a Tent, for their Preſervation from the terrible Cold. However, new and ſore Diſtreſſes now attended them: for tho' they had Powder, with other Neceſſaries for Fowling, there were ſeldom any Fowls to be ſeen upon this forlorn Iſland, except a few Gulls, Crows and Ravens; and theſe were ſo few, that there could be rarely more than One ſhot at a time. Oftentimes half a one of theſe Fowls, with the Liquor, made a Meal for Three: Once they lived five Days without any Suſtenance at all; during all which Space, they did not feel themſelves pinch'd with Hunger as at other times, which they eſteemed a ſpecial Favour of Heaven unto them. When they had been twelve Weeks in this loneſome Condition, Mr. Howe's dear Friend Mr. Augur, died; and the Lad alſo died in the April following: So that his Loneſomeneſs was now become as much as any Hermit could have wiſhed for. For a long and a ſad Quarter of a Year together now, he ſaw Fiſhing Veſſels ever now and then ſailing by; but tho' he uſed all poſſible Means to acquaint them with his Diſtreſſes, either they ſaw him not, or they feared leſt ſome of the Indians then in Hoſtility againſt the Engliſh, might be quartered there.

The good Man, while thus deſerted, kept many Days in Prayer, with Faſting, wherein he confeſſed and bewailed the many Sins which had rendred him worthy of theſe Calamities, and cried unto God for his Deliverance. But at laſt it came into his Mind, that he ought very ſolemnly to give Thanks unto God for the marvellous Preſervations which he had hitherto experienc'd; and accordingly he ſet a-part a Day for ſolemn Thankſgiving unto God his gracious Preſerver, for the Divine Favours which had been intermixed with all his Troubles. IMMEDIATELY after this, a Veſſel belonging to Salem, did paſs by that Iſland; and ſeeing this poor Servant of God there, they took him in. So he arriv'd at Salem July 18. 1677. and returned unto his Family at Newhaven.

II. A Man ſtrangely preſerv'd on the Keel of a Boat at Sea.

A Ship's Long-boat having Five Men in her, was by a violent Guſt of Wind over-ſet. The Men all got upon the Keel, upon which being driven to Sea, they were four Days floating there. In this time three of them drop'd off, and periſhed in the Deep: On the Fifth Day the Fourth Man being ſorely pain'd with Hunger, and ſadly bruiſed with the boiſterous and furious Waves, wilfully fell off into the Sea, and was drown'd after the reſt of his Companions. Quickly after this the Wind coming up at South Eaſt, carried the Boat with the Fifth Man into Long-Iſland, where being ſcarce able to creep a ſhoar, the Indians found him, cheriſh'd him, and preſerv'd him. With Faſting, and Watching and Cold, he muſt, according to Reaſon in this time have periſhed; but he conſtantly affirmed, That he ſaw certain Perſons come and put Meat into his Mouth when he was ready to periſh for want of Suſtenance.

III. The Wonderful Story of Major Gibbons.

Among Remarkable Sea-Deliverances, no leſs than three ſeveral Writers have publiſh'd that, wherein Major Edward Gibbons of Boſton in New England, was concern'd. A Veſſel bound from Boſton to ſome other Parts of America, was thro' the Continuance of contrary Winds, kept ſo long at Sea, that the People aboard, were in extream Straits for want of Proviſion; and ſeeing that nothing here below could afford them any Relief, they look'd upwards unto Heaven in humble and fervent Supplications. The Winds continuing ſtill as they were, one of the Company made a ſorrowful Motion, that they ſhould by a Lot ſingle out One to die, and by Death to ſatisfie the Ravenous Hunger of the reſt. After many a doleful and fearful Debate upon this Motion, they come to a Reſult, that it muſt be done! The Lot is caſt; one of the Company is taken; but where is the Executioner that ſhall do the terrible Office upon a poor Innocent? It is a Death now to think who ſhall act this bloody Part in the Tragedy: But before they fall upon this involuntary and unnatural Execution, they once more went unto their zealous Prayers; and behold, while they were calling upon God, he anſwer'd them: For there leap'd a mighty Fiſh into their Boat, which, to their double Joy, not only quieted their Outragious Hunger, but alſo gave them ſome Token of a further Deliverance. However, the Fiſh is quickly eaten; the horrible Famine returns, the horrible Diſtreſs is renew'd; a black Deſpair again ſeizes their Spirits: For another Morſel they come to a ſecond Lot, which fell upon another Perſon; but ſtill they cannot find an Executioner: They once again fall to their importunate Prayers; and behold, a ſecond Anſwer from above! A great Bird lights and fixes it ſelf upon the Maſt: One of the Men ſpies it; and there it ſtands until he took it by the Wing with his Hand. This was a ſecond Life from the Dead. This Fowl with the Omen of a further Deliverance in it, was a ſweet Feaſt unto them. Still their Diſappointments follow them; they can ſee no Land, they know not where they are: Irreſiſtible Hunger once more pinches them; they have no Hope to be ſaved, but by a Third Miracle: they return to another Lot; but before they go to the Heart-breaking Task of ſlaying the Perſon under Deſignation, they repeat their Addreſſes unto the God of Heaven, their former Friend in Adverſity. And now they look, and look again, but there is nothing: Their Devotions are concluded, and nothing appears: Yet they hoped, yet they ſtayed, yet they lingred. At laſt one of 'em ſpies a Ship, which put a new Hope and Life into 'em all. They bear up with their Ship, they Man their Long-Boat, they beg to board the Veſſel, and are admitted. It proves a French Pirate. Major Gibbons petitions for a little Bread, and offers all for it; but the Commander was one who had formerly receiv'd conſiderable Kindneſſes of Major Gibbons at Boſton, and now replied chearfully, Major Gibbons, Not an Hair of You or your Company ſhall periſh, if it lies in my Power to preſerve you. Accordingly he ſupplied their Neceſſities, and they made a comfortable End of their Voyage.

IV. Twelve Men living Five Weeks for Five hundred Leagues in a little Boat.

A ſmall Veſſel, whoſe Maſter's Name was Philip Hungare, coming upon the Coaſt of New England, ſuddenly ſprang a Leak and founder'd. Eighteen Perſons were in the Veſſel, whereof Twelve got into the Long-Boat, into which they threw ſome little matter of Proviſion; but of that neceſſary thing Fire, they were wholly unprovided. Theſe twelve Men went five hundred Leagues in this poor Long-Boat, and were therein miraculouſly preſerved five Weeks together; for the God of Heaven ſent them a ſtrange Relief, by cauſing ſome flying Fiſh to fly and fall among them, which being eaten raw, were a pleaſant Food unto them: and once, when they muſt otherwiſe have periſh'd for Thirſt, they caught a Shark, whoſe Blood being ſuck'd by them, was as Cool Waters to their thirſty Souls; but that which was more ſo, was their ſafe Arrival then at the Weſt Indies.

V. Some Shipwrack'd Folks happily reſcued.

Mr. John Grafton being bound from New-England for the Weſt-Indies in a Ketch call'd the Providence, the Veſſel ſuddenly ſtruck upon a Rock, in a dark, rainy, ſtormy Night; and the Force of the Wind and the Sea broke the Veſſel immediately to Pieces. Six of the Ten Men, whereof the Company did conſiſt, were drown'd; but the Maſter and the Mate were left upon the Rock, where the Sea came up unto their Waſte, and there they embrac'd each other, looking for Death every Moment; which, if the Sea had riſen higher, muſt have been unavoidable. By the Rock was one of the Seamen grievouſly wounded, and groaning: But in the Morning they ſaw an Iſland about half a mile from them. The Rocks were ſo cragged, that theſe Perſons, who were bare-footed, were not able to tread thereupon; but they found a Piece of Tarpoling which they wrapp'd and faſtned about their Feet with Rope-Yarns; and ſo getting each of them a Stick, they ſometimes walk'd, and ſome times they crept, until at laſt they came unto the Iſland, where they found another of their Crew, carried a ſhore by a piece of the Veſſel. Eight Days they continu'd on the Iſland, and Four of them without any Fire. Salt-Fiſh was their Food, and Rain-Water found in the Holes of the Rocks their Drink. They then found a piece of Touchwood which had been in the Mate's Cheſt; and a Flint, with a Knife, being in like manner brought 'em, they ſtruck Fire; and a Barrel of their Flower being alſo caſt aſhore, they made Cakes thereof. But there muſt be no long Stay made upon this deſolate Iſland. Wherefore finding a piece of the Main-Sail, and ſome Hoops of a Cask, and a Fragment of a Board, with ſome Nails, and a Box wherein was a Bolt-rope Needle and a Tarr-Barrel, with which they Tarr'd their Canvas. Out of theſe wretched Materials they patch'd up a pitiful, unlikely, dangerous Tool, which they call'd a Boat; and meeting with ſome thin Boards which came out of the Cabin, of theſe they made their Paddles. In this odd Vehicle they made a Voyage of ten Leagues, even until they came to Anguilla, where the People entertain'd them with Courteſie and Wonderment.

VI. Sore Calamities at Sea ſurvived.

A ſmall Veſſel ſet ſail from Briſtol to New-England, Sept. 22. 1681. with the Maſter, whoſe Name was William Dutten; there were ſeven Men a board, having Proviſions for three Months; but by contrary Winds, they were twenty Weeks before they could make any Land; and by other Diſaſters and Diſtreſſes, it was rendred very unlikely that ever they ſhould make any Land at all. The fierce Winds upon the Coaſts of New-England, made them conclude on Dec. 12. that they would bear away for Barbadoes; but before this they loſt One Barrel of their Beer, by the Head being broken out; and having but ſeven Barrels of Water, three of them leak'd away. When their Victuals fail'd them, the merciful God whoſe is the Sea, for he made it, ſent them a Supply, by cauſing Dolphins ever now and then to come ſo near their Veſſel as to be catch'd; yet it was obſervable, that they could never catch any, but in an extream Neceſſity; nor any more than would ſerve their preſent Neceſſity. But their Miſery, thro' the Want of Water, was very ſore upon them: For tho' they tried much to take the Rain Water, when any fell, the Winds were uſually ſo furious, that they could ſave little, if any of it. However, when they came near the Latitude of Bermudaz, they did, unto their great Joy, ſave two Barrels of Rain Water; but then, the Rats unexpectedly eating Holes in the Barrels, all that Water was loſt again. Once when a Shower of Rain fell, they ſav'd a Pint; which, tho' it were made very bitter by the Tar, yet it was a ſweet Water unto their Thirſty Souls; and they divided it among ſeven, drinking a Thimble-full at a time, which went five times about. On Jan. 27. a good Shower of Rain fell; and that they might preſerve it, they laid their Linnens open to the Rain; and wringing them dry, they obtain'd ſeven Gallons of Water, which being Bottl'd up, was a great and a long Refreſhment unto them. New Straits then came upon them. They catch'd, with much ado, three or four of the Rats, that had cheated them of their Drink, and made of 'em a Meat, which to their famiſh'd Souls did ſeem very delicate. But the Torment of their Drought grew inſupportable; for ſometimes they had not a Drop of any freſh Water for a whole Week together. When they killed a Dolphin, they would ſuck his Blood for the Relief of their Thirſt, yea, their Thirſt cauſed them to drink large Quantities of Salt Water, which yet they found allay'd it not. They would go over board with a Rope faſtned about them, that by drenching themſelves a while in the Sea, they might eaſe the internal Heat which parched them; and when they ſtood any of them to ſteer the Veſſel, they would have their Feet in a Pail of Sea Water to refrigerate 'em. In this Calamity ſome of the Seamen penitently confeſſed, how juſt it was with God thus to puniſh them, who had intemperately abuſed themſelves with Drink, ſo often in their former Converſation. But at length on Febr. 7. they met with a Guinea Man, who ſupplied 'em with Neceſſaries, and ſo they got ſafe in unto Barbados, from whence they afterwards made their Voyage to New-England.

VII. Seaſonable Succours.

A Ship of Dublin, whereof Andrew Bennet was Maſter, being bound from thence unto Virginia, and got as far as the Latitude of 39, about an hundred and fifty Leagues from Cape Cod in New-England (on April 18. 1681.) in a very ſtormy time, ſuddenly there ſprang a Plank in the fore-part of the Ship. Whereupon the Sea broke in ſo faſt, that they could not by all their Endeavours keep the Ship from ſinking above half an Hour. Wherefore, when the Ship was juſt ſink- ing, ſome of the Company reſolved that they would launch out the Boat, which was a very ſmall one; and in this Action the Maſter, the Mate, the Boatſwain, the Cook, two Fore maſt Men and a Boy, kept ſuch hold of it, when a Caſt of the Sea ſuddenly help'd them off with it, that they got into it. The Heaving of the Sea now ſuddenly thruſt them from the Ship, in which there were left Nineteen Perſons, namely, Sixteen Men and Three Women, who all periſh'd in the Deep, while they were trying to make Rafters, by cutting down the Maſts for the Preſervation of their Lives as long as they could. The Seven in the Boat apprehended themſelves to be in a Condition little better than that of them in the Ship; for they had neither Sails, nor Oars, nor Bread, nor Water, nor any ſort of Inſtrument, except a Knife and a Piece of a Deal-Board, with which they made Sticks, and ſet them up in the Sides of the Boat, covering them with ſome of their own Garments to keep off the Spray of the Sea. In this Condition they drove with an hard Wind and an high Sea all this Day, with the Night following: but the next Morning their diſmal Diſtreſs met with an happy Relief; when they ſaw a Ketch (whereof Edmund Henfield of Salem in New-England, was Maſter) under Sail; which Ketch coming right with them, took 'em up, and brought 'em ſafe to New-England. Now none of the leaſt remarkable Circumſtances in this matter, was, that when the Ship founder'd, the Ketch was many Leagues to the Weſtward of her; but a contrary Wind cauſed her to ſtand back again unto the Eaſtward, where theſe poor Men were met and ſaved.

VIII. Diſtreſſed People at Sea, happily meeting, and helping one another.

A Ship whereof William Laiton was Maſter, bound from Piſcataqua in New-England, to Barbadoes, being two hundred and fifty Leagues off the Coaſt, ſprang a Leak; which, notwithſtanding their conſtant plying of the Pump for fourteen Hours together, ſo fill'd the Veſſel with Water, that all the Eight Perſons aboard betook themſelves to their Boat, with a good Supply of Bread for them there to live upon. The Maſter would utter a ſtrange Perſwaſion, that they ſhould meet with a Ship at Sea, whereby they ſhould be reliev'd: But before they did ſo, they had ſo far ſpent their ſmall Supply of Water, that they were come to the Allowance of each Man a Spoonful a Day. In this Boat they continu'd upon the Atlantick Ocean for Nineteen Days together; after Twelve of which they met with a Storm which did much endanger their Lives; but God preſerv'd them. At the End of Eighteen Days a Flying Fiſh fell into their Boat; and having with them an Hook and Line, they made uſe of that Fiſh for Bait, whereby they caught a couple of Dolphins. A Ship then at Sea, whereof Mr. Samuel Scarlet was Commander, apprehending a Storm to be near, they ſuffer'd their Veſſel to drive before the Wind, while they were fitting of the Rigging to entertain that approaching Storm; and by this means they met with a Boat full of their diſtreſs'd Brethren. Captain Scarlet's Veſſel was then deſtitute of Proviſions; only they had Water enough, and to ſpare: For which cauſe the Mariners deſir'd him that he would not go to take the Men in, leſt they ſhould all die by Famine. But the Captain was a Man of too generous a Charity to follow the Selfiſh Propoſals, thus made unto him. He reply'd, It may be, theſe diſtreſs'd Creatures are our own Countrey-men: Or, however, they are diſtreſs'd Creatures. I am reſolved I will take them in; and I'll truſt in God, who is able to deliver us all. Nor was he a Loſer by this Charitable Reſolution; for Captain Scarlet had the Water which Laiton wanted, and Mr. Laiton had the Bread and Fiſh that Scarlet wanted: So they refreſh'd one another, and in a few Days arriv'd ſafe to New-England. But it was remark'd, That the chief of the Mariners who urg'd Captain Scarlet againſt his taking in theſe diſtreſs'd People, did afterwards in his Diſtreſs at Sea, periſh without any to take him in. In another Voyage he periſh'd at Sea, and was never heard of.

IX. Wonderful Diſtreſſes, and more wonderful Deliverances.

A Number of Mariners, in a ſmall Pink, belonging to Boſton (call'd The Bleſſing) were taken by an Half-Galley of Cruel Spaniards, on April 1. 1683, who put them all immediately into their Hold, except the Maſter and Mate, the latter of which they tormented by twiſting a Piece of Sea-Net about his Head, until his Eyes were ready to ſtart out: And then hanging him up by the two Thumbs to make him confeſs what Money they had aboard; but when they ſaw he would confeſs nothing, they made faſt a Rope about his Neck, and ask'd their Commander whether they ſhould hoiſe him up or not: They conſulted alſo whether they ſhould not hang all the Men; but not agreeing on that Point, they concluded on ſomewhat no leſs truculent and barbarous. They kept one of the Men on board, on whom they afterwards exercis'd bloody Cruelties; and the other Six belonging to the Veſſel, they thus diſpoſed of. They carry'd the poor Men among the Mangrove Trees, that grew upon an adjacent Iſland; and ſtripping them ſtark-naked, they caus'd each of 'em to turn their Backs unto the Branch of a Tree, and ſpread their Arms abroad; in which Poſture they bound the Arms of each Man to the Branches two by two, about a quarter of a Miles diſtance between the ſeveral Couples, thus leaving them to periſh without any Pity. They ſtood up to the mid-Leg in Water, their Feet contiguous, and their Faces turn'd ſo, that they might behold each others Miſeries. But about three Hours after, one of theſe Men eſpy'd a Stick with a Crook at one End, not far from him; whereupon he ſaid unto his Companion, If it pleaſe God that we might get that Stick into our Hands, it might be a Means to work our Deliverance, and thereupon trying to bring the Stick towards them with their Feet, in a little time they happily effected it, and ſo bore it up with their Feet, that at laſt the Man got hold of it with his Hand; and herewith by degrees they looſ'd the Knot that was upon the Bowing of their Arms; and ſhifting it into their Fingers, did by little and little get ſo far in looſing it, that they quite undid it, ſetting themſelves at liberty. Now returning their Thanks to the God of Heaven for helping them thus far, they haſtned unto the Help of their deſpairing Friends. But their next Care was how to keep themſelves out of the Sight of thoſe barbarous Wretches, from whom they had receiv'd this Uſage: Yet they had not gone above a Mile, before they ſpy'd ſome of 'em got upon an high Tree to diſcover Ships that paſs'd that way. Upon this they were ſo affrighted, that they ran among the Thickets and loſt one another, and met not again till the Third Night after; in all which time they found no Water, but lick'd the Dew from the Leaves of the Plants thereabout: At which Buſineſs, while they were imploy'd, an Alligator ſuddenly got the Arm of the Maſter into his Mouth; but he with the reſt, crying out, the Alligator let go his Hold, therewithal tearing away a great piece of the Fleſh. After this, they got upon an High Tree, and ſate there till it was Day; but within a Day or two they kill'd a wild Coney, which they flay'd with the Help of a ſharp Stone; and applying the Inſide of it unto the Maſter's Arm, they eat the Fleſh raw with no little Satisfaction. The Night following they got upon an High Rock, thinking there to be ſecure from the Alligators; yet even there, one of thoſe terrible Creatures came upon 'em, and hall'd one of the Men off the Rock; at which they all crying out, the Monſter let go his Hold, and the Man was recover'd. However, this made 'em retire into the Trees for Safety. Their Drink all this while was the Rain Water, found in Holes among the Rocks. At length alſo they raiſ'd a little Wall Two Yards high, to keep off the numerous Alligators: And Whilks and Crabs were their beſt Food, whilſt they had much ado to preſerve Themſelves from being Food to thoſe Devourers. But anon they found a Well with a Barrel in it, where they reſolv'd they would wait for Help or Death. On Apr. 13. the Mate (namely Charles Cretchet) with two more (namely Robert Pierce and Peter Clement) of theſe diſtreſs'd People, made a Raft with ſuch Wood as they found on the Iſland, and put to Sea. The Maſter (whoſe Name was David Eaſt) with two more (whoſe Names were John Bath and Peter Rowland) being left behind, were extreamly hungry and feeble, and had not the leaſt Garment to cover them from the Sun, while they were at the ſame time ſo grievouſly infeſted with Moſcheto's, that they could not go to the Rocks for Whilks, but muſt content themſelves with gnawing ſuch dry Bones of Turtles as had been half a Year lying there. In this Extremity Heaven ſent them ſome Supply; for they found a dead Eel, which they ſuppos'd had been dropt by an Hern: This they took, they ſkinn'd, they divided, and it ſeem'd an incomparable Feaſt unto them. On Apr. 19. the Maſter and the Two left with him, follow'd the Example of the Mate, and his Two, in making a Raft for a Voyage to Sea: But as they were going to put off, they eſpy'd a couple of Sails; upon which they betook themſelves unto the Water, that they might get unto theſe Veſſels, which at length took them up. Theſe two Veſſels were a couple of Canoo's, having three Men apiece, who kept 'em thirty two Days, and then carry'd 'em into Havana; where the Governour, notwithſtanding they fairly related unhim their Circumſtances, kept 'em in Priſon Eighteen Days, without allowing 'em any Food. So that if they had not receiv'd ſome Suſtenance from a few poor Engliſh Priſoners who had been there before 'em, they had been perfectly ſtarved. At laſt they underſtood that their Ship was in that Harbour, and the Perſons who took her: Whereupon they petition'd the Governour that they might have their Ship again; inaſmuch as they could make no legal Prize of her; for ſhe had no Spaniſh Goods aboard. Their Petition was granted; and their Ship (tho' empty'd of every thing but her Ballaſt) was reſtor'd unto 'em: Nor could they by a new Petition obtain any thing but her Sails, and ſome ſmall part of her Lading that had not been diſpos'd of.

On June 10. the Hunters having taken up Robert Pierce and Peter Clement, and brought 'em into Havana, the Governour examin'd 'em what was become of their Mates; and they told him, That they were five Days at Sea upon the Raft, and had only two Crabs all this while to ſubſiſt upon; and then by the Wind they were driven upon the ſame Iſland which they had left, where they wander'd up and down for a Month together; and in their Travels loſt their Mate, who was, thro' Weakneſs unable to travel. Hereupon the Governour ſent 'em aboard alſo; and the Night before they ſail'd, the Hunters informed the Governour, That they had likewiſe taken up the Mate alive. But the Governour hurry'd 'em away in ſuch haſte, that they could not know the Certainty thereof; and ſo they proſecuted their Voyage for Boſton, whither they came, well nigh ſtarv'd with Cold, not having any more Clothes than a Canvas Frock for each Man, which the Turtlers had beſtow'd upon them.

X. A Notable Story of one ſav'd from the Hands of the Turks.

A Decad of Remarkable Sea Deliverances may be ſufficient for the preſent Entertainment.

One of my honeſt Neighbours, whoſe Name is Chriſtopher Monk, brought me this Account of what had befallen himſelf.

'In a Ship of Bermudas, call'd The John's Adventure, whereof I was Maſter, July 28. 1681. we departed from Torbay in the Weſt of England. Eight Days after this we ſaw a Ship about 8^{h}. A.M. that gave us Chaſe: And tho' we made what Sail we could to run from it, by 2^{h} P. M. it came up with us. It prov'd to be 'the Half Moon of Algier, who ſent their Lanch on board of us, and carry'd us all on board the Turks Ship, except One, whom they left, to help 'em in ſailing of ours. The Captain having examin'd us of divers things, and robb'd us of what Silver or Gold we had about us, ſent us forward among the other Chriſtians, that were there before us, who entertain'd us with ſorrowful Lamentations.

'I have ſince reflected on it, that tho' formerly I us'd Morning and Evening Prayers with my Company; yet in the time of our Chaſe, my Fears and Cares made me have no Heart for the Duty. But our Application of our ſelves unto Outward Reliefs and Second Cauſes, prov'd all in vain.

'However now, being in Turkiſh and cruel Hands, I thought it fit to pray with them that were formerly of my Family, that is to ſay, my Company; and I was enabl'd to do it in the Preſence of my Enemies, without receiving Diſturbance from 'em. I incourag'd my ſelf in the Lord my God, when I heard 'em rejoicing with Shouts at the Prey taken by them.

'One of the Moors took away my Bible, which I thought was a ſore Judgment on me, becauſe of my neglecting to read it while I had it. But, thro' the Mercy of God, I had ſoon after an old Bible, which the Turks reckon'd of little value, given to me. This was my ſweeteſt Companion and my greateſt Conſolation in my Diſtreſs. I alſo met with Two other Books, one entitul'd The Godly Man's Ark, the other The Hiſtory of the Sufferings of Jeſus Chriſt; which were very beneficial to me. From the Sufferings of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, I was incourag'd to ſubmit my Will unto the Will of God in all things; knowing that Jeſus Chriſt had ſuffer'd more than I was able to undergo, and had ſweeten'd all to thoſe who are His. I was likewiſe made willing to undergo Slavery from thoſe Conſiderations in Lam. 3.22,39. It is of the Lord's Mercies that we are not conſum'd: Wherefore doth a Living Man complain, a Man for the Puniſhment of his Sin? being convinc'd that my Sins had deſerv'd far more than could be inflicted upon me in this Life. I thought with my ſelf, that if I met with a good Maſter, my Life would be the more comfortable; but that, if I met with a Bad Maſter, the Time which I had here to live, was but ſhort, compar'd with Eternity: And if I could but ſecure my Eternal Happineſs, it would make amends for all; and why could not I endure Slavery as well as the Negroes in my own Nation? I uſually read thoſe Places, which at my opening of the Bible firſt offer'd themſelves unto me; and often they would happen to be exceedingly pertinent unto my preſent Condition; eſpecially many Paſſages in the 37th Pſalm very much affected me. Once coming upon the Deck in the Morning, and finding moſt of all the Turks and Moors aſleep, I thought, that if I had been Owner of a ſharp Knife, I could have cut the Throats of a great many, without making any Noiſe, and withal, communicated the Notion to ſome of the Engliſh aboard, how eaſily we might conquer our Adverſaries, and maſter the Ship. Some conſented, and preſcrib'd a Way; but one more fearful than the reſt, bid me have a care what I ſaid; for ſome among us, he affirmed, would willingly betray our Deſign, unto the loſs of our own Lives. Hereupon I ſpoke no more of it, but went down between Decks to adviſe with my Bible; and this was the Scripture which then occurr'd unto me: Ceaſe from Anger, and forſake Wrath; fret not thy ſelf in any wiſe to do Evil; for Evil-doers ſhall be cut off; but they that wait on the Lord, ſhall inherit the Earth; for yet a little while, and the wicked ſhall not be. Upon this I wholly deſiſted from my evil Intent; and reſolving to take the Advice of the Pſalm, I alſo apply'd unto my ſelf that Scripture in Lam. 3. 26. It is good that a Man ſhould both hope and quietly wait for the Salvation of the Lord. And that in Iſa. 49. 24,25. and that in Iſa. 53. 3, 4.

'One Morning as I ſlept upon ſome old Sails between Decks, I dream'd, That I was upon an Hill, where was a little ſort of a Log-houſe, like ſome Houſes that I have ſeen in Virginia; That ſome who were with me had young Eagles in their Hands, bruiſing and ſqueezing 'em in their Hands till they made 'em cry; That there appear'd at length Two great White Eagles upon the Top of another Hill coming towards us, at the Cry of the Young Ones, to releaſe 'em: That for fear, leſt the Old Eagles might kill us, I with ſeveral others, were put into the little Houſe to ſecure us: And, that hereupon the Young Ones were ſet at liberty; and ſomebody ſaid unto me, For the Crying of the Poor, for the Sighing of the Needy, now will I ariſe, ſaith the Lord; and I will ſet him at liberty from him that puffeth at him. I thought alſo that I heard ſomebody cry out, A Sail, a Sail! And I thought my ſelf upon the Upper Deck: imagining that there I ſaw a Ship or Two. With this, I awoke, and went upon the Deck; but ſeeing no other Ship, I conſider'd a little upon my Dream, telling it unto my Mate, and adding That I expected a ſpeedy Redemption.

'I continu'd thus with the Turks until the 9th of September; all which time they never offer'd me any Abuſe, tho' they did beat other Chriſtians very much. On that Day, about 8 in the Morning, a Chriſtian at the Fore-top-maſt Head, ſaw Three Ships; one of which was a Frenchman, which had been in our Company the Night before; and now told the other two Ships that they had ſeen a Turk the preceding Evening. The two Ships were two ſmall Engliſh Frigats, the James-Galley, and the Seaface. The Seaface having a Man at the Top-maſt-head, eſpy'd us, and made Sail towards us, and ſo did the James-Galley. We lay ſtill until I ſaw their Sails above the Water, like my two White Eagles, as white as Snow, thro' the Sun ſhining on them. The Turks made Sail to run from 'em; yet at Night the James Galley came up with us; whereupon I, with the reſt of the Chriſtians, was chain'd down in the Hold.

‘ After a little Diſcourſe, they fired on our Turks ‘ a Volley of Small Shot, and a Broad-ſide. The ‘ Sea Face ſeeing that, boarded us: but in leſs ‘ than an Hours time ſhe loſt her Fore-maſt, and ‘ Boltſprit, and Head, and about five and twenty ‘ Men, and fell a-ſtern. Yet the other, which ‘ was leſs than ſhe, ſhot all her Maſt away by 2 ‘ in the Morning; and when it was Day, the ‘ Turks yielded their Ship. Then they that were ‘ leading us Captive, were them ſelves carry'd ‘ into Captivity, Sept. 10. 1681.

Chriſtopher Monk.

MANTISSA.

Over and above the Number of Sea Deliverances intended for this Chapter, we will add One more, which is a late and a freſh Inſtance, and atteſted beyond all Contradiction.

On the 16th of October, in this preſent Year 1697. there arriv'd at New Haven a Sloop of about 50 Tuns, whereof Mr. William Trowbridge was Maſter: The Veſſel belong'd unto New-Haven, the Perſons on board were Seven; and 17 long Weeks had they now ſpent, ſince they came from their Port, which was Fayal. By ſo unuſually tedious a Paſſage a Terrible Famine unavoidably came upon them; and for the five laſt Weeks of their Voyage they were ſo deſtitute of all Food, that thro' Faintneſs they would have choſen Death rather than Life. But they were a praying and a pious Company: And when theſe poor Men cry'd unto the Lord, he heard and ſav'd them. God ſent His Dolphins to attend 'em; and of theſe they caught ſtill One every Day, which was enough to ſerve 'em: only on Saturdays they ſtill catch'd a Couple; and on the Lord's Days they could catch none at all. With all poſſible Skill and Care they could not ſupply themſelves with the Fiſh in any other Number or Order; And indeed with an Holy Bluſh at laſt they left off trying to do any thing on the Lord's Days, when they were ſo well ſupply'd on the Saturdays. Thus the Lord kept feeding a Company that put their Truſt in Him, as He did His Iſrael with his Manna: And this they continu'd until the Dolphins came to that Change of Water, where they us'd to leave the Veſſels. Then they ſo ſtrangely ſurrendred themſelves, that the Company took Twenty ſeven of 'em; which not only ſuffic'd them until they came aſhore, but alſo ſome of 'em were brought aſhore dry'd, as a Monument of the Divine Benignity.

CHAP. II. Hoſæa.

Relating Remarkable Salvations experienced by others beſides the Sea-faring.

Pars mihi ſemper erit, ſervari velle ſalutis
Maxima——

THE Good People of New-England may tune their Praiſes to a Conſort, with thoſe of the good Pſalmiſt, He that is our God, is the God of Salvation, and unto God the Lord belong the Iſſues from Death. How many Extraordinary Salvations, have been granted unto particular Perſons, among that good People, a ſmall Volume could not enumerate.

Remarkable Anſwers of Prayer have been receiv'd by the moſt of thoſe who have experimentally known the Meaning of Wreſtlings in Prayer among us. How many Thouſands have upon very notable Experiments been able to ſay, This Poor Man cried, and the Lord heard and ſav'd him! One very ſurprizing Inſtance hath been ſeen ſeveral times in this Land, when infinite Swarms of Caterpillars have devour'd our Fields, and carry'd whole Fields before them: Some very pious and praying Husbandmen in the extream Exigency, when the Devourers have juſt been entring on their Fields, have poured out their fervent Prayers unto the God of Heaven for their Deliverance; immediately hereupon Flocks of Birds have arriv'd that have devoured the Devourers, and preſerv'd thoſe particular Fields, when others have been horribly waſted. Moreover, when any Neighbours have labour'd under deſperate Maladies; or been tempted, or diſtracted, or poſſeſs'd, it hath been a common thing for a Knot of Godly People to meet, and faſt, and pray, and ſee the Afflicted gloriouſly deliver'd. Furthermore, when any Droughts, or Floods have threatned the Ruins of our Harveſts, theſe and thoſe Congregations moſtly concern'd, have pray'd with Faſting on thoſe Occaſions; and God hath wondrouſly deliver'd them, with a Diſtinction from others that have not ſo call'd upon him. The very Pagans in this Wilderneſs have been ſometimes amazed at what they have ſeen of this nature among us, and cried out, That the Engliſhman's God was a Great and a Good God! It may be added, Some of our Churches have once in a conſiderable while kept a Day of Prayer for the Succeſs of the Word of CHRIST, upon the Souls of their Children in riſing Generation among them: And the Succeſs hath been ſuch, that all the Churches in the Land have took notice of it.

Again, Remarkable Reſcues from Death have been receiv'd by ſo many Thouſands among us, that there hath been ſcarce one Devout Family which hath not been able to bring in ſomething unto the Heap of theſe Experiences. Fallen Perſons that have had Carts and Ploughs juſt running over them, the Beaſts which drew them have ſuddenly ſtop'd, unto the Surprize of the Spectators. Perſons on the very Point of mortal Bruiſing or Drowning, have been ſnatch'd out of the Jaws of Deſtruction in Ways that are not accountable: Even Ejaculatory Prayers have had Aſtoniſhing Anſwers. For Inſtance,

An honeſt Carpenter being at work upon an Houſe, when Eight Children were ſitting in a Ring at ſome childiſh Play on the Floor below; he let fall accidentally from an upper Story, a bulky Piece of Timber juſt over theſe little Children. The Good Man, with inexpreſſible Agony, cry'd out, O Lord direct it, and the Lord did ſo direct it, that it fell on End in the Midſt of the little Children, and then canted along on the Floor between two of the Children, without ever touching one of them all. But the Inſtances of ſuch Things would be numberleſs. And if I ſhould with a moſt Religious Veracity, relate what Wounds many Perſons have ſurviv'd, I ſhould puzzle Philoſophy and make her have ſome Recourſe unto Divinity.

One Abigail Eliot had an Iron ſtruck into her Head, which drew out part of her Brains with it: A Silver Plate ſhe afterwards wore on her Skull where the Orifice remain'd as big as an Half Crown. The Brains left in the Child's Head would ſwell and ſwage, according to the Tides; Her Intellectuals were not hurt, by this Diſaſter, and ſhe liv'd to be a Mother of ſeveral Children.

One John Symonds about the Age of Ten Years, had ſome affrighted Oxen with a Plough, running over him; the Share took hold of his Ribs a little below the left Pap, and rent an Hole in his Breaſt, ſo large, that a Man might have put in his four Fingers: His very Heart became viſible; his Lungs would fly out ſundry Inches, as often as the Place was dreſt. In ſeven or eight Weeks he recover'd and became an healthy Man. But an Hiſtory of Rare Cures in this Countrey would fill more Pages than may here be allow'd. Yet let me take the Leave to enquire what ſhall be thought of the Caſe of one Sarah Wilkinſon, who dy'd of a Dropſie. For a long while before her Death ſhe had no Evacuation except only by a frequent and forc'd Vomit of Water in huge Quantities, with which her Diſſolv'd Bowels came up in ſucceſſive Potions of them. When ſhe was open'd, there were no Bowels to be found in her, except her Heart, which was exceeding ſmall, and as it were perboil'd; and her Milt, or Spleen, one End whereof ſtuck to her Back, and the other to her Ribs; as alſo a ſmall part of her Liver or Lungs, corrupted ſo much, that they knew not which of the Two it was, and this no bigger than the Palm of ones Hand. Other Bowels, none could be found: Yet in this Condition ſhe liv'd a long while, and retain'd her Senſes to the laſt.

But we will content our ſelves with annexing to theſe things, a Narrative of a Woman celebrating the wonderful Diſpenſations of Heaven.

A NARRATIVE of Hannah Swarton, containing Wonderful Paſſages, relating to her Captivity and her Deliverance.

I Was taken by the Indians when Caſco Fort was taken (May 1690.) My Husband being ſlain, and four Children taken with me. The Eldeſt of my Sons they kill'd, about two Months after I was taken, and the reſt ſcatter'd from me. I was now left a Widow, and as bereav'd of my Children; though, I had them alive, yet it was very ſeldom that I could ſee 'em, and I had not Liberty to diſcourſe with 'em without danger either of my own Life, or theirs; for our condoling each others Condition, and ſhewing Natural Affection, was ſo diſpleaſing to our Indian Rulers, unto whoſe ſhare we fell, that they would threaten to kill us, if we cry'd each to other, or diſcourſed much together. So that my Condition was like what the Lord threatned the Jews in Ezek. 24. 22, 23. We durſt not Mourn or Weep in the Sight of our Enemies, leſt we loſt our own Lives. For the firſt times, while the Enemy feaſted on our Engliſh Proviſions, I might have had ſome with them; but then I was ſo fill'd with Sorrow and Tears, that I had little Stomach to eat; and when my Stomach was come, our Engliſh Food was ſpent, the Indians wanted themſelves, and we more: ſo that then I was pin'd with Want. We had no Corn or Bread; but ſometimes Groundnuts, Acorns, Purſlain, Hogweed, Weeds, Roots, and ſometimes Dogs Fleſh, but not ſufficient to ſatisfie Hunger with theſe; having but little at a time. We had no Succeſs at hunting; ſave that one Bear was killed, which I had part of; and a very ſmall part of a Turtle I had another time, and once an Indian gave me piece of a Mooſe's Liver, which was a ſweet Morſel to me; and Fiſh if we could catch it. Thus I continued with them, hurry'd up and down the Wilderneſs, from May 20. till the middle of February; carrying continually a great Burden in our Travels; and I muſt go their Pace, or elſe be killed preſently; and yet was pinch'd with Cold for want of Cloathing, being put by them into an Indian Dreſs, with a ſleight Blanket, no Stockins, and but one pair of Indian Shooes, and of their Leather Stockins for the Winter: My Feet were pricked with ſharp Stones and prickly Buſhes ſometimes, and other times pinch'd with Snow, Cold, and Ice, that I travell'd upon, ready to be frozen, and faint for want of Food; ſo that many times I thought I could go no further, but muſt lie down, and if they would kill me, let 'em kill me. Yet then the Lord did ſo renew my Strength, that I went on ſtill further as my Maſter would have me, and held out with them. Though many Engliſh were taken, and I was brought to ſome of 'em at times, while we were about Caſco Bay and Kennebeck River, yet at Norridgawock we were ſeparated, and no Engliſh were in our Company, but one John York and my ſelf, who were both almoſt ſtarv'd for Want; and yet told, that if we could not hold up to travel with them, they would kill us. And accordingly John York growing weak by his Wants, they killed him, and threatned me with the like. One time my Indian Miſtreſs and I, were left alone, while the reſt went to look for Eels; and they left us no Food from Sabbath-day Morning till the next Saturday; ſave that we had a Bladder (of Mooſe I think) which was well fill'd with Maggots, and we boil'd it, and drank the Broth; but the Bladder was ſo tough we we could not eat it. On the Saturday I was ſent by my Miſtreſs to that part of the Iſland moſt likely to ſee ſome Canoo, and there to make Fire and Smoke, to invite ſome Indians if I could ſpie any, to come to relieve us; and I eſpy'd a Canoo, and by Signs invited 'em to come to ſhore. It prov'd to be ſome Squaws; who underſtanding our Wants, one of 'em gave me a roaſted Eel; which I eat, and it ſeem'd unto me the moſt ſavory Food I ever taſted before. Sometimes we liv'd on Wortle berries, ſometimes on a kind of Wild Cherry, which grew on Buſhes, which I was ſent to gather once in ſo bitter a cold Seaſon, that I was not able to bring my Fingers together to hold them faſt: Yet under all theſe Hardſhips the Lord kept me from any Sickneſs, or ſuch Weakneſs as to diſenable me from Travelling when they put us upon it.

My Indian Miſtreſs was one that had been bred by the Engliſh at Black-Point, and now married to a Canada Indian, and turned Papiſt; and ſhe would ſay, That had the Engliſh been as careful to inſtruct her in our Religion as the French were, to inſtruct her in theirs, ſhe might have been of our our Religion: and ſhe would ſay, That God delivered us into their Hands to puniſh us for our Sins; And this I knew was true as to my ſelf. And as I deſired to conſider of all my Sins, for which the Lord did puniſh me, ſo this lay very heavy upon my Spirit many a time, that I had left the Publick Worſhip and Ordinances of God, where I formerly lived (viz. at Beverley) to remove to the North Part of Caſco Bay, where there was no Church or Miniſter of the Goſpel; and this we did for large Accommodations in the World, thereby expoſing our Children, to be bred Ignorantly like Indians, and our ſelves to forget what we had been formerly inſtructed in; and ſo we turned our Backs upon God's Ordinances to get this World's Goods. But now, God hath ſtript me of theſe things alſo; ſo that I muſt juſtifie the Lord in all that has befallen me, and acknowledged that he hath puniſh'd me leſs than my Iniquities deſerved. I was now bereav'd of Huſband, Children, Friends, Neighbours, Houſe, Eſtate, Bread, Cloaths, or Lodging ſuitable; and my very Life did hang daily in doubt, being continually in danger of being kill'd by the Indians, or pined to Death with Famine, or tired to Death with hard Travelling, or pinch'd with Cold till I died, in the Winter Seaſon. I was ſo amazed with many Troubles, and hurry'd in my Spirit from one Exerciſe to another, how to preſerve my ſelf in Danger, and ſupply my ſelf in the Want that was preſent; that I had not time or Leiſure ſo compoſedly to conſider of the great Concernments of my Soul, as I ſhould have done; neither had I any Bible or Good Book to look into, or Chriſtian Friend to be my Counſellour in theſe Diſtreſſes: But I may ſay, The Words of God, which I had formerly heard or read, many of them came oft into my Mind, and kept me from periſhing in my Afflictions. As when they threatned to kill me many times, I often thought of the Words of our Saviour to Pilate, Joh. 19. 11. Thou couldeſt have no Power at all againſt me, except it were given thee from above. I knew they had no Power to kill me but what the Lord gave them; and I had many times Hope, that the Lord would not ſuffer them to ſlay me, but deliver me out of their Hands; and in his time I hoped, return me to my Countrey again. When they told me that my Eldeſt Son was kill'd by the Indians, I thought of that in Jer. 33. 8. I will cleanſe them from all their Iniquities whereby they have ſinned againſt me, and I will pardon all their Iniquities. I hoped, tho' the Enemy had barbarouſly killed his Body, yet that the Lord had pardoned his Sins, and that his Soul was ſafe. When I thought upon my many Troubles, I thought of Job's Complaint, Chap. 14. 16, 17. Thou numbreſt my Steps, and watcheſt over my Sin; my Tranſgreſſion is ſealed up into a Bag; and thou ſoweſt up mine Iniquity. This was for my Humiliation, and put me upon Prayer to God, for his Pardoning Mercy in Chriſt; and I thought upon David's Complaint, Pſalm 13. 1, 2. and uſed it in my Prayers to the Lord; How long wilt thou forget me, O Lord, for ever! How long wilt thou hide thy Face from me? How long ſhall I take Counſel in my Soul, having Sorrow in my Heart! How long ſhall my Enemy be exalted over me? I ſometimes bemoaned my ſelf, as Job, Chap. 19. 9, 10. He hath ſtripped me of my Glory, and taken my Crown from my Head; he hath deſtroyed me on every ſide, and I am gone, and my hope hath he removed like a Tree. Yet ſometimes encourag'd from Job 22. 27. Thou ſhalt make thy Prayer to him, and he ſhall hear thee, and thou ſhalt pay thy Vows. I made my Vows to the Lord that I would give up my ſelf to him, if he would accept me in Jeſus Chriſt, and pardon my Sins; and I deſired and endeavour'd to pay my Vows unto the Lord. I pray'd to him, Remember not againſt me the Sins of my Youth; and I beſought him, Judge me, O God, and plead my cauſe againſt an Ungodly Nation; deliver me from the deceitful and unjuſt Man. Why go I mourning becauſe of the Oppreſſion of the Enemy? And by many other Scriptures that were brought to my Remembrance, was I inſtructed, directed and comforted.

I travell'd over ſteep and hideous Mountains one while, and another while over Swamps and Thickets of fallen Trees lying one, two, three Foot from the Ground, which I have ſtepp'd on from one to another, nigh a thouſand in a Day, carrying a great Burden on my Back. Yet I dreaded going to Canada, for fear leſt I ſhould be overcome by them to yield to their Religion; which I had vowed unto God, That I would not do. But the Extremity of my Sufferings were ſuch, that at length I was willing to go to preſerve my Life. And after many weary Journies thro' Froſt and Snow, we came to Canada about the middle of February 1690. and travelling over the River, my Maſter pitch'd his Wigwam in ſight of ſome French Houſes Weſtward of us, and then ſent me to thoſe Houſes to beg Victuals for them; which I did, and found the French very kind to me, giving me Beef, and Pork, and Bread, which I had been without near Nine Months before; ſo that now I found a great Change as to Diet. But the Snow being Knee deep, and my Legs and Hams very ſore, I found it very tedious to travel; and my Sores bled; ſo that as I travell'd, I might be track'd by my Blood that I left behind me on the Snow. I aſked leave to ſtay all Night with the French when I went to beg again, which my Maſter conſented unto, and ſent me Eaſtward, to Houſes, which were toward Quebeck (though then I knew it not:) So, having begg'd Proviſions at a French Houſe, and it being near Night, after I was refreſh'd my ſelf, and had Food to carry to the Indians, I ſignified as well as I could, to make the French Woman underſtand, that I deſir'd to ſtay by her Fire that Night. Whereupon ſhe laid a good Bed on the Floor, and good Coverings for me, and there I lodg'd comfortably; and the next Morning, when I had breakfaſted with the Family, and the Men-kind were gone abroad, as I was about to go to my Indian Maſter, the French Woman ſtept out, and left me alone in her Houſe; and I then ſtaid her Return, to give her Thanks for her Kindneſs; and while I waited, came in two Men, and one of 'em ſpake to me in Engliſh, I am glad to ſee you, Countrey Woman! This was exceedingly reviving to hear the Voice of an Engliſhman, and upon Inquiry I found he was taken at the North-Weſt Paſſage; and the other was a French Ordinary Keeper. After ſome Diſcourſe, he aſk'd me to go with him to Quebeck, which he told me, was about four Miles off: I anſwer'd, my Indian Maſter might kill me for it, when I went back. Then, after ſome Diſcourſe in French with his Fellow-Traveller, he ſaid, This French Man engag'd, that if I would go with them, he would keep me from returning to the Indians, and I ſhould be ranſom'd: And my French Hoſteſs being now return'd in-a-doors, perſwaded me to go with 'em to Quebeck; which I did, and was convey'd unto the Houſe of the Lord-Intendant, Monſieur le Tonant, who was Chief Judge, and the Second to the Governour; and I was kindly entertain'd by the Lady; and had French Cloaths given me, with good Diet and Lodging, and was carry'd thence unto the Hoſpital, where I was Phyſick'd and Blooded, and very courteouſly provided for. And ſome time after my Indian Maſter and Miſtreſs coming for me, the Lady Intendant paid a Ranſom for me, and I became her Servant. And I muſt ſpeak it to the Honour of the French, they were exceeding kind to me at firſt; even as kind as I could expect to find the Engliſh: ſo that I wanted nothing for my bodily Comfort which they could help me unto.

Here was a great and comfortable Change as to my Outward Man, in my Freedom from my former Hardſhips, and Hard-hearted Oppreſſours. But here began a greater Snare and Trouble to my Soul, and Danger to my Inward Man. For the Lady my Miſtreſs, the Nuns, the Prieſts, the Friers, and the reſt, ſet upon me with all the Strength of Argument they could from Scripture, as they interpreted it, to perſwade me to turn Papiſt; which they preſs'd with very much Zeal, Love, Intreaties and Promiſes, if I would turn to 'em; and with many Threatnings, and ſometimes hard Uſages, becauſe I did not turn to their Religion. Yea, ſometimes the Papiſts, becauſe I would not turn to them, threatned to ſend me to France, and there I ſhould be burn'd, becauſe I would not turn to them. Then was I comforted from that in 2 Cor. 1. 8, 9, 10. We were preſt out of meaſure above Strength, inſomuch that we deſpair'd even of Life; but we had the ſentence of Death in our ſelves, that we ſhould not truſt in our ſelves, but in God, who raiſes the Dead, who deliver'd us from ſo great a Death, and doth deliver; in whom we truſt that he will yet deliver us. I knew God was able to deliver me, as he did Paul, and as he did the Three Children out of the Fiery Furnace; And I believ'd he would either deliver me from them, or fit me for what he call'd me to ſuffer, for his Sake and Name. For their praying to Angels, they brought the Hiſtory of the Angel that was ſent to the Virgin Mary, in the firſt of Luke. I anſwer'd them from Rev. 19. 10. and 22. 9. They brought Exod. 17. 11. of Iſrael's prevailing while Moſes held up his Hands. I told them, we muſt come to God only by Chriſt, Joh. 6. 37, 44. For Purgatory, they brought Mat. 5. 25. I told them, to agree with God while here on Earth, was, to Agree with our our Adverſary in the way; and if we did not, we ſhould be caſt into Hell, and ſhould not come out until we paid the utmoſt Farthing, which could never be paid. But it's bootleſs for me a poor Woman, to acquaint the World, with what Arguments I uſed, if I could now remember them; and many of them are ſlipt out of my Memory.

I ſhall proceed to relate what Trials I met with in theſe things. I was put upon it, either to ſtand to the Religion I was brought up in, and believ'd in my Conſcience to be true; or to turn to another, which I believ'd was not right. And I was kept from turning, by that Scripture, Mat. 10. 32, 33. Whoſoever ſhall confeſs me before Men, him will I confeſs before my Father which is in Heaven; and whoſoever denies me before Men, him alſo will I deny before my Father which is in Heaven. I thought, that if I ſhould deny the Truth, and own their Religion, I ſhould deny Chriſt. Yet, upon their Perſwaſions, I went to ſee and be preſent at their Worſhip ſometimes; but never to receive their Sacrament. And once when I was at their Worſhip, that Scripture 2 Cor. 6. 14. to the End, came into my Mind: What Communion hath Light with Darkneſs! what Concord hath Chriſt with Belial! what part hath he that believeth with an Infidel! and what Agreement hath hath the Temple of God with Idols? Wherefore, come out from among them, and be ye ſeparate, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you, and I will be a Father unto you, and ye ſhall be my Sons and Daughters, ſaith the Lord Almighty. This Scripture was ſo ſtrong upon my Spirit, that I thought I was out of my way to be preſent at the Idolatrous Worſhip, and I reſolv'd never to come unto it again. But when the time drew nigh, that I was to go again, I was ſo reſtleſs that Night, that I could not ſleep; thinking what I ſhould ſay to 'em when they urg'd me to go again, and what I ſhould do. And ſo it was in the Morning, that a French Woman of my Acquaintance, told me, if I would not be of their Religion, I did but mock at it, to go to their Worſhip, and bid me, that if I would not be of their Religion, I ſhould go no more. I anſwer'd her, That I would not be of their Religion, and I would go no more to their Worſhip: And accordingly I never went more, and they did not force me to it.

I have had many Conflicts in my own Spirit, fearing that I was not truly converted unto God in Chriſt, and that I had no ſaving Intereſt in Chriſt. I could not be of a Falſe Religion, to pleaſe Men; for it was againſt my Conſcience: And I was not fit to ſuffer for the True Religion, and for Chriſt: For I then fear'd I had no Intereſt in him. I was neither fit to live, nor fit to die; and brought once to the very Pit of Deſpair about what would become of my Soul. In this time I had gotten an Engliſh Bible, and other good Books by the help of my Fellow-Captives. I looked over the Scripture, and ſetled on the Prayer of Jonah, and thoſe Words, I ſaid I am caſt out of thy ſight, yet will I look again towards thy Holy Temple. I reſolv'd I would do as Jonah did: And in the Meditation upon this Scripture the Lord was pleaſed by his Spirit to come into my Soul, and ſo fill me with raviſhing Comfort, that I cannot expreſs it. Then came to mind the Hiſtory of the Transfiguring of Chriſt, and Peter's Saying, Matth. 17. 4. Lord, it is good for us to be here! I thought it was good for me to be here; and I was ſo full of Comfort and Joy, I even wiſh'd I could be ſo always, and never ſleep; or elſe die in that Rapture of Joy, and never live to ſin any more againſt the Lord. Now I thought God was my God, and my Sins were pardoned in Chriſt; and now I could ſuffer for Chriſt, yea, die for Chriſt, or do any thing for him. My Sins had been a Burden to me: I deſired to ſee all my Sins, and to repent of them all with all my Heart, and of that Sin which had been eſpecially a Burden to me, namely, That I Left the Publick Worſhip and Ordinances of God, to go to live in a remote Place, without the Publick Miniſtry; depriving our ſelves and our Children of ſo great a Benefit for our Souls; and all this for Worldly Advantages. I found an Heart to repent of them all; and to lay hold of the Blood of Chriſt, to cleanſe me from them all.

I found much Comfort, while I was among the French, by the Opportunities I had ſometimes to read the Scriptures and other good Books, and pray to the Lord in ſecret; and the Conference that ſome of us Captives had together about things of God and Prayer together ſometimes; eſpecially with one that was in the ſame Houſe with me, Margaret Stilſon. Then was the Word of God precious to us, and they that feared the Lord, ſpake one to another of it, as we had Opportunity. And Col. Tyng and Mr. Alden, as they were permitted, did ſpeak to us to confirm and ſtrengthen us in the ways of the Lord. At length the French debarr'd our coming together for Religious Conference, or other Duties: And Word was ſent us by Mr. Alden, That this was one kind of Perſecution that we muſt ſuffer for Chriſt.

Theſe are ſome of the Scriptures which have been my Support and Comfort in the Affliction of my Captivity among the Papiſts. That in Ezek. 16. 6,--8. I apply'd unto my ſelf, and I deſir'd to Enter into Covenant with God, and to be His; and I prayed to the Lord, and hoped the Lord would return me to my Countrey again, That I might Enter into Covenant with Him, among his People, and enjoy Communion with Him in his Churches and publick Ordinances. Which Prayers the Lord hath now Heard, and graciouſly anſwer'd; praiſed be his Name! The Lord enable me to live ſuitably to his Mercy, and to thoſe publick and precious Privileges which I now enjoy. So, that in Ezek. 11. 16, 17. was a great Comfort unto me in my Captivity; Although I have caſt them far off among the Heathen, yet will I be a little Sanctuary to them:——I will gather you from the People,—— where you have been ſcattered. I found that God was a Little Sanctuary to me there, and hoped, that the Lord would bring me unto the Countrey from whence I had been ſcattered. And the Lord hath heard the Prayer of the Deſtitute, and not deſpis'd my Prayer, but granted me the Deſire of my Soul, in bringing me to his Houſe, and my Relations again. I often thought on the Hiſtory of the Man born blind; of whom Chriſt, when his Diſciples asked, Whether this Man had ſinned, or his Parents? anſwered, Neither this Man nor his Parents; but this was, that the Works of God might be made manifeſt in him. So, tho' I had deſerved all this, yet I knew not but one Reaſon of God's bringing all theſe Afflictions and Miſeries upon me, and then enabling me to bear them, was, That the Works of God might be made manifeſt. And in my great Diſtreſs I was revived by that in Pſal. 118. 17, 18. I ſhall not die but live, and declare the Works of the Lord: The Lord hath chaſtened me ſore, but he hath not given me over to Death. I had very often a ſecret Perſwaſion, That I ſhould Live to declare the Works of the Lord. And 2 Chron. 6. 36, 37, 38, 39. was a precious Scripture to me in the Day of Evil. We have read over, and prayed over this Scripture together, and talk'd together of this Scripture, Margaret and I; how the Lord had promis'd, Though they were ſcattered for their Sins, yet there ſhould be a Return, if they did bethink themſelves, and turn, and pray. So we did bethink our ſelves in the Land where we were carried Captive, did turn, did pray, and endeavour to Return to God with all our Hearts. And, as they were to pray towards the Temple, I took it that I ſhould pray towards Chriſt; and accordingly did ſo, and hoped the Lord would hear, and he hath heard from Heaven his Dwelling-place, my Prayer and Supplication, and maintained my Cauſe, and not rejected me, but returned me. And Oh! how affectionate was my reading of the 84th Pſalm in this Condition.

The means of my Deliverance, were by reaſon of Letters that had paſſed between the Governments of New-England and of Canada. Mr. Cary was ſent with a Veſſel, to fetch Captives from Quebeck; and when he came, I among others, with my youngeſt Son, had our Liberty to come away: And by God's Bleſſing upon us, we arrived in Safety, at Boſton in November 1695. our deſired Haven. And I deſire to praiſe the Lord for his Goodneſs, and for his wonderful oWorks t me. Yet ſtill I have left behind Two Children; a Daughter of Twenty Years old at Mont Royal, whom I had not ſeen in Two Years before I came away; and a Son of Nineteen Years old, whom I never ſaw ſince we parted, the next Morning after we were taken. I earneſtly requeſt the Prayers of my Chriſtian Friends that the Lord will deliver them.

What ſhall I render to the Lord for all his Benefits?

CHAP. III. Ceraunius.

Relating Remarkables done by THUNDER.

THE Remarkable Effects of THUNDER, have been memorable Subjects, upon which the Pens of Hiſtorians in all Ages have been imployed. And indeed, tho' the Natural Cauſes of the THUNDER are known unto us; yet there are thoſe Notable Voices of the Almighty God, often ſenſible in the directing thereof, which it becomes Good Men to obſerve with devout Reſentments.

'Tis very likely, that the Evil Angels may have a particular Energy and Employment, oftentimes in the Miſchiefs done by the Thunder. When we read concerning the Fire of God falling on ſome of Job's Poſſeſſions, our Caryl ſays upon it, The Fire of God here is conceived to have been ſome terrible Flaſh of Lightning; and it is the more probable, becauſe it is ſaid, To fall from Heaven; that is, out of the Air. There Satan can do mighty things, command much of the Magazine of Heaven, where that dreadful Artillery, which makes Men tremble, thoſe Fiery Meteors, Thunder and Lightning, are ſtor'd and lodg'd. Satan, let looſe by God, can do wonders in the Air: He can raiſe Storms, he can diſcharge the Great Ordnance of Heaven, Thunder and Lightning; and by his Art can make them more Terrible and Dreadful than they are in their own nature. 'Tis no Hereſie or Blaſphemy to think that the Prince of the Power of the Air hath as good Skill in Chymiſtry as goes to the making of Aurum Fulminans. But this Conceſſion does the more powerfully beſpeak our Acknowledgment of the Great GOD, the High THUNDERER, who limits thoſe Deſtroyers from all Miſ-applications of his Thunder-bolts, and who hath Good Angels as well as Evil ones to be the Executioners of his Judgments in his Thunders, and who will have none but his own Deſigns accompliſhed by the Thunders, wherein the Clouds do proclaim his Immortal Strength.

New-England hath been a Countrey ſignaliz'd with Miſchiefs done by Thunders, as much as perhaps moſt in the World. If Things that are ſmitten by Lightning were to be eſteemed Sacred, this were a Sacred Countrey. Rarely a Summer paſſes without ſome Strokes from the Thunders, on the Perſons, or Houſes, or Cattel of our People.

To enumerate the Inſtances of Damages done by Thunders in this Land, Houſes fired, Cattel ſlain, Trees pull'd a-pieces, Rocks pulverized, Bricks vitrify'd, and Ships mortify'd, would be to fill a Volume.

Several Perſons have been kill'd by the Thunders; the Lightnings have ſtrangely lick'd up their Animal Spirits, and left them dead upon the ſpot. The Puniſhment of Burning uſed ſometimes among the Jews of old, ſome think was inflicted by pouring Hot Lead into the Mouths of the Criminals. This Puniſhment was call'd Combuſtio Animæ, and uſed in imitation of God's deſtroying Men with Leghtning, whereby the Inward Parts are Burnt, while the Outward are not hurt. A Combuſtio Animæ by the Lightning hath killed many of our People. Some of theſe have had the juſt Reputation of Godly Perſons, who yet have died the ſame Way that the Learned Zuinger ſuppoſes the Sodomites, and Corah's Conſpirators to have periſh'd, as well as Nadab and Abihu, and the Semicenturions that affronted the Prophet Elias.

In Confutation of an Opinion mentioned by Plutarch, That Men aſleep are never ſtricken with Lightning; ſome among us have been killed by the Thunder when faſt aſleep, and had that Epitaph, Triſte jaces luces Evitandumq; Bidental.

All that I ſhall add, is this; It hath been ſeen That Thunders oftner fall upon Houſes of God, than upon any other Houſes; New-England can ſay ſo. Our Meeting-Houſes, and our Miniſters Houſes have had a ſingular ſhare in the Strokes of Thunders.

Now becauſe there was in it ſomewhat Remarkable and Entertaining, I ſhall ſuperſede all further Accounts of our Thunders, by annexing ſome Notes of a Sermon preached by one among us, at the very Inſtant when the Thunders were falling upon his own Houſe, with ſome ſingular Circumſtances.

Brontologia Sacra: The Voice of the Glorious God in the Thunder, Explained and Applied, in a Sermon, uttered by a Miniſter of the Goſpel, in a Lecture unto an Aſſembly of Chriſtians abroad, at the very ſame time when the Thunder was, by the Permiſſion and Providence of God, falling upon his own Houſe. A Diſcourſe uſeful for all Men at all times; but eſpecially intended for an Entertainment in the Hours of Thunder.

Advertiſement.

THE Author of the enſuing Meditations, is willing to have nothing further known either of him or of them, ſave this, That being at Prayer before a Sermon in an Aſſembly of Chriſtians, the ſudden Riſe of a Thunder-Storm was the Occaſion of his feeling a ſtrong Impreſſion upon his Mind unto this purpoſe; Lay aſide what you had prepar'd for this Auditory: Speak to them in the Voice of the Glorious God in the Thunder; you ſhall not want Aſſiſtances. He could not withſtand this Impreſſion, but ventured upon an extemporaneous Contemplation of the Thunder. Now, the Thing which made this Digreſſion remarkable, was, that at the very ſame Inſtant when he was thus driven to this Theme, the Thunder was directed by the God of Heaven to fall with very tearing, tho' no killing Effects upon his own Houſe. The Hearers, I ſuppoſe, found a ſenſible Edge given to theſe Meditations, by the wondrous timing of them; and although no doubt, the Author would have digeſted them with more Exactneſs, had they not been altogether like the Accidents that produced them, ſudden; yet theſe Notes taken of them, are perhaps not ſo utterly undigeſted as to be wholly uſeleſs unto a well-diſpos'd Reader.

The Thunder being a Thing that often entertains us, it was thought that it would be no Diſ-ſervice unto the Church of God, if a few ſuch Reflections were offer'd unto the Publick for the Entertainment of the Serious, When Meditations upon Thunder. Uttered September 12. 1694.

OBſerving that by the Thunder-Storm juſt now begun, you are many of you thrown into a Conſternation, which perhaps may indiſpoſe you to mind any thing but the Thunder, I ſhall altogether lay aſide the Meditations wherewith I came hither purpoſing to entertain you; and I ſhall with the Leave and Help of Our God, who is now ſpeaking, treat you with ſome ſudden Meditations upon the Thunder it ſelf.

Chriſtians, You ſhall now go along with me unto the 29th Pſalm, in the Third Verſe, whereof you ſhall find theſe Words:

The Voice of the Lord is upon the Waters, the God of Glory Thundereth.

And now, let not your Attention to the Thunder at this Inſtant abroad, interrupt your further Attention to the Greater and Louder Thunder here within.

The Voice of God in this Book, is far beyond that Voice which is now making its rapid Peals in the Skie. This Voice is more articulate than that; yea, by this Voice that becomes articulate, give unto both your earneſt Heed.

I remember that when Elihu was, as I now am, ſpeaking at a Meeting of ſome Godly Men, at that very time, as at this, 'tis by ſome Interpreters conceived, it Thundered; and at the ſame time that Man of God fell into a Diſcourſe upon the Voice of God in the Thunder. Then 'twas that he ſaid, in Job 37. beg. At this my Heart trembleth, and is mov'd out of his place. Hear attentively the noiſe of his Voice, and the Sound that goeth out of his Mouth. He directeth it under the whole Heaven, and his Lightning unto the Ends of the Earth: after it a Voice roareth; He thundereth with the Voice of his Excellency; and he will not ſtay them when his Voice is heard; God thundereth marvellouſly with his Voice; great things doth he which we cannot comprehend.

You then will not count it improper, and I hope our common Lord will make it not unuſeful, if I ſo far imitate the Example, as to offer you in this Juncture, an Eſſay at explaining the Voice of God in that very Thunder, which is juſt now beginning to alarm our Thoughts; and this the rather, becauſe the Text which we have now read, ſeems to be fetch'd from thoſe very Words of Elihu.

We have before us a Pſalm compoſed by a Great Servant and Singer of the Lord, probably at a time tempeſtuous by Thunders, and compoſed that it might be imployed among the People of God at ſuch a time. You ſee how conveniently it may at this time give a Text unto us.

I call to mind, that when the Prieſt went into the Sanctuary, his Habit was among other Circumſtances, to be attended with (Exod. 28. 34.) Golden Bells and Pomegranates; and Joſephus thinks the Clatter of Thunder and Colour of Lightning was deſigned therein to be repreſented. It ſeems Thunder and Lightning is a thing, whereof God would have Notice to be taken in the Sanctuary. In the Oracles of the Sanctuary, He doth Himſelf take notice of it.

The Sons of ſuch Eminent Patriarchs as Abraham, and Iſaac, and Jacob, are here call'd upon to give Glory unto the God of Heaven; and this both for his Works of Nature in the World, and for his Works of Grace in the Church; And among his works of Nature, ſome done in the Lower Heaven, namely the Thunders, are ſingled out as the ſpecial Occaſions for our praiſing Him. But if Angels may be meant by the Sons of the Mighty, thus addreſſed, their own frequent Concernment and Improvement in the producing of Thunders, gives yet a further Emphaſis unto this Invitation.

About the Thunder, we have two Remarks in the Words now read unto us.

Firſt, We have the Place of it. It is among the Waters: that is, in the Rainy Clouds. The Aqueous Particles, daily fetch'd up from the Earth and the Sea, into the Regions of the Air, are a Vaſt Advantage to our Quarters of the Creation. The Emptying, the Refreſhing, the Proportioning of many Parts in the Creation, by their perpetual Diſtillation, is juſtly to be reckoned among Infallible Demonſtrations, to prove as well the Providence as the Exiſtence of the Great God, who formed all things. For this Cauſe, this thing is well worthy of the Figure which it makes in the Hiſtory of the Creation; tho' it had not been there introduced, as probably it is, as Figurative of that Age wherein God ſeparated from the reſt of the World, a Number of People in the Patriarchal Families, whom he called up into a Church-State; but ſo ſmall a Number, that in compariſon to the reſt, they were no more than the Clouds are unto the Seas. This now is the Secret Place of Thunder.

Next we have the Cauſe of it.

This is The Lord, the God of Glory; Or the Lord, who is the Glorious God.

It is the Duty of a Miniſter to watch for Seaſons, wherein and whereby the Word of God, which he is to preach, may be advantag'd with a ſingular Energy, for the Saving of Himſelf and them that hear him.

'Twill be but a piece of Miniſterial Watchfulneſs, for me to bring you certain Words of God this Afternoon, unto which the Terrible Thunder now happening may be ſubſervient with a more than ordinary Penetrancy.

Sirs, Be not now Deaf to Thunder, but with me make this Obſervation.

In the THUNDER there is the Voice of the Glorious GOD.

There is,——[The Author being arriv'd hereabouts in his Diſcourſe, a Meſſenger interrupted him, with Tidings that a Thunder-Clap had juſt now fallen upon his own Houſe; and that tho' no Perſon had been hurt, yet the Houſe had been much torn, and filled with the Lightnings. But, without breaking off, as had been deſired, he thus proceeded.]

Brethren, I am juſt now inform'd, That the Voice of the Glorious God in the Thunder has been very immediately directed unto my ſelf by a Fall of Thunder-bolts upon my own Houſe, at that very Inſtant, as far as I can judge, that I felt the powerful Impreſſions of Heaven upon my own Soul; inclining and engaging of me to frame a peculiar Meditation upon the Voice of the glorious God in the Thunder, among you.

The Pſalmiſt here mentioning the Great Effects of the Thunder, adds, In his Temple doth every one ſpeak of his Glory. As I remember, there is in Aben Ezra this obſervable Paſſage of R. Moſeh, quoted for a Gloſs upon it, The Levites there praiſe God for keeping them from Hurt by the Thunder. What an Occaſion have I to do ſo this Day? Inſtead of being hereby diverted from the Work which I have now undertaken, I would practically teach you, That with a Mind unconcer'd about the things of this Life, we ſhould never be unfurniſh'd with devout and proper Thoughts on the Mind of God in all our Trials; and I would hope that this unhappy Accident will be made happy, at leaſt by procuring more of Edge to that Attention which the Voice of God is to have with you: To day if ye will hear his Voice.

There is in this an Enquiry which I did but now deſign to make, and which I am now concerned more than I was before to make, on this Occaſion.

What is the Voice of the Glorious God in the Thunder?

Firſt, It is to be premiſed as herein implied and confeſſed, that the Thunder is the Work of the Glorious God. It is true, that the Thunder is a Natural Production, and by the Common Laws of Matter and Motion it is produced; there is in it a Concourſe of divers weighty Clouds, claſhing and breaking one againſt another, from whence ariſes a mighty Sound, which grows yet more mighty by its Reſonancies. The Subtil and Sulphurous Vapours among theſe Clouds take Fire in this Combuſtion, and Lightnings are thence darted forth; which, when they are ſomewhat groſſer, are fulminated with an irreſiſtible Violence upon our Territories.

This is the Carteſian Account; tho that which I rather chooſe is, that with the Vegetable Matter protruded by the Subterraneous Fire, and exhaled alſo by the Force of the Sun, in the Vapour that makes our Shower a Mineral Matter of Niter and Sulphur, does alſo aſcend into the Atmoſphere, and there it goes off with fierce Exploſions.

But ſtill, who is the Author of thoſe Laws, according whereunto things are thus moved into Thunder? yea, who is the Firſt Mover of them? Chriſtians, 'tis our Glorious God. There is an Intimation ſomewhere, ('tis in Pſal. 104. 7.) That there was a moſt early and wondrous Uſe of the Thunder in the firſt Creation of the World; but ſtill the Thunder it ſelf, and the Tonitruous Diſpoſition and Generation with which the Air is impregnated, was a part of that Creation. Well; and whoſe Workmanſhip is it all? Ah! Lord, thou haſt created all theſe things; and for thy Pleaſure they are and were created. It is alſo true, that Angels may be reckoned among the Cauſes of Thunders; and for this Cauſe, in the Sentence of the Pſalms, where they called Flames of Fire, one would have been at a Loſs whether Angels or Lightnings were intended, if the Apoſtolical Accommodation had not cleared it. But what tho' Angels may have their peculiar Influence upon Thunders? It is but the Influence of an Inſtrument; they are but Inſtruments directed, ordered, limited by him, who is the God of Thunders and the Lord of Angels. Hence the Thunder is aſcribed unto our God all the Bible over; in the Scripture of Truth, 'tis called the Thunder of God, oftener than I can preſently quote unto you. And hence we find the Thunder ever now and then executing the Purpoſe of God; whoſe can it be but the Thunder of God, when the Pleaſure of God has been continually thereby accompliſhed?

But I pray, why then ſhould we be ſlaviſhly afraid of the Thunder? We are in Covenant with that God who makes the Thunder, and it is a Covenant of Grace, wherein he is Our God. Well, and ſhall we not now make that Joyful Concluſion, He is our own God, and he will bleſs us! Whence then our amazing Terrors, when we hear him him Thundering terribly in the Heavens over us? As long as the Almighty Thunderer is our own God, we need not fear that he will do us any Hurt by any of his Works: No, He will make All things work together for our Good. A Saint may ſay, My God will never hurt me! Suppoſe we ſhould be ſlain by Thunder, we ſhall but in that Thunder of Heaven, have a great Voice from Heaven ſaying to us, Come up hither! and ſetting aſide the Unuſualneſs of the Stroke, which makes it ſeem horrid and uncouth, it were the eaſieſt Way of going up that ever was gone. I ſay then, Be not afraid: Ejus eſt timere qui nolit ad Chriſtum ire.

Mr. Ambroſe in his Treatiſe of Angels, as I remember, does relate this Paſſage;

‘A profane Perſecutor diſcovered much Affrightment at the Thunder which hapned while he was on a Journey, his pious and holy Wife then with him, asked him the Reaſon of his being ſo affrighted; Why, ſaid he, are not you afraid? She replied, No, not all; for I know 'tis the Voice of my Heavenly Father; and ſhall a Child be afraid of a kind Father's Voice? The Man hereby ſurpriz'd, made this Concluſion, Sure theſe Puritans have a Divine Principle in them, which the World ſeeth not; Elſe they could not have ſuch a Serenity in their Souls, when the reſt of the World are fill'd with diſmal Horrors! Hereupon he went to Mr. Bolton, bewailing the Oppoſition which he had given unto the Miniſtry of that Reverent Man, and became a Godly Man ever after.

You know what uſe to make of the Story, and ſo I may proceed.

Secondly, it is now to be more diſtinctly aſſerted, That Thunder is the Voice of the Glorious God. There is a Voice of his in this Work of his. If the Thunder were φωνὴ Διὸς, The Voice of Jupiter, in the Account of the poor Pagans, I am ſure it ſhould be accounted The Voice of Jehovah by us Chriſtians. One of the Ways whereby God revealed himſelf to his ancient People, was a Beth Kol, as they called it, there was a Voice of Thunder in it. Sirs, we have what is equivalent unto a Beth Kol this Afternoon, in the Significancy which we ſhall now hear the Scripture give unto the Thunder.

I. One Voice of the Glorious God in the Thunder, is, that he is a Glorious God, who makes the Thunder. There is the Marvellous Glory of God ſeen in it, when he Thunders Marvellouſly. Thus do theſe Inferiour and Meteorous Heavens declare the Glory of God.

The Power of God is the Glory of God: Now his Thunder does proclaim his Power. It is ſaid, The Thunder of his Power who can underſtand? that is, his Powerful Thunder; the Thunder gives us to underſtand, that our God is a moſt Powerful One. There is nothing able to ſtand before thoſe Lightnings, which are ſtiled, The Arrows of God: Caſtles fall, Metals melt; all flies, when Hot Thunder-bolts are ſcattered upon them. The very Mountains are torn to pieces, when

——Feriunt ſummos
Fulmina montes.——

Yea, to ſpeak in the Language of the Prophets, fulfilled in the Thunder-ſtorm that routed the Aſſyrian Armies, The Mountains quake, the Hills melt, the Earth is burnt; who can ſtand before his Indignation? and who can abide in the Fierceneſs of his Anger? His Fury is poured out like Fire, and the Rocks are thrown down by him. Suetonius, I think 'tis, who tells us, That the haughty and profane Emperour Caligula would yet ſhrink, and ſhake, and cover his Head at the leaſt Thunder, and run to hide himſelf under a Bed. This truly is the Voice of the Thunder: Let the proudeſt Sinners tremble to rebel any more againſt a God, who can thus diſcomfit them with ſhooting out his Lightnings upon them: Sinners, where can you ſhew your Heads, if the Higheſt give forth his Voice with Hailſtones and Coals of Fire. Methinks there is that Song of Hannah in the Thunder, 1 Sam. 2. 3, 10. Talk no more ſo exceeding proudly; Let not Arrogancy come out of your Mouth. For the Adverſaries of the Lord ſhall be broken to pieces; out of Heaven ſhall he Thunder upon them. The Omnipotent God in the Thunder ſpeaks to thoſe hardy Typhons, that are found fighting againſt him; and ſays, Oh, do not harden your ſelves againſt ſuch a God; You are not ſtronger than He! Yea, the Great God is propoſed as an Object for our Faith, as well as for our Fear in his Thunder.

If Nothing be too hard for the Thunder, we may think ſurely Nothing is too hard for the Lord! The Arm that can wield Thunder bolts, is a very mighty Arm.

From hence paſs on, and admire the other Glorious Attributes of God which he doth in his Thunder diſplay moſt Glorioulſy: When it Thunders, let us adore the Wiſdom of that God, who thereby many Ways does conſult the Welfare of the Univerſe: Let us adore the Juſtice of that God, who thereby many times has cut off his Adverſaries; and let us adore the Goodneſs of that God who therein preſerves us from imminent and impending Deſolations, and is not ſo ſevere as he would be.

Si quoties peccant homines ſua fulmina mittat.

II. A ſecond Voice of the Glorious God in the Thunder, is, Remember the Law of the Glorious God that was given in Thunder. The People of God were once gathered about a Mountain, on which, From his Right Hand iſſued a Fiery Law for them; or a Law given with Lightning. At the Promulgation of the Ten Commandments, we are told in Ex. 20. 18. All People ſaw the Thunderings, and the Lightnings, and the Mountain ſmoaking. Yea, they were ſuch, that the Apoſtle tells us, tho' Moſes himſelf ſays nothing of it, they made Moſes himſelf Exceedingly to fear and quake. Well, when it Thunders, let us call to mind the Commandments, which were once thus Thundered unto the World; and bear in mind, that with a Voice of Thunder, the Lord ſtill ſays unto us, Thou ſhalt love the Lord thy God with all thy Heart, and all thy Soul, and all thy Strength; and thou ſhalt love thy Neighbour as thy ſelf. But when the Thunder cauſes us to reflect upon the Commandments of our God, let there be a Self-Examination in that Reflection.

Let us now examine our ſelves, what is requir'd and whether we have not omitted it? what is Forbidden, and whether we had not committed it? And what Provocation we have given unto the God of Glory, to ſpeak unto us in his Wrath, and vex us in his Diſpleaſure. Bleſſed the Thunder, that ſhall Thunder-ſtrike us into the Acknowledgments of a Convinced and a Repenting Soul!

III. A Third Voice of the Glorious God in the Thunder, is, Think on the future Coming of the Glorious God in the Thunder, and in great Glory. When the Day of Judgment ſhall arrive unto us, then Our God ſhall come, and ſhall not keep ſilence; a Fire ſhall devour before him, and it ſhall be very tempeſtuous round about him. The Second Coming of our Lord will be, as we are adviſed in 2 Theſ. 1. 7, 8. with his mighty Angels in Flaming Fire; the Clouds will be his Charriot, but there will be prodigious Thunders breaking forth from thoſe Clouds.

The Redemption of the Church, for which the Lord hath long been cried unto, will then be accompliſhed; but at what Rate? The Lord will come in the thick Clouds of the Skies: at the Brightneſs that ſhall be before him thick Clouds will paſs, Hail-Stones and Coals of Fire; the Lord alſo will thunder in the Heavens.

I ſay then, does it thunder? Let us now realize unto our ſelves that Great and Notable Day of the Lord, which will be indeed a Great and and Thundering Day! But how far ſhould we now realize it? Realize it ſo, as to be ready for it. Oh, count your ſelves not ſafe till you get into ſuch a Condition of Soul, that your Hearts would even Leap and Spring within you, were you ſure that in the very next Thunders our precious Lord would make his Deſcent unto us. What if the Hour were now turned, wherein the Judge of the whole World were going to break in upon us with fierce Thunders, and make the Mountains to ſmoak by his coming down upon them, and Reign before his ancient People Glorioulſy? Could you gladly ſay, Lo this is the God of my Salvation, and I have waited for him! I ſay, let the Thunders drive you on to this Attainment.

IV. A Fourth Voice of the Glorious God in the Thunder, is, Make your Peace with God immediately, leſt by the Stroke of his Thunder he take you away in his Wrath. Why is it that Perſons are uſually in ſuch a Conſternation at the Thunder? Indeed there is a Complectional and Conſtitutional Weakneſs in many this way; they have ſuch a Diſadvantantage in a Frightful Temper, that no Conſiderations can wholly overcome it. But moſt uſually the Frights of People at the Thunder, ariſe from the Terms wherein they may ſuſpect their own Souls to ſtand before an angry God. Their Conſciences tell 'em that their Sins are yet unpardoned, that their Hearts are yet unrenewed, that their Title to Bleſſedneſs is yet unſetled, and that if the next Thunder-Clap ſhould ſtrike them dead, it had been good for them that they had never been born.

Hi ſunt qui trepidant, & ad omnia Fulgura pallent;
Cum tonat, Exanimes primo quoque murmure Cœli.

Here then is the Voice of God in the Thunder: Art thou ready? Soul, art thou ready? make ready preſently, leſt I call for thee before thou art aware. There is in Thunder a vehement Call unto that Regeneration, unto that Repenting of Sin, that Believing on Chriſt, and that Conſenting unto the Demands of the New Covenant, without which no Man in his Wits can comfortably hold up his Face before the Thunder. I have now in my Houſe a Mariners Compaſs, whereupon a Thunder-Clap had this odd Effect, that the North Point was thereby turned clear about unto the South; and ſo it will veer and ſtand ever ſince unto this Day, tho' the thing happened above thirteen Years ago.

I would to God that the next Thunder-Claps would give as effectual a Turn unto all the Unconverted Souls among us! May the Thunder awaken you to turn from every Vanity to God in Chriſt without any Delay, leſt by the Thunder it ſelf it come quickly to be too late. It is a vulgar Error, that the Thunder never kills any who are aſleep: Man, what if the Thunder ſhould kill thee in the dead Sleep of thy Unregeneracy?

5. A fifth Voice of the Glorious God in the Thunder, is, Let this Thunder convict you of what you may juſtly reckon your own Iniquity. Every Man has his own peculiar Sin, a Sin whereby the Soul of the Man is more expos'd and endanger'd than by any other Sin; his Darling-ſin, his Maſter-ſin, or that which bids faireſt ſo to be. David being deliver'd from Damage by the Thunder, aſcribes it unto the Favour of God, (2 Sam. 22. 24.) Rewarding him for keeping himſelf from his own Iniquity. This I ſay, the Thunder may do us the favour of informing us, what is our own Iniquity, and that would be a Favour indeed! There are ſome ſort of Writings, which you can't read until you hold them againſt the Fire: Would you read the worſt Guiltineſs and Wickedneſs of your own Hearts? Then ſay I, Hold them up againſt the Lightning. My meaning is this: when it Thunders, do you obſerve about what Miſcariage your Hearts do firſt and moſt of all then miſgive you; obſerve which of all your Faults then does firſt of all, and moſt of all ſtare you in the face with formidable Criminations. You may now take it for granted, this is Your own Iniquity. And the Voice of the Thunder is, Do you keep a ſpecial Watch againſt that Iniquity, and againſt all the Beginnings, all the Occaſions, all the Incentives of that Iniquity.

6. A ſixth Voice of the Glorious God in the Thunder, is, Take heed now, take heed ever, of thoſe groſſer Sins which have ſometimes been revenged by Thunder. There have been the Ireful and the Direful Thunders of God, ſometimes uſed for the Executions of his Vengeance upon ſuch and ſuch Enormities. The perpetual Admonitions of the Thunders are, take heed of ſuch Thunder-ſtruck Abominations. As now, the Cities now buried, (tho' they ſay of late by the ſinking of the Water growing viſible again) in the Lake of Sodom. Tacitus the Roman Hiſtorian, truly tells us, they periſh'd Fulminum jactu, by Thunder-bolts; God ſent an extraordinary Thunder-ſtorm upon them for the Luſts of Uncleanneſs, wherein they burned.

What ſays the Poet?

Tu parùm caſtis inimica mittes
——Fulmina Lucis.

Wherefore, when it Thunders, the Voice of God in it is, Put out the unclean Fires of Luſt in your Souls, leſt I ſet you on fire, by my dreadful Thunders! Again, there was Nadab and Abihu, who offered ſtrange Fire to God, and God puniſhed them with a killing Fire from Heaven, in a hideous Thunder-ſtorm; ſo then, when it Thunders, the Voice of God in it is, Look well to all your Sacrifices, leſt my Fire make you a Sacrifice: See that you duly attend my Worſhip, leſt my Thunder fall upon you! Once more, there was Uzzah, who fell into an Error in his Management about the Ark of God; and it ſeems as if a Thunder-Storm ſuddenly coming up, kill'd him for it: Hence then, when it Thunders, the Voice of God in it is, Look to it, that my Ark and my Word find no contempt with you, leſt my Thunder chaſtiſe you for your Contempt. What ſhall I ſay more? Corah was deſtroyed by Thunder for his Rebellion againſt God and Moſes; Wherefore the Voice of the Thunder is, Take heed of all Rebellion againſt God and Jeſus. The Egyptians, the Philiſtines, the Aſſyrians, were confounded with Deſolating Thunders, becauſe they invaded and injured the People of God. It is then the Voice of the Thunder, See that you do no wrong unto an holy People, that have this Artillery of Heaven to defend them. They that are ſuch Witneſſes for God and Reformation as Elijah was, have, as he had, the Fires of Lightnings to devour thoſe that hurt them.

VII. A ſeventh Voice of the Glorious God in the Thunder, is, Hear the Voice of my Word, leſt I make you fear the Voice of my Thunder. When the Inhabitants of Egypt perſiſted in their Diſobedience to the Word of God, it came to that at laſt, in Ex. 9. 23. The Lord ſent Thunder, and the Fire ran along upon the Ground. Thus the Eternal God commands Men to let go their Sins, and go themſelves to ſerve him; if they are diſobedient, they lay themſelves open to fiery Thunders. This, you may be ſure, is the Voice of God in the Thunder, Hear my ſtill Voice in my Ordinances, leſt you put me upon ſpeaking to you with more angry Thunder-bolts. I have known it ſometimes remark'd, that very Notorious and Reſolved Sleepers at Sermons, often have ſome remarkable Suddenneſs in the Circumſtances of their Death. Truly, if you are ſcandalouſly given to ſleep under the Word of God, and much more, if to ſin under it; and moſt of all, if to ſcoff under it, it may be, your Deaths will be rendred ſudden by the other Thunders of Heaven lighting on you.

When it Thunders, God ſaith to all the Hearers of his Word ordinarily preached, Conſider this, and forget not God, leſt he tear you in pieces, and there be none to deliver you.

Finally, And is there not this Voice of the Glorious God in Thunder after all? O be thankful to the gracious God, that the Thunder does no more miſchief to you all.

Whatever the Witch-Advocates may make of it, it is a Scriptural and a Rational Aſſertion, That in the Thunder there is oftentimes by the Permiſſion of God, the Agency of the Devil. The Devil is the Prince of the Air, and when God gives him leave, he has a vaſt Power in the Air, and Armies that can make Thunders in the Air. We are certain that Satan had his Efficiency in it, when the Fire of God or the Lightning, fell upon part of Job's Eſtate; how glad would he have been, if the good Man himſelf had been in the way, to have been torn in pieces? And perhaps it was the Helliſh Policy of the Wicked One, thus to make the good Man ſuſpicious that God was become his Enemy. Popes that have been Conjurers, have made Fire thus come from Heaven, by their Confederacies with Evil Spirits; and we have in our own Land known Evil Spirits, plainly diſcovering their Concurrence in Diſaſters thus occaſioned. A great Man has therefore noted it, that Thunders break oftener on Churches than any other Houſes, becauſe the Dæmons have a peculiar ſpite at Houſes that are ſet a-part for the peculiar Service of God.

I ſay then, Live we thus in the midſt of Thunders and Devils too; and yet live we? Oh! let us be thankful to God for our Lives. Are we not ſmitten by the great Ordnance of Heaven, diſcharging ever now and then on every ſide of us? Let us be thankful to the great Lord of Heaven, who makes even the Wrath of Hell to praiſe him, and the Remainder of that Wrath does he reſtrain.

Such a ſerious Thankfulneſs manifeſted in an anſwerable Fruitfulneſs, will be ſtill continually a better Shelter to us from the Miſchiefs of the Thunder, than the Crowns of Laurels, or the Tents of Seal-Leather, whereby ſome Old Emperours counted themſelves protected; or than all the Amulets of Superſtition.

To the Cuſtody of Iſrael's Great Keeper I now commend you all.

CHAP. IV. The Returning Prodigal.

Relating Remarkable CONVERSIONS.

Suis perdita nunquam reverteretur, niſi pii Paſtoris miſericordiam conſequeretur. Aug.

THE Subſtance of the Church, that Myſtical Body of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, was from all Eternity under the Eye of God, as propoſed in the Decree of Election. The Members of that Body were from all Eternity written in the Book of Life: And, in purſuance of the Divine Decree concerning it, the Holy Spirit in the Continuance of Time, thro' ſeveral Generations, does faſhion it into the Shape deſigned for it. But how? We are told in Pſal. 139.14. 'Tis fearfully and wondrouſly made; marvellous are the Works of God about it. The Marvellous Works of God in converting and uniting of Elect Sinners unto the Lord JESUS CHRIST, will make an Hiſtory for Heaven. But ſomething of that Hiſtory has thouſands of times been given to particular Flocks of the Faithful throughout New-England, in the Relations which Devout People have made unto them, at their firſt Admiſſion into their Communion.

Theſe marvellous Works of God were very proper Materials for a Church-Hiſtory: But Ours has not a Room for them; Nor will I recite in this Place more than Two or Three Remarkables.

I. It was a Problem among the ancient Philoſophers, Whether a Child may not confer more Benefits on his Father than he has receiv'd from him? This hath been ſometimes bravely determined in the Affirmative among us, when Fathers have by the Means of their own Children, been born again.

One of my Neighbours had a Son which died when he was about five or ſix Years old. The Man's Religion extended no further, than to Prayer with his Family on the Lord's Days. All the reſt of the Week his Worldly Heart was by the Cares of this World indiſpoſed for Devotions. The Mother of the Child therefore pray'd with her Children every Day; and ſhe ſaw the good Effects of it upon them. This Child lay ſick for divers Weeks; in which time he often called on his Mother to pray for him, never on his Father. And when the Lords-Day arrived, the Child would with obſervable Joy, utter that Expreſſion, This is the Day on which my Father uſes to go to prayer. The Words of the Dying Son ſo ſtuck in the Mind of his Father, that with many Tears he not only bewailed and reformed this his Neglect of his Family-Prayer; but alſo became, as far as could be judged, a ſincerely Godly Man, dying afterwards in the Fear of God.

II. Some have obſerv'd that for the Generality of them who are effectually brought home unto God under the conſtant Preaching of the Goſpel, between Fifteen and Thirty, is the Age wherein moſt of the Elect become call'd. Nevertheleſs New-England hath afforded many Examples of Children, which have in their early Infancy been marvellouſly filled with the Spirit of Chriſt; and ſome of theſe Examples have been afterwards publiſh'd unto the World. Moreover, That the Grace of God, may be diſplay'd, as truly Sovereign, ſome among us that have liv'd unto Old Age, poor, graceleſs, Godleſs, Wretchleſs, have then paſſed under changing Operations and Renovations, from the Word of the Grace of God upon their Souls. In the primitive Times, there was one Victorius, a very Old Man, turned unto Chriſtianity; the Church would not for ſome while receive him: For, thought they, Old Sinners do not uſe thus to turn and live; but he evinced the Reality of his Turn at ſuch a rate, that they ſang Hymns about it in the Chriſtian Aſſemblies; and it was much proclaim'd, Victorius is become a Chriſtian! Victorius is become a Chriſtian!

Among other Inſtances of ſuch a matter, in the Churches of New-England, One was a Man of Lancaſter, who arrived in Age to ſo many Years above an hundred, that he had lived in Wedlock with his Wife Sixty three Years, and yet ſhe was Thirty five Years younger than himſelf; and he was able to follow his Toils at Husbandry, very livelily about a Month before his Death. This Man had been all his Days a poor, ignorant, ungodly Man, and after he had heard ſo many Thouſands of Sermons, unacquainted with the very Principles of his Catechiſm. Nevertheleſs when he was about an hundred years old, God bleſſed the Miniſtry of his Word, unto this Man's awakening; the Man became a diligent Enquirer after the Things of the Life to come, and a ſerious Attender on all that was Religious. He arrived unto ſuch Meaſures of a well informed Piety, that the Church, which was very ſtrict in the Terms of their Communion, yet received him into their Communion ſome Years before he died; wherein he continu'd under a good Character ſo long as he continu'd in the World.

III. When a Great Sinner cried out, My Sin is greater than can be forgiven, it was by Auſtin well replied, Cain, thou lyeſt! A Malefactor once going to his Execution, in a Tranſporting Senſe of Great Mercy to a Great Sinner, kept crying out, God is a great Forgiver! God is a great Forgiver! So thought one who died at our Salem-Village in December 1688. This Man, (whoſe Name was Wilkins) had ſignalized himſelf by a bad Life, until he had ſpent fifty Years, on the lewd and rude Courſes of Notorious Ungodlineſs. Tho' he had enjoy'd the Benefits of a Pious Education, yet he ſhook off all the Yokes which that Education had laid upon him. He became a foul-mouth'd Scoffer at all good Men and good Things, and a baſe Mocker of Church-Members in particular. The Vices of Drunkenneſs, and Lying, and Swearing, made the Characters of his Converſation. Sabbath-breaking made him infamous among Sober, and Promiſe-breaking among Honeſt People; and his Diſobedience to his Parents was not unequal to the reſt of his Diſorders. Original Sin in the furtheſt Efforts of it, filled his whole Walk for half an hundred Years; at which Age he left the World; and had ſate under, and ſinn'd againſt the Means of Grace all this while.

But yet, Reader, prepare thy Admirations! This Enormous Liver was wonderfully regenerated before he died. The Great God ſo bleſſed and owned the Miniſtry of his Word, that the Efficacy thereof upon him, did become conſpicuous to Aſtoniſhment. He became an Heart-broken Penitent, and ſo devout, ſo penſive, ſo humble, that every one ſaw a New Creature in him. He mourned for all his former Faults, and his mournful Complaints reached unto the Plague of his Heart, as the Root of all. He reformed what was amiſs in him, and applied himſelf with an exceeding Vigour unto the Lord JESUS CHRIST our only Saviour, for his Great Salvation. While the Lord was thus beginning his heavenly Impreſſions upon him, he fell mortally ſick; and it was not long before he paſſed out of this World with a wonderful Aſſurance of his Intereſt in a Better.

It were endleſs to reckon up the Extraordinary Paſſages which occurred in the Sick and Laſt Weeks of his Life: but ſome of them were ſuch as theſe:

'Oh! what a Wonder of Mercy is it (ſaid he) 'unto my Soul, that God hath not caſt me im'mediately into Hell, and given me no Time to 'repent; or to beg for an Heart to repent! But 'great Mercy hath ſpared a great Sinner.

'——The ſtouteſt Man (ſaid he) that ever 'lived, ſhould he but ſeriouſly think on ETER'NITY, and have no CHRIST to fly unto, it 'would ſo ſink the Heart of him, that he could 'never bear it; but the Lord will ſhew Mercy 'to my diſtreſſed Soul.

He gave himſelf wholly to Prayer, and would excuſe Watchers from ſitting with him, that he might be at leiſure for Communion with God above. Sometimes he would give a Start as he lay; and being asked the Reaſon of it, he ſaid, Oh! I have a great Work to do, and but a little Time to do it.

The Conflicts which he endured in his Mind, were intolerable; under which, he Day and Night kept wreſtling with God for his Mercy.

One Morning his Brother enquiring of him how he did, he replied, 'Oh! I have had as 'doleful a Night as ever Man had. I have had 'Three great Enemies this Night encountering 'with me; the Fleſh, the World and the Devil. I have 'been this Night both in Hell and in Heaven;

‘ and I can truly ſay with David, All this Night ‘ long I have watered my Couch with my Tears. ‘ But, as the Day broke, my Saviour came and ‘ vanquiſhed the Devil, and told him, That he had ‘ no Right in me; for he had redeem'd me with his ‘ own Blood.

Unto his Aged Father he ſaid, ‘ Sir, I have ‘ ſelt a great Work on my diſtreſs'd Soul: This your ‘ Son was loſt, and is found; was dead, and is alive. ‘ Doleful Nights have I ſeen: The Thoughts of ‘ my Sins did ſorely oppreſs me. When I would ‘ be crying to my dear Saviour for his Mercy, he ‘ would ſeem not to pity me, but ſay, Thou haſt ‘ been a Servant of the Devil, and of thy Luſt, and ‘ doſt thou now come to me? I have been calling to ‘ thee, and thou haſt been hardening thy Heart at my ‘ Calls, and doſt thou expect Mercy after all? And ‘ then the Devil would put in, ſaying, Thou ‘ haſt been my Vaſſal ſo long, thy Cries for Mercy are ‘ now all too late. I have alſo ſeen the Face of an ‘ Angry God, and that is the Terribleſt Thing ‘ that was ever ſeen. I then found no Stay for ‘ my diſtreſſed Soul; but Free Mercy! Free Mercy! ‘ The Lord now put under me his Everlaſting ‘ Arms, and gave me an Heart ſtill to pray, and ‘ ſay, Lord Jeſus, Mercy for thy Names ſake, ‘ Mercy for thy Names ſake*!* My Redeemer ‘ would ſay, Thou art a Great Sinner and an Old ‘ Sinner! The Anſwer of my Soul was, Truth, ‘ Lord; but even ſuch Sinners have already found ‘ Mercy at thy Hands. I come to Thee; for with ‘ Thee the Fatherleſs find Mercy.

He would ſpeak forth into very high Expreſſions. His great Comfort he fetched from Mat. 11. 28. Come to me, and I will give you Reſt. He would now cry out, ‘ O the Riches of Free- ‘ Grace! There are thouſands of thouſands, and ‘ ten thouſand times ten thouſand in the Third ‘ Heaven rejoicing over a Great and an Old Sin- ‘ ner coming to Glory*!* O glorifie FREE- ‘ GRACE for ever!

He would ſay, ‘ O bleſſed Sickneſs, bleſſed ‘ Sickneſs! What a Friend haſt thou been to me! ‘ and now welcome Death, or Welcome Life; ‘ what my Redeemer pleaſe. O, that I could ‘ declare unto my Relations and Neighbours; ‘ yea, that I could declare unto Kings and Worlds ‘ What the Lord hath done for my Soul*!*

He would reflect on the Humiliation of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, with an amazed and a tranſported Soul: He would break forth into a great Adoration of it, and ſay, ‘ Oh! this wonderful ‘ Mercy to undone Sinners! He would alſo make that one of his Admirations, ‘ O, the glorious ‘ Work of Faith, which rolls it ſelf on Chriſt a- ‘ lone!

He talked in Strains that were ſurpriſingly Prophetical, concerning the Changes which quickly after came on our Government; and of the Succeſs which God would give unto the (then) Prince of Orange, in the Deſcent which we then had newly heard, that he was intending upon England.

His Counſel to every one was, To make their Calling and Election ſure. And he would often ſay, ‘ Oh! I am an Old Sinner, and but a ‘ Young Convert! I am fifty Years old, and have ‘ lived but ſeven Weeks all this while.

To his Brethren he ſaid, ‘ You are careful a- ‘ bout a Garment for me, under my Weakneſs ‘ this Winter: But, Brothers, I have a better ‘ Garment than you can provide for me; the ‘ long white Robe of the Righteouſneſs of Je- ‘ ſus Chriſt, will cover me all over.

He kept praying, and praiſing, and ſinging of Pſalms till his End came; and then being taken Speechleſs and Senſeleſs, his Friends apprehended him juſt come in a manner to his laſt Gaſp. Thus he lay for divers Hours drawing on; but at length he ſtrangely revived ſo far, that he ſprang up in his Bed, ſpreading his Arms abroad, as tho' going to leap into the Arms of a Redeemer, and ſhouting, ‘ O my Friends, Heaven rings all ‘ over at this; a Great and an Old Sinner coming ‘ to Heaven! Behold in my Father's Houſe ‘ are many Manſions: If it had not been ſo, my ‘ Saviour would not have ſaid it. But he is gone ‘ to prepare a place for me. O, the Riches of ‘ Grace! O glorifie Free-Grace for evermore. —— And ſo he lay down, he expired, he went away, to the Reſt of God.

IV. Reader, paſs thy Judgment on a thing that has newly hapned. The Story is publiſhed among us, and no body doth, or can doubt the Truth of it.

In Barwick of our New-England there dwelt one Ephraim Joy, as infamous a Drunkard as perhaps any in the World. By his Drunkenneſs he not only waſted his Eſtate, but ruined his Body too. At laſt, being both poor and ſick, and therewithal hurried by ſore Temptations, a Gentleman of Portſmouth, out of pure Charity and Compaſſion took him into his Houſe. While he lay ill there, the approaches of Death and Hell, under his Convictions of his debauch'd Life exceedingly terrified him. Amidſt theſe Terrours, he dreamt that he made his appearance before the Tribunal of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Judge of the World, by whom he was condemned; whereupon he had a Sight of the Horrors in the State of Damnation, which was now arreſting of him. He cried with an Anguiſh of Importunity unto the Judge for a Pardon; but his Eternal Judge anſwered him, that he would not yet give him an Abſolute Pardon, but allow him 14 Days to repent; in which time, if he did repent, he ſhould have a Pardon. He dreamt that accordingly he repented and was pardon'd, and at the 14 Days End received into Heaven. The poor Man declared his Dream to the People of the Houſe, and ſent for the Help of Miniſters and other Chriſtians; and expreſſed the Humiliations of a very deep Repentance. As he drew near his End, he grew daily more lively in the Exerciſes of his Faith on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, relying on him for Salvation; until he confidently ſaid, that his Peace was made with God. But behold at the Expiration of the 14 Days preciſely and exactly ac-according to his Dream, he died. Yea, and he died full of that great Joy which gave no little, to the Spectators.

Pſal. CXIX. 120. My Fleſh trembleth for fear of thee, and I am afraid of thy JUDGMENTS.

IT cannot be ſaid of any Man as it is ſaid of the Leviathan, He is made without Fear; but Fear is one of thoſe Natural Paſſions, which the Maker of Man hath infuſed into him to move him in the Matters of his Happineſs. And indeed if the Spirit of Man were deſtitute of all Fear, it would want a Sinew, needful to manage him in many of his Motions. But this Affection of our Fear, by which we have ſuch Apprehenſions of Evils as to fly from them, as 'tis uſeful to us in all our concerns, thus 'tis of moſt eminent Uſe to us in the Concerns of Religion. Without the Exerciſe of ſome Fear, no real Religion can be exerciſed: If we would ſerve the Lord, it muſt be with Fear; If we would keep the Commandments of God, it is our Fear of Him that will be Cuſtos utriuſque Tabulæ.

In the Sacred Oracle now before us, behold ſuch a Fear exemplified! Solomon the Wiſe once wrote that Maxim of Wiſdom, Happy is the Man that feareth always. And he had the Example of his Bleſſed Father, to inform him of, and confirm him in ſuch a Maxim. David was as great an Inſtance of undaunted Valour and Courage, as perhaps any that ever lived: His Fortitude was Heroical. Yet we find him fearing always: And well might he fear, when he had ſuch a formidable Object for his Fear, as that which is propoſed in the Text now before us.

The Pſalmiſt in our Context is making his Obſervations upon the Diſpenſations of the God of Heaven towards ungodly Men on Earth. Ungodly Men had been very high in their worldly Advancements and Advantages; but, ſaith he, Lord, I ſee thee treading of them down! Ungodly Men had cleaved unto the People of God, as if they had been of one Metal with them, and their Fate and Lot had been one; but, ſaith he, Lord, I ſee thee putting ting them away like Droſs. Now, there is a two-fold uſe which the Pſalmiſt makes of theſe Obſervations.

One is Love. Therefore I love thy Teſtimonies.

Another is Fear. My Fleſh trembleth for fear of Thee, and I am afraid of thy Judgments.

The Degree of the Fear thus expreſſed, is remarkable. One of the Ancients who underſtood Hebrew, as few of them did, renders it, Horripilavit Caro mea: (q. d.) My Hair even ſtands on End with Fear. And the Septuagint renders it, My Fleſh is pierc'd with Fear as with Nails. But there is no need of evaporating our Diſcourſe in Criticiſms on the Language of our Text. The plain Language, and the Doctrine of it is,

That a very Trembling Fear of God in his Judgments, is what all Men ſhould, and what Good Men will, have their Souls exceedingly Awed withal.

If you will hear the Sum of the matter, there is this CASE,

To be diſtinctly with all due Brevity ſpoken unto.

What is the trembling Fear of God in his Judgments which is to be entertain'd in our Souls? And ſo, What are thoſe Judgments of God, whereof it becomes us with a trembling Fear to be Afraid?

Behold the Steps, by which we ſhall arrive to a full Anſwer of the Important Caſe thus before us.

I. The Fear of God comprehends the whole of that Religion, whereto the Will of God obligeth us. Indeed in a Natural Fear, we are carried from what we Fear. But a Gracious Fear will carry us to the God, who is therein our Fear; To fear God, is to chooſe him, to love him, to truſt him, to ſeek him, and to draw near unto him. In this Fear of God there is preſuppoſed a Senſe of God. We muſt be none of thoſe Fools, who ſay, There is no God. Our Fear of God muſt not be as of an Imaginary Being, or of the frightful Non-Entities which the feeble Spirits of Children are ſcared with all. We are to be well ſatisfied, and we have all poſſible Demonſtrations, to ſatisfie us, That there is a God, whoſe Kingdom ruleth over all.

But then,

Firſt, There is in the Fear of God a Reverent Reſpect and Regard, unto all that has the Name of God upon it. We muſt have ſuch a Fear of God in us, that our God may ſpeak of us, in that Stile in Mal. 4. 2. You fear my Name. We ſhould have none but Fit, that is to ſay, Holy and Humble Reſentments of all thoſe Things whereby the Great God makes himſelf known unto us. His Titles we muſt mention with Honour; His Attributes we muſt adore, with all Affection; His Appointments we muſt approach, with all Attention. We ſhould be ſollicitous that God may be glorified, not only by our ſelves, but alſo by all the World about us. Hallow'd be thy Name, is to be the firſt Petition of our Souls.

Secondly, There is in the Fear of God, a ſtudious Concern and Caution, to avoid all that ſinful Evil by which the Law of God is tranſgreſs'd. We muſt have that Fear of God, whereto we are adviſed in Prov. 16. 6. By the Fear of the Lord Men depart from Evil. We ſhould fly from every known Sin, as from a deadly Serpent, or Poiſon, becauſe of the Offence thereby given to that God wo hath no pleaſure in Wickedneſs. When we ſee others do any thing that is forbidden and condemn'd in the Edicts of God, we ſhould be able to ſay as Nehemiah of old, But ſo do not I, becauſe I have the Fear of God! When others urge us to do any thing amiſs, we ſhould reply like Joſeph, I dare not commit ſuch things, for I fear God! And therefore the Anger of God ſhould be the Terror of our Souls: We ſhould rather incur any Miſeries, than procure that Anger which the ſtrongeſt Mountains cannot ſtand before; and count it a Fearful thing to fall into the Hands of the Living God.

Thirdly, In the Fear of God there is a Filial Care, to yield him that Service and Worſhip, which may be pleaſing unto him. In the Fear of God we muſt obey him with our Service. The Angels of Heaven, who move the Wheels in the great Changes on Earth, when they ſtood in their Service before the Throne of God which had the appearance of Fire round about him, they let down their Wings, at his Voice, in the Viſion of Ezekiel: In alluſion hereunto, the Apoſtle, ſpeaking unto Believers, that are to be as the Angels in the Kingdom of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which cannot be moved, ſays in Heb. 12. 28, 29. Serve God with Reverence and with Godly Fear: For our God is a Conſuming Fire. In the Fear of God we muſt renounce the Service of all our Idols; We muſt no more Humour the Fleſh, no more Follow the World, no more Gratifie the Devil. And we muſt now ſo devote our ſelves unto the Service of God, that we may be able to ſay, Lord I am thy Servant, Devoted unto thy Fear! He is to be our Maſter, and we ſhould leave no room for that Expoſtulation, Where is my Fear? And, in the Fear of God, we muſt addreſs him with our Worſhip. The Proſelytes which came in to embrace the true Worſhip of God, have this Diſtinction in Pſal. 115. 11. Ye that fear the Lord. In the Fear of God we muſt worſhip Him who is worthy to be feared: and both the Natural and the Inſtituted Worſhip of God, is to be continually perform'd with us; We ought to be, as he once was, Devout Perſons, who fear God, and pray always unto him.

All this is compriſed in the Fear of God. And yet you have no right Notion of it, if a CHRIST be left out of the Notion. There is a Faith implied in this Fear. The Fear of God, is, after all, to be thus deſcrib'd, and never fully, till thus deſcribed, unto us: 'Tis even ſuch a Dread of the Divine Diſpleaſure at Sin, as drives us to our Lord Jeſus Chriſt for Salvation from Sin, and from the Diſpleaſure of God againſt us for it. There never was any true Fear of God in the Days of the Old Teſtament, but ſuch as thought of and ran to a Meſſiah, as the Deliverer from the Wrath of God, and all the Fear of God in the Days of the New Teſtament acknowledges our Bleſſed Jeſus as that Meſſiah. This is that Fear of God which is the Beginning of Wiſdom: This that Fear of God wherein all Men ſhould be all the Day long. This is that Fear of God, wherein we ſhould continue all the Days that we live upon the Earth. If thou doſt not walk in this Fear of God, O Man, let thy Fleſh tremble for Fear, and be afraid of the Judgments whereto thou doſt make thy ſelf obnoxious. But this leads us to a further Conſideration.

II. Unto the Fear of God, we are by the Conſideration of his Judgments to be awakened; and we ſhould therefore be ſtruck with a very trembling Fear of thoſe Judgments. Now the Judgments of God are capable of a Diſtribution, into Judicia Judicantia, and Judicia Judicata; Judgments Denounced, and Judgments Inflicted: Judgments in the Commination, and Judgments in the Accompliſhment: the Declaration of Divine Judgments, and the Execution of Divine Judgments. With an Eye to this Diſtribution, there are theſe Counſels, which from the Great God of Judgment are to be given you.

The Firſt Counſel.

Let us with a very trembling Fear be afraid of the Judgments that are pronounced againſt the Ungodly, in the Book of God. There are uſed in our longeſt and ſweeteſt Pſalm, no leſs than Twelve ſeveral Words, to ſignifie the Revelation which God had made of his purpoſe, to ſave Men by that Son of a Virgin, who was to break the old Serpent's Head; And one of thoſe words is, JUDGMENTS. This, then is the Influence, which the Judgments of God, or the Diſcoveries which He has made of Himſelf in this Book of His, muſt have upon us: we ſhould be able to ſay, as in Pſ. 119. 161. Lord, my heart ſtands in awe of thy word. Are there any Precepts in this Book? We ſhould fear the Commandment: Fear, and Cry, Lord, I am afraid of breaking thy Holy Laws, that are ſo Holy, and Juſt, and Good! Are there any Promiſes in this Book? We ſhould fear, leſt we fall ſhort of them. Are there any Threatnings in this Book? We ſhould fear, leſt they take hold of us. Before every thing in the Book of God, we ſhould have the ſame Diſpoſition that Joſiah had when the Book of Deuteronomy was read unto him; [The Jews have a Tradition, that by the ſpecial Diſpoſal of Divine Providence the firſt Place which the Reader lit upon, was Deut. 28. 36.] That it may be ſaid unto us, Thy Heart was tender, and thou didſt Humble thy ſelf before God, when thou didſt Hear his Words. We ſhould be apprehenſive of the Almighty God, ſpeaking in every Line of this Book; and then be afraid, leſt all the Plagues written in this Book, overtake us if we ſin againſt ſuch a God. It was the Character of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in Iſa. 66. 2. He that is of a poor and a contrite Spirit, and who trembleth at my Word. When we ſee what Judgments the Word of God has threatned againſt the Children of Diſobedience, we ſhould even fall a trembling at them. And eſpecially they that are conſcious to a courſe of Diſobedience againſt God, ſhould be afraid of theſe Judgments. When Belſhazzar ſaw upon the Wall an Hand-writing, which he could not read (becauſe perhaps the Letters were ſo infolded one among another, that except a Man had the Key of the Cypher, the Sentence was not eaſie to be Uncyphered) he was wonderfully terrified at what he ſaw. Unbelievers may read that Hand-writing in this Book, If any Man believe not the Son, the Wrath of God abideth on him: and will you not be afraid of that Wrath? Impenitents may read that Hand-writing in this Book. The Lord will wound ſuch an one as goeth on ſtill in his Treſpaſſes: and will you not be afraid of that Wound? The Prayerleſs may in this Book read that Hand-writing, The Wicked ſhall be turned into Hell, and all they that forget God; and will they not be afraid of that Hell, or fear him, who is able to caſt Body and Soul into Hell? I ſay unto you, Fear him; and Oh, be afraid of theſe Judgments.

The Second Counſel.

Let us with a very Trembling Fear be afraid of Judgments that ſhall be pronounced upon the Ungodly in the Day of God. It is a Truth whereof we are very ſure, The God of Truth has given us aſſurance of it, That he hath appointed a Day in which he will judge the World in Righteouſneſs by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Now, in the Remembrance of this Day, when the Kingdom that was promiſed unto the Seed of David, ſhall be erected, it is ſaid in Eccl. 12. 13, 14. Fear God; for God will bring every Work into Judgment. We muſt expect the Approach of a Day, wherein the Quickening and Wondrous Voice of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt will raiſe us out of our Graves; a Day, wherein a Doom of Everlaſting Puniſhment, or of Life Eternal will be paſſed upon us, a Day, wherein, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, We muſt all appear before the Judgment-ſeat of Chriſt, that every one may receive ſuch things in the Body, according to what he hath done: [for thus I chooſe to render it.] Now, let us fear the Judgments, which on this Terrible Day of Judgment our Lord Jeſus Chriſt will diſpenſe unto the World. Of theſe Judgments it is, that a Great Miniſter of our Lord could ſay, in 2 Cor. 5. 11. Knowing the Terror of the Lord, we perſwade Men. There is a Terror in thoſe Judgments; Oh!

Let this Terror now perſwade us to purſue after an Intereſt in him that is to be our Judge: and let it perſwade us to repent of the Sins which our Judge will elſe damn us to Endleſs Confuſion for. When a Pagan Fœlix, was told of the Judgments which the Notable Day of God will produce upon Mankind, it is ſaid, He trembled. What; Shall we be worſe than that Unhappy Pagan? When God was only publiſhing his Judgments on the Burning Mountain, we are told, So terrible was the Sight, that Moſes ſaid, I exceedingly Fear and Quake. And ſhall not we exceedingly Fear and Quake, when we think on the Day when our Lord Jeſus Chriſt will deſcend from Heaven in Flaming Fire, to pour out his Judgments; and Behold the Lord comes with Myriads of his Saints to execute Judgment upon all! Certain I am, all this Lower World, will be ſurprized with an Horrible Fright, at that Great Revolution: An Horrible Tempeſt will then be Rain'd from Heaven upon this World: The Earth will ſhake and tremble, the Foundations of the Hills alſo will move and be ſhaken, when our Lord ſhall Bow the Heavens and come down, with a Devouring Fire about him. So then, Let us now Shake and Tremble at the Contemplation thereof. Be afraid, leſt we be found among the Ungodly, that ſhall not ſtand in the Judgment. Be afraid, leſt our Judgment then be, that of the Devil and his Angels. 'Tis a thing which I have given me in Charge, Some Save with Fear, pulling them out of the Fire. Wherefore I ſay unto you, Souls, Be Afraid, Leſt we be adjudged unto the Vengeance of Eternal Fire, even to the Fire of the Vengeance of God throughout Eternal Ages.

The Third Counſel.

There are aſtoniſhing Judgments, diſpenſed by the Hand of God, upon others in this World; and with a very Trembling Fear, we ſhould be afraid of thoſe Judgments. The Diſpenſations of God unto a ſinful World, are ſuch as give us that Invitation in Pſal. 66. 5. Come and ſee the Works of God, for he is Terrible in his Doing towards the Children of Men. 'Tis our Duty now, to be Afraid of thoſe Judgments, under which we ſee the Children of Men ſuffering, by the Terrible Diſpenſations of God. I do not mean, that we ſhould live in a Slaviſh Fear, of all Fearful Accidents, but that we ſhould be awakened unto the Fear of God, by what we ſee. Our Duty is deſcribed unto us, in Iſa. 26. 9. When thy Judgments are in the Earth, the Inhabitants of the World will learn Righteouſneſs. And now, let us proceed by theſe Rules, in this our Duty.

The Firſt Rule.

There is one thing in the Judgments of God, whereof we ſhould always be afraid; that is, Leſt we do make an Injudicious Interpretation of them. It is a Caution given to us, in Pſal. 36. 6. Thy Judgments are a great Deep, O Lord, And we ſhould be very cautious, leſt we drown our ſelves in ſuch a Deep, when we go to Fathom it. The Judgments of God are thoſe things, whereof 'tis ſaid, Whoſo is wiſe will obſerve thoſe things; but then we muſt be careful to proceed wiſely in our obſerving of them. 'Tis a dangerous thing for us to indulge our own Fancy, and much more for us to indulge our own Paſſion, in making of Gloſſes upon the Judgments of God: God will not hold the Man guiltleſs, who ſhall ſo take his Name in vain. Very ſad things may befal the People God, which if we ſhould call 'em the Judgments of God, upon them, for ſome Crime or other, this would be as great a Crime in us, as to adulterate the Coin of the Nation. The Sovereign God has made a Croſs, to be neceſſary for all the Diſciples of Him, who dy'd upon the Croſs; and he will in his Infinite Sovereignty, make choice of their Croſs for them, to exerciſe their Virtue, and prepare them and ripen them, for his Heavenly Kingdom. If we ſhould be ſo wicked, as to ſuppoſe a Curſe of God upon all that we ſee under the Croſs, Behold, we ſhould wickedly offend againſt the Generation of the Children of God. When the Sons of that Excellent Miniſter of God, Aaron, the Prieſt of the Lord, came to an untimely End, it had been a vile Impiety in the Congregation of Iſrael to have perſecuted their Worthy and Aged Father, with any Cenſorious Imputations. The Judgments of God are like to arreſt none ſooner than the Raſh Expoſitors of his Judgments on other Men. The jealous God will ſoon draw near in Judgment unto thoſe who Perſecute them whom he hath ſmitten, and who talk to the Grief of thoſe whom he hath wounded. Our Lord has given us a moſt wholſome Admonition, to be generally made uſe of when ſore Diſaſters happen unto any of our Neighbours, in Luk. 13. 4, 5. Think ye that theſe were Sinners above all others? I tell you Nay. But what ſhall we then do to determine a Judgment of God upon a Sinner for his doing ſo? I anſwer, Firſt, the Sin of the Sinner muſt be evident from the Scripture of God, before we may dare to apply a Judgment of God, unto him. 'Tis very prepoſterous for us, firſt of all to take it for granted, This or that Calamity is a Judgment of God for ſome Iniquity; and then upon this Preſumption to ſearch out that Iniquity. And, Secondly, a Judgment of God for Sin, muſt be cloathed with ſome convincing Circumſtance and Character upon it ſelf, reaſonably to ſpeak its being ſo, before we may venture to call it ſo. There muſt be ſomething in the Time of it, or in the Place of it, or in its Reſemblance to the Fault for which it comes, or in the Confeſſion of the Perſon chaſtiſed, that ſhall make the Conſcience to ſay, There are the plain Signatures of a Judgment for ſome Sin in the Stroke now given by God! Having firſt laid in this Antidote againſt Raſh Judgments of our own, about the Great Judgments of God, we may ſafely go on, to ſay;

The Second Rule.

The Judgments of God in Former Ages, they ſhould make us afraid of the Sins which procured thoſe Judgments. There came the Judgments of God upon the Murmurous Iſraelites; 'tis ſaid in 1 Cor. 10. 11. All theſe things happened unto them for Examples, and they are written for our Admonition. Behold thoſe Judgments then, and be Afraid of all Murmuring, be Afraid of all Impatience, be Afraid of all Diſcontent under der the Difficulties of a Wilderneſs, leſt we be deſtroy'd of the Deſtroyer. There came the Judgments of God upon the debauch'd Sodomites; 'Tis ſaid in 2 Pet. 2. 6. God made them an Example unto thoſe that after ſhould live Ungodly. Behold thoſe Judgments then, and be Afraid of all Debauchery, be Afraid of all Uncleanneſs, be Afraid of all Intemperance, leſt God condemn us with a Fiery and an Early Overthrow. Sirs, the Hiſtory which the Bible hath given us of the Judgments which have come from God upon them that ſinned againſt him, 'tis not only a Chronicle of what is paſt, but alſo a Calendar of what is to come. We have the Hiſtory: there we may conſider the Days of Old, the Years of Ancient times. But when we do ſo, Let us be Afraid, leſt by repeating of Old Sins, we bring a Repetition of Old Plagues upon our ſelves. When Thunder and Lightning from Heaven ſuddenly calcin'd a poor Woman into a Lump of Salt for her Covetouſneſs near three thouſand and eight hundred Years ago, that Salt was to ſeaſon us with a Fear, leſt near the Time of the End, we periſh like her, by ſetting our Hearts upon the World. Our Lord therefore ſaid, on that Occaſion, in Luk. 17. 32. Remember Lot's Wife. Thus I may ſay, Remember Judas, and be Afraid, leſt we periſh as he did in betraying the the Intereſts of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for ſome Worldly Benefit. Remember Herod, and be Afraid, leſt we periſh as he did, in proud Affectations of what belongs not unto us. Remember all the reſt.

The Third Rule.

The Judgments of God on other Places, they ſhould make us Afraid, leſt we fall within the Circuit of thoſe Judgments. When the Judgments of God have begun their Walk, we have Cauſe to be Afraid, leſt we fall into their Walk; becauſe with us, even with us alſo, there are Sins againſt the Lord our God. It was propheſied in Jer. 25. 32. Thus ſaith the Lord of Hoſts, Behold, Evil ſhall go forth from Nation to Nation. Do we behold other Nations, grievouſly ſharing in Diſtreſs of Nations, and great Perplexity, we ſhould be Afraid, leſt we alſo have our ſhare in the Diſtreſſing Judgments of God. Have the Judgments of God, ſent War, and Poverty, and Scarcity, upon other Nations? We have Cauſe to be Afraid leſt the Evil of thoſe Judgments reach unto our ſelves; and leſt we drink of that Cup of Trembling, which God ſeems to be putting into the Hands of all the Nations. A Fire on one Houſe alarms all the Town. The Judgments of God have ſet all Europe on Fire; yea, the Sparks are flown over into America; Lamentable Deſolations have been made both Northward and Southward of us: Be Afraid, then, O poor people of God, leſt thou alſo become Deſolate. When the Judgments of God were in their courſe, He ſaid unto his people in Zeph. 3. 6, 7. I have cut off the Nations, their Towers are deſolate, their Cities are deſtroyed. I ſaid, Surely, thou wilt fear me. Thus, do we ſee Deſtructions come upon other Countries. Our God ſays thereupon, Surely this Country too ſhall be Afraid, leſt I bring the like upon them.

The Fourth Rule.

The Judgments of God ſeizing upon a few Perſons only, before our Eyes, they ſhould make us Afraid, leſt we be the next, that thoſe Judgments do ſeize upon. When one Malefactor died, it was ſaid, All the People ſhall hear and fear. Thus, if the Judgments of God ſingle out one Malefactor, to puniſh him, his Voice is, Let all be Afraid! It is noted of a miſerable Miniſter, who falling into a Scandal, was preſently overwhelm'd by the Judgment of God, in Acts 5. 5. Great Fear came upon all them that heard theſe things. When the Judgments of God had ſignalized themſelves upon any ſcandalous Wretches, we ſhould all be ſtruck with a great Fear, leſt our Sins expoſe us alſo to the ſignal Rebukes of Heaven. As, if one Drunkard in a Town be drowned, it is a Loud Sermon to all the Bruits about the Town, to be Afraid, of being ſo cut off in their Bruitiſh Follies. Thus in all the Special Judgments of God upon any Offenders whatſoever, there is that Voice from Heaven to all ſuch Offenders. Tremble and Repent, leſt all of you likewiſe periſh: Yea, the Judgments of God upon a few, often ſhould be ſeriouſly pondered by the whole Body of the People, whom they belong unto, as a Decimation made by that God, who gives none Account of his Matters. God hath a Controverſie with the whole Body of the People; he might have pitch'd upon me or thee, to have been the Subjects on which he does manage this Controverſie, as well as any other of our Neighbours. Oh! what cauſe have we now to be afraid, of what we alſo have to meet withal! When the Judgments of God follow'd one Man aboard the Veſſel, bound for Tarteſſus, 'tis ſaid in Jon. 1. 16. All the other Men feared the Lord exceedingly, Truly, if any one Man aboard the Veſſel of the Publick, be followed with a Storm of Judgments from God, it becomes us all to Fear exceedingly.

The Fifth Rule.

When things that look like Judgments of God befal the dear People of God, it highly concerns other People to be afraid of the greater Judgments which they may reaſonably look for. 'Tis an Inference whereto we are directed in 1 Pet. 4. 17. Judgment muſt begin at the Houſe of GOD,—And if the Righteous ſcarcely be ſav'd, where ſhall the Ungodly and the Sinner appear? Which is but the Tranſlation of what we have in Prov. 11. 31. Behold the Righteous ſhall be recompenced in the Earth, much more the Wicked and the Sinner. Sometimes the moſt eminent Chriſtians in a Land, yea, and whole Churches of ſuch Chriſtians, meet with troubleſome Difficulties in their way to Salvation; yea, they meet with Troubles upon Earth, that ſeem to be Recompences from Heaven upon them for their Miſcarriages. Come, let all Ungodly Sinners now be Afraid: I, that never was reconciled unto God by the Blood of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; what, what will become of me throughout the Days of Eternity! Our Saviour has taught us to argue thus upon the Afflictions of good Men; If theſe things be done to the green Tree, what ſhall be done to the Dry? Thoſe Men that bring forth much of that Fruit, whereby God is glorified, are caſt into a Fire of many Afflictions. Yea, but you then that bring forth No Fruit, or Ill Fruit, and never were united unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, what a Formidable, Intolerable, Interminable Fire, is reſerved for you! Oh, be Afraid of that Fire! That bleſſed Prophet of God, even Ezekiel, muſt have the beſt Thing in his Family ſnatch'd out of it, by the Stroke of Death: Behold, I take away from thee the Deſire of thine Eyes with a Stroke; yet ſhall not thy Tears run down, ſaith the Lord. And what? was this a Judgment on the Prophet? It ſeem'd ſo; but it was indeed a Warning to the People; of whom the Lord then ſaid in Ezek 24. 24. Ezekiel is a Sign unto you: According to all that he hath done, ſhall ye do.

Sirs, Thoſe things that appear like Judgments of God upon his own Faithful Servants, they are awful Warnings unto thoſe that ſerve him not: God therein ſays unto Prophane, Chriſtleſs and Graceleſs Creatures: If I do theſe things to thoſe, whom yet I pity as a Father does his Children that ſerve him, what ſhall I do unto you that are my Enemies, and that ſerve none but my greateſt Enemy? What ſhall I do unto you? Wretches, what ſhall I do unto you? If God has ſuch Rods for his Dutiful Children, what Scourges, what Scorpions hath he for his Adverſaries?

The Sixth Rule.

Among all the Judgments of God, I know none more Tremendous, than His leaving here and there ſome Famous Profeſſors and Pretenders of Religion, to ſome Horribly Irreligious Actions. When we ſee thoſe Judgments, Then, then, above all, ſhould our Fleſh tremble for fear of God, and we ſhould be Afraid of his Judgments. 'Tis a Thing, that ſometimes does happen among us. Perſons that have been exemplary for Piety and Charity all their Days, yet have at laſt grown melancholy, and God hath ſo left them to the poſſeſſion of ſome Devil, that they have laid violent Hands upon themſelves; they have ſtarv'd themſelves, hang'd themſelves, drown'd themſelves; yea, and had a preternatural Aſſiſtance in their doing of it. Who can behold theſe unaccountable Tragedies without that Out-cry, Lord, I am afraid of thy Judgments! What uſe can we make of theſe Tragical Things, but that in 1 Pet. 1. 17. To paſs the Time of our ſojourning here in Fear? What, but that in Phil. 2. 12. To work out our own Salvation with Fear and Trembling? And, alas, what ſhall we ſay, of thoſe prodigious Falls into Sin, which the Lives of ſome that were counted Firſt-rate Chriſtians, have been reproach'd withal? What ſhall we ſay! O, our God, what ſhall we ſay of the monſtrous Crimes which we have ſeen ſome that have ſeem'd Pillars of Chriſtianity among us, to fall into? This I will ſay, that the burning Wrath of a Righteous and a Terrible God, has never been ſo much diſcovered in all our Loſſes by Sea and Land, and in all the bloody Depredations of our Adverſaries as in this One Thing; that ever now and then ſome one or other, that has been much noted for Zeal in the Ways of God, has been found in ſome damnable Act of Wickedneſs. There is the very Venom and Spirit of Hell, in theſe Judgments of God upon a Land; God would never have permitted theſe Judgments, if there were not a Generation of his Wrath, to be precipitated down into the fiery bottom of Hell by his Wrath, ſo Darkning of the Land. Infinitely better had it been for thoſe Woful Men, to have dy'd with Milſtones about their Necks, many Years ago, than thus to have offended and poiſon'd the Souls of Multitudes; And, Oh! Wo, Wo, unto Multitudes of Souls, that have hence taken an incurable and an Everlaſting Offence againſt the bleſſed Ways of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Sirs, When a provok'd God, ſhall permit the Dragon to ſweep Stars down from Heaven with his Tail, and permit the Devil to enter, and poſſeſs, and befool, and beſot, and confound ſuch as have made a Shew of a more Heavenly Frame than other Men, how can we forbear crying out, Lord, I am afraid of thy Judgments! What ſays the Apoſtle in Rom. 11. 20. Thou ſtandeſt by Faith: Be not high-minded, but fear? Oh! Be Afraid, Be Afraid, leſt by ſome Secret Sin, we grieve the Holy Spirit of God. If He withdraw, Ah, Lord! who ſhall ſtand?

The Seventh Rule.

There is a peculiar Concernment lying upon the young People among us to be Afraid of thoſe Judgments, in which they ſee the great God conſuming of our young People, with his fiery Indignation. It may be ſaid about the young Men of N. England, as it was of old ſaid about the young Men of Iſrael in Pſal. 78. 63. The Fire conſumed their young Men. And as when the Earth ſwallowed up ſome young People in the Wilderneſs of old, it is ſaid, The reſt fled at the cry of them, ſaying, Leſt the Earth ſwallow us up alſo. Behold, O our young Folks, the Earth, and the Sea, and the Pit, have been terribly ſwallowing up your Brethren. Fly then, with affrighted Souls, Fly to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and ſay, Lord, I am afraid, leſt thy Judgments do ſwallow me up alſo. Young People, O that you would ſuitably lay to heart the dreadful Judgments of God, which are conſuming of your Generation among us. Behold, Vain Youths, Behold, how the waſting Judgments of God have been upon you, till we cry out, The Curſe has devour'd our Land, and few young Men are left.

Know you not, that when our young Men have been preſs'd into the Wars, they have been but Number'd for the Slaughter, and brought forth for the Murderer? Know you not that our young Men hoping to mend their Condition at Sea, have but ſail'd the ſooner to their long Home, in running abroad? Know you not, that the Angels of Death have ſtruck our young Folks with the Ar-

Arrows of Death in Epidemical Sickneſſes? Know you not, that one ſtrange Caſualty after another, brings many of our moſt Hopeful young Folk to an untimely End? And Oh! how doleful, doleful Things have our young People ſeen, when they have been Captives in the Hands of barbarous Infidels? The Cannibals of the Eaſt have hideouſly tormented them; and as far off as the Scorching Tents of Africa, they have been fainting under the bitter Servitude of Mahometans.

Come then, Be Afraid, O our young People; Job could ſay, Deſtruction from God was a Terror to me! Be Terrified, young People, with a Fear, leſt a Deſtruction from God come upon you, in and for your Sins. Be Afraid of continuing eſtrang'd from the ſheltring Wings of your Lord Redeemer, leſt you lie open to the Storms of the Judgments of God. Be Afraid of neglecting the Great Salvation, which the Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath ſo often offer'd you, leſt the Judgments of God bring a great Deſtruction upon you. Be Afraid of all Filthineſs and all Prophaneneſs, and all Diſobedience, and all bad Company, and all the Courſes of Diſhoneſty, leſt by the Judgments of God, you die before your time, for your being wicked over-much. Oh! Fear and Flee Youthful Luſts; And now Remember your Creator in the Days of your Youth, leſt the Judgments of God, bring Evil Days upon you.

The Second Sermon.

BUT I intend all this Diſcourſe, as only an Introduction unto a more Entertaining Recapitulation of the Divine Judgments, which we have ſeen executed upon ſeveral Sorts of Sinners, among our ſelves. It cannot but be much for the Glory of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, who from his Glorious High Throne diſpenſed theſe Judgments: It cannot but be a Satisfaction unto the Good Angels of the Lord, who are oftentimes the Executioners of theſe Judgments: It is an Holy Undertaking, and it cannot but ſerve the Intereſts of Holineſs, to make our modeſt Obſervations upon the Judgments of God, which have been executed among us. As far as it may be convenient in this Diſcourſe, I will now addreſs my ſelf unto this Undertaking.

Sirs, Give me your Attention.

When that great Man the Emperour Mauritius beheld his Family overwhelmed in terrible Calamities, and five hopeful Branches of his Family ſlain before his Eyes, he humbly recited thoſe Words of the Pſalmiſt in Pſal. 119. 137. Righteous art thou, O Lord, and right are thy judgments. My Neighbours, we have ever now and then thoſe calamitous Things before our Eyes in our Neighbourhood, which, if we are not blind, we muſt pronounce The Right Judgments of a Righteous God. And I muſt now ask you to take ſome notice of thoſe Judgments.

I do moſt readily grant, that Lubricus hic locus ac difficilis, 'tis no eaſie matter to obſerve the Judgments of God: We ſhall eaſily fall into the Extreams of being either too Cenſorious and Fanciful, or elſe too Negligent in our Obſervation of the divine Judgments.

And I am not altogether ignorant of the Jewiſh Maxim, Non eſt curioſe quærendum poſt Opera Dei; omnia enim ſapienter fecit, tametſi abſcondita ſunt ab Oculis ſapientum.

But yet the Judgments of God, ſometimes are ſo circumſtanced, that he who runs may read them; and our Duty thereupon is deſcribed, in Pſal. 64. 9. All Men ſhall fear, and they ſhall declare the Work of God, for they ſhall wiſely conſider of his Doing. Learned Men have complained of it, as a Defect in the Hiſtorical Part of Learning, that there is not extant an impartial and a well atteſted Hiſtoria Nemeſeos, or, Account of Remarkable Judgments on ſcandalous and notorious Offenders. Yea the God of Heaven himſelf complains of it, when Men do not regard his Works even the Operation of his Hands.

I will now therefore, with all Faithfulneſs, lay before you ſome of thoſe Remaks which I have made upon the Judgments of God which have been Executed in this Land. Sirs, the Lord has been known by his executing of theſe Judgments: Accompany them with your Meditations! You ſhall hear nothing but what has had ſufficient Evidence: And certainly, I ſhould be Afraid of ſpeaking wickedly for God, or talking deceitfully for Him!

The Firſt Remark.

Take a due and a deep Notice, I beſeech you, of the notable Judgments with which we have ſeen the Contempt of the glorious Goſpel reveng'd by the God of Glory. We have ſeen the Goſpel, or the Tidings of Salvation by the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for miſerable Sinners graciouſly offered: We have ſeen the Offer of this Goſpel moſt ungratefully refuſ'd: But of this Refuſal what Event have we ſeen? Truly, a very terrible Event. I remember a Paſſage of Scripture, which runs thus in our Tranſlation, Iſa. 2. 22. Ceaſe ye from Man, whoſe Breath is in his Noſtrils; for wherein is he to be accounted of? But, if you pleaſe, you may thus underſtand it. The Prophet is denouncing the Judgments of God upon the Jews, for their deſpiſing of the Meſſiah; and the Denunciation is thus concluded: Now forbear as to that Man [or ceaſe from Offending and Provoking of Him,] who is now very angry [which the Hebrews expreſs by Breathe in the Noſtrils,] For none is able to dedeclare how high an Account is to be made of Him. Sirs, We have ſeen the God of Heaven very Angry; He has breath'd the Hot Lightnings of Death out of his Noſtrils; when People have made no account of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and of his Goſpel. We have ſeen theſe Four or Five Remarkables amongſt the reſt.

For a Firſt Inſtance.

The Nation of the Narraganſetts, was one of the moſt populous and powerful among all the Indians, that once filled this mighty Wilderneſs. Unto that woful Nation, the Goſpel of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, was freely tendered; but they with much Affront and Contempt, rejected it. An Holy Man, then Famous throughout our Churches, hereupon utter'd a Speech to this purpoſe: I ſpeak altogether without the Spirit of God, if this Nation be not quickly and ſtrangely deſtroyed. It was not long before this Nation, much againſt the Advice of the more aged Men among them engaged in Acts of Hoſtility againſt our people. Whereupon, ours, with a Force much inferiour unto theirs, but with a marvellous Valour and Succeſs, in the depth of Winter, made a Deſcent upon 'em. The Glorious Lord Jeſus Chriſt, whom they had ſlighted, was with our Army, and the Day was wonderfully carried againſt the tawny Infidels. Their City was laid in Aſhes. Above Twenty of their chief Captains were killed: a proportionable Deſolation cut off the Inferiour Salvages: Mortal Sickneſs, and Horrid Famine purſu'd the Remainders of 'em, So that we can hardly tell where any of 'em are left alive upon the Face of the Earth. Such was thy ſpeedy Vengeance, O Bleſſed JESUS, on the Heathen that would not know thee, nor call upon thy Name.

For a Second Inſtance.

That Renowned Evangeliſt of our Indians, the Reverend ELIOT, preached the Goſpel of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, unto Philip, the Prince of the Wompanoags; but that Monſter pulling off a Button on the good Man's Coat, ſaid, He did not value what he preached, any more than that: and he hindered his abject Subjects from embracing the Chriſtian Religion, that they might not become the Subjects of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. But what is become of 'em all? They raſhly precipitated themſelves into a rebellious War againſt the Engliſh; and at laſt Philip fell into all the Diſtreſſes that could be imagined. One of his own Vaſſals then ran away from him, and informed the Engliſh where he was. They came upon him in his Thicket juſt as he was telling his Counſellors his Dream, that he was fallen into our Hands. While he endeavoured an Eſcape, an Indian ſhot him thro' the Heart, whereof he died immediately: Nor is any Number of his People now left in the World. So do the Rejecters of thy Grace, periſh, O Lord!

For a Third Inſtance.

But the Indian Salvages are not the only Inſtances of the divine Revenges, which have enſued on Mens Undervaluing the Goſpel of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, among us. Travel with me, Sirs, to the Eaſtern Parts of this Province; O come, and behold the Works of the Lord, the Deſolations he has made in thoſe Parts of the Earth! Twice has that brave Countrey been occupied with hopeful Settlements. Hopeful! No, no; call them not Hopeful, inaſmuch as the Ordinances of the Goſpel of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, were not ſettled among them. Hence, Twice has that Countrey now been made an Aceldama; and the Settlements have all been broken up for many ſcore Miles together. The Jealouſie of the neglected Lord Jeſus Chriſt, has broke forth like an Unquenchable Fire againſt thoſe Plantations; the Fiery Wrath of Heaven has brought a Swift Deſtruction upon them. A barbarous Enemy has once and again broke in upon thoſe Towns, like an irreſiſtible Torrent, carrying all before it, until they come to thoſe Towns, where the Ordinances of the Goſpel are more upheld; and behold, there they find a Barriere, which they cannot yet get over; There the Spirit of the Lord lifts up a Standard againſt them. In one of thoſe Plantations there had newly been very prodigious Diſcoveries of Enmity againſt the Goſpel of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which had been ſometimes among them: And a bloody Adverſary ſoon ſurpriſed them, and captiv'd, and ſlaughter'd moſt of them, and laid their Habitations in Aſhes, and horribly roaſted alive ſome of the Inhabitants. Tremble, O ye People of the South, when ye are told of this!

For a Fourth Inſtance.

And there is another Contempt of the Goſpel, which we have often ſeen another way chaſtiſed among us. Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath ſaid concerning the Faithful Miniſters of his Goſpel, in Luk. 10. 16. He that Deſpiſeth you, deſpiſeth me. When the Miniſters of the Goſpel, are Holy, Prayerful, Painful, Watchful, and Fruitful Servants of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and Men filled and acted with his Holy Spirit: We have ſeen the Judgments of God many a time, arreſting thoſe that have abuſed theſe Ambaſſadors from the King of Heaven. Thus there have been angry Men among us, who have ſat over their Cups, railing at ſuch or ſuch a Miniſter of God, and hoping e're long, to ſee the Death of him. In a little while they themſelves have died miſerably, and on their Death-Beds they have cried out for that very Miniſter to help them in their Anguiſhes. Yea, you may ſometimes mark it in our Churches: A Church has long enjoy'd an excellent Miniſter; but they grow at length full of unaccountable Prejudices againſt him: The Son of God ſeeing this their Forward Folly, ſends for that Miniſter away to Heaven preſently; and let 'em ſupply themſelves with ſuch another when they can find him. And, ſhall I venture to ſay one thing more? I will ſay it. Let the Levites of the Lord keep cloſe to their Inſtructions, and God will ſmite thro' the Loins of thoſe that riſe up againſt them.

I will report unto you a Thing which many Hundreds among us know to be true.

The Godly Miniſter of a certain Town in Connecticut, when he had occaſion to be abſent on a Lord's-Day from his Flock, employ'd an honeſt Neighbour of ſome ſmall Talents for a Mechanick, to read a Sermon out of ſome good Book unto 'em. This Honeſt, whom they ever counted alſo a Pious Man, had ſo much conceit of his Talents, that, inſtead of Reading a Sermon appointed, he to the Surprize of the People, fell to preaching one of his own. For his Text he took theſe Words, Deſpiſe not Prophecyings; and in his Preachment he betook himſelf to bewail the Envy of the Clergy in the Land, in that they did not wiſh all the Lord's People to be Prophets, and call forth Private Brethren publickly to propheſie. While he was thus in the midſt of his Exerciſe, God ſmote him with horrible Madneſs; he was taken ravingly diſtracted: The People were forc'd with violent Hands to carry him home. And tho' in a few Weeks the Phyſician brought him to ſo much Compoſure, that he could jog on after ſome ſort in an obſcure Privacy the reſt of his Days; yet if any one began a Diſcourſe of any thing in Religion with him, he would ever fly out into a Fit of Madneſs, which would continue till the Diſcourſe were laid aſide.

I will not mention his Name: He was reputed a Pious Man.

If unto theſe things I ſhould add, That the Impoveriſhing Judgments of God upon our Land, have been very much for that Abominable Sacrilege, wherein the Miniſters of Chriſt almoſt all the Land over, have been as much defrauded of their Dues, as if you ſhould with-hold the Wages of your Servants, [which is a Sin that cries to God for Vengeance!] I could quote Scripture enough to give Authority unto that Aſſertion. Scripture! yea, and Experience too.

A Town in this Countrey, enrich'd with Two very Eminent Miniſters, did one Year paſs a Town Vote, That they could not allow their Miniſters above Thirty Pounds a piece that Year, for their Salaries; and behold, the God, who will not be mocked, immediately cauſed the Town to loſe Three Hundred Pounds, in that Specie of their Cattle by one Diſaſter. But I forbear it; for though the Judgments of God go on to break People in a Mortar for it, this Fooliſhneſs, I know will never depart from them.

I paſs to

The Second Remark.

Men had need beware of Raſh Speeches, eſpecially of Raſh Wiſhes; For we have ſeen Sore Judgments fall out moſt agreeably thereunto. It was wholſome Advice once given by the Town-Clerk of Epheſus, Ye ought to Do nothing Raſhly. Truly, Nor ſhould we Speak any thing Raſhly, much leſs wiſh any thing Raſhly. Sirs, The Angels of Death over-hear what we ſay, and God often gives 'em Commiſſion to ſmite a Man, Ex ore ſuo. How often have we ſeen it, That a Fool's Mouth is his Deſtruction, and his Lips are the Snare of his Soul! There was once a very Godly Man, of whom 'tis reported in Pſal. 106. 32. It went ill with him, becauſe they provoked his Spirit, ſo that he ſpoke unadviſedly with his Lips. I'll tell you what I have met withal. I have heard a Vexed Father ſay, He cared not whether he ever ſaw ſuch a Child again. That Child has gone out of his Preſence, and through the Diſpatches of Death, he has never ſeen that Child again.

I have known a weary Mother ſay, She hopes this is the laſt Child ſhe ſhall ever have; and multiplied, and unhappy Miſcarriages, ever after, have given 'em cauſe to remind what they ſaid, with Bitterneſs of Soul.

Again, There was a Sailor in a Boat bound hither from the Northward, who being diſſwaded from taking a Pipe of Tobacco, becauſe they had a Barrel of Powder aboard, reply'd, I will take it, though the Devil carry me away alive! The Fire ſome how came at the Powder, which tore the Boat in pieces, and loſt all the Goods that were in it. All the Men, were to admiration preſerved; except that one Sailor, whom they long after found in the Woods, with his Body torn to pieces. Who carried him away, think you?

Once more; A Lewd Young Man, being diſſatisfied, with the Service wherein he lived, at the Houſe of an honeſt Man, in a Neighbouring Town, when they told him, That his bad Courſes would bring him to Hell at the laſt, he wickedly ſaid, He had rather be in Hell than in his Maſters Houſe. Immediately after this, he was in a very ſtrange manner drowned off a Little Bank in the River. Take one Example more.

There was an Old Profeſſor in one of our Churches, who being under the Admonition of the Church for ſome Offences, was by his Friends call'd upon, to Repent, and Reform, and Humble himſelf. But he flew into this outrageous Anſwer, No, I will Burn, before I will Turn. And Behold the Iſſue! This Man ſome time after fell into the Fire, and was Burnt to death. Take yet one more Example. 'Tis well known to all the Neighbours.

A Man in our Narraganſett-Country having ſet his Dog to Miſchief his Neighbours Cattel, deny'd the Fact with Imprecations That he might never ſtir from the Place, if he had ſo done. The Neighbour, to whom he deny'd it, expreſſing himſelf troubled at his Impudent Lying, this Atheiſt hereupon uſed the Name of the Great God in his Imprecations, That God would never let him ſtir out of that place, if he did the Thing. The Words were ſcarce out of his Mouth, but he ſunk down dead in the Place, and never ſtirr'd any more.

Credible Perſons in this Place have been able to teſtifie unto the Truth of another ſuch Paſſage.

A Fellow aboard a Veſſel commanded by one Wollery, being charged with ſome Deceit, horribly wiſh'd That the Devil might put out his Eyes, if he had done as had been ſuſpected concerning him. That very Night a Rheum fell into his Eyes, with which in a few Days, to the Aſtoniſhment of his Company, he became ſtark-blind, even as if he had forſworn himſelf, with waſhing his Eyes in the Fountains of Sardinia. And the Phyſicians hearing how he fell into his Blindneſs durſt not undertake the Cure of it.

And, as they who curſe themſelves, often ſmart for it, [conſider of this, ye hardy Wretches, who call upon the Almighty to damn you, which the Devils themſelves are not ſo hardy, as to do!] So they who Curſe others, do horribly wound themſelves in the Recoil. You ſhall hear an Example.

A debauch'd Fellow had curs'd that Excellent Man, Governour Prince. The Governour laid before the Tranſgreſſor, the great Sin he had committed; and with a Grave, Holy, Awful Admonition, beſought him to conſider of that Scripture in Pſal. 109. 17, 18. As he loved Curſing, ſo let it come unto him, as he delighted not in Bleſſing, ſo let it be far from him. As he clothed himſelf with Curſing, like as with his Garment, ſo let it come into his Bowels, and like Oyl into his Bones. Quickly after this, a direful Cancer ſmote this Man; the Cancer appear'd firſt in his Lip, and ſo it eat away his Fleſh, and his Jaw down to his Throat, where, with inexpreſſible Torments it kill'd him.

Behold, O Man, If thou deſireſt Life, keep thy Tongue from Evil!

The Third Remark.

There is a lying Proverb, A Drunken Man gets no harm. We have ſeen the Judgments of God upon Drunkards moſt wofully confuting that Lye. I am ſure 'tis not a Proverb of Solomon's; for he ſays in Prov. 23. 29. Who hath Wo? They who tarry long at the Wine. Is it no harm for a Man to bring Sickneſs on his Body? We have ſeen Drunkards often periſhing in Diſeaſes contracted by their Debauches. Is it no harm, for a Man to bring Diſgrace on his Eſteem? We have often ſeen Drunkards become very Abjects, tho' they once were Folks of ſome Faſhion and Figure in the World. Is it no harm for a Man to bring Poverty on his Eſtate? We have often ſeen the Judgments of God fulfilling that Word, The Drunkard ſhall come to Poverty. Surely, 'tis no little Harm for Men to debaſe and confound their own Souls, and lay themſelves open unto the worſt of all the Temptations of the Devil, the worſt of all Impieties. But Sirs, how often have we ſeen woful Drunkards doing ſo? We have ſeen them turn Beaſts, yea, turn Devils! But more particularly,

A Drunken Man is in Old Engliſh as much as to ſay, a Drowned Man. To ſee then, a Drunken Man become a Drowned Man, is to ſee but a moſt Retaliating Hand of God. Why, we have ſeen this very Thing more than Threeſcore times in our Land. And I remember the drowning of one Drunkard, ſo odly circumſtanced; It was in the Hold of a Veſſel, that lay full of Water near the Shore. We have ſeen it ſo often, that I am amazed at you, O ye Drunkards of New-England; I am amazed, that you can harden your Hearts in your Sin,, without expecting to be deſtroyed ſuddenly, and without Remedy. Yea, and we have ſeen the Devil that has poſſeſs'd the Drunkard, throwing him into the Fire as well as into the Water. They have tumbled into the Fire, and then kept ſhrieking, Fire! Fire! till they have gone down to the Fire that never ſhall be quenched. Yea, more than one or two Drunken Women in this very Town, have, while in their Drink, fallen into the Fire, and ſo they have Tragically gone roaring out of one Fire into another. O ye Daughters of Belial, Hear, and Fear, and do wickedly no more.

The Fourth Remark.

It was a Thing once charged upon Sabbath-breakers, in Neh. 13. 18. Ye bring Wrath upon Iſrael by profaning the Sabbath. And have not we ſeen the Wrath of God correcting Profanations of the Chriſtian Sabbath, with Rebukes of Thunder and Lightning? And indeed ſome intelligent Perſons have noted it, That the dreadful Storms of Thunder and Lightning, which have kill'd many among us from Year to Year, as God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah; they have moſtly happened on or near the Lord's-Day; as an intimation, that Breaches of the Lord's-Day have procured the Firing of the great Artillery of Heaven upon us. However, our Land ſees little Reſt through the Judgments of God upon us for the Violations of the Sacred Reſt which he has appointed for us. And the many Diſaſters which happen on the Lord's-day among us, may be ſo many Judgments upon us for our not Sanctifying the Day unto the Lord. But all the more ſpecial Examples of Judgments coming for Sins againſt the Sabbath, I will wrap up in this one piece of Hiſtory.

I have been deſired by many Malefactors, to be with them at their Execution; and then, in thoſe laſt and ſad Minutes of their Lives, they have ſometimes cried out, This, this, is a Judgment of God upon my Sabbath-breaking; I may thank my Sabbath-breaking for all this; 'Twas for my miſ-ſpending of the Sabbath with vain Perſons, and in vain Actions, that God has left me to that Wickedneſs which has brought upon me all of this horrible Miſery! Think of this, you that ſtill ſay of the Lord's-Day, What a Wearineſs is it?

The Fifth Remark.

Diſobedient Children! My Heart akes for you; for I have ſeen the Judgments of God, making ſuch as you the moſt aſtoniſhing Monuments of his Indignation. It was a Cuſtom in Iſrael, that once a Year this Proclamation was made, from the Top of Mount Ebal, in Deut. 27. 16. Curſed be he that ſets Light by his Father, or his Mother. And all the People ſhall ſay Amen. As from the Top of that Mount, I do this Day proclaim it, That I have ſeen the Curſe of God making a Quick Work with ſuch as have not honoured their Parents; while I have alſo ſeen thoſe Children, who have honoured, and ſupported, and comforted their Parents, wonderfully proſpering under the manifold Bleſſings of God. And I pray all the People to mind it.

Very few have died on the Gallows in this place, but what have wrung their Hands upon the Ladder, with this Out-cry, ‘This is a Judgment of God upon me for my Undutifulneſs unto my Parents. My Diſobedience to my Parents has brought me hither.

But this Article of Diſcourſe may not be diſmiſſed until we have ſingled out one particular Example of the ſtrange Puniſhments which Undutiful Children bring upon themſelves, from the Judgments of God.

A Reverend Miniſter of Chriſt, that often ſerved him, in that very Pulpit, where theſe Words are uttered, once obſerved a Son, to behave himſelf undutifully towards his Father, in the Ferry-boat, which was carrying them over the River. Whereupon that Man of God ſaid unto the Young Man, ‘Young Man, I am ſorry to ſee you ſo little Regard your Father; I would ſeriouſly perſwade you to repent of your Undutifulneſs, or I will ſolemnly aſſure you, that I expect, the killing Judgments of God will overtake you, before a Year come to an End. And behold, before that Year was out, this young Man was miſerably murthered.

Hearken, my young Folks; and let not your Eye mock your Fathers, or deſpiſe to obey your Mothers, leſt the Ravens of the Valley do pick it out, and the young Eagles do eat it!

The Sixth Remark.

Unto the Contentious we have ſeen God recompence Indignation and Wrath, Tribulation and Anguiſh. Said the Apoſtle once in Rom. 16. 17. I beſeech you Brethren, Mark them which cauſe Diviſions. And I now ſay, I beſeech you Brethren, Mark the Places and the Perſons, which by Diviſions have made themſelves Notorious: Mark, what Judgments of God have Signalized them. Something of what I have marked, I will freely tell you.

I have marked it, That thoſe Places which have kept up Diviſions and Strifes, and Schiſms, have been direfully ſmitten with Spiritual Plagues, the Plagues which are of all the direfulleſt. The moſt Lively Saints in thoſe Places, have been ſoon ſnatch'd away by Death, one after another: The Power of Godlineſs hath been lamentably loſt among the Survivers, and a Leanneſs hath been ſent into their Souls: The Work of Converſion hath been at a deadly ſtand, and the Riſing Generation hath pined away in their Iniquities. Yea, there was one Church among us, wherein an uncomfortable Rupture happen'd; and a young Man in the Town was left unto an horrid Self-Murder; he drown'd himſelf: But he left behind him a Writing directed unto his Father, wherein there was this among other Paſſages; Father, my Ruin was the Stubborneſs and Unfaithfulneſs of my tender Years; and evil Counſel and evil Company; and the Differences in the Church, by reaſon whereof I grew proud, and did not carry it in my Place, as I ought, which is the wide way to Ruine. God make this young Man our Warner: His Name was Warner.

Again, I have marked it, That thoſe Perſons who have been the Grand Incendiaries in Diviſions, have been often branded with ſome Symptoms of the Diſpleaſure of God. Thoſe Perſons have been very induſtrious to blot the Names of other Men; and at laſt they themſelves have died with a Blot. This indeed is a Point wherein we muſt be ſparing; yet I may not forget, that a Counſel ſitting at a Town, for the Compoſing ſome Eccleſiaſtical Differences, our Venerable Old Mr. Wilſon ſaw one Man to be extreamly perverſe above the reſt, and moſt unreaſonably to diſturb the Peace of the Church. Whereupon, that zealous Man told the Counſel, he was confident, That the Jealouſie of God would ſet a Mark upon that Man, and that the ordinary Death of Men ſhould not befal him. It happened a little while after this, that the Man was barbarouſly murder'd by the Salvages.

Again, There was a quarrelſome Woman in a Church not far off; who having accus'd a Man in the Church of a Fault that ſhe could not prove, ſhe yet remain'd ſo irreconcilable, that ſhe would never come to the Lord's Table as long as that Man liv'd. He dying, ſhe bragg'd unto her Friends, That now ſhe would go to the Sacrament at the Lord's Table. One of them ſolemnly told her, That ſhe might yet fear a Teſtimony of the Diſpleaſure of God againſt her for her unchriſtian abſenting her ſelf ſo long from that Ordinance. And, lo, ſhe died ſuddenly, juſt before the next Sacrament was to be adminiſtred: [tho' ſhe had the Repute of a Godly Woman.] Don't then, don't ſow Diſcord any of you, leſt you be an Abomination to the Lord. Be not unpeaceable, or unplacable: God is not pleaſed with the Froward.

The Seventh Remark.

We are aſſured in 2 Pet. 2. 9, 10. At the Day of Judgment ſhall be puniſhed, chiefly they that walk after the Fleſh in the Luſt of Uncleanneſs. And it is no rare thing among us, to ſee Judgment in this World alſo overtaking them. Father Latimer once preſented unto a Great Man, a New Teſtament, with this Inſcription emboſſed on the Cover of it, Whoremongers and Adulterers God will judge. And indeed, how ſurpriſingly, how amazingly may we ſee God judging that ſort of Sinners!

A Famous Bolognian Phyſician in Publiſh'd Bills profeſs'd a Sovereign Antidote againſt an horrible Diſtemper which Men bring upon themſelves by their Uncleanneſs. But when Multitudes flock'd unto him for his Antidote, he only gave 'em the Picture of a Gallant with his Noſe eaten off. He bid 'em, that when they were going to debauch themſelves, they would look upon that Picture; and if that would not preſerve 'em, nothing would.

Not much unlike to That, is the Courſe which I am now taking, to preſerve you from Unchaſtity.

We have ſeen many, many, many, to die in their Youth; becauſe their Life has been among the unclean. We have ſeen 'em to mourn at the laſt, when their Fleſh and their Body has been conſumed. We have ſeen 'em getting a Wound, and a Diſhonour, and a Reproach that is never wip'd away. It may be, the Juſt God ſays upon the Unclean, Write this Perſon Childleſs. Or, it may be, the Lord ſays, I will kill their Children with Death. Or, 'tis poſſible, ſome very miſerable Diſaſters have attended their Offſpring; Peccatum ſeminis punitur in ſemine. Why? Becauſe that ſome old Acts of Uncleanneſs have not been enough repented of.

'Tis ſaid of Uncleanneſs, By means thereof a Man is brought unto a Piece of Bread. Some forlorn People have cried out unto me, of their deſperate Poverty; and anon, they have confeſſed, That they believ'd the Judgments of God made 'em, and kept 'em ſo poor, to revenge the ſecret, curſed, horrid Adulteries which they had wallowed in.

Yea, how many have Ripen'd themſelves for the moſt Capital Strokes of the Sword of Juſtice, by this Wickedneſs! I have known ſeveral who under a Sentence of Death, for other Crimes, wherein they thought themſelves hardly dealt withal, have cried out, Oh! 'tis for my ſecret Adulteries, that the Holy God has brought all this upon me! And how many Young Women have been executed among us for murdering of their Baſtard-Infants! But, at their Execution, this has been their Exclamation; Oh, that all young people would beware of the Snares of Uncleanneſs. By continuing in thoſe woful Snares, without any ſpeedy Repentance, we have been ruined! One of the firſt in this Land that came to ſuch an End [her Name was Martin,] had yielded unto a wicked Man ſoliciting her Chaſtity; but with ſuch Reluctances of Soul, that in her Prayers to God for Help, ſhe ſaid, If ever ſhe were overtaken again, ſhe would leave her ſelf unto his Juſtice to be made an Example. She remembred not her Vows, but was again overtaken. She Conceived, ſhe Travailed, ſhe privately Deſtroyed her Child, uſing Two ſeveral Attempts before ſhe could wholly diſpatch it. Afterwards, upon a Removal of the Family, the Murder ſtrangely came to light: God made the Infant bleed afreſh before her, for her Confuſion; She own'd the whole Truth, and ſhe dy'd for it: But ſhe was Twice turn'd off before her Expiration. Say then, ſay my Friends, to all the Temptations of Uncleanneſs, How ſhall I do this Wickedneſs, and ſin againſt God?

The Eighth Remark.

Let us a little Summ up the Gains of thoſe who have uſed irregular Methods of Oppreſſion, or of Diſhoneſty, to gain the World. I have done it; and I'll tell you what I have ſeen the Sum Total to be. The Judgments of God have brought it unto that in Jer. 17. 11. He gets Riches, and not by right; at his End he ſhall be a Fool. Father Latimer would ſpeak of a grievous Cough which would come upon them that ſwallow'd Unrighteous Gains. Truly, Loſſes have uſually follow'd upon ſuch Gains, like ſo many Coughs, and Men have cough'd and cough'd, until they vomited up all that they had got. It is the Charge of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt upon us, That no Man go beyond, or oppreſs his Brother in a Matter; becauſe that the Lord is the Avenger of all ſuch. We are told, If thou ſeeſt the Oppreſſion of the Poor, He that is higher than the higheſt, regards it. We are told, God conſiders all the Oppreſſions that are done under the Sun. There was much notice taken of this in the Infancy of our Plimouth Colony, when the poor Planters had their dependance on certain Adventurers in England. The Adventurers taking their advantages of the extream Straits which thoſe poor Planters were in, ſent over Supplies unto them at the moſt extream Rates imaginable. The poor Planters made Return in Peltry, but the Veſſel was taken by a Turks Man of War, and carried into Salley, where they ſold the Peltry for Groats a-piece; as much too low, as the Goods for which they had been return'd, were too high, and the Men were made Priſoners into the Bargain, to the great Loſs of the Adventurers. But it would ſpend many Hours to relate the Notice which might have been ſince taken of many more ſuch evident Judgments of God on the Ways of the Oppreſſor. Oh! do not learn his Ways; God gives unto all ſorts of Devourers, Letters of Repriſal to take away his unjuſt Gains from him; very commonly it ſo falls out.

There are ſome that have us'd the groſſeſt ſort of Stealing and Robbing. But, have they enrich'd themſelves? I intreat you Sirs, to make our New-Engliſh Pirates the Subjects of your Meditations. That Man is blind unto Sun-ſhine, and blind before Lightning, who ſees not the Tremendous Judgments of God purſuing of thoſe wicked Men. Let no Man after this, run greedily after the Error of thoſe Children of Perdition. But if any of you have knowingly been Sharers with them in their Gains; for God's ſake repent of what you have done: You have carry'd Burning Coals into your Feather'd Neſts; don't put a Farthing of that Money, among the reſt of your Poſſeſſions; it will conſume all the reſt.

Others have had their finer Ways of cheating; but, what has come of them? The Eſtates gotten by cheating, have been but ſo many Treaſures of Snow; the Rains of the Wrath of God have wonderfully melted them;——at leaſt, Vix gaudet Tertius Hæres.

There are Perſons that have broken by their own Extravagancies; not meerly by ſad Providences, but their own Extravagancies: Theſe have uſed more Fraudulence than Fair-dealing, in their Compoſitions with their Creditors: But have we not ſeen afterwards, that after This (as we ſay) No Butter would ever ſtick upon their Bread.

Widows, When the Eſtates of the Deceas'd Husbands have been Inſolvent, have not always given in true Accounts; They have held back a part, that they ſhould not have with-held: God has been offended at 'em; they have gone under the Scourges of God all their Days for that Offence.

Deſperate Gameſters, What hand have they made of it? I can tell what one of 'em did. He had play'd away about Forty Pounds in lewd Company, and then he fell into Horror of Conſcience, wherein he often cried out, I am all on Fire under the Wrath of God! I am all on Fire under the Wrath of God! And ſo he went and hanged himſelf,

Make all the Reſtitution you can, ye Cheats; or expect the Judgments of God upon you.—— Diſcite Juſtitiam Moniti.

The Ninth Remark.

Methinks the Publick Judgments, under which we have labour'd, have ſometimes very convictively intimated the Sins and Faults for which thoſe Judgments have been laid upon us. I will uſe a plain Dealing in this matter. When have the Judgments of God ever depriv'd us of any Good Thing, but we firſt of all have deſpiſed that Good?

We have been Senſual, Exceſſive, Unthankful, in our Enjoyment of the Fruits of our Harveſt. The Judgments of God have blaſted them.

We have made Idols of our Lands, and for the ſake thereof neglected almoſt all that is Holy, and Juſt and Good. There was a time, when thro' the Judgments of God, our Titles to them all were conteſted.

Litigious Law-Suits were ſcandalouſly multiply'd among us. The Judgments of God brought us into a time, when the Extortions of the Law made a Cry among us.

Drinking-Houſes have been a moſt undoing Stumbling-block of Iniquity, in the midſt of us. The Judgments of God brought us into a Time, when Unſufferable Villanies were perpetrated every where under the pretence of the Exciſe.

Thoſe Times are now over indeed. But our Indian Wars are not over yet: We have too far degenerated into Indian Vices. The Vices of the Indians are theſe; They are very lying Wretches, and they are very lazy Wretches; and they are out of meaſure indulgent unto their Children; there is no Family-Government among them. We have ſhamefully Indianized in all thoſe Abominable Things. Now, the Judgments of God have imploy'd Indian Hatchets to wound us, no doubt, for theſe our Indian Vices.

A Thouſand more ſuch things, may occur to a ſerious Obſervation. Sirs, Conſider the wondrous Works of God.

The Tenth Remark.

Many People have ſinned horribly, upon a preſumption that they ſinned ſecretly: but the Judgments of God, have been wondrouſly and prodigiouſly, and ſtupendouſly diſplay'd in the diſcovering of ſecret Sinners among us. David no doubt, promiſed himſelf an everlaſting Secreſie of his Tranſgreſſion. Thou didſt it ſecretly, ſaid the Prophet: And the Pſalmiſt, calling to mind that Word, own'd in Pſal. 51. 4. Againſt Thee, Thee only have I ſinned: and the Evil I have done in Thy ſight. None was privy to the Crime, except one Man, who was a Partner in it. Yea, but ſays the Lord, I'll make all Iſrael hear of it: The Sin-Confounding Judgments of God, made all the Sin to come out. Sirs, Thoſe Judgments of God have been ſo exemplified among our ſelves, That I cannot imagine how ſome guilty Wretches, whoſe Crimes are hitherto Secret, are able to walk about, having the Terrors of the Shadow of Death upon their Souls.

How many ſecret Murders have ſtrangely been diſcover'd among us! And, I believe, there are yet more to be diſcover'd.

There have been Deviliſh Filthineſſes committed among us: But, Oh, how ſtrangely have the Sins of Men found them out!

At the Southward there was a Beaſt, which brought forth a Creature, which might pretend unto ſomething of an Humane Shape. Now, the People minded that the Monſter had a Blemiſh in one Eye, much like what a profligate Fellow in the Town was known to have. This Fellow was hereupon examin'd; and upon his Examination, confeſs'd his infandous Beſtialties; for which he was deſervedly Executed.

But, I'll never confeſs, thinks many an hardhearted Sinner. No! So thought another Man, whoſe Name I could mention. He was one, who had formerly and frequently derided other Perſons, as Fools, for confeſſing againſt themſelves. This Man liv'd in Adultery, eſpecially with one Vile Woman, until God ſtruck him with a Dead Palſie, and a Quick Conſcience. Then he that had laugh'd at others for not concealing their Sins, could not conceal his own. He reveal'd his Villanies with that Woman and others, and he acknowledg'd the Juſtice of God, in compelling him to reveal them. The Woman alſo made an Acknowledgment of her Enormities: and they both dy'd for their Iniquities.

What ſhall I ſay? There have been Church-Members among us, who have made no mean Profeſſion of Religion. Theſe have gone on from year to year, in a Trade of Secret Filthineſs. Even, I know, and am a witneſs of it, ſays the Lord. Some of theſe have died in very ſad Circumſtances, and the World has never heard any thing of the Lord's Controverſie with them. Yea, but many of them have been ſtrangely detected, before they have dy'd. They have been left unto ſome fooliſh and ſottiſh Action at laſt, which has occaſion'd the Publiſhing of their Vileneſs unto all the World. The Holy Eyes of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which are like a Flame of Fire, have ſeen their damnable Hypocriſie and Impiety; and, he hath made all the Churches to know, that he ſearches the Reins and Hearts of Men: he hath made their Wickedneſſes to be declared before the whole Congregation; he hath brought the Publick Cenſures of his Faithful People upon them. He hath done much in theſe awful Judgments; and I fear, I fear, he hath yet more to do upon ſome, in the midſt of thee, O Boſton, except they repent!

The Eleventh Remark.

The Judgments of God among us, have not been more conſpicuous upon any Sinners, than upon thoſe that have made others to ſin. There are ſome whom the Scriptures call the Chief of Sinners: Thoſe who are Chief in drawing others on to be Sinners. Truly, the Judgments of God have often made theſe as Exemplary in their Plagues, as they have been in their Sins.

I have known ſome wretched Young Men in ſeveral Societies, who have been the Chief Debauchers of the Societies which they belong'd unto. But, Oh! What ſad things could I tell you, of the deadly Judgments that God hath ſhowred from Heaven upon the Heads of thoſe infamous Youths! God has made 'em the Sons of Eli with his Deadly Judgments.

Under this Head of the Divine Judgments, why ſhould I not mention the Condition of One whom I knew in this Place? The Man deny'd the Immortality of the Soul; and would go to debauch other Men with his Vile Opinion, That we have no immortal Soul in us. This poor Man came to lie on his Death-bed, and then the Terrors of God ſo Thunder-ſtruck his Conſcience, that his dying Out-cries were, Oh! what ſhall I do for my immortal Soul: What will become of my immortal Soul for ever!

And, when, alas, when will our Indian Traders apply themſelves to that Commination in Heb. 2. 15. Wo to him that gives his Neighbour drink; that putteſt thy Bottle [thy Rhum-Bottle] to him, and makeſt him drunken alſo. While there has been a moſt Obſervable Bleſſing of God upon the Preachers of Truth to the Indians, all the World may Obſerve a Judgment of God upon the Sellers of Drink to the Indians. I pray, what have the Eſtates of ſuch Men generally come to? Do; Trade on, ye Merchants of Souls, or more truly, ye Butchers of Souls; Trade on, till the Judgments of God have cauſed you to trade your ſelves into Beggary at the laſt! But know, that the Blood of Souls will be found on your Skirts. It is not very long ago, that an unuſual Accident in a Part of this Province did affright the Neighbours into ſome ſerious Thoughts of this Matter. Several Indians were made horribly Drunk by the Drink which the Engliſh had ſold unto them. Returning home over a Little Ferry, eight of them were Drown'd; and three Months after they were Drown'd [from December to March] one of their Dead Bodies came aſhore, very near the Place, where they had been ſupplied with their Drink; and lying on the Shore, it bled ſo plentifully, as to diſcolour the Water and Sand about it. Upon which the Conſiderate Spectators, thought of that Scripture, The Stone ſhall cry out of the Wall, againſt him that gives his Neighbour Drink. They thought there was a loud Cry of Blood! Blood! againſt ſome wicked Engliſh in this Matter.

The Twelfth Remark.

Finally, We have ſeen, we have ſeen, That by omitting their Prayers to God, Men beſpeak for themſelves the Judgments of God.

How many, that have liv'd Prayerleſs, have we ſeen to die Prayerleſs, or to die Hopeleſs?

We often miſcarry in our Enterprizes; now, if we would Search and try our Ways, it may be, we ſhould find, that we did not ſufficiently Pray over our Enterprizes before we reſolved upon them. How often, how often, have I ſeen this verify'd in the Judgments of God!

Yea, by a Prayerleſs Life we have ſeen Men pulling down the moſt Conſummate Judgments of God, upon their own Woſul Heads.

It was a pathetical Paſſage in the laſt Prayer of a poor Murderer that was executed in this Place not long ago.

Oh! (ſaid he) If I had gone to Prayer that Morning when I committed the Sin for which I am now to die, O Lord God! I believe thou wouldſt have kept back my Hands from that Sin!

The Day, wherein Men have gone abroad without Prayer before they went, how often have the Judgments of God made it a Day of thick Darkneſs to the Prayerleſs People?

How remarkably has that Obſervation been confirmed in the Experience of Thouſands among us, Negligentiam in orando ſemper aliqua notabilis Tranſgreſſio ſequitur. Indeed the Inſtance of Origen's Apoſtacy has been ſometimes brought with this Obſervation: But I do from the Univerſal Silence of the more ancient Writers, both before and after that ſcandalous Reporter Epiphanius, believe that whole Story of Origen to be a Sham, in After-ages invented by the Adverſaries of that excellent Man; and as falſe, as that Origen wrote the Diſcourſe, Entitul'd Origen's Lamentation.

Yea, There was an aged Profeſſor, belonging to a Church in this Town, who after many years of good repute, with good People, became a Drunken Sot, for which he was Excommunicated. After his Excommunication, he fell into bitter Anguiſh of Soul, and at length dy'd in aſtoniſhing Circumſtances. But ſome of his Dying Words were; I often pray'd unto God for a Mercy, which he ſtill deny'd me. At length I grew angry at God: Whereupon I grew ſlack in my Acquaintance with the Lord: Ever ſince which, He hath dreadfully forſaken me, and I know, that now he hath no Mercy for me. Think of theſe things; and Oh! do not ſo reject Fear, as to reſtrain Prayer before the Lord.

Theſe are the moſt peculiar Judgments of God, unto which I have accounted it not amiſs to point you; That ſo you may Tremble for fear of him, and be afraid of his Judgments.

AN

APPENDIX,

Containing an Hiſtory of ſome CRIMINALS Executed in New-England for Capital Crimes; with ſome of their Dying Speeches.

WE find in Zuinger, the mention of a City beſieg'd by a potent Enemy; where the Inhabitants took the dead Bodies of the ſtarv'd People, and ſet them in Armour on the Walls; at the Sight whereof the amazed Enemy fled.

One of the New-Engliſh Miniſters, beholding Vice beſieging his Countrey as an Enemy, ſingl'd out a Company of dead Wretches to ſet upon the Walls, in hopes that the horrible Sight would cauſe that worſt Enemy to fly before it. He publiſh'd unto the Countrey An Hiſtory of Criminals; which may be here over-again Publiſh'd, as a fit Appendix to An Hiſtory of Remarkable Judgments: For indeed in theſe Criminals the Remarkable Judgments of God were wonderfully Exemplify'd.

Pillars of SALT.

IT hath been thought, that the dying Speeches of ſuch as have been Executed among us, might be of ſingular Uſe to correct and reform the Crimes, wherein too many do live: And it has been wiſh'd, that at leaſt ſome Fragments of thoſe dying Speeches, might be preſerv'd and publiſh'd. Upon this Advice from ſome good Perſons, I have ſtollen an Hour or two, wherein I have collected ſome Accounts of ſeveral Ill Perſons, which have been cut off by the Sword of Civil Juſtice in this Land; and this Collection I ſuffer to go abroad, in hopes, that among many other Eſſays to ſuppreſs growing Vice, it may ſignifie ſomething with the Bleſſing of Heaven thereupon, to let the Vicious underſtand, what have been the Cries of our Miſerables, when paſſing into another World. Behold, an Hiſtory of Criminals, whom the Terrible Judgments of God have Thunder-ſtrook into Pillars of of Salt.

(I.)

ABout the Year 1646. here was one Mary Martin, whoſe Father going from hence to England, left her in the Houſe of a marry'd Man, who yet became ſo Enamour'd on her, that he attempted her Chaſtity.

Such was her Weakneſs and Folly, that ſhe yielded unto the Temptations of that miſerable Man; but yet with ſuch horrible Regret of Mind, that begging of God, for Deliverance from her Temptations, her Plea was, That if ever ſhe were overtaken again, ſhe would leave her ſelf unto his Juſtice, to be made a publick Example.

Heaven will convince the ſinful Children of Men, that the Vows which they make, relying on the Stability and Reſolution of their own Hearts, are of no Significancy. A Chain of Hell was upon her, and the forſeited Grace of Heaven was with-held from her; She fell a Third time, into the Sin, againſt which her Vows had been utter'd.

Afterwards going to Service in Boſton, ſhe found her ſelf to have conceiv'd: But ſhe lived with a Favourable Miſtreſs, who would admit and allow no Suſpicion of her Diſhoneſty.

A Queſtion like that Convincing One, of our Saviour's, unto the Woman of Samaria, was once odly put unto her; Mary, Where is thy Husband? And one ſaid alſo, Did I not think thou thou wert an honeſt and ſincere Creature, I ſhould verily think thou wert with Child! Theſe Paſſages, which were Warnings from God unto her guilty Soul, did ſerve only to ſtrike her with Amazement, not with any true Repentance.

She conceal'd her Crime, till the time of her Delivery; and then being deliver'd alone by her ſelf in a dark Room, ſhe murdered the harmleſs and helpleſs Infant; hiding it in a Cheſt from the Eyes of all, but the Jealous GOD.

The Blood of the Child cried, when the Cry of the Child it ſelf was thus cruelly ſtifled. Some Circumſtance quickly occurr'd, which oblig'd her Friends to charge her with an Unlawful Birth. She deny'd it impudently. A further Search confuted her Denial. She then ſaid, The Child was dead born, and ſhe had burn'd it to Aſhes. With an Hypocritical Tear, ſhe added, Oh, that it were true, that the poor Babe were any where to be ſeen! At laſt, it was found in her Cheſt; and when ſhe touch'd the Face of it before the Jury, the Blood came freſh into it. So ſhe confeſſed the whole Truth concerning it.

Great Endeavours were uſed that ſhe might be brought unto a true Faith in the Blood of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt for the Pardon of her Blood-guiltineſs; and it may be, none endeavour'd it more than that Reverend Man, Old Mr. Wilſon, who wrote ſeveral Sheets of pathetical Inſtructions to her while ſhe was in Priſon. That Renown'd Man, Old Mr. Cotton alſo, did his part in endeavouring that ſhe might be Renew'd by Repentance; and preach'd a Sermon, on Ezek. 16. 20, 21. Is this of thy Whoredoms a ſmall matter, that thou haſt ſlain my Children? Whereof great Notice was taken. It was hoped, that theſe Endeavours were not loſt: Her Carriage in her Impriſonment, and at her Execution, was very Penitent. But there was this Remarkable at her Execution: She acknowledged her Twice eſſaying to kill her Child before ſhe could make an End of it: And now, through the Unskilfulneſs of the Executioner, ſhe was turned off the Ladder Twice before ſhe died.

(II.)

THere was a miſerable Man at Weymouth; who fell into very ungodly Practices; but would particularly ſignalize his Ungodlineſs, by flouting at thoſe Fools (as he call'd 'em) who would ever confeſs any Sins, laid unto their Charge.

This Man liv'd in abominable Adulteries; but God at length ſmote him with a Palſie. His Dead Palſie was accompany'd with a Quick Conſcience, which compell'd him to confeſs his Crimes: But, he confeſs'd them ſo indiſcreetly, that by their Divulgation, they reach'd the Ears of the Authority: And in this Confeſſion, there was involv'd and concern'd, the Wretched Woman, who chiefly had been concern'd with him in the Tranſgreſſion.

By the Law of this Countrey, Adultery was then a Capital Tranſgreſſion, as it hath been in many other Countries: And this poor Adulterer could not eſcape the Puniſhment which the Law provided.

(III.)

ON June 6. 1662. at New-haven there was a moſt Unparallel'd Wretch, one Potter, by Name, about ſixty years of age, Executed for damnable Beſtialities; although this Wretch had been for now Twenty Years a Member of the Church in that place, and kept up among the Holy People of God there, a Reputation, for ſerious Chriſtianity. It ſeems that the Unclean Devil, which had the poſſeſſion of this Monſter, had carry'd all his Luſts with ſo much Fury into this one Channel of Wickedneſs, that there was no notice taken of his being wicked in any other. Hence 'twas, that he was Devout in Worſhip, Gifted in Prayer, Forward in Edifying Diſcourſe among the Religious, and Zealous in Reproving the Sins of the other People; Every one counted him a Saint: And he Enjoy'd ſuch a Peace in his own Mind, that in ſeveral Fits of Sickneſs, wherein he ſeem'd Nigh unto Death, he ſeem'd Willing to die; Yea, Death (he ſaid) Smiled on him. Nevertheleſs, this Diabolical Creature, had liv'd in moſt infandous Buggeries for no leſs than Fifty Years together; and now at the Gallows there were kill'd before his Eyes a Cow, two Heifers, three Sheep, and two Sows, with all of which he had committed his Brutalities. His Wife had ſeen him confounding himſelf with a Bitch Ten Years before; and he then excus'd his Filthineſs as well as he could unto her, but conjur'd her to keep it ſecret: but he afterwards hang'd that Bitch himſelf, and then return'd unto his former Villanies, until at laſt his Son ſaw him hideouſly converſing with a Sow. By theſe means the burning Jealouſie of of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, at length made the Churches to know, that he had all this while ſeen the Cover'd Filthineſs of this Helliſh Hypocrite, and expos'd him alſo to the juſt Judgment of Death, from the Civil Court of Judicature. Very remarkable had been the Warnings which this Hell-hound had receiv'd from Heaven, to repent of his Impieties. Many Years before this he had a Daughter who dreamt a Dream, which caus'd her in her Sleep, to cry out moſt bitterly; and her Father then with much ado, obtaining of her to tell her Dream, ſhe told him, ſhe dreamt, that ſhe was among a Great Multitude of People to ſee an Execution, and it prov'd her own Father that was to be hang'd, at whoſe Turning over, ſhe thus cry'd out.

This happen'd before the time that any of his Curs'd Practices were known unto her.

At another time, when there was a Malefactor adjudg'd in thoſe Parts to die, for the very ſame Tranſgreſſions which this Rotten Fellow was guilty of, the Governour, with ſome of the Magſtirates, moſt unaccountably, without any manner of Reaſon for their ſo doing; turn'd about unto this Fellow, and ſaid, What think you? is not this Man worthy to die? He now confeſſed, That theſe Warnings did ſo awaken his Conſcience, as to make him for a time leave off his Infernal Debauches; and ſo he ſaid, He thought all was pardon'd, all was well with him. Nevertheleſs he return'd unto his Vomit, and his Quagmire, until the Sentence of Death at laſt fell upon him; and then he acknowledg'd, That he had liv'd in the Sin of Beſtiality, ever ſince he was Ten Years old, but had ſometimes intermitted the Perpetration of it for ſome Years together. During his Impriſonment, he continu'd in a Sottiſh and Stupid Frame of Spirir, and marvellouſly ſecure about his Everlaſting Pardon and Welfare; but the Church whereto he belonged, kept a Solemn Day of Humiliation on this Occaſion, wherein Mr. Davenport preach'd on Joſh. 22. 20. Did not Achan commit a Treſpaſs in the Accurſed Thing, and Wrath fell on the Congregation of Iſrael? And in the Cloſe of the Faſt, that Faithful People of God Excommunicated this Accurſed Achan from their own Society. But, as I have ſeen Bewitch'd Self-Poiſoners under a ſingular Energy of ſome Devil, obſtinately refuſe all offer'd Relief, until the Poiſons had prevail'd ſo far, that all Relief was too late, and then with Roaring Agonies they would have given Ten Worlds for it; So this Bewitched Beaſt, that had not been afraid of Dying till he came to the Place of Execution, when he came there, he was awaken'd into a moſt Unutterable and Intolerable Anguiſh of Soul, and made moſt lamentably deſperate Out-cries; among which Out-cries, he warn'd Men particularly to Take heed of neglecting Secret Prayer; which, he ſaid had been his Bane. He ſaid, he never us'd Secret Prayer in his Life, and that he frequently omitted Family Prayer too; Yet, he ſaid, he had Pray'd and Sinn'd, and Sinn'd and Pray'd; namely, by Ejaculations, with which he contented himſelf, throwing Set Prayer aſide. But ſo he periſh'd!

(IV.)

AN Engliſh Ship (in the year 1673,) Sailing from ſomewhere about the Mouth of the Streights, was mann'd with ſome Cruel Miſcreants, who quarrelling with the Maſter and ſome of the Officers, turn'd them all into the Long Boat, with a ſmall Quantity of Proviſions, about an Hundred Leagues to the Weſtward of the Spaniſh Coaſt.

Theſe Fellows, in the mean time ſet Sail for New England; where, by a Surprizing Providence of God, the Maſter, with his Afflicted Company in the Long Boat, alſo arriv'd; all, except One, who died of the Barbarous Uſage.

The Countenance of the Maſter was now come Terrible to the Rebellious Men, who, though they had Eſcap'd the Sea, yet Vengeance would not ſuffer to live a-ſhore. At his Inſtance and Complaint, they were Apprehended; and the Ringleaders of this murderous Piracy had a Sentence of Death Executed on them in Boſton.

Under that Sentence, there was heard among them a grievous Lamentation for this; Their Education had been under the Means of Grace, and the faithful Preaching of the Goſpel in England; but they had ſinned againſt that Education.

And one of them ſadly cry'd out, Oh! 'tis my Drunkenneſs, 'tis my Drunkenneſs, that hath brought me to this lamentable End!

The Horrors which attended the Chief of theſe Malefactors (one Forreſt) in the laſt Hours of his Life, were ſuch as exceedingly aſtoniſh'd the Beholders. Though he were a very ſtout Man; yet now his Trembling Agonies and Anguiſhes were inexpreſſible.

One Speech let fall by him, was, I have been among drawn Swords, flying Bullets, roaring Cannons amidſt all which, I knew not what Fear meant; but now I have dreadful Apprehenſions of the dreadful Wrath of God in the other World, which I am going into, my Soul within me is amazed at it.

(V.)

ON March 18. 1674. two Men, whoſe Names were Nicholas Feavour and Robert Driver, were Executed at Boſton.

The Crime for which they were Executed, was the Murder of their Maſter; whom, upon the Provocation of ſome Chaſtiſement, which he had given them, they knock'd on the Head with an Ax, in their bloody Rage.

After they were condemn'd, they beſtowed their Lamentations not only on the Particular Crime, which had now brought them to their untimely End, but alſo on ſome others, for which their Conſciences told them, that the Righteous God had left 'em unto This.

One of 'em ſaid, His Pride had been his Bane; For, he thought much of it, that ſuch a one as he, ſhould be a Servant; and he would ſometimes utter ſuch Words as theſe, I am Fleſh and Blood as well as my Maſter; and therefore I know no reaſon, why my Maſter ſhould not obey me, as well as I obey him. And now, ſaid he, See what my Pride has brought me to!

One of them alſo ſaid, That his Idleneſs had ruin'd him: He would not Induſtriouſly follow his Calling, but live an Idle, Slothful Vagrant Life. This, he ſaid, had undone him.

And one of them ſaid, That his Diſobedience to his Parents, had brought this Miſery upon him. His Father, he ſaid, gave him good Inſtructions when he was a Child: But he regarded them not. He would not go to a School, when his Father would have ſent him to it. He would not go to a Trade, when his Father would have put him to one. After his Father was dead, he would not be Subject unto them that had the Charge of him: He ran away from them; and after that he ran away from ſeveral Maſters. Thus he ran into the Jaws of Death.

Theſe things are particulariz'd in the Sermon preach'd juſt before their Execution; and afterwards printed under the Title of, The Wicked Man's Portion.

(VI.)

ON Sept. 22. 1681. One W. C. was Executed at Boſton for a Rape committed by him, on a Girl that liv'd with him; though he had then a Wife with Child by him, of a Nineteenth or Twentieth Child.

This Man had been Wicked overmuch. His Parents, were godly Perſons; but he was a Child of Belial. He began early to ſhake off his Obedience unto them; and early had Fornication laid unto his charge: After which, he fled unto a diſſolute Corner of the Land, a Place whereof it might be ſaid, Surely the Fear of God is not in this Place: He being a Youth under the Inſpection of the Church at Roxbury, they, to win him, invited him to return unto his Friends, with ſuch Expreſſions of Lenity towards him, that the Reverend Old Man their Paſtor, in a Sermon on the Day when this Man was Executed, with Tears bewail'd it.

After this, he liv'd very Diſſolutely in the Town of Dorcheſter; where, in a Fit of Sickneſs, he Vow'd, That if God would ſpare his Life, he would live as a new Man: but he horribly forgot his Vows. The Inſtances of his Impiety grew ſo Numerous and Prodigious, that the Wrath of God could bear no longer with him; he was ripen'd for the Gallows.

After his Condemnation, he Vehemently proteſted his Innocency of the Fact, for which he was condemn'd; but he confeſs'd, That God was Righteous, thus to bring Deſtruction upon him, for ſecret Adulteries.

A Reprieve would have been obtain'd for him, if his fooliſh and froward Refuſing to hear a Sermon on the Day appointed for his Execution had not hardned the Hearts of the Judges againſt him. He, who had been a great Scoffer at the Ordinances of God, now expos'd himſelf, by being left unto ſuch a Sottiſh Action!

He had horribly ſlighted all Calls to Repentance, and now, through ſome Wretches overperſwading of him that he ſhould not die according to the Sentence and Order of the Court, he hardened himſelf, ſtill in his unrepentant Frame of Mind.

When he came to the Gallows, and ſaw Death (and a Picture of Hell too in a Negro then burnt to Death at the Stake, for burning her Maſter's Houſe, with ſome that were in it,) before his Face, never was a Cry for Time! Time! A World for a little Time! The Inexpreſſible worth of Time! utter'd with a more unutterable Anguiſh.

He then declar'd, That the Greateſt Burden then lying upon his miſerable Soul, was his having lived ſo unprofitably under the Preaching of the Goſpel.

(VII.)

ON March 11. 1686. was Executed at Boſton, one James Morgan, for an Horrible Murther. A Man, finding it neceſſary to come into his Houſe, he ſwore he would run a Spit into his Bowels; and he was as bad as his Word.

He was a paſſionate Fellow; and now, after his Condemnation, he much bewail'd his having been given to Curſing in his Paſſions.

The Reverend Perſon, who preach'd unto a great Aſſembly, on the Day of this poor Man's Execution, did in the midſt of his Sermon, take occaſion to read a Paper which he had receiv'd from the Malefactor then preſent in the Aſſembly. It was as followeth.

‘I James Morgan, being condemn'd to die,
‘ muſt needs own, to the Glory of God, that
‘ He is Righteous, and that I have by my Sins
‘ provok'd him to deſtroy me before my time.
‘ I have been a great Sinner, guilty of Sabbath-
‘ breaking, of Lying, and of Uncleanneſs; but ‘ there are eſpecially two Sins whereby I have ‘ offended the Great God; one is that Sin of ‘ Drunkenneſs, which has cauſed me to commit
‘ many other Sins; for when in Drink, I have ‘ been often guilty of Curſing and Swearing, and ‘ Quarrelling, and ſtriking others. But the Sin,
‘ which lies moſt heavy upon my Conſcience, is ‘ That I have deſpiſed the Word of God, and ‘ many a time refuſed to hear it preach'd. For ‘ theſe things, I believe God has left me to that,
‘ which has brought me to a ſhameful and mi-‘ ſerable Death. I do therefore beſeech and ‘ warn all Perſons, young Men eſpecially, to take ‘ heed of theſe Sins, leſt they provoke the Lord
‘ to do to them as he has juſtly done by me. And,
‘ for the further Peace of my own Conſcience,
‘ I think my ſelf oblig'd to add this unto my ‘ foregoing Confeſſion, That I own the Sentence
‘ which the Honour'd Court has paſs'd upon me, to be ‘ Exceeding Juſt: inaſmuch as (though I had no
‘ former Grudge and Malice againſt the man ‘ whom I have kill'd, yet) my Paſſion at the time
‘ of the Fact, was ſo outragious, as that it hurried
‘ me on to the doing of that which makes me now
‘ juſtly proceeded againſt as a Murderer.

After the Sermon, a Miniſter, at his Deſire, went unto the Place of Execution with him. And of what paſſed by the way, there was a Copy taken, which here enſueth.

The Diſcourſe of the Miniſter with James Morgan, on the way to his Execution.

Mn. I'm come hither to anſwer your Deſires, which juſt now you expreſs'd to me in the Publick, that I would give you my Company at your Execution.

Mor. Dear Sir, how much am I beholden to you! You have already done a great deal for me. O, who am I, that I have been ſuch a vile Wretch, that any Servants of God ſhould take notice of me!

Min. I beſeech you to make this uſe of it; I believe there is not one Chriſtian this day beholding you, who would not willingly be at the greateſt pains they could deviſe to ſave your precious Soul: how merciful then is that Man, who is God as well as Man! how unſpeakably ready is the Lord Chriſt to ſave the Souls of Sinners that affectionately look unto him! The Goodneſs and Pitifulneſs of the moſt tender-hearted Man in the World is but a Shadow of what is in Him. The Compaſſions of any Man compar'd with the Bowels of a merciful JESUS are but as the painted Sun, or the painted Fire, in compariſon of the real.

Mor. Oh that I could now look unto him as I ought to do! Lord, help me.

Min. Well; you are now a dying Man; the laſt Hour or two of your Life is now running. You know your ſelf now to ſtand juſt on the Brink of Eternity; You ſhall preſently be in a State of wonderful Happineſs or of horrible Miſery which muſt endure forever: Which of thoſe Eſtates do you now count your ſelf ſtepping into?

Mor. Oh Sir, I am afraid, but I am not without hope that God may have mercy on me.

Min. What's your ground for that Hope? O ſee that your Confidences be not ſuch as God will by and by reject.

Mor. I don't know well what to ſay, but this I hope is a good Sign, I have lived in many grievous Sins, in Lying, Drinking, Sabbath-breaking and evil Company-keeping; God has made now theſe ſo bitter to my Soul, that I would not commit them again, might I have my Life this Afternoon by doing it.

Min. That's a great Word; God grant it may not be a Word only, the good Word of a good Pang, without ſuch a thorough Change of Heart as you muſt have if you would not periſh everlaſtingly. You are not like to have any longer time in this World to try the Sincerity of your Profeſſion.

Mor. I know it, and I beſeech you Sir to help me what you can: I hope the Means uſed with me ſince my Condemnation has not been loſt.

Min. I would not have the ſenſe of the Pain and Shame which your Body is about to undergo any ways hinder your mind from being taken up about the Soul-matters which I ſhall endeavour to ſet before you.

Mor. Sir, as for the Pain that my Body muſt preſently feel, I matter it not: I know what Pain is; but what ſhall I do for my poor Soul? I'm terrified with the Wrath of God: This, this terrifies me, Hell terrifies me: I ſhould not mind my Death, if it were not for that.

Min. Now, the Lord help me to deal faithfully with you, and the Lord help you to receive what he ſhall enable me to offer unto you. Mark what I ſay: You were born among the Enemies of God; you were born with a Soul as full of Enmity againſt God, as a Toad is full of Poiſon. You have liv'd now, how many Years?

Morg. I think about thirty.

Min. And all theſe Thirty Years have you been ſinning againſt the Holy God. Ever ſince you knew how to do any thing, you have every day been guilty of innumerable Sins; You deſerve the dreadful Wrath and Curſe of the infinite God. But God has brought you here, to a place where you have enjoy'd the means of Grace. And here you have added unto your old Sins moſt fearful Iniquities: You have been ſuch a matchleſs, prodigious Tranſgreſſor, that you are now to die by the Stroke of Civil Juſtice; to die before your time, for being wicked overmuch. There is hardly any ſort of Wickedneſs which you have not wallow'd in. That Sin particularly which you are now to die for, is a moſt monſtrous Crime. I can't poſſibly deſcribe or declare the Sins whereby you have made your ſelf an aſtoniſhing Example of Impiety and Puniſhment.

Mor. O Sir, I have been a moſt helliſh Sinner. I am ſorry for what I have been.

Min. Sorry, you ſay: well, tell me which of all your Sins you are now moſt ſorry for, which lies moſt heavy.

Mor. I hope I am ſorry for all my Sins, but I muſt eſpecially bewail my Neglect of the means of Grace. On Sabbath-days I us'd to lie at home, or be ill employ'd elſewhere when I ſhould have been at Church. This has undone me!

Min. And let me ſeriouſly tell you, your deſpiſing of Chriſt is a moſt dreadful Sin indeed. You have for whole Years together had the Call of Jeſus Chriſt to ſeek an Intereſt in him; and you would now give all the World for that Intereſt, but you would take no notice of him. The Jews of old put him to a worſe Death than yours will be this Afternoon, and by your Contempt of Chriſt, you have ſaid, the Jews did well to do ſo. How juſtly might he now laugh at your Calamity? And for theſe Sins of yours, beſides the direful Woes and Plagues that have already come upon you, you are now expos'd unto the Vengeance of Eternal Fire. You are in danger of being now quickly caſt into thoſe exquiſite amazing Torments; in compariſon of which, the Anguiſhes which your Body ever did feel, or ſhall feel before Night, or can ever feel, are juſt nothing at all: And theſe dolorous Torments are ſuch as never have an End. As many Sands as could lie between this Earth and the Stars in Heaven, would not be near ſo many as the Ages, the endleſs Ages of theſe Torments.

Morg. But is there not Mercy for me in Chriſt?

Min. Yes; and it is a wonderful Thing, that I have now further to tell you. Mind, I entreat you. The Son of God is become the Son of Man; the Lord Jeſus Chriſt is both God and Man in one Perſon; and he is both ſufficiently able and willing alſo, to be your Saviour. He lived a moſt Righteous Life; and this was, that ſuch as you and I might be able to ſay before God, Lord, accept of me, as if I had lived righteouſly. He died at length a moſt curſed Death; and this was, that we might be able to ſay unto God, Lord, let me not die for Sin, ſince thy Son has died in my room. This glorious Redeemer is now in the higheſt Heaven, pleading with God for the Salvation of His choſen Ones.—And he pours out his Spirit continually upon them that do believe on him: might you then be enabled by his Grace to carry your poor, guilty, condemn'd, enſlav'd, ignorant Soul unto Jeſus Chriſt, and humbly put your truſt in him for Deliverance from the whole bad State which you are brought into. O then his Voice is to you the ſame that was to the penitent Thief, This day ſhalt thou be with me in Paradiſe.

Mor. Oh! that I might be ſo! Sir, I would hear more of theſe things: I think I cant better fit my ſelf for my Death, than by hearkening to theſe things.

Min. Attend then: The never dying Spirit that lodges within you, muſt now within a few minutes appear before the Tribunal of the Great GOD; in what, or in whoſe Righteouſneſs will you then appear? Will you have this to be your Plea, Lord, I experienc'd many good Motions and Deſires in my Soul, and many ſorrows for my Sin before I dy'd: or, will you expect to have no other Plea but this, Lord, I am vile, but thy Son is a Surety for the worſt of Sinners that believe on Him; For his ſake alone, have MERCY on me.

Mor. I thank God for what he has wrought in my Soul.——

Min. But be very careful about this Matter: If you build on your own good Affections inſtead of Jeſus Chriſt the only Rock, if you think they ſhall recommend you to God, He that made you, will not have mercy on you.

Mor. I would be cloathed with the Righteouſneſs of JESUS CHRIST.

Min. But you can't ſincerely deſire that Chriſt ſhould juſtifie you, if you don't alſo deſire that He ſhould ſanctifie you: Thoſe Two always go together. Is every Luſt that has hitherto had poſſeſſion of your Heart become ſo loathſome to you, that it would fill your Soul with Joy to hear Jeſus Chriſt ſay, I will ſubdue thoſe Iniquities of thine; I will make a holy, an heavenly, a ſpiritually minded Perſon of thee.

Mor. I would not Sin againſt God any more.

Min. But I muſt deal plainly with you: You have made it ſadly ſuſpicious that your Repentance is not yet as it ought to be. When Men truly and thoroughly repent of Sin, they uſe to be in a ſpecial manner watchful againſt that Sin which has been their chief Sin; One of your principal Sins, which has indeed brought you to the Death of a Murderer, is Paſſion, unmortify'd and outragious Paſſionateneſs: Now, I have been this Day inform'd, that no longer ſince than the laſt Night, upon ſome Diſſatisfaction about the Place which the Authority hath order'd you by and by to be bury'd in, you did expreſs your ſelf with a moſt unruly Paſſionateneſs.

Mor. Sir, I confeſs it, and I was quickly ſorry for it, though for the preſent I was too much diſturb'd: 'Twas my Folly to be ſo careful about the Place where my Body ſhould be laid, when my precious Soul was in ſuch a Condition.——

Min. Truly, you have cauſe to mourn for it. Secure the Welfare of your Soul, and this (now) pinion'd, hang'd, vile Body of yours will ſhortly be rais'd unto Glory, Glory for evermore. And let me put you in mind of one thing more; I doubt you have not yet laid aſide your unjuſt Grudges againſt the Perſons concern'd in your Conviction and Condemnation: You have no Cauſe to complain of them: And you are not fit to pray, much leſs are you fit to die, till you heartily wiſh them as well as your own Soul: If you die malicious, you die miſerable.

Mor. I heartily wiſh them all well; I bear Ill-will to none. What a lamentable thing is this? Ah this is that which has brought me hither!

Min. What do you mean?

Mor. I over-heard a Man mocking and Scoffing at me when I ſtumbled juſt now, he does very ill. I have done ſo my ſelf. I have mock'd and ſcoff'd like that Man, and ſee what it hath brought me to: He may come to the like.

Min. The Lord forgive that fooliſh hard-hearted Creature. But be not too much diſturb'd.

Mor. Yonder! I am now come in ſight of the Place where I muſt immediately end my Days. Oh, what a huge Multitude of People is come together on this occaſion. O Lord, O Lord, I pray thee to make my Death profitable to all this Multitude of People that they may not ſin againſt thee as I have done.

Min. Amen, Amen, ten thouſand times; the Lord God Almighty ſay Amen to this Prayer of yours! It would indeed be an Excellent Thing, if you would now come to receive your Death, with ſome Satisfaction of Soul in this Thought, that much Glory is like to come to God by it: I am verily perſwaded God intends to do Good to many Souls by means of your Execution. This is a greater Honour than you are worthy of.

[After the Diſcourſe had been intermitted about a Minute or Two by reaſon of the mirey Way.]

Mor. I beſeech you, Sir, ſpeak to me. Do me all the Good you can: My time grows very ſhort: Your Diſcourſe fits me for my Death more than any thing.

Min. I am ſorry ſo ſmall a thing as a plaſhy Street ſhould make me loſe One minute of this more than ordinary precious time; a few paces more bring you to the Place which you have now in your Eye, from whence you ſhall not come back alive. Do you find your ſelf afraid to die there?

Mor. Sir, if it were not for the Condition that my Soul muſt by and by be in, I ſhould not fear my death at all; but I have a little Comfort from ſome of God's Promiſes about that.

Min. And what ſhall I now ſay? Theſe are among the laſt Words that I can have liberty to leave with you. Poor man, thou art now going to knock at the Door of Heaven, and to beg and cry, Lord, Lord, open to me! The only way for thee to ſpeed, is to open the Door of thy own Soul now unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Do this, and thou ſhalt undoubtedly be admitted into the Glories of his Heavenly Kingdom: You ſhall fare as well as Manaſſeh did before you; Leave this undone, and there is nothing remains for you, but the Worm which dieth not, and the Fire which ſhall not be quench'd.

Mor. Sir, ſhew me then again, what I have to do.

Min. The Voice, the ſweet Voice of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt (who was once hang'd on a Tree, to take away the Sting and Curſe of even ſuch a Death as yours) unto all that cloſe with him, His heavenly Voice now is, O that I and my ſaving Work might be entertained, kindly entreated, in that poor periſhing Soul of thine! Are you willing?

Mor. I hope I am.

Min. His Voice further is, If I am lodg'd in thy Soul, I'll ſprinkle my Blood upon it; and on my account thou ſhalt find favour with God. Do you conſent to this?

Mor. This I want.

Min. But this is not all that he ſaith; his Voice further is, If I come into thy Soul, I will change it, I will make all Sin bitter to it: I will make it an holy heavenly Soul. Do you value this above the Proffers of all the World?

Mor. I think I do,——and now Sir, I muſt go no further. Look here——- what a ſolemn ſight is this! Here lies the Coffin which this Body of mine muſt preſently be laid in. I thank you, dear Sir, for what you have already done for me.

Min. When you are gone up this Ladder, my laſt Service with you before you are gone off, will be to pray with you: But I would here take my leave of you. Oh, that I might meet you at the Right Hand of the Lord Jeſus in the laſt Day. Farewel, poor Heart, Fare thee well. The Everlaſting Arms receive thee' The Lord Jeſus, the merciful Saviour of Souls take poſſeſſion of thy Spirit for himſelf. The Great God, who is a great Forgiver, grant thee Repentance unto Life; and gloriſie himſelf in the Salvation of ſuch a wounded Soul as thine for ever. With Him, and with his Free, Rich, Marvellous, Infinite Grace, I leave you.

Farewel.

Being arrived unto the Place of Execution, his Laſt Speech upon the Ladder, then taken in Short-Hand, was that which is here inſerted.

'I Pray God that I may be a Warning to you all, and that I may be the laſt that ever ſhall ſuffer after this manner. In the fear of God I warn you to have a care of taking the Lord's Name in vain. Mind, and have a care of that Sin of Drunkenneſs: For that Sin leads to all manner of Sins and Wickedneſs: (mind, and have a care of breaking the ſixth Commandment, where it is ſaid, Thou ſhalt do no Murther) for when a Man is in Drink, he is ready to commit all manner of Sin, till he fill up the Cup of the Wrath of God, as I have done by committing that Sin of Murder.

'I beg of God, as I am a dying Man, and to appear before the Lord within a few Minutes, that you may take notice of what I ſay to you. Have a care of Drunkenneſs, and ill Company, and mind all good Inſtruction; and don't turn your Back upon the Word of God, as I have done. When I have been at Meeting, I have gone out of the Meeting-houſe to commit Sin, and to pleaſe the Luſt of my Fleſh. Don't make a mock at any poor Object of Pity; but bleſs God that he has not left you as he has juſtly done me, to commit that horrid Sin of Murder.

'Another thing that I have to ſay to you, is, to have a care of that Houſe where that Wickedneſs was committed, and where I have been partly ruin'd by. But here I am, and know not what will become of my poor Soul, which is within a few moments of Eternity. I have murder'd a poor Man, who had but little time to repent, and I know not what is become of his poor Soul. O that I may make uſe of this Opportunity that I have! O, that I may make Improvement of this little, little time, before I go hence and be no more. O, let all mind what I am a-ſaying now I am going out of this World. O, take Warning by me, and beg of God to keep you from this Sin, which has been my Ruine.

[His laſt Words were,] O Lord receive my Spirit: I come unto thee, O Lord; I come unto thee, O Lord, I come, I come, I come.

(VIII.)

ONE Hugh Stone, upon a Quarrel, between himſelf and his Wife, about ſelling a Piece of Land, having ſome Words, as they were walking together on a certain Evening, very barbarouſly reach'd a ſtroke at her Throat, with a ſharp knife; and by that one Stroke fetch'd away the Soul of her, who had made him a Father of ſeveral Children, and would have brought yet another to him if ſhe had liv'd a few Weeks longer in the World.

The Wretched Man was too ſoon ſurpriz'd by his Neigbours, to be capable of denying the Fact: And ſo he pleaded Guilty, upon his Tryal.

There was a Miniſter that walk'd with him to his Execution; and I ſhall inſert the principal Paſſages of the Diſcourſe between 'em; in which which the Reader may find or make ſomething Uſeful to himſelf, what ever it were to the Poor Man, who was more immediately concerned in it.

Miniſter. I am come to give you what Aſſiſtance I can in your taking of the Steps, which your Eternal Weal or Wo, now depends upon the well or ill taking of.

Hugh Stone. Sir, I thank you, and I beg you to do what you can for me.

Min. Within a very few Minutes your Immortal Soul muſt appear before God, the Judge of all. I am heartily ſorry you have loſt ſo much time ſince your firſt Impriſonment: You had need uſe a Wonderful Husbandry of the little piece of an Inch which now remains. Are you now prepar'd to ſtand before the Tribunal of God?

H. S. I hope I am.

Min. And what Reaſon for that Hope?

H. S. I find all my Sins made ſo bitter to me, that if I were to have my Life given me this Afternoon, to live ſuch a Life as I have liv'd heretofore, I would not accept of it. I had rather die.

Min. That is well, if it be True. But ſuffer me a little to ſearch into the Condition of your Soul. Are you ſenſible, That you were born a Sinner? That the Guilt of the Firſt Sin committed by Adam, is juſtly charged upon you? And, that you have hereupon a Wicked Nature in you, full of Enmity againſt all that is Holy, and Juſt, and Good? For which you deſerved to be deſtroy'd as ſoon as you firſt came into this World?

H. S. I am ſenſible of this.

Min. Are you further ſenſible, that you have liv'd a very ungodly Life? That you are guilty of thouſands of Actual Sins, every one of which deſerves the Wrath and Curſe of God, both in this Life, and that which is to come?

H. S. I am ſenſible of this alſo.

Min. But, are you ſenſible that you have broken all the Laws of God? You know the Commandments. Are you ſenſible that you have broken every one of them?

H. S. I cannot well anſwer to that. My Anſwer may be liable to ſome Exceptions. ——This I own, I have broken every Commandment on the account mention'd by the Apoſtle James; That he who breaks one, is guilty of all; but not otherwiſe.

Min. Alas, That you know your ſelf no better than ſo! I do affirm to you, that you have particularly broken every one of the Commandments; and you muſt be ſenſible of it.

H. S. I cannot ſee it.

Min. But you muſt remember, That the Commandment is exceeding broad; It reaches to the Heart as well as the Life: it includes Omiſſions as well as Commiſſions; and it at once both requires and forbids. But I pray, make an Experiment upon any one Commandment, in which you count your ſelf moſt innocent: and ſee whether you do not preſently confeſs your ſelf guilty thereabout. I may not leave this Point ſlightly paſs'd over with you.

H. S. That Commandment, Thou ſhalt not make to thy ſelf any graven Image; How have I broken it?

Min. Thus: You have had undue Images of God in your Mind a thouſand times. But more than ſo; that Commandment not only forbids our uſing the Inventions of Men in the Worſhip of God, but it alſo requires our uſing all the Inſtitutions of God. Now have not you many and many a time turn'd your Back upon ſome of thoſe glorious Inſtitutions?

H. S. Indeed, Sir, I confeſs it: I ſee my Sinfulneſs greater than I thought it was.

Min. You ought to ſee it. God help you to ſee it! There is a boundleſs Ocean of it. And then for that SIN, which has now brought a ſhameful Death upon you, 'tis impoſſible to declare the Aggravations of it; hardly an Age will ſhew the like. You have profeſſed your ſelf ſorry for it!

H. S. I am heartily ſo.

Min. But your Sorrows muſt be after a Godly ſort. Not meerly becauſe of the Miſeries which it has brought on your Outward Man, but chiefly for the Wrongs and Wounds therein given to your own Soul; and not only for the Miſeries you have brought on your ſelf, but chiefly for the Injuries which you have done to the Bleſſed God.

H. S. I hope my Sorrow lies there.

Min. But do you mourn without Hope?

H. S. I thank God I do not.

Min. Where do you ſee a Door of Hope?

H. S. In the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who has died to ſave Sinners.

Min. Truly, There is no other Name by which we may be ſaved? The Righteouſneſs of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, is that alone, in which you may ſafely anon appear before the Judgment-ſeat of God. And that Righteouſneſs is by the marvellous and infinite Grace of GOD, offered unto you. But do you find, that as you have no Righteouſneſs, ſo you have no Strength? that you cannot of your ſelf move or ſtir, towards the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; though you juſtly periſh if you do not run unto Him? That it is the Grace of GOD alone which muſt enable you to accept of Salvation from the Great Saviour?

H. S. Sir, my Caſe, in ſhort, is This; I have laid my ſelf at the Feet of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt for my Salvation; And, had it not been for his meer Grace and Help, I had never been able to do That. But there I have laid and left my ſelf; I have nothing to plead, why He ſhould accept of me. If He will do it, I am happy; but if He will not, I am undone for ever: it had been good for me that I had never been born.

Min. And you muſt juſtifie Him, if he ſhould reject you. You ſurprize me with at once giving me ſo much of the Diſcourſe, which all this while I have been labouring for. I can add but this: The good Lord make you ſincere in what you ſay!——Your Crime lay in Blood; and your Help alſo, That lies in Blood. I am to offer you the Blood of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as that in which you may now have the Pardon of all your Sins, Now you may try the ſincerity of your Faith in the Blood of the Lord Jeſus for a Pardon, by this.

H. S. Do Sir.

Min. The Blood of the Lord Jeſus is not only Sin-pardoning Blood, but alſo Soul-purifying and Heart-ſoftening Blood. It embitters all Sin unto the Soul, that it is applied unto, and mortifies every Luſt in ſuch a Soul: Are you deſirous of this?

H. S. With all my Heart.

Min. The Lord make you ſo. The Lord ſeal your Pardon, in that Blood, which is worth Ten Thouſand Worlds! But what will you do for that GOD, who has given you theſe Hopes of a Pardon? You muſt with a Holy Ingenuity now do ſomething for the Honour of that GOD whom you have ſinned ſo much againſt.

H. S. What ſhall I do?

Min. Why; Confeſs and bewail the Sins that have undone you, and publickly adviſe, and exhort, and charge all that you can, to take heed of ſuch evil Ways,

H. S. I will endeavour to do it, as GOD ſhall help me.

Min. I pray, tell me plainly what ſpecial Sin, do you think it was, that laid the firſt Foundation of your Deſtruction? Where did you begin to leave GOD, and ruine your ſelf?

H. S. It was Contention in my Family. I had been uſed unto ſomething of Religion: And I was once careful about the Worſhip of God, not only with my Family, but in ſecret alſo. But upon Contention between me and my Wife, I left off the Ways of GOD, and you ſee what I am come to.

Min. I would pray you to vomit up all Sin, with a very hearty Deteſtation. You are going (if I may ſo ſpeak) to diſgorge your SOUL; if you do not firſt caſt up your Sin, if your SOUL and your Sin come away together, you cannot but know ſomething of the diſmal Condition which it muſt paſs into. O what Cauſe have you to fall out with Sin for ever? It has been been your only Enemy. Here is the only Revenge which you may allow in your ſelf. You muſt not now bear any Malice againſt any one Man in the World, but forgive even thoſe that have done you the greateſt Injuries. Only upon Sin, be as revengeful as you can; I would have you like Sampſon, ſo to die, taking of a Juſt Revenge.

H. S. I hope I ſhall.

Min. Well, we are now but a very few Paces from the Place where you muſt breathe your laſt. You are juſt going to take a moſt Awful Step, which has this moſt Remarkable in it. That it cannot be twice taken. If you go wrong now, it cannot be recalled throughout the Days of Eternity. I can but commit you into the Arms of a Merciful Redeemer, that he may keep you from a Miſcarriage which cannot be recalled and redreſſed throughout Eternal Ages. The Lord ſhew unto you the Path of Life: Attend unto theſe as the laſt Words that I may ſpeak before the Prayer, with which I am immediately to take a long Farewel of you. You are now juſt going to be confirmed for ever. If the great God preſently find you under the Power of Prejudice againſt any of his Truths and Ways, or of Enmity againſt what has his bleſſed Name upon it, you ſhall be fix'd, and ſettl'd, and confirmed in it, until the very Heavens be no more. But they are very terrible Plagues and Pains, which you may be ſure will accompany this everlaſting Diſpoſition of your Soul. On the other ſide, If GOD now find your Soul under the Power of Inclination to Love Him, Fear Him, Serve Him; and to eſteem the Lord Jeſus Chriſt above a thouſand Worlds; You ſhall then be confirmed in the perfection of ſuch a Temper, and of all the Joy, that muſt accompany it. Which of theſe is the Condition that I now leave you in?

H. S. Sir, I hope the latter of them.

Min. The Good GOD make it ſo; and grant that I may find you at the Right hand of the Lord Jeſus, in the Day of his Appearing. May this Ladder prove as a Jacob's Ladder for you, and may you find the Angels of the Lord Jeſus ready here to convey your departing Soul into the Preſence of the Lord.

After this Diſcourſe, aſcending the Ladder, he made the following Speech.

Young Men and Maids,

‘OBſerve the Rule of Obedience to your Parents; and Servants to your Maſters, according to the Will of GOD, and to do the Will of your Maſters: If you take up wicked Ways, you ſet open a Gate to your Sins, to lead in bigger afterwards: Thou canſt not do any thing but God will ſee thee, although thou thinkeſt thou ſhalt not be catch'd, thou thinkeſt to hide thy ſelf in ſecret, when as GOD in Heaven can ſee thee, though thou haſt hid it from Man. And when thou goeſt to Thievery, thy Wickedneſs is diſcover'd, and thou art found Guilty. O Young Woman, that is married, and Young Man, look on me here: Be ſure in that ſolemn Engagement you are obliged to one another; Marriage is an Ordinance of God, have a care of breaking that Bond of Marriage-Union: If the Husband provoke his Wife, and cauſe a Difference, he ſins againſt GOD: and ſo does ſhe, in ſuch Carriage; for ſhe is bound to be an Obedient Wife. O you Parents that give your Children in Marriage, remember what I have to ſay, you muſt take notice when you give them in Marriage, you give them freely to the Lord; and free them from that Service and Command you ought to have; yet you ought to have a tender Regard to them.

‘O thou that takeſt no care to lead thy Life civilly and honeſtly, and then committeſt that Abominable Sin of Murder; here is this Murderer, look upon him; and ſee how many are come, with their Eyes to behold this Man, that abhors himſelf before GOD; that is the Sin that I abhor my ſelf for, and deſire you, take Example by me. There are here a great many Young People, and O Lord, that they may be thy Servants!

'Have a care; don't ſin; I will tell you, that I wiſh I never had had the Opportunity to do ſuch a Murder. If you ſay, when a Perſon has provok'd you, I will kill him; 'tis a thouſand to one but the next time you will do it.

'Now I commit my ſelf into the Hands of Almighty GOD.

His Prayer.

'O LORD our good GOD, thou art a merciful GOD, and a gracious and loving Father; Alas, that thou ſhouldeſt nouriſh up Children that have rebell'd againſt Thee! O Lord, I muſt confeſs, thou gaveſt me Opportunity to read thy Written Word; Thou art alſo my Creator and Preſerver: But, Lord I have not done according to the Offers of thy Grace; Thou haſt not hid from me the Opportunities of the Good Things and Liberty of thy Houſe and Ordinances, but I have waxed wanton under the Enjoyment of them. I have given thee juſt Cauſe to provoke thee to Anger, and thou haſt left me to Shame, not only on my ſelf, but on my Relations. O Lord God, I do confeſs, that I have ſinned againſt Thee, and done all theſe Iniquities againſt Thee, and before thine Eyes. Lord, I have ſinned eſpecially againſt Thee; pardon my Sins of Youth; Lord, pardon this Bloody Sin I ſtand here guilty of. O Lord, hide not thy Face from me, I humbly beg it of Thee: For there is no Man can redeem his Brother's Soul, but only the Blood of Jeſus Chriſt muſt do it. Let it be ſufficient to ſatisfie for my poor Soul. I have not done any thing that Thou ſhould'ſt be pleaſed to ſhew me thy LOVE; or that I ſhould have any thing from thee, but only Everlaſting Miſery. I am unworthy to come to Thee; yet Lord, for thy Mercy's ſake have pity on me. Now I am coming to Judgment, Lord, let the Arms of thy Mercy receive my Soul, and let my Sin be remitted: Good LORD, let not my Sins which condemn me here in this World, riſe up to condemn me in the World to come; though they have condemned me in this World, ſhew mercy, Lord, when I come before thy Judgment-Seat. If my Soul be not humbled, Lord humble it: Let my Petition be acceptable in Heaven, thy Holy Mountain. I am unworthy to come into thy Preſence; yet, O let me come into thy Kingdom; and deliver my Soul from Blood-guiltineſs, in the Blood of Jeſus Chriſt. O let my wounded Soul mourn for my Sin that hath brought me here. Sin brings Ruin to the poor Soul; Wo is unto me for mine Iniquity. If I had gone to prayer in the morning when I committed this Sin, Lord God, thou wouldeſt have kept back my hands from ſhedding innocent Blood. O gracious God, remember thou me in Mercy; let me be an Object of thy Pity, and not of thy Wrath: the Lord hear me, and pardon my Sins. Take care of my poor Children. I have ſcattered them like ſtragling Sheep flying before the Wolf: Pity the poor Children, that go like ſo many Lambs that have loſt their Keeper; that they may not come to ſuch a Death as I do! Lord, for the ſake of Jeſus Chriſt, and the Righteouſneſs of thy Son, accept my Soul, and receive me into the Arms of thy mercy, that I may enjoy Everlaſting Reſt. Pardon all my Sins; and let the Prayers of all thoſe that put up their Petitions for me, be accepted, for the ſake of Jeſus Chriſt. Now I am coming, now I am coming; Thou mayeſt ſay, I called to thee, and thou wouldeſt not come. I muſt ſay, my Sin brought me here; O the World, and the corrupt Nature of Man, that has proved my Ruine! O LORD, good LORD, let me enjoy Reſt for my Soul. The Deſire of my Soul, is to be with thee in thy Kingdom; let me have a Share in that Kingdom. Now is the Time, Lord Jeſus; the Grave is opening its mouth. I am now living, tho' dead in Sin; let my Prayers be heard in Heaven, thy Holy Place: Thy Hands have made me, and I know thou canſt ſave me: Hide not thy Face from me; and affect the Hearts of thy People with this ſad Object, that they may labour to ſerve thee betimes, and may not give themſelves up to Prophaneneſs and Wickedneſs, eſpecially that Sin of Drunkenneſs, which is an In-let of all Abominations.

'[When thou haſt thy Head full of Drink, the Remembrance of GOD is out of thy Heart; and thou art unprepared to commit thy ſelf and Family unto GOD; thou art unfit to come into GOD's Preſence. I have Cauſe to cry out, and be aſham'd of it, that I am guilty of it, becauſe I gave way to that Sin more than any other, and then God did leave me to practiſe Wickedneſs, and to murder that dear Woman, whom I ſhould have taken a great deal of Contentment in, which if I had done, I had not been here to ſuffer this Death.]

'Thou art Holy, Juſt, and Good, and therefore, O Lord, have mercy on me, for the ſake of thy Son pity me, now, LORD, I am coming. O that I could do thee better Service.

[Many of you that behold me, I know, wiſh you never had ſeen me here.

'Lord, receive my Soul into a better Place if it be thy Bleſſed Will: 'Tis a Day of great Trouble with me; my Soul is greatly troubled: give me one Glimpſe of Comfort in thy Kingdom: By and by let me have one Dram of thy Grace. Accept of me now at this time; 'Tis the laſt time: Good Lord, deny me not; Give me, as the Woman of Samaria, a Taſte of that Living Water, that my Soul may Thirſt no more. I beg it for the ſake of Jeſus Chriſt Amen.

After this, he was by the Prayers of a Miniſter then preſent, recommended unto the Divine Mercy. Which being done, the poor man poured red out a few broken Ejaculations in the midſt of which he was turned over, into that Eternity, which we muſt leave him in.

The Speech of Hugh Stone in the Priſon, the Morning before his Execution.

WHEN Young People are marry'd, they make uſe of Prayer in their Families, and when they pray, they do believe there is Sincerity and Affection in their Prayer: But when Difference between a Man and his Wife doth ariſe, then that doth occaſion Hindrance of Prayer in their Family: And when Prayer is wholly omitted, it lets in all Confuſion, and every evil Work. He ſaid 'That he uſed to pray in his Family; but when he did pray, it was in a formal manner; but now, from the Conſideration of Eternity that he was going into, he was made the more conſiderate in his Prayers that he made, and did hope, that now he had the Spirit of Prayer in his Praying.

ON June 8. 1693. Two Young Women, (the one Engliſh, the other Negro) were Executed at Boſton for murdering their Baſtard-Children.

The Engliſh Young Woman gave to the Miniſter who preach'd that Afternoon, the following Paper of Confeſſions; which he took occaſion in his Sermon, to publiſh unto the Congregation, where ſhe alſo was then preſent before the Lord.

I Am a miſerable Sinner; and I have juſtly provok'd the Holy GOD to leave me unto that Folly of my own Heart, for which I am now condemned to die. I cannot but ſee much of the Anger of GOD againſt me, in the Circumſtances of my woful Death. He hath fulfilled upon me, that Word of his, Evil purſueth Sinners. I therefore deſire humbly to confeſs my many Sins before GOD and the World; but moſt particularly my Blood guiltineſs.

Before the Birth of my Twin-Infants, I too much parlied with the Temptations of the Devil, to ſmother my Wickedneſs by murthering of them. At length, when they were born, I was not unſenſible, that at leaſt, One of them was alive; but, ſuch a Wretch was I, as to uſe a murderous Carriage towards them, in the Place where I lay, on purpoſe to diſpatch them out of the World. I acknowledge that I have been more hard-hearted than the Sea-Monſters: And yet for the pardon of theſe my Sins, I would fly to the Blood of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which is the Only Fountain ſet open for Sin and Uncleanneſs. I know not how better to glorifie GOD, for giving me ſuch an Opportunity as I have had, to make ſure of his Mercy, than by adviſing and entreating the Riſing Generation here to take warning by my Example; and I will therefore tell the Sins that have brought me to my ſhameful End. I do warn all People, and eſpecially Young People, againſt the Sin of Uncleanneſs in particular: 'Tis that Sin that hath been my Ruine. Well had it been for me, if I had anſwered all Temptations to that Sin, as Joſeph did, How ſhall I do this Wickedneſs, and ſin againſt God? But, I ſee, Bad Company is that which leads to that, and all other Sins: And I therefore beg all that love their Souls to be familiar with none but ſuch as fear GOD. I believe the chief thing that hath brought me into my preſent Condition, is my Diſobedience to my Parents: I deſpiſed all their Godly Counſels and Reproofs; and I was always of an haughty ſtubborn Spirit. So that now I am become a dreadful Inſtance of the Curſe of GOD belonging to Diſobedient Children. I muſt bewail this alſo, that although I was baptized, yet when I grew up, I forgot the Bonds that were laid upon me to be the Lord's. Had I given my ſelf to GOD, as ſoon as I was capable to conſider that I had been in Baptiſm ſet a-part for him, How happy had I been! It was my Delay to repent of my Former Sins, that provoked God to leave me unto the Crimes for which I am now to die. Had I ſeriouſly repented of my Uncleanneſs the firſt time I fell into it, I do ſuppoſe I had not been left unto what followed. Let all take it from me: they little think what they do, when they put off turning from Sin to God, and reſiſt the Strivings of the Holy Spirit. I fear 'tis for this, that I have been given up to ſuch Hardneſs of Heart, not only ſince my long Impriſonment, but alſo ſince my juſt Condemnation. I now know not what will become of my diſtreſſed periſhing Soul. But I would humbly Commit it unto the Mercy of GOD in Jeſus Chriſt. Amen.

IN the Year 1694. a miſerable Indian, called Zachary, was Executed for Murder.

He underſtood ſo very little Engliſh, that it put the Engliſh Miniſter, who after his Condemnation, viſited him, unto an inexpreſſible deal of Trouble to convey unto him the Principles and the Directions of our Holy Religion. But the Lord ſo ſucceeded the Endeavours uſed upon the wretched Salvage, that within a little while, he could give a ſenſible, tho' a ſhattered Account, of the Fundamentals in Chriſtianity. And ſuch an Impreſſion had the Doctrines of Grace upon him, that he profeſſed himſelf deſirous rather to die, than to live at his own ſinful rate. He ſeemed even to long for his Execution, that ſo he might be delivered from all diſpoſition to Sin againſt God. But all his Hopes of Everlaſting Salvation he ſeemed very ſuitably to place on the Obedience which the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, had yielded unto God in the room of Sinners.

Of this poor Creature, nothing had been here mentioned, if it had not been to introduce the mention of this one Paſſage.

He ſaid, that the Thing which undid him was this: He had begun to come and hear the Preaching of the Goſpel among the Indians: but he minded the Indian Preacher, how he liv'd; and he ſaw plainly that the Preacher minded his Bottle, more than his Bible: He lov'd Rhum too well; and when his Rhum was in him, he would quarrel with other People, and with himſelf particularly. This (he ſaid) prejudic'd him againſt the Goſpel. So he liv'd as a Pagan ſtill, and would be drunk too; and his Drunkenneſs had brought all this Miſery upon him.

(XI.)

IN the Year 1698. Was Executed at Springfield, one Sarah Smith.

Her deſpiſing the continual Counſels and Warnings of her godly Father-in law laid the Foundation of her Deſtruction. When ſhe was married, ſhe added unto the Crime of Adultery, that of Stealing; which latter Crime occaſioned her to fly unto New-Jerſey. Afterwards coming to reſide in Deerfield, her (ſecond) Husband, was carry'd Captive unto Canada: But the Woman, in grievous Horror of mind for the Breaches of the Seventh and Eighth Commandment, received many moſt ſuitable Counſels from Mr. Williams, the worthy Miniſter of that Place. In Conformity to his Counſels and Warning, for a while, ſhe led a reformed Life, and ſeem'd much affected with the Word of God, in the publick Diſpenſations of it. But, e're it was long, ſhe loſt her Seriouſneſs, her Tenderneſs, her Convictions; and relapſed into that Sin of Adultery. Her firſt Relapſe into that Sin, was attended with a Conception, which, tho' ſhe endeavour'd to render it an Abortive, the Holy Providence of GOD would not ſuffer it to be ſo.

She did with much Obſtinacy deny and conceal her being with Child: And when the Child was born, ſhe ſmother'd it: But the Neighbours found it out immediately. She then owned the matter, but made the uſual Pretence, That the Child was dead born: and remain'd as poor Sinners undone by the Sins of Unchaſtity uſe to be, under extream Hardneſs of Heart. Mr. Williams rarely viſited her, but found her guilty of New Lies; tho' ſometimes violent Pangs of Horror would come upon her, wherein ſhe detected her own Lying, and ſeem'd greatly to bewail it. The Honourable Judges deſired Mr. Williams to go down unto Springfield (which was the Place,) at the time of her Execution; who then found her under an aſtoniſhing Stupidity of Soul; and yet not pretending to Hopes of Happineſs in another World. He found her guilty of more Lyes! which afterward ſhe confeſſed ſo to be: She ſlept both at the Prayer and the Sermon, in the publick Aſſembly on the Day of her Execution: And ſeem'd the moſt unconcern'd of any in the Aſſembly; profeſſing therewithal, That ſhe could not but wonder at her own Unconcernedneſs. At her Execution ſhe ſaid but little, only, That ſhe deſir'd to give Glory unto GOD, and to take Shame unto her ſelf, and that ſhe would warn all others to beware of the Sins that had brought her unto this miſerable End; eſpecially Stealing, Uncleanneſs, Lying, Neglecting to read the Scriptures, and Neglecting to pray unto GOD. She had abſented her ſelf much from the Word of GOD on Lords Days and Lecture Days; and ſtaid at home, till ſhe had fallen into this capital Tranſgreſſion: Then ſhe would come unto the Meetings, with ſome ſeeming Devotion. She had ſinned away great Convictions and Awakenings; and Satan with ſeven more unclean Spirits, entred into her; and GOD ſeemed then to with-hold from her, the Efficacy of the means of Grace and Good, which his Faithful Servants in the Neighbourhood, uſed with her.

(XII.)

ON November 17. 1698. there was Executed in Boſton, a miſerable Young Woman, whoſe Extraordinary Circumſtances rung throughout all New-England. On this day of her Execution, was preached a Sermon: And becauſe the laſt Paſſages of that Sermon gave a ſummary Narrative, of what it is fit the Publick ſhould know concerning that Criminal, I have Transferr'd 'em into this Place. The Sermon concluded in theſe Words:

‘Be aſtoniſh'd, O Congregation of GOD; Stand aſtoniſhed at the horrible Spectacle that is now before You. This Houſe, and perhaps this Land, never had in it a more Aſtoniſhing Spectacle.

‘Behold a Young Woman, but an Old Sinner, going this Day to die before her time, for being wicked over-much! Behold, One juſt Nineteen years old, and yet found ripe for the Vengeance of a Capital Execution. Ah, miſerable Soul, with what a ſwift Progreſs of Sin and Folly, haſt thou made haſte unto the Congregation of the Dead! Behold a Perſon, whoſe unchaſte Converſation appear'd by One baſe born Child many Months ago! God then gave her a Space to repent, and ſhe repented not: She repeated her Whoredoms, and by an Infatuation from God upon her, She ſo managed the matter of her next baſe born, that ſhe is found Guilty of its Murder. Thus the GOD, whoſe Eyes are like a Flame of Fire, is now caſting her into a Bed of burning Tribulation: And, ah, Lord, where wilt thou caſt thoſe that have committed Adultery with her, except they repent! Since her Impriſonment, ſhe had declared, that ſhe believes, God hath left her unto this undoing Wickedneſs, partly for her ſtaying ſo prophanely at home, ſometimes on Lords Days, when ſhe ſhould have been hearing the Word of Chriſt, and much more for her not minding that Word, when ſhe heard it.

‘And ſhe has confeſſed, That ſhe was much given to Raſh Wiſhes, in her mad Paſſions, particularly uſing often that ill Form of ſpeaking, I'll be hang'd, if a thing be not thus or ſo; and, I'll be hang'd, if I do not this or that: Which Evil now, to ſee it, coming upon her, it amazes her! But this Chief Sin of which this Chief of Sinners now cries out, is, her undutiful Carriage towards her Parents. Her Language and her Carriage towards her Parents, was indeed ſuch that they hardly durſt ſpeak to her; but when they durſt, they often told her, It would come to this. They indeed, with bleeding Hearts, have now forgiven thy Rebellions. Ah, Sarah, mayeſt thou cry unto the God of Heaven to forgive thee! But under all the doleful Circumſtances of her Impriſonment, and her Impiety, ſhe has been given over, to be a Prodigy of ſtill more Impenitent Impiety.

'A little before her Condemnation, ſhe renewed the Crimes of her Unchaſtity; ſhe gave her ſelf up to the filthy Debauches of a Villain, that was her Fellow-Priſoner: And after her Condemnation, her Falſhoods and her Furies have been ſuch, as to proclaim, That under Condemnation ſhe has not feared God. Was there ever ſeen ſuch an Heighth of Wickedneſs! God ſeems to have hang'd her up in Chains, for all the Young People in the Countrey to ſee what Prodigies of Sin and Wrath it may render them, if once they ſell themſelves thereunto.

'Behold, O Young People, what it is to vex the Holy Spirit of God, by rebelling againſt Him. This, this 'tis to be given over of God! And yet, after all this Hard hearted Wickedneſs, is it not poſſible for the Grace of Heaven to be triumphantly Victorious in converting and pardoning ſo unparallel'd a Criminal? Be aſtoniſh'd, miſerable Sarah, and let it now break that Stony Heart of thine, to hear it: It is poſſible! it is poſſible! But Oh, thou Almighty Spirit of Grace, do thou graciouſly Touch, and melt this obſtinate Soul; and once at laſt, mould her Heart into the Form of thy Glorious Goſpel. The Glorious Goſpel of GOD, now utters unto thee, Undone Sarah, that Invitation, Tho' thou haſt horribly gone a whoring; yet Return unto me, ſaith the Lord, and I will not cauſe my Anger to fall upon thee. The Leſſons of this Goſpel have been both privately and publickly ſet before thee, with a vaſt Variety of Inculcation. If all the extraordinary Pains that have been taken for the ſoftening of thy Stony Heart, be loſt, God will diſpenſe the more terrible Rebukes unto thee, when he anon breaks thee between the Milſtones of his Wrath.

'O, give now a great Attention to ſome of the laſt Words that can be ſpoken to thee, before thy paſſing into an aſtoniſhing Eternity.

'The Bleſſed Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath been made a Curſe for us: There has been a moſt acceptable Offering and Sacrifice, preſented by the Lord Jeſus Chriſt unto God, for all his choſen: There is a Fountain ſet open for Sin and for Uncleanneſs: And thou, O bloody Sinner, art invited unto that Open Fountain. Such is the infinite Grace of God, that thou mayeſt come as freely to the Blood of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for the Forgiveneſs of thy Sins, as they that have never ſinned with a thouſandth Part of ſo much Aggravation; Come and Welcome (ſays the Lord) who receiveth Sinners. If God enable thee now to lay hold on the Righteouſneſs of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; tho' thy Faults are infinite, thou wilt yet before Sun-ſet, ſtand without Fault before the Throne of GOD. Thy Soul is juſt ſinking down into the fiery Ocean of the Wrath of GOD; but the Righteouſneſs of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, is caſt forth unto thee once more for thee to lay hold upon. O, lay hold upon it and live! If God help thee to do ſo, then (as it was ſaid) The Mary whoſe Sins are many, has them forgiven her; So it ſhall be ſaid, The Sarah whoſe Sins are many, has them forgiven her! Then (as it was ſaid) Rahab, the Harlot periſhed not; ſo it ſhall be ſaid, Sarah the Harlot periſhed not! Tho' the Blood of thy murdered Infant, with all thy other Bloody Crimes, horribly cry to God againſt thee; yet a louder and better Cry from the Blood of thy Saviour, ſhall drown that Formidable Cry. Yea, then there will be Joy in Heaven this Afternoon among the Angels of God; the Angels of Heaven will ſtand amazed and ſay, O the Infinite Grace that can bring ſuch a Sinner unto Glory! But if ever the Blood of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt be applied unto thy Heart, it will immediately diſſolve that Heart of thine; it will cauſe thee to mourn for every Sin, to turn from every Sin, to give thy ſelf entirely unto God. It will be impoſſible for thee to go on in any Known Sin, or to die with a Lye in thy Mouth: No, thou wilt rather die than commit any Known Sin in the World. If this Diſpoſition be not produced in thee before three or four ſhort Hours more are expir'd, thy immortal Spirit will anon paſs into Eternal Torment. Thou wilt before to morrow morning be a Companion of the Devils and the Damned. The Everlaſting Chains of Darkneſs will hold thee for the Worm that never dies, and the Fire that never ſhall be quenched: Thou ſhalt fall into the Hands of the Living God; and become as a glowing Iron poſſeſſed by his Burning Vengeance throughout Eternal Ages; the God that made thee will not have mercy on thee; and he that Form'd thee will ſhew thee no Favour. But for his Mercy and Favour, while there is yet Hope, we will yet cry unto him.

CHAP. VI. SECT. I.

The Triumphs of GRACE.

TO ſpeak more of the Original of this People, than that they are deſcended from the Loins of their great Grandfather Adam, however divers worthy Men have their Sentiments, I ſhall not pretend; but that they are originally of one Language is moſt evident: Nor is the admired Knowledge of thoſe Ancients ſo admirable, for their ready ſpeaking more than Twenty Languages which may rationally be ſuppoſed to have been but One originally; though ſuffering ſome Change, by occaſional Accidents: We know the diverſe pronouncing of the ſame Words, without difference in Dialect, may render the Speaker hardly intelligible to him that writes alike with him: Nor do I think the Speech of theſe Americans ſo divers, but that an Indian, who is well acquainted with His own, may by converſing with thoſe, ſuppos'd of a different and other Speech, promptly expreſs himſelf in very few Years, ſo as to be well underſtood by Forty of theſe Nations; who by reaſon of Wars, the want of Traffick and the Advantage other Nations have had by Literature; have ſeverally ſuffered much Alteration of that Language, at firſt indifferently ſpoken by all, which yet is not more differing than the preſent Language of the Engliſh, from their Speech not many hundred years ſince; which altho' it would not readily be underſtood, by a preſent Londoner, if he ſhould ſpeak with his great Grandfather, who then lived, yet hath not ſo altered, but no long Converſe might render them mutually intelligible. Of Words not unlike in the Indian Tongue hardly intelligible without cuſtomary Diſcourſe of Nation with Nation, I might inſtance in above an hundred; ſuch as Nuppaw, Duppaw, Ruppaw, the Sun; Attik, Abtooque, &c. a Deer; Winnit, Wirrit, Good; and the like; Pum, Pum-me, Pim, Oil or Fat: Theſe and the like, were doubtleſs, the ſame Words little altered. Beſide which, the alone Diſference in pronouncing the ſame Word, might ſeem a great Difference in the Speech or Language. For Example; Wirrit pronounced ſhort, ſounds Writ, and might be not leſs readily underſtood, by differently accenting the

ſame

ſame Word; To which I might add Words, as ſuch, Expreſſing the Mind of the Speaker, being compounded of other Words, ſuitable for ſuch Compoſition, yet as ſuch might be called new, or diſtinct from a Speech in former Uſe: Of which Words, near the one Half of this Peoples Language is.

I have been the larger concerning their Language, that ſuch Engliſh whoſe Hearts may incline to ſo good and Great a Work, may be encouraged to go among thoſe who yet have hardly heard the Name of the LORD named among them.

Government.

Their Government was purely Monarchical; and as for thoſe, whoſe Dominions extended further than would well admit the Princes perſonal Guidance, it was committed into the Hands of Lieutenants, who governed with no leſs Abſoluteneſs than the Prince himſelf. Notwithſtanding in Matters of Difficulty, the Prince conſulted with his Nobles, and ſuch whom he eſteemed for Wiſdom; in which it was admirable to ſee the Majeſtick Deportment of the Prince, his Speech to his Council, with the moſt deliberate Diſcuſſion of any matter propoſed for their Advice: After which what was by him reſolved, without the leaſt Heſitation, was applauded, and with at leaſt a ſeeming Alacrity, attended.

Succeſſion.

The Crown (if I may ſo term it) always deſcended to the Eldeſt Son (though Subject to uſurpation) not to the Female, unleſs in defect of Male of the Blood; the Blood Royal being in ſuch Veneration among this People, that if a Prince had Iſſue by divers Wives, ſuch ſucceeded as Heir who was Royally deſcended, by the Mother, although the youngeſt eſteeming his Iſſue by a Venter of leſs Quality than a Princeſs, not otherwiſe than Sachims or Noblemen.

Nobles.

Their Nobles were either ſuch who deſcended from the Blood Royal, or ſuch on whom the Prince beſtowed Part of his Dominions with the Royalties, or ſuch whoſe Deſcent was from Anceſtors, who had time out of mind been eſteemed ſuch.

Yeomen.

Their Yeomen were ſuch, who having no ſtamp of Gentility, were yet eſteemed as having a natural Right of living within their Princes Dominion, and a Common Uſe of the Land, and were diſtinguiſhed by two Names or Titles, the one ſignifying Subjection, the other, Tiller of the Land.

Villains.

Although this People retain'd nothing of Record, nor Uſe of Letters, yet there lived among them many Families, who altho' the time of their Fore-Fathers firſt inhabiting among them, was beyond the Memory of Man, yet were known to be Strangers or Foreigners, who were not priviledged with common Right, but in ſome meaſure ſubject to the Yeomanry, nor were dignified, in attending the Prince in Hunting or like Exerciſe; unleſs called by particular Favour.

Revenue.

The Princes, as they had not other Revenue, than the Preſents of their Subjects (which yet was counted Due Debt) Wrecks of the Sea, with the Skins of Beaſts killed in their Dominion, and many like things, as Firſt-fruits, &c. ſo they wanted none: For in Caſe of War, both People and Eſtate was wholly at their Diſpoſe; therefore none demanded nor expected Pay. If we reſpect their Court, it was doubtleſs maintained in great Magnificence, in diſtinction from the Subject, which is the utmoſt can be obtained by the greateſt Monarch; their Families and Attendants being well cloathed, with Skins of Moos, Bear, Deer, Beaver, and the like: The Proviſions for their Tables, as Fleſh, Fiſh, Roots, Fruits, Berries, Corn, Beans, in great abundance and Variety, was always brought by their Neighbouring Subjects; of all which they were as void of Care, as the moſt potent Princes in the Univerſe.

Dominion on Seas.

As the Prince was acknowledg'd, Abſolute Lord on the Land, ſo he had no leſs Sovereignty at Sea: for as all belonged to him which was ſtranded on the Shore of his Sea-Coaſt, ſo whatever Whales or other Wreck of Value, floating on the Sea, taken up, on the Seas waſhing his Shores, or brought and Landed from any Part of the Sea, was no leſs his own.

I ſhall conclude this brief Account of the Indians in general with what long ſince paſſed between the late much Honour'd, Mr. Thomas Mayhew, and an Indian Prince, who ruled a large part of the Main land.

Grandure.

This Prince coming to Martha's Vineyard with his uſual Attendants, being about Eighty Perſons well Armed, came to Mr. Mayhew's Houſe; and being admitted, ſate down: Mr. Mayhew entred the Room, but being acquainted with their Cuſtoms, took no notice of the Prince's being there (it being with 'em in point of Honour incumbent on the Inferiour to ſalute the Superiour:) A conſiderable time being paſt the Prince broke Silence, and ſaid Sachem (a Word importing in their Language not more than Noble or Worſhipful) Mr. Mayhew are you well? to which having a Friendly Reply; And treating of ſeveral things, and of the Iſland Martha's Vineyard, being peopled with Engliſh; the Prince deſiring ſomething wherein the Engliſh were concern'd, Mr. Mayhew promiſing to effect what he deſired; immediately ſubjoin'd, That he muſt firſt ſpeak with the Inhabitants. The Prince demanded why he recalled his Promiſe; For, ſaid he, What I promiſe or ſpeak, is always true; but you Engliſh Governours cannot be true; for you can't make your Words nor Intentions true; but mine are always true, for I make them true: greatly diſdaining the Popular Government of the Engliſh in this Countrey.

Having promiſed an Account of the Converſion of many Indians inhabiting theſe Parts of America, it may be well expected I ſhould ſay ſomething of their Religion while Heathen.

They generally acknowledg'd and worſhip'd many Gods; therefore greatly eſteem'd and reverenc'd their Prieſts, Powaws, or Wizards, who were eſteem'd as having immediate Con-
Religion. verſe with the Gods: To them therefore they addreſs'd themſelves in all difficult Caſes; yet could not all that deſire that Dignity (as they eſteem'd it) obtain Familiarity with the infernal Spirits; Nor were all Powaws alike ſucceſsful in their Addreſſes; but they become ſuch, either by immediate Revelation, or in the Uſe of certain Rites and Ceremonies, Tradition had left as means conducing to that end: Inſomuch that Parents often out of Zeal, dedicated their Children to the Gods, and educated them accordingly, obſerving certain Diet, debarring Sleep, &c. yet of the many thus deſign'd, but few obtain'd their Deſire.

Suppoſing that where the Practice of Witchcraft has been highly eſteemed, there may be given the plaineſt Demonſtration of Mortals having Familiarity with infernal Spirits. I am willing to let my Reader know that not many years ſince died here one of the Powaws, who never pretended to Aſtrological Knowledge, yet could preciſely inform ſuch who deſire his Aſſiſtance, from whence Goods ſtolen from them were taken, and whither carried; with many things of the like nature: nor was he ever known to endeavour the concealing his Knowledge, to be immediately from a god ſubſervient to him, that the Engliſh worſhipped. This Powaw being by an Engliſh man worthy of Credit (who lately inform'd me of the ſame) deſired to adviſe him who had ſtollen certain Goods which he had loſt, having formerly been an Eye-witneſs of his Ability: The Powaw, after a little pauſing, demanded why he requeſted that from him, ſince himſelf ſerved another God, that therefore he could not help him; but added, If you can believe that my god will help you, I will try what I can do; which diverted the Man from further Inquiry. I muſt a little digreſs, and tell my Reader that this Powaw's Wife was accounted a Godly Woman, and liv'd in the Practice and Profeſſion of the Chriſtian Religion, not only by the Approbation, but Encouragement of her Husband: She conſtantly prayed in the Family, and attended the Publick Worſhip on the Lord's-Days: He declared that he could not blame her, for that ſhe ſerved a God that was above his: But that as to himſelf, his God's continu'd Kindneſs oblig'd him not to forſake his Service.

That the Powaws, by the infernal Spirits, often killed Perſons, cauſed Lameneſs and Impotency, as well as ſhew'd their Art in performing things, beyond Humane, by Diabolick Skill; ſuch who have converſed much among them have had no reaſon to queſtion.

Their Practice was, either by deſiring the Spirit to them appearing to perform, what miſchief they intended; or to form a piece of Leather like an Arrow-head, tying an Hair thereto; or uſing ſome Bone, as of Fiſh (that it might be known Witchcraft, to the bewitch'd) over which they perform'd certain Ceremonies; and diſmiſſed 'em to effect their Deſire.

Such inchanted things have moſt certainly, either entred the Bodies of the intended to be by them wounded: Or the Devil hath formed the like within their Fleſh, without any outward Breach of the Skin; which we have good reaſon to believe; the Powaws acknowledging that Practice; and ſuch things having been taken out of the Fleſh, of the ſuppoſed to be bewitch'd. Or, by their ſeizing ſomething of the Spirit (as the Devil made them think) of ſuch they intended to torment or kill, while it wandred in their Sleep: This they kept, being in form of a Fly, cloſely impriſon'd; and accordingly as they dealt with this, ſo it fared with the Body it belong'd to.

Of the Cures performed by them on the Bewitched I could give many Inſtances. I ſhall briefly hint at Two.

The one, of an Indian on Martha's Vineyard, called afterward George; who having been ſometime greatly Tormented, and now wholly Impotent; his Friends adviſe him to the Powaws, concluding him to be Bewitched: They being met, and dancing round a great Fire, the Sick lying by; ſome of the Neighbours entred the Houſe, being perſwaded that a great Powaw, now call'd to cure, had bewitch'd the Sick: They threaten him, that as he had bewitched, unleſs he would cure the Sick Man, they would burn him in that Fire. After many Excuſes, too long here to relate, they took him up, reſolving at leaſt to a little ſinge him; who no ſooner felt the Heat of the Fire near him, but the Sick immediately recovered.

This was a Thing publickly known to the Engliſh, as well as Indians, in the Neighbourhood: There can be no doubt of it.

The other I ſhall inſtance in, was a Relation from Capt. Thomas Dagget, Eſq; now deceaſed, and Richard Sarſon, Eſq; Juſtices of the Peace; who being on an Iſland, where a Bewitch'd Woman lay in great Extremity, and wholly impotent; the Powaws there having without Succeſs endeavour'd the Cure: The Related ſent to Martha's-Vineyard for more famous'd Powaws; the ſaid Gentlemen were admitted to be preſent, on certain Conditions: The Powaws go to dancing, who with the Spectators, uſed certain Ceremonies uſual in ſuch Caſes. One of the Powaws praying to his god, with ſuch ardent Deſires and Fervency, that Capt. Dagget told me, had it been to the True God, it had been a Prayer exceeding moſt that he had heard: The iſſue was, they in a Deer Skin caught the Spirit (as they ſaid) which entred the Woman. This, they ſaid, was the Spirit of an Engliſh-man drown'd in the adjacent Sound: Yet it was then ſuppos'd the Powaw was by, which bewitch'd her. The Iſſue was, ſhe immediately recover'd: The Powaw told her, Unleſs ſhe remov'd to Martha's Vineyard, ſhe would again be ſick; for being an Engliſh Spirit, he could not long confine it.

SECT. II.

Of the Converſion of the Indians inhabiting certain Iſlands near adjoining to the Continent of New-England; and the Propagation of the Goſpel by ſome ſent to the Main Land from thence.

THE Worſhipful Thomas Mayhew in the year 1641. having obtain'd a Grant of Martha's Vineyard, Nantuket and Elizabeth Iſles, to make a Settlement; his Son Mr. Thomas Mayhew in the year 1642, ſettl'd at Martha's Vineyard, with a few other Inhabitants, where his Reputation for Piety, his Natural Gifts beſide the acquir'd by his Education (having attain'd no ſmall Knowledge in the Latin and Greek Tongues; and being not wholly a Stranger to the Hebrew) ſoon occaſion'd his Call to the Miniſtry among that handful.

Not long after, viz. in the year 1644, God who had ordain'd him an Evangeliſt for the Converſion of theſe Gentiles, ſtirr'd him up with an holy Zeal and Reſolution, to aſſay what Succeſs he might find in that Work; he takes opportunity to inſinuate the Love and Good Will he bore to that People; and ſoon finds occaſion to let them know their deplorable Condition, under Satan, who as he had kept them in Ignorance of thoſe Bodily and Earthly Things, which might render their Lives in this World more happy; ſo of thoſe that related to their Future Happineſs in that to come, And whereas he could not be in hopes of being heard in a more publick, he treats them in a more private Way; ſometimes going to ſome particular Houſes, of Perſons whom he eſteem'd moſt Rational and well qualified, other while diſcourſing with particular Men.

The firſt Indian imbracing the Motion of forſaking their gods, and praying to the true God, was called Iacoomes; Eſteemed by the Indians as a contemptible Perſon among themſelves: Unto this Man, God who ordereth all things for his own Glory, gave ſo great a Meaſure of Faith and Confidence in his Power, that he is ſoon beyond the Fear of concealing his Contempt of their Gods: The Sachems and Powaws being much inraged, threaten his Life; the Powaws or Wizzards told him (a thing publickly known) that he could not be ignorant, that they could kill ſuch as diſpleas'd them, viz. by Witchcraft.

He anſwers for himſelf before the Sachems, Witches, and a great Aſſembly; acknowledges the god they worſhipp'd had great Power, but limited, and was ſubſervient to the God he now had choſen: Therefore although by their means many had ſuffer'd much, and ſome were killed, he deſpis'd their Power, as being himſelf a Servant of Him, whoſe Power over-ruled all Powers, and ordered all things: The Expecting Multitude wait the Event, which while they concluded to be Sickneſs or Death; the good Man remains wholly ſound to their Aſtoniſhment.

Mr. Mayhew makes uſe of this Advantage, is unceſſant in his Labour, and Promiſes, now while they ſtumbled in doubt of their own, to ſet them in the right Path: He ſpares not his Body by Night nor Day; lodges in their Houſes, propoſes ſuch things to their Conſideration he thinks firſtly requiſite, ſolves all their Scruples and Objections, and tells them they might plainly ſee, it was in good Will for their Good, from whom he expected no Reward; that he ſuſtained ſo much loſs of time, and endur'd Wet and Cold.

It pleas'd God to give ſuch Succeſs to theſe Endeavours, that it was not long before he obtain'd Publick Audience among them, when generally he ſpent more time after Sermon in reaſoning with them than in Sermon; whereby I muſt tell my Reader, it came to paſs that their Religion was as well in Head as Heart.

This worthy Servant of the Lord continued his painful Labours among them until the Year 1657. in which time God was pleas'd to give ſuch Succeſs to his faithful and unweary'd Labour that many hundred Men and Women were added to the Church; ſuch who might truly be ſaid to be Holy in Converſation, and for Knowledge ſuch who needed not to be taught the firſt Principles of Religion; beſide the many Hundred of looſer Profeſſors of which, that ſuch worthy Chriſtians whoſe godly Zeal for propagating the Goſpel, to ſuch who ſat in Darkneſs, and ſaw no Light, provok'd an holy Emulation to compaſs Sea and Land, by their liberal Contributions for Proſelyting the Heathen to the Service and Worſhip of the Lord Jeſus (who yet ſurvive) might rejoice, ſince that God gave a Bleſſing to, and cauſed a plentiful Harveſt to ſucceed their ſowing in theſe Waters: And that the Succeſſors and Children of thoſe ever to be honoured deceas'd Chriſtians might rejoice that their Predeceſſors Religious Intent, in giving freely of their Worldly Goods, to advance the Work for Salvation of Souls, was ſo far from diminiſhing their Eſtates, that they thereby left an Inheritance to their Childrens Children.

I

I ſhall give a true Relation of the Progreſs and preſent State of the Undertaking, and God's Bleſſing following the Endeavours of thoſe he called, for converting the Indians, on Martha's Vineyard and adjacent Iſlands: by letting the World know, who, and how qualified theſe were, who were eſteem'd Chriſtians.

When ſuch a Number profeſſed the Chriſtian Religion, as gave occaſion to the Indians in general to Eſteem them a Sect differing from themſelves, and by the Denomination of Praying Men, to ſignalize that Difference; and that their Number was ſuch as to Meet publickly to worſhip God: Such who forſook their Heatheniſh Worſhip and Idolatry, profeſſing to become Chriſtians, in the publick Aſſembly declar'd the Grounds and Reaſons moving them to embrace the one, and forſake the other Way, with their Reſolution to pray, to ſerve, and endeavour to obey the true God in Jeſus Chriſt; how this Reſolution was wrought in them; what Temptations had obſtructed, what Reaſon, Scripture and Strength from God had encourag'd them, and enabl'd 'em to retain ſuch Reſolution; how, they had often pray'd to God, and yet been overcome by Diſcouragements, and Temptations, &c. Cloſing all with profeſſing a Reſolution, by God's Aſſiſtance to pray to, and ſerve Him, and Him only; begging the Prayers of the Congregation to God in their Behalf: Which ſaid, many of the Congregation took them by the hand, in token of Love and good Will.

If after ſuch publick Profeſſion, any was obſerved not to perform the uſual Worſhipping of God, in praying with their Families, deſiring a Bleſſing on their Food, or the like (who yet in their publick Meeting conſtantly attended) they were publickly examin'd of the ſame: Of which let me give a remarkable Inſtance.

One, who after his Admiſſion (if I may ſo term it) into the Number and Society of the Praying Indians, being preſent at a great Aſſembly after the Exerciſe, was by him that preach'd, inform'd that it was reported he had ceaſed to pray, deſir'd him to let the Congregation know what Grounds and Motives occaſion'd ſuch Neglect: The Man anſwer'd, It was true, he had not lately uſed publickly to pray, yet did ſometimes pray privately: That he did not in his Judgment diſapprove the Service of God, but acknowledged it to be good: But found himſelf weak, not able to live up to the Rules of that Religion: But when God ſhould give him more Strength, he hoped he ſhould be again a praying Man.

Thus Mr. Mayhew continu'd his almoſt inexpreſſible Labour and vigilant Care for the Good of the Indians, whom he juſtly eſteemed his Joy and Crown: And having ſeen ſo great a Bleſſing on his Faithful Endeavours in the making known the Name of his Lord among theſe Gentiles, with indefatigable Pains, expecting no Reward but alone from him, who ſaid, Go teach all Nations: Lo, I am with you: God moved the Hearts of ſome godly Chriſtians in England to advance a conſiderable Sum for encouraging the propagating, and preaching the Goſpel to the Indians in New-England; and ſeeing the Spirit given to ſundry of the Indians, with the Gift of Prophecying; according to the Promiſe given by him, who Aſcended and gave Gifts unto Men; an Able Godly Engliſhman, nam'd Peter Foulger, who was imploy'd in teaching the Youth in Reading, Writing, and the Principles of Religion, by Catechiſing; and being well learn'd in the Scripture, able to aſſiſt them in what might be needful, his honour'd Father the Governour, well skilled in their Language, and highly honouring the Work for their Converſion; whereby, if in his Abſence any difficult Matter might happen, they might find ſuitable Aſſiſtance. In the year 1647. he intended a ſhort Voyage for England; but alas, the Ship wherein he took paſſage was never heard of.

Thus came to an immature Death Mr. Mayhew, who was ſo affectionately eſteem'd of by the Indians, that many years after he was ſeldom named without Tears.

Mr. Thomas Mayhew, after the loſs of his Son, as aforeſaid; ſeeing no ſuch Salary, probably to be obtain'd, that might invite a Miniſter to Embrace the Work among the Indians; and little hopes of finding any of the Spirit of his Son, or Mr. Eliot, to bear the Burden, attending, and and in that day of Neceſſity to be undergone; without a proſpect of more than could well be expected for incouraging ſo (in it ſelf troubleſome) Employ; and that his only Son, had ſpent his Strength, and yet rejoic'd in the midſt of thoſe many Aches, Pains and Diſtempers contracted by his often lodging in their cold Houſes, and induring Wet and Cold, in faith of God's accepting of, and proſpering him in that, whereunto he could ſee nothing could rationally move him, concludes that it was Of God and not of Man; he therefore reſolves to Viſit and Encourage them often: He goes once every Week to ſome of their Plantations; and with the Aſſiſtance of Godly Indians, who taught and inſtructed their Neighbours on the Lord's Days, perſwaded the Indians of the Gayhead, who many years were obſtinately reſolved not to admit the Glad Tidings of the Goſpel among them (being animated by the Sachims of the Continent) now to imbrace it: So that now the Indians on the Iſlans of Martha's Vineyard and Nantuket, might juſtly bear the Denomination of Chriſtian; the Number of Adult Perſons on both Iſlands being bout Three Thouſand; of which I have taken the more particular Care to make an Exact Computation, that I might vindicate Mr. Cotton Mather from the Imputation of over-reckoning, when in the Life of Mr. ELIOT he reckons the Number ſuppoſed on Martha's Vineyard profeſſing the Chriſtian Religion, to be Sixteen Hundred.

The Indians being thus brought over to the Acknowledgment and Profeſſion of the Chriſtian Religion; and many of them deſiring to joyn in ſuch Communion, whereby they might enjoy the Preſence of God in all his Ordinances: Mr. Mayhew and Mr. John Cotton, now Paſtor of the Church of New Plimouth, who having been ſometime Preacher to the Engliſh, had attain'd ſome Knowledge of the Indian Tongue, and preach'd unto them Two Years; being well ſatisfy'd with their ſuitable Qualifications, after mature Conſideration and Advice, concluded to give their Help and Aſſiſtance thereto: which was happily accompliſh'd to the good Satisfaction of the Engliſh Church, and Godly Profeſſors of the Iſland; who by Advantage of many Years Acquaintance with them, had great Experience of their Qualifications. An Indian Church Confederated at Martha's Vineyard, Auguſt 22. 1670.

Mr. Mayhew by Mr. Cotton's Removing from the Iſland, it was left alone as to any Engliſh Aſſiſtance: But Mr. John Mayhew his Grandſon, being call'd to preach to a ſmall People, by the urgent and ardent Deſires of the Indians: and being well skill'd in their Language, comply'd with them; and once every Week preached at ſome of their Plantations. His Diligence was now to be doubl'd, eſpecially after Mr. Mayhew his Grandfather's Death in the year 1681. by reaſon of certain Heterodox Opinions, likely to take root among them; and being a Man of great Natural Parts, he uſed to deſire ſuch who had imbib'd any of thoſe Principles, to produce their Reaſons; as likewiſe any that deſir'd to be reſolv'd in any Matter, to give him Advantage to reſolve them in Publick; that others might receive Satiſfaction and Inſtruction; whereby I believe and know, that they receiv'd more Conviction, Inſtruction and Satiſfaction than in the ordinary Way of Preaching; which always notwithſtanding preceded that: Inſomuch that none of thoſe Erroneous Opinions ſpread to the Diſturbance or Unſettlement of the Church nor Generality of Profeſſors among them: But having finiſh'd what God in his All-wiſe Providence ſaw good to improve him in: He deceas'd in the year 1688, leaving the Indians (if I might now ſo term them) in an orderly way of Religiouſly Congregating in their Aſſemblies on the Lord's Day, and hearing their ſeveral Teachers, who uſually began with Prayer, ſang part of a Pſalm; then from ſome Portion of Scripture ſpake for the Converſion and Edification of his Hearers: As alſo a Church which then or ſoon after, conſiſted of at leaſt One hundred Communicants, being according to the moſt ſtrict Order of the Congregational Way: Which leads me to ſay ſomething of the Diſcipline us'd among them.

The Church then are a Selected Company of Profeſſing Believers, in Covenant according to the Congregational Practice, having Officers accordingly; and keeping up the Exerciſe of a ſevere Diſcipline by publick Admonition in caſe of the diſorderly Walking of any Member of their Society: And if after the Reproof and Admonition of the Church, any proceed in their Evil Courſes, ſuch are proceeded with by Excommunication.

I would then willingly know of thoſe Detractors who either publickly or more privately, have endeavour'd to ſcandalize ſo great a Work; what kind of People they expect to ſee a Church conſiſt of: Or, when it will come to paſs that ſome ſhall not be retain'd in Churches (who yet may be deem'd an Holy People) whoſe Converſation may be grievous to the Church, tho' the Church can find no Expedient for their Excommunication? I know that many who are in no meaſure qualified for Church-Fellowſhip; think it no ſmall Diſparagement to themſelves that Indians ſhould be accounted worthy of what themſelves, cannot be admitted to: How it is in other Places I know not: But here ſome whoſe Religious Pretences have gain'd Credit abroad, and have not ſcrupl'd to Stigmatize the Indians with greateſt Opprobry, in particular Caſes of their Complaint the Indians have been found wholly innocent, and themſelves ſordidly Villainous: But when ſhall it be, that the Seed of the Serpent ſhall ceaſe to hiſs at, and open their Mouths againſt the Seed of the Woman? Which yet I could demonſtrate, hath in ſeveral Caſes which have occurr'd here againſt the Indians broken the Serpents Head in his Children, and if it were poſſible fill'd them with Shame and Confuſion, ——however the Sober Religious People here have done and do eſteem 'em as Chriſtians indeed. And although the Building be not all of Living Stones, yet as it is an Houſe, is ſo far eſteemed an Houſe of God: Inſomuch that I have heard ſome Godly Engliſh, their Neighbours, Members of Churches, profeſs they were troubl'd, that their Unacquaintedneſs in their Language was ſuch, that they could not well (but otherwiſe would gladly) partake with them, in the Ordinance of the Lord's Supper.

I muſt acknowledge, that as the Number of the Indians are greatly decreas'd, ſo eſpecially of the Godly and Religious; it being a thing ſo obvious, that in the year 1690. of the Indians of Martha's Vineyard alone; of the Number of more than One hundred adult Perſons that died, not leſs than Three Fourths were of the ſober Religious Profeſſors: That it was by the Engliſh Inhabitants vulgarly taken notice of: The which notwithſtanding in the year 1692. of the beforemention'd Church, were remaining more than One Hundred; without mentioning thoſe many Confeſſors before mention'd, whoſe publick Declarations of their ſeveral Convictions, Temptations and Reſolutions to Endeavour to Serve the True God, would have drawn Tears from the Eyes of any who had but in the Serious Retirements of Conſideration acknowledg'd a Deity.

I muſt not conclude before I tell the Reader, that as in the Apoſtolick Times the Church ſent forth from among themſelves, for the Converſion of the Nations, ſo theſe Indians on Martha's Vineyard

Jard did; not only to the Iſland of Nantuket, being about 1500 Adult Perſons; but likewiſe to the Main Land.

Of thoſe of Nantuket I ſhall ſubjoin a Letter, from Mr. John Gardner, who is well acquainted with them, having divers years aſſiſted them in their Government, by inſtructing them in the Laws of England, and deciding difficult Caſes among them.

The LETTER.

Worſhipful Sir,

I Have receiv'd Yours of April the 8th. 94. with your Deſire to be informed of the preſent State of of our Indians, as to their Number, Worſhip and Government; an Anſwer to your Deſires, take briefly.

Their Decay is Great, chiefly in Number, there being now but about Five hundred Grown Perſons: As to their Worſhip, there are Three Societies or Churches: Two Congregational, One of the Baptiſts, but their Number is ſmall; but there are Five Conſtant Aſſemblies or Meetings; Two amongſt them that went by the Name of the Antepeatames or Powatoms; and that I may now ſay, there is not known a Powaw amongſt them; and although it is true, there is a great Decay in Religion among the Firſt Societies, many of their beſt Men, and I may ſay Good Men, are Dead: Yet amongſt the now Praying Indians, there is an Increaſe; God raiſing up ſome even of Themſelves, Preachers and ſerious Men too ſome of them; which is Cauſe of Thankfulneſs: But that there is a Decay with many, is to be lamented; the Cauſe I take to be their not preſerving the Truth in the Love of it; their Love to Drink: Their being more mindful of Form than Subſtance, which puts me upon Endeavour to make them ſenſible, That it is neither Circumciſion nor Uncircumciſion is any thing, but the Keeping the Commandments of God; Faith that Works by Love, the New Creature, and things of that Nature.

As to their Government, they are wholly under their Majeſty's, or the Engliſh Government: The Method is, they have Three Diſtinct or Town-Courts, with Power to hear and determine to Forty Shillings; The Magiſtrates they chuſe themſelves Yearly; and when Choſen and Approved of, they have Commiſſions with Liberty of Appeal to the Engliſh, which they make much uſe of: Greater Matters come to the Engliſh. This in ſhort is the Truth of their Preſent State.

I am

Your Real Friend and Servant,

Nantuket
May 17.
1694.

JOHN GARDNER.

Here we muſt take notice of God's giving Succeſs to the Miniſtry of the Indians; and acknowledge, That although there have been ſome Decay, yet on that Iſland there is not only a Form, but in ſome meaſure the Power of Godlineſs.

So likewiſe on the Main-land; by the alone Miniſtry of the Martha's Vineyard Indians, was the Civilizing and Converſion of the Indians on the Main-land, at a Place call'd Succonet, and Parts adjacent; who, as they were Converted by the Miniſtry, ſent from the Church of Martha's Vineyard, ſo the Officers were by them, (as likewiſe were thoſe of Nantuket) Ordain'd by laying on the Hands of their Presbytery; Of theſe, although I have been no Eye-witneſs, yet I have receiv'd Account from even ſuch who bare no great Reſpect to Religion, that they are as beyond Compariſon, Exceeding the other Indians in Moral Vertue; So likewiſe from other Judicious Perſons, their Neighbours, of whom I ſhall name Mr. William Vobes, a Perſon now Repreſenting the Freeholders of thoſe Parts, in the Great and General Aſſembly of the Province of the Maſſachuſet-Bay in New England: Nor have theſe People as yet Dependance on, nor Expectation from any other than their Mother, the Church of Martha's Vineyard.

SECT. III.

Of the Indians Government when Chriſtians

I Have already told my Reader, That the Government of this People was the beſt (of all Governments) Monarchy; And it has been judg'd, not without Reaſon, that a main Obſtruction in the Progreſs of the Goſpel in the American Plantations, was, if not yet is, the Jealouſie the Princes conceiv'd of the Invaſion of their Government through the Pretences of Religion, and the Eclipſing their Monarchical Dignity.

Mr. Thomas Mayhew therefore finding that the Princes on theſe Iſlands, who although they maintain'd their Abſolute Power and Juriſdiction as Kings; were yet bound to do certain Homage to a Potent Prince on the Continent; and although they were no great People, yet had been waſted by Indian Wars, wherein the Great Princes on the Continent (not unlike European Princes for like Reaſons of State) were not unaſſiſting, whereby they were neceſſitated to make theſe Princes the Balance to decide their Controverſies, and ſeveral Juriſdictions, by Preſents Annually ſent, whereby obliging the Princes to give their ſeveral Aſſiſtance as Occaſion requir'd: And ſeeing his Son as aforeſaid, in a Zealous Endeavour for their Converſion, he judged it meet that Moſes and Aaron joyn Hands: He therefore prudently lets them know, that by Order from his Maſter the King of England, he was to govern the Engliſh which ſhould inhabit theſe Iſlands: That his Maſter was in Power far above any of the Indian Monarchs; but that, as he was Powerful, ſo was he a great Lover of Juſtice: That therefore he would in no meaſure invade their Juriſdictions but on the contrary, aſſiſt them as Need requir'd: That Religion and Government were diſtinct Things. Thus in no long time they conceiv'd no ill Opinion of the Chriſtian Religion.

When afterwards the Number of the Chriſtian Indians were increas'd among them, he perſwaded them to admit of the Counſels of the Judicious Chriſtians among themſelves; and in caſes of more than ordinary Conſequence, of a Jury for Trial; when likewiſe he promis'd his Aſſiſtance and Direction with the Prince; when notwithſtanding the Prince's Aſſent was to be obtain'd, tho' he were no Chriſtian.

Thus within a few Years there was a Happy Government ſetl'd among them, and Records kept of all Actions and Acts paſſed in their ſeveral Courts, by ſuch who having learn'd to write fairly, were appointed thereto. The Princes with their Sachims (or Nobles) made publick Acknowledgment of their Subjection to the King of England, being notwithſtanding mindful to be underſtood as Subordinate Princes, to Govern according to the Laws of God and the King. Here I ſhall take leave to inſert Two Remarkables.

During the late unhappy War between the Engliſh and the Indians in New England, about Nineteen Years ſince; an Evil Spirit poſſeſs'd too many of our Engliſh, whereby they ſuffer'd Themſelves to be unreaſonably Exaſperated againſt all Indians: Of ſuch, there were ſome on theſe Iſlands who could hardly be ſo moderated by Mr. Mayhew, and others in Government with him, as to be reſtrain'd from riſing to aſſay the Diſarming of the Indians; for whoſe Satisfaction Captain Richard Sarſon, Eſq; was order'd with a ſmall Party (the Indians being on theſe Iſlands Twenty to one, having Arms) to Treat the Indians on the Weſt End of Martha's Vineyard, who were moſtly to be doubted. He returns with the Enſuing Anſwer; That the delivering their Arms, would Expoſe them to the Will of the Indians ingag'd in the preſent War, who were not leſs theirs than the Enemies of the Engliſh: That they had never given occaſion of the Diſtruſt intimated: If in any thing not hazarding their Safety, they could give any Satisfaction for the Proof of their Fidelity, they would willingly attend what ſhould reaſonably be demanded of them: But they were unwilling to deliver their Arms, unleſs the Engliſh would propoſe ſome Mean for their Safety and Livelihood. With this Return, they drew a Writing in their own Language, which I have often read, and would have Verbatim inſerted, but can't at preſent find it. The Subſtance was, That as they had ſubmitted to the Crown of England, ſo they reſolved to Aſſiſt the Engliſh on theſe Iſlands againſt their Enemies, which they Eſteem'd in the ſame reſpect equally their own, as Subjects to the ſame King: which was ſubſcrib'd by the Perſons of the greateſt Note among them.

Having this Anſwer, the Government reſolv'd, and accordingly improv'd them as a Guard, furniſhing them with ſuitable Ammunition, and found them ſo faithful, that even ſome nearly related, in obſervance of General Inſtructions given them, ſo ſoon as they landed from the Continent, were immediately brought before the Governour to attend his Pleaſure: Inſomuch that the Engliſh (although the War, with reſpect to the Multitude of Indians, inhabiting the Continent, and their Advantage by the Nearneſs to the French had no good Aſpect) took no care, but left the whole to the Indians: Nothing doubting to be advertiſed by them of any Danger from the Enemy, This was the Effect of the bringing the Goſpel of Peace among them, viz. a Peace bringing Goſpel.

The other Obſervable I ſhall add to ſhew as their Loyalty, ſo their Obſervance of the Laws of England.

In the time of the late Revolution, when many in hopes there was no King in Iſrael, Expected to have done what they ſaw good in their own eyes. Several of our Engliſh threatning to fetch certain Sheep in poſſeſſion of the Indians inhabiting a ſmall Iſland adjacent to Martha's Vineyard: Which Sheep they aſſerted were ſtolen from 'em, who met with Repulſe: The Sachim, leſt there ſhould happen any Miſunderſtanding of that matter, immediately makes his Report to me in theſe Words, viz.

Several of Your Engliſh have been on my Iſland, and would have forcibly taken Sheep from thence: and we are much threatned therewith: I am doubtful if they perſiſt in that Reſolution, it may occaſion Bloodſhed: You know that while your Grandfather and my Father liv'd, there never hapned any Difference in ſuch things, nor hope will be occaſion given by me. I deſire the ſame Amity may be continued: Nor can the Engliſh ſay that we have not manifeſted our Allegiance to the King by a continued Subjection.

And altho' 'tis true, we have deſir'd your Order ſhould come to us rather than your Officer, which hath generally been obſerv'd; yet we are willing in caſe the Engliſh pretend any thing, ours have injur'd them in, let an Officer by Writ from Authority do his duty, then we ſhall know how in an orderly way to be reliev'd: Yet ſhall the leaſt Boy bringing your Order, as in your Grandfather's time, command any thing: And if you ſee Cauſe on any Complaint about our Sheep, you may command all of them; hoping to find as hitherto, a Deciſion by the Rules of Juſtice: We hope we ſhall not ſee (as is too much practis'd in other Places) an Engliſhman pretending an Indian to be in his debt, to come to our Houſes and pay himſelf: Or, in other Caſes, beat our People; But as hitherto we may have equal Juſtice, being the King's Subjects; and Violence, and Riot committed on our People by the Engliſh may be eſteem'd of the ſame nature and quality as ours againſt them; of which, with the Juſtices, we pray you would conſider, and take ſpeedy Care.

I ſhall, as to their Government, only add, that in their ſeveral Plantations or Town Ships, they Elect Three or more to joyn with the Sachims (or Lords of the Place) who hold Courts for iſſuing ſuch Controverſies as happen among them, the Sachim preſiding in ſuch Courts; or in caſe he decline that Office, another is Elected in his Place. If either Party diſlike the Judgment given, he Appeals to a Superiour Court, which conſiſts of ſome of the moſt Eſteem'd of each Place, being ſome of their Magiſtrates, where ſome Principal Sachim is Elected to preſide for one Year: And from this Court an Appeal lies to the Engliſh Court.

In giving Judgment, they obſerve ſuch Rules and Orders made and recorded among themſelves, and the Engliſh Law, the Knowledge whereof they much aſpire unto. They have likewiſe ſome among them, whom the leſs able to declare or defend their own Caſes, improve as Attornies; ſome of which are, to admiration, Critical in their Pleadings.

I ſhall cloſe the Whole, when I have told the Reader, that their Children are generally taught to Read, and many to Write.

In one of their Towns the laſt Winter, viz. 1693. Thirty Children were at School, Twenty more of the ſame Place, at the ſame time, accidentally, being not ſupplied with Books, could not attend it. Such who are too far diſtant from any School, are often taught by ſome of their Neighbours; in divers places are leſſer Schools.

POST-SCRIPT.

HAving among many things, worthy of Notice in the Precedent Diſcourſe, omitted ſome Remarkables of the Indian Converſe with Infernal Spirits; I thought meet to briefly touch ſome things therein Remarkable, and to inſert a Narrative of the Deceaſe of a Prince, memorable for his forſaking his People for the ſake of Chriſt, and his Return with happy Succeſs in Proſelyting his Subjects to the Worſhip of God in Chriſt.

This I find written on the Out-ſide of a Book, in the Library of Mr. John Mayhew deceaſed: Which pleaſe to take as followeth.

‘Mitark, Sachim (rather Prince) of the Gay head, on Martha's Vineyard, Deceaſed January 1683.

‘THIS Prince's Subjects being reſolv'd to continue in Heatheniſm, notwithſtanding his Embracing the Goſpel, grew ſo diſaffected to him, that he for a time remov'd to the Eaſt End of Martha's Vineyard; whither after Three Years abode at the ſaid Place, he again return'd, having perſwaded his People into a Willingneſs, that ſuch who would, might attend the Glad Tidings he pretended to bring; whereupon he himſelf open'd to them the Myſteries of the Goſpel, diſpenſing the Word to ſuch as came to hear him; inſomuch that at this Day that People are all Chriſtians by Profeſſion.

‘The Day before his Death, I being with him, inquired of him concerning his Hope, who after he had Treated ſome time of the Mutability of an Earthly Life, ſaid, I have hope in God, that when my Soul departeth out of this Body, GOD will ſend his Meſſengers, who ſhall conduct it to Himſelf, to be with Jeſus Chriſt.

‘And then with great Earneſtneſs pronounced theſe Words: where that Everlaſting Glory is! As for my Reaſons (ſaid he) I my ſelf have had many Wrongs of Enemies, of whom I have ſought no Revenge, nor retain'd Evil in Thought, Word nor Deed; and I alſo expect the ſame from God.

‘But (ſaid he) I proceed no further: for God is very Merciful. Then I ask'd him of his Willingneſs to die. He reply'd, It is now Seven Nights ſince I was taken ſick, and I have not yet ask'd of God to live longer in the World.

‘In this World are ſome Benefits to be enjoy'd; alſo many Troubles to be endur'd; but with reſpect to the Hope I have in God, I am willing to die: Here I am in pain, there I ſhall be freed from all Pain, and enjoy that Reſt that never endeth.

‘Then pointing to his Daughters, ſaid, There be Three of my Daughters (relating how they were diſpos'd of) And you, my Daughters, if you loſe your Father, Mourn not for me, but Mourn for your ſelves, and for your Sins: Mourn not for me; for though you are unwilling to ſpare me, and I might be helpful to you if I ſhould live longer in this World, yet to die, is better for me.

Of Powaws or Perſons improving the Infernal Spirits to effect their intended Malicious Harms; I can inform of a Converted Sachim, who in his publick Proteſtation, ſaid as followeth, viz.

‘That he having often employ'd his god, which appear'd to him in form of a Snake, to Kill, Wound, and Lame ſuch whom he intended Miſchief to, he employ'd the ſaid Snake to Kill; and that failing, to Wound or Lame Hiacooms, the firſt Convert on Martha's Vineyard; all which prov'd ineffectual: And having ſeriouſly conſider'd the ſaid Hiacooms's Aſſertion, That none of the Powaws could hurt him, ſince his God whom he now ſerv'd, was the Great God, to whom theirs was ſubſervient: he reſolv'd to worſhip the True God: From which time, during Seven Years, the ſaid Snake gave him great Diſturbance: But that he never after his praying to God in Chriſt, imploy'd that ſaid Snake in any thing, which about that time ceas'd to appear to him.

A Further Account concerning the preſent State of Chriſtianity among the INDIANS in other Parts of NEW-ENGLAND.

CONCERNING the further Progreſs of the Goſpel among the Indians in America, the Reader may take this following Account, which is extracted out of ſeveral Letters ſent to the Reverend Increaſe Mather, Preſident of the College at Cambridge in New-England.

Mr. Samuel Treat, Paſtor of the Church in Eaſtham, in a Letter bearing Date Auguſt 23. 1693. writeth as followeth.

Reverend and Worthy Sir,

I Being advertiſed, that it would not be unſeaſonable or unſerviceable at this Juncture, to give your ſelf a true and impartial Account both of the Number, as alſo of the preſent State of our Indians, and Acceptation and Entertainment of the Goſpel among them, and their profeſs'd Subjection thereunto. Sir, You may be aſſur'd as followeth,

That there are Five hundred and five Adult Perſons of Indians within the Limits of our Townſhip, unto whom theſe many years paſt, I have from time to time imparted the Goſpel of our Lord Jeſus in their own Language (and I truly hope not without Succeſs) and yet I continue in the ſame Service, earneſtly imploring, and not without Hopes, expecting and waiting for a more plentiful down-pouring of the Spirit from on high among them: And I verily do not know of, nor can I learn that there is ſo much as one of theſe Five Hundred Indians that does obſtinately abſent from, but do jointly frequent and attend on the Preaching of the Word, and countenance the ſame, not only frequenting and attending Seaſons of Worſhip of a Divine Sanction, but alſo all other Occaſional Opportunities, when the Goſpel is diſpens'd to them; and when our Congregations ſolemnize publick Days of Prayer with Faſting, or of Praiſes (I uſually giving them Advertiſement thereof) they readily comply therewith, in their reſpective Aſſemblies.

They have Four diſtinct Aſſemblies in four Villages belonging to our Townſhip, in which Four Aſſemblies they have Four Teachers of their own Choice, of the more Sober, Well-affected and Underſtanding Perſons among them, who do duly preach to them, when I am not with them: Theſe Indian Teachers repair to my Houſe once a Week, to be further inſtructed (pro Modulo meo) in the Concernments proper for their Service and Station.

There are in the Four aboveſaid Villages, four Schoolmaſters (of the beſt accompliſh'd for that Service) who teach their Youth to Read and Write their own Language.

There are alſo Six Juſtices of the Peace (or Magiſtrates) in the Four aboveſaid Villages, who regulate their Civil Affairs, and puniſh Criminals and Tranſgreſſors of the Civil Law; they have their ſtated Courts and other inferiour Officers in a Subſerviency to their Civil Good Order.

There are among them many of a Serious, Sober, Civilzed Converſation and Deportment, who are making Eſſays towards a further progreſſive Step of Obedience and Conformity to the Rules of the Goſpel, viz. an Eccleſiaſtical Combination, having a great Deſire to be Baptiz'd.

They are very Serviceable by their Labour to the Engliſh Vicinity, and have all along ſince our Wars with their Nation, been very Friendly to the Engliſh, and forward to ſerve them in that Quarrel. Their Deportment, and Converſe, and Garb, being more Manly and Laudable than any other Indians, that I have obſerv'd in the Province.

But, Sir, I would not be Tedious, only craving your Intereſt at the Throne of Grace for us, that we may be Serviceable to the Name and Kingdom of our LORD JESUS. So I ſubſcribe,

SIR,

Eaſtham, Aug. 23. 1693. Yours willingly,

Samuel Treat.

Mr. James Noyce Paſtor of the Church in Stonington, in a Letter dated the Fifteenth of March laſt, writeth thus.

Reverend Sir,

YOurs I receiv'd, and rejoice that God hath ſtirr'd up any that doth take care and contribute towards the advancing Chriſt's Kingdom amongſt the poor Heathen; and do and did formerly believe, that where God ſends Light, He intends Love; and where God gives little, He expects leſs; and therefore the Labours of the Reverend Mr. Eliot, Mr. Mayhew, &c. have not been loſt, they have not Run in vain, but that many are gone to Heaven of their deceas'd Hearers. And I ſhould count it my Joy and Crown to win one Soul of them to Chriſt. And am in hope that ſome one or two of the Pequots, that were my Friends, and liv'd on my Land, upon my Endeavour have obtain'd Mercy now dead, who dy'd praying, renounc'd wholly the way of the Heathen Worſhip, &c.

Alſo ſome of our Captive Servants profeſſing the Faith, with many Tears, are baptiz'd, and give good Teſtimony in their Knowledge, Converſe and Converſation of a real gracious Work upon them.

I have in my Houſe a witty hopeful Sachem's Son, one of the chiefeſt Quality in theſe Parts, bound faſt to me to be inſtructed to Read and Write, and in the way of Life, which hitherto gives great hopes and no Diſcouragement; he is about Thirteen years of age. And once I had the Advantage to aſtoniſh many of the Heathen; and of the chief of them, by God's anſwering Prayers in the preſence of many Heathen, by raiſing a very ſick Indian Lad (Engliſh alſo preſent) after the Lad was given over by Indians and Engliſh, and was Speechleſs; and ſeveral Powaws had Powawed, and given that Sentence, that the Lad would die; but he is alive to this day: The Story is too large to write, but I believe God did glorifie Himſelf in the ſight of the Heathen, according to humble and earneſt Petitions, made in the Preſence of about Thirty Heathen: All ſeem'd to be much confounded and awakened. One very Witty and Wiſe Sachem there preſent, told me, he would be a Chriſtian, but he was afraid his Heart would not be right, without which, Profeſſion would be in vain, and he was afraid Wine and Women would be his Ruine, he ſhould not forbear; but he own'd and almoſt all preſent, when I pray'd, our God was the Great and True God, but they were poor Indians, and they did not know him. Of theſe things, and much more many Engliſh Witneſſes are alive, but ſome are dead.

I have heard alſo the Reverend Mr. Fitch did at the Requeſt of the Mohegs, keep a Faſt for Rain, in the time of a great Drought, at the Requeſt of the Heathen, when their Powaws had long cried for Rain; and God anſwer'd by ſending Rain the ſame Day, to the great Aſtoniſhment of the Heathen.

Yours to ſerve,

Stonington,
Mar. 15, 9¾. JAMES NOYCE.

Mr. Rowland Cotton, Miniſter at Sandwich, in a Letter of June 27. 1693. writeth thus:

Reverend Sir,

I Have Endeavour'd to take an Exact Account of thoſe Indians, Adult Perſons, who do conſtantly attend upon the Diſpenſation of the Goſpel, in the Place that at preſent I am concern'd for. And we do find, that in Maſhipau, Sanctuit, and Cotuit Villages bordering on each other, and all belonging to the ſame Aſſembly, there are no leſs than Two hundred and Fourteen, beſides ſeveral Straglers that have no ſetled Place; do repair thither. To carry on the Work of the Lord's Day, there is appointed one Simon Papmonit: And at other times I ſhall diligently intend their Good according to my Capacity.

Reverend Sir,

Sandwich, June 27. 1693. I deſire your Bleſſing on

Your Servant,

ROWL. COTTON

Mr. Thomas Tupper alſo has given an Account of One hundred and eighty Indians, unto whom he does diſpenſe the Word, concerning whom he has Charitable Hopes that they do (and that with Zeal and Sincerity) Embrace the Goſpel. There are moreover in Plimouth Colony about Five hundred Indians, amongſt whom Mr. John Cotton (Paſtor of the Church in Plimouth, and Son to the Famous Cotton of Boſton) hath and doth preach the Goſpel.

Likewiſe Mr. Peter Thatcher; Paſtor of the Church in Milton, is a Faithful Labourer among the Indians at Punkepaog. So is Mr. Grindal Rawſon, Paſtor of the Church in Mendham, among the Indians in thoſe Parts; and Mr. Bondet, who is Miniſter to the French Congregation at Oxford, in the Nipmug Country.

The Indian Church at Natick (which was the firſt Indian Church in America) is ſince bleſſed Eliot's Death, much diminiſh'd and dwindl'd away. But Mr. Daniel Gookin, hath beſtow'd his pious Cares upon it.

Beſides the Labours of the Engliſh in New-England, Mr. Dellius (a Dutch Miniſter) at Albany has learn'd the Language of the Indians in thoſe Parts; God has graciouſly ſmil'd on his Endeavours, ſo as that conſiderable Numbers of them are converted to the Faith of Chriſt, and there is Reaſon to hope that what is done, is but the Firſt Fruits of a Great Harveſt to follow.

Take the Account which himſelf giveth in a Letter bearing date the 16*th* of January laſt. His Words are theſe,

Reverend Sir,

‘I Have this to add to my former, that a Jeſuit call'd Milet, whom the Oneydes took Priſoner about Four years ago, and who is now in that Caſtle a Great Man among them, uſes all his Subtilty to fruſtrate my Labours, by making falſe Impreſſions upon the Indians concerning our Religion; yet Almighty God is pleas'd to ſtrengthen my Proſelytes in that way I teach them, more and more. Sometimes there happens Difference and Diſputes between my Proſelytes and his concerning the Points of Religion; but ours alledge they confute the others. This I muſt ſay for them, that they take a great ‘deal of pains, and are very zealous to learn, and very devout in their Practice. I am, under favour, of opinion, that the Jeſuit Catechiſm, with the Caſes of Conſcience added thereto, writ by their own Hands, which they learn the Indians, which is either in your or your Reverend Son, Mr. Cotton Mather's poſſeſſion, may be ſerviceable to convince our Proſelytes and others, French that come here, of their pernicious Principles; and wiſh the ſame might be ſent me.

‘I had put Six or Seven Pſalms in their native Language upon our Notes, but were not perfected; now they are finiſh'd, and the Ten Commandments alſo.

‘The new Infant Church among the Heathen increaſes, there being Seventeen laſt Communion day, the Thirty firſt of December laſt, who took the Sacrament with us, and Four others baptiz'd the ſame Day. Thus God is ſought of them that asked not for him, and is found of them that ſought him not. I think that God has a great People of them yet: The Lord ſend a Bleſſing to thoſe means that are us'd for the Enlargement of his Kingdom among them; and bleſs you, and all that labour in his Vineyard; which ſhall ever be the Prayers of him, who is,

Reverend Sir,

Your moſt Faithful and Obedient Servant in our Lord Jeſus,

AN APPENDIX,

Relating Things greatly Remarkable, fetch'd from one little Iſland of Chriſtianized INDIANS.

IT is not among the Engliſh only, but among the Indians alſo, that our Glorious Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath been glorify'd in doing of Wonders. And altho' ſome of thoſe Wonders have been mention'd elſewhere, but more of 'em have been faultily bury'd in ſuch Oblivion that they are never like to have any mention at all in this World, yet I am able to furniſh one conſiderable part of a Chapter in our Church Hiſtory, with a Collection of Remarkables, fetch'd from no more than one little Party of Chriſtianiz'd Indians; even thoſe upon the one little Iſland of Martha's Vineyard. It is poſſible that ſome of the Americans may be the Poſterity of thoſe Canaanites, who after the Wars of Canaan, ſet up their Pillars in Africa, with that Inſcription,

> We are of thoſe that fled from the Face of Joſhua the Robber.

But behold, how Jeſus the Saviour has follow'd them, and conquer'd them with his Glorious Grace!

Reader, Stand ſtill, and conſider the Wondrous Works of God!

(I.) The UNKNOWN GOD wonderfully making himſelf known to a poor Pagan.

How far our Sovereign and Gracious God may in an Extraordinary Manner diſcover of himſelf unto ſome among the poor Pagans that have not enjoy'd the preaching of the Goſpel, who can particularly determine? Wonderful is the Story which we have in Aquinas, of a Corpſe taken up out of a Sepulchre in the Days of Conſtantine and Irene, which had on it a Plate of Gold, whereon theſe Words were Engrav'd:

> Chriſtus naſcetur ex Virgine, Ego credo in illum:
> O Sol, ſub Irenes & Conſtantini Temporibus
> iterum me videbis.

A Story ſo wonderful will not engage me to write pro Salute Ariſtotelis; or to defend a Problem advanc'd even by ſome of our own great Reformers, De Animabus Paganorum; leſt I incurr the Cenſure paſſed by one of the Ancients, on thoſe who endeavour to prove Plato a Chriſtian, till they prove themſelves little better than Heathen. It is indeed a Principle in the Alcoran of Mahomet, That Let a Man's Religion be what it will, he ſhall be ſav'd, if he conſcientiouſly live up to the Rules of it. And it is fitter for Mahometans than for Chriſtians to maintain a Principle ſo derogatory unto the Vertue of the Goſpel, which, if it be Hid, it is Hid unto them that be loſt. None more ſincerely than we Non-Conformiſts, do ſubſcribe unto that Article of the Church of England, They are to be held Accurſed, who preſume to ſay, That every Man ſhall be ſav'd by the Law or Sect which he profeſſeth, ſo that he be diligent to frame his Life according to that Law and Light of Nature: For Holy Scripture doth ſet out unto us only the Name of Jeſus Chriſt, whereby Men muſt be ſav'd.

But I will wholly leave my Reader to his own Judgment on another Story ſomewhat wonderful.

Pammehanuit an Indian of prime Quality, on Martha's Vineyard, and his Wife having buried their five firſt Children ſucceſſively, every one of them within ten Days of their Birth, notwithſtanding all their Uſe of Powaws and of Medicines, to preſerve them, they had a ſixth Child (a Son) born about the Year 1638, which was a few Years before the Engliſh firſt ſetled on that Vineyard. The Mother was greatly perplexed with Fear that ſhe ſhould loſe this Child, like the Former: And utterly deſpairing of any Help from ſuch means as had been formerly tried with ſo little ſucceſs, as ſoon as ſhe was able, (which among the Indians is quickly and within leſs than Ten Days) with a ſorrowful Heart, ſhe took up her Child, and went out into the Field, that ſhe might there weep out her Sorrows. While ſhe was here muſing on the Inſufficiency of all Humane Help, ſhe felt it powerfully ſuggeſted unto her Mind, That there is one Almighty God who is to be pray'd unto: That this God hath created all the Things that we ſee: and That the God who had given Being to her ſelf, and all other People, and given her Child unto her, was eaſily able to continue the Life of her Child.

Hereupon this poor blind Pagan reſolv'd, That ſhe would ſeek unto This GOD for that Mercy, and ſhe did accordingly. The Iſſue was, that her Child liv'd; and her Faith (ſuch as it was) in Him, who thus anſwer'd her Prayer, was wonderfully ſtrengthen'd: The Conſideration whereof caus'd her to Dedicate this Child unto the Service of that God, who had preſerv'd his Life; and Educate him as far as might be, to become the Servant of God.

Not long after this, the Engliſh came to ſettle on Martha's Vineyard; and the Indians, who had been preſent at ſome of the Engliſh Devotions, reported, That they aſſembled frequently together; and that the Man who ſpoke among 'em, often look'd upwards. This Woman, from this Report, preſently concluded, That their Aſſemblies were for Prayers; and that their Prayers were unto that very God, whom ſhe had addreſſed for the Life of her Child. She was confirm'd in this, when the Goſpel was not long after preached by Mr. Mayhew to the Indians there; which Goſpel ſhe readily, and chearfully, and heartily embrac'd. And in the Confeſſion that ſhe made publickly at her Admiſſion into the Church, ſhe gave a Relation of the preparation for the Knowlege of Chriſt, wherewith God in this wonderful Way had favour'd her. But that which adds to this Wonder, is, that this very Child has prov'd an Eminent Preacher of Chriſt unto the other Indians. He is living at this time [1696] a very Religious Chriſtian, and a Laborious Miniſter, and one, who not only is Paſtor to an Indian Church on Martha's Vineyard, conſiſting of ſome Scores of Regenerate Souls, but alſo has taken pains to carry the Goſpel unto other Indians on the Main Land with a Notable Effect thereof. His Name is Japhet.

(II.) A Miracle.

A Chriſtian Indian living at Martha's Vineyard, had his Arm ſo wither'd, that he could make no uſe of it. Upon which occaſion he went unto divers of his Relations, deſiring them to join with him in Prayer for the Recovery of his Arm. He could find no Faith in any of 'em about the matter, except ſome little in his Wife; with whom therefore he ſet apart a time ſolemnly to ſeek after Chriſt, in the Caſe which thus diſtreſs'd him: And behold, he was quickly after this perfectly reſtor'd, unto the Aſtoniſhment of all his Neighbours.

It is a remarkable Paſſage which Mr. Daniel Rogers hath (in his Naaman) about our New-Engliſh Plantations, Who can or dare deny but that the Calling of thoſe Americans to the Knowledge of the Truth, may ſeem a weighty Occaſion to expect from God the Gift of Miracles? Behold, Reader, the Expectation remarkably accommodated!

(III.) Wondrous Anſwers of Devout Prayers among the Chriſtian Indians.

Our Chriſtian Indians are diſtinguiſh'd by the Name of Praying Indians: And when they have become Chriſtian, they have been favour'd by Heaven, with notable Succeſſes of their Praying.

There liv'd at Martha's Vineyard a Godly Indian, call'd William Lay, who was both a Magiſtrate and a Miniſter among his Countreymen. This Man was in the year 1690. viſited with a ſore Fit of Sickneſs, which prevail'd upon him ſo far, that he lay ſpeechleſs, in the laſt Conflict with Death, as his Friends apprehended, for ſeveral Days together. At length his Wife ſuppoſing his End very near, deſired Japhet the Paſtor of the Indian Church to pray with him, who coming to the Houſe, could ſcarce perceive any Life now left in him. However, Japhet would not pray at this time without firſt ſinging a Pſalm; and particularly, the Eleven firſt Verſes of the eighty eighth Pſalm.

Now they had hardly ſang two Verſes before the dying Man began to revive, and ſtir up his Eyes, and move his Lips, and lift his Hands; and then he began to ſing with them, and quickly his Voice was as high, if not higher, than any of theirs. Thus he continu'd ſinging, with his Hands lifted up until they concluded: And then laying down his Hands, he ſeem'd again fallen into his dying poſture. Japhet then goes to prayer, and ſoon after Prayer was begun, the ſick Man began once more to revive: And lifting up his Hand, he got Japhet by the Hand, and held him till Prayer was ended; and then he immediately open'd his mouth in the praiſes of God, who, he ſaid, had heard Prayer on his behalf, and graciouſly reſtor'd him from the Mouth of the Grave, that he might ſee his Goodneſs in the World; and he believ'd would beſtow Life Eternal upon him in the World to come.

The Man recover'd, and walk'd abroad: But about half a Year after this, he fell into another Sickneſs, whereof he dy'd.

Another very notable Anſwer of Prayer, did Abel Aoſſoowe, an Elder of the Indian Church at Martha's Vineyard, count himſelf oblig'd unto Heaven for. In the Month of January 1685, he with his Wife, undertook to paſs over Monument Bay, about five Leagues, in a little Canoo; but when they were got a little more than half way, the Ice came ſo upon them, as to encloſe them on every ſide, and cover the Water as far as ever they could ſee.

They were now in extream Diſtreſs, and cry'd unto God with Earneſt Prayers for Deliverance; but eſpecially for the Salvation of their Souls, which they thought was all they had now to hope for.

In this Diſtreſs they continu'd for ſeveral Hours; but at length, immediately after one of their Prayers, the Ice open'd juſt at the Head of their Canoo, and went on opening to them; ſo that they had a Free, tho' a ſtreight Paſſage to the Shore, for divers Miles together; the Ice cloſing ſtill together again juſt as the Canoo had paſſed it. Their Friends on the Shore beholding ſome of their Diſtreſs, but unable to help them in it, beheld alſo with Aſtoniſhment the Relief thus granted them, and gave them a joyful Welcome.

(IV.) A notable Converſion of an Obſtinate Infidel.

Reader, Behold one ſaved as by Fire!

No longer ago than the Year 1695, about the beginning of October, the Spirit of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt mov'd the Heart of Japhet for to carry his Goſpel unto the Indians in a Plantation, which hitherto were without the Knowledge of the Great Salvation. Theſe Indians were, by the Bleſſing of Heaven, on the Preaching of Japhet, brought generally to ſubject themſelves unto the Goſpel. Yet there was One Man among them, at firſt very obſtinate; who nevertheleſs after much Obſtinacy, promis'd at length to forſake his Heatheniſm, and embrace the Religion of Chriſt. But when Japhet was gone off, this Man goes to his Brother, and expreſſes his Diſlike of the Chriſtian Religion, and ſignifies that he would return to his old Heatheniſh Cuſtoms. His Brother diſſwaded him from this Apoſtacy, and reminded him of his Promiſes; but withal told him, That if he did forſake the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, he might expect ſome dreadful Judgment from that Glorious Lord upon him.

He took not his Brother's Council: and within a few Days the awful Judgment of God overtook him. His Houſe was conſum'd by Fire; and his Three Children, which were all he had, conſum'd in it; but by what means the Fire was kindled, it could never be known.

The Man was gone from home; and at his Return, ſeeing ſo horrid a Spectacle, as his Family in Aſhes, he fell horribly diſtracted, continuing in his Diſtraction a whole Day together. But then he came to himſelf, and immediately acknowledged, That what had befallen him, was a juſt Hand of God upon him for his Unbelief. He profeſſed his unfeigned Sorrow for his Impiety, and renewed his Promiſes to yield Obedience unto the Goſpel; and hath ever ſince conformed his Life according to thoſe Promiſes.

(V.) An horrid MURDER ſtrangely detected and repented.

The moſt barbarous People in the World cannot forbear obſerving, That a Murderer, Vengeance ſuffereth not to live. Thoſe Children of Cain often promiſe to themſelves a Concealment of their Villany: But a Beſſus will find the very Swallows to chirrup out his Murder of his Father. A Barbarous People become Chriſtian, ſhall bring in one to increaſe the Number of the Examples which verifie that Obſervation.

About the Year 1668, an Indian Squaw was was found murdered at Martha's Vineyard, and the Neighbourhood ſuſpected an Indian Man, whoſe Name was Pamahtuk, to be the Author of the Murder. Nevertheleſs, upon his Examination, he deny'd that Fact; and becauſe the Fact could not be proved againſt him, he was left at liberty.

More than twenty years after this there was another Indian Squaw found murdered, and this Pamahtuk, with ſome others, were thereupon queſtioned, who all denied the Murder; nor was there any Evidence to convict them of it.

Hereupon an Indian preſent, moved that Pamahtuk might be again interrogated concerning the Murder committed ſo many Years ago; and behold the poor Creature immediately confeſſed himſelf Guilty of that Old Murder; and after a fair Trial, was executed for it.

He confeſſed that he killed the Squaw, to hide her being with child by him [A Crime ſeverely puniſhed among the Chriſtian Indians.] But now, inſtead of his hiding his Sin, he ſaid, his Sin had found him out. He ſeemed very penitent; and when he came to the place of Execution, he declared, That as he juſtly deſerved, ſo he was freely willing to die; and that he had enjoyed more Peace of Conſcience in a few days, now ſince he confeſſed his Crime, than he had for many years before. Several of the Indian Preachers, and others, did ſeriouſly apply themſelves to him with ſuch Advice, as they judg'd ſuitable for him; and particularly one of them told him, That though he had been ſtanding idle till the Eleventh Hour; yet if he would now at laſt believe on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, he ſhould certainly be accepted.

Whereupon he earneſtly deſired the Spectators to take ſpecial notice of his End, and be warned thereby to take heed of the Sins which had brought him thereunto; beſeeching their Prayers for him, and profeſſing their Hopes of Mercy from God through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

In fine, being asked concerning the latter Murder, he anſwer'd, That he was, as to that, wholly Innocent; adding, That he was now going to die, and he knew no Reaſon, why he ſhould not confeſs That, as well as the other, if he had been guilty of it.

(VI.) Sadduciſmus Triumphatus.

Come hither, ye prophane Sadducees, that will not believe the Being of a Devil, for fear leſt you muſt thence infer the Being of a God. We will relate ſome things well known to prudent and honeſt Witneſſes: And when you have read this Relation, Mock on!

The Indians of Martha's Vineyard, who are now ſerious Chriſtians, will upon their own too certain Knowledge, abundance of them acknowledge the Witchcrafts wherein they had actual Converſations, and explicit Confederacies with Devils, while they were yet Pagans. They know, That many Perſons among them have been by the Zeal of their Parents, dedicated unto their Infernal Gods, and educated for the ſpecial Service of thoſe Gods; but that the Dæmons accept only ſome here and there, to make dangerous Powaws or Wizzards of them. They know that theſe Powaws often imploy their Dæmons to ſmite their Neighbours with Blindneſs and Lameneſs, and other Miſchiefs; and ſometimes to kill them, and ſometimes to cure their Maladies.

They know that their manner is, to form a piece of Leather like an Arrow-head, and then tie an Hair unto it; or take a Bone of ſome dead Creature: Over theſe things they uſe magical Ceremonies, whereupon a Dæmon preſently ſnatches them away, and conveys them into the Bodies of the Perſons to be afflicted: Or, ſometimes the Dæmon pretends unto them, that he brings a Portion of the Spirit of the Perſon cloſely impriſon'd in a Fly; and as they deal with the Fly, ſo it fares with the Body of the Perſon intended.

It would fill a Volume to recite the inconteſtable Inſtances which that Iſland hath had of theſe Witchcrafts; but before the Goſpel, and Power, and Spirit of CHRIST, they have been happily extinguiſh'd.

One well-known Powaw, whoſe Faculty chiefly lay in diſcovering and recovering of Stolen Goods, by the Help of a God ſubſervient (he ſaid) unto him whom the Engliſh worſhipped, had a Wife who was a Godly Chriſtian; and this not only with the Approbation, but by the Encouragement of her Husband. She conſtantly pray'd in her Husband's Family, and attended the publick Worſhip on the Lord's Days: He declaring, That he could not blame her, for ſhe ſerv'd a God that was above his: But as for himſelf, he could not forſake the Service of his own leſſer God, being ſo much oblig'd by his Kindneſſes.

Another well known Powaw deſigning to kill an Indian who accidentally lodg'd in the Houſe with him and his Brother, went forth to inchant an Hair. While he was abroad, his Brother alter'd his Place about the Fire, where they ſlept, and the ſtrange Indian came into his Place. The Conjurer coming in with his Deviliſh Implement, gave it a Direction to the Back of his Enemy, which by his Miſtake, prov'd his Brother; and the Devil therewith immediately kill'd him.

Afterwards he would on all Occaſions grievouſly lament unto the Engliſh the Diſaſter of this Miſ-application.

There was a Prince on this Iſland, who upon his Converſion to God, made this Confeſſion unto the Church whereto he join'd himſelf; That being a Powaw, he had often employ'd his God, who appear'd unto him ſtill in the Form of a Snake, to kill, wound, and lame, ſuch as he deſign'd Miſchief unto But, that employing the ſaid Snake to hurt the firſt Indian that became a Chriſtian on this Iſland, all prov'd ineffectual, according to the Aſſertion of that memorable Indian, That none of the Powaws could hurt him; for his God was greater than any of theirs.

Hereupon he reſolved himſelf to become a Chriſtian, and worſhip the True God: From which time for Seven Years together, that Snake often annoy'd him with ſore Diſturbances.

CHAP. VII. Thaumatographia Pneumatica.

Relating the Wonders of the inviſible World in Preternatural Occurrences.

Miranda cano, ſed ſunt credenda.——

WHEN Two Goats were offered unto the Lord (and only unto the Lord) on the Day of Expiation, among the Ancient Iſraelites, we read that one of them was to fall by Lot unto Azazel. Azazel cannot without ſome Hardſhip on the Senſe, be taken for the Name of the Scape-Goat it ſelf; But it is no other than the Name of the Devil himſelf, as might eaſily be proved from the Monuments of the greateſt both Jewiſh and Chriſtian Antiquities.

In the Signification of the Word Azazel there is indeed a notable Declaration of thoſe Two Properties that have ſignaliz'd the Devil; his being firſt a powerful, and then an Apoſtate Spirit. [עַז] Fortis, & [אָזַל] Abiens, Fugiens. The Scape-Goat, preſented as a Sacrifice unto the Holy God, was order'd by him to be delivered up unto Azazel upon theſe two Intentions. One Deſign hereof might be to intimate unto the People what would be the miſerable Condition of them, who did not by Faith in the Meſſiah get the Guilt of their Sins removed. They that have their Sins lying upon them, and are led forth with the Workers of Iniquity, muſt become a prey to Azazel, even to Satan, unto whoſe Temptation they did in their Sinning yield Obedience. And indeed our Lord has expreſly told us (perhaps not without ſome Alluſion to this Levitical Goat) that he will ſend the Goats which have their Sins upon them, to be with the Devil and his Angels.

But another and a greater Deſign of it, might be to repreſent a main Article in the dreadful Sufferings which were to beſal our Lord Meſſiah when he ſhould come to ſuffer for our Sins. When our Lord Jeſus Chriſt underwent his Humiliation for us, this point was very conſiderable in it; he was carried into the Wilderneſs, and there he was expos'd unto the Buffetings and Outrages of Azazel. The Aſſaults that Satan then and afterwards made on our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, producing a moſt horrible Anguiſh in his Mind, made ſuch a Figure in his Conflicts for us, that they were well worthy of a moſt particular Prefiguration. And one thing in the Prefiguration muſt be, That the Goat for Azazel muſt be ſent into the Deſart. In the days of Moſes it ſeems Deſarts were counted very much an Habitation of Devils: Yea, they really were what they were counted: And for that cauſe the Names of Shedim and Zijim, were put upon them; and when the Scriptures foretel Deſolations to ſuch and ſuch places, they ſtill make the Devils to be their Inhabitants.

Who can tell whether the Envy of the Devils at the Favour of God unto Men, may not provoke them to affect Retirement from the ſight of populous and proſperous Regions, except ſo far as they reckon their Work of Tempting Mankind neceſſary to be carry'd on? Or, perhaps, it is not every Countrey, before which the Devils prefer the Deſarts. Regions in which the Devils are much ſerv'd by thoſe Uſages, either in Worſhip or Manners, which are pleaſing to them, are by thoſe doleful Creatures enough reſorted unto: Yea, if Sin much abound any where, ſome Devils entreat that they may not be ſent from thence into the Wilderneſs. But Regions, like the Land of Iſrael, where the true God is continually pray'd unto, and where the Word of God is continually ſounding, are filled with ſuch things as are very uneaſie unto the Devils: The Devils often recede much from thence into the Wilderneſs, as the Devil of Maſcon would ſay to Mr. Perreaud the Miniſter that liv'd in the haunted Houſe, While you go to prayer, I'll go take a turn in the Street.

Thus to omit what Alexander Hales reports of one retiring ad loca deſtituta omni Habitatore, where Spirits taught him the things which he wrote in his Book de Magicis; we know that in Lucian the famous Magician Mithrobarzanes, with his Companions betook themſelves ἐς τὶ χωρίον ἔρημον, ϗ ὑλῶδες, καὶ ἀνήλιον, into a Deſart, woody, ſhady Region for a Converſation with Spirits.

Whatever becomes of the Obſervation which we have hitherto been making, there has been too much cauſe to obſerve, that the Chriſtians who were driven into the American Deſart, which is now called New England, have to their ſorrow ſeen Azazel dwelling and raging there in very Tragical Inſtances. The Devils have doubtleſs felt a more than ordinary Vexation from the Arrival of thoſe Chriſtians with their ſacred Exerciſes of Chriſtianity in this Wilderneſs: But the Sovereignty of Heaven has permitted them ſtill to remain in the Wilderneſs, for our Vexation as well as their own.

Moleſtations from Evil Spirits, in more ſenſible and ſurpriſing Operations than thoſe Finer Methods wherein they commonly work upon the Minds of all Men, but eſpecially of Ill Men, have ſo abounded in this Countrey, that I queſtion whether any one Town has been free from ſad Examples of them. The Neighbours have not been careful enough to Record and Atteſt the prodigious Occurrences of this Importance, which have been among us. Many True and Strange Occurrences from the inviſible World, in theſe parts of the World, are faultily buried in Oblivion. But ſome of thoſe very ſtupendious Things, have had their Memory preſerv'd in the written Memorials of Honeſt, Prudent, and Faithful Men; whoſe Veracity in the Relations cannot without great Injury be queſtion'd.

Of theſe I will now offer the Publick ſome Remarkable Hiſtories; for every one of which we have had ſuch a ſufficient Evidence, that no Reaſonable Man in this whole Countrey ever did queſtion them; and it will be unreaſonable to do it in any other. For my own part, I would be as exceedingly afraid of writing a Falſe Thing, as of doing an Ill Thing: But have my Pen always move in the Fear of God.

The Firſt Example.

Ann Cole, a Perſon of ſerious Piety, living in the Houſe of her Godly Father at Hertford. in the year 1662, was taken with very ſtrange Fits wherein her Tongue was improv'd by a Dæmon, to expreſs things unknown to her ſelf. The general Purpoſe of the Diſcourſe, which held ſometimes for a conſiderable while, was, that ſuch and ſuch Perſons named in the Diſcourſe, were conſulting how they might carry on miſchievous Deſigns againſt her and ſeveral others, by afflicting their Bodies or deſtroying their good Names; upon all which, the general Anſwer heard among theſe Inviſible Speakers, was, Ah! ſhe runs to the Rock! After ſuch an Entertainment had held for ſome Hours, the Dæmons were heard ſaying, Let us confound her Language, that ſhe may tell no more Tales. Whereupon the Conference became unintelligible to the Standers by; and then it paſs'd in a Dutch Tone, giving therein an Account of Miſchiefs that had befallen divers Perſons, and amongſt the reſt, what had befallen to a Woman that liv'd next Neighbour to a Dutch Family then in the Town, which Woman had been preternaturally indiſpos'd. Several eminent Miniſters wrote the Speeches of the Spirits, thus heard in the mouth of this Ann Cole; and one of the Perſons therein mention'd, as active in the matter then ſpoken of (whoſe Name was Greenſmith) being then in Priſon on ſuſpicion of Witchcraft, was brought before the Magiſtrates. The Miniſters now reading to her what they had written, ſhe with Aſtoniſhment, confeſs'd that the Things were ſo, and that ſhe with other Perſons, nam'd in the Papers, had Familiarity with a Devil. She ſaid that ſhe had not yet made a Formal Covenant with her Devil, but only promis'd, That ſhe would go with him, when he call'd her, which ſhe had ſundry times done accordingly: And, that he told her, that at Chriſtmas they would have a merry Meeting, and then the Agreement between them ſhould be ſubſcribed. She acknowledg'd the Day following, That when the Miniſters began to read what they did, ſhe was in ſuch a Rage, that ſhe could have torn them to pieces; and ſhe was reſolv'd upon the Denial of her Guilt: But after they had read a while, ſhe was as if her Fleſh were pull'd from her Bones, and ſhe could no longer deny what they charged upon her.

She declar'd that her Devil appear'd unto her firſt in the Shape of Deer, skipping about her, and at laſt proceeded ſo far as in that Shape to talk with her: And that the Devil had frequently carnal Knowledge of her.

Upon this Confeſſion, with other concurrent Evidence, the Woman was Executed, and other Perſons accuſed, made their Eſcape: Whereupon Ann Cole was happily deliver'd from the extraordinary Troubles wherewith ſhe had been exercis'd.

The Second Example.

In the Town of Groton, one Elizabeth Knap (October 1671.) was taken after a very ſtrange manner; ſometimes weeping, ſometimes laughing, ſometimes roaring, with violent Agitations, crying out Money! Money! Her Tongue would be for many Hours together drawn like a Semicircle, up to the Roof of her mouth; ſo that no Fingers apply'd unto it, could remove it. Six Men were ſcarce able to hold her in ſome of her Fits; but ſhe would skip about the Houſe yelling and howling, and looking hideouſly.

On Dec. 17. her Tongue being drawn out of her mouth to an extraordinary Length, a Dæmon began manifeſtly to ſpeak in her; for many Words were diſtinctly utter'd, wherein are the Labial Letters, without any motion of her Lips at all: Words alſo were utter'd from her Throat ſometimes when her mouth was wholly ſhut; and ſometimes Words were utter'd when her mouth was wide open; but no Organs of Speech us'd therein. The chief things that the Dæmon ſpoke, were horrid Railings againſt the Godly Miniſter of the Town; but ſometimes he likewiſe belch'd out moſt nefandous Blaſphemies againſt the God of Heaven. And one thing about this young Woman was yet more particularly remarkable: She cry'd out in her Fits, that a certain Woman in the Neighbourhood appear'd unto her, and was the only Cauſe of her Affliction.

The Woman thus cry'd out upon, was doubtleſs an Holy, a Devout, a Vertuous Perſon; and ſhe, by the advice of her Friends, viſited the Afflicted. The poſſeſs'd Creature, tho' ſhe was in one of her Fits, and had her Eyes wholly ſhut, yet when this innocent Woman was coming, ſhe diſcover'd her ſelf wonderfully ſenſible of it, and was in grievous Agonies at her Approaches.

But this Innocent Woman thus accus'd and abus'd by a malicious Devil, pray'd earneſtly with as well as for this poſſeſs'd Creature: Whereupon coming to her ſelf, ſhe confeſs'd, That ſhe had been deluded by Satan, and compell'd by him unreaſonably to think and ſpeak Evil of a good Neighbour without a Cauſe. After this, there was no further Complaint of ſuch an ones Apparition; but ſhe ſaid, ſome Devil in the Shape of divers, did very diverſly and cruelly torment her, and then told her, it was not He but They, that were her Tormentors.

The Third Example.

In the year 1679. the Houſe of William Morſe at Newberry, was infeſted with Dæmons after a moſt horrid manner, not altogether unlike the Dæmons of Tedworth. It would fill many Pages to relate all the Infeſtations; but the chief of 'em were ſuch as theſe:

Bricks, and Sticks, and Stones, were often by ſome inviſible Hand, thrown at the Houſe, and ſo were many Pieces of Wood: A Cat was thrown at the Woman of the Houſe, and a long Staff danc'd up and down in the Chimney; and afterwards the ſame long Staff was hang'd by a Line, and ſwung to and fro; and when two Perſons laid it on the Fire to burn it, it was as much as they were able to do with their joint Strength to hold it there. An Iron Crook was violently by an inviſible Hand, hurl'd about; and a Chair flew about the Room until at laſt it litt upon the Table, where the Meat ſtood ready to be eaten, and had ſpoil'd all, if the people had not with much ado ſaved a little. A Cheſt was by an inviſible Hand carry'd from one place to another, and the Doors barricado'd, and the Keys of the Family taken, ſome of them from the Bunch where they were ty'd, and the reſt flying about with a loud Noiſe of their knocking againſt one another. For one while the Folks of the Houſe could not ſup quietly, but Aſhes would be thrown into their Suppers, and on their Heads, and their Cloaths; and the Shooes of the Man being left below, one of them was fill'd with Aſhes and Coals, and thrown up after him. When they were a-bed, a Stone weighing above three pounds, was divers times thrown upon them. A Box and a Board was likewiſe thrown upon them; and a Bag of Hops being taken out of a Cheſt, they were by the Inviſible Hand beaten therewith, till ſome of the Hops were ſcatter'd on the Floor, where the Bag was then laid and left. The Man was often ſtruck by that Hand with ſeveral Inſtruments; and the ſame Hand caſt their good things into the Fire: Yea, while the Man was at prayer with his Houſhold, a Beeſom gave him a Blow on his Head behind, and fell down before his Face. When they were winnowing their Barley, Dirt was thrown at them; and aſſaying to fill their Half Buſhel with Corn, the Foul Corn would be thrown in with the Clean, ſo irreſiſtibly, that they were forc'd thereby to give over what they were about.

While the Man was writing, his Inkhorn was by the Inviſible Hand ſnatch'd from him; and being able no where to find it, he ſaw it at length drop out of the Air down by the Fire. A Shooe was laid upon his Shoulder; but when he would have catch'd it, it was rapt from him; it was then clapt upon his Head, and there he held it ſo faſt, that the unſeen Fury pull'd him with it backward on the Floor. He had his Cap torn off his Head, and in the Night he was pull'd by the Hair, and pinch'd, and ſcratch'd; and the Inviſible Hand prick'd him with ſome of his Awls, and with Needles, and Bodkins; and Blows, that fetched Blood, were ſometimes given him. Frozen Clods of Cow-dung were often thrown at the Man; and his Wife going to milk the Cows, they could by no means preſerve the Veſſels of Milk from the like Anoyances, which made it fit only for the Hogs.

She going down into the Cellar, the Trap-door was immediately by an Inviſible Hand ſhut upon her, and a Table brought, and laid upon the Door, which kept her there till the Man remov'd it. When he was writing another time, a Diſh went and leapt into a Pail, and caſt Water on the Man, and on all the Concerns before him, ſo as to defeat what he was then upon. His Cap jump'd off his Head, and on again; and the Pot lid went off the Pot into the Kettle, then over the Fire together.

A little Boy belonging to the Family, was a principal Sufferer in theſe Moleſtations; for he was flung about at ſuch a rate, that they fear'd his Brains would have been beaten out: Nor did they find it poſſible to hold him. His Bed-cloathes would be pull'd from him, his Bed ſhaken, and his Bed-ſtaff leap forward and backward. The Man took him to keep him in a Chair; but the Chair fell a dancing, and both of them were very near being thrown into the Fire.

Theſe, and a thouſand ſuch Vexations befalling the Boy at home, they carry'd him to live abroad at a Doctor's. There he was quiet; but returning home he ſuddenly cry'd out, He was prick'd on the Back; where they found ſtrangely ſticking, a Three-tin'd Fork, which belong'd unto the Doctor, and had been ſeen at his Houſe after the Boy's Departure. Afterwards his Troublers found him out at the Doctor's alſo; where crying out again He was prick'd on the Back, they found an Iron Spindle ſtuck into him; and on the like Out cry again, they found Pins in a Paper, ſtuck into him; and once more, a long Iron, a Bowl of a Spoon, and a piece of a Pan-ſhred, in like ſort ſtuck upon him.

He was taken out of his Bed, and thrown under it; and all the Knives belonging to the Houſe were one after another ſtuck into his Back, which the Spectators pull'd out: Only one of them ſeem'd unto the Spectators to come out of his mouth. The poor Boy was divers times thrown into the Fire, and preſerv'd from ſcorching there with much ado. For a long while he bark'd like a Dog, and then he clocqu'd like an Hen; and could not ſpeak rationally. His Tongue would be pull'd out of his mouth; but when he could recover it ſo far as to ſpeak, he complain'd that a Man call'd P——l, appear'd unto him as the Cauſe of all.

Once in the Day-time he was tranſported where none could find him, till at laſt they found him creeping on one ſide, and ſadly dumb and lame. When he was able to expreſs himſelf, he ſaid, That P——l had carried him over the Top of the Houſe, and hurted him againſt a Cart-wheel in the Barn; and accordingly they found ſome Remainders of the Threſh'd Barley which was on the Barn floor, hanging about his Garments.

The Spectre would Make all his meat, when he was going to eat, fly out of his mouth; and inſtead thereof, make him fall to eating of Aſhes, and Sticks, and Yarn. The Man and his Wife taking the Boy to Bed with them, a Chamberpot with its Contents, was thrown upon them: They were ſeverely pinch'd, and pull'd out of the Bed; and many other Fruits of Deviliſh Spite were they dogg'd withal, until it pleas'd God mercifully to ſhorten the Chain of the Devil. But before the Devil was chain'd up, the Inviſible Hand which did all theſe things, began to put on an aſtoniſhing Viſibility.

They often thought they felt the Hand that ſcratch'd them, while yet they ſaw it not; but when they thought they had hold of it, it would give them the Slip.

Once the Fiſt beating the Man, was diſcernible, but they could not catch hold of it. At length an Apparition of a Blackamoor Child ſhew'd it ſelf plainly to them. And another time a Drumming on the Boards was heard, which was follow'd with a Voice that ſang, Revenge! Revenge! ſweet is Revenge! At this the People being terrify'd, call'd upon God: Whereupon there follow'd a mournful Note, ſeveral times uttering theſe Expreſſions, Alas! Alas! we knock no more, we knock no more! And there was an End of all.

The Fourth Example.

In the year 1683. the Houſe of Nicholas Desborough at Hartford, was very ſtrangely moleſted by Stones, by pieces of Earth, by Cobs of Indian Corn, and other ſuch things, from an Inviſible Hand, thrown at him, ſometimes thro' the Door, ſometimes thro' the Window, ſometimes down the Chimney, and ſometimes from the Floor of the Room (tho' very cloſe) over his Head; and ſometimes he met with them in the Shop, the Yard, the Barn, and in the Field.

There was no Violence in the Motion of the Things thus thrown by the Inviſible Hand; and tho' others beſides the Man, happen'd ſometimes to be hit, they were never hurt with them; only the Man himſelf once had Pain given to his Arm, and once Blood fetch'd from his Leg, by theſe Annoyances; and a Fire in an unknown way kindled, conſum'd no little part of his Eſtate.

This Trouble began upon a Controverſie between Desborough and another Perſon about a Cheſt of Cloaths which the Man apprehended to be unrighteouſly detain'd by Desborough; and it endur'd for divers months: but upon the reſtoring of the Cloaths thus detain'd, the Trouble ceaſed.

At Brightling in Suſſex, in England, there happned a Tragedy not unlike to this, in the year 1659. 'Tis recorded by Clark in the ſecond Volume of his Examples.

The Fifth Example.

On June 11, 1682. Showers of Stones were thrown by an Inviſible Hand upon the Houſe of George Walton at Portſmouth. Whereupon the the People going out, found the Gate wrung off the Hinges, and Stones flying and falling thick about them, and ſtriking of them ſeemingly with a great Force; but really affecting 'em no more than if a Soft Touch were given them. The Glaſs Windows were broken to pieces by Stones that came not from without, but from within; and other Inſtruments were in like manner hurl'd about. Nine of the Stones they took up, whereof ſome were as hot as if they came out of the Fire; and marking them, they laid them on the Table; but in a little while they found ſome of them again flying about. The Spit was carry'd up the Chimney; and coming down with the Point forward, ſtuck in the Back log; from whence one of the Company removing it, it was by an Inviſible Hand thrown out at the Window. This Diſturbance continu'd from Day to Day; and ſometimes a diſmal hollow Whiſtling would be heard, and ſometimes the Trotting and Snorting of an Horſe, but nothing to be ſeen. The Man went up the great Bay in a Boat unto a Farm he had there: But there the Stones found him out; and carrying from the Houſe to the Boat a Stirrup-Iron, the Iron came jingling after him through the Woods as far as his Houſe; and at laſt went away, and was heard of no more. The Anchor leap'd over board ſeveral Times and ſtopt the Boat. A Cheeſe was taken out of the Preſs, and crumbl'd all over the Floor: A piece of Iron ſtuck into the Wall, and a Kettle hung thereupon. Several Cocks of Hay mow'd near the Houſe, were taken up, and hung upon Trees, and others made into ſmall Whiſps, and ſcattered about the Houſe. The Man was much hurt by ſome of the Stones: He was a Quaker, and ſuſpected that a Woman, who charg'd him with Injuſtice in detaining ſome Land from her, did by Witchcraft occaſion theſe preternatural Occurrences. However, at laſt, they came unto an End.

The Sixth Example.

In June 1682. Mary the Wife of Antonio Hortado, dwelling near the Salmon-Falls, heard a Voice at the Door of her Houſe, calling What do you here? And about an Hour after had a Blow on her Eye, that almoſt ſpoil'd her. Two or three Days after a great Stone was thrown along the Houſe; which the People going to take up, was unaccountably gone. A Frying Pan then in the Chimney rang ſo loud, that the People at an hundred Rods diſtance heard it; and the ſaid Mary with her Husband, going over the River in a Canoo, they ſaw the Head of a Man, and about three Foot off, the Tail of a Cat, ſwimming before the Canoo, but no body to join them; and the ſame Apparition again follow'd the Canoo when they return'd: But at their Landing it firſt diſappear'd. A Stone thrown by an Inviſible Hand

Hand after this, cauſ'd a Swelling and a Soreneſs in her Head; and ſhe was bitten on both Arms black and blue, and her Breaſt ſcratch'd; the Impreſſion of the Teeth, which were like a Man's Teeth, being ſeen by many.

They deſerted their Houſe on theſe occaſions, and tho' at a Neighbour's Houſe, they were at firſt haunted with Apparitions, the Satanical Moleſtations quickly ceas'd. When Antonio return'd unto his own Houſe, at his Entrance there, he heard one walking in his Chamber, and ſaw the Boards buckle under the Feet of the Walker; and yet there was no body there. For this cauſe he went back to dwell on the other ſide of the River; but thinking he might plant his Ground, tho' he left his Houſe, he had five Rods of good Log-Fence thrown down at once, and the Footing of Neat Cattle plainly to be ſeen almoſt between every Row of Corn in the Field; yet no Cattle ſeen there, nor any damage done to his Corn, or ſo much as a Leaf of it cropt.

The Seventh Example.

Mr. Philip Smith, aged about fifty Years, a Son of eminently Vertuous Parents, a Deacon of the Church in Hadley, a Member of the General Court, a Juſtice in the Countrey Court, a ſelect Man for the Affairs of the Town, a Lieutenant of the Troop, and which crowns all, a Man for Devotion, Sanctity, Gravity, and all that was honeſt, exceeding Exemplary. Such a Man was in the Winter of the Year 1684, murder'd with an hideous Witchcraft, that fill'd all thoſe Parts of New-England with Aſtoniſhment. He was, by his Office concern'd about relieving the Indigences of a wretched Woman in the Town; who being diſſatisfy'd at ſome of his juſt Cares about her, expreſs'd her ſelf unto him in ſuch a manner, that he declar'd himſelf thenceforward apprehenſive of receiving Miſchief at her hands.

About the Beginning of January he began to be very Valetudinarious, labouring under Pains that ſeem'd Iſchiatick. The Standers by could now ſee in him, one ripening apace for another World, and fill'd with Grace and Joy to an high Degree. He ſhew'd ſuch Weanedneſs from and Wearineſs of the World, that he knew not (he ſaid) whether he might pray for his Continuance here: And ſuch aſſurance he had of the Divine Love unto him, that in Raptures he would cry out, Lord, ſtay thy hand; it is enough, it is more than thy frail Servant can bear. But in the midſt of theſe things he ſtill utter'd an hard Suſpicion that the ill Woman who had threatned him, had made Impreſſions with Inchantments upon him. While he remain'd yet of a ſound Mind, he very ſedately, but very ſolemnly charg'd his Brother, to look well after him. Tho', he ſaid, he now underſtood himſelf, yet he knew not how he might be. But be ſure, (ſaid he) to have a care of me; for you ſhall ſee ſtrange things. There ſhall be a Wonder in Hadley! I ſhall not be dead, when 'tis thought I am! He preſs'd this Charge over and over; and afterwards became Delirious; upon which he had a Speech inceſſant and voluble, and (as was judg'd) in various Languages. He cry'd out, not only of Pains, but alſo of Pins, tormenting him in ſeveral parts of his Body; and the Attendants found one of them.

In his Diſtreſſes he exclaim'd much upon the Woman aforeſaid, and others, as being ſeen by him in the Room; and there was divers times both in that Room, and over the whole Houſe, a ſtrong Smell of ſomething like Muſk, which once particularly ſo ſcented an Apple roaſting at the Fire, that it forc'd them to throw it away. Some of the young Men in the Town being out of their Wits at the ſtrange Calamities thus upon one of their moſt belov'd Neighbours, went three or four times to give Diſturbance unto the Woman thus complain'd of: And all the while they were diſturbing of her, he was at eaſe, and ſlept as a weary Man: Yea, theſe were the only times that they perceiv'd him to take any Sleep in all his Ilneſs. Gally-pots of Medicines provided for the ſick Man, were unaccountably empty'd: Audible Scratchings were made about the Bed, when his Hands and Feet lay wholly ſtill, and were held by others. They beheld Fire ſometimes on the Bed; and when the Beholders began to diſcourſe of it, it vaniſh'd away. Divers People actually felt ſomething often ſtir in the Bed, at a conſiderable diſtance from the Man: It ſeem'd as big as a Cat, but they could never graſp it. Several trying to lean on the Bed's head, tho' the ſick Man lay wholly ſtill, the Bed would ſhake ſo, as to knock their Heads uncomfortably. A very ſtrong Man could not lift the ſick Man to make him lie more eaſily, tho' he apply'd his utmoſt Strength unto it; and yet he could go preſently and lift a Bed-ſted and a Bed, and a Man lying on it, without any Strain to himſelf at all. Mr. Smith dies: The Jury that view'd his Corpſe, found a Swelling on one Breaſt, his Privities wounded or burn'd, his Back full of Bruiſes, and ſeveral Holes that ſeem'd made with Awls. After the Opinion of all had pronounc'd him dead, his Countenance continued as Lively as if he had been Alive; his Eyes cloſed as in a Slumber, and his Nether Jaw not falling down.

Thus he remain'd from Saturday Morning about Sun riſe, till Sabbath-day in the Afternoon; when thoſe who took him out of the Bed, found him ſtill warm, tho the Seaſon was as cold as had almoſt been known in any Age: And a New-Engliſh Winter does not want for Cold. On the Night following his Countenance was yet freſh as before; but on Monday morning they found the Face extreamly tumify'd and diſcolour'd. It was black and blue, and freſh Blood ſeem'd running down his Cheek upon the Hairs. Divers Noiſes were alſo heard in the Room where the Corpſe lay; as the Clattering of Chairs and Stools, whereof no account could be given.

This was the End of ſo good a Man.

And I could with unqueſtionable Evidence relate the Tragical Deaths of ſeveral Good Men in this Land, attended with ſuch præternatural Circumſtances, which have loudly call'd upon us all to work out our own Salvation with Fear and Trembling.

Eighth Example.

There was one Mary Johnſon try'd at Hertford in this Countrey, upon an Indictment of Familiarity with the Devil, and was found guilty thereof, chiefly upon her own Confeſſion. Her Confeſſion was attended with ſuch convictive Circumſtances, that it could not be ſlighted. Very many material Paſſages relating to this matter, are now loſt: But ſo much as is well known, and can ſtill be prov'd, ſhall be inſerted.

She ſaid, her firſt Familiarity with the Devil, came through Diſcontent, and wiſhing the Devil to take this and that, and the Devil to do that and t'other thing: Whereupon a Devil appear'd unto her, tendring her what Services might beſt content her. A Devil accordingly did for her many Services. Her Maſter blam'd her for not carrying out the Aſhes, and a Devil afterwards would clear the Hearth of Aſhes for her. Her Maſter ſending her to drive out the Hogs, that ſometimes broke into their Field, a Devil would ſcowre the Hogs away, and make her laugh to ſee how he feaz'd them. She confeſs'd, that ſhe had murdred a Child, and committed Uncleanneſs both with Men and with Devils. In the time of her Impriſonment, the famous Mr. Stone was at great pains to promote her Converſion from the Devil to God; and ſhe was by the beſt Obſervers judg'd very penitent, both before her Execution and at it; and ſhe went out of the World with comfortable Hopes of Mercy from God through the merit of our Saviour. Being asked what ſhe built her Hopes upon, ſhe anſwer'd, Upon theſe Words; Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you Reſt: And theſe; There is a Fountain ſet open for Sin and Uncleanneſs. And ſhe dy'd in a Frame extreamly to the Satisfaction of them that were Spectators of it.

The Ninth Example.

Four Children of John Goodwin in Boſton, which had enjoy'd a Religious Education, and anſwer'd it with a towardly Ingenuity: Children indeed of an exemplary Temper and Carriage, and an Example to all about them for Piety, Honeſty, and Induſtry. Theſe were in the year 1688. arreſted by a very ſtupendous Witchcraft. The Eldeſt of the Children, a Daughter of about Thirteen years old, ſaw cauſe to examine their Laundreſs, the Daughter of a ſcandalous Iriſh Woman in the Neighbourhood, about ſome Linen that was miſſing; and the Woman beſtowing very bad Language on the Child, in her Daughter's Defence, the Child was immediately taken with odd Fits, that carried in them ſomething Diabolical. It was not long before one of her Siſters, with two of her Brothers, were horribly taken with the like Fits, which the moſt Experienc'd Phyſicians pronounced Extraordinary and preternatural: and one thing that the more confirmed them in this Opinion was, that all the Children were tormented ſtill juſt the ſame part of their Bodies, at the ſame time, though their Pains flew like ſwift Lightning from one part unto another, and they were kept ſo far aſunder, that they neither ſaw nor heard one anothers Complaints. At 9 or 10 a clock at Night, they ſtill had a Releaſe from their miſeries, and ſlept all Night pretty comfortably. But when the Day came, they were moſt miſerably handled. Sometimes they were Deaf, ſometimes Dumb, ſometimes Blind, and often all this at once. Their Tongues would be drawn down their Throats; and then pull'd out upon their Chins, to a prodigious Length. Their Mouths were forc'd open to ſuch a Wideneſs, that their Jaws went out of Joint; and anon clap together again, with a Force like that of a Spring Lock; and the like would happen to their Shoulder-blades, and their Elbows, and Hand wriſts, and ſeveral of their Joints. They would lie in a benumm'd Condition, and be drawn together like thoſe that are ty'd Neck and Heels; and preſently be ſtretch'd out, yea, drawn back Enormouſly.

They made piteous Out-cries, that they were cut with Knives, and ſtruck with Blows; and the plain Prints of the Wounds were ſeen upon them.

Their Necks would be broken, ſo that their Neck-Bone would ſeem diſſolv'd unto them that felt after it; and yet on the ſudden it would become again ſo ſtiff, that there was no ſtirring of their Heads: Yea, their Heads would be twiſted almoſt round: And if the main Force of their Friends at any time obſtructed a dangerous Motion which they ſeem'd upon, they would roar exceedingly: And when Devotions were performed with them, their Hearing was utterly taken from them. The Miniſters of Boſton and Charleſtown, keeping a Day of Prayer with Faſting, on this occaſion, at the troubl'd Houſe, the youngeſt of the Four Children was immediately, happily, finally deliver'd from all its Trouble. But the Magiſtrates being awakened by the Noiſe of theſe Grievous and Horrid Occurrences, examined the Perſon who was under the ſuſpicion of having employ'd theſe Troubleſome Dæmons; and ſhe gave ſuch a Wretched Account of her ſelf, that ſhe was committed unto the Gaoler's Cuſtody.

It was not long before this Woman (whoſe Name was Glover) was brought upon her Trial; But then the Court could have no Anſwers from her, but in the Iriſh, which was her Native Language, although ſhe underſtood Engliſh very well, and had accuſtom'd her whole Family to none but Engliſh in her former Converſation. When ſhe pleaded to her Indictment, it was with owning and Bragging, rather than Denial of her Guilt. And the Interpreters, by whom the Communication between the Bench and the Barr was managed, were made ſenſible that a Spell had been laid by another Witch on This, to prevent her telling Tales, by confining her to a Language which 'twas hoped, no body would underſtand. The Woman's Houſe being ſearched, ſeveral Images, or Poppets, or Babies, made of Raggs, and ſtuffed with Goats Hair, were thence produced and the vile Woman confeſſed, that her Way to Torment the Objects of her Malice, was by wetting of her Finger with her Spittle, and ſtroaking of thoſe little Images. The abus'd Children were then preſent in the Court, and the Woman kept ſtill ſtooping and ſhrinking, as one that was almoſt preſt unto death with a mighty Weight upon her. But one of the Images being brought unto her, ſhe odly and ſwiftly ſtarted up, and ſnach'd it into her Hand: But ſhe had no ſooner ſnatch'd it, than one of the Children fell into ſad Fits before the whole Aſſembly. The Judges had their juſt Apprehenſions at this, and carefully cauſing a Repetition of the Experiment, they ſtill found the ſame Event of it, tho' the Children ſaw not when the Hand of the Witch was laid upon the Images. They ask'd her whether ſhe had any to ſtand by her? She reply'd, She had: And looking very pertly into the Air, ſhe added, No, he's gone! and ſhe then acknowledg'd that ſhe had One, who was her Prince; with whom ſhe mention'd I know not what Communion. For which cauſe the Night after, ſhe was heard expoſtulating with a Devil for his thus deſerting her, telling him, that becauſe he had ſerved her ſo baſely and falſely, ſhe had confeſſed all.

However, to make all clear, the Court appointed five or ſix Phyſicians to examine her very ſtrictly, whether ſhe were no way craz'd in her Intellectuals. Divers Hours did they ſpend with her; and in all that while no Diſcourſe came from her, but what was agreeable; particularly When they ask'd her, what ſhe thought would become of her Soul, ſhe reply'd, You ask me a very ſolemn Queſtion, and I cannot tell what to ſay to it. She profeſt her ſelf a Roman Catholick, and could recite her Pater-noſter in Latin very readily; but there was one Clauſe or two always too hard for her, whereof ſhe ſaid, ſhe could not repeat it, if ſhe might have all the World.

In the Upſhot, the Doctors return'd her Compos mentis, and Sentence of Death was paſt upon her. Divers Days paſt between her being Arraign'd and Condemn'd: and in this time one Hughes teſtify'd, That her Neighbour (call'd Howen) who was cruelly bewitch'd unto death about ſix Years before, laid her Death to the charge of this Woman, and bid her (the ſaid Hughes) to remember this; for within ſix Years there would be occaſion to mention it. One of Hughes's Children was preſently taken ill in the ſame woful manner that Goodwin's; and particularly the Boy, in the Night cry'd out, that a Black Perſon, with a Blue Cap in the Room tortur'd him, and that they try'd with their Hand in the Bed, for to pull out his Bowels. The Mother of the Boy went unto Glover the day following, and asked her, Why ſhe tortured her poor Lad at ſuch a rate? Glover anſwered, Becauſe of the Wrong ſhe had receiv'd from her; and boaſted, that ſhe had come at him as a Black Perſon with a blue Cap; and with her Hand in the Bed, would have pulled his Bowels out, but could not. Hughes denied that ſhe had wronged her; and Glover then deſiring to ſee the Boy, wiſhed him well; upon which he had no more of his Indiſpoſitions. After the Condemnation of the Woman, I did my ſelf give divers Viſits unto her; wherein ſhe told me, that ſhe did uſe to be at Meetings, where her Prince with Four more were preſent. She told me who the Four were, and plainly ſaid, That her Prince was the Devil. When I told her That and How her Prince had cheated her, ſhe reply'd, If it be ſo, I am ſorry for that! And when ſhe declin'd anſwering ſome things that I ask'd her, ſhe told me, ſhe would fain give me a full Anſwer, but her Spirits would not give her leave; nor could ſhe conſent, ſhe ſaid, without their Leave, that I ſhould pray for her. At her Execution, ſhe ſaid, the afflicted Children ſhould not be reliev'd by her Death, for others beſides ſhe, had a hand in their Affliction. Accordingly the Three Children continu'd in their Furnace as before; and it grew rather ſeven times hotter than it was. In their Fits they cry'd out of [They] and [Them] as the Authors of all their Miſeries; but who that [They] and [Them] were, they were not able to declare: Yet, at laſt one of the Children was able to diſcern their Shapes, and utter their Names. A Blow at the Place where they ſaw the Spectre, was always felt by the Boy himſelf, in that part of his Body that anſwer'd what might be ſtricken at: And this, tho' his Back were turn'd, and the thing ſo done, that there could be no Colluſion in it. But as a Blow at the Spectre always hurt him, ſo it always help'd him too: For after the Agonies to which a Puſh or Stab at that had put him, were over (as in a Minute or two they would be) he would have a Reſpite from his Ails a conſiderable while, and the Spectre would be gone: Yea, 'twas very credibly affirmed, that a dangerous Woman or two in the Town receiv'd Wounds by the Blows thus given to their Spectres. The Calamities of the Children went on till they barked at one another like Dogs, and then purred like ſo many Cats. They would complain that they were in a Red-Hot Oven, and ſweat and pant as much as if they had been really ſo. Anon they would ſay that Cold Water was thrown on them, at which they would ſhiver very much.

They would complain of Blows with great Cudgels laid upon them, and we that ſtood by, though we could ſee no Cudgels, yet could ſee the Marks of the Blows in red Streaks upon their Fleſh.

They would complain of being roaſted on an Inviſible Spit; and lie and roll and groan as if it had been moſt ſenſibly ſo; and by and by ſhriek that Knives were cutting of them. They would complain that their Heads were nailed unto the Floor, and it was beyond an ordinary Strength to pull them from thence. They would be ſo limber ſometimes, that it was judg'd every Bone they had might be bent; and anon ſo ſtiff, that not a Joint of them could be ſtirr'd.

One of them dreamt that ſomething was growing within his Skin, croſs one of his Ribs. An Expert Chirurgeon ſearcht the Place, and found there a Braſs Pin, which could not poſſibly come to lie there as it did, without a preſtigious and myſterious Conveyance. Sometimes they would be very mad; and then they would climb over high Fences; yea, they would fly like Geeſe, and be carry'd with an incredible Swiftneſs through the Air, having but juſt their Toes now and then upon the Ground (ſometimes not once in Twenty Foot) and their Arms wav'd like the Wings of a Bird. They were often very near Drowning or Burning of themſelves; and they often ſtrangled themſelves with their Neck clothes; but the Providence of God ſtill order'd the ſeaſonable Succours of them that look'd after them. If there hapned any Miſchief to be done where they were, as the dirtying of a Garment, or ſpilling of a Cup, or breaking of a Glaſs, they would laugh exceſſively.

But upon the leaſt Reproof of their Parents, they were thrown into inexpreſſible Anguiſh, and roar as exceſſively. It uſually took up abundance of time to dreſs them or undreſs them, thro' the ſtrange Poſtures into which they would be twiſted, on purpoſe to hinder it; and yet the Dæmons did not know our Thoughts: for if we us'd a Jargon, and ſaid, untie his Neckcloth, but the Party bidden underſtood our meaning to be untie his Shooe; the Neckcloth, and not the Shooe, has been by writhen Poſtures, rendred ſtrangely inacceſſible. In their Beds they would be ſometimes treated ſo, that no Cloaths could for an Hour or two be laid upon them. If they were bidden to do a needleſs thing (as to rub a clean Table) they were able to do it unmoleſted; but if to do any uſeful thing (as to rub a dirty Table) they would preſently, with many Torments be made uncapable.

They were ſometimes hindred from eating their Meals, by having their Teeth ſet, when any thing was carrying unto their Mouths. If there were any Diſcourſe of God, or Chriſt, or any of the Things which are not ſeen, and are Eternal, they would be caſt into intolerable Anguiſhes. All praying to God, and reading of his Word, would occaſion 'em a very terrible Vexation. Their own Ears would then be ſtopt with their own Hands, and they would roar, and howl, and ſhriek, and hollow, to drown the Voice of the Devotions; yea, if any one in the Room took up a Bible, to look into it, tho' the Children could ſee nothing of it, as being in a Crowd of Spectators, or having their Faces another way, yet would they be in wonderful Torments till the Bible was laid aſide. Briefly, No good thing might then be endur'd near thoſe Children, which while they were themſelves lov'd every good thing, in a meaſure that proclaim'd in them the Fear of God. If I ſaid unto them, Child, cry to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt! their Teeth were inſtantly ſet. If I ſaid, Yet, Child, look unto him! their Eyes were inſtantly pull'd ſo far into their Heads, that we fear'd they could never have us'd them any more.

It was the Eldeſt of theſe Children that fell chiefly under my own Obſervation: For I took her home to my own Family, partly out of compaſſion to her Parents, but chiefly, that I might be a critical Eye-Witneſs of things that would enable me to confute the Sadduciſm of this Debauch'd Age. Here ſhe continu'd well for ſome Days; applying her ſelf to Actions of Induſtry and Piety: But Nov. 20. 1688. ſhe cry'd out, Ah, they have found me out! and immediately ſhe fell into her Fits; wherein we often obſerv'd, that ſhe would cough up a Ball as big as a ſmall Egg, into the ſide of her Wind pipe, that would near choak her, till by Stroaking and by Drinking it was again carry'd down.

When I pray'd in the Room, firſt her Hands were with a ſtrong, tho' not even Force, clapt upon her Ears: And when her Hands were by our Force pull'd away, ſhe cry'd out, They make ſuch a Noiſe, I cannot hear a Word! She complain'd that Glover's Chain was upon her Leg; and aſſaying to go, her Gate was exactly ſuch as the chain'd Witch had before ſhe dy'd. When her Tortures paſs'd over, ſtill Frolicks would ſucceed, wherein ſhe would continue Hours, yea, Days together, talking perhaps never wickedly, but always wittily beyond her ſelf: And at certain Provocations her Torments would renew upon her, till we had left off to Give them; yet ſhe frequently told us in theſe Frolicks, That if ſhe might but ſteal or be drunk, ſhe ſhould be well immediately. She told us, that ſhe muſt go down to the bottom of our Well, (and we had much ado to hinder it) for they ſaid there was Plate there, and they would bring her up ſafely again.

We wonder'd at this: For ſhe had never heard of any Plate there; and we our ſelves, who had newly bought the Houſe, were ignorant of it: but the former Owner of the Houſe juſt then coming in, told us There had been Plate for many Years loſt at the Bottom of the Well. Moreover, one ſingular Paſſion that frequently attended her, was this:

An inviſible Chain would be clapt about her, and ſhe in much pain and Fear, cry out when [They] began to put it on. Sometimes we could with our Hands knock it off, as it began to be faſten'd: But ordinarily, when it was on, ſhe would be pull'd out of her Seat, with ſuch Violence, towards the Fire, that it was as much as one or two of us could do to keep her out. Her Eyes were not brought to be perpendicular to her Feet, when ſhe roſe out of her Seat, as the Mechaniſm of an humane Body requires in them that riſe; but ſhe was dragg'd wholly by other Hands. And if we ſtamp'd on the Hearth, juſt between her and the Fire, ſhe ſcream'd out, That by jarring the Chain, we hurt her

I may add, that [They] put an unſeen Rope, with a cruel Nooſe, about her Neck, whereby ſhe was choak'd until ſhe was black in the Face: And tho' it was got off before it had kill'd her; yet there were the Red Marks of it, and of a Finger and a Thumb near it, remaining to be ſeen for ſome while afterwards. Furthermore, not only upon her own looking into the Bible, but if any one elſe in the Room did it, wholly unknown to her, ſhe would fall into unſufferable Torments.

A Quaker's Book being brought her, ſhe could quietly read whole Pages of it; only the Name of GOD and CHRIST, ſhe ſtill ſkipp'd over, being unable to pronounce it, except ſometimes, ſtammering a Minute or two, or more upon it: And when we urg'd her to tell what the Word was that ſhe miſs'd, ſhe would ſay, I muſt not ſpeak it: They ſay I muſt not. You know what it is: 'Tis G, and O, and D. But a Book againſt Quakeriſm [They] would not allow her to meddle with. Such Books, as it might have been profitable and edifying for her to read, and eſpecially her Catechiſms, if ſhe did but offer to read a Line in them, ſhe would be caſt into hideous Convulſions, and be toſt about the Houſe like a Foot ball: But Books of Jeſts being ſhewn her, ſhe could read them well enough, and have cunning Deſcants upon them. Popiſh Books [They] would not hinder her from reading; but [They] would from reading Books againſt Popery. A Book which pretends to prove That there are no Witches, was eaſily read by her; only the Name Devils and Witches might not be utter'd. A Book which proves That there are Witches, being exhibited unto her, ſhe might not read it: And that Expreſſion in the Story of Ann Cole, about running to the Rock, always threw her into ſore Confuſions.

Divers of theſe Trials were made by many Witneſſes: But I conſidering that there might be a Snare in it, put a ſeaſonable Stop to this fanciful Buſineſs. Only I could not but be amaz'd at one thing: A certain Prayer-Book being brought her, ſhe not only could read it very well, but alſo did read a large Part of it over, calling it her Bible, and putting a more than ordinary Reſpect upon it. If ſhe were going into her Tortures, at the Tender of this Book, ſhe would recover her ſelf to read it: Only when ſhe came to the Lord's Prayer now and then occurring in that Book, ſhe would have her Eyes put out; ſo that ſhe muſt turn over a new Leaf, and then ſhe could read again. Whereas alſo there are Scriptures in that Book, ſhe could read them there: but if any ſhew'd her the very ſame Scriptures in the Bible it ſelf, ſhe ſhould ſooner die than read them: And ſhe was likewiſe made unable to read the Pſalms in an ancient Metre, which this Prayer-Book had in the ſame Volume with it.

Beſides theſe, there was another inexplicable Thing in her Condition. Ever now and then, an Inviſible Horſe would be brought unto her by thoſe whom ſhe only call'd [Them,] and [Her Company,] upon the Approach of which, her Eyes wou'd be ſtill cloſ'd up: For (ſaid ſhe) They ſay I am a Tell-tale, and therefore they will not let me ſee them. Hereupon ſhe would give a Spring as one mounting an Horſe, and ſetling her ſelf in a riding Poſture, ſhe would in her Chair be agitated, as one ſometimes Ambling, ſometimes Trotting, and ſometimes Galloping very furiouſly. In theſe Motions we could not perceive that ſhe was mov'd by the Streſs of her Feet upon the Ground, for often ſhe touch'd it not. When ſhe had rode a Minute or two, ſhe would ſeem to be at a Rendezvous with [Them] that were [Her Company,] and there ſhe would maintain a Diſcourſe with them, asking them many Queſtions concerning her ſelf [we gave her none of ours] and have Anſwers from them which indeed none but her ſelf perceiv'd. Then would ſhe return and inform us, How [They] did intend to handle her for a Day or two afterwards, and ſome other things that ſhe inquir'd. Her Horſe would ſometimes throw her with much Violence; eſpecially if any one ſtabb'd or cut the Air under her. But ſhe would briskly mount again, and perform her Fantaſtick Journies, moſtly in her Chair; but ſometimes alſo ſhe would be carry'd from her Chair, out of one Room into another, very odly, in the Poſtures of a riding Woman. At length, ſhe pretended, that her Horſe could ride up the Stairs; and unto admiration ſhe rode, (that is, was toſs'd as one that rode) up the Stairs. There then ſtood open the Study of one belonging to the Family: Into which entring, ſhe ſtood immediately on her Feet, and cry'd out, They are gone! They are gone! They ſay that they cannot,—— God won't let 'em come here! Adding a Reaſon for it, which the Owner of the Study thought more Kind than True. And ſhe preſently and perfectly came to her ſelf, ſo that her whole Diſcourſe and Carriage was alter'd unto the greateſt meaſure of Sobriety; and ſhe ſate reading of the Bible and other good Books, for a good part of the Afternoon. Her Affairs calling her anon to go down again, the Dæmons were in a quarter of a Minute as bad upon her as before; and her Horſe was waiting for her. Some then to ſee whether there had not been a Fallacy in what had newly hapned, reſolv'd for to have her up unto the Study, where ſhe had been at eaſe before; but ſhe was then ſo ſtrangely diſtorted, that it was an extream Difficulty to drag her up ſtairs. The Dæmons would pull her out of the Peoples Hands, and make her heavier than perhaps Three of her ſelf. With incredible Toil, (tho' ſhe kept ſcreaming, They ſay I muſt not go in.) She was pull'd in; where ſhe was no ſooner got, but ſhe could ſtand on her Feet, and with an alter'd Note, ſay, Now I am well.

She would be faint at firſt, and ſay, She felt ſomething to go out of her! (the Noiſes whereof we ſometimes heard, like thoſe of a Mouſe) but in a Minute or two ſhe could apply her ſelf to Devotion, and expreſs her ſelf with Diſcretion, as well as ever in her Life.

To ſatisfie ſome Strangers, the Experiment was divers times with the ſame Succeſs, repeated; until my Lothneſs to have any thing done like making a Charm of a Room, caus'd me to forbid the Repetition of it. But enough of this. The Miniſters of Boſton and Charlſtown, kept another Day of Prayer with Faſting, for Goodwin's afflicted Family: After which, the Children had a Senſible, but a Gradual Abatement of their Sorrows, until Perfect Eaſe was at length reſtor'd unto them. The young Woman dwelt at my Houſe the reſt of the Winter; having by a vertuous Converſation made her ſelf enough welcome to the Family. But e're long, I thought it convenient for me to entertain my Congregation with a Sermon on the memorable Providences wherein theſe Children had been concern'd, [afterwards publiſh'd.] When I had begun to ſtudy my Sermon, her Tormentors a-again ſeiz'd upon her, and manag'd her with a ſpecial Deſign, as was plain, to diſturb me in what I was then about.

In the worſt of her Extravagancies formerly, ſhe was more dutiful to my ſelf than I had reaſon to expect: But now her whole Carriage to me was with a Sawcineſs, which I was not us'd any where to be treated withal. She would knock at my Study door, affirming That ſome below would be glad to ſee me; tho' there was none that ask'd for me: And when I chid her for telling what was falſe, her Anſwer was Mrs Mather is always glad to ſee you! She would call to me with numberleſs Impertinencies: And when I came down, ſhe would throw things at me, tho' none of them could ever hurt me: And ſhe would Hector me at a ſtrange rate for ſomething I was doing above, and threaten me with Miſchief and Reproach that ſhould revenge it. Few Tortures now attended her, but ſuch as were provok'd. Her Frolicks were numberleſs; if we may call them hers. I was in Latin telling ſome young Gentlemen, That if I ſhould bid her look to God, her Eyes would be put out: Upon which her Eyes were preſently ſerv'd ſo. Perceiving that her Troublers underſtood Latin, ſome Trials were thereupon made whether they underſtood Greek and Hebrew, which it ſeems, they alſo did; but the Indian Languages they did ſeem not ſo well to underſtand.

When we went unto prayer, the Dæmons would throw her on the Floor at the Feet of him that pray'd, where ſhe would whiſtle, and ſing, and yell, to drown the Voice of the Prayer, and ſhe would fetch Blows with her Fiſt, and Kicks with her Foot, at the Man that pray'd: But ſtill her Fiſt and Foot would always recoyl, when they came within an Inch or two of him, as if rebounding againſt a Wall: and then ſhe would beg hard of other People to ſtrike him, which (you may be ſure) not being done, ſhe cry'd out, He has wounded me in the Head. But before the Prayer was over, ſhe would be laid for dead, wholly ſenſeleſs, and (unto appearance) breathleſs, with her Belly ſwell'd like a Drum; And ſometimes with croaking Noiſes in her. Thus wou'd ſhe lie, moſt exactly with the Stiffneſs and Poſture of one that had been two Days laid out for dead. Once lying thus, as he that was praying, was alluding to the Words of the Canaaniteſs, and ſaying, Lord, have mercy on a Daughter vex'd with a Devil, there came a big, but low Voice from her, in which the Spectators did not ſee her Mouth to move, There's two or three of us. When Prayer was ended, ſhe would revive in a Minute or two, and continue as frolickſome as before.

She thus continu'd until Saturday towards the Evening; when ſhe aſſay'd with as nimble, and various, and pleaſant an Application, as could eaſily be us'd, for to divert the young Folks in the Family from ſuch Exerciſes, as it was proper to meet the Sabbath withal: But they refuſing to be diverted, ſhe fell faſt aſleep, and in two or three Hours wak'd perfectly her ſelf, weeping bitterly to remember what had befallen her. When Chriſtmas arriv'd, both ſhe at my Houſe, and her Siſter at home, were by the Dæmons made very drunk, tho' we are fully ſatisfied they had no Strong Drink to make them ſo; nor would they willingly have been ſo, to have gain'd the World. When ſhe began to feel her ſelf Drunk, ſhe complain'd, Oh! they ſay they will have me to keep Chriſtmas with them. They will diſgrace me, when they can do nothing elſe. And immediately the ridiculous Behaviours of one drunk, were with a wondrous Exactneſs repreſented in her Speaking, and Reeling and Spewing, and anon Sleeping, till ſhe was well again. At laſt the Dæmons put her upon ſaying that ſhe was dying, and the matter prov'd ſuch, that we fear'd ſhe really was; for ſhe lay, ſhe toſs'd, ſhe pull'd, juſt like one dying, and urg'd hard for ſome one to die with her, ſeeming loth to die alone. She argu'd concerning Death, with Paraphraſes on the Thirty firſt Pſalm, in Strains that quite amaz'd us: And concluded, that tho' ſhe was loth to die, yet if God ſaid ſhe muſt, ſhe muſt! Adding, that the Indians would quickly ſhed much Blood in the Countrey, and horrible Tragedies would be acted in the Land. Thus the Vexations of the Children ended.

But after a while, they began again; and then one particular Miniſter taking a particular Compaſſion on the Family, ſet himſelf to ſerve them in the Methods preſcrib'd by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Accordingly, the Lord being beſought thrice in Three Days of Prayer, with Faſting on this occaſion, the Family then ſaw their Deliverance perfected; and the Children afterwards all of them, not only approv'd themſelves Devout Chriſtians; but unto the Praiſe of God reckon'd theſe their Afflictions among the ſpecial Incentives of their Chriſtianity.

The Miniſters of Boſton and Charlſtown, afterwards accompany'd the printed Narrative of theſe things with their Atteſtation to the Truth of it. And when it was re-printed at London, the famous Mr. Baxter prefixed a Preface unto it, wherein he ſays, This great Inſtance comes with ſuch convincing Evidence, that he muſt be a very obdurate Sadducee, that will not believe it.

The Tenth Example.

William Davies with Nine Sailers, whereof one was a Negro, and one Boy, and one Paſſenger, ſail'd out of Boſton, Dec. 28. 1695. in the Ship called The Margaret, of about Eighty Tuns, bound for Barbadoes, laden with Fiſh, Beef and a ſmall parcel of Lumber. Within a few Days, one of the Sailers, nam'd Winlock Curtis, being at the Helm, about 8 a-clock at Night call'd unto the Captain, telling him, that he cou'd ſteer no longer; whereof, when the Captain ask'd him the Reaſon, he beſought the ſaid Captain to think him neither drunk nor mad, and then added, That he had but a little time to tarry here; conſtantly affirming therewithal, That a Spirit appearing by the Biddekel, accus'd him of killing a Woman, (which the Sailer ſaid, that he had left alive,) and reported unto him that the reſt of the Ships Company had ſigned The BOOK, which he was from that Argument now urg'd alſo to ſign. The Sailer declared his Reſolution, that he would never hearken to the Devil, and requeſted that he might be furniſh'd with a Bible; in the reading whereof he was at firſt greatly interrupted; but at length he was able diſtinctly to read it. On the day following he was violently and ſuddenly ſeiz'd in an unaccountable manner, and furiouſly thrown down upon the Deck, where he lay wallowing in a great Agony, and foam'd at the Mouth, and grew black in the Face, and was near ſtrangled with a Great Lump riſing in his Neck nigh his Throat, like that which bewitch'd or poſſeſs'd People uſe to be attended withal. In a few days he came a little to himſelf; but ſtill behav'd himſelf, as one much under the Power of ſome Devil; talking of the Viſions which he ſaw in the Air, and of a Spirit coming for him with a Boat. The Ships Company, to prevent his going over-board to that Inviſible Spirit, which he attempted once to do, confin'd him to his Cabin, and there ty'd him, and bound him ſo that they thought they had him faſt enough: But he ſoon came forth without Noiſe, to their great Aſtoniſhment. He then fell into a Sleep, wherein he continu'd for Twenty four Hours; after which he came to himſelf, and remain'd very ſenſible, giving a particular Narrative of the odd Circumſtances which he had been in, and calling for Pen, and Ink, to write them down. But he put off doing it until the Ship, then under a freſh Gale, ſhould be a little quieter; and ſo it came to be altogether neglected.

Upon Jan. 17. in the North Lat. 19. ſailing S.W. with a freſh Gale Eaſt, and E. and by S. about 9 at Night a ſmall White Cloud aroſe without Rain, or any extraordinary Increaſe of Wind; Which falling upon the Ship, immediately preſſed her down to Star board at once: And the Hatches flying out, ſhe was immediately ſo full of Water, that it was impoſſible to recover her. If ſhe had not been laden with Lumber, ſhe muſt have ſunk to the Bottom: Whereas now being full of Water, which drown'd the Boy ſleeping in the Cabin, She ſoon righted, but floated along overflow'd with the Sea, after this, for Eleven Weeks together, in which time there hapned the Enſuing Paſſages.

Firſt, Within a few Days, one Mr. Dibs, the Paſſenger, who formerly had been very undaunted and courageous, began to talk odly of ſeveral Perſons in Barbadoes; adding, That one ſtood at the Main Maſt who came for him with a Wherry. And ſoon after this, he was gone inſenſibly, none knowing when or how. About a Fortnight after this, one John Jones was in the ſame inſenſible manner carry'd away, and ſo was the above mention'd Winlock Curtis. Within about a Fortnight more, one of their Number dy'd, thro' the unconquerable Difficulties of the Voyage. And about a Fortnight further, the Negro ſitting as not in his right Mind, and another Sailer, were in the Night inſenſibly carry'd away. About a Week after, one Sterry Lion, the Carpenter, not being in any diſorder of Mind at all, often ſpoke of his End being at hand, and that it would be by a Wave of the Sea, fetching him away. Him they ſaw carry'd away by a Wave about Nine a-clock in the Morning.

All this while their Food was only Fleſh, which they eat raw, becauſe they could now have no Fire; and freſh Fiſh, which in great Quantities came into the Veſſel unto them. At ſeveral times, and eſpecially before the taking away of any one of their Number, they heard various and wondrous Noiſes like the Voice of Birds, as Turkeys and other Fowl. While they were in this Condition, they ſaw three Veſſels, and judg'd that all the three ſaw them: Nevertheleſs none came a-near them to relieve them. Their Lodging was on two Boards plac'd athwart the Rail, near the Taffril, cover'd with a Sail: And the firſt Land they diſcover'd, was Deſiado; but a Northerly Current hinder'd their landing there. The next Land was Grand Terra; but the Wind in the North hinder'd their landing there alſo. At laſt, with a little Sail, being reduc'd unto Three in Number, they ran their Ship aſhore at Guadalupa, the ſixth of April, about 2 a-clock on Monday morning, where the French kindly entertain'd them, not as Priſoners but as Travellers. Thence they came to Barbadoes, and there they made Oath to the Truth of this Narrative.

The Eleventh Example.

Reader, into this Chapter, with too much of Reaſon, may be tranſcrib'd a Paſſage, which I have had occaſion formerly to publiſh in a Book about the Cauſe and Cure of a wounded Spirit.

'There are very cruel Self Murders whereto the Wounds on Peoples Conſciences have driven them. Such a Conſternation is upon them, that they can't pitch upon any other Project for their own Repoſe, than that of Hanging, Drowning, Stabbing, Poyſoning, or ſome ſuch Foaming piece of Madneſs. But, in God's Name, think again, before you do ſo vile a thing! Think, by whoſe Impulſe 'tis that you are dragg'd into this curs'd Action. Truly 'tis a more than ordinary Impulſe of the Devil, whereof I have ſeen moſt prodigious Evidences.

'One that came to me with a wounded Soul, after all that I could plead with him, left me with theſe Words, Well, the Devil will have me after all! And ſome Company juſt then hindring me from going after him, as I intended, e're I could get at him, he was found ſitting in his Chamber, choak'd unto death with a Rope, which Rope nevertheleſs was found, not about his Neck, but in his Hand and on his Knee.

'The ſenſible Aſſiſtance which the Devil has frequently among us, given to theſe unnatural Executions, does manifeſtly ſhew, that They who dogg'd the Swine into the Deep of old, are the ſame that compel Perſons to be ſo much worſe than Swine, as to kill themſelves. Theſe doleful Creatures we have ſeen ſometimes hang themſelves to death, while their Feet are yet upon the Ground: Yea, by a Line which hath preſently broken, and yet left them dead. And, ‘I think ſome that have been found and fetch'd before their Life was wholly extinguiſh'd in them, have confeſs'd unto me to this purpoſe: That they had no ſooner given the firſt ſtop unto their Breath, but they preſently loſt all ſort of Senſe: Only they felt ſuch a Load immediately upon their Shoulders, that they could not help themſelves, tho' their Knees were upon the Floor all the while.

‘Moreover, the ſtrange Obſtructions that are given to Mens coming into a Probability of Deliverance from their Hurries, do further manifeſt, that the Armies of Hell are herein beleaguering of them. How often have People been at a Miniſter's door to have ſpoken with him; but having no power to knock, they have gone away and laid violent hands upon themſelves! People at the Threſhold of this very Meeting-houſe, have had a forcible and furious kind of Whiſper made into their Minds that they muſt be gone to ſome other Congregation: But at length overcoming their inviſible Pull-backs, they have come in; and a large part of my Sermon hath been to diſſwade any hurry'd Souls from the murdering of themſelves: which God has bleſs'd unto the ſaving of them. It ſeems the bloody Dæmons had unto their Vexation, ſome way learnt what I was to preach about. The Reſult of all is thus much, ſince 'tis the Devil which puts you upon thus wronging of your ſelves, don't reſign your ſelves unto the Conduct of that helliſh Murderer. Are the Devil's Hands, I pray, ſo deſirable, that you will needs throw your ſelves into them, while the Hands of the Saviour are yet open to receive you, to relieve you! Oh, do thy ſelf no harm!

The Twelfth Example.

Strange Premonitions of Death approaching, are matters of ſuch a frequent occurrence in Hiſtory, that one is ready now to look upon them as no more than matters of common Occurrence. The Learned know that Suetonius hardly lets one of his Twelve Cæſars die without them: And the Vulgar talk of them as things happening every day amongſt their ſmaller Neighbours.

Even within a Fortnight of my writing this, there was a Phyſician who ſojourn'd within a Furlong of my own Houſe. This Phyſician for three Nights together was miſerably diſtreſt with Dreams of his being drown'd. On the third of theſe Nights his Dreams were ſo troubleſome, that he was caſt into extream Sweats, by ſtruggling under the imaginary Water. With the Sweats yet upon him, he came down from his Chamber, telling the People of the Family what it was that had ſo diſcompos'd him. Immediately there came in two Friends that ask'd him to go a little way with them in a Boat upon the Water. He was at firſt afraid of gratifying the Deſire of his Friends, becauſe of his late Preſages. But it being a very calm time, he recollected himſelf, why ſhould I mind my Dreams, or miſtruſt the Divine Providence? He went with them, and before Night, by a Thunder-ſtorm ſuddenly coming up, they were all three of them drown'd.

I have juſt now enquir'd into the Truth of what I have thus related; and I can aſſert it.

But Apparitions after Death are things which when they occurr, have more of Strangeneſs in them. And yet they have been often ſeen in this Land: Particularly, Perſons that have died abroad at Sea, have within a day after their death been ſeen by their Friends in their Houſes at home. The Sights have occaſion'd much Notice and much Diſcourſe at the very time of them; and Records have been kept of the time, (Reader, I write but what hath fallen within my own Perſonal Obſervation;) and it hath been afterwards found that they dy'd near that very time when they thus appear'd.

I will, from ſeveral Inſtances, which I have known of this thing, ſingle out one, that ſhall have in it much of Demonſtration, as well as of Particularity.

It was on the Second of May, in the Year 1687. that a moſt ingenious, accompliſh'd, and well-diſpos'd young Gentleman, Mr. Joſeph Beacon by Name, about 5 a-clock in the Morning as he lay, whether ſleeping or waking, he could not ſay, (but judg'd the latter of them,) had a View of his Brother then at London, although he was now himſelf at our Boſton, diſtanc'd from him a thouſand Leagues. This, his Brother appear'd to him in the Morning, (I ſay) about five a-clock, at Boſton, having on him a Bengale Gown which he uſually wore, with a Napkin ty'd about his Head: His Countenance was very pale, ghaſtly, deadly, and he had a bloody Wound on one ſide of his Forehead. Brother! ſays the affrighted Joſeph. Brother! anſwer'd the Apparition. Said Joſeph, what's the matter Brother! How came you here! The Apparition reply'd, Brother! I have been moſt barbarouſly and inhumanly murder'd by a debauch'd Fellow, to whom I never did any wrong in my Life. Whereupon he gave a particular Deſcription of the Murderer; adding, Brother, this Fellow, changing his Name, is attempting to come over unto New-England, in Foy or Wild: I would pray you, on the firſt Arrival of either of theſe, to get an Order from the Governour to ſeize the Perſon whom I have now deſcrib'd; and then do you indict him for the Murder of me, your Brother. I'll ſtand by you, and prove the Indictment. And ſo he vaniſh'd. Mr. Beacon was extreamly aſtoniſh'd at what he had ſeen and heard: And the People of the Family not only obſerv'd an Extraordinary Alteration upon him for the Week following, but have alſo given me under their Hands a full Teſtimony that he then gave them an Account of this Apparition. All this while, Mr. Beacon had no Advice of any thing amiſs attending his Brother then in England: But about the latter End of June following, he underſtood by the common ways of Communication, that the April before his Brother going in haſte by Night to call a Coach for a Lady, met a Fellow then in Drink with his Doxy in his hand. Some way or other the Fellow thought himſelf affronted in the haſty Paſſage of this Beacon, and immediately ran in to the Fire ſide of a neighbouring Tavern, from whence he fetch'd out a Fire-Fork, wherewith he grievouſly wounded Beacon on the Skull, even in that very part where the Apparition ſhew'd his Wound. Of this Wound he languiſhed until he dy'd, on the 2*d* of May, about 5 of the clock in the Morning, at London. The Murderer, it ſeems, was indeavouring an Eſcape, as the Apparition affirm'd; but the Friends of the Deceas'd Beacon ſeiz'd him; and proſecuting him at Law, he found the Help of ſuch Friends, as brought him off without the loſs of his Life: Since which, there has no more been heard of the Buſineſs.

This Hiſtory I receiv'd of Mr. Joſeph Beacon himſelf, who, a little before his own pious and hopeful Death, which follow'd not long after, gave me the Story, written and ſign'd with his own Hand, and atteſted with the Circumſtances I have already mention'd.

I know not how far the Reader will judge it agreeable unto the Matters related in this Article, if I do inſert,—— But I will here inſert a Paſſage which I find thus enter'd among my own Adverſaria.

'Mr. J. C. a Deacon of the Church in 'Charlſtown, told me, that his Wife having been 'ſick for divers Months, was on the 31*ſt* of Au'guſt laſt, ſeiz'd with the Pangs of Death; in 'which being delirious, and asking divers times 'who would go with her, whither ſhe was going? At 'length ſhe ſaid, Well; my Son Robert will go. 'and addreſſing her Speech thereupon as unto 'him, ſhe expreſs'd her Satisfaction that they 'ſhould go together. This Son of hers was at 'that time in Barbadoes; and his Friends here 'have ſince learn'd that he alſo dy'd there, and 'this at the very Hour when his Mother here gave 'up the Ghoſt; and (which is further odd) not 'without the like Expreſſions concerning his Mo'ther, that his Mother had concerning him.

The Thirteenth Example.

In this preſent Evil World, it is no Wonder that the Operations of the Evil Angels are more ſenſible than of the Good ones. Nevertheleſs 'tis very certain, that the Good Angels continually without any Defilement, fly about in our defil'd Atmoſphere, to miniſter for the Good of them that are to be the Heirs of Salvation.

The Natives of Heaven, as Dr. Fuller phraſeth it, grudge not to guard thoſe who are only Free Denizens thereof. The Excellent Rivet hath well expreſs'd what is to believ'd of this matter, That every one of them, who ſhall be Heirs of Salvation, hath, beſides what may be with him on Extraordinary Occaſions always one particular Angel with him, is a probable Truth, and not againſt the Scripture. Albeit, we cannot from thence inferr that it is always the ſame Angel. Now, tho' the Angelical Miniſtration is uſually behind the Curtain of more viſible Inſtruments and their Actions; yet ſometimes it hath been with Extraordinary Circumſtances made more obvious to the Senſe of the Faithful.

Of all that hath occurr'd in this Land, this only ſhall here be expreſs'd.

I find in the Diary of my Dear, and Reverend, and Excellent Friend Mr. John Baily, a wonderful Paſſage concerning his Eminently pious Wife, who dy'd at our Watertown; which I will here tranſcribe.

'April 14. 1691. ſhe was dying all day. To'ward Sun-ſet ſhe ſaid unto me eſpecially, and 'alſo unto others, that we had done her the 'greateſt Diskindneſs that ever ſhe met with ſince 'ſhe was born, in keeping her back, and not de'livering her up to God in Chriſt, whom ſhe 'lov'd above all, and long'd to be withal. She 'begg'd as for her Life, that We would, and I 'eſpecially, take off our Love wholly from her, 'and give our All to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as ſhe 'had often done, and was now willing again to 'do. She would never be quiet, until I promi'ſed before all thoſe Witneſſes preſent (which 'were many) and before the Holy Angels, who 'ſhe deſired, would ſeal to it with their Golden 'Seals, that I would be willing to part with her 'and let her go; and that I would give my All 'up to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt (even Her ſelf, and 'every thing elſe:) which in the Name of Chriſt, 'I promis'd to labour to be willing, and I would 'be willing to do.

'This gave her ſome Content; and ſhe ſaid, 'that God had appear'd unto her, and that ſhe 'was full of the Joys of the Holy Ghoſt, and 'that ſhe had whole Floods of the Love of God 'in her Soul, and ſhe could not ſtand under it. 'She often ſaid, that ſhe had Rivers of Joy, and 'that ſhe could ſcatter it about the Town, and 'that all this was to her the worſt of Sinners; 'and that it was not only undeſerv'd, but alſo 'unexpected. She deſir'd every one to take heed 'of ſlighting the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and ſhe aſ'ſur'd them, that if they entertain'd him, they 'ſhould be as full of Love and Joy as ſhe: And 'ſhe adviſ'd them to give up all unto God, and 'make much of him; for there was none like 'him; and as long as ſhe had a Tongue or a 'Breath, ſhe would praiſe him: And ſhe ask'd 'us all, that if we would not, or could not praiſe 'him on our own Accounts, yet we would do it 'on hers; for ſhe was Top-full, Brim-full, and 'running over. She ſaid, Death had no Terror 'at all in it; but ſhe could as freely die as ever 'ſhe went to ſleep. She ſaid, I deſerve none of 'this Love; but if Chriſt will give it, who can 'hinder it? Go to him; he is no Niggard, he has 'Love and Grace enough for you all: I cannot 'bear it, it is ſo heavy! Ay, ſaid ſhe, my poor Huſ'band, tho' a diſconſolate Man, Jeſus Chriſt will 'fit him with all this Love before he dies; and he 'will fill you all, if it be not your own Fault. She 'ſaid unto me, If any body want me, this poor Man

' will: Yet, as well as I love him, and I now love him better than ever, and ſhall bleſs God through all Eternity for him; Yet I would not be hir'd by Millions of Worlds to live a Day or an Hour with him from Chriſt: And yet, if God would have me to live, I would live. This Hour is the happieſt Hour that ever I had ſince my Mother bound my head. There was never ſuch an Inſtance of Free-Grace, as I am perſwaded, ſince the World begun. Let all take notice, to the Glory of Free Grace, that I go off the Stage nobly and honourably. She ſaid, That ſhe was going to the Lord, and if thouſands of Devils ſhould tell her otherwiſe, ſhe would not believe them. God had now made her amends for all the Troubles ſhe had met withal in the World. She then deſir'd that we would ſing ſome Pſalm of Praiſe to the Riches of Free Grace: But our Harps were hang'd on the Willows, we did it not. Yet there was melodious Singing at that very time! I heard it my ſelf, but intended never to ſpeak of it until the Nurſe B. and M. S. ſpoke of it. They went unto the Fire, thinking it was there; but they heard it beſt, when within the Curtains. God, by his Holy Angels, put an Honour upon my dear little Woman; and by it reprov'd us, that ſeeing we would not ſing, (being bad at it) they would!

The Fourteenth Example.

To conclude our Wonders of the Inviſible World, there will doubtleſs be expected an Account of the Wonders that afflicted New-England in the Year 1692. Now having in my Hands a moſt unexceptionable Account thereof written by Mr. John Hales, I will here content my ſelf with the Tranſcribing of that. And I will aſſure the Reader that he hath now to do with a Writer, who would not for a World be guilty of over-doing the Truth in an Hiſtory of this importance.

Sadduciſmus debellatus.

§. 1. IN the latter end of the Year 1691. Mr. Paris, Paſtor of the Church in Salem-Village had a Daughter of Nine, and a Niece of about Eleven Years of Age, ſadly afflicted of they knew not what Diſtempers: And tho' he made his Application to Phyſicians; yet ſtill they grew worſe. At length one Phyſician gave his Opinion That they were under an Evil Hand. This the Neighbours took up, and concluded, they were bewitch'd. He had alſo an Indian Man-ſervant, and his Wife, who afterwards confeſs'd that without the Knowledge of their Maſter or Miſtreſs, they had taken ſome of the afflicted Perſons Urine, and mixing it with Meal, had made a Cake, and bak'd it, to find out the Witch, as they ſaid. After this, the afflicted Perſons cry'd out of the Indian Woman nam'd Tituba, that ſhe did pinch, prick, and grievouſly torment them; and that they ſaw her here and there, where no body elſe could; yea, they could tell where ſhe was, and what ſhe did when out of their Humane Sight. Theſe Children were bitten and pinch'd by inviſible Agents; their Arms, Necks, and Backs turn'd this way and that way, and return'd back again; ſo as it was impoſſible for them to do of themſelves, and beyond the power of any Epileptick Fits, or natural Diſeaſes to effect.

Sometimes they were taken dumb, their Mouths ſtopp'd, their Throats choak'd, their Limbs rack'd and tormented, ſo as might move an Heart of Stone to ſympathize with them, with Bowels of Compaſſion for them. I will not enlarge in the Deſcription of their cruel Sufferings, becauſe they were in all things afflicted as bad as John Goodwin's Children at Boſton in the Year 1689. So that he that will read Mr. Mather's Book of Memorable Providences, may read part of what theſe Children, and afterwards ſundry grown Perſons ſuffer'd by the Hand of Satan at Salem-Village and Parts adjacent, An. 169½. Yet there was more in theſe Sufferings than in thoſe at Boſton, by Pins inviſibly ſtuck into their Fleſh, pricking with Irons, &c. as is in part publiſh'd in a Book printed 1693, viz. The Wonders of the Inviſible World.

Mr. Paris ſeeing the diſtreſs'd Condition of his Family, deſir'd the Preſence of ſome worthy Gentlemen of Salem, and ſome Neighbour-Miniſters, to conſult together at his Houſe; who, when they came, and had enquir'd diligently into the Sufferings of the afflicted, concluded they were preternatural, and fear'd the Hand of Satan was in them.

§. 2. The advice given to Mr. Paris about them, was, That he ſhould ſit ſtill and wait upon the Providence of God, to ſee what Time might diſcover, and to be much in Prayer for the Diſcovery of what was yet ſecret. They alſo examin'd Tituba, who confeſs'd the making a Cake, as is above-mention'd, and ſaid, her Miſtreſs in her own Countrey was a Witch, and had taught her ſome means to be us'd for the Diſcovery of a Witch, and for prevention of being bewitch'd: but ſaid, that ſhe her ſelf was not a Witch.

§. 3. Soon after this, there were two or three Private Faſts at the Miniſter's Houſe; one of which was kept by ſundry Neighbour Miniſters; and after this, another in publick at the Village; and ſeveral Days afterwards of Publick Humiliation, during theſe Moleſtations, not only there, but in other Congregations for them: and one General Faſt, by order of the General Court, obſerv'd throughout the Colony, to ſeek the Lord, that he would rebuke Satan, and be a Light unto his People in this Day of Darkneſs. But I return to theſe Troubles. In a ſhort time after, other Perſons who were of age to be Witneſſes, were moleſted by Satan, and in their Fits cry'd out upon Tituba, and Goody O. and S. G. that they or Spectres in their Shapes, did grievouſly torment them. Some of their Village-Neighbours complain'd unto the Magiſtrates at Salem, deſiring they would come and examine the Afflicted and the Accus'd together; the which they did: The effect of which Examination was, that Tituba confeſs'd ſhe was a Witch; and that ſhe, with the two others accus'd, did torment and bewitch the Complainers; and that theſe, with two others, whoſe Names ſhe knew not, had their Witch-meetings together, relating the times when, and places where, they met, with many other Circumſtances elſewhere to be ſeen at large. Upon this, the ſaid Tituba and O. and G. were committed to Priſon upon ſuſpicion of acting Witchcraft. After this, the ſaid Tituba was again examin'd in Priſon, and own'd her firſt Confeſſion in all points, and then was her ſelf afflicted, and complain'd of her Fellow-Witches tormenting of her for her Confeſſion, and accuſing them; and being ſearch'd by a Woman, ſhe was found to have upon her Body the Marks of the Devil's wounding her.

§. 4. Here were theſe things rendred her Confeſſion credible:

1. That at this Examination ſhe anſwer'd every Queſtion juſt as ſhe did at the firſt. And it was thought, that if ſhe had feign'd her Confeſſion, ſhe could not have remember'd her Anſwers ſo exactly. A Lyar, we ſay, had need have a good Memory: But Truth being always conſiſtent with it ſelf, is the ſame to day as it was yeſterday.
2. She ſeem'd very penitent for her Sin in covenanting with the Devil.
3. She became a Sufferer her ſelf, and, as ſhe ſaid, for her Confeſſion.
4. Her Confeſſion agreed exactly (which was afterwards verify'd in the other Confeſſors) with the Accuſations of the Afflicted.

Soon after, theſe afflicted Perſons complain'd of other Perſons afflicting of them in their Fits, and the Number of the Afflicted and the Accus'd began to increaſe. And the Succeſs of Tituba's Confeſſion encourag'd thoſe in Authority to examine others that were ſuſpected; and the Event was, that more confeſs'd themſelves guilty of the Crimes they were ſuſpected for. And thus was the matter driven on.

§. 5. I obſerv'd in the Proſecution of theſe Affairs, that there was in the Juſtices, Judges, and others concern'd, a conſcientious Endeavour to do the thing that was right; and to that end, they conſulted the Precedents of former times, and Precepts laid down by learn'd Writers about Witchcraft; as, Keeble on the Common Law, Chapt. Conjuration, (an Author approv'd by the Twelve Judges of our Nation:) Alſo Sir Matthew Hales's Trials of Witches, printed An. 1682. Glanvil's Collection of ſundry Trials in England and Ireland in the Year 1658, 61, 63, 64, and 81. Bernard's Guide to Jury-men; Baxter's and R. B. their Hiſtories about Witches, and their Diſcoveries; C. Mather's Memorable Providences relating to Witchcrafts, printed 1685.

§. 6. But that which chiefly carry'd on this matter to ſuch an Height, was the increaſing of Confeſſors until they amounted to near upon fifty; and Four or Six of them upon their Trials own'd their Guilt of this Crime, and were condemn'd for the ſame, but not executed. And many of the Confeſſors confirm'd their Confeſſions with very ſtrong Circumſtances; as their exact agreement with the Accuſations of the Afflicted, their punctual agreement with their Fellow-Confeſſors, their relating the Times when they covenanted with Satan, and the Reaſons that mov'd 'em thereunto; their Witch-meetings, and that they had their Mock-Sacraments of Baptiſm and the Supper, in ſome of them; their ſigning the Devil's Book, and ſome ſhew'd the Scars of the Wounds which they ſaid were made to fetch Blood with to ſign the Devil's Book; and ſome ſaid they had Imps to ſuck them, and ſhew'd Sores raw, where they ſaid they were ſuck'd by them.

§. 7. I ſhall give the Reader a Taſte of theſe things in a few Inſtances. The Afflicted complain'd that the Spectres which vex'd them, urged them to ſet their hands to a Book, repreſented to them (as to them it ſeem'd) with Threatnings of great Torments if they ſign'd not, and Promiſes of Eaſe if they obey'd. Among theſe, D. H. as ſhe ſaid (which ſundry others confeſs'd afterwards) being overcome by the Extremity of her pains, did ſign the Book preſented, and had the promis'd Eaſe, and immediately upon it a Spectre in her Shape afflicted another Perſon, and ſaid, I have ſign'd the Book, and have Eaſe: now do you ſign, and ſo ſhall you have Eaſe! And one day this afflicted Perſon pointed at a certain place in the Room, and ſaid There is D. H. Upon which, a Man with his Rapier ſtruck at the Place, tho' he ſaw no Shape; and the Afflicted call'd out, ſaying, You have given her a ſmall Prick about the Eye. Soon after this, the ſaid D. H. confeſs'd her ſelf to be made a Witch, by ſigning the Devil's Book, as aboveſaid, and declar'd that ſhe had afflicted the Maid that complain'd of her, and in doing of it, had receiv'd Two Wounds by a Sword or Rapier; a ſmall one about the Eye, which ſhe ſhew'd to the Magiſtrates, and a bigger on the Side, of which ſhe was ſearch'd by a diſcreet Woman, who reported that D. H. had on her Side the Sign of a Wound newly heal'd. This D. H. confeſſed that ſhe was at a Witch-meeting at Salem Village, where were many Perſons that ſhe nam'd, ſome of whom were in Priſon then, or ſoon after, upon ſuſpicion of Witchcraft; and ſhe ſaid G. B. preach'd to them, and ſuch a Woman was their Deacon, and there they had a Sacrament.

§. 8. Several others after this, confeſs'd the ſame things with D. H. In particular, Goody F. ſaid, that ſhe, with two others, (one of whom acknowledg'd the ſame) rode from Andover to the ſame Village Witch-meeting, upon a Stick above the Ground, and that in the Way the Stick brake, and gave the ſaid F. a Fall, whereby, ſaid ſhe, I got a Fall and Hurt, of which I am ſtill ſore. I hapned to be preſent in Priſon when this F. own'd again her former Confeſſion to the Magiſtrates.—I asked her if ſhe rode to the Meeting on a Stick? She ſaid, Yea. I inquired what ſhe did for Victuals: She anſwered, That ſhe carried Bread and Cheeſe in her Pocket, and that ſhe and the Andover Company came to the Village before the Meeting began, and ſat down together under a Tree, and eat their Food; and that ſhe drank Water out of a Brook to quench her Thirſt; and that the Meeting was upon a plain Graſſy Place, by which was a Cart-path, in which were the Tracks of Horſes Feet; and ſhe alſo told me how long they were going and returning, and ſome time after, told me ſhe had ſome Trouble upon her Spirit; and when I enquired what, ſhe ſaid, ſhe was in fear that G. B. and M. C. would kill her; for they appeared unto her (in Spectre, for their Perſons were kept in other Rooms in the Priſon) and brought a Sharp-pointed Iron, like a Spindle, but four-ſquare, and Threatned to ſtabb her to death, becauſe ſhe had confeſſed her Witchcraft, and told of them that they were with her; and M. C. above-named was the Perſon that made her a Witch. About a Month after, the ſaid F. took occaſion to tell me the ſame Story of her Fears that G. B. and E. C. would kill her; ſo that the thing was much on her Spirit.

§. 9. It was not long before M. L. Daughter of the ſaid F. confeſs'd that She rode with her Mother to the ſaid Witch-meeting, and confirm'd the Subſtance of her Mother's Confeſſion. At another time M. L. junior, the Grand-daughter, aged about 17 Years, confeſſes the Subſtance of what her Grand-mother and Mother had related, and declares that when they, with E. C. rode on a Stick or Pole in the Air, ſhe the ſaid Grand-daughter, with R. C. rode upon another (and the ſaid R. C. acknowledged the ſame) and that they ſet their Hands to the Devil's Book: and (inter alia) ſaid, O Mother, why did you give me to the Devil? twice or thrice over. The Mother ſaid, ſhe was ſorry at the heart for it; it was through that wicked one. Her Daughter bad her repent and call upon God, and ſaid, Oh Mother! your Wiſhes are now come to paſs; for how often have you wiſhed that the Devil would fetch me away alive! and then ſaid, Oh, my Heart will break within me! Then She wept bitterly, crying out, O Lord comfort me, and bring out all the Witches. And ſhe ſaid to her Grandmother, Oh Grandmother, why did you give me to the Devil? Why did you perſwade me? O Grandmother, do not deny it. Then the Grandmother gave account of ſeveral things about their Confederates and Acts of Witchcraft, too long to rehearſe. Moreover, another declared, that ſhe with Widow S. went to Captain W. S. and the ſaid S. gave him a Blow with a great Stick, and yet was to him inviſible. Captain W. declar'd he had a ſore Blow, as if with a great Stick, but ſaw no body. The Widow S. denied that ſhe ſtruck him. Then M. P. the Confeſſor very boldly look'd up into her Face, and ſaid, Goody S. you know you did ſtrike him, and I ſaw you do it, and then told the manner how it was done, and how they came to him, and returned.

§. 10. Nextly, I will inſert the Confeſſion of a Man, about forty years of age, W. B. which he wrote himſelf in Priſon, and ſent to the Magiſtrates, to confirm his former Confeſſion to them.

God having call'd me to confeſs my Sin and Apoſtacy in that Fall, in giving the Devil Advantage over me, appearing to me like a Black, in the Evening, to ſet my hand to his Book, as I have own'd to my ſhame. He told me that I ſhould not want, ſo doing. At Salem-Village, there being a little off the Meeting-houſe, about an hundred fine Blades, ſome with Rapiers by their ſides, which was call'd (and might be more for ought I know) by B. and Bu. and the TRUMPET ſounded, and Bread and Wine which they called the Sacrament; but I had none; being carried over all upon a Stick, never being at any other Meeting. I being at Cart Saturday laſt all the Day, of Hay and Engliſh Corn, the Devil brought my Shape to Salem, and did afflict M. S. and R. F. by clitching my Hand: And on Sabbath-day my Shape afflicted A. M. and at Night afflicted M. S. and A. M. E. J. and A. F. have been my Enticers to this great Abomination, as one hath owned and charged her other Siſter with the ſame. And the Deſign was to deſtroy Salem-Village, and to begin at the Miniſter's Houſe, and to deſtroy the Churches of God, and to ſet up Satan's Kingdom, and then all will be well. And now I hope God hath made me in ſome meaſure ſenſible of my Sin and Apoſtacy; begging Pardon of God, and of the honourable Magiſtrates, and all God's People; hoping, and promiſing by the Help of God, to ſet to my Heart and Hand to do what in me lieth to deſtroy ſuch wicked Worſhip; humbly begging the Prayers of God's People for me, I may walk humbly under all this great Affliction, and that I may procure to my ſelf the ſure Mercies of David.

Concerning this Confeſſion, note, 1. It was his own Free Act in Priſon. 2. He ſaid [The Devil, like a black Sheep.] This he had before explain'd to be like a Black Man. 3. That on a certain day was heard in the Air the Sound of a Trumpet at Salem-Village, nigh the Meeting-houſe, and upon all Enquiry, it could not be found that any mortal Man did ſound it. 4. The Three Perſons, he ſaith, the Devil in his Shape afflicted, had been, as to the time and manner, afflicted as he confeſſeth. 5. That E. J. confeſſed as much as W. B. chargeth her with. 6. Many others confeſs'd a Witch-meeting or Witch-meetings at the Village as well as he.

Note alſo, that theſe Confeſſors did not only witneſs againſt themſelves, but againſt one another, and againſt many, if not all thoſe that ſuffer'd for that Crime. As for Example: When G. B. was tried, ſeven or eight of theſe Confeſſors, ſeverally call'd, ſaid they knew the ſaid B. and ſaw him at a Witch-meeting at the Village, and heard him exhort the Company to pull down the Kingdom of God, and ſet up the Kingdom of the Devil. He deny'd all; yet ſaid he juſtify'd the Judges and Jury in condemning of him: becauſe there were ſo many poſitive Witneſſes againſt him; but ſaid he dy'd by falſe Witneſſes. M C. had to witneſs againſt her two or three of her own Children, and ſeveral Neighbours, that ſaid they were in Confederacy with her in her Witchcraft. A. F. had three of her Children, and ſome of the Neighbours, her own Siſter, and a Servant, who confeſs'd themſelves Witches, and ſaid, ſhe was in Confederacy with them. But alaſs, I am weary with relating Particulars: Thoſe that would ſee more of this kind, let them have recourſe to the Records.

§. 11. By theſe things you may ſee how this matter was carry'd on, viz. chiefly by the Complaints and Accuſations of the Afflicted (Bewitch'd ones, as it was ſuppos'd) and then by the Confeſſions of the Accus'd condemning themſelves and others. Yet Experience ſhew'd, That the more there were apprehended, the more were ſtill afflicted by Satan; and the Number of Confeſſors increaſing, did but increaſe the Number of the Accuſed; and the executing of ſome, made way for the apprehending of others: For ſtill the Afflicted complain'd of being tormented by new Objects, as the former were remov'd. So that thoſe that were concern'd, grew amaz'd at the Number and Quality of the Perſons accus'd, and feared that Satan by his Wiles had enwrapped Innocent Perſons under the Imputation of that Crime. And at laſt, it was evidently ſeen, that there muſt be a Stop put, or the Generation of the Children of God, would fall under that Condemnation. Henceforth therefore the Juries generally acquitted ſuch as were tried, fearing they had gone too far before. And Sir William Phips the Governour, reprieved all that were condemn'd, even the Confeſſors as well as others. And the Confeſſors generally fell off from their Confeſſion, ſome ſaying, They remembred nothing of what they had ſaid; others ſaid, They had belied themſelves and others. Some broke Priſon and ran away, and were not ſtrictly ſearched after. Some acquitted, ſome diſmiſſed, and one way or other, all that had been accuſed, were ſet or left at Liberty. And, altho' had the Times been calm, the Condition of the Confeſſors might have called for a Melius inquirendum; yet, conſidering the Combuſtion and Confuſion this matter had brought us unto, it was thought ſafer to under-do than over-do, eſpecially in matters Capital, where what is once compleated, cannot be retrieved; but what is left at one time, may be corrected at another, upon a Review and clearer Diſcovery of the State of the Caſe. Thus this matter iſſued ſomewhat abruptly.

§. 12. It may be queried, How doth it appear that there was a going too far in this Affair?

A. 1. By the Numbers of the Perſons accus'd, which at length increas'd to about an hundred; and it cannot be imagin'd that in a place of ſo much Knowledge, ſo many in ſo ſmall a compaſs of Land, ſhould ſo abominably leap into the Devil's Lap all at once.

2. The Quality of ſeveral of the Accus'd was ſuch, as did beſpeak better things, and things that accompany Salvation; Perſons, whoſe blameleſs and holy Lives before did teſtifie for them; Perſons that had taken great pains to bring up their Children in the Nurture and Admonition of the Lord; ſuch as we had Charity for, as for our own Souls: And Charity is a Chriſtian Duty commended to us.

3. The Number of the Afflicted daily increaſed until about fifty Perſons were thus vex'd by the Devil. This gave juſt ground to ſuſpect ſome Miſtake, which gave advantage to the Accuſer of the Brethren to make a Breach upon us.

4. It was conſiderable, That Nineteen were executed, and all denied the Crime to the death, and ſome of them were knowing Perſons, and had before this been accounted blameleſs Livers. And, it is not to be imagin'd, but that if all had been guilty, ſome would have had ſo much Tenderneſs, as to ſeek Mercy for their Souls, in the way of Confeſſion and Sorrow for ſuch a Sin. And as for the Condemn'd Confeſſors at the Bar (they being repriev'd) we had no Experience whether they would ſtand to their ſelf-condemning Confeſſions when they came to die.

5. When this Proſecution ceas'd, the Lord ſo chain'd up Satan, that the Afflicted grew preſently well: The Accuſed are generally quiet; and for five years ſince, we have no ſuch Moleſtation by them.

6. It ſways much with me, which I have ſince heard and read, of the like Miſtakes in other Places. As in Suffolk in England, about the year 1645. was ſuch a Proſecution, until they ſaw, that unleſs they put a ſtop, it would bring all into Blood and Confuſion. The like hath been in France, until Nine hundred were put to death. And in ſome other places the like. So that New England is not the only place circumvented by the Wiles of the wicked and wily Serpent in this kind.

Wierus de Præſtigiis Dæmonum, pag. 678. relates, That an Inquiſitor in the Subalpine Valleys, enquir'd after Women-witches, and conſum'd above an hundred in the Flames, and daily made New Offerings to Vulcan of thoſe that needed Hellebore more than Fire. Until the Countrey-People roſe, and by force of Arms hinder'd him, and referr'd the matter to the Biſhop. Their Husbands, Men of good Faith, affirmed, that in that very time, they ſaid of them, that they had play'd and danc'd under a Tree, they were in Bed with them.

In Chelmsford in Eſſex, Anno 1645. there were thirty try'd at once before Judge Coniers, and fourteen of them hang'd, and an hundred more detain'd in ſeveral Priſons in Suffolk and Eſſex.

As to our Caſe at Salem, I conceive it proceeded from ſome miſtaken Principles: As, that Satan cannot aſſume the Shape of an Innocent Perſon, and in that Shape do miſchief to the Bodies and Eſtates of Mankind: and that the Devil, when he doth harm to Perſons in their Body or Eſtate, it is (at leaſt, moſt commonly, generally and frequently) by the help of our Neighbour, ſome Witch in covenant with the Devil; and that when the Party ſuſpected looks on the Parties ſuppos'd to be bewitch'd, and they are thereupon ſtruck down into a Fit, as if ſtruck with a Cudgel, it is a Proof of ſuch a Covenant. Cum multis aliis.

The worthy Author, from whoſe Manuſcript I have tranſcrib'd this Narrative, does there confute theſe miſtaken Principles; and in his confuting of one, viz. That if the Party ſuſpected appear in Spectre to the Afflicted, and the Afflicted give a Blow with Knife, Sword, &c. (or ſome other on their behalf) and the Spectre ſeems wounded or Bleeding, or to have their Garment torn by the Blow receiv'd; and the party Spectrally repreſented, be preſently ſearched, and there is found upon their Body a Wound or Blood, even on the ſame part of their Body, or a Rent on the ſame part of the Garment which appeared on the Spectre to the Afflicted, this hath been accounted a ſtrong Evidence to prove the Party ſuſpected to be a Confederate with Satan in afflicting the Complainer. He hath divers notable Paſſages. One of them is this:

'The Perſon or Garment ſo repreſented to the Afflicted by the Spectre, was wounded, or bleeding, or cut, or rent before: And the Devil knowing this, repreſents to the Afflicted that part of the Spectre which anſwers to the Body wounded, or Garment rent; and then the Searchers finding ſuch Wounds upon, or Rents about the Perſon ſuſpected, are ready to conclude it was done by the Stroke at the Spectre, which was done before. There was at Chelmſford an afflicted Perſon, that in her Fits cried out againſt a Woman, a Neighbour, which Mr. Clark, the Miniſter of the Goſpel there, could not believe to be guilty of ſuch a Crime. And it hapned, while that Woman milked her Cow, the Cow ſtruck her with one Horn upon the Forehead, and fetch'd Blood: And while ſhe was thus bleeding, a Spectre in her Likeneſs appear'd to the Party afflicted; who pointing at the Spectre, one ſtruck at the place, and the Afflicted ſaid, You have made her Forehead bleed! Hereupon ſome went unto the Woman, and found her Forehead bloody, and acquainted Mr. Clark with it; who forthwith went to the Woman, and ask'd, How her Forehead became bloody? and ſhe anſwer'd, By a Blow of the Cows Horn, as aboveſaid: Whereby he was ſatisfy'd, That it was a Deſign of Satan to render an innocent Perſon ſuſpected.

Another Inſtance was at Cambridge about 40 years ſince. 'There was a Man much troubled in the Night with Cats, or the Devil in their Likeneſs, haunting of him. Whereupon he kept a Light burning, and a Sword by him as he lay in Bed; for he ſuſpected a Widow-Woman to ſend theſe Cats or Imps, by Witchcraft, to bewitch him. And one Night as he lay in Bed, a Cat, or Imp, came within his Reach, and he ſtruck her on the Back: and upon Enquiry, he heard this Widow had a ſore Back. This confirm'd his Suſpicion of the Widow, he ſuppoſing it came from the Wound he gave the Cat. But Mr. Day, the Widow's Chirurgeon, clear'd the matter; ſaying, this Widow came to him, and complain'd of a Sore in her Back, and deſir'd his Help, and he found it to be a Boyl, and ripen'd and heal'd it as he us'd to do other Boyls. But while this was in cure, the ſuppos'd Cat was wounded, as is already rehears'd. Again, I knew a Woman that was Spectrally repreſented unto an Afflicted Maid, who complain'd that ſhe was in ſuch a part of the Room; whereupon one ſtruck at it with his Rapier in the Scabbard, and the afflicted ſaid, You have rent her Gown in ſuch a Place, and her Gown is green. Afterwards this Woman was obſerv'd when apprehended, to have that green Gown on (which doubtleſs ſhe would not have worn then, if ſhe had known any thing of its being rent, by ſtriking at her Spectre) and there was found a Rent ſow'd up, juſt in the place the Afflicted had ſaid it was torn by the Scabbard in the ſame manner. I afterward ask'd this Woman how her Gown came ſo torn: She anſwer'd, by going into ſuch a Yard about a Year before, and ſuch an one knew it to be ſo.

The Author elſewhere ſpeaking of another miſtaken Principle, takes occaſion to mention the following Paſſage.

'I remember, when there was a great Diſcourſe about Witches, a very holy Man heard his Wife ſay, ſhe deſir'd a Sucking Pig: and he going to a Neighbour's Houſe, ſaw a Sow with a Litter of Pigs, and took a Fancy to one of them in particular for his Wife, and asked the Owner for that Pig. The Owner denied him: Hereupon he went away in a great Paſſion, very unſuitable to ſuch a Perſon; and that very Pig left its Dam and Company, and followed this Man to his home. This was obſerved, and it was ſuppoſed Satan might have ſome hand in it; taking advantage upon the Paſſion of ſo good a Man, to render him ſuſpected by ſuch an Accident, if he could.

Upon the whole, the Author ſpends whole Chapters to prove that there yet is a Witch: and he gives this Definition of one, viz. a Perſon, 'that having the free uſe of Reaſon, doth knowingly and willingly ſeek and obtain of the Devil, or of any other God, beſides the true God Jehovah, an Ability to do or know ſtrange things, or things which he cannot by his own Humane Abilities arrive unto. This Perſon is a Witch.

But thus much for that Manuſcript.

AN APPENDIX.

A Token for the Children of NEW-ENGLAND.

OR,

Some Examples of Children in whom the Fear of God was remarkably Budding before they died; in ſeveral Parts of NEW-ENGLAND. Preſerved and Publiſhed, for the Encouragement of PIETY in other Children.

IF the Children of New-England ſhould not with an early Piety, ſet themſelves to know and Serve the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the God of their Fathers, they will be condemn'd, not only by the Examples of pious Children in other parts of the World, the publiſh'd and printed Accounts whereof have been brought over hither; but there have been Exemplary Children in the midſt of New-England it ſelf, that will riſe up againſt them for their Condemnation. It would be a very profitable thing to our Children, and highly acceptable to all the Godly Parents of the Children, if, in Imitation of the Excellent Janoway's Token for Children, there were made a true Collection of Notable Things, Exemplified in the Lives and Deaths of many amongſt us, whoſe Childhood have been ſignaliz'd for what is Vertuous and Laudable.

In the Church-Hiſtory of New-England there will be found the Lives of many Eminent Perſons, among whoſe Eminencies, not the leaſt, was Their fearing of the Lord from their youth, and their being loved by the Lord when they were Children.

But among the many other Inſtances, of a Childhood and Youth deliver'd from Vanity, by ſerious Religion, which New England has afforded, theſe few have particularly been preſerved.

EXAMPLE I.

LIttle more than Thirteen Years old was John Clap of Scituate when he dy'd; but it might very truly be ſaid of him, That while he was yet young, he began to ſeek after the God of his Father. From his very Infancy he diſcover'd a ſingular Delight in the Holy Scripture, whereby he was made wiſe unto Salvation; and he alſo made himſelf yet further Amiable by his Obedience to his Parents, and his Courteſie to all his Neighbours. As he grew up, he ſignaliz'd his Concern for Eternity, not only by his diligent Attendance upon both Publick and Private Catechiſing, but alſo by the like attendance on the Miniſtry of the Word, which he would ponder, and apply, and confer about, with much Diſcretion of Soul, and pray for the good Effect thereof upon his own Soul. Yea, 'twas even from his Childhood obſervable in him, that ever after he began to ſpeak reaſonably, he would both affectionately regard the Family-Prayers, and likewiſe, both Morning and Evening, with a moſt unweary'd Conſtancy recommend himſelf by his own Prayers unto the Mercies of God.

Arriving higher in his Age, he was very conſcientious of his Duty, both to God and Man; and particularly careful of his Father's Buſineſs, which now became his own Calling. At Work with his Father in the Field, he would frequently be propounding of Queſtions, by the Anſwers whereof he might be promoted in the knowledge of God: and at the ſeaſons which others uſually employ to vain purpoſes, he would be abounding in the Exerciſes of Devotion. But of all the imitable things to be ſeen in him, he was exemplary for nothing more than his Endeavours in Preparation for, and Sanctification of, the Lord's Day. Yea, his Parents have affirmed, that for a year or two before he dy'd. They never heard an unprofitable Word come out of his Mouth; but he would often bewail the Idle, Trifling, Vain Diſcourſes of other People.

About a Year and a half before he died, the good Spirit of God, bleſs'd him with yet a more thorow Conviction of his Miſery by reaſon of Sin both Original and Actual: Whence, tho' he had been ſuch a Pattern of Innocency, yet he would aggravate his own Sinfulneſs with Lamentations truly extraordinary. And for his Relief againſt the Terrors of God, wherewith he was now diſtracted, he was brought unto an utter Deſpair of his own Righteouſneſs and Abilities; but in this condition he came to adore the Grace of God, offering a JESUS who is able to ſave unto the uttermoſt: In his Longings to enjoy the Love of God through Jeſus, he was like the Hart panting after the Water brooks!

The Wounds of his Spirit were accompanied with a Languiſhing and Conſuming of his Fleſh; yet with great Patience he endur'd the Hand of God, and he follow'd the Lord with Prayers, with Cries, with Tears, for the Manifeſtation of the Divine Love unto him.

It was alſo obſerv'd and admir'd, that when he was abroad at the publick Worſhip in the time of his Weakneſs, he would ſtand the whole time of the long Exerciſes, and be ſo affectionately attentive, that one might ſee every Sentence utter'd in thoſe Exerciſes, make ſome Impreſſion upon him. The beſt Chriſtians in the place profeſs'd themſelves made aſham'd by the Fervency of this young Diſciple! And in Days of Publick Humiliations, or Thankſgivings, kept with regard unto the general Circumſtances of the Countrey, he would bear his part with ſuch a ſenſe of the publick Troubles or Mercies, as argu'd more than a common meaſure of a publick Spirit in him.

The Miniſter of the Place viſiting of him, after Sickneſs had confin'd him, found him in an extream Dejection of Soul; his very Body ſhook through his Fear leſt the Day of Grace were over with him; yet juſtifying of God, though he ſhould be for ever caſt among the Damned. But yet his Fears were accompany'd with Hopes in the all-ſufficient Merits of the bleſſed Jeſus: in which Hopes he continu'd, uſing all the means of Grace according to his Capacity and Lamenting after thoſe whereof he was not Capable.

A Month before he dy'd, he kept his Bed; the Firſt Fortnight whereof he was very comfortleſs, and yet very patient; abounding all this while in Gracious Admonitions unto other Young People, that they would be concern'd for their own Eternal Salvation. And you ſhould not now have heard him complain, that he wanted Health and Eaſe, though he did ſo; but that he wanted Faith, and Peace, and Chriſt: Yet expreſſing a profound Submiſſion to the Will of God. But in the Laſt Fortnight of his Life, this poor Child of God had his weary Soul more comfortably ſatiated with the Promiſes of the new Covenant. God fill'd him with a marvellous Aſſurance of his Love, and ſo ſeal'd him with his own Spirit, that he rejoic'd with Joy unſpeakable and full of Glory. He would often be ſaying, Whom have I in Heaven but thee? And there is none on Earth that I deſire beſides thee: My Fleſh and my Heart faileth, but God is the Strength of my Heart, and my Portion for ever. And, I know that my Redeemer lives, and that he ſhall ſtand at the Latter day upon the earth. And, If I live, I ſhall live unto the Lord; if I die, I ſhall die unto the Lord; and whether I Live or Die, I am the Lord's. And, When Chriſt, who is my Life, ſhall appear, then ſhall I alſo appear with him in Glory. He would profeſs that his Communion with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, was inexpreſſible, and the Spectators judg'd his Conſolations to be as great as could be born in a mortal Body. Being now asked, whether the Thoughts of dying troubled him or not? He reply'd, No, Death is no Terrour to me, becauſe Chriſt has taken away my Sin, which is the Sting of Death. But being ask'd, Whether he was willing to live? He anſwer'd, I am willing to ſubmit unto the Will of God; but if God hath appointed me to Life, I deſire I may live to his Glory. And being asked, whether God had put out of doubt, his Intereſt in a dying and riſing Jeſus? He return'd, Yes; and God has fully anſwer'd my Deſires; I am now going to a thouſand times better World. He told his Mother, I love you as dearly as my own Life; yet I had rather die, and be with Chriſt.

He continu'd Six Days with his Teeth ſo ſhut, as that they could not be open'd: and for the firſt Three Days and Nights he took no Suſtenance; afterwards, though this but ſeldom, he ſuck'd in between his Teeth nothing but a little Cold Water; in which time, they that laid their Ears to his Lips could over hear him continually expreſſing his Comfort in God. But juſt before his Death, his Teeth were open'd; when he would often ſay, Oh! how precious is the Blood of Chriſt, it is worth more than a thouſand Worlds! and often pray, Come, Lord Jeſus, come quickly! and at laſt, he gave up himſelf to God in thoſe Words, Lord Jeſus, receive my Spirit. He deſired his Mother to turn his Face unto the Wall; whereupon ſhe ſaid, John, doſt thou now remember Hezekiah*'s turning his Face unto the Wall?* He ſaid, Yes, I do remember it: and as ſhe turn'd him in her Arms, he ſo quietly breath'd his Soul into the Arms of his bleſſed Saviour.

Extracted out of the Account written and printed by Mr. Witheral and Mr. Baker, Miniſters of Scituate; and Prefac'd by Mr. Urian Okes, who takes that occaſion to ſay of this John Clap, He was a young old Man, full of Grace, though not full of Days.

EXAMPLE. II.

MR. Thomas Thornton, the aged and faithful Paſtor of Yarmouth, was bleſs'd with a Daughter nam'd Priſcilla, which at the Age of Eleven, left this World, having firſt given Demonſtrations of an Exemplary Piety.

She was one remarkably grave, devout, ſerious; very inquiſitive about the matters of Eternity; and in her particular Calling very diligent. She was nevertheleſs troubled with ſore Temptations and Exerciſes about the State of her own Soul; the Anguiſh of her Spirit, about her Body of Death, caus'd her to pour out many Tears and Prayers; and ſhe preſs'd, That ſome other pious Children of her acquaintance might with her keep a Day of Humiliation together, That (as ſhe expreſſed it) they might get power againſt their ſinful Natures. But it pleaſed God at length to bleſs the Words of her Godly Mother, for the quieting of her Mind. It was her ſingular Happineſs, that ſhe had ſuch Godly Parents; but it was her Opinion and Expreſſion, We truſt too much to the Prayers of our Parents, whereas we ſhould pray for our ſelves.

At laſt ſhe fell mortally ſick. In the beginning of her Sickneſs, ſhe was afraid of dying: For, ſaid ſhe, I know of no Promiſe to encourage me. She could not but own that ſhe had in ſome meaſure walked with God; yet ſhe complained, That ſhe had not found God meeting her in her Prayers, and making her Heart willing to be at his Diſpoſe; and that the Pride of her Heart now lay as a Load upon it. She own'd, That ſhe had many Thoughts of Jeſus Chriſt, and that it grieved her that ſhe had ſinned againſt him, who had Done and Dy'd for her.

But many Days were not paſt, before ſhe could profeſs her ſelf willing to die, with ſome Aſſurance of her then going to Eternal Bleſſedneſs. Many Thanks and Loves did ſhe now render to one of her Superiours, declaring, 'twas becauſe they had curb'd her and reſtrain'd her from ſinful Vanities. And ſhe ſaid, Were I now to chooſe my Company, it ſhould be among the People of God; I ſee plainly that they are the only Company. She was not without her Conflicts in this time, wherein one of her Speeches was, 'Damnation, that is 'the worſt thing of all, but Chriſt is of all, the 'beſt: I find it ſo: Chriſt is to me Wiſdom, 'Righteouſneſs, Sanctification and Redemption. She told her Father, ſhe knew ſhe was made up of all manner of Sin; but, ſaid ſhe, 'I hope 'God has humbled me, and pardon'd me in the 'Merits of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Unto her affectionate Mother ſhe ſaid, 'Mother, why do 'you weep, when I am well in my Soul? Well, 'Will you mourn, when I am ſo full of Joy? I 'pray rejoice with me.

When ſhe was extreamly ſpent, ſhe ſaid unto her Parent, 'O my Father, I have been much 'troubled by Satan, but I find Chriſt is too hard 'for him, and Sin and all. She now ſaid, I know now that I ſhall die. And being ask'd whether ſhe were afraid of Death, with a ſweet Smile ſhe replied, No, not I; Chriſt is better than Life! And ſo ſhe continu'd in a moſt joyful frame till ſhe died; a little before which, it being the Lord's Day, ſhe ask'd what time of the day 'twas, and when they told her, 'twas Three of the clock, ſhe reply'd, What? Is the Sabbath almoſt done? Well, my Eternal Sabbath is going to begin, wherein I ſhall enjoy all Felicity, and ſing Hallelujahs to all Eternity. And hereupon ſhe quickly fell aſleep in the Lord.

EXAMPLE. III.

MR. Nathanael Mather dy'd Oct. 17. 1688. at the age of Nineteen; an Inſtance of more than common Learning and Vertue. On his Grave-ſtone at Salem, there are theſe Words deſervedly inſcribed, The Aſhes of an hard Student, a good Scholar, and a great Chriſtian.

He was one who uſed an extraordinary Diligence to obtain Skill in the ſeveral Arts that made an accompliſh'd Scholar; but he was more diligent in his Endeavours to become an experienc'd Chriſtian.

He did with much of Solemnity enter into Covenant with God when he was about fourteen years old, and afterwards he renew'd that ſolemn Action in ſuch a Form as this:

'I do renounce all the Vanities and wretched 'Idols and evil Courſes of the World.

'I do chooſe, and will ever have the Great 'God for my beſt Good, my laſt End, my only 'Lord. He ſhall be the Only One, in the glorifying and enjoying of whom ſhall be my Wel'fare, and in the ſerving of whom ſhall be my 'Work.

'I will ever be rendring unto the Lord Jeſus 'Chriſt my proper Acknowledgements, as unto my 'Prieſt, my Prophet, and my King; and the 'Phyſician of my Soul.

'I will ever be ſtudying what is my Duty in 'theſe things; and wherein I find my ſelf to fall 'ſhort, I will ever count it my Grief and Shame; 'and betake my ſelf to the Blood of the Ever'laſting Covenant.

'Now, humbly imploring the Grace of the 'Mediator to be ſufficient for me, I do as a fur'ther Solemnity hereunto ſubſcribe my Name 'with both Heart and Hand.

Having done this, he did for the reſt of his Life, walk with much Watchfulneſs and Exactneſs.

One of the Directories which he drew up for himſelf, was This:

'O that I might lead a Spiritual Life! Where'fore let me regulate my Life by the Word of God 'and by ſuch Scriptures as theſe.

'1. For regulating my Thoughts, Jer. 4. 14. Iſa. 55. 7. Mal. 3. 17. Pſal. 104. 34. Phil. 4. 8. Prov. 23. 26. Deut. 15. 9. Eccleſ. 10. 20. Prov. 24. 9. Mat. 9. 4. Zech. 8. 17.

'2. For regulating my Affections, Col. 3. 2, 5. Gal. 5. 24. For my Delight, Pſal. 1. 2. Pſal. 37. 5. For my Joy, Phil. 4 4. Pſal. 43 4. My Deſire, Iſa. 26. 8, 9. Ezek. 7. 16. My Love, Mat. 22. 37. Pſal 119. 97. My Hatred, Pſal. 97. 10. My Fear, Luke 12. 4, 5. My Hope, Pſal. 39. 7. My Truſt, Pſal. 62. 8. Iſa. 26. 4.

'3. For regulating my Speech, Eph. 4 29. Col. 4. 6. Deut. 6. 6, 7. Pſal. 119. 46. Pſal. 71. 8, 24. Prov. 31. 26.

'4 For regulating my Work, Tit. 3. 8. 2 Tim. 2. 12. 1 Tim. 5. 10. Tit. 2. 14. Mat. 5. 47. 1 Tim. 6. 8. Rev. 3. 2. Rom. 13. 12. Acts 26. 20.

Another of his Directories was form'd into an Hymn.

'Lord, what ſhall I return unto
'Him from whom all my Mercies flow?
'(I.) To me to live, it Chriſt ſhall be;
'For all I do, I'll do for Thee.

'(II.) My Queſtion ſhall be oft beſide,
'How thou mayſt moſt be glorify'd?
'(III.) I will not any creature love;
'But in the Love of Thee above.

(IV.) Thy Will I will embrace for mine,
'And every Management of thine
'Shall pleaſe me. (V.) A Conformity
'To thee, ſhall be my Aim and Eye.

'(VI.) Ejaculations ſhall aſcend
'Not ſeldom from me. (VII.) I'll attend
'Occaſional Reflections, and
'Turn all to Gold that comes to hand.

'(VIII.) And in particular among
'My Cares, I'll try to make my Tongue
'A Tree of Life, by ſpeaking all
'As be accountable who ſhall.

'(IX.) But laſt, nay, firſt of all I will,
'Thy Son my Surety make, and ſtill
'Implore him that he would me bleſs
'With Strength as well as Righteouſneſs.

He would alſo keep whole Days of Prayer and Praiſe, by himſelf: And he would ſet himſelf to conſider much on that Queſtion, What ſhall I do for God?

He was much in Meditation, and often wrote the chief Heads of his Meditation. He would read the Scripture with a Note, and a Wiſh fetched out of every Verſe. And at Night he would aſk,

I. What has God's Mercy to me been this day?
II. What has my Carriage to God been this day?
III. If I die this Night, is my immortal Spirit ſafe?

Many more ſuch imitable things are in the Hiſtory of his Life (divers times printed at London) reported of him.

EXAMPLE. IV.

ANNE GREENOUGH, the Daughter of Mr. William Greenough, left the World, when ſhe was but about five years old, and yet gave aſtoniſhing Diſcoveries of a Regard unto God and Chriſt, and her own Soul, before ſhe went away. When ſhe heard any thing about the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, ſhe would be ſtrangely tranſported, and raviſhed in her Spirit at it; and had an unſpeakable Delight in Catechiſing. She would put ſtrange Queſtions about Eternal Things, and make Anſwers her ſelf that were extreamly pertinent. Once particularly ſhe asked, Are not we dead in Sin; and preſently added, But I will take this way: the Lord Jeſus Chriſt ſhall make me a'ive. She was very frequent and conſtant in Secret Prayer, and could not with any Patience be interrupted in it. She told her gracious Mother, That ſhe there prayed for her! And was covetous of being with her Mother, when ſhe imagin'd ſuch Duties to be going forward. When ſhe fell ſick at laſt of a Conſumption, ſhe would not by Sports be diverted from the Thoughts of Death, wherein ſhe took ſuch pleaſure, that ſhe did not care to hear of any thing elſe. And if ſhe were asked, Whether ſhe were willing to die? She would ſtill chearfully reply, Ay, by all means, that I may go to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

EXAMPLE V.

AT Boſton, 12 d. 3 m. 1694. there died one Daniel Williams, in the Eighteenth year of his Age.

There was a Collection made of ſome of his dying Speeches.

Being asked, Whether he loved God, he replied, Yes, I love him dearly; for, Lord, whom have I in Heaven but thee?

He ſaid, 'God has promis'd, They that ſeek him early, ſhall find him: Ever ſince I was a Child, I dedicated my ſelf to ſeek and ſerve the Lord. Though I have not had ſo much time as ſome others, yet that little time which I had, I ſpent in waiting on, and wreſtling with God by Prayer: and I ſaid, I will not let thee go, till thou haſt bleſſed me.

Seeing ſome of his Relations weep, he ſaid, Why do you cry, when I am ready to ſing for joy?

They ſaying, They knew not how to part with him, he reply'd, Why? are you not willing I ſhould go to my heavenly Father? I ſhall quickly be with my heavenly Father, and with his holy Angels, where they are ſinging of Hallelujahs. It is better being there than here. When I am there, I ſhan't wiſh my ſelf here in this troubleſome World again. I have a Deſire to depart, and to be with Chriſt, which is beſt of all.

He was much concerned for poor periſhing Souls. He would ſay, 'Oh, that I had but 'Strength! How would I pray, and ſigh, and 'cry to God for the poor World that lives in Sin 'and Pride!

He expreſſed himſelf moſt pathetically to his Relations, when he took his leave of them.

At laſt, he asked, What Angel that was that he ſaw before him? Well, ſaid he, I ſhall quickly be with him: Come, Lord Jeſus, come quickly!

A Friend asking him how he did, he ſaid, 'I am one bound for Heaven: I would not 'have you pray for my Life; I am afraid 'you do.

On the day of his Death, being full of pain, he ſaid, 'Jeſus Chriſt bore more than this, and 'he died for me; and ſhall I be afraid to die, 'and go to him? No, I am not.

Then ſaid he, O Death, where is thy Sting! O Grave, where is thy Victory!

The INTRODUCTION.

IF any one would draw the Picture of of the Church, (ſaith Luther) Let him take a ſilly poor Maid, ſitting in a Wilderneſs, compaſſed about with hungry Lions, Wolves, Boars and Bears, and all manner of Cruel and Hurtful Beaſts; and in the midſt of many Furious Men aſſaulting her every Moment: For this is her Condition in the World. Behold that Picture of the Church Exemplified in the Story of New-England, and now Writ under it, Having obtained help from God, ſhe continues to this Day.

But before I have done my Work, I ſhould remember, without having Pliny for my Remembrancer, Ingenuum eſt Confiteri per quos profeceris. Indeed our Hiſtory of New-England is as little to be compared with Sir Walter Rawleigh*'s Famous* Hiſtory of the World, as New-England it ſelf is to be compared with the Whole World. Nevertheleſs, the Incomparable Colonel Sydney aſſures me, He was ſo well aſſiſted in his Hiſtory of the World, That an ordinary Man with the ſame Helps might have performed the ſame Things. Whereas I muſt in the firſt place humbly Complain of it, that, I believe, ſuch a Work as this was never done with ſo little Aſſiſtance from the Communications of Inquiſitive and Intelligent Friends. Two Reverend Perſons, indeed, namely, Mr. John Higginſon and Mr. William Hubbard, have aſſiſted me, and much obliged me with Informations for many Parts of our Hiſtory; and I have a Parent alſo, who has often, to full Satisfaction, anſwered many things that I have therein had occaſion to be asking after. Some other particular Perſons have ſometimes favoured me with Memorable Paſſages, which they knew concerning their own Relations; and yet I know that many will ungratefully complain of me for not Inſerting of things which they never ſent me, tho' they had an early Advertiſement of my Undertaking: Yea, the Abſurd and Brutiſh Treats which I have ſometimes had from the Relations of ſome whoſe Lives and Names I have heretofore, unto the beſt of my Capacity, Eternized in Compoſures already Publiſhed, have cauſed me to know that there are Baſe People deſcended from Good ones. But every Undertaking of this Nature being Expenſive; 'tis highly Reaſonable that I ſhould make a Publick and Thankful mention of thoſe Worthy Perſons who have generouſly expreſſed their good Will to my Endeavours, by bearing ſome of the Expences which this Work hath called for. Our Honourable Lieutenant Governour, WILLIAM STOUGHTON, Eſq; the Worſhipful Samuel Sewal, Eſq; the Worſhipful John Foſter, Eſq; the Worſhipful Adam Winthrop, Eſq; and my good Friends, Mr. Robert Bronſdon, and Mr. Samuel Lilly; are thoſe that have kindly Mecenated theſe my Labours: May their Names be found Written in the Lamb's Book of Life, as well as ours!

After all, and above all, I muſt not incur that Rebuke, Deus hic nihil fecit! I do on the Bended Knees of my Soul give Thanks to the Lord JESUS CHRIST, thro' whom ſtrengthening of me, I have done all that I have done. Bleſs that Lord, O my Soul, and all that is within me, Bleſs his Holy Name!

CHAP. I.

Mille Nocendi Artes: Or, Some General Heads of TEMPTATION with which the CHURCHES of NEW-ENGLAND have been Exerciſed.

Habet & Eccleſia Dies Caniculares. Tert.

§. 1. IT is Written concerning our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, That he was led into the Wilderneſs to be Tempted of the Devil; and the People of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, led into the Wilderneſs of New-England, have not only met with a continual Temptation of the Devil there; the Wilderneſs having always had Serpents in it; but alſo they have had in almoſt every new Luſtre of Years, a new Aſſault of Extraordinary Temptation upon them; a more than Common Hour and Power of Darkneſs. Beſides the general Diſturbances which were given unto the Minds of Men, when the Eccleſiaſtical Controverſies, which called for Synods to Compoſe them, were generally agitated; there have been ſucceſſive Days of Temptation, relating to the Poſture of Things in the Commonwealth. Sometimes the Conteſtations about the Negative, have made us too nigh the denying of Reaſon to one another: Sometimes the Meaſures of Compliance with Demands from the other Side of the Water, have occaſioned ſome Fire of Contention among us. And there have been ſucceſſively many Days of Temptation, in this and that particular Plantation throughout the Country: One while the Rebuilding and Removing of Meeting Houſes, has unfitted the Neighbours for lifting up of Pure Hands without Wrath in thoſe Houſes: One while the Encloſing of Commons, hath made Neighbours, that ſhould have been like Sheep, to Bite and Devour one another; and one while the Diſpoſal of little Matters in the Militia, has made People almoſt ready to fall upon one another with Force of Arms. It is to be added, there ſcarce ever was any One Great Man engaged much in the Service of this People, but the People have at ſome time or other made it an Extraordinary Day of Temptation for that Man. And ſometimes little Piques between ſome Leading Men in a Town, have miſled all the Neighbours far and near into moſt unaccountable Party-making. Reader, every Clauſe that thou haſt hitherto read in this Paragraph, is a Subject upon which my Obſervant Country-men can give themſelves an Ample Hiſtory; and unto their own Reflections I leave it, with the Confeſſions which the Synods in the Primitive Times often (and I think, too often) made, Peccavimus Omnes!

§. 2. There have been in the Country, on the one ſide, Rigid and High-flown Presbyterians, on the other ſide, Separating, Morellian, and Browniſtical Independents: And not only have both of theſe had ſuch a Jealous Eye upon one another, as has produced much Temptation unto both but alſo the true Congregational Man, aſſerting the Authority of the Presbytery, and yet not rejecting the Liberty of, the Fraternity, maintaining the Deciſive Power of Synods, and yet leaving to Particular lar Churches the management of their own Particular Affairs, with a Power of Self-Preſervation and Self-Reformation; theſe have, between both, met with ſuch things as have had no little Temptation in them. One of our Magiſtrates, namely, Major-General Deniſon, has written an Irenicum, relating to theſe Differences, which has a Good Spirit breathing in it; whereas there have been Perſons among us which would make one think of Dr. Sibs's memorable Words; When Blindneſs and Boldneſs, Ignorance and Arrogance, Weakneſs and Wilfulneſs meet together in One, it renders Men Odious to God, Burdenſome in Society, Dangerous in their Counſels, Troublers of better Deſigns, Untractable and Uncapable of better Direction, Miſerable in the Iſſue. Between ſuch Violent Perſons on both Extreams, the truly Moderate have ſometimes been ſo cruſht, that they have thought themſelves, with Ignatius, between the Teeth which would have Ground them, to be made Manchet for Heaven: For it has not at all times been the Good Hap of all Men to believe with Ambroſe of Old, Si Virtutum Finis ille ſit maximus, qui Plurimorum ſpectat Profectum, Moderatio prope Omnium eſt Pulcherrima. Yea, ſo Violent once was one of theſe Factions, that in a General Court of a Colony they Exhibited a certain Inſtrument, wherein the Miniſters of the Churches indefinitely were charged with A Declenſion from Primitive Foundation-Work, Innovation in Doctrine and Worſhip, Opinion and Practice, Invaſion of the Rights, Liberties and Priviledges of Churches, Uſurpation of a Lordly Prelatical Power over God's Heritage, and the like things, which are the Leaven, the Corrupting Gangreen, the Infecting, Spreading Plague, the Provoking Images of Jealouſie ſet up before the Lord, the Accurſed Thing which hath provoked Divine Wrath, and further threatens Deſtruction. Even Good Men have terribly and openly, at this rate, charged one another:

Tantæ ne Animis Cœleſtibus Iræ?

§. 3. If the Miniſters in this Country, from the very beginning of it, might have their Complaints heard, they would complain of extream Temptation attending them in the Buſineſs of their Maintenance. The People being, as one of the Ancients expreſſes it, πρὸς τὰ θεῖα μικρολογούμενοι, have many times been content, that their Paſtors be accounted rather the Stars than the Lamps of the Churches, provided, like the Stars, they would Shine without the Supply of any Earthly Contributions unto them. All the Proviſion hitherto made for the Maintenance of the Miniſtry, has been this: That while many Miniſters chuſe to leave their Salaries unto the Voluntary Contributions of the People, who upon the Firſt Day of the Week make their Collections, as the Apoſtles directed the Primitive Churches to do; there are other Miniſters, who (ſenſible of what the great Voetius Writes, Hominum ſæpe tanta eſt Injuſtitia, Fallacia, Lubricitas, Profanitas, ut expediat Contractum intercedere,) make their Contracts with the People at their firſt coming among them, or, perhaps, from Year to Year, for certain Stipends; and though the Stipends, by theſe Contracts engaged, are uſually ſmall enough; yet by bad Payments, (which are in the Country known by the Name of Synecdoctrical Pay, being a certain Figure in our Avaritious and Sacrilegious Rhetoric, by which there paſſes, pars pro Toto,) they are uſually made much ſmaller; nevertheleſs, if any ſhould go to take the Remedy which the Law gives him for the Recovery of his Arrearages, he would find the Remedy much worſe than the Diſeaſe, and by uſing the Law, wound all his future Succeſs in Preaching the Goſpel. Rabbi Tarphon, (who was probably the Tryphon, with whom Juſtin Martyr had his Famous Diſputations,) was called, הכהו העשי ר The Wealthy Prieſt. But ſuch a ſight has been much a Stranger in any of our Chriſtian Synagogues.

The National Synods, in the French Churches, were often put upon renewing of Declarations, like that at Poictiers; The Conſiſtories of the Reſpective Churches ſhall be adviſ'd, that for the time to come they do better diſcharge their Duty towards their Miniſters, by ſuccouring them in their Neceſſities, and raiſing Maintenance for them and their Families, becauſe Forreign Countries have been exceedingly Scandalized at the Neglect and Ingratitude of divers Churches, even in this particular: And like that at Paris; A Miniſter complaining of his Churches Ingratitude, the Provincial Synod ſhall take Cogniſance thereof, weighing diligently the Poverty of the Church, and the Temporal Eſtate of the Miniſter; and in caſe that Church be guilty of very Great and Notorious Ingratitude, the Synod ſhall have full Power to remove him for his better Accommodation elſewhere; and all the Churches ſhall be deſired to ſhun Ingratitude unto their Miniſters (a Sin too rife among us) and to take ſpecial Care that they be more reſpected, and their Labours better rewarded; not to enrich or fatten them, but to give them a becoming and a ſufficient Maintenance: And like that at Montauban; Foraſmuch as the Ingratitude of divers Perſons in not contributing to their Miniſters Subſiſtence, is more Notorious than ever, and that this crying Sin threatens the Churches with a Total Diſſipation; after Mature Deliberation, we do Decree, That in caſe theſe ungrateful Wretches, having been ſeveral times admoniſhed by their Conſiſtory, do perſiſt obſtinately in this their Sin, their Conſiſtory ſhall deprive them of Communion with the Church in the Sacraments. The Crime of Ingratitude unto their Miniſters in the French Churches, has been too frequent in the New-Engliſh; but with this Difference, that here no Synods ever did, as there the Synods often did, with juſt

Corrections Animadvert upon it. The beſt Miniſters of New-England have generally been Calviniſts, in reſpect of that Contempt of Riches which the Great Calvin expreſſed, when he wrote, Clara Voce pronunciavimus, Epiſcopum Furem eſſe, qui ex Opibus Eccleſiaſticis; plus in Uſum ſuum convertit, quam, quod neceſſe eſt ad Sobriam frugalemq; vitam Suſtinendum: Teſtati ſumus, Eccleſiam peſſimo veneno tentatam eſſe, dum tanta Opum affluentia Onerati ſunt Paſtores, quæ ipſos poſtea obrueret; Conſilium dedimus ut Miniſtris tantum erogaretur, quantum ad frugalitatem Ordine ſuo Dignam ſufficeret, non quod ad Luxum rendundaret. But they have not all enjoyed the Competent and Moderate Subſiſtence, which would thus have well contented them; while the Law has exempted them from Taxes, they have in Reality been Taxed above any one Rank of Men whatſoever; nor does any but the Lord Jeſus Chriſt know the Temptation that many of them have endured, when they have been cheated of the Dues promiſed unto them, and when a Res Anguſta Domi has broken their Spirits, and hindred their Studies, and ruined the Liberal Education of their Families. Antigonus wondring to ſee that Studious Philoſopher Cleanthes grinding his own Corn at the Mill, Cleanthes told him, I muſt either Grind, or Starve: Whereupon Antigonus noted it as a great Indignity, That the Hands whereby Excellent things had been Written, ſhould be galled with Mechanick Labours. But New-England hath often cauſed the Hands which Baptized its People, and broke the Bread of Life unto them, to be Galled with Inferiour Labours for the getting of Bread; they muſt either Plough or Starve. The People have uſually pretended their Poverty as the Cauſe of their thus withholding more than is meet; but it would be a Scriptural, and therefore a Rational Concluſion, if they ſhould conclude, that their thus withholding more than is meet has been one Moral Cauſe of their Poverty. However, there has been the Wiſdom of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in thus ordering his Miniſters to Preach under the Croſs!

§. 4. Sometimes in this Country there have been Prodigious and Aſtoniſhing Scandals given, by the Extraordinary Miſcarriages of ſome that have made a more than ordinary Profeſſion of Religion; and Incredible Temptation has hereby been laid before the Minds of Multitudes. The Wiſe Man ſays, A Righteous Man falling before the Wicked, is as a Troubled Fountain, and a Corrupt Spring. There have been among us thoſe Perſons who have made ſuch a Profeſſion of Righteouſneſs; that much notice has been taken of them, and others have been ready to think, Surely Chriſtianity is juſt ſuch a thing as the Lives of theſe Men do repreſent it: Now the Falls of theſe Men, before the Wicked among us, have been as a Troubled Fountain and a Corrupt Spring; juſt as if one had thrown Poiſon into the Well that all the Town was to fetch Water at. So were the Heathen of Old Poiſoned, when they ſaid, Chriſtiani Sancte Vixiſſent, ſi Chriſtus Sancta Docuiſſet. Alas, How often have we ſeen this Lamentable thing! Satan, who is often the Executioner of the Wrath of God upon a Sinful World, hath deſired leave to ſingle out ſome High Profeſſors of Religion, and puſh them on to ſome Scandalous Enormities; he hath deſired leave to do the Part of a Devil, it may be, on ſome one Man, that he might Poiſon all the Town by the Falls of that Man. The Dreadful Juſtice of God, who gives none Account of his Matters, has permitted the Experiment; and lo, upon the Experiment, ſome Strict, and, it may be, ſome Old Profeſſor, that had been formerly Troubleſome to all the Sinners in the Neighbourhood; he has not only proved a Covetous, and a Self-ſeeking ſort of a Perſon, in his whole Conduct of himſelf; but ſome Unclean Devil, or ſome Drinking Devil, or ſome Cheating Devil, or ſome Lying Devil, has drawn him to do monſtrous things, and he hath played the Devil horribly! Such Doleful Inſtances hereof there have been among us, as would Poiſon a whole Neighbourhood, yea, a whole Colony, with Atheiſm, if the Lord Jeſus Chriſt had not an Almighty Arm to ſecure his own Religion. Wo hath been to Hundreds of Souls among us for the Offences that have thus been given! The Scandalous Fall of David, is by as Tranſcendent a Myſtery of Divine Sovereignty Recorded, as it was Ordered. Some of the Pagans in the Primitive Times would not be Chriſtians, becauſe David was one of our greateſt Saints, though he did ſuch Damnable things; and many of the Chriſtians would Sin as Damnably as the Pagans, pleading, Si David, cur non & ego? Why may'nt I, as well as David? I believe there are a Million of Men in Hell whoſe Damnation was occaſioned by the Fall of David, though David himſelf be gone to Heaven after all: But perhaps in his Fall, and not in his Riſe again, David has been ſometimes too much follow'd by ſome Eminent Profeſſors of Religion in this Land; and the Land has been fill'd with Temptation by ſo Venemous a Miſchief.

——Quis Talia Fando
Temperet a Lachrymis?

Such as theſe have all along been the more Comprehenſive Temptations that have exerciſed the Churches of New-England. But we will proceed unto an Hiſtory of Troubles more particular.

CHAP. II.

Little Foxes: Or, The Spirit of Rigid Separation in one Remarkable Zealot, vexing the Churches of NEW-ENGLAND; and the Spirit of Giddy Familiſm in another. And ſome Leſſer Controverſies ariſing about The Croſs in the Banner, and about Swearing on the Goſpels.

Hic ſe aperit Diabolus!

§. 1. IT is Remarkable, that in the Sacred Annals of that Matchleſs and Bleſſed Church-Hiſtory, which our God has given us in our Bible, there is a ſpecial Mark often ſet upon the Firſt Perſons that were Eminent in this or that way of Sinning, and were upon that ſcore, The Chief of Sinners; and they who have obſerved this Remarkable, have particularly Marked the Infamous Corah, the Firſt Rebel againſt the Divine Church-Order eſtabliſhed in the Wilderneſs, as one Inſtance to confirm the Obſervation. There are ſome, not thoughtleſs Perſons, who Innumerating the Troubleſome and Scandalous things that have diſturbed us in our New-Engliſh Wilderneſs, have complained of a Crime, which they have diſtinguiſhed by the Name of Corahiſm; or that Ligitious and Levelling Spirit, with which the Separation has been ſometimes Leavened. Now tho' I would chuſe rather to leave a Veil than a Scar upon the Memory of any Perſon, that by his Miſcarriage hath made himſelf too Memorable; yet our Church-Hiſtory will be but an Unfiniſhed Piece, if we do not ſet a Mark upon that Man who was one of the Firſt that made themſelves notable by their Oppoſition to the Church-Order of theſe Plantations; and this we may the more freely do, becauſe of an Injunction upon us, To mark them that cauſe Diviſions.

§. 2. In the Year 1654. a certain Windmill in the Low Countries, whirling round with Extraordinary Violence, by reaſon of a Violent Storm then blowing; the Stone at length by its Rapid Motion became ſo intenſly hot, as to Fire the Mill, from whence the Flames, being diſperſed by the High Winds, did ſet a whole Town on Fire. But I can tell my Reader, that above Twenty Years before this, there was a whole Country in America like to be ſet on Fire by the Rapid Motion of a Windmill, in the Head of one particular Man. Know then, that about the Year 1630. arrived here one Mr. Roger Williams; who being a Preacher that had leſs Light than Fire in him, hath by his own ſad Example, Preached unto us the Danger of that Evil which the Apoſtle mentions in Rom. 10. 2. They have a Zeal, but not according to Knowledge. Upon his Arrival, the Church of Salem invited him to aſſiſt Mr. Skelton in the Charge of their Souls; but the Governour and Council fearing leaſt not only that Church would ſoon come to have nothing of Salem in it, but alſo that the whole Political, as well as Eccleſiaſtical Conſtitution of the Country, would ſuffer by employing a Miniſter of his Character, did adviſe them to deſiſt from Laying Hands too ſuddenly upon him. And that which increaſed in them the Suſpicion of his Ill Character, was partly, indeed, his refuſing to Communicate with the Church of Boſton, becauſe they would not make a Publick and Solemn Declaration of Repentance, for their Communicating with the Church of England, while they were in the Realm of England; (which the New-Engliſh Reformers thought then would be to carry the Matter as far beyond their Senſe, as the Vulgar Tranſlation hath done to the Text in Luke 15. 8. Where, inſtead of Everrit domum, She Swept the Houſe; it reads, Evertit domum, or, She Overſet it:) but partly his violent urging, that the Civil Magiſtrate might not puniſh Breaches of the Firſt Table in the Laws of the Ten Commandments; which Aſſertion, beſides the Door which it opened unto a Thouſand Profanities, by not being duly Limited, it utterly took away from the Authority all Capacity to prevent the Land, which they had purchaſed on Purpoſe for their own Receſs from ſuch things; its becoming ſuch a Sink of Abominations, as would have been the Reproach and Ruin of Chriſtianity in theſe Parts of the World. The Church taking the Advice of their Fathers in the State, on this Occaſion Mr. Williams removed unto Plymouth, where he was accepted as a Preacher for the Two Years enſuing.

§. 3. But at Plymouth his Turbulent and Singular Opinions, not finding the Entertainment which he expected, he deſired a Diſmiſſion back to Salem from them; and they perceiving the Giddy Courſes of Separation, whereto he would Abandon himſelf, and whereby he might Endanger them, wiſely Humour'd what he Deſired. Coming to Salem, in the Time of Mr. Skelton's Illneſs, the Church, Affected with the Fierceneſs of his Talking in Publick, and the Starchtneſs of his Living in Private, ſo far forgat themſelves, as to renew their Invitations unto him to become their Paſtor; and tho' the Government again renewed their Advice unto the People to forbear a thing of ſuch Ill Conſequence, yet they raſhly purſued their Motion, and he quickly accepted it. It happened that ſoon after this, the Church made Suit unto the Court for a parcel of Land, which lay Commodious for their Affairs; but the Court offended at the Slight lately put upon them, delay'd their Grant of what the Church Petitioned for; whereupon, incenſed Mr. Williams Enchants the Church to join with him, in Writing Letters of Admonition unto all the Churches, whereof any of the Magiſtrates were Members, that they might Admoniſh the Magiſtrates of Scandalous Injuſtice for denying this Petition. The Neighbouring Churches, both by Petitions and Meſſengers, took ſuch Happy Pains with the Church of Salem, as preſently recovered that Holy Flock to a Senſe of his Aberrations; which Mr. Williams perceiving, tho' he had a little before bragg'd, That of all the Churches in the World, thoſe of New-England were the pureſt; and of all in New-England, that whereof himſelf was the Teacher; yet he now ſtaying at Home, ſent unto the Church of Salem, then Aſſembled, a Letter, to give them notice, That if they would not ſeparate as well from the Churches of New-England, as of Old, he would ſeparate from them. His more conſiderate Church not yielding to theſe lewd Propoſals, he never would come to their Aſſemblies any more; no, nor hold any Communion in any Exerciſe of Religion with any Perſon, ſo much as his own Wife, that went unto their Aſſemblies; but at the ſame time he kept a Meeting in his own Houſe, whereto reſorted ſuch as he had Infected with his Extravagancies.

§. 4. Theſe things were, indeed, very Diſturbant and Offenſive; but there were Two other things in his Quixotiſm, that made it no longer Convenient for the Civil Authority to remain unconcerned about him. For, Firſt, Whereas the King of England had granted a Royal Charter unto the Governour and Company of this Colony; which Patent was indeed the very Life of the Colony; this Hot-headed Man publickly and furiouſly Preached againſt the Patent, as an Inſtrument of Injuſtice, and preſſed both Rulers and People to be humbled for their Sin in taking ſuch a Patent, and utterly throw it up; on an Inſignificant Pretence of Wrong thereby done unto the Indians, which were the Natives of the Country, therein given to the Subjects of the Engliſh Crown. Secondly, An Order of the Court, upon ſome Juſt Occaſion had been made, That an Oath of Fidelity ſhould be, though not Impoſed upon, yet Offered unto the Freemen, the better to diſtinguiſh thoſe whoſe Fidelity might render them capable of Imployment in the Government: Which Order this Man vehemently withſtood, on a Pernicious Pretence, that it was the Prerogative of our Lord Chriſt alone to have his Office Eſtabliſhed with an Oath; and that an Oath being the Worſhip of God, Carnal Perſons, whereof he ſuppoſed there were many in the Land, might not be put upon it. Theſe Crimes at laſt procured a Sentence of Baniſhment upon him.

§. 5. The Court, about a Year before they proceeded unto the Baniſhment of this Incendiary, ſent for the Paſtors of the Neighbouring Churches, to Intimate unto them their Deſign of thus proceeding againſt him; which yet they were loth to do, before they had Adviſed the Elders of it, becauſe he was himſelf an Elder. Mr. Cotton, with the Conſent of the other Miniſters, preſented a Requeſt unto the Magiſtrates, that they would pleaſe to forbear Proſecuting of him, till they themſelves, with their Churches, had in a Church-way Endeavoured his Conviction and Repentance; for they alledged, that they hoped his Violences proceeded rather from a Miſguided-Conſcience, than from a Seditious Principle. The Governour foretold unto them, You are deceived in the Man, if you think he will Condeſcend to learn of any of you; however the Propoſal of the Miniſters was approved and allowed. But ſeveral of the Churches having taken the beſt Pains they could, tho' they happily brought the Church of Salem to join with them in dealing with the Man, yet the Effect was, that he renounced them all, as no Churches of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Whereupon the Court Ordered his Removal out of the Juriſdiction.

§. 6. One Paſſage that happened at his Trial was a little odd. He complained in open Court, that he was wronged by a Slanderous Report, as if he held it unlawful for a Father to call upon his Child to eat his Meat.

Mr. Hooker then preſent, being moved hereupon to ſpeak ſomething, replied, Why? You will ſay as much again, if you ſtand to your own Principles, or be driven to ſay nothing at all. Mr. Williams expreſſing his Confidence that he ſhould never ſay it; Mr. Hooker proceeded, If it be Unlawful to call an Unregenerate Perſon to Pray, ſince it is an Action of God's Worſhip, then it is Unlawful for your Unregenerate Child to pray for a Bleſſing upon his own Meat. If it be Unlawful for him to Pray for a Bleſſing upon his Meat, it is Unlawful for him to Eat it, for it is Sanctified by Prayer, and without Prayer, Unſanctified: [1 Tim. 4. 4, 5.] If it be Unlawful for him to Eat it, it is Unlawful for you to call upon him to Eat it; for it is Unlawful for you to call upon him to Sin. Hereupon Mr. Williams choſe to hold his Peace, rather than make any Anſwer: Such the Giddineſs, the Confuſion, the Antocatacritie of that Sectarian Spirit. I have read of a Gentleman who had an Humour of making Singular and Fanciful Expoſitions of Scripture; but one Doctor Sim gave him a Doſe of Phyſick, which when it had wrought, the Gentleman became Orthodox immediately, and expounded at the old rate no more. Pity but this Dr. Sim had undertaken the Cure of our Mr. Williams.

§. 7. Upon the Sentence of the Court, Mr. Williams with his Party going abroad (as one ſays) To ſeek their Providences, removed into the Southern Parts of New-England, where he, with a few of his own Sect, ſettled at a place called Providence. There they proceeded not only unto the Gathering of a thing like a Church, but unto the Renouncing of their Infant-Baptiſm; and at this further Step of Separation they ſtopped not, but Mr. Williams quickly told them, That being himſelf miſled, he had led them likewiſe out of the way; he was now ſatisfied, that there was none upon Earth that could Adminiſter Baptiſm, and ſo that their Laſt Baptiſm, as well as their Firſt, was a Nullity, for the want of a called Adminiſtration; he adviſed them therefore to Forego all, to Diſlike every thing, and Wait for the coming of New-Apoſtles; whereupon they diſſolved themſelves, and became that ſort of Sect which we term Seekers, keeping to that one Principle, That every one ſhould have Liberty to worſhip God according to the Light of his own Conſcience; but owning of no true Churches or Ordinances now in the World. It is a memorable Reflection made on this Occaſion by Mr. Cotton, in a Book which he Publiſhed for his own Vindication from the Printed Calumnies of Mr. Williams: 'It is a Wiſe Proverb, ſaith he, of a 'wiſer than Solomon; The Backſlider in Heart '(from any Truth or Way of God) ſhall be filled with his own ways. They that ſeparate 'from their Brethren further than they have 'juſt Cauſe, ſhall at length find Cauſe, or at 'leaſt think they have found Cauſe juſt enough 'to ſeparate from one another. I never yet 'heard of any Inſtance to the contrary, either 'in England or Holland; and for New-England, 'there is no ſuch Church of the Separation at 'all that I know of. That ſeparate Church, '(if it may be called a Church) which ſeparated with Mr. Williams, firſt broke into a 'Diviſion about a ſmall Occaſion (as I have 'heard) and then broke forth into Anabaptiſm, 'and then into Antibaptiſm and Familiſm, and 'now finally into no Church at all.

§. 8. Mr. Williams after this was very Inſtrumental in obtaining a Charter for the Government of Rhode-Iſland, which lay near and with his Town of Providence, and was by the People ſometimes choſen Governour: But for the moſt part he led a more private Life.

It was more than Forty Years after his Exile that he lived here, and in many things acquitted himſelf ſo laudably, that many Judicious Perſons judged him to have had the Root of the Matter in him, during the long Winter of this Retirement: He uſed many commendable Endeavours to Chriſtianize the Indians in his Neighbourhood, of whoſe Language, Tempers and Manners he printed a little Relation, with Obſervations, wherein he Spiritualizes the Curioſities with Two and Thirty Chapters, whereof he entertains his Reader. There was alſo a good Correſpondence always held between him and many Worthy and Pious People in the Colony, from whence he had been Baniſh'd; tho' his keeping ſtill ſo many of his Dangerous Principles, kept the Government, unto whoſe Favour ſome of the Engliſh Nobility had by Letters Recommended him, from taking off the Sentence of his Baniſhment. And againſt the Quakers, he afterward maintained the main Principles of the Proteſtant Religion with much Vigour in ſome Diſputations; whereof he afterwards Publiſhed a large Account, in a Book againſt George Fox and Edward Burrowes, which he Entituled, George Fox digg'd out of his Burrowes. But having reported thus much concerning Mr. Williams, we ſhall now ſuperſede further mention of him, with the mention of another difference which happened in our Primitive Times, wherein he was indeed (but Obliquely and Remotely) concerned.

§. 9. It was about the Year 1633. that one in ſome Authority, under the Heat of ſome Impreſſions from the Miniſtry of Mr. Williams, did by his own Authority cut the Red-Croſs out of the King's Colours, to Teſtifie a Zeal againſt the Continuance or Appearance of a Superſtition. This Hot Action met with a Warm Cenſure; and beſides the Miſchiefs hereby occaſioned among the Trained Soldiers, whereof ſome were loth to follow the Colours which had the Croſs, leaſt they ſhould put Honour upon a Popiſh Idol; others were loth to follow the Colours which had not the Croſs, leſt they ſhould ſeem to caſt off their Allegiance to the Crown of England; the Buſineſs fell under Agitation in the General Court.

The Freemen of the Colony ſhow'd their Diſpleaſure at the Gentleman chiefly concerned in this Buſineſs, by Diſcarding him from his Place in the Government; and a Committee of thoſe Freemen, choſen by both Magiſtrates and People, judged him to be guilty of a great Offence, and worthy of Admonition, and ſo to be one Year diſabled for bearing any Publick Office. An Harder Sentence was not paſſed, becauſe real Tenderneſs and Perſwaſion of Conſcience, and not any Ill-affected Mind, was the real Original of his Offence: But ſo hard a Sentence was paſſed, as a Signification of the Deſire which was rooted in the Heart of the Country, to approve themſelves in all Points thorough Engliſhmen and Good Subjects. Now though the Action of Defacing the Colours was generally diſapproved, yet the Rite of the Croſs in the Banner became on this Occaſion a Matter of Controverſie, wherein many Pious and Able Men were differently perſwaded; and ſome of our Chief Worthies maintained their different Perſwaſions with Weapons indeed no more dangerous than eaſie Pens, and Effects no worſe than a little Harmleſs and Learned Ink-ſhed: It will not be a thing Unuſeful or Unpleaſant unto a Curious Reader, to have a brief Diſplay of that Controverſie.

§. 10. On the one ſide, they that pleaded againſt the Uſe of the Croſs in the Banner, argued after this manner. The Queſtion is not, whether a Private Man may not march after his Colours, which have the Croſs in them? For the Chriſtian Legions never ſcrupled following the Labarum of the Roman Emperor, which was an Idolatrous Enſign. Yea, the Jews themſelves, that made ſuch earneſt ſuit, firſt unto Pilate, and then unto Petronius, to have ſuch an Idolatrous Enſign removed from the Walls of their Temple, yet without any ſcruple followed it in the Field. Nor is it the Queſtion, whether the Croſs may be uſed in our Colours, as a Charm to protect us from Enemies, to defend us from Diſaſters, to procure Victories unto us. The Faith which the Roman Catholicks have in it mentioned by Hoveden in the Reign of Henry II. when England, France and Flanders diſtinguiſhed themſelves by their Varieties of it, ever ſince retained, is abominable to all real Proteſtants. But the Queſtion is, whether the Croſs, as repreſenting the Croſs of Chriſt, erected as a Badge of Chriſtianity, and a Sign of Diſtinction between Chriſtians and Infidels, may by any Prince or State be now in their Banners Reserved and Employed: This they approved not, and that for theſe Reaſons. Firſt, That which God hath Commanded utterly to be Deſtroyed, ſhould not be Retained for the Important Uſes of Men; but God has Commanded the Croſs in the Banner to be Deſtroyed. This may be thus proved; Images of Idols are Commanded utterly to be Deſtroyed: But the Croſs in the Banner is the Image of an Idol, and the greateſt Idol in the Church of Rome. The Text in Deuteronomy, where this is Commanded, will affect Chriſtians as well as Jews; for the Moral Reaſon of the Command ſtill continues. If it be objected, that then the Temples of Idols were to be deſtroyed, it may be anſwered, Theodoſius made a Law that they ſhould be ſo. However, we may diſtinguiſh between Temples Dedicated unto Idols, and ſuch Temples as were Dedicated unto God with Creatures. The Papiſts, with Aquinas, deny their Temples to have been Dedicated unto Saints; but affirm them Dedicated unto the Honour and Service of God, for his Bleſſings Communicated by the Saints, whoſe Names are uſed on this Occaſion. Theſe Temples being purged from their Superſtitious Deſignations, may be ſtill uſed for our Chriſtian Aſſemblies, as our Saviour uſed the Jewiſh Water-Pots to turn the Water into Wine, tho' they were Superſtitious Purifications for which they were placed there. Again, there is no Civil Honour to be given unto the Image of an Idol; the Second Commandment forbids all ſort of Honour, not only Sacred, but Civil alſo, to ſuch an Image; yea, and elſewhere, all mention of it with Honour is prohibited. But now to advance the Croſs into the Banner, is to put a Civil and no little Honour upon it: It is the Croſs in the Enſign, which does now Inſignire, and render it Inſign; and it was the Intention of Conſtantine to Honour the Croſs, when he Interdicted all Executions of Malefactors upon it, but improved it for his Banner. Further, if the Figure of the Altar in Damaſcus might not be uſed as a Badge of the Religion and Profeſſion of the Iſraelites, then the Figure of the Croſs may not be uſed as a Badge of the Religion and Profeſſion of the Proteſtants. For there is a like Proportion; the Papiſts regard the Croſs as the Altar whereon our Lord was offered: Now ſuch a Figure of an Altar was unlawful to the People of God. Once more, that which was Execrable to our Lord, the Sign of it ſhould not be Honourable to us. But ſo was the Croſs of our Lord; it made his Death Accurſed; nor was it a pure Inſtrument of meer Martyrdom unto him. Moreover, if the partaking of Idolothytes in the places where the Idols are worſhipped, expreſs a Communion with Idols and Idolaters, then the ſetting up of the Croſs in the places where Idolaters do Worſhip it, namely, in the Banner, is an Expreſſion of Communion in their Idolatry. 'Tis true, ſuch Meats when ſold in the Shambles, might be Eaten without ſcruple of Conſcience; but beſides this, that it was only a Common Place where theſe might be eaten; whereas the Croſs in the Banner is in the Temple, where the Apocalyptic Gentiles do adore it; you may add, they were Creatures of God, whereas the Croſs in the Banner is only an Humane Contrivance. If it had been lawful for a Man to have bought the Silver-Shrines of Diana, and have cauſed them to be worn for the Cogniſance of his Family, or his Attendants; the Croſs might perhaps have been lawfully uſed in the Banner for a Cogniſance. Finally, if the firſt uſe of the Croſs in the Banner, by Conſtantine, were Superſtitious; then the Firſt Fruits being unclean, the whole Lump of the following uſe is alſo unclean. But now Euſebius will tell you, That this ſaving Sign the Emperor uſed as a Protection againſt all Warlike and Hoſtile Powers. And Sozomen will tell you, That the Emperor changed the Image in the Roman Labarum for the Sign of the Croſs, that ſo the Soldiers, who were accuſtomed to Worſhip the Heathen Imperial Enſign, by the continual Sight and Worſhip of the Croſs might be weaned from their Country-Rites, and brought on to Worſhip that God alone whoſe Sign it was. Theſe were the Chief of the Conſiderations then urged againſt the Croſs by the Faithful that were themſelves in a Wilderneſs, now Preaching and Suffering under the Croſs. That they thus argued, was not becauſe they were thoſe whom the Apoſtle calls Enemies unto the Croſs of our Lord; they knew, they felt, they conſented, that, Omnis Chriſtianus eſt Crucianus, every Chriſtian muſt be a Croſs-Bearer. Our King Edward I. was the Comelieſt of Men, tho' commonly called Crook-Back, by a miſtake of the Name Crouch-Back, [that is, Croſs-Back] which Name he has worn, becauſe of his wearing a Croſs on his Back. Our good Old Planters had the Croſs of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt laid upon their Back, by the manifold Afflictions which they underwent for his Truths and Ways; but Mankind will be miſtaken, if they imagine thoſe Bleſſed Soldiers, under the Banners of their Lord Redeemer, to have been of a Defective Stature in Chriſtianity, becauſe of their not affecting to make the Croſs in their Banners the Mark of that Chriſtianity. It is Catholickly, that is Ridiculouſly, enough given as the Anſwer to the Second Queſtion in the Catechiſm, wherein the French New-Converts are inſtructed; the Queſtion, Whereby ſhall one know a true Chriſtian? The Anſwer, A ce qu'il fait le Signe de la Croix; that is, By this, that he makes the Sign of the Croſs. Our New-Englanders were Good Chriſtians, but yet were loth to give the Croſs for the Sign of their being ſo; they choſe a better Sign of it, by being themſelves Crucified unto the Vanities of the World; that which made the Croſs diſagreeable to them, was its being the great Idol of Popery, which is but revived Paganiſm: And as the Primitive Chriſtians, when the Pagans charged them with the Veneration of the Croſs, anſwered, Cruces nec Colimus, nec Optamus; this might a Minutius on the behalf of our New-Engliſh Chriſtians have given for their Anſwer alſo: If Tertullian reckoned it a Scandal raiſed upon the Primitive Chriſtians, that they were, Crucis Religioſi, you ſee the New-Engliſh Chriſtians took an Effectual Courſe that they might not on that part be Scandalized.

§. 11. On the other ſide, they that pleaded for the uſe of the Croſs in the Banner, argued after this faſhion. To ſtate the Queſtion, we muſt know, that it is neceſſary that there ſhould be a Banner diſplayed; and a Banner with a Croſs in it, ſerves the end of a Banner as much as any other. Had the Croſs never been Superſtitiouſly abuſed, the Civil uſe of that Figure could not be queſtioned; but the Superſtitious Abuſe is a thing that is added unto the Civil Uſe, and accordingly the Superſtitious Abuſe may again be removed from it, otherwiſe what a Deſolation of Bells muſt be produced by a juſt Reformation of Superſtitions? Wherefore, if the preſent Authority does neither appoint nor declare any Superſtition in the Obſervation of any Civil Uſage, the Superſtition of that Uſage is at an end. Thus, tho' it be notoriouſly known, that many Perſons in Authority have their Superſtitious Conceits about Churches; yet inaſmuch as there is no Injunction of Authority upon private Perſons, to approve any ſuch Conceits, 'tis no Superſtition in ſuch Perſons to uſe thoſe Churches unto lawful Purpoſes. The Queſtion then is, whether the Civil Uſe of the Croſs in the Banner may not be ſeparated from the Superſtitious Abuſe of it? It ſeems that it may; for, Firſt, If Names that have been abuſed for the Honour of Idols, may in a Civil way be ſtill uſed, then things that have been ſo abuſed, may be in like manner uſed for a Civil Diſtinction. But we find the Names of Apollo and Phœbe, and the like, uſed in the Apoſtolical Salutations, altho' it had been a leſs difficulty for thoſe Perſons to have changed the Names at firſt ſinfully impos'd on them, than for the Croſs in the Banner to be now wholly laid aſide. If any Heathen King put an Honour upon his Idol Bel, by ſaying, O Belteſhazzar, the Spirit of God may ſpeak it without any Honour to that Idol at all. Again, it is one thing to deſcribe a Croſs, as an Artificial thing, by way of Civil Signification, and another thing to employ a Croſs, as a Sacramental thing, by way of Sacred Obſervation; and in the Banner, 'tis the former, not the latter way, that it is conſidered; when I am relating how a Papiſt Croſſes himſelf, I may lawfully expreſs it by making an Aerial Croſs like his; whereas it would not be lawful for me to make ſuch a Croſs upon the ſame ends with him. Add, what if the Croſs, as firſt uſed by Conſtantine, had in it ſomewhat unwarrantable? It follows not, that the following Uſe of it is of the ſame Lump with the Firſt; for if it now be uſed upon another Deſign, the Uncleanneſs is taken away. Beſides, Conſtantine brought the Croſs with as much Unwarrantableneſs into his Coins, as into his Colours; but it is believed, that moſt Men, at this Day, would count themſelves very ſorely croſs'd, and their Purſes very unhappy, if there were none of thoſe Croſſes in them. To proceed, Meats that were Sacrificed unto Idols might be eaten, when Sold and Bought in the Market; now a Croſs, as an Effect of Art, is a Creature of God's, as well as any of the Meats Bred and Cooked by Men. And what if the Banner be like the Temple to the Idol? One might have eaten the Idolothytes in a Chamber or Corner of an Idol Temple, if there had been any ſuch, where Beholders would not have been ſcandalized. Such were the Colours of Good and Evil, which were put upon the Uſe of the Croſs in the Colours, at the firſt Settlement of the Militia in theſe Plantations. But there was nothing like a War appearing in the Diſputations of the good Men, that thus flouriſhed the Matter on both ſides. All the Velitations were peaceably furled up in this Reſult; that the Croſs was kept in the Banners of Caſtles and Veſſels where it was neceſſary; and in the Banners of the Trained Bands it was generally omitted, until it was very lately introduced.

Know then, that in the Year 1636. arrived at Boſton one Samuel Gorton, who by one of the beſt Pens in thoſe Times is deſcribed as, A moſt prodigious Minter of Exorbitant Novelties, and the very Dregs of Familiſm. This Gorton continued at Boſton, till ſome Directions were ſent hither to Demand from him conſiderable Sums of Money, which he had Borrowed as London; and then he removed out of the Maſſachuſet-Colony. Coming to Plymouth, he began to ſpread his Blaſphemous and Enormous Opinions; but being upon ſome Civil Controverſie with a Neighbour brought before the Court, he behaved himſelf ſo Mutinouſly, Seditiouſly and Outrageouſly, that he was Fined and ſent out of that Colony. From thence he went into Rhode-Iſland, where he affronted what little Government they had, with ſuch Intolerable Inſolencies, that he was there Whipped, and ſent out of that Colony. The Knight Errant then made his Progreſs over to Providence, with a miſled Knot of Squires, where the Humanity of Mr. Williams to them in that Winter-Seaſon was requited, Snake-faſhion, with ſuch cruel Stings, as made the Inhabitants implore Aid from the Maſſachuſet-Bay. Theſe wicked Gortonians began to ſeize the Lands of certain Indians, which had ſubmitted themſelves unto the Protection of the King of England, and ſow ſuch Diſcords among the Engliſh, as threatned all manner of bloody Confuſion. Wherefore the Authority of the Maſſachuſet-Bay being Addreſſed by the Diſtreſſed People, ſent their Agents to adjuſt the Differences which had happened, and prevent the Ruin of the King's Intereſts, not meerly in that Fag-end of the World, but in all theſe Plantations. In the mean time, this Crew of Miſcreants not only kept blowing up a Flame of War between the Engliſh and the Indians, but alſo ſent unto the Engliſh in the Bay one Libel upon the back of another, ſtuff'd with Scores of ſuch envenomed Reproaches againſt the Rulers and Churches, Denials of all Order, and Blaſphemies againſt every ſacred thing, that the Maſſachuſet-Colony could not in this Extremity do God and the King better Service, than by going out of their Line, (if it were a going out of it, for to ſend thus unto the help of our Confederates, under whoſe weaker Juriſdiction thoſe Wretches were ſo Obſtreperous, and upon whoſe Earneſt Application it was undertaken) to lay hold on theſe Malefactors as the Enemies of Mankind. Accordingly, being by a Band of Men brought unto Boſton, whither Mr. Williams and his Fellow-Planters had referred their Cauſe, againſt a Knot of Incendiaries that had expreſly Declared, All Courts whatſoever to be Idols and the Devices of Satan, and all pretended Officers and Lieutenants of Chriſt to be Deſtroyers of the Holy One of Iſrael: The Court proceeded unto an Examination of their Miſdemeanours. About Six of the Chief Ringleaders received Sentence to be kept at Work, in ſo many ſeveral Towns, during the Pleaſure of the Court; and they were alſo required, on a very ſevere Penalty, to utter none of their profane Hereſies, except in Conference with Miniſters, or ſuch as might be allowed thereupon to Confer with them; thus they were Confined for one Winter, and then Baniſhed. It were endleſs to reckon up the Frenſies of this Exorbitant and Extravagant Generation; but they held, That Chriſt was but a Shadow, and Figure of what is done in every Chriſtian; they held, That Chriſt was incarnate in Adam, and was that Image of God wherein Adam was Created; they held, That our Lord's being Born afterwards of the Virgin, and Suffering was but a Manifeſtation of his Suffering in Adam; they ſaid, That Man's loſing of God's Image was the Death of Chriſt; they ſaid, That Faith and Chriſt is all One; Sermons they called Lies, Tales and Falſhoods; Churches, their Name for them was, Deviſed Platforms; Baptiſm, they called, Vanity and Abomination; The Lord's Supper, they called, An Abomination and a Spell; and they called, Miniſters, Magicians. Now, tho' the Miniſters, whom they ſo called, uſed all due Pains to Charm theſe Adders with convincing Diſputations, when they were in the Bay, and indeed often drove them to a Bay with Argument, yet they would obſtinately maintain their unmaintainable Tenets. By the ſame Token, that unto that Nonſenſical Aſſertion of Gorton, That the Death of Chriſt, was the Death of God's Image in the Fall of Adam; it being reply'd by Mr. Cotton, That the Death of Chriſt was the Price of our Redemption; whereas the Fall of Adam was not the Price of our Redemption, but the Cauſe of our Condemnation; the Man by Silence thereupon, loudly proclaimed himſelf Confounded, and yet ye would not Revoke or Diſclaim his Heretical Nonſenſe. Gorton lived many Years after this; degenerated into ſuch a Beaſt, that profeſſedly as well as practically he declared, That there is no Happineſs to be expected but in this Life; and he would adviſe his Followers, To make much of themſelves, becauſe they muſt have no more than what they ſhould enjoy in the World. But it pleaſed God thus mercifully to deliver this his New-Engliſh People from the Troubles with which theſe Peſtilences did endanger them.

§. 13. Reader, Be content that the ſame Chapter which has related the Controverſies that have ſometimes diſturbed the Churches of New-England about Matters, the Lawfulneſs whereof has been ſcrupled, ſhould leap over half an Hundred Years to graſp at another of thoſe Controverſies, which as late as the Year 1688. was an Occaſion of ſome further Diſturbance: The Affinity, rather than the Chronology of the thing inviting us, in this Place to lodge the Hiſtory of that Controverſie.

When the Charter of New-England were taken away, the Governour, who with a Treaſonable and an Arbitrary Commiſſion then Tyrannized over the Colonies, at length drove the New-Englanders, to imitate the whole Engliſh Nation, in an happy Revolution, on the Eighteenth of April, 1689. And in the Declaration, which they publiſhed at and for this Revolution, One Article was this: To plunge the poor People every where into deeper Incapacities, there was one very Comprehenſive Abuſe given to us: Multitudes of pious and ſober Men thro' the Land ſcrupled the Mode of ſwearing on the Book, deſiring that they might Swear with an unlifted Hand, agreeable to the ancient Cuſtom of the Colony; and tho' we think we can prove, that the Common Law amongſt us (as well as in ſome other places under the Engliſh Crown) does not only Indulge, but even Command and Enjoin the Rite of lifting the Hand in Swearing, yet they that had this doubt were ſtill put by from ſerving upon any Juries, and many of them were moſt unaccountably Fined and Impriſoned. This one Grievance is a Trojan Horſe, in the Belly of which 'tis not eaſie to recount how many inſufferable Vexations have been contained. The Chriſtians of New-England were not the only Perſons that have ſcrupled the Lawfulneſs of Swearing, Tactis Evangeliis, on and by the Goſpels. Thoſe famous Divines, Rivet, Paræus and Voetius, have all of them Written againſt it; Dr. Goodwyn, and Mr. Nye, reckoned it the worſt of all the Engliſh Ceremonies: And that bleſſed Martyr, Mr. William Thorp, did refuſe to comply with that Mode of Swearing. Declaring that Chryſoſtom long before him was againſt a Book-Oath, as well as he; and arguing, If I touch the Book, the meaning of that Ceremony is nothing elſe, but that I Swear by it, when it is not Lawful to Swear by any Creature. It is well-known, that in Scotland, and the Reformed Churches abroad, that Ceremony is not uſed; and even in the Engliſh Courts of Admiralty, another Form of Swearing is frequently practiſed: Yea, there was once an Ordinance of Parliament in England, for the eaſe of thoſe Conſciences, which doubted ſuch a Form of Swearing. The varieties among the Primitive Chriſtians, in the Modes of Swearing, are too Many, and ſome of them too Faulty to be recited; but this I am ſure of, Athanaſius of old would uſe no Rite in Swearing, but that of lifting up the Hand unto Heaven. However, it may be the Chriſtians of New-England are the only Ones in the World that ever ſuffered a Formal Perſecution, by Fines and Gaols, for bearing their Teſtimony unto Purity of Worſhip, in that great Point of Worſhip, an Oath: And perhaps theſe Chriſtians might bear a part in Finiſhing the Teſtimony to be born unto the Laws of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in the World, by patiently Suffering this Perſecution, while the Quakers, who refuſed all Swearing at all, did undergo no ſuch Hardſhips from the Government. Now the Reaſons that moved theſe Confeſſors hereunto are eaſily underſtood. They were of this old Puritan Principle; that all Religious Worſhip, not Commanded by God, is Forbidden; and that all Symbolical Ceremonies enjoined on Men in Religious Worſhip, are made parts of it. More cloſely; they judged that our Swearing ON the Goſpel, is a Swearing BY the Goſpel, and therefore Idolatrous. That this Mode of Swearing was Originally a ſignification of Swearing BY the Goſpel, is evident from all the Interpretation, which not only the old Canon-Law, but alſo the old Common-Law, explain'd in old Precedents, has given of it; and no particular Magiſtrate has power to put any other Interpretation upon the Law, than what the Law has given of it ſelf; much leſs can a private Perſon do ſo. Yea, the Mode is Naturally and Neceſſarily, as well as Originally, a Swearing BY the Goſpel; for elſe it muſt ſignifie only the Preſence and Conſent of the Perſon that Swears. But firſt, our Statute-Law has poſitively Superſeded any ſuch pretence wherein the Oath of Supremacy concludes, By the Contents of this Book: And beſides, there is no Proportion of things to countenance that Pretence: The touching of a Table, would ſignifie this, as much as the touching of the Bible. The Bible is a Sacred thing; to put it unto a meer Civil Uſe, is a Profane Abuſe of it, in ſuch a ſolemn and ſerious Buſineſs, as the diſpenſing of Right between Man and Man: Why? It leaves out a reſpect unto the Bible, which is always due unto it. With a Contingent and Overly Act, I may perhaps look on the Bible only as a Book made of Paper and Cover; but in a Stated, Solemn, Serious Act, ſuch as a Proceſs of Law, the Bible may not be ſingled out for a leſs uſe, than what the Word of the moſt High God is to be preferred for. Whereas, if we take the general Acknowledgment of them that Swear ON the Goſpel, they tell us, 'tis to procure Devotion, and affect them with the Conſideration of the Rules they are to uſe in Swearing, and the Woes they incurr if they uſe them not. Now ſay we, our Lord hath directed us to do this, by Hearing and Reading his Word; not by a bare Touching of it: Nor may a Tranſient Motive to Piety, be made a Stated Medium. Or elſe, they tell us, 'tis to expreſs Devotion; 'tis in this way that they make their Imprecation, and their Invocation; 'tis their external Declaration, That they Swear by the God who made this Book, and expect the Plagues written in this Book, if they Swear a Falſhood: Now this is a way of Worſhip which the Lord never Inſtituted. In fine, 'tis a wrong Religious Application in a Prayer; an Oath is a Prayer, and a Creature is in this Mode of Swearing applied unto, as well as Almighty God; yea, God is applied unto thro' a Creature: And Non-Conformiſts reckon the Second Commandment violated by ſuch Applications. The Religious Forms of Addreſſing to God, we ſay, are to be appointed by none but God himſelf: Whereas the Elevation of the Hand, has even for Sacred as well as for Civil Uſes, and in an Oath particularly, had ſuch unexceptionable Aprobation, that the Faithful of New-England choſe it, and choſe rather to ſuffer Affliction, than to uſe a Rite in the Worſhip of God, which they ſuſpected Sinful.

Reader, We will only take this Occaſion to recite a good Paſſage of Dr. Owen's. If inſtead of driving all ſorts of Perſons, the Worſt, the Vileſt of Men, on Slight, or Light, or no Occaſions unto Swearing, none might be in any Caſe admitted thereunto, but ſuch as Evidence in their Converſations ſuch a regard unto the Divine Rule and Governmen of the World, as is required to give the leaſt Credibility to an Oath, it would be much better with Humane Society. And now we'll paſs on to other Matters.

CHAP. III.

Hydra Decapitata: Or, The Firſt SYNOD of NEW-ENGLAND, quelling a Storm of Antinomian Opinions, and many remarkable Events relating thereunto.

> Sic Deus inducta noſtras Caligine Terras > Occuluit.

§. 1. THE Church of God had not long been in this Wilderneſs, before the Dragon caſt forth ſeveral Floods to devour it; but not the leaſt of thoſe Floods was one of Antinomian and Familiſtical Hereſies, with which the Country began betimes to be infeſted. That which was then the moſt conſiderable of our Churches, had ſeveral conſiderable Perſons belonging thereunto, who Broached certain Opinions; firſt of an Antinomian, and then of a Familiſtical Tendency; and the ſtir which they made about theſe Opinions grew ſo general, that they quickly affected all the Publick Affairs of the Country; but that which made the whole Buſineſs to be the more perplexed, was, that as that horrid Montaniſt, Wightman, profeſſed that he had all his Grounds from the Great Arthur Hilderſham, ſo the Name of the no leſs Great John Cotton was abuſed by theſe buſie Sectaries, for the Patronage of their Whimſies. 'Tis believed, that Multitudes of Perſons, who took in with both Parties, did never to their dying Hour underſtand what their Difference was; by the ſame Token, in the heighth and heat of all the Difference, when ſome Ships were going from hence to England, Mr. Cotton, in the whole Congregation, adviſed the Paſſengers to tell our Countrymen at Home, That all the ſtrife here was about magnifying the Grace of God; the one Perſon ſeeking to advance the Grace of God within us, as to Sanctification; and another Perſon ſeeking to advance the Grace of God towards us, as to Juſtification; and Mr. Wilſon ſtood up after him, declaring on the other ſide, That he knew none that did not Labour to advance the Grace of God in both. Nevertheleſs there did ariſe in the Land a Diſtinction between ſuch as were under a Covenant of Works, and ſuch as were under a Covenant of Grace; wherein the bigger Part of the Country in the management of that Enquiry, By what Evidence muſt a Man proceed in taking to himſelf the Comforts of his Juſtification? Laid upon our Sanctification the firſt and main Streſs of our Comfortable Evidence. But the Opinioniſts were for another ſort of Evidence as their Chief; namely, The Spirit of God by a powerful Application of a Promiſe, begetting in us, and revealing to us a powerful Aſſurance of our being Juſtified. Now tho' the Truth might eaſily have United both of theſe Perſwaſions; yet they that were of the latter way, carried the Matter on to a very Perillous Door, opened not only for New Enthuſiaſtical Revelations, but alſo for a neglect of ſuch Qualifications in all Godlineſs and Honeſty, as muſt be found in all that would be Proſpered, and not Rejected in their Confidences. Yea, they employed their Diſtinctions about a Covenant of Works, and a Covenant of Grace, at ſo Extravagant a rate, as threatned a Subverſion to all the peaceable Order in the Colonies. They drove at this, that the moſt Virtuous Man upon Earth might not be admitted into the Churches, without profeſſing, that Renouncing of Sanctification, as the Evidence of his good State, he waited for Immediate Revelations to aſſure him of it; and ſuch as were already in Church-Communion, unleſs they became fond of the New-Lights in this thing pretended unto, were preſently branded as favouring A Covenant of Grace. The Contention ſpread it ſelf even into Families, and all private and ſmaller Societies, who were to be accounted under a Covenant of Works, and ſo Enemies unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and who were not? Which was determined among the buſie Sectaries, by a Perſon's accommodating himſelf unto their Fine-ſpun Speculations. Illic ipſum eſſe fuit promereri. The Diſturbance proceeded from thence into all the General Affairs of the Publick: The Expedition againſt the Pequot-Indians was moſt ſhamefully diſcouraged, becauſe the Army was too much under a Covenant of Works; and the Magiſtrates began to be contemned, as being of a Legal Spirit, and having therewithal a tang of Antichriſt in them; nor could the ordering of Town-Lots, or Town-Rates, or any Meetings whatſoever, eſcape the Confuſions of this Controverſie. 'Tis incredible what Alienations of Mind, and what a very Calenture the Devil raiſed in the Country upon this Odd Occaſion: But it may not be amiſs to deſcribe a little more particularly the Methods whereof the Devil therein ſerved his Intereſts. The Sectaries acquainted themſelves with as many as poſſibly they could, and carried on their Acquaintance with all the Courteſies and Kindneſſes that they could contrive to Ingratiate themſelves in the Hearts of others, eſpecially of New Comers into the place. They herewithal appeared wondrous Holy, Humble, Self-denying and Spiritual, and full of the moſt charming Expreſſions imaginable. Free Grace, Goſpel Truth, Glorious Light, and Holding Forth of Chriſt, was all their Tone; and meeting with Chriſtians that had any Doubts in their Minds about their own future Happineſs, they would inſinuate into them, that they had never taken a Right Courſe for Comfort, by going to Evidence their good Eſtate by their Sanctification, but that there was a more Evangelical way to peace, by which they themſelves were got above all their Fears for ever. They began uſually to ſeduce Women into their Notions, and by theſe Women, like their firſt Mother, they ſoon hook'd in the Husbands alſo. Having wrought themſelves any where into a good eſteem, they ſet themſelves with a manifold Subtilty to undermine the eſteem of the Miniſters, and intimate, that their Teachers themſelves, never having been Taught of God, had miſ-taught and miſ-led the People; whence it came to paſs, that even ſome who had follow'd theſe Miniſters Three Thouſand Miles, thro' Ten Thouſand Deaths, yet now took up ſuch Prejudices, not only againſt their Doctrines, but againſt their Perſons alſo, that they did never care to hear them, or ſee them any more. They adminiſtred their Poiſons in ſmaller Doſes, and not without Preparatives, wherein if any made any Boggle, they would preſently retreat, and ſay, Nay, don't miſtake me, for I mean the ſame that you do; we differ only in Words. And they would be ſure ſtill to Father their Whimſies upon ſuch Perſons as were held in moſt Veneration throughout the Country; but if they were brought Face to Face, they would ſtill winde out with ſome cunning Evaſions. Thus they went on, until they had got ſome Noted Perſons in all Orders to Patroniſe them; and then 'tis impoſſible to deſcribe the Cenſures, the Contempts, the Affronts caſt upon the beſt Men in the Law, as Men Ignorant of Chriſt; and the Terrible Diſorder and Contention that enſued in all Societies.

§. 2. The Miniſtry of the Country awakened by theſe Noiſes about the Temple, had ſeveral Meetings that they might ſet Matters to Rights; all which were ineffectual, until the General Court called a Synod of all the Churches in the Country to meet at Cambridge, in the Year 1637. In Preparation whereunto there were Three things attended. One was a Solemn Faſt kept in all the Churches for the good Succeſs of the Approaching Synod. Another was a Collection of all the Erroneous and Offenſive Opinions, which called for the Diſquiſitions that might extinguiſh them. A Third was a Conference with Mr. Cotton about any Poſitions or Expreſſions of his that might have Countenanced any of thoſe Opinions. But that my Reader alſo may be prepared for the Actions of the Synod, I would humbly ask him what he thinks of the Relation given us of the firſt Nicene Synod by Eutychius, an Author of the Firſt Ages, recommended by Selden and Pocock, as one of Irreproachable Fidelity? That Author, whoſe Hiſtory in Arabic, never ſeen, I ſuppoſe, by Salmaſius or Blondel, is by ſome thought in this Matter much more probable than that of Euſebius and Socrates, does relate unto us, that upon the Letters of Conſtantine ſummoning the Synod, there were no leſs than Two Thouſand and Forty-eight Biſhops who came to Town; but that the moſt by far of them were ſo groſly Ignorant and Erroneous, that upon the Recommendation of Alexander, the Biſhop of Alexandria, the Emperor ſingled out but Three Hundred and Eighteen, who were all of them Orthodox Children of Peace, and none of thoſe Contentious Blades that put out Libels of Accuſation one againſt another; and that by the Emperor's happy chuſing and heeding of theſe Three Hundred and Eighteen; [Reader, compare Gen. 14. 14.] the Orthodox Religion came to be Eſtabliſhed. Reader, The Government of New-England was not now put upon the ſingling out of a few Biſhops from a Multitude Conveened in a Synod, for the ſecuring of the True Faith; but thou ſhalt ſee them all of one Heart in contending for the Faith once delivered unto the Saints.

§. 3. Tho' the Faſt Prefatory to the Synod were not for Strife, yet there happened ſomething on the Faſt which did but more increaſe and inflame the Strife. A Miniſter who then Preached at Boſton, where was then the Chief Audience of the Country, in the Sermon let fall many Paſſages which amounted unto thus much, That the Magiſtrates and Miniſters of the Country walked in ſuch a Way of Salvation, and the Evidence thereof, as was a Covenant of Works: Which Paſſages were Aculeated by reſembling ſuch as were under that Covenant, unto Jews, and Herods, and Philiſtines, and Antichriſts; and exhorting ſuch as were under the Covenant of Grace, to Combate thoſe as their greateſt Enemies, and quickening thoſe who feared, leſt a Combuſtion ſhould hence ariſe in the Commonwealth, by telling them of Michael and the Dragon, and the Burning of the Whore.

For theſe things, the Court proceeding to Animadvert upon this Preacher as guilty of great Sedition [having for this their Interpretation of his Miſdemeanour, a Warrant of both Cicero, according to whom, Seditio, eſt Diſſentio Omnium inter ſe, cum eunt alii, in aliud; and Iſidore, according to whom, Seditioſus eſt, qui Diſſentionem animorum facit & Diſcordias gignit:] he was under ſuch Enchantment that he could be brought by no means to ſee his Evil; but they were compelled by his Obſtinacy to order his Removal out of their Juriſdiction. However, being a Man that had the Root of the Matter in him, after Six or Seven Years he awoke out of a Sleep, which had been as long as what Cranzius tells us befel a Scholar at Lubec, he addreſſed the Government, with acknowledging; ‘ Upon the ‘ Long and Mature Conſideration of things, I ‘ perceive that the main difference between ‘ your ſelves, and ſome of the Reverend Elders ‘ and me, in point of Juſtification, and the E‘videncing thereof, is not of that Nature as ‘ was then preſented unto me in the Falſe Glaſs ‘ of Satan's Temptations, and my own diſtemper‘ed Paſſions; which makes me unfeignedly ‘ ſorry that I had ſuch an Hand in thoſe ‘ ſharp and vehement Contentions raiſed thereabouts, to the great Diſturbance of the Churches of Chriſt. It is the Grief of my Soul that I uſed ſuch Vehement, Cenſorious Speeches in the Application of my Sermon, or in any other Writing, whereby I reflected any Diſhonour on your Worſhips, the Reverend Elders, or any of the contrary Judgment unto my ſelf. I repent me that I did ſo much adhere to Perſons of Corrupt Judgments, to the Countenancing and Encouraging of them in any of their Errors or Evil Practices, tho' I intended no ſuch thing; and that in the Synod I uſed ſuch Unſafe and Obſcure Expreſſions falling from me, as a Man Dazzled with the Buffetings of Satan. I confeſs, that herein I have done ſinfully, and do humbly crave Pardon of your Honoured Selves; and if it ſhall appear to me by Scripture Light, that in any Carriage, Word or Writing, I have walked contrary to Rule, I ſhall be ready, by the Grace of God, to give Satiſfaction. Upon this moſt Ingenious Acknowledgment he was reſtored unto his former Liberty and Intereſt among the People of God; and lived almoſt Forty Years after a valued Servant of the Church in his Generation. But that I may in all things do the part of an Impartial Hiſtorian, I muſt add, that this good Man being moved by Jerome's Maxim, In Suſpicione Hæreſeos nolo quenquam eſſe patientem; and by Auſtin's, Qui fidens Conſcientiæ ſuæ negligit famam ſuam, crudelis eſt; Publiſhed a Vindication of himſelf againſt the Wrongs that by Mr. Weld, and by Mr. Rutherford, had been done unto him. In this Vindication, he not only produces a Speech of Mr. Cotton, I do conceive and profeſs, that our Brother Wheelwright*'s Doctrine is according to God in the Points controverted*; but alſo a Declaration from the whole General Court of the Colony, ſigned by the Secretary, Aug. 24. 1654. upon the Petition of Mr. Wheelwright's Church at Hampton: In which Declaration they profeſs, That hearing that Mr. Wheelwright is, by Mr. Rutherford and Mr. Weld, rendred in ſome Books Printed by them as Heretical and Criminous, they now ſignifie, that Mr. Wheelwright hath for theſe many Years approved himſelf a Sound Orthodox, and Profitable Miniſter of the Goſpel among theſe Churches of Chriſt.

§. 4. The Synod being Aſſembled, with the Reverend Mr. Thomas Hooker, and Mr. Peter Bulkly, choſen its Moderators at Cambridge (then called by the Name of New-Town) on Aug. 30. 1637. there were produced about Eighty Two Erroneous Opinions and Expreſſions, which had been uttered in the Country by ſeveral Men at ſeveral times. The Authors of thoſe Errors were neither Mentioned nor Enquired; but the Errors themſelves were Conſidered, Confuted and Condemned from the plain Word of God: For, indeed, the Deſign of the Synod was not, Jus Dare, but only, Jus Dicere, and to exerciſe only a Power Deciſive of Doctrines, not Judicial, on Perſons; leaving it unto particular Churches to paſs their Cenſures on the Perſons, who ſhould hold the Doctrines by the Determination of the Synod, found ſubverſive to the Fundamentals of Religion. And hence, when ſome of the more Hypocritical Sectaries began to grow at laſt pretty clamorous, in demanding the Names of ſuch as held the Dogmes then oppoſed (for the true Parents of the Brats, began to diſcover themſelves when the Synod was going to employ the Sword upon them!) ſome of the Civil Magiſtrates then preſent, as Members of the Aſſembly, were forced, as Juſtices of the Peace, to preſerve the Peace of the Aſſembly, by Commanding Silence to thoſe Litigious Talkers. What theſe Errors were, 'tis needleſs now to repeat; they are Dead and Gone; and, for me, beyond hope of Reſurrection; 'tis pity to rake them out of their Graves; 'tis enough to ſay, they were of an Antinomian and Familiſtical Tendency. All that needs to be added, is, that the Synod's Reſult upon theſe Heterodoxies, was not formed into ſuch Arbitrary and Hereticating Anathema's, as were practiced in the Councils of the Ancients; but the Error being firſt fairly recited, there was only a ſhort Reflection made upon it after this manner, This is contrary to ſuch and ſuch a Text of Scripture, [then and there ſubjoined] which in the Quotation thereof being briefly applied unto the Caſe, did unto Reaſonable Men immediately ſmite the Error under the Fifth Rib.

The Reſult of the Synod was Publiſhed; and tho' the Hydra of Error were now ſtiring in the Country with ſuch a Virulent and Malignant Influence, yet that Sword of the Lord, the Sacred Scripture, being thus wiſely employed, ſoon diſpatched the Apoſtate Serpent.

§. 5. The Synod then thought it Convenient, nay, Neceſſary for them to come into a good Underſtanding with Mr. Cotton, who was himſelf not the Leaſt part of the Country; the rather, becauſe the Sectaries, through the Country, had baſely made uſe of his Name to Patronize their Opinions; and, indeed, his Charity, wherein he was known to be truly Eminent, inclining him to ſuſpect no more Evil of them, than what they would profeſs, or confeſs to him in their Perſonal Converſation with him, expoſed him the more to their Pretences of his Patronage.

There were Five Queſtions offered unto that Great Man, unto which Queſtions he gave Anſwers; and unto thoſe Anſwers the Synod gave Replies; and unto thoſe Replies he gave Returns; and unto thoſe Returns the Synod gave Rejoinders, till their Colliſions fetch'd I know not whether more Light or Love unto one another. Becauſe 'twill not be eaſie to give a fair and full Repreſentation of what paſſed on both ſides, without the Trouble of Tranſcribing whole Sheets of Paper, I ſhall not now Trouble the World with the Debated Queſtions, much leſs with the Debates upon the Queſtions: The Reader that is deſirous to ſee them, ſhall find them in Mr. Cotton's Treatiſe about the Way of Congregational Churches: Only let it be remarked, that the Nature and Import of the Queſtions, and the Zeal with which they were handled, intimate ſomething of the Holy Temper, then prevailing among the Body of this People. The Queſtions were about the Order of things, in our Union with our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; about the Influence of our Faith, in the Application of his Righteouſneſs; about the Uſe of our Sanctification, in Evidencing of our Juſtification; and about the Conſideration of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt by Men, yet under a Covenant of Works.

Briefly, they were the Points whereon depend the Grounds of our Aſſurance for Bleſſedneſs in another and a better World. Now I cannot learn that Mr. Cotton ever made any notable Variation of his Opinions or Expreſſions in theſe Matters, from what we find publiſhed afterward in his Treatiſe of The New Covenant; a Treatiſe whereof I need ſay no more, but that the Famous Mr. Caryl uſhered it into the World with his Recommendations. Nor indeed am I without a vehement Suſpicion, that Mr. Cotton was really One with his Antagoniſts, whatever ſeeming Difference there was between them. And if my Reader will, as I do, believe Mr. Baxter, that neither Neſtorius nor Cyril were Heretical De Re; but that both of them were of One Mind, the one ſpeaking of the Abſtract, the other ſpeaking of the Concrete; and, that yet Intereſt, Prejudice and Faction put them upon ſuch Quarrelſome Heretications one againſt another, as enkindled a lamentable Flame in the World, which is not even to this Day extinguiſhed; he will eaſily believe, that theſe good Men might miſunderſtand one another. However, Mr. Cotton came to ſuch an Amiable and Amicable Correſpondence with the reſt of the Miniſters, that altho' in this Time of Temptation, he had throughout theſe Churches laboured under the hard Character of being the Chief Abettor to the Errors whereby the Tranquility of the Churches had been diſturbed, yet he now moſt effectually joined with the other Miniſters in Witneſſing againſt thoſe Errors; and having, like the Moon in its Eclipſe, with an Exemplary Patience held on his Courſe of ſerving the Church of God, until the ſtrength of the Enchantments attending this Hour of Temptation was a little diſſolved, he recovered all his former Splendor among the other Stars, ——Velut inter Ignes Luna Minores.

Yea, his latter Days were indeed like the clear ſhining of the Sun after the Rain. But if my Reader will not be ſatiſfied without a more particular Account of Mr. Cotton's Conduct in the Synod, I ſhall honeſtly tell him, that albeit, when the Eighty-two Errors were finally Condemned in the Synod, Mr. Cotton did (without ſetting his Hand unto the Condemnation) freely declare, That he diſreliſhed all thoſe Opinions and Expreſſions, as being ſome of them Heretical, ſome of them Blaſphemous, ſome of them Erroneous, and all of them Incongruous. Nevertheleſs there was a Dark Day in the Synod, wherein Mr. Cotton did, with the great Chamins, ſeem to aſſert, That the Habit of Faith in us, is the Effect of our Juſtification; and Solemn Speeches were made with Tears, lamenting it, that they ſhould in this Important Matter diſſent from a Perſon ſo Venerable and Conſiderable in the Country. Such Arguments were brought, as being firſt Called, and then Juſtified: And Faith being in our Union with Chriſt, but our Union being in Order to our being Juſtified, and our being under the Wrath of God, while yet Unbelievers; and Abraham's Believing, and ſo being Juſtified; and that otherwiſe, a Man muſt ſeek to be Juſtified, that ſo he may Believe; not ſeek to Believe, that ſo he may be Juſtified: And that the Juſtification handled in the Epiſtle to the Romans is God's Judicial Act, and not our bare Apprehenſion thereof; and that the Place which the Falſe Teachers aſſigned unto Works in Juſtification was before it, and that Faith took the place of thoſe Works. But after ſorrowful Diſcourſes, Pro and Con, upon theſe Arguments, Mr. Cotton the next Morning made an Excellent Speech unto the Aſſembly, tending towards an Accommodation of the Controverſie. This Diſpoſition in Mr. Cotton was very Nettling to the Sectaries, who ſtill promiſed themſelves great Advantages from his remaining in any thing a Diſſenter; and they tried by all the Obſtreperous Ways imaginable to hinder the Reconciliation. But the Synod greedily and joyfully laid hold on the Reconciling Offers of Mr. Cotton; and they at length agreed, That we are not United and Married unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt without Faith, giving an actual Conſent of Soul unto it: That God's Effectual calling of the Soul unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the Soul's apprehending by an Act of Faith the offered Righteouſneſs of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, is in Order of Nature before God's Act of Juſtification upon the Soul: That in the Teſtimony of the Holy Spirit, which is the Evidence of our good Eſtate before God, the Qualifications of Inherent Graces, and the Fruits thereof, proving the Sincerity of our Faith muſt ever be Co-exiſtent, Concurrent, Coapparent, or elſe the Conceived Teſtimony of the Spirit, is either a Deluſion or Doubtful. An Happy Concluſion of the whole Matter.

§. 6. Mankind has heard the Doleful and Woful Complaints of the Renowned Gregory Nazianzen, concerning the Councils in his Days: 'Tis known in what Epiſtle of his he ſays, If I muſt Write the very Truth, I am of the Mind to fly from every ſuch Meeting; for I never ſaw a joyful and happy End of any Council; nor any that procured not a greater Augmentation than Reformation of Miſchiefs; and in what Oration of his, he ſays, Our Votes follow either our Hatred or our Friendſhip; we are not conſtant to our ſelves, but even like the waving Euripus; and for my part I count it as unſeemly for me to join with them in their Councils, as it would be for me to leave my Studies, and go play with the Boys in the Street.

But had our Gregory ſeen the Bleſſed Effects of this Council, he would not have expreſſed his Complaints in Terms thus Univerſal. The Miniſters returning from the Synod unto their ſeveral Churches, applied themſelves with a vigorous Unanimity in their Miniſtry, to Root up the Errors which had been by the Synod Thunder-ſtruck; and the good Underſtanding produced among the Members of the Synod extended its influence unto all the Churches therein repreſented. But before the breaking up of the Synod, there were Two other things particularly ſpoken to. One thing was this, it had been a Cuſtom in many Congregations, that the Miniſters allowed their People the Liberty ſtill, after Sermon, to propoſe what Queſtions they thought fit for their further Satisfaction, about any Points which had been delivered; which Liberty was oftentimes made an Occaſion of much Contention, Vexation and Folly in the Aſſemblies: But this Cuſtom now underwent the Condemnations of the Synod. Another thing was this. The Governour knowing that the Country had been exerciſed with ſome Difficulties about The way of raiſing a Maintenance for the Miniſtry, now deſired that the Synod would propound the moſt Evangelical way for it, which the General Court might Enact into a Law: But they one and all ſaid, That they did not care to meddle with that Matter, leſt it ſhould be reflected on them, that they were for their own Ends there come together. At laſt, for the Cloſe of all, Mr. Davenport, at the Requeſt of the Synod, Preached on Phil. 3. 16. Nevertheleſs, whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the ſame Rule, let us mind the ſame Thing; from whence laying down the true Original of Differences among the People of God, he Declared the Reſult of the preſent Synod, and Exhorted all to Endeavour the Peace of the Churches in the Proſecution of that Reſult. And from this time accordingly there was Peace with Truth Eſtabliſhed.

§ 7. Among the more Memorable Occurrents, which were the Conſequents of this moſt uſeful Synod, one was the Diſcipline Exerciſed in the Church of Boſton upon the Principal of the Sectaries; but I muſt herewithal put my Reader upon the Wonder of beholding, that as for the Seditious Diſturbance raiſed in the Country by the Diſtinction between People under the Covenant of Works, and People under the Covenant of Grace, whereby People were ſometimes hurried into Works that ſhew'd little of Grace in them, Dux Fœmina Facti.

The whole of Tertullian's Complaint about the Antient Gnoſticks was inſtanced, and indeed overdone in our Opinioniſts, Omnes tument, Omnes ſcientiam pollicentur, ipſæ Mulieres Hæreticæ quum ſunt procaces! It is the Mark of Seduceers, that they lead Captive Silly Women; but what will you ſay, when you hear of Subtil Women becoming the moſt Remarkable of the Seducers? 'Tis noted of Seducers, that like their Father the Devil, the Old, the Firſt Seducer, they uſually have a ſpecial Deſign upon the Weaker Sex, who are more eaſily Gained themſelves, and then are fit Inſtruments for the Gaining of their Husbands unto ſuch Errors as will cauſe them to Loſe their Souls at laſt. Simon Magus Traded with his Helena, and Montanus with his Maximilla, for the more Effectual Propagation of their Hereſies, as Jerom long ſince obſerved; and as Epiphanius tells us, Arius promoted his Blaſphemies by firſt Proſelyting Seven Hundred Virgins thereunto. Indeed a Poyſon does never Inſinuate ſo quickly, nor Operate ſo ſtrongly, as when Womens Milk is the Vehicle wherein 'tis given. Whereas the Prime Seducer of the whole Faction, which now began to threaten the Country with ſomething like a Munſter Tragedy, was a Woman, a Gentlewoman of an Haughty Carriage, Buſie Spirit, Competent Wit, and a Voluble Tongue; among whoſe Relations at this Day, there are ſo many Worthy and Uſeful Perſons, that for their ſakes I would gladly contrive ſome way to relate ſo Important a Story as that of her Affairs, without mentioning of Her Name; and therefore I will cover it with a Convenient Periphraſis. Behold, Reader, Nulla fere cauſa eſt, in qua non Fœmina Litem Moverit.

§. 8. This our Erroneous Gentlewoman, at her coming out of Lincolnſhire in England unto New-England, upon pretence of Religion, was well reſpected among the Profeſſors of this Religion; and this the more, becauſe at the Meetings of the Women, which uſe to be called Goſſipings, it was her manner to carry on very Pious Diſcourſes, and ſo put the Neighbourhood upon Examining their Spiritual Eſtates, by telling them how far a Perſon might go in Trouble of Mind; and being reſtrained from very many Evils, and conſtrained unto very many Duties, by none but a Legal Work upon their Souls, without ever coming to a Saving Union with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that many of them were convinced of a very great Defect in the Settlement of their Everlaſting Peace, and acquainted more with the Spirit of the Goſpel, than ever they were before. This mighty Show and Noiſe of Devotion, procured unto our Dame, [ANAGR.] The Non-ſuch the Reputation of a Non-ſuch among the People; until at length, under the Pretence of that Warrant, That the Elder Women are to Teach the Younger, ſhe ſet up weekly Meetings at her Houſe, whereto Threeſcore or Fourſcore People would Reſort, that they might hear the Sermons of Mr. Cotton repeated, but in ſuch a ſort, that after the Repetition, ſhe would make her Explicatory and Applicatory Declamations, wherein what ſhe confirmed of the Sermons muſt be Canonical, but what ſhe omitted all Apocrypha.

It was not long before 'twas found, that moſt of the Errors, then crawling like Vipers about the Country, were hatched at theſe Meetings; where this notable Woman, who called her ſelf another Priſcilla, to Inſtruct others more perfectly, did ſet her ſelf moſt perfectly to confound all the Intereſts of Chriſtianity with Damnable Doctrines, which maintained our Perſonal Union with the Spirit of God; and, The Inſignificancy of Sanctification to be any Evidence of our good Eſtate; and, The Pertinency of Commands to work out our own Salvation with Fear and Trembling, and give all diligence to make our Calling and Election ſure, unto none but ſuch as were in a Covenant of Works; and, The ſetting up of Immediate Revelation about Future Events, to be believed as Equally Infallible with the Scriptures: And it was wonderful to ſee with what a ſpeedy and ſpreading Faſcination theſe Doctrines did bewitch the Minds of People, which one would not have imagined Capable of being ſo Beſotted.

She was all this while ſo cunning, that Mr. Cotton could get no better Evidences of her broaching theſe Opinions, than ſhe had of her own Juſtification; but ſtill unto him, and ſuch as came from him, ſhe would expreſs her ſelf with a ſatisfying Orthodoxy; however, whilſt Mr. Cotton's Candor was thus abuſed, he faithfully told her, That he doubted ſhe would at laſt be found Not Right; and this for Three Things which he had obſerved in her; one was, that her Faith was not produced, and ſcarce ever ſtrengthened, according to her own Relation, by the publick Miniſtry of the Word, but by her own private Meditations and Revelations; another was, that ſhe clearly diſcerned her Juſtification, according to her own Confeſſion, but little or nothing at all her Sanctification: A third was, that ſhe was more ſharply Cenſorious about the States and Hearts of other People, than the Self-judging Servants of God uſed to be. And now attend the Iſſue!

§. 9. At laſt full proof was obtained, that this Gentlewoman was not the Priſcilla pretended, but rather deſerving the Name of the Propheteſs in the Church of Thyatira; it was proved, that more than a Score of Antinomian and Familiſtical Errors had been held forth by her, and the Church was Reſolved that ſhe ſhould no more ſeduce the Servants of our Lord. The Admonitions of the Church were by the Elders, according to the Rule of the Goſpel, given unto her; and after many Endeavours of Mr. Cotton to convince her, ſhe did ſeem to be convinced of her many Erroneous Ways, both in Judgment and Practice; therewithal preſenting under her own Hand, before the whole Church of Boſton, yea, before many Churches then aſſembled at the Lecture in Boſton, a Recantation of them. Neverthele ſs, under ſuch an Infatuation of Pride ſhe was, that whilſt the Church was debating about this Recantation, ſhe did with a ſtrange Confidence and Impudence Aſſert, That ſhe never was really of any Opinion contrary to the Declaration ſhe had now made; however, ſome of her Expreſſions had been miſconſtrued; whereupon many Witneſſes aroſe, which demonſtrated her guilty of groſs Lying in that Aſſertion: And that cauſed Mr. Cotton to ſay, that her Caſe was now altered; for being now Convicted of Lying, he thought [illegible] was to be caſt out with them that Love and Make a Lie. So, with the full conſent of the Church, the Sentence of Excommunication was paſſed upon her.

§. 10. But the Seditions raiſed in the Country by the means of this Virago, procured the Animadverſions of the Court, as well as the Church, upon her; before which being brought, ſhe made a canting Harangue about her immediate Revelations; concluding her Speech with theſe Words, I will give you one Place more which the Lord brought to me by immediate Revelation; and that doth concern you all; it is in Dan. 6. When the Preſidents and Princes could find nothing againſt him, becauſe he was faithful, they ſought Matter againſt him concerning the Law of his God, to caſt him into the Lion's Den. So it was Revealed unto me, that they ſhould Plot againſt me; but the Lord bid me not fear, for he that delivered Daniel and the Three Children, his Hand was not ſhortned. And ſee this Scripture this Day fulfilled in mine Eyes; therefore take heed what you go about to do unto me; for you have no Power over my Body, neither can you do me any Harm; for I am in the Hands of the Eternal Jehovah my Saviour; I am at his Appointment; the Bounds of my Habitation are caſt in Heaven; I fear none but the great Jehovah, who hath foretold me of theſe Things; and I do verily believe that he will deliver me, and this by Miracle, out of your Hands. Therefore take heed how you proceed againſt me; for I know, that for this you go about to do to me, God will Ruin you, and your Poſterity, and this whole State. She alſo inſiſted much upon that Scripture, Tho' I make a full End of all Nations, yet will I not make a full End of thee.

But the Court put an End unto her vapouring Talk; and finding no hope of Reclaiming her from her Scandalous, Dangerous and Enchanting Extravagancies, ordered her to depart out of the Colony: So ſhe went firſt unto Rhode Iſland; but not liking to ſtay there, ſhe removed with her Family unto a Dutch Plantation called Hebgate: Where, within a little while, the Indians Treacherouſly and Barbarouſly Murthered them, to the Number of Sixteen Perſons, on the Occaſion of a Quarrel they had with the Dutch thereabouts; and made an End of ſcarce any but her Family among all the Neighbour Nations.

§. 11. While theſe things were managing, there happened ſome very ſurprizing Prodigies, which were lookt upon as Teſtimonies from Heaven, againſt the ways of thoſe greater Prodigies, the Sectaries. The Erroneous Gentlewoman her ſelf, convicted of holding about Thirty Monſtrous Opinions, growing Big with Child, and at length coming to her time of Travail, was delivered of about Thirty Monſtrous Births at once; whereof ſome were Bigger, ſome were

Leſſer; of ſeveral Figures; few of any Perfect, none of any Humane Shape. This was a thing generally then Aſſerted and Believed; whereas, by ſome that were Eye-witneſſes, it is affirmed, that theſe were no more Monſtrous Births, than what it is frequent for Women, labouring with falſe Conceptions, to produce. Moreover, one very nearly Related unto this Gentlewoman, and infected with her Hereſies, was on October 17, 1637. delivered of as hideous a Monſter as perhaps the Sun ever lookt upon. It had no Head; the Face was below upon the Breaſt; the Ears were like an Apes, and grew upon the Shoulders; the Eyes and Mouth ſtood far out; the Noſe was hooking upwards; the Breaſt and Back were full of ſhort Prickles, like a Thorn-back; the Navel, Belly, and the Diſtinction of Sex, which was Female, were in the place of the Hips; and thoſe Back-parts were on the ſame ſide with the Face; the Arms, Hands, Thighs and Legs, were as other Childrens; but inſtead of Toes, it had on each Foot three Claws, with Talons like a Fowl; upon the Back above the Belly it had a Couple of great Holes like Mouths; and in each of them ſtood out a Couple of pieces of Fleſh; it had no Forehead, but above the Eyes it had Four Horns; Two of above an Inch Long, Hard and Sharp; and the other Two ſomewhat Leſs. The Midwife was one ſtrongly ſuſpected of Witchcraft; and a prime Familiſt: Thro' whoſe Witchcrafts probably it came to paſs, that moſt of the Women preſent at the Travel were ſuddenly taken with ſuch a violent Vomiting and Purging, tho' they had neither Eaten or Drunken any thing to Occaſion it, that they were forced immediately to go Home; others had their Children ſo taken with Convulſions, which they never had before or after, that they alſo were ſent for Home immediately; whence none were left at the time of the Monſter's Birth, but the Midwife and Two more, whereof one was fallen aſleep: And about the time of the Monſter's Death, which was Two Hours before its Birth, ſuch an odd Shake was by inviſible Hands given to the Bed as terrify'd the Standers-by. It was Buried without any Noiſe of its Monſtroſity; but it being whiſpered a few Days after about the Town, the Magiſtrates ordered the opening of the Grave, whereby there was diſcovered this Monſtrum, Horrendum, in forme, Ingens.

But of this Monſter, good Reader, let us talk no further: For at this Inſtant I find an odd Paſſage in a Letter of the famous Mr. Thomas Hooker about this Matter; namely this, While I was thus Muſing, and thus Writing, my Study where I was Writing, and the Chamber where my Wife was ſitting, ſhook, as we thought, with an Earthquake, by the ſpace of half a quarter of an Hour. We both perceived it, and preſently went down. My Maid in the Kitchen obſerved the ſame. My Wife ſaid, it was the Devil that was diſpleaſed that we confer about this Occaſion.

§. 12. It was but a few Years after theſe things, namely in the Year 1643. that the Government of Barbados being diſturbed by ſuch Turbulent and Tumultuous Familiſts, as thoſe which now peſtered New-England, were forced by their Outrages to ſentence them with Baniſhment. Nor muſt it be made a Reproach, if New-England alſo ordered a ſort of Baniſhment for theſe intoxicated Sectaries, who began to Deny or Degrade the Magiſtracy of the Country, and call the King of England, the King of Babylon; but you ſhall hear the effect of that Procedure. Being adviſed of an Iſland beyond Cape-Cod, and near the Narraganſet-Bay, they fairly purchaſed it of the Natives; thither they tranſplanted themſelves with their Families; in this Tranſplantation, accompanied by many others of their own Uncertainty in Religion; who yet had not come under any Cenſures of either the Court or the Church for their Miſdemeanours. Having peopled this Iſland, now known by the Name of Rhode Iſland, they ſwarmed over unto the Main, where they alſo purchaſed ſome Tracts of Land, now covered with the Two Towns of Providence and Warwick; for all of which they obtained at laſt a Charter from King Charles II. with ample Priviledges. I cannot learn that the Firſt Planters of this Colony were agreed in any one Principle ſo much as this, That they were to give one another no diſturbance in the Exerciſe of Religion; and tho' they have ſometimes had ſome Difference among them, as to the Exerciſe of that Principle alſo, I believe there never was held ſuch a variety of Religions together on ſo ſmall a Spot of Ground as have been in that Colony. It has been a Colluvies of Antinomians, Familiſts, Anabaptiſts, Antiſabbatarians, Arminians, Socinians, Quakers, Ranters, every thing in the World but Roman Catholicks, and Real Chriſtians, tho' of the Latter, I hope, there have been more than of the Former among them; ſo that if a Man had loſt his Religion, he might find it at this general Muſter of Opinioniſts! 'Tis a good Peice of Antiquity that Joſephus has given us, when he tells us the Conſequences of Nehemiah's chaſing away a Son of Jojada, the Son of Eliaſh the High-Prieſt, for Marrying the Daughter of Sanballat the Horonite, the chief Perſon among the Samaritans. The Father-in-law of this Menaſſes (for it ſeems that was his Name) built a Temple on Gerizzim, in Oppoſition to that at Jeruſalem, and obtained a Charter from the Kings of Perſia for the Encouragement thereof, that ſo his Daughter Nicaſſo (for ſo ſhe was called) might not loſe her Huſband, who was thus made a Metropolitan. After this time, all that were Indited for Crimes at Jeruſalem would fly to Gerizzim, and Sichem was now the common Receptacle and Sanctuary of Jewiſh Offendors: This, as R. Abrah. Zaccuth tells us, This was the beginning of Hereſie! And now, with ſome Alluſion to that Piece of Antiquity, I may venture to ſay, That Rhode Iſland has uſually been the Geriz- zim of New-England. The Iſland is indeed, for the Fertility of the Soil, the Temperateneſs of the Air, the Commodiouſneſs of Scituation, the beſt Garden of all the Colonies; and were it free from Serpents, I would have called it, The Paradiſe of New-England: But the number of Senſible and Ingenious Gentlemen, whereof there are ſome upon the Iſland, will find it hard enough to Reſcue it from an extream Danger of that Character, Bona Terra, Mala Gens. The Condition of the Riſing Generation upon that Iſland, is indeed exceeding Lamentable! Lactantius complains of Arceſilaus, that having much conſidered the Contradictions of the Philoſophers one unto another, at laſt he contemned them all, and inſtituted a New Philoſophy, of Not Philoſophiſing at all. The former Generation of Rhode Iſlanders is now generally gone off the Stage; and all the Meſſengers which the Churches of the Maſſachuſet-Colony, whereto any of them did belong, ſent with Admonitions after them, could Reclaim very few of them: The Riſing Generation, confounded by the Contradictions in Religion among their Parents, are under many horrible Temptations, and under ſome unhappy Tendencies, to be of no Religion at all: And when the Miniſters of this Province have ſeveral times, at their own united Expences, employ'd certain Miniſters of the Goſpel, to make a Chargeleſs tender of Preaching the Word among them, this Charitable offer of Miniſters has been refuſed: Tho' it ſeems they are now beginning to embrace it; the Indefatigable, and Evangelical, and very Laudable Induſtry of Mr. John Danforth, the Miniſter of Dorcheſter, has, with the Bleſſing of our Lord thereupon, overcome a Number of them, not only to hear the Goſpel, from a worthy young Preacher, Mr. Nathanael Clap, ſent thither, but alſo to build a Meeting-houſe for that purpoſe: Yea, and the liberal Merchants of Boſton have in this preſent Year 1695. been exemplary, by their bearing the Expences of Miniſters which we have ſent forth to make Tenders of the Goſpel unto other Paganizing Plantations on the Main belonging to that Colony; albeit ſome of thoſe Tenders alſo have been Scandalouſly Rejected by the Inhabitants. If I ſhould now Launch forth into a Narrative of the Marvellous lewd Things which have been done and ſaid by the giddy Sectaries of this Iſland, I confeſs the Matter would be agreeable enough to the Nature and the Deſign of a Church Hiſtory, and for a Warning unto all to take heed, how they forſake the Word of God and His Ordinances in the Societies of the Faithful, and follow the conduct of New Lights, that are no more than ſo many Fools-Fires in the Iſſue; but the Merriment ariſing from the Ridiculous and Extravagant Occurrences therein, would not be agreeable to the Gravity of ſuch an Hiſtory. Wherefore I forbear it; only wiſhing that the People of this Iſland may effectually feel the favourable Influences and Protections of the Crown of England, extended unto them, inaſmuch as the Ridiculouſly Comical Expreſſions of their late Addreſs to the Queen, Jan. 30. 1689. are, May it pleaſe Your Excellent Majeſty; We humbly Petition Your moſt Excellent Majeſties Grace and Favour towards us Your moſt humble Subjects and Supplicants, that You would pleaſe, being Pater Patriæ, to extend your Fatherly Care, in Granting a Confirmation to our Charter. Whereupon they add, Your Tranſcendent Love and Favour extended towards us, hath ſo Radicated it ſelf in our Hearts, never to be forgotten, that it obliges us to offer up our Selves, Lives and Fortunes, to be at Your Majeſty's Service, beyond the power of any Command.

Ignes Fatui: Or, The Moleſtations given to the Churches of New-England by that Odd Sect of People called Quakers. And ſome uncomfortable Occurrents relating to a Sect of Other and Better People.

Hæreſes non dolemus veniſſe, quia novimus eſſe Prædictas. Tertul.

§. 1. IF the Churches of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt muſt in every Age be aſſaulted by Hereticks, acting under the Energy of that old Serpent, who knowing that as the Firſt Creation, ſo the New Creation begins with Light, hath uſed Thouſands of Blinds to keep a ſaving Light from entring into the Souls of Men, that being a People of wrong Underſtanding, he that made them ſhall not have Mercy on them: It muſt be Expected that the Churches of New-England ſhould undergo ſome Aſſaults from the worſt of Hereticks that this Age has produced. Now I know not whether the Sect, which hath appeared in our Days under the Name of Quakers, be not upon many Accounts the worſt of Hereticks; for in Quakeriſm, which has by ſome been called, The Sink of all Hereſies, we ſee the Vomit caſt out in the By-paſt Ages, by whole Kennels of Seducers, lick'd up again for a New Digeſtion, and once more expoſed for the Poiſoning of Mankind; though it pretends unto Light, yet by the means of that very Pretence it leaves the bewildred Souls of Men in Chains under Darkneſs, and gives them up to the Conduct of an Ignis Fatuus: But this I ~~know~~, they have been the

the moſt Venemous of all to the Churches of America. The beginning of this Upſtart Sect has been declared, by one who was a Pillar of it, in a Pamphlet written in the Year 1659. where this Paſſage occurrs, It is now about Seven Years ſince the Lord raiſed us up: And the North of England was reckon'd the Place of its Nativity. Nevertheleſs, I can tell the World that the Firſt Quakers that ever were in the World, were certain Fanaticks here in our Town of Salem, who held forth almoſt all the Fancies and Whimſies which a few Years after were broached by them that were ſo called in England, with whom yet none of ours had the leaſt Communication; except my Reader will rather look for the Firſt Quakers at the Delphian Oracle upon Parnaſſus, [Originally perhaps פרענחש Parai-nahas, i. e. Hiatus Divinationis] where the Uſage was, for a certain Woman ſitting upon a Tripos over a Cave, to be poſſeſſed with a Dæmon, in the Scripture called Ob, which entring into her, ſhe was immediately taken with an extraordinary Trembling of her whole Body, and Foaming horribly, there Iſſued from her the Prophecies which Enchanted all the World into a Veneration of them. Our Salem Quakers indeed of themſelves died Childleſs; but the Numbers of thoſe in England increaſing, they did in the Year 1657. find a way into New-England, where they Firſt infeſted Plymouth Colony, and were for a while moſt unhappily ſucceſsful in ſeducing the People, not only to attend unto the Myſtical Diſpenſations of the Light within, as having the whole of Religion contained therein, but alſo to oppoſe the good Order, both Civil and Sacred, erected in the Colony. Thoſe Perſons in the Maſſachuſets-Colony, whoſe Office it was to be Watchman of it, were much Alarumed at the Approach of ſo great a Plague, and were at ſome Loſs how to prevent it, and avoid it. Altho' Quakeriſm has been by the New-Turn, that ſuch ingenious Men as Mr. Penn have given to it, become quite a New Thing; yet the old Foxian Quakeriſm, which then viſited New-England, was the groſſeſt Collection of Blaſphemies and Confuſions that ever was heard of. The Chriſt then witneſſed by the Quakers was, A certain Heavenly, Divine Body, conſtituted of inviſible Fleſh, Blood and Bones, in which Chriſt came from Heaven; and he put that Body into the other Body of our Nature, which he took of the Virgin, and that outermoſt Body he left behind, when he aſcended into Heaven, no Body knows where; and this heavenly and ſpiritual Body, (which the Quakers at length Evaporate into a meer Myſtical Diſpenſation, and at laſt it is nothing but that Excuſing and Condemning Principle in Man which we call, The Natural Conſcience !) is the Man Chriſt, a meaſure of which is in the Quakers; upon which Accounts the Quakers made themſelves to be Chriſts, as truly as ever was Jeſus the Son of Mary. There is in every Man a certain excuſing and condemning Principle; which indeed is nothing but ſome Remainder of the Divine Image, left by the compaſſion of God upon the Conſcience of Man after his Fall; and this Principle the Quakers called, A meaſure of the Man Chriſt, the Light, the Seed, the Word. The whole Hiſtory of the Goſpel they therefore beheld as Acted over again every Day as Literally as ever it was in Paleſtine; and what befals this Principle in us, they advanced as the Truth of Chriſt Sacrificed for us, Dying, Riſing, Sitting at the Right Hand of God, and coming in Clouds to Judgment. They ſet themſelves hereupon to extinguiſh our whole Chriſtian Religion, for theſe Airy Notions to ſucceed in the Room thereof; they ſcoffed at our Imagined God beyond the Stars; and ſaid, Your Carnal Chriſt is utterly denied by the Light; the expreſs Words in the Preachments of theſe Quaking Holders-forth (as 'tis in Print atteſted by ſome of themſelves that had ſo much Chriſtianity as to leave them upon the Scandal of it) have been; it is the Work of the Devil to cauſe People, that have profeſt the Appearance of Chriſt in the Heart, to reſpect the Perſon without them. And, it is a Deluſion to direct the Minds of the People to reſpect Chriſt, as he is now in Heaven above the Clouds. They Stiled thoſe Blind Beaſts and Liars, who ſhould ſay that the Scriptures reveal God; and affirm'd it, The greateſt Error in the World, and the Ground of all Errors, to ſay, The Scriptures are a Rule for Chriſtians. They ſaid, That the Scripture does not tell People of a Trinity, nor Three Perſons in God, but that thoſe Three Perſons are brought in by the Pope. They held, That juſtification by that Righteouſneſs, which Chriſt fulfilled in his own Perſon without us, is a Doctrine of Devils. They held, That they that believe in Chriſt are not miſerable Sinners, nor do thoſe things they ought not to do. They ſaid, If the Bodies of Men riſe again, then there is a Preheminence in the Bodies of Men above the Bodies of Beaſts, which is to give Solomon the Lie. They ſaid, They are like to be deceived, who are expecting that Chriſt's ſecond coming will be Perſonal. They ſaid, Thoſe things called Ordinances, as Baptiſm, Bread and Wine, roſe from the Pope's Invention. They ſaid, As for that called, The Lord's Day, People do not underſtand what they ſay; every Day is the Lord's Day. And for Prayer it ſelf, they ſaid, All muſt ceaſe from their own Words, and from their own Time, and learn to be Silent, until the Spirit give them Utterance. The ſaid— But it would be Endleſs to Enumerate their Hereſies; what we have already Enumerated is enough to Aſtoniſh us; in all of which I ſolemnly proteſt unto the Reader, that I have not wronged them at all, but kept cloſe to their own Printed Words. Reader, Thou canſt not behold theſe Hereſies, without the Exclamation Ordinarily uſed by the Bleſſed Polycarp, when he heard any ſuch Matters uttered; Good God, unto what Times haſt thou reſerved me ! The Zeal of the Maſſachuſet-Colony, to preſerve themſelves from the Annoyances of ſuch a Blaſphemous and Confuſed Generation of Men, cauſed them to make

Sharp Laws againſt them, in hopes that the Terror thereby given to theſe Evil Doers, would keep them from any Invaſion upon the Colony. But They muſt needs go whom the Devil drives; theſe Devil-driven Creatures did but the more furiouſly puſh themſelves upon the Government, for the Sharp which had been turned upon them; whereupon the Government unhappily proceeded unto the Execution of the Laws in Scourging, and then Baniſhing, and (upon their Mad return) Executing Three or Four of the Chief Offenders: But they conſidered theſe Wretches, Non qua Errones, ſed qua Turbones, in thus proceeding againſt them. If the Reader enquire with what Spirit they died, I muſt ſincerely ſay, that as far as I can learn, they ſhow'd little enough of the Spirit of Martyrdom. They died not like the true Martyrs of Jeſus Chriſt, with the Glorious Spirit of God reſting on them. A Fierce, a Raging, a Sullen, and a Revengeful Spirit, and a Degree of Madneſs rather inſpired them; nor is the Fallacious Hiſtory of Gerard Croeſe concerning theſe Matters to be credited.

§. 2. A great Clamour hath been raiſed againſt New-England for their Perſecution of the Quakers; and if any Man will appear in the Vindication of it, let him do as he pleaſe; for my Part I will not. I am verily perſwaded theſe miſerable Quakers would in a little while (as we have now ſeen) have come to nothing, if the Civil Magiſtrate had not inflicted any Civil Penalty upon them; nor do I look upon Hæreticide as an Evangelical way, for the extinguiſhing of Hereſies; but rather ſay with the Judicious Hommius, Magiſtratus, propter Solum Hæreſeos Crimen, non quenquam occidat, niſi forte horrendæ atq; intolerandæ in Deum Blaſphemiæ, vel manifeſtæ Seditionis Crimen accedat. 'Tis true, theſe Quakers did manifeſt an Intolerable Contempt of Authority, and needleſly pull upon themſelves a Vengeance, from which the Authority would gladly have releaſed them, if they would have accepted of a Releaſe; but it is alſo true, that they were Madmen, a ſort of Lunaticks, Dæmoniacks and Energumens: He was a Wiſe and a Good Counſellor in Plymouth-Colony who propounded, That a Law might be made for the Quakers to have their Heads Shaved; the Puniſhment, I confeſs, was in ſome ſort Capital; but it would have been the beſt Remedy for them; it would have both Sham'd and Cur'd them: Or perhaps the Puniſhment which A. Gellius reports the Romans on certain Special Occaſions uſed upon their Soldiers, namely, To let 'em Blood, had been very agreeable for theſe Quakers. A Bethlehem ſeems to have been fitter for them than a Gallows. Nevertheleſs, I am not unwilling to Tranſcribe one Paſſage on this Occaſion, that ſo my Reader, upon the whole, may proceed unto what Cenſure he ſhall pleaſe to beſtow upon the Matter.

It ſhall be a few Lines of A Declaration of the General Court of the Maſſachuſets, held at Boſton, Octob. 18. 1659. Publiſhed for the Satisfaction of the People; a great part of whom were much diſſatisfied at what had been done.

‘About Three Years ſince, diverſe Perſons profeſſing themſelves Quakers (of whoſe Pernicious Opinions and Practices we had received Intelligence from good Hands) both from Barbados and England, arrived at Boſton, whoſe Perſons were only ſecured to be ſent away by the firſt Opportunity, without Cenſure or Puniſhment, although their profeſſed Tenets, Turbulent and Contemptuous Behaviour to Authority, would have juſtified a ſeverer Animadverſion.——A Law was made and Publiſhed, Prohibiting all Maſters of Ships to bring any Quakers into this Juriſdiction, and themſelves from coming in, on Penalty of the Houſe of Correction, till they could be ſent away. Notwithſtanding which, by a Back-door they found Entrance; and the Penalty inflicted on them proving Inſufficient to reſtrain their Impudent and Inſolent Obtruſions, was increaſed — which alſo being too weak a Defence againſt their Impetuous and Fanatick Fury, neceſſitated us to Endeavour our Security; and upon ſerious Conſideration, a Law was made that ſuch Perſons ſhould be Baniſhed on Pain of Death, according to the Example of England, in their Proviſion againſt Jeſuites; which Sentence being regularly pronounced, at the laſt Court of Aſſiſtents againſt theſe Parties, and they either returning, or continuing preſumptuouſly in this Juriſdiction after the time limited, were apprehended, and owning themſelves to be the Perſons Baniſhed, were ſentenced by the Court to Death —— which hath been Executed upon Two of them. M. D. upon the Interceſſion of a Son, had Liberty to depart, and accepted of it.— The Conſideration of our Gradual Proceedings, will vindicate us from the Clamorous Accuſations of Severity. Our own juſt and neceſſary Defence calling upon us (other Means failing) to offer the Point, which theſe Perſons have violently and wilfully ruſhed upon, and thereby became Felones de ſe,— as well as the ſparing of One upon an Inconſiderable Interceſſion, will manifeſtly Evince we deſire their Lives abſent, rather than their Deaths preſent. Thus the Declaration.

Reader, If this alſo will further alleviate the Buſineſs, I muſt not conceal it; that it was very enraging unto the Zeal of thoſe Godly Men, who then govern'd us, to hear theſe Wretches ordinarily ſaying among the People, We deny thy Chriſt! We deny thy God, which thou calleſt Father, Son and Spirit! Thy Bible is the Word of the Devil! And the Spirit of that Crew was yet more Provoking, Pernicious and Perillous, as one of them has diſcovered it in a Writing Publiſhed, Againſt all Earthly Powers, Parliaments, Laws, Charters, Magiſtrates and Princes. George Fox, who of a Shoemaker, became the Grand Apoſtle of the Quakers; tho' he were unable to Write Common Senſe, yet wrote ſeveral Pamphlets; in one of which (Entituled, Papers given forth) he bitterly inveigh'd againſt thoſe who doated on an Earthly King; and added Neither do you read that there were any Kings ſince the Apoſtles Days, but among the Apoſtate Chriſtians and the Falſe Church. And one, who yet calls himſelf a Quaker, hath lately ſo far forſaken them, as to Publiſh a Diſcovery of the horrible Doings that he hath found among his Friends; and he particularly proves, that they do not own any Government for God's Ordinance, but that of thoſe who Witneſs to their Light within; and that they call every other Government, conſiſting of Rulers, Judges, Juſtices, Lawyers and Conſtables, a Tree that muſt be cut down, for the Light alone to Rule. I appeal to all the reaſonable part of Mankind, whether the Infant Colonies of New-England had not cauſe to guard themſelves againſt theſe Dangerous Villains. It was alſo thought that the very Quakers themſelves would ſay, that if they had got into a Corner of the World, and with an Immenſe Toyl and Charge made a Wilderneſs Habitable, on purpoſe there to be undiſturbed in the Exerciſes of their Worſhip, they would never bear to have New-Englanders come among them, and Interrupt their Publick Worſhip, and Endeavour to Seduce their Children from it, yea, and repeat ſuch Endeavours after mild Entreaties firſt, and then juſt Baniſhments, to oblige their departure. What ſhall I ſay? There was the Phrenſie of the Old Circumcellions in thoſe Quakers; and according to that Paſſage of the Tragedian in his Hercules Furens, Solus, te jam præſtare poteſt Furor, inſontem, thus I muſt ſay upon the Mad Subjects of theſe Tragedies: If they had not been Mad, they had been Worthy to die. But I will inform the World of a better Vindication for my Country than all this; namely, that they did by a Solemn Act afterwards Renounce whatever Laws are againſt a Juſt Liberty of Conſcience. I would alſo intreat the World, that they would not be too ready to receive all Stories told by the Quakers about their New-England-Perſecution; becauſe the Quakers have in Print complained of a New-England-Perſecution upon Two Women of their Sect, who came Stark Naked as ever they were Born into our Publick Aſſemblies, and they were (Baggages that they were!) adjudged unto the Whipping-Poſt for that Peice of Deviliſm. Their Stories about the Sufferings are as little to be credited, as their Stories about their Miracles; and particularly that of George Fox having the Gift of Tongues; becauſe that proud Fool, who could ſcarce Write his Name, hath ſet his Name to a Book of above Thirty Languages, [called, The Batteldoor,] when it was afterwards found that certain Jews were hired to do that Work, and had Fourſcore Pounds for their Pains, and a Dozen Bottles of Wine over and above.

§. 3. The more ſenſible ſort of Men, that go under the Name of Quakers, finding the groſs Hereſies of the Old Foxian-Quakeriſm to be ſo Indefenſible and Abominable in the Reſentments of reaſonable People, have of later time ſet themſelves to refine it with ſuch Conceſſions and Confeſſions of Truth, as that in their Syſtem it is quite another thing than what once it was. But the New-England Quakeriſm, in thoſe Nooks of the Country where this Choakweed of Chriſtianity yet remains, is, as far as I can underſtand, ſtill that Old Foxian Quakeriſm, which does utterly renounce the Letter of every thing, that the Finer ſort of New Quakers are compelled now to own ſomething of; nevertheleſs theſe New Quakers cover their Sentiments with ſuch Fallacious and Ambiguous Expreſſions, that all Fox's groſs Quakeriſm can be at once either aſſerted or denied, under thoſe Modes of ſpeaking, which Penn, Barclay, Whitehead, and others uſe to ſerve their Finer Hypotheſis; and in our Combates with them, Difficilius eſt Invenire quam Vincere. There was one Keith particularly, who differed almoſt as much from the generality of the New-Engliſh Quakers, as we that Perſecuted them; and yet he did ſuch an Unaccountable thing, as to appear like a Champion for them, in Oppoſition to the Churches of New-England, until the Miniſters of Boſton were put upon Publiſhing of divers Books to maintain the Religion of our Churches againſt his Impetuous Batteries. But it came to paſs, that afterwards this very Keith appeared publickly in the Confutation of thoſe Quakers, that are by far the moſt numerous of any ſo Denominated, not only in New-England, but alſo in Penſylvania. In the Year 1694. he Printed a Quarto Treatiſe, in Confutation of above Thirty Groſs Errors, commonly held among them; and his Teſtimonies, at laſt, procured him and his few Adherents a Storm of Perſecution from the Friends at Penſylvania, who had formerly made ſuch Tragical Outcries againſt the Perſecution which New-England had heretofore uſed upon far greater Provocation. By the ſame Token that an Almanack for the Year 1694. compoſed by one of them, has this Article of Chronology.

Since the Engliſh in New-England Hanged their Countrymen for Religion. ———	Years 36.
Since at Philadelphia ſome did little leſs, by taking away Goods, and Impriſoning ſome, and Condemning others without Trial, for Religious Diſſent. ———	—— 3.

There are many Grounds of Hope, That the Days of prevailing Quakeriſm will be but Threeſcore Years and Ten; and if by reaſon of Mens weakneſs they be Fourſcore Years, yet the Strength of it will then be waſted, it will ſoon be cut off and fly away: And among thoſe Grounds, I cannot but reckon the Alterations which the Sect of Quakers do experience, not only in the Points of their Faith, but alſo in that odd Symptom of Quaking, which by its uſing to Arreſt the Bodies of their Converts, gave Denomination to them; for as one of their own expreſſes it, The mighty Motions of the Bodies of the Friends are now ceaſed, and Friends are ſtill cool and quiet; the ſhaking and quaking of Friends Bodies were to purge out Sin; but the ſtilneſs being come, the Mind is brought into a Capacity to diſcern the Voice of the Lord. And indeed, as the Quaking which diſtinguiſhed theſe poor Creatures, was a Symptom of Diabolical Poſſeſſion; ſo e'er I diſmiſs this Matter, I muſt obſerve to my Reader, that there could be nothing leſs than a Diabolical Poſſeſſion, in many other things that attended and advanced Quakeriſm at its firſt appearance in the World, and that are in ſome ſorts of Quakers unto this Day to be Exemplified. It was no rare thing for the Old Set of Quakers to Proſelyte People meerly by Stroaking or by Breathing on them; they had no ſooner uſed ſome ſuch Action toward ſuch as they had a Deſign upon, but the Bewitched People would behave themſelves juſt as if a Philtre had been given them, and would follow their Converters in every thing, without being able to render any Reaſon for it. And there is, even at this Day, a Crew of Quakers called Caſe's Crew, the Diſciples of one Tom Caſe, who have been ſo Troubleſome and Vexatious, even to the other Quakers themſelves, that they have denied theſe; but of this Prodigious Tom and his Crew, there are things well known throughout this Country that are indeed prodigiouſly Diabolical. 'Tis well known, that ſome of thoſe whom this Villain had led Captive at his Will, were ſo much under his Influence, that if upon their coming where he was he faſtned his Eye upon 'em, they would preſently Tremble, and Stagger, and Fall, and Foam like Epileptical Perſons, and roul about upon the Ground, until they had roul'd themſelves unto his Feet, where he did what he pleaſed unto them. I am well acquainted with one very Devout Gentleman, recovered happily from the Captivity wherein this Fellow for many Years had held the Soul of him, who has aſſured me, that he was himſelf thus Epileptical, as often as this Elymas would pleaſe with his Faſcinating Eye to make him ſo, but never any ſuch way affected before or after, or upon any other Occaſion. 'Tis well known, that this Villain pretending to ſhow a Miracle, did but look upon a very Mad Bull, one perhaps as Mad as himſelf, and one that would approach no Man, except it were to Miſchief him, and this Bull would come tamely, gently, ſtrangely to him, and lick his Hands like a Spaniel. Nevertheleſs, when this Coxcomb once attempted the Miracle of a Reſurrection upon a Dead Friend, the Friend, it ſeems, was not in a Diſpoſition to Riſe upon his calling of him.

I will give my Reader the Entertainment of Two or Three very well atteſted Stories, and then ask his leave to have done with a Generation which it can be no great Satisfaction to meddle with.

About the beginning of November, 1681. a Man whoſe Name was Denham, with Two Women, all belonging to Caſe's Crew, went unto Southold upon Long-Iſland, where they met with one Samuel Banks of Fairfield, the moſt Blaſphemous Wretch in the World. Theſe joining together with ſome others of their Bran at Southold, went into the Company of one Thomas Harris, a Young Merchant of Boſton, who had before this been a little inclining to the Quakers; and they fell to Dancing and Singing after their Deviliſh manner about him. After ſome time, Thomas Harris fell to Dancing and Singing like them, and ſpeaking of Extraordinary Raptures, and calling thoſe Devils that were not of this Religion, and a perfect Imitation of all their Deviliſm. When he had ſhown theſe Tokens of Converſion, as they accounted it, they ſolemnly admitted him into their Society, and one of them thereupon promiſed him, Henceforward thy Tongue ſhall be as the Pen of a ready Writer, to declare the Praiſes of our Lord. The Young Man, who before this was of a compoſ'd Behaviour, now ran about with an odd Note of Joy! Joy! Joy! And called them Devils that any way oppoſed him, and ſaid, (more than he intended) That his own Father was a Devil! Quickly after this, going to Lodge at a Farm not far off, where dwelt a Quaker of the Same Spirit, he would go to Bed before the reſt of the Family; but upon another Young Man's coming to him, he ſaid, he muſt get up and return that Night unto Southold, where he had left his Company; and though the Young Man would have perſwaded him to lye ſtill until Day, he would not be perſwaded, up he got, and went his way. Within ſome while he was miſſing, and upon enquiry he could not be heard of, only his Hat, and Gloves, and Neckcloth were found in the Road from the Farm to the Town: Two Days after which, Banks looking into a Bible, ſuddenly ſhut it again, crying out, his Friend Harris was dead. On the Day following Harris was found by the Sea-ſide, about a quarter of a Mile from the place where his Appurtenances had been found before, having Three Holes like Stabs in his Throat, and No Tongue in his Head, nor the leaſt ſign thereof, but all clear to his Neck-bone within, his Mouth cloſe ſhut, and one of his Eyes hanging down upon his Cheek out of his Head, the other ſunk ſo deep in his Head, that although it was whole there, it was hardly to be come at. This was the end of a Tongue that was to be as the Pen of a ready Writer! The Night after he was Buried, Colonel Young, the High Sheriff, as himſelf aſſured me, was in the Dead of the Night awaked by the Voice of this Harris, calling very loudly at his Window, with a demand of him to ſee Juſtice done him; the Voice came Three times that Night with the like demand; and the Night after it came into the Colonel's Houſe, cloſe to his Bed-ſide, very loudly repeating of it. But the Author of the Murder could never be diſcovered!

About a Year or Two before this Tragical Accident, there was another not quite ſo Tragical. Some of Caſe's Crew howled a Young Woman into their Company, who immediately fell to Railing on all the World, and then to Raving at ſuch a rate, that ſeveral Perſons watched her, though ſhe was now grown ſo preternaturally ſtrong, as to break away from them, let 'em do what they could. In the Dead of the Night, thoſe that watched her heard a doleful Noiſe, like the Crying of a Young Child, in the Yard or Field near the Houſe, which filled the Auditors with fearful Apprehenſions; but the Young Woman then violently broke from them, ſaying, The Lord calls me, and I muſt go! It was a conſiderable while before they could find her, and when they did find her, ſhe was bereaved of her Underſtanding, full of horrid and uncouth Actions; and ſo ſhe continued until Juſtice Wood, by the uſe of means, recovered her, which none of her Quaking Friends were able to do: But this convinced the Neighbours that the Devil was among them!

I'll give but one Inſtance more of their Exorbitancies. It was much about this time that one Jonathan Dunen, of Caſe's Crew, drew away the Wife of a Man to Marſhfield in Plymouth-Colony, to follow him, and one Mary Roſs falling into their Company, preſently was poſſeſſed with as Frantick a Dæmon as ever was heard of; ſhe burnt her Cloaths; ſhe ſaid that ſhe was Chriſt; ſhe gave Names to the Gang with her, as Apoſtles, calling one Peter, another Thomas; ſhe declared, that ſhe would be Dead for Three Days, and then Riſe again; and accordingly ſhe ſeemed then to die. Dunen then gave out, that they ſhould ſee Glorious things when ſhe Roſe again; but what ſhe then did, was thus: That upon her Order Dunen Sacrific'd a Dog. The Men and the Two Women then Danced Naked altogether; for which, when the Conſtable carried 'em to the Magiſtrates, Roſs uttered Stupendous Blaſphemies, but Dunen lay for Dead an Hour on the Floor, ſaying, when he came to himſelf, that Roſs bid him, and he could not reſiſt.

O Capita Anticyris vix Expurganda duabus!

More Paſſages, akin to theſe, may be read in Dr. More's Addition to Mr. Glanvil's Sadduciſmus Triumphatus.

Reader, I can foretel what Uſage I ſhall find among the Quakers for this Chapter of our Church-Hiſtory; for a Worthy Man that Writes of them has obſerved, For Pride, and Hypocriſie, and Helliſh Reviling againſt the painful Miniſters of Chriſt, I know no People can match them. Yea, prepare, Friend Mather, to be aſſaulted with ſuch Language as Fiſher the Quaker, in his Pamphlets, does beſtow upon ſuch Men as Dr. Owen; Thou Fiery Fighter and Green-headed Trumpeter; thou Hedghog and Grinning Dog; thou Baſtard that tumbled out of the Mouth of the Babiloniſh Bawd; thou Mole; thou Tinker; thou Lizzard; thou Bell of no Metal, but the Tone of a Kettle; thou Wheelbarrow; thou Whirlpool; thou Whirlegig. O thou Firebrand; thou Adder and Scorpion; thou Louſe; thou Cow-Dung; thou Moon-Calf; thou Ragged Tatterdemallion; thou Judas; thou Liveſt in Philoſophy and Logick, which are of the Devil. And then let Penn the Quaker add, Thou Gormandizing Prieſt, one of the Abominable Tribe; thou Bane of Reaſon, and Beaſt of the Earth; thou Beſt to be ſpared of Mankind; thou Mountebank Prieſt. Theſe are the very Words, (I wrong them not!) which they Vomit out againſt the beſt Men in the Engliſh Nation, that have been ſo hardy as to touch their Light within: But let the Quills of theſe Porcupines fly as faſt as they will, I ſhall not feel them! Yea, every Stone that theſe Kildebrands throw at me, I will wear as a Pearl; and as Dr. Holland, when he took his leave of his Friends, would ſay, Commenda vos omnes Dilectioni Dei, & Odio Papatus, thus I will here take my leave, with ſaying, I commend thee to the Love of God, and the Diſlike of Quakeriſm.

In aliis Manſuetus ero; at in Blaſphemiis contra Chriſtum, non ita.

§. 4. Now having done with the Quakers, let it not be miſinterpreted, if into the ſame Chapter we put the Inconveniencies which the Churches of New-England have alſo ſuffered from the Anabaptiſts; albeit they have infinitely more of Chriſtianity among them than the Quakers, and have indeed been uſeful Defenders of Chriſtianity againſt the Aſſaults of the Quakers; yea, we are willing to acknowledge for our Brethren as many of them as are willing to be ſo acknowledged.

It hath been a ſore Diſadvantage unto the Reputation of the Anabaptiſt way, that whereever any Reformation has been carried on, a ſort of People under that Name have been moſt unhappy Impediments unto the Progreſs of it; and thrown it into thoſe Confuſions that have extreamly Scandalized it, if not utterly Extinguiſhed it. The Hiſtories of the Prodigious Hereſies that have been held, and Actions that have been done, by a ſet of Men wearing the Anabaptiſt Name, not only in the Low-Countries in Germany, Switzerland, Swedeland and Poland, which Melancthon, Luther, Calvin, Bullinger, Zuinglius, Gualter, Sleidan, Zanchy, who lived in the very time of thoſe Extravagances, have related, but in England and Ireland alſo, long ſince that time, have been improved, In perpetuam Erroris Infamiam. All the World knows, that the moſt Eminent Reformers, writing againſt the Anobaptiſts, have not been able to forbear making their Treatiſes, like what Jerom ſays of Tertullian's Polemical Treatiſes, Quot Verba, tot Fulmina; and the Noble Martyr Philpot expreſſed the Mind of them all, when he ſaid, The Anibaptiſts are an Inordinate kind of Men, ſtirred up by the

the Devil to the Deſtruction of the Goſpel, having neither Scripture, nor Antiquity, nor any thing elſe for them, but Lies and New Imaginations, feigning the Baptiſm of Children to be the Pope's Commandment. Nevertheleſs it is well known, that of later time there have been a great many Antipedobaptiſts who have never deſerved ſo hard a Character among the Churches of God; Infant-Baptiſm hath been ſcrupled by Multitudes in our Days, who have been in other Points moſt Worthy Chriſtians, and as Holy, Watchful, Fruitful, and Heavenly People, as perhaps any in the World. Some few of theſe People have been among the Planters of New-England from the beginning, and have been welcome to the Communion of our Churches, which they have enjoy'd, reſerving their particular Opinion unto themſelves. But at length it came to paſs, that while ſome of our Churches uſed, it may be, a little too much of Cogency towards the Brethren, which would weakly turn their Backs when Infants were brought forth to be Baptized in the Congregation, there were ſome of theſe Brethren, who in a Day of Temptation broke forth into Schiſmatical Practices that were juſtly Offenſive unto all the Churches in this Wilderneſs; which were on that Occaſion willing to Juſtifie what the Renowned Parker ſaid on the behalf of the Old Non-Conformiſts, when the Prelates charged them with being Favourers of Anabaptiſm, Diſciplina Eccleſiaſtica tantopere diſtat ab Anabaptiſtica Confuſione, quantopere Chriſtus ab Antichriſto, we have as much Favour for Anabaptiſm, as Chriſt for Antichriſt. And it may be there was herein too much Occaſion to think on the Obſervation which I find made by Mr. Flavel, The Non-Improvement of our Baptiſmal Covenant unto the great and ſolemn Ends thereof, in our Mortification, Vivification, and Regular Communion with the Church of Chriſt, into which Society we were Matriculated by it, is puniſhed in thoſe fiery Heats, and fierce Oppoſitions, [about Infant-Baptiſm] unto which God ſeems to have penally delivered us. Our Anabaptiſts, when ſomewhat of Exaſperation was begun, formed a Church at Boſton on May 28. 1665. beſides one which they had before at Swanzey, not only with a manifeſt Violation of the Laws in the Commonwealth, relating to the orderly manner of gathering a Church, but alſo with a manifold Provocation unto the reſt of our Churches, by admitting into their own Society ſuch as our Churches had excommunicated for Moral Scandals, yea, and employing ſuch Perſons to be Adminiſtrators of the Two Sacraments among them. Unto theſe Diſſatisfactions of good Men at their Proceedings, there was added the Conſideration of their uncharitable Diſpoſition to Unchurch all the Faithful upon Earth beſides themſelves: 'Tis a Principle in the Confeſſion of their Faith, Believers being Baptized are viſible Saints, and the true Matter of a viſible Church; now they declared our Infant Baptiſm to be a meer Nullity, and they Arrogate unto themſelves the Title of Baptiſts, as if none were Baptized but themſelves: With them therefore our Churches were no Churches of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, nor are there any viſible Saints among us. Accordingly, when a Publick Diſputation was had with them, it was earneſtly and charmingly put unto them in a great Aſſembly, whether they did own the Churches of New-England for True Churches of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; but they would not own it: And when I my ſelf have told ſome of them, that without putting themſelves to ſo much of Travel and Expence, as their Separation coſt them, they might enjoy all Ordinances in the Fellowſhip of our Churches, without being treated as Offenders for it, if their Conſcience tied them up to withdraw when an Infant was Baptized; they have Replied unto me, That in as much as I was in their Judgment an Unbaptized Man, they could not Communicate with me at the Table of the Lord. Nor did it at all take off the Prejudice of many wiſe Men againſt them, that they did ſeem to do what Jereboam was Taxed for, in making Prieſts of the loweſt of the People; or as the Belgic, and others do Read it, Of both Ends of the People: And as the Learned Zepperus lamented the wrong done to Religion in it, that they made Miniſtros de Extremitatibus Populi, Sartoribus, Sutoribus, Idiotis, Taylors, and Coblers, and other Mechanicks, to be Miniſters; thus theſe People choſe an Honeſt Shooemaker to be their Paſtor, and uſed other Mechanicks in the Conſtant Preaching of the Goſpel: Which cauſed ſome other People of a more Liberal Education to reflect, that if Goodman ſuch an One, and Gaffer ſuch an One, were fit for Miniſters, we had befool'd our ſelves in Building of Colledges;

Frange Leves Calamos, & ſcinde Thalia Libellos
Si dare Sutori, Calceus iſta poteſt.

Yea, ſome obſerved, and in Print aſſerted, that this thing was the real Bottom of their Combining into a diſtinct Society by themſelves from divers Parts of the Colony; theſe Men having privately exerciſed their Gifts in Meetings with Applauſe, began to think themſelves wronged, that their Light was put under a Buſhel; and finding no Remedy in our Churches, they threw on a Cloak of Anabaptiſm, and ſo gained the thing that they aimed at in a Diſguiſe. However it were, the general Court were ſo afraid, leſt matters might at laſt from ſmall beginnings grow into a New Munſter Tragedy, that they Enacted ſome Laws for the Reſtraint of Anabaptiſtical Exorbitances; which Laws, though never Executed unto the Extremity of them, yet were ſoon laid by, as to any Execution of them at all. There were in this unhappy Schiſm ſeveral truly godly Men, whom it was thought a very uncomfortable thing to Proſecute with ſevere Impriſonments on theſe Controverſies; and there came alſo a Letter from London to the Governour of the Maſſachuſet- chuſet-Colony, (like that which our Bleſſed Martyrologiſt, John Fox, once wrote unto Queen Elizabeth, to prevent the Perſecution with which the Anabaptiſts were then threatned) ſubſcribed by no leſs Perſons than Dr. Goodwyn, Dr. Owen, Mr. Nye, Mr. Caryl, and Nine other very Reverend Miniſters, wherein were theſe among other Paſſages.

'We ſhall not here undertake (in the leaſt) to make any Apology for the Perſons, Opinions and Practices of thoſe who are cenſured among you.—You know our Judgment and Practice to be contrary unto theirs, even as yours; wherein (God aſſiſting) we ſhall continue to the End. Neither ſhall we return any Anſwer to the Reaſon of the Reverend Elders, for the Juſtification of your Proceedings, as not being willing to engage in the Management of any the leaſt Difference with Perſons whom we ſo much Love and Honour in the Lord.—But the Sum of all which at preſent we ſhall offer to you, is, that though the Court might apprehend, that they had Grounds in General warranting their Procedure (in ſuch Caſes) in the way wherein they have proceeded; yet that they have any Rule or Command rendring their ſo proceeding indiſpenſibly Neceſſary, under all Cicumſtances of Fines or Places, we are altogether unſatiſfied; and we need not Repreſent unto you how the Caſe ſtands with our ſelves, and all your Brethren and Companions in the Services of theſe latter Days in theſe Nations.—We are ſure you would be unwilling to put an Advantage into the Hands of ſome who ſeek Pretences and Occaſions againſt our Liberty, and to Reinforce the former Rigour. Now we cannot deny but this hath already in ſome meaſure been done, in that it hath been Vogued, that Perſons of our Way, Principles and Spirit, cannot bear with Diſſenters from them.—And as this greatly Reflects on us, ſo ſome of us have obſerved how already it has Turned unto your own Diſadvantage.—We leave it to your Wiſdom to Determine, whether under all theſe Circumſtances, and ſundry others of the like Nature that might be added, it be not Adviſeable at preſent to put an End unto the Sufferings and Confinements of the Perſons cenſured, and to Reſtore them to their former Liberty. You have the Advantage of Truth and Order; you have the Gifts and Learning of an able Miniſtry to Manage and Defend them; you have the Care and Vigilancy of a very Worthy Magiſtracy to Countenance and Protect them, and to preſerve the Peace; and (above all) you have a Bleſſed Lord and Maſter, who hath the Keys of David, who openeth and no Man ſhutteth, living for ever to take Care of his own Concernments among his Saints; and aſſuredly you need not be diſquieted, though ſome few Perſons, (through their own Infirmity and Weakneſs, or through their Ignorance, Darkneſs and Prejudices) ſhould to their Diſadvantage turn out of the Way, in ſome leſſer Matters, into By-Paths of their own.—We only make it our hearty Requeſt to you, that you would Truſt God with His Truths and Ways ſo far, as to ſuſpend all Rigorous Proceedings in Corporal Reſtraints or Puniſhments, on Perſons that Diſſent from you, and Practiſe the Principle of their Diſſent without Danger, or Diſturbance to the Civil Peace of the Place—— Dated March 25. 1669.

I cannot ſay that this Excellent Letter had Immediately all the Effect which it ſhould have had; however, at length it has had its Effect; And as Origen Pleads againſt Celſus, that there ever were Differences among Profeſſors of Chriſtianity from the Beginning, and it was impoſſible but that there ſhould be ſo; nevertheleſs theſe Differences hindered not their Faith, and Love, and Obedience: As Juſtin Martyr pleaded for Forbearance, even in the Churches, towards Chriſtians that yet thought themſelves under Obligation to obſerve the Moſaic Ceremonies; as Ignatius, before either of them, in his Epiſtle to the Philadelphians, profeſſes, To Perſecute Men on the account of Religion, is to make our ſelves Conformable to the Heathen, who know not God: The Chriſtians of New-England ſeem generally to be of ſuch a Tolerating Diſpoſition towards the Anabaptiſts: With the Synod of Alexandria, Condemning all External Force in Religion, of which the Arians were the Firſt among pretended Chriſtians, that were the Inventors and Promoters: Nor hath Anabaptiſm had one Jot the more of Growth, I ſuppoſe, for it. But the Alienation continued ſo long, that a Synod of our Churches in the Year 1679. having mentioned the Miſcarriages of theſe People, among the Sins to be Reformed in the Land, there was Publiſhed the Year following, A Narrative of ſome Conſiderable Paſſages, relating to their Church by their Paſtor, with conſent of the whole: Which Narrative had ſo many groſs Miſtakes in it, making

Candida de Nigris & de Candentibus Atra,

That ſuch an Anſwer unto it, as is directed for Cretians, was Publiſhed under the Title of, Ne Sutor ultra Crepidam. And that Anſwer endeavours to Demonſtrate, that if Perſons of any Perſwaſion whatſoever, even the very ſame with what is held by the Churches of New-England, ſhould have Acted with as much Irregularity as our Anabaptiſts, they would have deſerved greater Puniſhment than any that had been inflicted upon Theſe.

§. 5. Sed jam Tempus Equum Spumantia Solvere Colla; 'tis time to have done with theſe Contentious Matters; and thanks be to God we have done with them; and all the Foam whereinto we were chafed by them, is now comfortably wiped off.

The great Noiſe that hath been made in the World about the Perſecution made in New-England, I will now ſtop with only Tranſcribing the Words uttered in the Sermon to the firſt Great and General Aſſembly of the Province of the Maſſachuſet-Bay, after the Two Colonies of Maſſachuſet and Plymouth were by a Royal Charter united.

‘Things will go well, when Magiſtrates are great Promoters of the thing that Good is, and of what the Lord Requireth of them. I do not mean, that it would be well for the Civil Magiſtrate, with a Civil Penalty to compel Men to this or that way of Worſhip, which they are Conſcienciouſly indiſpoſed unto. He is moſt properly the Officer of Humane Society, and a Chriſtian by Non-Conformity to this or that impoſed way of Worſhip, does not break the Terms on which he is to enjoy the Benefits of Humane Society.

‘A Man has a Right unto his Life, his Eſtate, his Liberty, and his Family, although he ſhould not come up unto theſe and thoſe Bleſſed Inſtitutions of our Lord. When a Man Sins in his Political Capacity, let Political Societies Animadvert upon him; but when he Sins only in a Religious Capacity, Societies more purely Religious are the fitteſt then to deal with him. Indeed in the Old Teſtament the Magiſtrate was an Eccleſiaſtical Officer; and Compliance with the Moſaick Rites was that which Entitled Men unto the Benefits of Canaan, the Typical and Renowned Land: But now theſe Figurative Things have more Spiritual Things to Anſwer them. It may be feared, that Things will not go well, when Hereſies are not exterminated; but I Pray, when (except once perhaps or ſo in the Caſe of Donatiſm) did Fines or Gaols ever ſignifie any thing for the Cure of Hereticks? The Primitive Church for the Firſt Three Hundred Years of Chriſtianity, cut off a Thouſand new Hydra's Heads, without borrowing ſuch Penal Laws as have ſince been uſed; it was by ſound Preaching, by Diſcipline, by Catechiſing, and by Diſputation, that they turned to flight the Armies of the Aliens. Then 'twas that Chriſtians did uſe to ſay, Non Gladiis, aut Jaculis, aut Militari manu, veritas prædicatur, ſed Suadendo & Conſulendo. Afterwards indeed the Orthodox engaged the Emperors unto Severities upon the Hereticks of thoſe Days, but what got they by it? When a wicked Manichee, a ſort of Quaker, was put to Death, an Excellent Hiſtorian ſays, 'Twas a moſt wretched Example, and it made the Hereſie ſpread the more. Such Proſecutions do but give a Principle which would be moſt Fatal to the Church of God; yea, they do but afford a Root for Cain's Club to grow upon. Theſe Violences may bring the Erroneous to be Hypocrites, but they will never make them to be Believers; no, they naturally prejudice Mens Minds againſt the Cauſe, which is therein pretended for, as being a Weak, a Wrong, an Evil Cauſe. Wherefore that things may go well, I would willingly put in a Barr againſt the Perſecution of any that may Conſcienciouſly Diſſent from our Way. Poſſibly the Zeal in ſome famous and worthy Diſciples of our Lord among our ſelves has been Reported and Reckoned, as having once had a little too much Fire on this Account; but the Churches of God abroad counted that things did not go well among us, until they judged us more fully come up unto the Apoſtolical Rule, To leave the otherwiſe minded unto God. Nor would I deſire my ſelf to ſuffer Perſecution upon a clearer Cauſe than that of teſtifying againſt our Perſecution of other Chriſtians that are not of my own Opinion. I am ſure that things will not go well as long as we incur the fulfilment of that aweful Word. If ye Bite and Devour one another, take heed that ye be not conſumed one of another. Nevertheleſs, when things go well, there are Magiſtrates that will ſet themſelves to advance all the Truths and Ways of God among their People: Magiſtrates are not only themſelves to Profeſs the Truths, and Practiſe the Ways of God, but alſo to Protect and Favour all them that ſhall do the like. There is an Aſpect of Singular Kindneſs, Defence and Support, which Magiſtrates are to bear unto them that Embrace, and much more to them that Declare the Truths and Ways of God. Things went well when it could be ſaid, as in 2 Chron. 30. 22. Hezekiah ſpake comfortably unto all that taught the good Knowledge of the Lord. Moreover it belongs unto Magiſtrates to Puniſh all the Vices which diſturb the good Order and Repoſe of Humane Society; and hence alſo Liberty of Conſcience is not to be admitted as a Cloak for Liberty of Prophaneneſs. To Live without any Worſhip of God, or to Blaſpheme and Revile his Bleſſed Name, is to be Chaſtiſed as abominably Criminal; for there can be no Pretence of Conſcience thereunto. Things will go well when we go thus, and when there is an Accompliſhment of that Word in Rom. 13. 3. Rulers are not a Terror to Good Works, but unto the Evil.

Theſe things (which were then utter'd with many others, from 2 Chr. 12. 12. In Judah things went well:) having the Thanks of them that repreſented the Province then returned for them, I choſe in theſe Terms here to repreſent the Temper in this Matter, which I ſuppoſe the Conſiderate part of the Province are now come unto: And ſo long as they continue of it, I durſt almoſt Propheſie, that Sectaries will never be able to make any great Impreſſions upon them.

Well, the Enemy of the New-Engliſh Churches is hitherto diſappointed, Hæc non Succeſſit, alia Aggrediatur via.

CHAP. V.

Wolves in Sheeps Cloathing: Or, An Hiſtory of ſeveral Impoſtors pretending to be Miniſters remarkably detected in the Churches of New-England. With a faithful Advice to all the Churches Emitted by ſome of the Paſtors on that Occaſion.

Mendacia ad modicum placent, ſed diu non durant. Hieron.

SINCE de Triſtibus may be a proper Title for the Book I am now Writing, it will not be an improper Chapter in the Book, if ſome things calling for the Sorrow of all that count Sin a Sorrowful Thing, be now Related. But can any things more do it, than horrible and villainous Impoſtures detected among the Churches in pretended Preachers of the Glorious Goſpel of God? Reader, conſider the Advice here fetch'd from and to the Miniſters of New-England; and then conſider our Account of the Criminals that occaſion'd it. In conſidering theſe things, thou wilt not only obſerve ſome of our Temptations, but thou wilt alſo obſerve many Notable and Wonderful Diſplays of the Divine Providence.

A Faithful Advice from ſeveral MINISTERS of the Goſpel in and near Boſton, unto the Churches of New-England, relating to the Dangers that may ariſe from Impoſtors pretending to be Miniſters.

‘IT is not without ſome concern upon our ‘Minds, that in the late Writings of our ‘Presbyterian Brethren in England, we find aweful ‘Complaints about Bold Intruders into the ‘Work of the Miniſtry, and the ſwarming of ‘that Vermine, with an hideous Noiſe, not in ‘Corners and Chambers, but in the very Pulpits, ‘likely to prove an Egyptian Plague; upon ‘which they add, ‘If theſe Illiterate Uſurpers ‘are not ſpeedily and effectually diſcountenanced ‘by Miniſters and People too, they ‘who are already the Blemiſh of Nonconformity, ‘will quickly prove the total Ruin of it. But it ſatisfied us more than a little to hear of their care, that the Confuſions thus complained may be prevented, by a Vote of this Importance, that they would Employ none to Preach in any of their Pulpits, but ſuch as either arrived unto them with credible Teſtimonials, or ſubmitted themſelves unto a ſolemn Trial of their Qualifications for the Evangelical Miniſtry. Our Congregational Brethren in England being Alarumed with a clamour of the Dangers hence ariſing to the Intereſts of our Holy Religion, we do with a like ſatisfaction find they have lately publiſhed a Declaration, wherein ſignifying, ‘That inaſmuch as they count none meet to ‘diſpence the Oracles of God unto others, who ‘are not themſelves Qualified for Communion ‘in all Ordinances, their joining themſelves to a ‘particular Church of Chriſt would be a good ‘Expedient to prevent Ignorant and Raſh Intruders ‘into the Miniſtry; ſeeing then it would ‘be the Duty of Particular Churches and their ‘Officers to take ſpecial care, that none of their ‘Communion, who are not Qualified, may enter ‘on that Work; they thereupon add, We expreſs ‘our Diſlike, and witneſs againſt all Ignorant ‘and Scandalous Perſons entring on the ‘Miniſtry; and we do in the Bowels of our ‘Lord Jeſus Chriſt pray and beſeech all ſuch ‘as fear God, that they give not the leaſt Encouragement ‘unto the Preaching of Men, either ‘Ignorant or Erroneous, in the Great Articles of ‘Faith, or Scandalous in their Lives and Converſations, ‘or otherwiſe Unmeet for this Holy ‘Employment, leſt they bring the Guilt of theſe ‘Mens Sins on their own Souls.

In Conformity to this Watchfulneſs of our United Brethren, we cannot but in the moſt Publick manner call upon our Churches, that they beware of all undue Precipitancy, in their admitting Unqualified Perſons to be received and employed in the Character of Preachers unto them.

We have indeed often wiſhed, that the Young Men brought up in our own Univerſity, might appear with Teſtimonials under the Hands of the Preſident and Fellows, that upon Trial they are found Able and Pious, and likely to be Bleſſings unto the Churches, before the Churches venture too far in ſetting of them up for Preachers.

But inaſmuch as there have ſometimes arrived among us Deceitful Strangers, who have ſet up themſelves for Preachers, and many unwary People have diſcovered much ſinful Folly, in ſuffering themſelves to be ſtrangely deceived ceived by thoſe Impoſtors, it obliges us unto a further point of Paſtoral Vigilance over the Churches, whereof we are made the Overſeers.

'Tis well known, that Worthy Miniſters of the Goſpel, retiring to New-England from other Countries, have all along met with Reſpects from our Churches, Equal (to ſay no more) unto what they have ſhown unto any of the Paſtors bred among themſelves: Heaven is Witneſs to the Injuſtice of the Slander by ſome uttered againſt us, That we have been ever uncivil to Strangers; and the Strangers themſelves have been Witneſſes, that no where under Heaven could they expect more Civility than that wherewith we have ever treated them.

Nevertheleſs we have, upon ſufficient Occaſions, reſolved, 'That for the future, no Stranger 'coming, as a Preacher among us, without ſufficient Aſſurances of his being what he pretends 'to be, ſhall be employ'd in our Pulpits without a ſolemn Examination of his Capacities, 'for the Tremendous Work of Preaching the 'Glorious Goſpel of God. And we earneſtly requeſt the Reverend Miniſters of the Goſpel, in the ſeveral Aſſociations and Vicinities throughout the Country, to join with us in ſuch a neceſſary Reſolution.

We do alſo ſolemnly Adviſe all our People to beware of running after New Preachers, of whoſe Endowments and Principles they have not had a reaſonable Atteſtation, leſt they unawares run themſelves into ſhameful and woful Reflections. The Apoſtolical Injunctions, To prove all things, does not invite Unſtable People to Run after all Preachers, (as they too often pervert the Senſe of it,) but it only directs People to Examine by the Word of God, the Doctrine which they hear from thoſe that in an orderly way are to be heard as their Teachers.

The Preaching of the Goſpel, being that grand Inſtitution whereon depends the Everlaſting Salvation of Men, Satan ſeeks it as a mighty Triumph, to pervert it unto their Everlaſting Deſtruction. And a People that having Itching Ears, do after their own Luſts heap up Teachers to themſelves, do miſerably render themſelves obnoxious unto the Impreſſions of thoſe New Preachers that will ſeduce them unto Damnable Hereſies. Or ſuppoſe the New Preachers do Broach no New Errors, yet if they ſhall prove Cheats, that have made the Preaching of the Goſpel only a Cloak for their Covetous, or Laſcivious, or other Prophane Deſigns, they that ſhall have too ſuddenly improved thoſe Men, will be Partakers of their Sins. And the Glorious Ordinances of God will be likely to fall into a loathſome Contempt among the People, if Contemptible Fellows can eaſily proſtitute them unto their pernicious Purpoſes.

The Sermons wherein the Everlaſting Goſpel is Preached, as well as the Prayers made in our Congregations, are to be conſidered as a Principal part of the Worſhip of God among the People of God: They are to glorifie God and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, with agreeable Confeſſions of the Truths he has revealed unto us; and as in the Peace-Offering of Old, God hath his part in them, as well as the People theirs. Hence, whether the People that are the Hearers be many or few, learned or weak, froward or meek, the Preacher muſt prepare an Offering, as far as he can, ſuitable for that God, who is a Great King, and whoſe Name is dreadful. But if every piece of Ignorance and Arrogance be ſet up for a Preacher, the Name of the Holy God will be prophaned with an Offering that is made a Ridicule in the Repetition.

We are not unſenſible, that one thing which has much expoſed ſome Injudicious People among us, is an Opinion that Illiterate Men may be Serviceable and Admirable Preachers. Now inaſmuch as the Jeſuites have given this among their Inſtructions to their Emiſſaries, To teach that Learning is needleſs in a Miniſter, and if they underſtand the Goſpel it is ſufficient, we are ſorry that any of our People ſhould be ſo Beſotted, not to ſay, Bejeſuited. When the Knowledge of the Tongues and Arts revived, Religion had a revival with it: And though ſome Unlearned Men have been uſeful to the Intereſts of Religion, yet no Man ever decried Learning, but what was an Enemy to Religion, whether he knew it or no. When out Lord choſe Fiſhermen to be Miniſters, (which often is impertinently pleaded) he would not ſend them forth until they had been a conſiderable while under his Tuition, (a better than the beſt in any Colledge under Heaven!) and then alſo he miraculouſly furniſhed 'em with more Learning than any of us by Seven Years hard Study can attain unto. If God ſhould be provoked by the Unthankfulneſs of Men, to ſend the Plague of an Unlearned Miniſtry upon poor New-England, ſoon will the Wild Beaſts of the Deſart lye there, the Houſes will be full of doleful Creatures, and Owls will dwell there. Ordinarily, that Man who undertakes the Miniſtry of the Goſpel without ſome Education for it, is, we doubt, in as preſumptuous an Error as the unhappy Uzzah that periſhed in his Error; though we alſo allow different Meaſures and Places for that Education. And that Man was never worthy to Preach one Sermon, who did not feel, and would not own, that all the Learning that can be had, is little enough to accompliſh an Able Miniſter of the New Teſtament.

Upon the whole, as Luther obſerved, that God puniſhed the Primitive Churches with Falſe Teachers, for their ſtarving and ſlighting of their faithful Miniſters; thus we fear the Churches of New-England may ſuffer Miſchiefs in time to come from Falſe Teachers; and we ſee cauſe to admire the Compaſſion of Heaven unto this Land, that ſuch dangerous things have all his time done ſo little Damage unto any of our Churches. But as the Church of Epheſus, having been warned by the Apoſtle, That grievous Wolves would enter in among them, was afterwards commended by our Saviour for ſo taking the warning, that they Tried them who ſaid they were Apoſtles when they were not ſo, and ſound them Liars : Even ſo we would hope, that after this Day no Untried Perſons will be Entertained for Preachers in any of our Colonies.

We lay this Advice before our Churches, purpoſing to do our part in attending to it.

Boſton, Decemb 28. 1699.

An Hiſtory of ſome Impoſtors Remarkably and Seaſonably Detected in the Churches of New-England; Written to maintain the Advice Publiſhed by ſome of the Paſtors in thoſe Churches relating to Impoſtors, and prevent all future Miſchiefs from them.

IT was a notable Diſcipline by which the Reformed Churches in France preſerved themſelves from the Intolerable Miſchiefs ariſing by the allowance of Unworthy Preachers : Their National Synods every time they ſat, would Publiſh a Roll of thoſe Unworthy Preachers that could be found creeping in among them, and with a Deſcription of their Feature and Stature, and other Circumſtances like what uſes to be given in an Hue in Cry, this Roll would notifie the Crimes laid unto their Charge, and admoniſh all People to beware of Entertaining them.

The Churches of New-England have heretofore been in ſuch Good Order, that no Man could be Ordained and Received as a Paſtor in them, without the Concurrence of the Churches in the Vicinity, and a very Solemn and Publick Action. But a Good Order has never yet been provided among us, that no Untried and Unfit Perſon ſhall ſet up for a Preacher, and run about from Town to Town, getting into the too much unguarded Pulpits, and threatning our Holy Religion with no little Inconvenience. Now to prevent and redreſs this Inconvenience, it has been by ſome Conſiderate Perſons deſired, that ſomething like the French Roll may be Exhibited unto the Churches of New-England, which may exemplifie ſome few of the many Cheats that have gone to impoſe upon them. It is unreaſonable to complain that the Crimes of thoſe Cheats are thus openly expoſed; for I beſeech you, Sirs, are they not as openly Committed ? Men are too inſenſible of the horrible Villany and Blaſphemy in the Crimes of thoſe Fellows, who ſet up for Teachers to the People of God, when God knows they are wicked Vagrants and Varlets, deſigning to abuſe the Honeſt People ; if they imagine it a Severe thing to Stigmatize them in the View of all the affronted Churches. The Faults of the Penitent, indeed, ſhould be Concealed ; but theſe pretended Preachers of Repentance are not known to Practice the Repentance which they Preach. A Pillory were a very gentle Puniſhment for the Wretches, who, wholly unqualified, Steal into a Pulpit, and Forge a Commiſſion from the King of Heaven unto his Churches. Our Laws not providing ſuch a Puniſhment for them, they that would be faithful to the Churches, will do well (for did not the Apoſtle as much to Hymenæus and Alexander ?) to ſet them up in an Hiſtory inſtead of a Pillory, with a Writing as it were in Capitals, to ſignifie, THESE WERE IMPOSTORS THAT WOULD HAVE BEEN ESTEEMED MINISTERS.

The Conſequence and Advantage of this Action 'tis hoped will be, that both Paſtors and People will be more weary of being too ſudden in asking to Preach for them thoſe to whom they are utter Strangers : That needy and prophane Strangers will no more venture to Preach in a Country, where their detected Wickedneſs will be Proclaimed for the Terror of all that ſhall come after them : That all Pious Minds will give Glory to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who Walks in the midſt of his Churches, when they ſee what Quick Work he has ordinarily made in theſe Churches, to diſcover thoſe Atheiſtical Preachers, that have ſo horribly mocked him ; and admire his Gracious and Watchful Providence, in ſtill delivering his Churches from thoſe Little Foxes that would have ſpoiled them. And now we will Addreſs our ſelves to do that, which when 'tis done, what will they merit but the Cardinal's Bleſſing who will take no warning ?

§. 1. The very Firſt Miniſter (one Lyford) that ever came into New-England, (which was in the Year 1624.) at his firſt coming did Careſs the good People at Plymouth with ſuch extream ſhows of Affection and Humility, that the People were mightily taken with him; nevertheleſs, within a little while he uſed moſt malignant Endeavours to make Factions among them, and confound all their Civil and Sacred Order. At laſt there fell into the Hands of the Governour his Letters home to England, fill'd with wicked and lying Accuſations againſt the People, of which things being ſhamefully Convicted, he did publickly in the Church confeſs with Tears, That he had ſlanderouſly abuſed the good People, and that God might juſtly lay innocent Blood unto his Charge, for he knew not what hurt might have come through his Writings, and that Pride, Vain-glory and Self-love had been the Cauſes of his Miſcarriages. Theſe things he uttered ſo Pathetically, that they again permitted him to Preach among them: And yet in Two or Three Months he ſo notoriouſly renewed his Miſcarriages, which he had thus bewailed, that his own Wife, thro' the Affliction of her Mind at his Hypocriſie, could not forbear declaring her Fears, that God would bring ſome heavy Judgment upon their Family, not only for theſe, but ſome former Impieties by him committed, eſpecially in fearful Breaches of the Seventh Commandment, which he had with an Oath denied, though they were afterwards Evinced. Being thereupon Baniſhed, he went unto Virginia, where he ſoon ended his Days.

The Diſaſter thus befalling of this Country in the Firſt Miniſter that ever came into it, ſeems to have been an Intimation from Heaven unto the Country, to beware in all After-times how they ſuffered Cheats in the Evangelical Miniſtry to be impoſed upon them. Nevertheleſs, there have crept in ſeveral Cheats among the Churches which have been ſpeedily and notably detected. It will be neither Needful nor Uſeful, that they ſhould be all Enumerated: Some of them ſhall.

§. 2. Many among us do ſtill remember a Fellow that made himſelf memorable by Preaching Zealouſly on that Text, Let him that Stole Steal no more; when he had at that very time a parcel of Stolen Money in his Pocket. The Sum, as I remember, was Five Pounds; but in the dozed Conſcience of the Thief it hardly made the weight of a Scruple.

§. 3. I have been informed, that a certain Gentleman in the Southern Parts of this Land, having with much Pains taught an Iriſh Servant in his Family to be almoſt able to read Engliſh; this Fellow, after his time was out, ſet up for a Preacher in a Neighbouring Plantation: But the Gentleman his Maſter happening ſome time after to meet our Preaching Teague, ſeverely Chid him for his Preſumptuous Arrogance; and among other Expreſſions, beſtowed this pretty Satyrical Scourge upon him; If ſuch Fellows as thou art may ſet up for Preachers, there will be one Text impoſſible ever to be Preached upon, or to be fulfilled or underſtood: The Almighty in one Text threatens as a Judgment, a Famine of hearing the Word of the Lord; but if ſuch Varlets as thou art may be Preachers, 'tis impoſſible that ſuch a Judgment ſhould ever be Executed!

§. 4. Many of thoſe Perſons who have gone to inſinuate themſelves into our Churches, with Spirits in them that were, for their Covetous, or Contentious, or Ambitious, or otherwiſe Evil Inclinations, diſpleaſing to the God of the Spirits of all Fleſh, have been immediately and remarkably confounded by their being left unto the Criminal Folly of Preaching Stolen Sermons. The detected Plagiaries have gone off, as a Thief is aſhamed when he is found. One happy hindrance to the Deſigns of the Fiery Serpent have been this way afforded among us.

Others Remember Inſtances; I ſhall not mention them.

§. 5. A Young Fellow, (one Dick Swayn) that had been Servant unto a Captain of a Ship in Boſton, after a Thouſand Rogueries, had his Time given him by the Widow of the Captain, when ſhe became ſo, becauſe that ſhe would not be troubled with ſo Thieviſh, Lying and Wicked a Villain. This Fellow was afterwards detected in Villanies enough to fill a Volume, which procured his going in miſerable Circumſtances to Virginia; from whence he got through ſeveral Stages at length unto the Iſland of Providence! There the Monſter ſet up for a Preacher of the Goſpel, and putting on a mighty ſhow of Religion, he was mightily followed and admired; and the People treated him with a more than ordinary Liberality. Perceiving that it was time to be gone from thence, he Forged Letters of his Father's Death in England, by which a vaſt Eſtate was fallen to him; under the Umbrage of that Forgery, he gets off immediately by a Veſſel, that muſt firſt carry him to New-England. Having Preached ſeveral Sermons in the Southern Parts of New-England, he comes to Boſton in the Year 1698. where in private Houſes he would be ridiculouſly forward in thruſting himſelf upon Prayer, which he would manage with a Noiſe that might reach all the Neighbourhood. He began to Court Opportunities of Preaching among the Neighbours; but forgetting to change his Name, the Gentlewoman to whoſe Deceaſed Husband he had been a Servant, accidentally coming into the Houſe where he Lodged, and hearing one of that Name exceedingly cried up, as a Worthy, Able, Eminent Man, asked for a ſight of him. When to her Aſtoniſhment ſhe found it was Dick, even that very Scandalous Dick that had play'd ſo many abominable Pranks in her own Family ſome Years ago, the Gentlewoman could ſcarce believe her Eyes; and finding the Vagrant not give her any Intelligent Account how he became a Chriſtian, it was yet more Unintelligible to her how he became a Miniſter. He begg'd her

Pardon for all his old Knaveries, but ſhe being adviſed that he was now practiſing of New ones, took a Courſe that the People ſhould be deprived of ſo Charming a Preacher, as no doubt ſome of the giddy Populace would have counted him. So without any more Diſturbance, but only the cheating ſome Credulous Folks of conſiderable Sums of Money, he marched off.

§. 6. A Fellow in this preſent Year 1699. appeared in Boſton, pretending to be a Miniſter; concerning whom an Honeſt and a Diſcreet Man in the Country having a juſt fear, leſt our Charity ſhould unjuſtly and unawares take too kind notice of him, wrote me the following Account.

‘This Day a Man, whoſe Name is Eleazer Kingsberry, —— in Diſcourſe with him, told me he had Preached the Goſpel Four Months; he ſhewed me a Certificate to prove it, with about Twelve Names to it, all Written by his own Hand, (the Inſtrument was drawn by another,) he alſo told me he Preached the laſt Sabbath between Tanton and Freetown, before a conſiderable Aſſembly; which was confirmed by a Man of Tanton then preſent. Conſidering how God is likely to be diſhonoured, and the Goſpel ſcandalized by him, I thought it my Duty to undeceive you, by giving you the following Relation. He was Born and brought up in Wrentham, and Bound Prentice to a Taylor, but ſo Vicious a Servant, that his Maſter could do no good with him. He gat Free, and Married a Wife; but not long after Stole, and left her; and adding to his Felony ſeveral other Vicious Tricks, he went to the Weſtward. From thence he wrote a Letter to Wrentham, which conſiſted chiefly of Lies and Curſes. When I now ſpake with him, I adviſed him to follow his Calling, and provide for his Wife, and not ſeek to Diſhonour God and deceive his People. He replied, As for his Wife ſhe was a Deviliſh Jade, and he would never take her more; but when he was ſettled, and had an Houſe, he would take her as a Servant; and if ſhe would not obey him, he would kick her into the Fire; but he would go on in Preaching, —— and he would wage Twenty Pieces of Eight, he would get Money and Credit in a ſhort time. —— I could fill a Sheet of Paper, but I hope I have ſaid enough to prevent his having any Encouragement from you; and what further ought to be done concerning him I leave to your Conſideration.

One of the Miniſters in Boſton immediately ſent after him a Letter under a flying Seal, ſolemnly charging him to leave off the Preſumptuous and Blaſphemous Courſe that he had thus taken up, and return unto his Family and Employment; and giving him to underſtand, that the Juſtices everywhere ſhould be informed of him, as being a Vagabond. Hereupon the Vagabond, as I am told, changed his Name into Berry, and ran away to a place called Cape May where I am alſo told the People were ſo Bewitched with him, that they were almoſt ready to tear in pieces any Man that ſhould ſpeak diminutively of him.

§. 7. But tho' this Bird flew away to the Southward, unto Cape May, another, whoſe pretended Name was May, came upon this Coaſt about the ſame time. And on that Occaſion an Excellent and Ingenious Perſon wrote unto me ſuch Paſſages as theſe.

‘May uſes to prove Pleaſant and Healthy; but the Mob are wont to Dance at the Entrance of it, let it prove how it will. Mr. Parker uſed to ſay, The People love to Tap a new Barrel. I think I once told you of E. F. and M. J. but leſt I have not, I'll give you a Word of each.

‘E. F. ſometimes of Salem, coming to New-Haven on Saturday Even, being cloathed in Black, was taken for a Miniſter, and was able to Ape one, and humoured the miſtake like him that ſaid, Si vult populus decipi, decipiatur. Word being carried to Mr. J. T. that a Miniſter was come to Town, he immediately procured him to Preach both parts of the Day. The firſt was to Acceptation; but in the laſt Exerciſe he plentifully ſhewed himſelf to be a Whimſical Opinioniſt, and beſides, railed like Rabſhakeh, and Reviled the Magiſtrates, Miniſters and Churches at ſuch a rate, that the People were ready to pull him out of the Pulpit.

§ 8. ‘The ſame Worthy Perſon goes on. M. J. A Welch Tanner by Trade, ſome time Servant unto Captain P. at Salem, left Salem, went to Say-Brook, work'd at his Trade, and ſtole Mr. W's Leather Breeches. Thence he went to Staten-Iſland by New-York, and ſet up for a Preacher, being a ready Prater. At the Information of a Pedling Trader, he had an Invitation by ſome few of Killingſworth to Viſit them, and Preach in Order to Settlement. He came, but happening to ſpeak irreverently of ſomething in the Scripture before ſome of the People, it occaſioned ſuch Diviſion and Tumult, that he was not ſuffered to Preach before Mr. Buckingham's Advice and Conſent was obtained; which when ſought, he adviſed them to enquire firſt whether this were not the Fellow that Stole the Leather Breeches. This proving even ſo, prevented him at Killingſworth. Thence he went to Brainford, the Night before a Faſt, and making known his pretended Function, it was counted a good Providence; for they had no Miniſter, and he was earneſtly deſired to Preach, and as readily accepted it. But one Peter Stent, a Brother that uſed to Pray and Read a good Sermon among the People, when they had no Miniſter, knew nothing of this (for he lived at a Farm,) but in the Morning came provided to read one of Mr. A. Gray's Sermons. But he found Morgan at it when he came; and when he named his Text, it was the ſame his intended Sermon was on; and out of Curioſity to ſee how Mens Wits jumpt in Proſecuting the ſame Text, he turned to his Book, and found Morgan the ‘ ſame with Mr. Gray Word for Word. He ‘ followed him while he was weary, and at ‘ length run before to a place in the Sermon

‘ that ſpoke of Glaſgow Sinners, and there lay
‘ wait for Morgan; but when he came there,
‘ he turned it, New-England Sinners; and that ‘ was all the Variation in the whole Sermon.
‘ The People were mightily Affected with the ‘ Sermon, and were hot upon calling Morgan
‘ to the Miniſtry. But Stent diſcovered the ‘ Cheat. So they diſmiſſed him, and the Tanner
‘ departed with Liberty to go as far as a New ‘ Pair of Shooes would carry him.

§. 9. Faſcination is a thing whereof Mankind has more Experience than Comprehenſion. And Faſcination is never more notoriouſly ſenſible, than in Mens running after Falſe Teachers of Religion. When Falſe Teachers impoſed on the Galatians, the Apoſtle ſaid, O Fooliſh Galatians, who hath Bewitched you! One cannot eaſily aſcribe unto a truer Cauſe, than a Satanick Energy, the ſtrange Biaſs upon the Minds of a Multitude, forceably and furiouſly ſometimes carrying them into Follies from whence the plaineſt Reaſon in the World will not Reclaim them. What but ſuch an Energy could be upon the Minds of many People in Boſton, after the Arrival of one that went by the Name of Samuel May, about the beginning of July, 1699. The wonderful Succeſs of Mahomet upon a World, where Chriſtianity was to another Degree loſt than it is yet in Boſton, was no longer a Wonder unto us, when we ſaw the Succeſs of May in a place of ſo Chriſtian a Character as Boſton. It was all over pure Enchantment! He ſhow'd unto one Miniſter at his firſt Arrival a Teſtimonial of little, but ſome hopes of his being a Man of a ſweet Goſpel Spirit, ſigned with Two Names, whereof one was of a Man that once had been a Scandalous Fire-Ship among the Churches in this Country: Which when this Blade underſtood, he would never after ſhow his Teſtimonial to any more of our Miniſters, tho' they earneſtly and frequently ask'd him for it. So Silly and Shallow a Perſon he was, that it was impoſſible for any but ſuch to be many Minutes in his Company without being ſenſible of it. The firſt thing that made ſome to ſuſpect him, was his uſing to lift up his Eyes and Hands, with ſtrains of Devotion uſed by none others in the Aſſembly, after he had firſt look'd about to ſee who look'd upon him. Numberleſs Marks of a Cheat were daily more and more diſcovered in him; nevertheleſs, he was able to imitate a plauſible Utterance and Action, and ſeem'd ſo Zealouſly ſet upon Inviting Men to Chriſt, that after Sermon was over he would make another Speech to put 'em in Mind on't. Abundance of the People became ſo fiercely ſet for him, that they poured out a Thouſand Expreſſions of Rage upon the Faithful Paſtors of the Town, that thought not ſuch an Illiterate Creature (who by his own Confeſſion had never been one Year under any Education,) worthy to be ſet up in the Publick Pulpits. Though the bigger and wiſer part of the Town were not ſeized with this Bigotry, yet a Multitude became ſo Furious, that making it their Buſineſs to Solicite all ſorts of Perſons to go a Maying with them, if any refuſed, they could hardly eſcape ſome Reproach for it. The Jews were hardly more engaged for their Sabatai Sevi. The Diſciples of this Money-catcher became ſo Exceeding Fierce, many of them, that ſome ſober Men became afraid of Paſſing by that way where one muſt Encounter them. Though he were detected in ſeveral Crimes, as pretending to Languages which he knew nothing of, and this in the ſpecial Service and Preſence of the Lord; and Preaching Stolen Sermons, wherein he could not produce one material Sentence of his own; and horrid Lying in very repeated Inſtances: Yet his Followers would go on, making Ridiculous Apologies for him, and Malicious Invectives againſt any that would not yet believe him an Eminent Saint. Yea, they began to throw Libels into the Houſes of the Miniſters, the moſt inſolent that ever I ſaw. The Anabaptiſts employed him at their Meeting-Houſe, which was now filled with great Congregations; and it was an undeſerved, an aſtoniſhing, a very memorable Mercy of God unto the Town, that this Man was now kept from venting any Hereſies among a People, that made themſelves to become ſuch Tinder for any Sparks that he might ſtrike into them. And yet it was another Mercy as great as this, that the Young Women in the Town were not betray'd and debauch'd into fearful Whoredoms: For at length Witneſſes, Good, Virtuous, Credible Witneſſes appear'd, that ſhew'd him to have been as dangerous a Devil as the poor Young Women could have met withal, when by a certain Reverence for him as a Miniſter they were prepared for his vile Solicitations. He perceived theſe things beginning to break out, and away he flew; none of the Endeavours uſed by his Admirers to make him ſtay could ſtop him. The Paſtors of the Churches had before made this Reflection, That after Men of the moſt unſpotted Piety have ſpent whole Prenticeſhips of Years in the Faithful, Watchful, Painful Service of the Churches, and have ſerved them Day and Night with Prayers, with Tears, with Faſtings, with their moſt Studied Sermons and Writings, and have never ſuch a Reputation with the Churches in Countries afar off; yet if any Wolf in Sheeps Cloathing do come with a few good Words among them, the ſimple Souls of many will not only follow the Wolf, but on his Account Bark at the Shepherds. This is a Vanity that I have ſeen under the Sun. But the People had now this Reflection to make, that ſince they had ſinfully ſlighted their moſt Serviceable Paſtors, who never craved after the Riches of this World, they ſhould by the juſt Judgment of God be left unto ſuch an Infatuation, as to enrich a Craving Beggar with many Pounds of their Subſtance; which Beggarly Stranger immediately apply'd himſelf, (not to inſtil the Fear of God, and Love of Chriſt, into your Children, O Injured People, as your Paſtors do, with a moſt indefatigable Application! but) to teach them, that Fornication and Adultery is no Sin, and to watch Opportunities of making them like himſelf, the Children of the Devil. Repent, O Infatuated People; Repent of what you have done; and let the enſuing Letter help you more throughly to conſider the Occaſions for your doing ſo.

Religio Contaminata ad omnium Pertinet injuriam.

Boſton, 25 d. 10 m. 1699.

A Letter, containing a Remarkable Hiſtory of an Impoſtor.

SIR,

I Am going to Entertain you with a very ſurpriſing Story, by the Communication whereof, the Wiſdom, and Goodneſs, and Juſtice of Heaven, will become Obſervable to many Chriſtian Minds, and the Devices of Hell, againſt the Intereſts of Heaven, be a little more fully underſtood, and by being underſtood, for the future prevented.

The laſt Summer, in the very Ship that brought us Letters from our Friends in England, adviſing us of much Inconvenience ariſing to the Non conformiſts, from ill Fellows that pretended unto the Preaching of the Glorious Goſpel, there arrived unto us a Man that pretended the Name of Samuel May, and the Character of a Preacher, having with him a Woman whom he call'd his Wife, but uſed her with an Unwiſely Crabbedneſs, that gave Scandal to the People aboard. Albeit this Man gave me much cauſe to be ſuſpicious, leſt he might be one of thoſe whom our Letters complained of, yet my Compaſſion towards a Needy Stranger, whom I ſaw in Ragged, Wretched, Forlorn Circumſtances, cauſed me, among other ways, of being Helpful unto him, to ſeek that he might be twice Employ'd in, and Required for Preaching at our Private Meetings; hoping thereby to have a little Trial of him. His Plauſible Delivery preſently Enchanted abundance of honeſt People, who thought all was Gold that gliſtered; but many Days paſſed not before I found ſeveral things which made me ſay, I doubt he was a Wolf in Sheeps Cloathing. They that now ſay, They follow'd this Man becauſe I commended him, wrong me very much; for though 'tis not my manner to ſpeak ill of Men, till I know what I ſpeak, and that it is my Duty to ſpeak; yet I let fall words from the very firſt, that any Intelligent Hearer might ſee I had ſome Fear about him. The cauſe of that Fear was this; I found, that altho' 'tis no time of any Perſecution that ſhould force any but ill Men to conceal themſelves, yet he came Aboard the Veſſel under ſome concealment, not profeſſing, nor ſuppoſed for to be a Miniſter, but rather a Mendicant, until they had ſailed many Leagues. I found that he could mention the Name of no one Miniſter in London with whom he durſt ſay that he had any Acquaintance; leſt, as it ſhould ſeem, he ſhould happen to mention one with whom we ſhould be better Acquainted. I found that he was unaccountably Shy of giving us any ſatisfactory Account of his Original, his Education, his former Circumſtances; by no means could I get him to tell me in what Employment he had ſpent the Firſt Six or Seven and Twenty Years of his Life. What appear'd moſt probable (and ſince more probable) was, That he was a Barber. A blind Charity would ſtill have perſwaded me to keep alive ſome hope, that Folly, rather than Deſign, might lye at the bottom of his odd Conduct; but I ſoon obſerved ſomething that made me ſay to ſome of my Intimate Friends, That I fear'd he would prove at laſt a ſmutty, filthy, wanton Fellow. However, things not being yet come to that maturity, I contented my ſelf with calling to mind the Rule which the old Britain gave his Countrymen, to diſcover whether Auſtin the Monk were a Man of God or no. Thought I, 'If this be 'an honeſt Man, he is an humble Man: If he be 'a Faithful Servant of Chriſt, he'll plainly let 'his Fellow Servants know what he is, what he intends, what he can do, and humbly refer 'himſelf to Them for Direction and Aſſiſtance. We found nothing of this; but though he were wholly Illiterate, and not able even to write a little Common Engliſh, (for inſtance, there were Eighteen horrid falſe Spells, and not one Point, in one very ſhort Note that I received from him) yet this proud Thraſo would in his Preaching Oſtentate Skill in Latin, and in Greek, yea, and in Hebrew; but God left him to ſuch Folly in his Pride, that he frequently pronounced the Exotic Words in a manner ſo ridiculous, as to render it plain that he knew nothing of them: And in one of thoſe two or three private Preachments, by which 'twas hop'd we might have ſome Taſte of his Faculties, he was under ſuch an Infatuation, that he would needs give ſome Hebrew to us; but what he gave us might be Welch or Iriſh, or the Vagabonds gabonds Cant, for ought I knew; one Miniſter preſent knew it was not in ſix or ſeven Languages, in all which himſelf had in various Writings Addreſs'd the World, and others of his Hearers, beſides I, knew that there was no ſuch Hebrew in the Lexicon. Who but one Hypocritically diſpoſed would have done ſo? If he were a Shaver, 'twas plain however he was not the moſt Cunning in the World: In the mean time, 'twas a ſtrange Enchantment upon the People, that they ſhould after theſe things put themſelves into his Hands. But that his Humility might be the more Notorious, I was preſently informed, that the Blade, with an Arrogance equal to his Ignorance, began to complain, That the Miniſters of the Town did not immediately Invite him into their Pulpits; and upon his Complaints, many ſinful People (who have great Cauſe to take no little ſhame unto themſelves for their cauſleſs and ſhameleſs Iniquity) began to Defame the Miniſters with Slanderous Outcries, That they were always uncivil to Strangers; and ſome could beſtow this Compariſon upon them, That here was come a better Workman than themſelves, whom therefore they would not ſuffer to ſtay in the Town if they could help it. The Paſtors of the Churches being deſirous to anſwer the Expectations of the People, as far as they could in Conſcience unto the People themſelves, and with Credit unto the Evangelical Miniſtry, they ſent unto this Man in as Loving and as Tender Terms as they could a Meſſage to this porpoſe, That they being ſincerely deſirous to Encourage him in doing all the good he ſhould be found Able to do, and he not having brought ſatisfactory Teſtimonials into the Country with him, they pray'd a viſit from him, in which they would inform themſelves of his Abilities for the Evangelical Miniſtry, and with all poſſible Eaſineſs proceed in their Examining and Adviſing of him. To this Meſſage there was brought us from him an Anſwer of this purport, That he knew no Authority the Miniſters had to Enquire after him, and he was not bound to give them an account of himſelf, and more to that Effect. The Miniſters had now done but the Duty of Watchmen that would be found faithful to the Churches and Neighbours; but none of their Watchfulneſs could hinder many of the People from the great fault of running themſelves into Temptation by giddily running after the Inſtructions of a Fellow that had Shunn'd the Light, becauſe his Deeds were Evil. The People, (whoſe Charity has been for the moſt part ſo Exemplary, that methinks 'tis pity it ſhould ever be miſplaced and perverted) ſome of them not only made a large Collection to pay the Paſſage of this miſchievous Beggar, and put Money into his Pocket; but alſo fill'd the Town with ſo much Lying and Outrage againſt their faithful Miniſters, for not counting ſuch an Unlettered Thing a fit Inſtructor for their Flocks, that I could not but think an hundred times of the People bewitched by Simon the Sorcerer, and ſay, That the greateſt Blemiſh that ever befel the Town, was in the madneſs which they now diſcovered. Who would have believed it, that in a Town ſo Illuminated as Boſton, there ſhould be any People of ſuch a Principle, That if the greateſt Villain in the World ſhould arrive a total Stranger among us, and for his True Name give us perhaps only the firſt Syllable of his Name, and of a Barber turn a Preacher, the Paſtors here muſt immediately Set him up in the publick Pulpits, or elſe the People unjuſtly load them with all the Calumnious Indignities that can be thought of? However, the Miniſters bore with Patience all the Contempt which their Great Lord ſaw the People fooliſhly caſt upon them; and no two of them that ever I heard of, ever let fall one word publickly to Rebuke their Folly; But, Sir, you ſhall ſee anon whether the Lord himſelf will not Rebuke it, and make the People wiſh, They had hearkned unto the Voice of their Teachers.

We have in our Vicinity a Small Congregation of Anabaptiſts, with whom I had always lived in a Good Correſpondence. Forgive me the vanity if I ſay, without judging proper in this place, ~~to prove~~ what I ſay, That never any Miniſter, ſo diſtant from their Perſwaſion, carried it with more Civility and Affection towards Perſons of their Perſwaſion, than I made it my Endeavour to do. Becauſe I believed there were godly Perſons among them, I offered them, that if they ſhould come (as they were likely) to have the Divine Inſtitutions fail among themſelves, I would freely accept them to Communion with my own Flock; and though they ſhould be ſo ſcrupulous as to turn their Backs as often as an Infant was Baptiſed, it ſhould not be made an Offence. This offer I made them, I hope not out of a ſinful Affectation to Enlarge my Flock; the moſt undeſerved Favour of Heaven has employ'd my poor Services in ſuch Aſſemblies, that I have cauſe to Study how I may ſerve them Better, before I go to get them Larger; but it was purely from a Spirit of Charity. Indeed I had no Anſwer but this, We look upon you as an Unbaptized Man, and therefore we cannot hold Communion with you: But tho' this New Comer were in their Opinion, An Unbaptiſed Man, yet they now took this opportunity to Invite him unto publick and conſtant Preaching every Lord's Day, and a Lecture beſides in their Meeting-Houſe. Indeed I muſt ſo far Vindicate theſe Brethren, as to tell you, That they do not ſeem to me ſo much in Fault, as divers other People of my own Profeſſion who Solicited them, and Inſtigated them, to ſet up a Preacher for them, which their own Paſtors had Refuſed; and it was on ſome Accounts a time of Temptation with them. Neverthel eſs I cannot wholly Juſtifie this Faulty Action: And their ſetting up ſuch a Fellow, under all theſe ill Circumſtances, to be their Publick Teacher, look'd the worſe, becauſe they could not but ſee that it nouriſhed in his Numerous Proſelytes, not only the ſleight of a Learned Miniſtry, but alſo a Diſpoſition which ordinarily Inſpired thoſe that were proſelyted by him to become Enemies and Revilers of the Miniſters of the Town. One of thoſe Miniſters beholding the Spirit which this thing was done withal, freely told the Anabaptiſts, That the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who ſaw what Principles they acted upon, would certainly make this very Man the Occaſion of the greateſt Confuſion that ever befel them: And at the ſame time ſaw cauſe to foretel unto many others, That the Devices of Satan in this Matter were for this Man to engage many of our weaker People to be his Hearers, by his not profeſſing himſelf an Anabaptiſt, but when he had them faſt, then about three or four Months hence to profeſs himſelf an Anabaptiſt, and lead them, who could ſay whither, with him. Unto the Man himſelf alſo, that Perſon having ſignified his Diſlike of what he had ſeen in him, Concluded, 'The Miniſters of this Town, who have by your means been greatly and ungratefully Reviled, will, I ſuppoſe, trouble themſelves no farther about you, except ſome remarkable Occaſion oblige them to it: but they will carry their Flocks to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and they will carry their Names to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and they will carry You alſo unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; but I believe the Conſequence of this will very ſpeedily be unto You very uncomfortable. He and his Creatures went on filling the Town with Slander, in Inſtances which I deſire to Forgive and Forget: Only one of them I will mention, becauſe they made more than ordinary Noiſe about it. Having too juſt Cauſe to fear, that this Inſolent Fellow would Steal an Admiſſion to the Lord's Table in my own Church, I went unto his Houſe on purpoſe to Forbid him from it; but they ſpread a Story over the Town that I came to Invite him to it. Many Days did not now paſs before I did, by a ſingular Accident, meet with a Book of Dr. Samuel Bolton's, wherein there is a Diſcourſe about The Royalties of Faith; and this Diſcourſe, to my Surprize, I found ſo very much the ſame with what I had my ſelf heard this Man deliver, that I thought the two Boys in Plautus were not more alike, — Dixitque ſibi ſua Concio, Fur es. I ſent for many other of the Hearers, who had better Memories than my ſelf, and offered them to give them a conſiderable Price for every Sentence they could call to Mind in their Dr. Samuel May's Diſcourſe, that I could not ſhow them in my Dr. Samuel Bolton's; which offer they ſome of them took, but could not find one Sentence for their Advantage: The exact Agreement between Samuel the Doctor, and Sam. the Dunce, was a diverting Surprize to all that ſaw it. Hereupon a Miniſter of the Town viſited the Man himſelf, and profered him a Piece of Eight for every material Sentence that he could produce of his own Diſcourſe about The Royalties of Faith, which could not be produced from the Author, and in the Order, and with his Flouriſhes and Expreſſions, that were moſt Peculiar; and he ſet before him the Cheat and the Crime that there is in Preaching Stolen Sermons. Indeed, becauſe the Man had no Academical Education (except one ſhould ſuppoſe at Samourgan, a certain famous Academy in Lithuania.) it was to no purpoſe to quote unto him the Saying of Syneſius, Magis impium eſſe mortuorum Lucubrationes, quam veſtes furari; But I did in plain Engliſh tell him the Diſhoneſty of the Matter. He not only Denied that ever he had uſ'd or ſeen any of Dr. Bolton's Works, (though he was alſo detected of Stealing Three or Four more Sermons out of this very Book!) but he alſo called the Great and Dreadful God to Witneſs, That the Diſcourſe he delivered was the pure effect of his own Induſtry and Invention; adding, That he had no other way to give Satiſfaction, but by Preaching on any Text that Miniſter ſhould give him. The Miniſter told him, that he was aſtoniſhed at his horrid Wickedneſs and Atheiſm, and that if he were to be believed in this thing, all Humane Proof of any thing muſt come to an End. He proceeded, That he had outgone all the Cheats that ever had appear'd among us, for being ſo hardned in Impiety and Stupidity, as to deny a Fact wherein he was as plainly Detected as ever any Thief that was taken with the Stolen Goods about him. And he concluded, 'Miſerable Man, do you ask me for a Text to Preach upon? I have a Text more than One for you to think upon. Go Preach, if you dare to do it, upon that Text, Pſal. 101. 7. He that telleth Lies, ſhall not tarry in my ſight. Preach, if you dare to do it, upon that Text, Pſal. 50. 16. Unto the wicked God ſaith, What haſt thou to do to declare my Statutes? Preach, if you dare to do it, upon that Text, Rev. 21. 8. All Liars ſhall have their Part in the Lake. And if you dare carry on your Impiety ſo far, Preach upon that Text, Rev. 2. 23. All the Churches ſhall know, that I ſearch the Reins and the Hearts. But let me Faithfully and Solemnly, and as a Miniſter of God, and as one ſpeaking to you in the Name of God, and in the Fear of God, Admoniſh you to Repent of your Wickedneſs. I doubt you will not Repent, and therefore I tell you, I am verily perſwaded the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who knows your Secret Wickedneſs, will bring it out. I verily Believe, That in your Detection, the Glorious Lord Jeſus Chriſt will make all the Churches to know, that He ſearches the Reins and the Hearts of the Children of Men. Remember I told you ſo, and that many Months will not paſs before this come to paſs: It may be I may Live to ſee it. He Trembled and Quivered when the Miniſter ſpoke theſe things unto him; yet he Repented not, but in a few Hours he ſet the People a Railing at that Miniſter in many Corners of the Town, for Abuſing a Precious, Godly, Worthy Man. Some adviſed the Arreſting of that Miniſter in Great Actions for Defaming of this Excellent Perſon; And others had the Fear of God ſo little in exerciſe with them, as to cry out, That if this Man had been guilty of all that was charg'd on him, yet for that Miniſter to ſpeak ſuch things to him, was as great an Offence as his.

I had Reaſon to deſire that the Truth might now appear a little more irrefragably, and therefore I went unto the Officers of the Anabaptiſt Church, declaring, That I apprehended my ſelf able to convict the Man whom they employ'd as a Publick Teacher among them of being a Cheat, and of having horribly Ly'd againſt his Conſcience in ſeveral Repeated and Notorious Inſtances; and that I deſired on my own behalf, and on the behalf of the other Miniſters in the Town, that they would appoint a Place the next Week, where I might prove my Charge to his Face, and they ſhould be Judges of it. I could not have Imagined it, but the Church being informed of my Demand, immediately Renewed (as I am told) their Call unto him, to continue his Preaching among them; and by their Miniſter and Another there was an Anſwer of this Importance brought unto me, That inaſmuch as this Man was not a Member of their Church, they did not apprehend themſelves concerned to take any notice of what I had offered. Whereto my Reply was, Well, I have done my Duty, and I hope you have conſidered, Whether it will be for Chriſt's Honour, or for your own, to employ a Man as a Publick Preacher, againſt whom ſuch a Charge is urg'd, and may be prov'd, if you will but hear it. And thought I, how much will Chriſtians act beſides themſelves when Led into Temptation. From this time, even from September (I think) to December, I concern'd my ſelf no further; being ſatisfied that it would not be long before the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who ſaw how impiouſly this Man mocked him, would Search him out, and Cloath with perpetual Confuſion thoſe that would perſiſt in Aſſiſting ſuch a Mocker of Heaven. One would have thought that conſiderate People after this warning would have been as much afraid of ſeeing ſuch a Spectre in a Pulpit, as if he had been the Holder-forth, which they ſay ſometimes appears in the Copper Mines of Sueden. But many People, inſtead of taking the warning, went on ſtill, under the Influences of this Ignis Fatuus, to treat me (and much better Men) with Numberleſs and Furious Abuſes for giving it; and with a practical Commentary upon the Diſtempers mentioned in the Beginning of the firſt Epiſtle to the Corinthians. I praiſe the Lord for his making me unwilling to Remember them, and I pray him to caſt them out of his Remembrance. At laſt the Malice went ſo far, that they began to throw into my Houſe inſolent, bitter, bloody Libels, wherein, albeit the nameleſs Writers confeſs a great Eſteem for me for my moderate Spirit towards them that differ from me, yet they now in moſt venemous Terms of Rage flew upon me for my Reviling an Eminent Worthy Stranger, (as they expreſs it) and Perſecuting one who had the Root of the matter in him, and one who had now the Liberty of a more Unſtained Pulpit than any of thoſe which had been deny'd him. All theſe, and many more ſuch things, wherein I heard the Defaming of many, I bore, I hope I may ſay, Silently, and Patiently, and it was a great Fault in me, if not Prayerfully: And if I did not ſet my ſelf to conſider, What Holy Leſſons were to be learnt out of ſuch Temptations: In which Leſſons I ſhould have been ſufficiently Requited Good, for the Curſing of all the Shimei's in the Town. But thought I, what Spirit poſſeſſes theſe Touchy Folks that they can't let me be quiet? I do nothing to Diſquiet them: Or does that Spirit ſee that his time is but Short, e'er the Diſpleaſure of Heaven put this Boutefeu and his Diſciples to the Bluſh which had been foretold unto them? Truly, Sir, I had no Remedy, but humbly to carry my Complaints unto the Lord, who knew my Faithfulneſs.

This Evil Worker now apply'd himſelf unto the Anabaptiſts with private Intimations, that for Four or Five Years he had been convinced in his Conſcience that their way was the Right way, and that he was now in ſome Trouble of Conſcience for his having delay'd ſo long to Declare himſelf, but it ſhould not now be long before he did. When things were now become juſt Ripe for the Devices of Satan to take effect, behold how the Wonderful Providence of Heaven defeated them! The Lord ſent an Evil Spirit between this Man and the Anabaptiſts that had adhered unto him. Even they began to find their Eminent Worthy Stranger guilty of ſuch Lying, and ſuch Lewdneſs, and ſuch Damnable Covetouſneſs, (eſpecially when upon their not carrying Money to him on a Lord's Day wherein he Preached not, he flew out, as I am told, like a Dragon, ſpitting this among other Fire at them, I ſee, no longer Pipe, no longer Dance!) that they came to fear he was a Cheat, and wiſhed they had never ſeen him. While things were thus operating, the guilty Fellow having bubbled the ſilly Neighbours of incredible Scores of Pounds, and thinking that the Anſwers of my Letters to Europe about him were not far off, all on the ſudden he will be gone; and none of the charming offers that were made him if he would continue, could procure his continuance any longer in the Country. He that had often told us, his coming from England was with a purpoſe to ſee his Uncle in Virginia, whom it may be no Man elſe ever ſaw, now without one look towards Virginia Ships himſelf to Return for England. But God will no longer be mocked!

A Virtuous and Laudable Young Gentleman in the Neighbourhood lets fall a Word unto one of his Friends, That he was informed this Man had uſed ſome uncivil Carriage towards a Woman that belonged unto one of the Churches in the Town. Some of the Hearers go and complain that this Gentleman ſaid, The Man had got ſuch a Woman with Child, whereupon ſome of the Man's Friends began to be obſtreperous. The Ingenuous Young Gentleman was too well beloved by all that knew his conſtant Piety, to be ſuſpected of ſpeaking a Falſhood; and the trouble on the Minds of his Friends for him immediately made ſeveral Diſcreet and Honeſt Women to ſpeak out more plainly, how able they were to aſſert the Truth of what he had really ſpoken. Horrid things began to be muttered about this Wretch for divers Weeks before; and no doubt the apprehenſion of their taking Air haſtened his Flight; but a modeſt Woman, eſpecially if ſhe don't know of any one elſe to ſuſtain with her the weight of the Teſtimony, appears with no ſmall Reluctancy to Teſtifie an Affront offered unto her. It had been remark'd by ſome, that this Villain, though in Publick Prayer he were extraordinarily Devout, yet he had a ſtrange Indiſpoſition to Private Prayer. And there was enough to render Prayer uneaſie to his guilty Soul; for while he was Feaſting with the abuſed Neighbours, he had Eyes full of Adultery that could not ceaſe from Sin. The burning Jealouſie of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt will now bring out the Villany of this Man, and make all the Churches to know that he ſearches the Reins and the Hearts. The Hypocrite had made ſuch a ſhow of Zeal in his Performances on the Stage, that every one ſaid, This Man muſt be either a great Saint, or a great Rogue; and as to one of theſe, I queſtion whether a greater ever came into this Land.

Sir, I durſt not blot my Paper with all the abominable things that are teſtified upon Oath againſt this Eminent Worthy Stranger. But the Sum of the Teſtimonies depoſed upon Oath before the Magiſtrate, Decemb. 7. 1699. by ſeveral Women of unblemiſh'd Reputation, is, 'That he would often watch Opportunities of 'getting them alone, and then would often af'front them with Lewd, Vile and Laſcivious 'Carriages, which rendered it a dangerous thing 'to be alone with him, and abundantly aſſured 'them, that he was a great Rogue, and that 'if they had been for his Turn, he would have 'ſtuck at no Villany towards them. That he 'would alſo talk at a vile rate, and among o'ther things he would plead, That there was 'no Sin in Adultery.

The Teſtimonies after this increaſed on our Hands, which aſſured us, That on a Saturday, with his Bible in his Hands, he could Solicite Young Women to Wantonneſs; Yea, and Endeavour to Intoxicate them, that he might purſue his vile Purpoſes upon them. Yea, that when he heard of a Young Woman affected with his Miniſtry, he would find her out, and ſpend ſeveral Hours together in rude Actions and Speeches to her, and urging her to Lye with him, which he ſaid was no Sin, for David and Solomon did as much; and adding, They need not fear being with Child by him, for none ever were ſo! More of this prodigious Deviliſm was teſtified againſt this Eminent Worthy Stranger; and other horrid ſtuff begins to come to Light, and I ſuppoſe would ſoon be found, if ſought for; but I abhor to rake any further in ſuch a Dungbil.

They that fill'd the Town with other Impiety, by ſetting up this Filthy Dreamer, have now a time to admire the Favour of Heaven, (more than their own Prudence) that there was not ſet up a Congregation of Nicolaitans in the Town, and that the Young People have not been debauched into fearful Whoredoms, and led away to the Unclean Spirit, like the Tranſilvanian Children, which Danced after the Pied Piper into the Cave of Hamelen.

But I have obſerved, That whereas grievous Times of Temptation are ever now and then ſent upon our Churches, if the Servants of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt can, for a while, bear to be buffeted by the fooliſh Rage of thoſe Times, and apply themſelves to humble Prayer and Faith before the great Lord, who holds the Tempter in a Chain; and if inſtead of anſwering to Reviling with Reviling, they are only quickned unto more of Holineſs and Uſefulneſs; the Times do not prove Days of Temptation, but meer Hours of Temptation; and, Nubeculæ cito tranſituræ, preſently at an end. And ſo it was in the Storm of Temptation, which by Satan was now raiſed in our Neighbourhood.

It has in ſome former Years commonly happened unto me, that when I viſited in the way of my Paſtoral Duty Perſons Poſſeſſed with Evil Spirits, the Perſons, though they knew every one elſe in the Room, yet through the unaccountable Operation of the Evil-Spirits upon their Eyes, I muſt appear ſo Dirty, ſo Ugly, ſo Diſguis'd unto them, that they could have no Knowledge of me. I have a Thouſand times thought that the Lord ordered this for ſome Intimation unto me, that when Times of Temptation come, wherein Evil Spirits have as much Operation on the Minds of many People, as they have upon the Eyes of Energumens, a Miniſter of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that will be faithful unto his Intereſts, muſt look to be all over Diſguis'd by Miſrepreſentations unto the Minds of them that are under the Power of Temptation. A Miniſter ſhall ſtrictly impoſe that Law of Kindneſs upon his Lips, to ſpeak not one Intemperate or Injurious Word on the greateſt Provocation, and yet be repreſented as a Man full of Bitterneſs. He ſhall be always Deviſing things to relieve the miſerable, and ſpend more than many others do imagine poſſible to be ſpent in Pious Uſes, and ſcorn to take many little Gains, that might lawfully be taken, and yet they ſhall cry out of him for Uncharitableneſs and Incivility. He ſhall never once in his Life ask a Salary from his Flock, nor agree with them about a Salary, nor have his dependance on the Lord's-Day Collections for a Salary, nor be in any likelihood of ſeeing the Lord's-Day Collections to fail, and yet they ſhall flout at him, as one afraid of loſing his Contribution. A Miniſter ſhall be of ſuch a Temper, that perceiving a conſiderable and valuable part of his Flock to put themſelves unto a deal of Trouble to attend upon his Miniſtry (by paſſing a large Ferry every Lord's-Day,) he ſhall one Year after another call upon thoſe beloved Chriſtians to leave his Miniſtry, and ſet up a New Church by themſelves, and ſet a Worthy Paſtor over them, to ſupport whom he ſhall offer to contribute not a little, and part with ſome of his own Salary; and yet this Miniſter ſhall be repreſented as Afraid of nothing more than loſing his Hearers. He ſhall — but I don't love to mention theſe things; the Lord of Heaven teach us by theſe things to Long for Heaven, and even while we are on Earth to Live in Heaven.

You will doubtleſs make ſome Advantage to your Holy Thoughts from this Remarkable Story; and my other Neighbours will make, I hope, at leaſt this Advantage from it, that if another Barber, inſtead of the other Courſes that bring ſo many to Tyburn, come over from London hither, to recruit his Broken Fortunes by the Blaſphemies of Stolen Sermons, plauſibly and fervently delivered; the People have now learnt a little more Wit, than to Pamper ſuch a Fellow with their plentiful Cookery, and Equip him with Score of Pounds in his Pocket; and ſend him to London again to Laugh at the Folly of them that will permit themſelves to be ſo Abuſed.

'Tis time for me now to Subſcribe my ſelf, (inaſmuch as I am not Writing a Libel)

SIR,

Your Sincere Servant,

Cotton Mather.

POSTSCRIPT.

THE Country has been ſo fill'd with Lies, on the Occaſion of the things which have been truly repreſented in this my Letter, that I ſuppoſe I ſhall Publiſh the Letter unto the Country. And if any blame the Publication, I think they will forget What is required in the Ninth Commandment; and I fear they will but expoſe themſelves unto the Cenſures of Wiſe and Good Men, as the Friends of this Impoſtor, not out of Charity, (as divers Worthy Chriſtians before they knew him were) but from a Principle of Impiety and Malignity. Among the ancient Iſraelites, when a Falſe Prophet, or an Unclean Prieſt was found, every Man had a Commiſſion, in the Preſence of Ten Men, to execute the Law upon him, (as Grotius tells us) Non Expectato Judice. But when one of thoſe Wretches received his Puniſhment, it was the Cuſtom, That a Letter concerning it ſhould be diſpatch'd unto all the Cities of Iſrael. As for this Unclean Prophet, the Letter it ſelf that is now diſpatch'd unto all the Churches, is the chief Puniſhment hitherto inflicted on him.

CHAP. VI.

Arma Viroſq; Cano: Or, The Troubles which the Churches of NEW-ENGLAND have undergone in the WARS, which the People of that Country have had with the Indian Salvages.

§. 1. TWO Colonies of Churches being brought forth, and a Third conceived within the Bounds of New-England, by the Year 1636. it was time for the Devil to take the Alarum, and make ſome attempt in Oppoſition to the Poſſeſſion which the Lord Jeſus Chriſt was going to have of theſe utmoſt Parts of the Earth. Theſe Parts were then covered with Nations of Barbarous Indians and Infidels, in whom the Prince of the Power of the Air did Work as a Spirit; nor could it be expected that Nations of Wretches, whoſe whole Religion was the moſt Explicit ſort of Devil-Worſhip, ſhould not be acted by the Devil to engage in ſome early and bloody Action, for the Extinction of a Plantation ſo contrary to his Intereſts, as that of New-England was. Of theſe Nations there was none more Fierce, more Warlike, more Potent, or of a greater Terror unto their Neighbours, than that of the PEQUOTS; but their being ſo much a Terror to their Neighbours, and eſpecially to the Narraganſets on the Eaſt-ſide of them, and the Monhegins on the Weſt, upon whom they had committed many Barbarous Outrages, produced ſuch a Diviſion in the Kingdom of Satan againſt it ſelf, as was very ſerviceable to that of our Lord. In the Year 1634. theſe terrible Salvages killed one Captain Stone, and Captain Norton, with Six Men more, in a Bark ſailing up Connecticut River, and then ſunk her. In the Year 1635. a Bark ſailing from the Maſſachuſet-Bay to Virginia, being by a Tempeſt caſt away at Long-Iſland, the ſame terrible Salvages killed ſeveral of the Shipwrack'd Engliſhmen. In the Year 1636. at Block-Iſland coming Aboard a Veſſel to Trade, they Murdered the Maſter. And another coming that way, found that they had made themſelves Maſters of a Bark, which occaſioned the ſending of an Hundred and Twenty Soldiers thither, under the Command of Captain Endicot, Captain Underbil, and Captain Turner, by the Governour and Council at Boſton, upon whom, at their Landing, the Indians violently ſhot, and ſo ran away where no Engliſh could come at them. Travelling further up to the Pequot Country, the Pequots refuſed, upon a Conference, to Surrender the Murderers Harboured among them, which were then demanded; whereupon a Skirmiſh enſued, in which, after the Death of one of their Men, the Indians fled, but the Engliſh deſtroyed their Corn and their Hutts, and ſo returned.

Moreover, a Fort, with a Garriſon of Twenty Men, being by ſome Agents that were ſent over by the Lord Say and the Lord Brook, formed at the River's Mouth, (a place called Say-Brook) the Piquots after this lay ſculking about that Fort almoſt continually; by which means divers of the Engliſh loſt their Lives, and ſome that were ſeized by the Indians going up the River, were moſt horribly Tortured by them, and Roaſted alive; and afterwards the Tawnies would with Deriſion in the Engliſh hearing, imitate the doleful Ejulations and Invocations of the poor Creatures that had periſhed under their cruel Tortures, and add infinite Blaſphemies thereunto. Unto all which there was annexed the Slaughter of Nine Men, with the taking of Two Maids, by this horrid Enemy lying in Ambuſh for them as they went into the Fields at Weatherfield. So that the Infant Colonies of New-England finding themſelves neceſſitated unto the Cruſhing of Serpents, while they were but yet in the Cradle, Unanimouſly reſolved, that with the Aſſiſtance of Heaven they would root this Neſt of Serpents out of the World.

Reader, it is remark'd concerning one Anab, in very early Times, [Gen. 36. 24.] That he found Mules in the Wilderneſs. But theſe Mules were, if I been't miſtaken, as very Men as the Pequots, whom the Firſt Planters of New-England found in the Wilderneſs. We are convinced by ſuch Incomparable Writers as Bochart, that the Mountainous Parts of Seir, where our Anab dwelt, was a Country no ways Famous for Mules; but we may then incline rather to the Opinion of Sanbert, who maintains, that the ימים here by us Tranſlated Mules, are the ſame that elſewhere are called, אמים of which Variety in Writing the ſame Name the Scriptures have many Inſtances. Now theſe Emim, were the well-known Giants, which Inhabiting the Horræan Regions in the Neighbourhood, ſtruck Terror (as their Name ſignifies) unto all the Neighbours, till the Poſterity of Eſſau vanquiſhed them; a Matter which many Paſſages in the Bible intimate. Our Anab is here diſtinguiſhed from another ſo called, by a notable Exploit which he performed for the Service of his Country. He Found, that is, he Surprized and Aſſaulted the Emim, thoſe terrible Giants with which the Neighbourhood was infeſted. By this Heroick Act he ſignalized himſelf, while the Prince his Father, employed him in managing and ordering his Eſtate in the Wilderneſs, which according to the uſe of thoſe Times lay more in Cattel than in any other Subſtance. But this Digreſſion ſerves only to excite my Reader's Expectation of Pequot Giants to be found in our Wilderneſs.

§. 2. When theſe Ammonites perceived that they had made themſelves to ſtink before the New-Engliſh Iſrael, they tried by all the Enchanting Inſinuations that they could think upon, to reconcile themſelves unto the other Nations of Indians, with whom they had been heretofore at Variance: Demonſtrating to them how eaſie 'twould be for them, if they were United, quickly to extirpate the Engliſh, who if they were Divided, would from thence take their Advantage to Devour them one after another. But although no Machiavel or Achitophel could have inſinuated this Matter with more of Plauſibility, yet the proſpect of a Sweet Revenge, which the other Nations of the Indians did now hope to have by the help of the Engliſh upon theſe their Old Enemies, prevailed with them to renounce all Propoſals of Accommodation; which thing was of the Lord! Wherefore, in the beginning of May, 1637. Connecticut-Colony ſet out againſt theſe Pequots Ninety Men, under the Command of that Worthy Gentleman, Mr. John Maſon, whoſe Worth advanced him afterwards to be the Deputy Governour of the Colony; and theſe were accompanied with one Uncas an Indian Sachem, newly revolted from the Pequots. Captain Underbil alſo being with the Garriſon at Say-brook, obtained leave to aſſiſt the Service now in Hand with Nineteen Men and himſelf, who was not the Twentieth, but as good as Twenty more. Maſſachuſet-Colony were willing to do their part in this Expedition, with an Army (Reader, conſidering the ſmall Number of Inhabitants then in theſe Territories, let it paſs for an ARMY!) conſiſting of an Hundred and Sixty Men, under the Chief Command of Iſrael Stoughton, Eſq; a Gentleman of great Merits; but the Matter calling for a real Expedition, one Captain Patrick, with Forty Men, was diſpatched away before. Plymouth-Colony chearfully offer'd Fifty Men, as their Quota, to the Service now Undertaken; but it being Accompliſhed, as well as Undertaken, before their Complement of Men could arrive, the Will was taken for the Deed. The Connecticut Forces being Shipp'd in Connecticut-River, they choſe Narraganſet-River to Land at, rather than Pequot-River, where the Enemy kept a continual Guard; and from thence they marched with a Deſign to Surprize them, while the Narraganſet-Indians, whereof about Five Hundred now joined them, as they approached near to the Enemies Head Quarters, diſcovered ſo much Fear, that they either quite ran away, or fell into the Rear. Captain Maſon was by this time informed, that the Pequots had retired themſelves into Two Impregnable Forts, whereof one was the Rendezvouz of Saſſacus the Chief Tyrant, and that fierce Tyger, at the very mention of whoſe Name the Narraganſets trembled, ſaying, He was all one a God, no Body could kill him. The Council of War determined it neceſſary to fall firſt upon the Fort which they could find firſt; and on their ſilent March in the Moonſhiny Night, an Indian-Spy that had been ſent upon Diſcovery, brought them Word that the Pequots were in a Profound Sleep: For having ſeen the Engliſh Veſſels not come to any Port in the next River, they preſumed the Engliſh People to be afraid of them, and had newly tired themſelves with Dancing and Singing until Midnight upon that Preſumption. Our Guide was one Wequaſh, an Indian revolted from the Pequots, among whom he had been a Captain; and now Captain Maſon, with Captain Underhil, coming up to the next Fort about break of Day, the Indian Auxiliaries were ſo diſ-ſpirited, as to retire where they might lye Poſt Principia, hardly ſo much as the Spectators of the enſuing Action. The Two Captains, with their Two Companies, took, Maſon the Eaſt-ſide, and Underhil the Weſt-ſide of the Fort, for them to make their Aſſaults upon; and as they approached within a Rod of the Fort, a Dog Barking awaked another Cerberus, an Indian that ſtood Centinel, who immediately cried out, Wannux, Wannux, i. e. Engliſh, Engliſh! However, the Courageous Captains preſently found a way to enter the Fort, and thereupon followed a Bloody Encounter, wherein ſeveral of the Engliſh were wounded, and many of the Indians killed: But the Wigwams or Houſes which filled the Fort conſiſting chiefly of Combuſtible Mats, we ſet Fire to them, and preſently retiring out of the Fort, on every ſide ſurrounded it. The Fire by the Advantage of the Wind carried all before it; and ſuch horrible Confuſion overwhelmed the Salvages, that many of them were Broiled unto Death in the revenging Flames; many of them climbing to the Tops of the Palizados, were a fair Mark for the Mortiferous Bullets there; and many of them that had the Reſolution to iſſue forth, were Slain by the Engliſh that ſtood ready to bid 'em Welcome; nor were there more than Two Engliſh Men that loſt their Lives in the Heat of this Action. It was on Friday, May 20. 1637. that this memorable Action was performed; and it was rendred the more memorable by this, that the very Night before what was now done, an Hundred and Fifty Indians were come from the other Fort unto this, with a purpoſe to go out with all ſpeed unto the Deſtruction of ſome Engliſh Town; whereas they were now ſuddenly deſtroy'd themſelves; and in a little more than One Hour, Five or Six Hundred of theſe Barbarians were diſmiſſed from a World that was Burdened with them; not more than Seven or Eight Perſons eſcaping of all that Multitude. But e'er we paſs any further, we will take this place to Commemorate Famous Wequaſh, the Indian whom we newly mentioned as the Guide of the Engliſh to this Indian Fort. Know, Reader, that after this Battel Wequaſh had his Mind wonderfully ſtruck with great Apprehenſions about the Glory of the Engliſhman's God; and he went about the Colony of Connecticut with bitter Lamentations, That he did not know Jeſus Chriſt, until the good People there inſtructed him. When he had underſtood and embraced the Chriſtian Religion, he made a moſt Exemplary Profeſſion of it; he reformed all his former Ways of Sin and Luſt, and with prodigious Patience bore a Thouſand Injuries from the other Indians for his Holy Profeſſion, while he went up and down Preaching of Chriſt among them. At laſt the Indians Murdered him, and Poiſoned him for his Religion; and I find no leſs a Perſon than Mr. Thomas Shepherd of Cambridge in Print reporting his Death with ſuch Terms as theſe. Wequaſh, the Famous Indian at the Rivers Mouth, is dead, and certainly in Heaven: Gloriouſly did the Grace of Chriſt ſhine forth in his Converſation a Year and a half before his Death; he knew Chriſt; he loved Chriſt; he preached Chriſt up and down; and then ſuffered Martyrdom for Chriſt; and when he died, he gave his Soul to Chriſt, and his only Child to the Engliſh, in this hope, that the Child ſhould know more of Chriſt than its poor Father did.

§. 3. Sampſon was not in much greater Diſtreſs by Thirſt, after his Exploit upon the Philiſtines, than our Friends the Day after this Exploit upon the Pequots; being diſtreſſed with the wants of a Thouſand Neceſſaries, in the Country of an enraged and a numerous Enemy in the other Fort, from whence they expected that the mighty Saſſacus, with all his Might, would pour forth upon them. Nevertheleſs, by the good Providence of God, their Pinaces, with all other neceſſary Proviſion for 'em, arrived in the Pequot Harbour at the very nick of time, when they were moſt wiſhing for them; whither while our Forces were Marching, the Enemy came up, Three Hundred of them, from the other Fort, like Bears bereaved of their Whelps. They now continued a Bloody Fight for Six Miles together; in which the Indians meeting with much loſs, notwithſtanding their making a Fort of every Swamp in the way, were ſo diſcouraged, that for the preſent they gave over; but when they came to ſee the Aſhes of their Friends mingled with the Aſhes of the Fort, and the Bodies of ſo many of their Countrymen terribly Barbikew'd, where the Engliſh had been doing a good Mornings Work, they Howl'd, they Roar'd, they Stamp'd, they Tore their Hair; and though they did not Swear, (for they knew not how!) yet they Curs'd, and were the Pictures of ſo many Devils in Deſparation. Captain Patrick, and quickly after him Captain Stoughton, were now come into thoſe Parts of the Country, to Proſecute the Work which had been ſo notably begun by the Connecticotians: And there was yet Work for them to do; we have ſometimes read of A Gleaning as good as a Vintage. For the whole Body of the Surviving Pequots repairing to the Fort where Saſſacus reſided, upbraided him as the Author of all their Diſaſters, and were as full of Mutiny againſt him, as the Ninevites were againſt Sennacherib after his Diſaſterous Expedition againſt Jeruſalem; upon which they preſently diſperſed themſelves into ſeveral Dangerous, Rambling and Raging Parcels, and became like ſo many Unkennell'd Wolves about the Country. However, Heaven ſo ſmil'd upon the Engliſh Hunting after them, that here and there whole Companies of them were, by the Informations of other Indians, Trepanned into the Hunters Hands; particularly at one time ſome Hundreds of them were ſeized by Captain Stoughton with little Oppoſition, who ſending away the Females and Children as Captives, put the Men on Board a Veſſel of one Skipper Gallop, which proved a Charon's Ferry-Boat unto them, for it was found the quickeſt Way to feed the Fiſhes with 'em. Our Forces purſued the reſt of the Pequots which way ſoever they could hear of them, and frequently had the Satiſfaction of cutting them off by Companies: But among others, they met with one Crew which afforded them Two Sachims, both of which they Beheaded, and unto a Third they gave his Life, on Condition that he would effectually enquire after Saſſacus, the Grand one of them all. This Wretch overlooking all National or Natural Obligations, proved faithful to his Employers; and in a few Days returning with Advice of the Place where Saſſacus was Lodg'd, Saſſacus from his withdraw, ſuſpected the Matter, and ſo fled away with Twenty or Thirty of his Men to that People which are known by the Name of Maqua's, a fierce Generation of Man-Eaters, for whom the Name of Cannibal or Hannibal, (of a Signification Originally much more Gracious!) has been carried with them out of Africa into America; but theſe Maqua's being by the Narraganſets, as was thought, hired thereunto, with a moſt Indian Hoſpitality cut 'em all to Pieces. By ſuch Methods as theſe there was a quick period givento the Pequot War; and the few Pequots that ſurvived, finding themſelves a Prey to all the other Indians, who now prided themſelves in preſenting the Engliſh with as many Pequot Heads as they could, whether by Violence, or by Stratagem, ſeize upon, ſubmitted themſelves unto the Engliſh Mercy. But the reſt of the Indians, who ſaw a little handful of Engliſhmen Maſſacre and Captivate ſeven Hundred of their Adverſaries, and kill no leſs than Thirteen of their Sachims or little Kings in one ſhort Expedition, ſuch a Terror from God fell upon them, that after this the Land reſted from War for near Forty Years together, even until the time when the Sins of the Land called for a new Scourge; and the Indians by being taught the Uſe of Guns, which hitherto they had not learnt, were more capable to be made the Inſtruments of inflicting it. The Engliſh Intereſt in America muſt at laſt with Bleeding Lamentaions cry out, Heu! Patior Telis, Vulnera facta meis.

For after this, the Auri ſacra Fames, that curſed Hunger of Lucre, in the diverſe Nations of Europeans here, in diverſe Colonies bordering upon one another, ſoon furniſh'd the Salvages with Tools to deſtroy thoſe that furniſh'd them;

——Tools, pregnant with Infernal Flame,
Which into Hollow Engines, long and round,
Thick Ramm'd at th' other Bore, with Touch of Fire
Dilated and Infuriate, doth ſend forth
From far with Thund'ring Noiſe among their Foes
Such Implements of Miſchief, as to daſh
To Pieces and o'erwhelm whatever ſtands
Adverſe.—

§. 4. Indeed, there were ſome Approaches towards a War between the Engliſh and ſeveral Nations of the Indians divers times after this; but they were happily prevented with an Obſta Principiis. In the Year 1638. ſundry Vagabond Engliſh murdered an Indian in the Woods, upon which the Narraganſets, whereof he was one, were going to riſe: But when they ſaw the Juſtice of the Country in Executing Three Engliſh for the Murder of one Indian, it ſo Aſtoniſhed them that they laid aſide their Inclination to Inſurrection. In the Year 1643. Miantonimo the King of the Narraganſets, having foully hired an Indian to Aſſaſſinate Uncas the King of the Moheags, (but fail'd in the Attempt) a Diſturbance was thereby Occaſion'd; which proceeded ſo far, that Miantonimo went forth to a Battel againſt Uncas, wherein Uncas, though he had but half the Number of Men, took Miantonimo Priſoner, and very fairly cut off his Head. In the next Year, an Indian murdering an Engliſhman in the Woods near Connecticut, and the Sagamore whereto he belonged refuſing to Surrender the Murderer, things went on ſo far that the Heady Indians began to do Hoſtile Actions, until upon Second and Wiſer Thoughts the Salvages did make a Surrender of the Murderer, and then thoſe Clouds blew over alſo.

About the ſame Year, the Narraganſets were ſo ſet upon Deſtroying the Mohegins, that the New-Englanders reckon'd themſelves bound in Juſtice and Honour to defend Uncas, who had ever been true to the Engliſh Intereſts; and upon this Account there was an Army raiſed from all the Colonies, which being on their March towards the Enemies Country, the Principal Sachims of the Narraganſets, by an early Application to Boſton for Peace, put an happy ſtop to their Marching any further.

The Narroganſets obliged themſelves to pay the Charges which in this Matter they had put the Engliſh unto, and ſend the Sons of their Sachims for Hoſtages until the ſaid Payment ſhould be made; but the Indians obſerving but a Greek Faith in the ſlow Fulfilments of their Promiſes, one Captain Atherton had the Courage, with a very few Engliſh, to viſit and enter the very Wigwam of the old Sachim Ninigret, and catching the Sachim there by his Hair, with a Piſtol at his Breaſt, in plain Engliſh proteſted, That if he did not immediately take effectual Order to Anſwer the Engliſh Demands, he was a dead Man. An horrid Conſternation ſeized all the Indians upon the ſight of ſo Extravagant an Action; and though Multitudes of them ſtood ready to let fly upon Captain Atherton, yet their Hearts failed them: They ſubmitted, and there was an End. A Plot of one Sequaſſon, an Indian Prince near New-Haven, to Aſſaſſinate the chief Magiſtrates of the Neighbour Colony, and ſome other Villainous and Injurious Actions of the Indians towards divers other Engliſh People, cauſed more Diſturbance in the Year 1646. but at laſt this alſo came to nothing. In the Year 1647. not only the Narraganſets but the Moheags alſo, by new Inſolencies, obliged the Engliſh to demand Satiſfaction from them, which being obtained, they proceeded unto no further Action; and in the Year following the Narraganſets hiring the Maqua's to Aſſiſt them in the Proſecution of their old Pique againſt Uncas, were again upon the very point of Committing Outrages upon the Engliſh too; but a merciful Providence of Heaven over-ruled it, as it in like manner did the Effects of a General Uproar likely to enſue upon certain Murders perpetrated by Outrageous Indians upon certain Perſons of New-Haven, and of Long-Iſland, in the Year enſuing. About the Year 1653. there was a great Commotion and Agony raiſed in the Spirits of People throughout the Country, upon the Apprehenſion of an horrid Conſpiracy among the Indians throughout the Country to cut off all the Engliſh; and there appeared ſtrong Evidences to Confirm that Apprehenſion; but theſe Troubles likewiſe vaniſhed. In the Year 1662. Alexander, the Son and Heir of old Maſſaſoit, not being ſuch a Friend to the Engliſh as his Father had been before him, ſollicited the Narraganſets to join with him in a Rebellion; upon the good proof whereof, the Government of Plymouth ſent that Valiant and Excellent Commander, Major General Winſlow, to fetch him down before them. The Major General uſed ſuch Expedition and Reſolution in this Affair, that, aſſiſted with no more than Ten Men, he ſeized upon Alexander at an Hunting-Houſe, notwithſtanding his Numerous Attendants about him, and when the Raging Sachim ſaw a Piſtol at his Breaſt, with a Threatning of Death to him if he did not quietly yeild himſelf up to go down unto Plymouth with him, he yeilded, though, it may be, not very quietly thereunto. Alexander was thereupon treated with no other than that Humanity and Civility which was always Eſſential to the Major General; nevertheleſs the inward Fury of his own guilty and haughty Mind threw him into ſuch a Fever as coſt him his Life. His Brother Philip ſucceeded him in the Sagamore-ſhip, who after he had ſolemnly Renewed his Covenant of Peace with the Engliſh, moſt perfidiouſly broke it by making an attempt of War upon them in the Year 1671. wherein being ſeaſonably and effectually Defeated, he humbly Confeſſed his Breach of Covenant, and ſubſcribed Articles of Submiſſion, whereof one was, That in caſe any future Difference did ariſe between him and the Engliſh, he would repair to the Government there to Rectifie Matters, before he Engaged in any Hoſtile Attempts. Indeed, when the Duke of Archette, at his being made Governour of Antwerpe Caſtle, took an Oath to keep it faithfully for King Philip of Spain, the Officer that gave him his Oath uſed theſe odd Words, If you perform what you promiſe, God help you; if you do it not, the Devil take you Body and Soul! And all the Standers-by cried, Amen. But when the Indian King Philip took an Oath to be faithful unto the Government of New-England no Body uſed theſe Words unto him; nevertheleſs you ſhall anon ſee whether theſe Words were not Expreſſive enough of what became of him!

§. 5. In the Year 1674, one John Sauſaman, an Indian, that had been ſent forth from the Engliſh to Preach the Goſpel unto his Country-Men, addreſſed the Governour of Plymouth with Informations, that Philip, with ſeveral Nations of the Indians beſides his own, were plotting the Deſtruction of the Engliſh throughout the Country. This John Sauſaman was the Son of Chriſtian Indians; but he Apoſtatiſing from the Profeſſion of Chriſtianity, lived like an Heathen in the Quality of a Secretary to King Philip; for he could Write, though the King his Maſter could not ſo much as Read. But after this, the Grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt Recovered him from his Apoſtaſie, and he gave ſuch notable Evidences and Expreſſions of his Repentance, that he was not only admitted unto the Communion of the Lord's Table in one of the Indian Churches, but he was alſo employed every Lord's Day as an Inſtructer among them. Nevertheleſs, becauſe there was but this one Teſtimony of an Indian, and therefore of a ſuſpected Original, there was little notice taken of it, until the Artificial Arguments of ſome too probable and unhappy Circumſtances confirmed it. But before the truth of the Matter could be enquired into, poor John was Barbarouſly Murdered by certain Indians, who, that the Murder might not be Diſcovered, cut an Hole through the Ice of the Pond, where they met with him, and put in the Dead Body, leaving his Hat and his Gun upon the Ice, that ſo others might ſuppoſe him to have there drowned himſelf. It being rumoured that Sauſaman was miſſing, the Neighbours did ſeek, and find, and bury his Dead Body; but upon the Jealouſies on the Spirits of Men that he might have met with ſome foul Play for his Diſcovering of the Indian Plot, a Jury was empannell'd, unto whom it appeared that his Neck was broken, which is one Indian way of Murdering, and that his Head was extreamly Swoln, and that he had ſeveral other Wounds upon him, and that when he was taken out of the Pond, no Water Iſſued out of him. It was remarkable, that one Tobias, a Counſellor of King Philip's, whom they ſuſpected as the Author of this Murder, approaching to the Dead Body, it would ſtill fall a Bleeding afreſh, as if it had newly been Slain; yea, that upon the Repetition of the Experiment it ſtill happened ſo, albeit he had been deceaſed and interred for a Conſiderable while before. Afterwards an Indian, called Patuckſon, gave in his Teſtimony, that he ſaw this Tobias, with certain other Indians, killing of John Sauſaman; and it was furthet teſtified, that John Sauſaman before he died had expreſſed his Fears, that thoſe very Indians would be his Death. Hereupon Tobias, with Two other Indians, being apprehended, they were, after a fair Trial for their Lives, by a Jury conſiſting half of Engliſh, and half of Indians, Convicted, and ſo Condemned; and though they were all ſucceſſively turned off the Ladder at the Gallows, utterly denying the Fact; yet the laſt of them happening to break or ſlip the Rope, did, before his going off the Ladder again, confeſs, That the other Indians did really Murder John Sauſaman, and that he was himſelf, though no Actor in it, yet a Looker on. Things began by this time to have an Ominous Aſpect. Yea, and now we ſpeak of things Ominous, we may add, Some time before this, in a Clear, Still, Sunſhiny Morning, there were divers Perſons in Maldon who heard in the Air, on the South-Eaſt of them, a Great Gun go off, and preſently thereupon the Report of Small Guns like Musket Shot, very thick diſcharging, as if there had been a Battel. This was at a time when there was nothing viſibly done in any part of the Colony to occaſion ſuch Noiſes; but that which moſt of all Aſtoniſhed them was the Flying of Bullets, which came Singing over their Heads, and ſeemed very near to them, after which the ſound of Drums paſſing along Weſtward was very Audible; and on the ſame Day, in Plymouth Colony in ſeveral Places, inviſible Troops of Horſes were heard Riding to and fro. Now, Reader, prepare for the Event of theſe Prodigies, but count me not ſtruck with a Livian Superſtition in Reporting Prodigies, for which I have ſuch Inconteſtable Aſſurance.

§. 6. Philip, conſcious to his own Guilt, puſht on the Execution of his Plot as faſt as he could; he Armed his Men, and ſent away their Women, and entertained many ſtrange Indians that flock'd in unto him from ſeveral Parts of the Country, and began to be Tumultuous. The Engliſh, whoſe Innocency and Integrity had made them too ſecure, nevertheleſs, on theſe Alarums made ſeveral friendly Applications unto Philip, with their Advice, that he would no more allow of any thing that ſhould look like Tumult among his People; but they were entertained with a Surly, Haughty, and Provoking Inſolence. The Indians proceeded in the Month of June unto the Rifling of ſeveral Houſes in the Plantations near Mount-Hope, which was the Seat where Philip was Kennell'd with the Reſt of theſe horrid Salvages; and hereupon the Governour of Plymouth ſent forth a ſmall Army for the Defence of the Expoſed Plantations. On June 24. a Day of Solemn Humiliation was kept through the Colony for the ſucceſs of the Expedition; and, Reader, behold what a Solemn Humiliation the diſpleaſure of Heaven then diſpenced unto them; for at the Concluſion of the Day, as the Inhabitants of Swanzy were coming from their Prayers, the Lurking Indians diſcharged a Volley of Shot upon them, whereby one Man was Killed, and another Wounded; and the Two Men that were ſent for a Chirurgeon to relieve the Wounded, were alſo Killed: Which Slaughter was accompanied with the Murder of Six Men more in another part of the Town. So that now the War was begun by a Fierce Nation of Indians, upon an Honeſt, Harmleſs, Chriſtian Generation of Engliſh, who might very truly have ſaid unto the Aggreſſors, as it was of old ſaid unto the Ammonites, I have not ſinned againſt thee, but thou doſt me wrong to War againſt me; The Lord the Judge be Judge this Day between us! Plymouth-Colony being thus involved in a War, immediately ſent unto the other United Colonies for their Aid, who according to the Articles of the Union whereinto they were Confederated, immediately approved themſelves true Brethren to the Colony in Adverſity. On June 26. a Company of Troopers under the Command of Captain Thomas Prentice, and Footmen under the Command of Captain Daniel Henchman, marched out of Boſton towards Mount-Hope; and though ſome of a Melancholy Complexion had their Dark Thoughts, that a Total and Central Eclipſe of the Moon in Capricorn, which gave them ſome Dark Hours the firſt Night of their March, might be Ominous of enſuing Diſaſters; yet the Soldiers were generally of the Mind with Marcus Craſſus, the Great Roman General, That there was more Cauſe to be afraid of Sagittarius than of Capricornus. A Company of Briſk Volunteers, under the Command of Captain Samuel Moſely, quickly overtook them, and ſo joined with Plymouth Forces, under the Command of Captain Cudworth at Swanſey, June 28. Twelve of our Men, unwilling to loſe a Minute of time, went that very Evening to diſcover the Enemy, who from the Buſhes fired upon them, Killed One, and Wounded another, but were ſoon by our handful of Men put unto a ſhameful Flight. Our Army the next Morning made a Reſolute Charge upon the Enemy, who preſently fled from their Quarters, and left their whole Territory open to us; entring whereof we found the mangled Bodies of ſome of our Country Men, whoſe Heads they had alſo ſtuck upon Poles; and we found Bibles torn to Pieces in Defiance of our Holy Religion; but we found in the Wigwams of the Enemy all the Marks of an haſty departure; nor was Philip any more ſeen in his Country, till he returned thither the next Year to receive the Recompence of his Perfidy.

§. 7. The Engliſh little Army ſcowred the Woods, and with ſome loſs to our ſelves, we now and then had Opportunity to inflict a greater loſs upon the Enemy. But we took this Opportunity to March over into the Narraganſet-Country, that with a Sword in our Hands we might renew and confirm our Peace with a moſt conſiderable Nation of Indians there, of whoſe Conjunction with Philip and his Wompanoags (for ſo were Philip's Nation called) we had more than ordinary cauſe to be afraid. The Effect of which was, that the Sachims of the Narraganſets did, on July 15. Sign and Seal Articles of Peace with us, wherein they engaged that they would not only forbear all Acts of Hoſtility againſt the Engliſh, but alſo uſe their utmoſt Ability, by all Acts of Hoſtility, to deſtroy Philip and his Adherents, calling the God of Heaven to Witneſs for the true Performance of theſe Articles. In the mean time, Captain Cudworth, with his Plymouth-Forces, went upon the like Account unto another ſmall Nation of the Indians, at a place called Pocaſſet, with a Deſign to haſten further afield for the help of the Two little Villages of Middlebury and Dartmouth, now ſuffering under the Depredations of a Sculking Adverſary. Captain Fuller and Captain Church, with Two ſmall Detachments, had ſpent ſome time in the Woods of Pocaſſet, before a great Company of Indians compelled Captain Fuller, with his Men, to ſeek ſome ſhelter from a Shower of Bullets, in an Houſe near the Water-ſide, where they defended themſelves till a Sloop from Rhode-Iſland fetch'd them off; but Captain Church was got into a Peaſe-Field, where he, with his Fifteen Men, found himſelf ſuddenly ſurrounded with an Hundred and almoſt Five times Fifteen terrible Indians: Nevertheleſs, this Gentleman, like another Shamgar, had Courage enough in himſelf alone to have ſerved an Army; he aſſured his Men with a ſtrange Confidence, that not a Bullet ſhould hurt them; which one, that was more Faint-hearted than the reſt, not believing, this Valiant Commander ſet him to gather a few Rocks together for a little Barricado to them; in the doing whereof, as he was carrying a Stone in his Arms to the Bank intended, a Bullet, which elſe would have killed him, ſtruck upon that very Stone, and miſs'd him, which Experiment preſently reſtored Manhood unto him: So they fought it out bravely that whole Afternoon, without the leaſt Hurt unto any One of their Number, but with Death given to as many as their Number of their Enemies. And at laſt, when their Guns by often Firing were become unſerviceable, a Sloop of Rhode-Iſland fetch'd them off alſo. This Action was but a Whet unto the Courage of Captain Church, who haſtning over to the Main, borrowed Three Files of Men from the Maſſachuſet-Forces, and returned unto Pocaſſet, where he had another Skirmiſh, in which he ſlew Fourteen or Fifteen of the Enemies, and ſtruck ſuch a Terror into the reſt, that if they could have got away, thoſe Quarterers would for a while have heard no more of them.

§. 8. The little Forces of the Two Colonies coming together again after the Treaty of Narraganſet, they march'd from Taunton, July 18. Eighteen Miles, to a mighty Swamp where the Indians were lodged; and the Indians covering themſelves with Green Boughs, a Subtilty of the ſame Nature, though not of the ſame Colour, that they affirm to be uſed by the Cuttle-Fiſh, took the Advantage from the Thick Under-Woods to kill ſeveral of the Engliſh. But the Engliſh purſuing of them, they preſently deſerted an Hundred of their Wigwams which they had there Erected, and retired further into the Prodigious Thicket, where we preſumed that we had 'em in a Pound; and ſo ſcarce Two Hundred Men being left there to keep an Eye upon them, the reſt (except ſuch as returned unto Boſton) were diſpatched unto the relief of Mendham, where, about July 14. the Nipmuck-Indians, another Nation of them that were Well-willers to Philip's Deſign, began to Philippize in Barbarous Murders. Our Forces kept a ſtrict Eye upon the Motions of the Enſwamped Enemy; but finding if once we ſqueezed our ſelves into thoſe Inacceſſible Woods, we meerly Sacrificed one another to our own Miſtakes, by firing into every Buſh that we ſaw to ſtir, as expecting a Thief in every Buſh; we were willing rather to Starve the Beaſt in his Den, than go in to Fight him there. Heaven ſaw more Blood muſt be drawn from the Colonies, before Health could be reſtored to them: Philip would have ſurrendred himſelf, if we had gone in to take him; whereas now becoming deſperate, he with his beſt Fighting Men taking the Advantage of a Low Tide in the middle of the Night, wafted themſelves over on ſmall Rafts of Timber, into the Woods that led unto the Nipmuck-Country, while our Forces that lay Encamped on the other Side perceived it not. An Hundred of the miſerable Salvages that were left behind, made a Surrender of themſelves to our Mercy; but Philip's eſcape now ſoon after Day-light being diſcovered, the Engliſh, aſſiſted with a Party of Monhegin-Indians, purſued them as faſt as they could, and in the purſuit ſlew about Thirty of them e'er the Night obliged 'em to give over. However, Philip now eſcaping to the Weſtward, he enflamed the ſeveral Nations of the Indians in the Weſt where-ever he came, to take part with him, until the Flame of War was raging all over the whole Maſſachuſet-Colony. The Firſt Scene of the Bloody Tragedy was in the Nipmuck-Country, whither Captain Hutchinſon, accompanied with Captain Wheeler, went, Aug. 2. upon a Treaty of Peace with the Indians there, who had agreed with him a place of Meeting for the Conſummation of the Treaty, and the Renovation of the Covenant, wherein they had the Month before promiſed under their Hands, that they would not aſſiſt Philip in his Hoſtilities. The Indians not coming to the place aſſigned, Captain Hutchinſon rode a little further, and ſo far, that the Perfidious Villains, from an Ambuſcado, mortally wounded him, and ſhot Eight more dead upon the Spot; but the reſt fled back by a By-Path to Quaboag, a ſmall Village, where all the Inhabitants were juſt got into one Houſe, reſolving there to Live and Die together. The Indians, with Philip's Army newly arrived unto them, ruſh'd in like a Storm of Lightning upon this diſtreſſed Village; and having burnt all the reſt, they furiouſly beſet that one Houſe, where a little Handful of Men bravely defended the little Cottage, which was all their Caſtle againſt an huge Army of cruel Tawnies, who kept perpetually pouring in their Shot upon them for Two Days together, and thruſting Poles with Brands and Rags dipp'd in burning Brimſtone, and many other Tricks, to ſet the Cottage on Fire. At laſt, after Six Ineffectual Attempts to Burn this poor Hovel, (ſo in Six Troubles they were delivered, yea, in Seven the Evil touch'd 'em not!) they fill'd a Cart with Flax, Hemp, and other Combuſtible Matter, and kindling of it, they puſh'd it on with very long Poles that were Spliced one unto another; by which means this Petite Flock muſt have unavoidably become a Prey to theſe horrid Wolves, if a mighty Storm of Rain had not ſuddenly extinguiſhed it. But, Bleſſed be the Lord, (might the Seventy Men, Women and Children in that Houſe anon Sing!) who hath not given us a Prey to their Teeth; our Soul is eſcaped as a Bird out of the Snare of the Fowlers! Our memorable Major Willard, on Aug. 4. in the Morning, ſetting forth with a Party of Men to viſit and ſecure a Nation of Suſpected Indians, in the Neighbourhood received, by a ſtrange Accident, ſome ſeaſonable Advice of the doleful Condition wherein our Brethren at Quaboag, Thirty Miles diſtant from him, were Enſnared; and thereupon turning his Courſe thither, it came to paſs, that although the Indians had placed ſufficient Ambuſhments to cut off any Succours that ſhould come that way, yet there was an Unaccountable Beſotment ſo fallen upon them, that this Valiant Commander, with Forty-eight Men, arrived at Night unto the help of theſe Beſieged People, and bravely raiſed the Siege, by driving the Beaſts of Prey back to their Dens, after he had Firſt Sacrificed many Scores of them unto the Divine Vengeance. Thus remarkably was this poor People delivered; but the Enemy Steering further Weſtward, Captain Lathrop, Captain Beers, and others, were ſent with more Forces to Track 'em; and if it were poſſible, to prevent their Poiſoning and Seducing of the Indians upon Connecticut-River, whoſe Fidelity was now extreamly doubted of.

§. 9. The Towns belonging unto the Maſſachuſet-Colony upon Connecticut-River, aſſiſted now by Forces alſo from Connecticut, under the Command of Major Robert Treat, ſent Soldiers on Aug. 25. to Demand from their Indians a Proof of that Faithfulneſs which they had hitherto profeſſed, but Philip had Bewitched them; they were fled from their Forts, having firſt killed an Old Sachim of their own that was not willing to go with them; they fired upon our Men from a Swamp when we were looking after them; and a Diſpute continued for ſome Hours, wherein we loſt Nine Men belonging to Nine Towns. Thus the Deſolations of War were carried into theſe Parts of the Country, while ſmall Crews of Salvages here and there, in other Parts of the Country, were diſtreſſing People wonderfully. On Sept. 1. the Indians laid moſt of the Houſes belonging to the hopeful Plantation of Deerfield in Aſhes, while the Garriſon was not ſtrong enough to Salley forth upon 'em; and on the Day following they ſlew Eight Men abroad in the Woods at Squakheag, without making any Attempts upon the Garriſon. Captain Beers, with about Thirty-ſix Men, were ſent up to fetch off the People in theſe little Garriſons, but they found a Serpent by the Way, and Adder in the Path: Hundreds of Indians from a thick Swamp Fired upon them, whereupon followed a deſperate Fight, wherein the Captain and a Score of his Men ſold their Lives at as good a Price as they could, but the reſt fled into Hadley, leaving Major Treat a few Days after to finiſh what they had undertaken.

The Towns thereabout now being tollerably Garriſon'd, Captain Lothrop, with about Eighty Men, carried Carts to fetch off the Corn that lay Threſh'd in Deerfield; but they fell themſelves into a terrible Tribulation; for on Sept. 18. a vaſt Body of Seven or Eight Hundred Indians on the Road entertained them with an Aſſault, wherein the Courageous Captain having taken up a wrong Notion, that the beſt Courſe was to Fight with Indians in their own way of Sculking behind the Trees, and thence aiming at ſingle Perſons, thereby expoſed himſelf to Ruin. If they had fought more in a Body, they might have carried all before them; for it has been obſerved, that Indians never durſt look Engliſhmen in the Face; whereas now above Threeſcore of our Men, and moſt of them hopeful Young Men, were killed. Captain Moſely hearing the Reports which the Guns gave of this Battel, came up with an Handful of Men, though too late for the Reſcue of Captain Lothrop; and ſeveral times he Marched through and through that prodigious Clan of Dragons, and raked them for Five or Six Hours together, with the loſs of no more than Two Men of his own; albeit the Indians afterwards confeſſed that they loſt Ninety-ſix of themſelves, and had more than Forty wounded. New-England had never yet ſeen ſo black a Day! The Inhabitants of Springfield, notwithſtanding the firmeſt Aſſurances which the Nations of Indians near to them had given them of their Friendſhip and Faithfulneſs, were awakned by theſe things to enquire how far they might reſt aſſured thereof, when all o'th' ſudden the Hoſtages which theſe Indians had given were fled; and ſome Engliſh going to Viſit them at their Fort, were Treacherouſly ſaluted with a Volley of Shot, which miſerably wounded them; whereupon the Town was in all the Ungarriſon'd Parts of it Fired by theſe Perfidious Caitiffs. Thirty two Houſes, and amongſt the reſt, the Miniſter's with his well-furniſhed Library, were conſumed before the Arrival of Major Treat, Major Pinchon, and Captain Appleton, put a ſtop to the Fury and Progreſs of an Inſulting Enemy: Nor had the Inhabitants themſelves eſcaped a Maſſacre, if an Indian, privy to the Plot, had not juſt in the Nick of time diſcovered it unto them. After this, the Engliſh Forces were ordered, by a merciful Providence of Heaven, to Rendezvouz about Northampton, Hadley, Hatfield, until it might be conſider'd what there was further to be done; and now behold, Reader, a Comfortable Matter in the midſt of ſo many Tragedies! The General Court then Sitting at Boſton, appointed a Committee, who with the aſſiſtance of the Miniſters in the Neighbourhood, might ſuggeſt what were the Provoking Evils that had thus brought the Judgments of God in a Bloody War upon the Land, and what Laws might be Enacted for the Reformation of thoſe Provoking Evils! The return of which Committee to the General Court was kindly received on Oct. 19. and Care taken further to Proſecute the Intentions of it. Now as our Martyrologiſt, Mr. Fox, obſerves, that at the very Day and Hour when the Act of Reformation, in the Reign of King Edward VI. was put in Execution at London, God gave the Nation a Signal Victory at Muſcleborough: Thus it was remark'd by ſome Devout Men, that on the very Day when the Vote was paſſed at Boſton for the Reformation of Miſcarriages in the Land, our Forces had a notable Succeſs an Hundred Miles off againſt the Common Enemy. Seven or Eight Hundred Indians broke in upon Hatfield at all Quarters, but our Forces being beyond their Expectation lodged in the Neighbourhood, the Indians were ſo terribly Defeated, that after the killing of but One Engliſhman in the Fight, they confeſſed the Town too hot for them, and fled ſo faſt, that many of them loſt their Lives in the River. This reſolute Repulſe gave ſuch a Check to the Enemy, that the Weſtern Plantations for a long while heard little or nothing further from them; ſome ſtraggling Parties, indeed, were here and there Miſchievous; but as Winter drew on, they generally retired unto the Narraganſet-Country, where the Reader muſt now expect a conſiderable Action! 'Tis true, the European Campaigns for the Numbers of Men appearing in them, compared with the little Numbers that appear in theſe American Actions, may tempt the Reader to make a very Diminutive Buſineſs of our whole Indian-War; but we who felt our ſelves Aſſaulted by unknown Numbers of Devils in Fleſh on every ſide of us, and knew that our Minute Numbers employ'd in the Service againſt them, were proportionably more to us than mighty Legions are to Nations, that have exiſted as many Centuries as our Colonies have Years in the World, can ſcarce forbear taking the Colours in the Sixth Book of Milton to deſcribe our Story: And ſpeaking of our Indians in as high Terms as Virgil of his Piſmires: It nigrum campis Agmen! At leaſt we think our Story as conſiderable as that ſilly Buſineſs of the Invading and Conquering Florida by the Spaniards, under Fernando de Soto; and yet that Story the World has thought worthy to be read in divers Languages.

§. 10. The Commiſſioners of the United Colonies having manifeſt and manifold Proofs that the Great Nation of Narraganſet-Indians, with whom the reſt were now Harbour'd, had not only broken their Articles of Peace with the Engliſh in divers Inſtances, but were alſo Plotting to begin a War againſt us in the Spring, when they ſhould have the Leaves of the Trees to Befriend them, took up a general Reſolution, in the depth of Winter, to make a Vigorous Expedition againſt them. Accordingly an Army conſiſting of a Thouſand at Firſt, and afterwards Fifteen Hundred Men, under the Conduct of the truly Honourable Joſiah Winſlow, Eſq; marched into the Narraganſet-Country, where they no ſooner arrived on Dec. 12. but about Forty Indians fell into their Hands; among whom, one was a Fellow named Peter, who having received ſome Diſguſt from his Countrymen, proved ſo Faithful and Uſeful a Guide unto our Forces, that they afterwards found that they could not well have liv'd without him. Several Miſchiefs were done by the Indians whilſt our Army were here waiting for their Brethren from Connecticut; eſpecially their Surpriſal of a remote Garriſon belonging to one Bull, where about Fourteen Perſons were Baited to Death by the terrible Dogs. But the Connecticut-Forces being alſo arrived on Dec. 18. they preſently marched away by break of Day, the next Morning, through Cold and Snow, and very amazing Difficulties, enough to have Damn'd any ordinary Fortitude, for Eighteen Miles together. The Indians had a Fort raiſed upon an Iſland of about Five or Six Acres, in the midſt of an horrid Swamp, which Fort, beſides its Paliſadoes, had a kind of Wall or Hedge about a Rod thick encompaſſing of it. The Entrance of this Fort was upon a long Tree over the Water, where but one Man could paſs at a time, and this was way-laid after ſuch a manner, that if our Men had attempted that Paſſage, they muſt have periſhed. Only by the help of Peter they diſcovered a Vulnerable Heel, as I may call it, yet left in the Fort at one Corner, where there was a Gap ſupplied only with long Trees about Four or Five Foot from the Ground, over which Men might force their way; though againſt this they had Built a Block-Houſe, from whence a Bloody Storm of Bullets, (and enough to make every Man like the poor Man in the Twelve Signs of the Almanack) was to be expected by them that ſhould make their Approaches there. Our Men came up to the Swamp about One a Clock, and Immediately and Courageouſly preſſing through the Swamp, from whence the Indians began to Fire upon 'em, they advanced unto that part of the Fort which was moſt acceſſible: Now having of nothing, but, Mors certa, aut Victoria Læta, in their Eye. Brave Captain Moſely and Captain Davenport led the Van; Captain Gardner and Captain Johnſon were in the Center, Major Appleton and Captain Oliver brought up the Rear of the Maſſachuſet-Forces: General Winſlow with Plymouth-Forces, under Major Bradford and Captain Goram, marched in the Center; and Connecticut-Forces, under Major Treat and Captain Siely, Captain Gallop, Captain Maſon, Captain Wats, and Captain Marſhal, made the Reer of the whole Body. Nothing in the World could be more Magnanimous than the Spirit which now carried on both Leaders and Soldiers in the Enterpriſe now before them: They leaped over the Trees of Death, into the Spot of Ground where Death in all its Terrors was to be Encountered; the Fall of the Valiant Leaders, no leſs than Six of them, namely, Davenport, Gardiner, Johnſon, Gallop, Siely and Marſhal, (tho' it rendred the Place worthy of the Name which the Romans put upon the abhorr'd Place where their Beloved Commander Druſus died, namely, Scelerata Caſtra) did but add Fire to the Rage of the Soldiers; they beat the Enemy from one Shelter to another, till they had utterly driven them out of all their Sconces; and at laſt they ſet Fire to the Fort, from whence the Surviving Indians fled into a vaſt Cedar-Swamp at ſome diſtance off. I wiſh I could particularly give an Immortal Memory to all the Brave Men that ſignalized themſelves in this Action. But among them all, O quam te memorem, Thou Excellent SAMUEL NOWEL, never to be forgotten! This now Reverend, and afterwards Worſhipful Perſon, a Chaplain to the Army, was Author to a good Sermon preached unto the Artillery Company of the Maſſachuſets, which he Entituled, Abraham in Arms; and at this Fight there was no Perſon more like a true Son of Abraham in Arms, or that with more Courage and Hazardy fought in the midſt of a Shower of Bullets from the ſurrounding Salvages. But,

Longa referre mora eſt, quæ conſilioq; manuq;
Utiliter fecit Spacioſi Tempore Belli.

No leſs than Seven Hundred fighting Indians were deſtroyed, as it was afterwards confeſſed in this deſperate Action; beſides Three Hundred which afterwards died of their Wounds, and Old Men, Women, Children, Sans number; but of the Engliſh about Eighty Five were ſlain, and an Hundred and Fifty wounded. And now, Sic Magnis componere Parva! Reader,

And now their Mightieſt quell'd, the Battel
ſwerv'd,
With many an Inrode gor'd; deformed Rout
Enter'd, and foul Diſorder; all the Ground
With ſhiver'd Armour ſtrown, and on a heap,
Salvage and Sagamore lay overturn'd,
And Fiery, Foaming Blacks; what ſtood recoil'd
Orewearied, and with Panick Fear ſurpris'd.

Had the Aſſault been deferred one Day longer, there fell ſuch a Storm of Snow, that for divers Weeks it muſt have been Impracticable; and at the end of thoſe Weeks there came ſo violent and unuſual a Thaw, that by making the way to the Fort Unpaſſable, it would have render'd it ſtill more Impracticable. Juſt now was the Time for this Work; and the Work being ſo far accompliſhed, our Forces retreating after Day-light was almoſt ſpent, found it neceſſary to go back with many Wounded, and more Weary Men, unto their Head Quarters, near Eighteen Miles off, in a diſmal Night, through Hardſhips, that an whole Age would hardly parallel; which if the Remaining Enemies had known, they might eaſily have cut off all our Enfeebled and Bewildred Army. However ſuch a Blow was now given to the Enemy as never could be recovered! And our Forces having in ſome following Weeks made now and then ſome happy Gleanings of their late Victory, until the Enemy was gone, they knew not whither, they returned unto their ſeveral Homes until the next Occaſion.

§. 11. Deſerted Mendam was this Winter laid in Aſhes. And the French from Canada ſending Recruits unto the Indians for that purpoſe, the Indians thus Recruited on Feb. 10. fell upon the Town of Lancaſter, where they Burned many Houſes, and Murdered and Captived more than Forty Perſons. The Worthy Miniſter of the Town, Mr. Rolandſon, had been at Boſton to Intercede for ſome ſpeedy Succours; and though by this Journey from Home he was himſelf preſerved, yet at his return he found his Houſe on Fire, his Goods and Books all burned, and which was worſe, his Wife, and Children, and Neighbours, in the Hands of the worſt Barbarians in the World. This good Man, like David at Ziklag, yet believed, for the Recovery of his Relations out of thoſe horrible Hands, which about Four or Five Months after was accompliſhed with wonderful Diſpenſations of Divine Providence, whereof the Gentlewoman her ſelf has given us a Printed Narrative. Captain Wadſworth, with Forty reſolute Men, compelled the Indians to quit the Place; but they ſoon did further Miſchiefs at Malborough, Sudbury, Chelmsford; and Feb. 21. Two or Three Hundred of them came Wheeling down to Medfield, where they burnt near half the Town, and killed near a Score of the Inhabitants; and Feb. 25. Weymouth alſo ſuffered from theſe Burners no little Damage. An Army under the Command of that

Expert Leader, Major Thomas Savage about this time did make after the Indians as far as Northampton; and there was again a ſingular Providence of God in ordering this Matter: For had it not been for theſe Recruits, thoſe Weſtern Plantations had probably been cut off by a vaſt Body of Indians, which on March 14. in Three Places broke in upon the thin Palaſadoes, wherewith Northampton was fortified, and killed Five Perſons, and burned Five Houſes, but met with a brave Repulſe. On March 10. they did Miſchievous things at Groton and Sudbury: And on March 13. they burnt almoſt all Groton to the Ground, and then called unto the Engliſh in the Garriſon, What will you do for an Houſe to Pray in, now we have burnt your Meeting-Houſe! But the Enemy finding theſe Parts of the Country too many for them, they again tranſlated the Scene of their Tragedies into Plymouth-Colony; where after they had on March 12. barbarouſly cut off Two Families under one Roof in Plymouth, and on March 17. laid all Warwick, but one Houſe, in Aſhes: Captain Pierce being fitted with Fifty Engliſhmen, and with Twenty Chriſtian-Indians, did Courageouſly purſue them. This meritorious Captain was unhappily Trepann'd into an Ambuſhment of the Enemy, who, on March 26. 1676. by meer Multitude overpowered him; ſo that after he had firſt made a ſlaughter of an Hundred and Forty of them, he with Forty-nine Engliſhmen, (an hard Battel truly!) and Eight Chriſtian-Indians, expired on the Bed of Honour. This was a very Diſaſtrous Day! For on this Day alſo the Town of Malborough was all in Flames by another Aſſault from this Treacherous Adverſary; and on this Day ſeveral People at Springfield became a Sacrifice unto their Fury; wherefore methinks, Reader, we want ſome Diverting Story to entertain us in the midſt of ſo many horrible Accidents. I will therefore mention a pleaſant Stratagem uſed by one of our Chriſtian-Indians in the Fight when Captain Pierce loſt his Life. This Indian, who, I durſt ſay, never had read Polyenus, being purſued by an Enemy, betook himſelf unto a great Rock, where ſheltering himſelf, he perceived that his Enemy lay on the other ſide ready with his Gun to diſcharge upon him whenever he ſhould ſtir one ſtep from the Place where he ſtood. He therefore took a Stick which he had at Hand, and hanging his Hat upon it, he gently and ſlowly lifted it up, until he thought his watchful Friend on the other ſide might be ſenſible of it: And accordingly the other taking this Hat for the Head of his Adverſary, let fly immediately, and Shot through the Hat: Whereupon he briskly lift up his Head, and preſently letting fly, not upon the Hat, but upon the Head of the Adverſary, laid him Dead upon the Spot. In this Fight another Indian luckily ſaved not only himſelf, but an Engliſhman too, by pretending to run after the Engliſhman with his Hatchet, as if intending to Kill him therewithal. And another Indian as luckily ſaved himſelf by beſmearing his Tawny Face with wet Gunpowder, which made him look ſo like ſome of the adverſe Party, who had Black'd their Faces, that they diſtinguiſhed him not. Many ſuch Paſſages and Policies are told of our Chriſtian-Indians, who in Truth ſhow'd their Chriſtianity by their being wonderfully Serviceable unto us in the War which now perplexed us. But, Reader, be content that this Paragraph relate a few more of the pernicious things done by the Barbarians, about this time, in ſeveral Parts of the Country; and for thy Comfort we will give in the Next a Relation of an Unexpected Alteration and Revolution. Know then, that in March 28. the Indians burnt about Forty Houſes at Rehoboth; and on March 29. about Thirty Houſes at Providence: For the Engliſh retiring into Garriſons, could not but leave their Houſes open to the Impreſſions of the Adverſary. In the beginning of April they were Miſchievous at Chelmsford and Andover; and that they might by their Cruelty diſcover whoſe Children they were, they would cut out the Tongues of the Dumb Creatures, leaving them alive in Miſery; and putting others of thoſe poor Creatures alive into Hovels, they would ſet them on Fire. And although on March 27. about Forty Inhabitants of Sudbury made a Salley forth in the Night upon a Body of Three Hundred Indians, Killing Thirty of them, without loſing one of their own; yet on April 18. the Indians made a fierce Aſſault upon Sudbury, wherein they burnt ſeveral Houſes, and Killed a Dozen Perſons that were coming from Concord for the Aſſiſtance of their Neighbours. But the worſt part of the Story is, that Captain Wadſworth, one worthy to Live in our Hiſtory, under the Name of A Good Man, coming up after a Long, Hard, Unwearied March, with Seventy Men unto the Relief of Diſtreſſed Sudbury, found himſelf in the Woods on the ſudden ſurrounded with about Five Hundred of the Enemy; whereupon our Men fought like Men, and more than ſo; but were ſo Overwhelmed, that he, with another Good Man, one Captain Brattlebank, and more than Fifty more, ſold their Lives for the Deaths of about an Hundred and Twenty Indians. The Indians took Five or Six of the Engliſh Priſoners; and that the Reader may underſtand, Crimine ab uno, what it is to be taken by ſuch Devils Incarnate, I ſhall here inform him: They Stripp'd theſe unhappy Priſoners, and cauſed them to Run the Gantlet, and Whipped them after a Cruel and Bloody Manner; they then threw Hot Aſhes upon them, and cutting off Collops of their Fleſh, they put Fire into their Wounds, and ſo with Exquiſite, Leiſurely, Horrible Torments, Roaſted them out of the World.

§. 12. But a Polybius will tell me, Non decet Hiſtoriæ Scriptorem, duntaxat Res Crudeles Legentibus Exponere: And, I promiſed my Reader a Turn of our Affairs. The Prayers of many Thouſands of Pious People, poured out with the greateſt Solemnity, did all this while, Cœlum Tundere, and now they muſt, Miſericordiam extorquere. The Maxim uttered by the Renowned King of Sweden, The Greater the Army of Prayers is, the more certain and glorious will be the Victory! Muſt now be fulfilled; and the Supplications for our diſtreſſed Caſe, made by not only the Churches of New-England, which were in the Diſtreſs, but alſo by the Churches of London, of Suffolk, of Dorſet, of Devon, of Somerſet, of Lancaſhire, of Dublin, (for which we now publickly return our Thanks) muſt now be Anſwered. The time limited by Heaven for the Succeſs of the Indian Treacheries was now almoſt expired: The Blaſphemy, and Inſolence, and prodigious Barbarity of the Salvages, was come to a ſufficient Heighth, for the Lord God of Zabaoth to Interpoſe his own Revenges; and the Impoſſibility which there appeared for our People to attend their Husbrandry in the Fields, or to find out their Enemy in the Woods, did, as the Spring advanced, throw us into an Extremity of Deſpair, to wade through another Summer like the Laſt. But NOW was the time for Deliverance! There was an Evil Spirit of Diſſention ſtrangely ſent among the Indians, which diſpoſed them to ſeparate from one another: The Dæmons, who viſibly exhibited themſelves among them at their Powawing, or Conjuring, ſignified ſtill unto them, that they could now do no more for them; the Maqua's, a Powerful Nation in the Weſt, made a Deſcent upon them, ranging and raging through the Deſart with irreſiſtible Fury; Fevers and Fluxes became Epidemical among them; and their being driven from their Planting and Fiſhing Places, drove them into ſo much of a Famine, as brought Mortal Sickneſs upon them: Finally, a Viſible Smile of Heaven was upon almoſt all the Enterprizes of the Engliſh againſt them: And an unaccountable Terror at the ſame time ſo Diſ-ſpirited them, that they were like Men under a Faſcination. It was the Promiſe of God unto his Antient People, The Lord thy God will ſend the Hornet among thine Enemies, until they that are left, and hide themſelves from thee, be deſtroyed: And I never ſaw a more ſenſible Confirmation of that Promiſe, or Explication of that Hornet, than in what now befel the Enemies of New-England. They were juſt like Beaſts that are ſtung with a Garabee, or Hornet; they ran they knew not whither, they knew not wherefore; they were under ſuch a Conſternation, that the Engliſh did even what they would upon them. I ſhall never forget the Expreſſions which a deſperate Fighting ſort of Fellow, one of their Generals, uſed unto the Engliſh after they had Captivated him; you could never have ſubdued us, but (ſaid he, ſtriking on his Breaſt) the Engliſhman's God makes us afraid here! Firſt, from Connecticut-Colony, which the kind Providence of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt kept almoſt untouched in this bloody War, there went forth in the Month of April, under the Command of Captain Deniſon, Sixty-ſix Volunteers, with above an Hundred Friend-Indians, who took and ſlew Seventy-ſix of the Enemy, among whom were ſome of their chiefeſt Princes, and made great Havock on their Stores, without loſing any of their own: And a little before this, a Party of Connecticut Soldiers, with the like Indian Aſſiſtance, took and ſlew Forty-four of the Enemy, without any loſs on our ſide, but among the Priſoners was Quanonchet, the mighty Sachem of Narraganſet, whom the Engliſh wiſely delivered unto their Tawny Auxiliaries for them to cut off his Head, that ſo the Alienation between them and the Wretches in Hoſtility againſt us might become Incurable. There were ſtill here and there little Miſchiefs done by the Enemy; Plymouth, Taunton, Chelmsford, Concord, Haverhil, Bradford, Woburn, and other Places, did ſuſtain ſundry Damages: But the main Character of the Occurrents now happening on our Part, was Victory over them. Remarkable was the Fate of Bridgwater, a moſt Praying, and moſt Pious Town, ſeated in the very midſt of the Dangers of the War; that although they were often Aſſaulted by formidable Numbers of the Enemies, yet in all their ſharp Aſſaults they never loſt one of their Inhabitants, Young or Old. They were ſollicited ſtrongly to Deſert their Dwellings, but they Reſolved that they would keep their Stations; and now on May 8. the Indians began to Fire the Town, but the Inhabitants with notable Courage iſſued forth from their Garriſons to Fight the Enemy, and God from Heaven at the ſame time fought for them, with a Storm of Lightning, Thunder and Rain, whereby a Conſiderable part of their Houſes were preſerved. Thou, Church of Bridgwater,

> O nimium Dilecta Deo, cui militat Æther, > Et Conjurati veniunt ad Claſſica Venti!

One that was no Chriſtian ſo Sang the Favours of Heaven to the Emperor Theodoſius; and ſo might the Pagan Foe now Sing of thy Salvations! On May 6. our Forces, aſſiſted with ſome Chriſtian Indians, did good Execution upon the Enemy near Medfield, and on May 11. did the like at Plymouth. And on May 18. Two Captive Lads eſcaping from the Hands of the Enemy, informed the Towns about Northampton, that a conſiderable Body of the Indians were ſecurely Clanning together a few Miles further up the River; whereupon about an Hundred and Fourſcore Active Men went out immediately, and ſo ſurprized them, that they Killed, as was judged, about an Hundred on the Spot, and they drove as many more into that Antient River that ſwept 'em away. But the Engliſh in the Retreat were unhappily circumvented by a Parcel of the Enemy, who ſlew Captain Turner, and upwards of Thirty more, although not without the loſs of Three Hundred of their own, as was afterwards by ſome of themſelves acknowledged. And on May 30. the Enemy loſt Five and Twenty in one Onſet which they made upon Hatfield, Five being Slain on our Part in the Action; as the Week before this Twelve of them were Slain about Rehoboth, with the loſs of but One of ours. New Forces, both in Maſſachuſet-Colony, and in Connecticut-Colony, were now ſent forth to Diſtreſs the Enemy in their Places of Planting and Fiſhing. The Maſſachuſet Forces quickly took and kill'd near Forty Indians, and the Connecticut Forces took and kill'd an Hundred; which Exploits were performed without loſing a Man of our own. On June 12. Seven Hundred Indians made an Aſſault upon Hadley; but they were driven off with much loſs to them, and very ſmall to our ſelves; and at the very time when the Indians were thus Diſtreſſing of Hadley, the Maqua's fell upon their Head-Quarters, and ſlaughtered their Women and Children, and carried away much Plunder with them. Thus the Conqueſt of the Indians went on at ſuch a rate, that whereas, June. 29. 1675. was the firſt Faſt publickly obſerved in this Colony on the Occaſion of the Indian Troubles, now, June 29. 1676. was appointed a Day of Thankſgiving through the Colony for the comfortable Steps and Hopes that we ſaw towards the End of thoſe Troubles.

§. 13. Reader, after this Day of Thankſgiving I ſhall have little to Report unto thee but what is a Cauſe of Thankfulneſs! The Maqua's now fall upon Philip, and Kill him Fifty Men at a time; upon as odd an Occaſion too as has been ordinarily heard of. He,as it is affirmed, being entertained among the Maqua's the laſt Winter, uſed many means to ſeduce 'em, and perſwade 'em unto a War againſt the Engliſh; and one of thoſe means it ſeems was This: He kill'd ſome ſcattering Maqua's in the Woods, and then told the Reſt that the Engliſh did it; but One of them whom he thought Killed, was only Wounded, who, getting home unto his Countrymen, gave 'em to underſtand who was the true Murderer! And ſo the Maqua's, whom he would have brought upon the Engliſh, he only brought upon himſelf: Nec enim Lex Juſtior ulla! Philip now returns to Mount-Hope, and finds it Mount-Miſery, Mount-Confuſion! A Prince in Germany long ſince hearing that a Neighbour Prince intended War upon him, immediately ſet himſelf upon the Reforming of the People under his Government; but his Adverſary within a while after enquired what Preparation his Neighbour was making to Oppoſe him? And being informed that his chief Preparation was Reformation, he replied, Nay then, let the Devil Fight him for all me; if he be at that, he'll be too hard for me to meddle with him. The Churches of New-England now more than ever began to be at that; and now ſee the Effects of it. The Churches in Plymouth-Colony agreed upon a Day ſolemnly to Renew their COVENANT with God, and one another; on the very next Day, Major Bradford, with his Plymouth Forces, was not only by a ſtrange Providence delivered from the Stratagems of the Ambuſhing Adverſary, but alſo took and ſlew many of them, without the loſs of one Engliſhman: And the Squaw-Sachim of Saconet, with Ninety of her Subjects, hearing of his approach, ſubmitted themſelves unto his Mercy: Major Bradford was the Oedipus, by whom that Sphinx was conquered! On July 2. our Brethren of Connecticut in the Narraganſet-Country took and kill'd an Hundred and Fourſcore of the Indians, without loſing a Man of their own; and in their March home they deſtroyed Threeſcore more. Quickly after this, Two Hundred Indians in Plymouth-Colony were compelled by the Neceſſities upon them to ſurrender themſelves; and upon Advice from them of another Party abroad, Eight Engliſhmen, accompanied with Fourteen of them, ſeized upon Twenty more, without any hurt unto themſelves. In the Woods near Dedham there was more Execution done upon them: And a Negro that had been taken Captive by them, informed us, that near Two Hundred of them had formed a Deſign of an Attacque upon Taunton, which Information proved the Preſervation of the Town: For Auxiliaries being ſeaſonably ſent thither, the Enemy met with a vigorous Repulſe, without the loſs of one Engliſhman in the Engagement. The Maſſachuſet Forces returned unto Boſton, July 22. having taken and killed an Hundred and Fifty Indians, with the loſs of but One Engliſhman: But the principal Actions, whereof Plymouth was now the Stage, muſt be done by the Hand of that worthy Man, Captain Church; whoſe very Name, now, might ſuggeſt unto the miſerable Salvages, what, they muſt be undone, by Fighting againſt; and whoſe Lot it was to be employ'd by the Providence of Heaven at the time and place of the Cataſtrophe, now waiting for a Generation Ripe for Deſolation. This Gentlemen made Havock among the Salvages, like another Scanderbeg; he went out with a ſmall Party of about Eighteen Engliſh, and Twenty-two Friend Indians, and in one Week he had Four ſeveral Engagements with the Enemy, wherein he took and ſlew Seventy-nine of them, without loſing One of his own; and by a particular Policy he ſtill made his Captives to find out their Fellows for him, and ſet a Thief to catch a Thief, which facilitated his Enterprizes wonderfully. Nevertheleſs this hindred not Others from doing their part in Exterminating the Rabid Animals, which by a moſt unaccountable Syderation from Heaven, had now neither Strength nor Senſe left 'em to do any thing for their own Defence. On July 25. Thirty-ſix Engliſhmen from Dedham, and Medfield, with Ninety Chriſtian Indians, purſued, overtook, and captivated Fifty of the Enemy, without loſing of a Man; and among theſe was Pombam, a great Sachim of the Narraganſets, who, after he was wounded ſo that he could not ſtand, but was left a conſiderable while for Dead, yet when an Engliſhman came near him, the Dying Beaſt, with a Belluine Rage, got ſuch hold on his Head, that he had killed him if there had not come in help to Reſcue him. On July 27. Sagamore John ſubmitted himſelf to the Engliſh Mercy, with an Hundred and Fourſcore Nipmuck Indians; and that he might Ingratiate himſelf with the Engliſh, he brought in Matoonas with his Son, who had begun the War in the Maſſachuſet-Colony a little above a Year ago; whereupon we ordered this very Sagamore to Shoot him to Death. On July 31. an Handful of Soldiers iſſuing out of Bridgwater, unexpectedly ſtumbled upon a Company of the Enemy, who being well armed, ſnapp'd their Guns at the Engliſh; but, which was a Marvellous Accident, not one of them took Fire; whereat a Panick-Terror fell upon them, ſo that we took Fifteen, we ſlew Ten, the reſt fled; of whom Philip himſelf was one, who left the Chief of his Treaſure behind him. Not one of the Engliſh was hurt at this time! This was the Succeſs of a People that had juſt before ſolemnly renewed the conſent of their Souls to the Covenant of Grace, and applied it unto the Holy Purpoſes of Reformation among them. On Auguſt 1. Captain Church again, with about Thirty Engliſh and Twenty Friend-Indians, took Twenty-three of the Enemy; and the next Morning he came upon Philip's Head-Quarters, where they took and ſlew about an Hundred and Thirty of the Enemy, with the loſs of but One of their own: Philip himſelf now alſo hardly eſcaping, but leaving his Peag, and Wife, and Son behind him, which was no ſmall Torment unto him. On Aug. 6. an Indian-Deſerter informing the Inhabitants of Taunton where they might ſurpriſe more of the Enemy, Twenty Men of ours immediately brought in Thirty-ſix of them. The Squaw-Sachim of Pocaſſet flying from this Broil upon the Coaſt, now in that very place where ſhe had furniſhed Philip with Canoo's for his Men a Year ago, ſhe her ſelf could not find a Canoo, but venturing over the River upon a Raft, which broke under her, ſhe was drowned; and ſome of the Engliſh not knowing who ſhe was when they found her, ſtuck her Head upon a Pole in Taunton, which when the Indians that knew her, ſaw, they fell into ſuch hideous and howling Lamentations as can ſcarce be imitated.

But now, Reader, prepare to make a juſt Reflection upon that Antient and Famous Paſſage of Sacred Scripture, Wo to thee that ſpoileſt, and thou waſt not ſpoiled; and dealeſt treacherouſly, and they dealt not treacherouſly with thee; when thou ſhalt ceaſe to ſpoil, thou ſhalt be ſpoiled; and when thou ſhalt make an end to deal treacherouſly, they ſhall deal treacherouſly with thee! One thing which emboldned King Philip in all his Outrages, was an Aſſurance which his Magicians conſulting their Oracles gave him, that no Engliſhman ſhould ever Kill him; and indeed if any Engliſhman might have had the Honour of Killing him, he muſt have had a good meaſure of Grace to have repreſſed the Vanity of Mind whereto he would have had ſome Temptations. But this will not extend the Life of that Bloody and Crafty Wretch above half his Days! A Man belonging to Philip himſelf, being diſguſted at him for killing an Indian who had propounded an Expedient of Peace with the Engliſh, ran away from him to Rhode-Iſland, where Captain Church was then Recruiting of his weary Forces; and upon the Intelligence hereof, Captain Church, with a few Hands of both Engliſh and Indians, immediately ſet forth upon a New Expedition. That very Night Philip (like the Man in the Army of Midian) had been dreaming that he was faln into the Hands of the Engliſh; and now juſt as he was telling his Dream, with Advice unto his Friends to fly for their Lives, leſt the Knave who had newly gone from them ſhould ſhew the Engliſh how to come at them, Captain Church, with his Company, fell in upon them; Philip attempted a Flight out of the Swamp, at which inſtant both an Engliſhman and an Indian endeavouring to Fire at him, the Engliſhman's Piece would not go off, but the Indian's preſently Shot him through his Venemous and Murderous Heart; and in that very place where he firſt contrived and commenced his Miſchief, this Agag was now cut into Quarters, which were then hanged up, while his Head was carried in Triumph to Plymouth, where it arrived on the very Day that the Church there was keeping a Solemn Thankſgiving to God. God ſent 'em in the Head of a Leviathan for a Thanſgiving-Feaſt.

Sic pereat quiſquis cæptarit talia poſthac.

At the time when King Philip, the Beginner of the War, was thus come to the Concluſion of his Life, ſeveral of his Men accompanied him into the other World; and among the reſt, that very Indian who Fired the Firſt Gun at the Engliſh in this horrible War. But our Lebbæus, Captain Church, irreſiſtably ſtill purſued his Victories at ſuch a rate, that in a few Weeks there were, by his Means, at leaſt Seven Hundred of the Enemy Subjugated; and ſome of his Atchievements were truly ſo Magnanimous and Extraordinary, that my Reader will ſuſpect me to be Tranſcribing the ſilly Old Romances, where the Knights do Conquer ſo many Giants, if I ſhould proceed unto the particular Commemoration of them. Albeit I muſt alſo ſay, there were many other Commanders, whom if we ſhould meaſure by Conduct rather than by Succeſs, the Fame of Captain Church ought by no means to bring an Eclipſe upon theirs; and though it be an Envious Phraſe at Sea, that the Veſſel which by any Advantage Outſails another, does Wrong her; I pray let not that Phraſe get aſhore, to make it Interpreted as a Wrong to any other Valiant and Prudent Commander, that any One has had particular Succeſſes attending of him. In our Wars there were Captains engaged, upon whoſe Graves there may be Engraved the Character given by Sir Samuel Morland of Captain Jahir, who loſt his Life in the Wars of the poor Waldenſes: They were Perſons worthy to be Renowned unto all Poſterity for their Zeal for the Service of God, and the Preſervation of his poor afflicted Church; Perſons whom all the Terrors of Death could never affright, bold as Lions in all their Enterpriſes, but meek as Lambs in the midſt of all their Victories: Always lifting up their Hands towards Heaven from whence Deliverance came; and reciting ſweet Paſſages of Scripture, wherein they were verſed unto Admiration, to the great Encouragment of all their Followers.

§. 14. While thoſe Parts of New-England, which had the Glory of Evangelical Churches in them, for a Defence to be created upon, were thus Tempeſtuated by a terrible War; there were other Parts lying in the North-Eaſt of New-England of a leſs Evangelical Temper, which felt a furious Euroclydon alſo beating upon them. The Deſigns of Lumber and Fiſhing, but eſpecially of the Bever-Trade with the Indians, which laſt was very ſcandalouſly managed, had produced many fine Settlements in the Province of Main, and the County of Cornwal, and the brave Regions lying beyond Piſcataqua; but a great part of the Engliſh there grew too like the Indians, among whom they lived in their Unchriſtian way of Living; and inſtead of Erecting Churches among themſelves, they neither Chriſtianized the Pagans, nor by avoiding of the Vices which they rather taught the Pagans, did they take a due Courſe to preſerve themſelves from loſing of Chriſtianity in Paganiſm. Within Twenty Days after that Philip had begun the War at Mount Hope, in the Year 1675. the Indians, Two Hundred and Fifty Miles diſtant from him to the Northward, began the ſame Game upon the Remoteſt of theſe Plantations. Miſunderſtandings happened between the Engliſh and the Indians upon very odd Occaſions; and many Rude, Wild, Ungovernable Engliſh, did, unto the extream Diſſatisfaction of the wiſer ſort, raſhly add unto the Occaſions which the Indians alſo took to grow Ungovernable. Their little Swaggering at one another, advanced into Scuffling, and Scuffling into Fighting, ſo that at length there was Open War etween them; and there were many little Encounters in the Firſt Three or Four Months, wherein the Engliſh loſt Fifty, and the Indians about Ninety of their People; but at laſt it came to very Cruel Depredations. I am not willing to tire my Reader with another long Walk into the Woods after theſe Ravening Salvages, or to Enumerate the many Succeſſive Deſtructions with which the Indians at length broke up all the Engliſh Settlements to the Northward of Wells; and if I ſhould particularly relate how Barbarouſly they Murdered my Dear Friend, that Exemplarily Good Man, Captain Thomas Lake, with many more at Arowſick-Iſland in Kennebeck-River, on Auguſt 14. 1676. I ſhould but unto my ſelf, Infandum Renovare Dolorem. Inaſmuch as I am Writing a Church-Hiſtory, I may be excuſed, though I do not concern my ſelf any further with Provinces, where they made it ſo little of their own Concern to gather any Churches; it ſhall ſuffice or me to Write thus much, that one of the Firſt notable Outrages done by the Indians was at the Houſe of one Wakely at Caſco, whom with his Wife, and Son, and Daughter-in-Law (with Child) and a Couple of Grand-Children, they Barbarouſly Butchered, and carried away Three Children into Captivity. Now this honeſt Old Man was one who would often ſay with Tears, That he believed God was diſpleaſed at him, inaſmuch as albeit he came into New-England for the ſake of the Goſpel, yet he had left another place in the Country, where he had enjoyed the Goſpel in the Communion of a gathered Church, and now had lived many Years in a Plantation where there was no Church at all, nor the Ordinances and Inſtitutions of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. The Maſſachuſet-Colony ſent our Forces under the Command of Captain Hawthorn, and Captain Syll, and others, for the ſubduing of theſe Indians, and the ſucceſs of Attempts againſt them was very various. But the Stunningeſt Wound of all given to them, was, when by a Contrivance of the Engliſh, near Four Hundred of them were, on Septem. 6. 1676. ſurpriſed at the Houſe of Major Waldern in Quechecho; whereof one half which were found Acceſſories to the late Rebellion were ſold for Slaves; the reſt were diſmiſſed unto their own places; and at laſt, when both ſides were weary, about the latter end of that Year, a ſort of Peace was clapp'd up for the whole; ſo the Land had reſt from War.

§. 15. I make no queſtion that the Story of Og, the King of the Woody Baſhan, Encountred and Conquered by Joſhua, the Lord General of Iſrael, with his Armies paſſing into Canaan, was the very thing which the Gentiles, in After-Ages, did Celebrate under the Notion of the Serpent Python (which is the ſame with Typhon) deſtroy'd by Apollo. Og ſignifies a Burner, as well as the Name of Typhon, whom the Poets make a Theomachous Giant; and the Hebrews, for good Cauſes, affording the Name of Pethen or a Serpent unto ſuch an Enemy, we need not wonder that he is alſo Named Python. The Land where the Gods gave Battel to Typhon, was according to Homer, ἐν Ἀρίμοις. And as we know Syria was the Land of Aram, ſo Strabo will tell us, that the Arimi are the Syrians; which, with the River Orontes, called Ophites, as well as Typhon, in Cœlo-Syria, deſignates the very Country of Og unto us. The Seat of the Tranſaction related by Homer to have been in ὕδη, which Learned Men have ſo long ſought in Vain, that at laſt they ſaid it was in Cimmeria, that is to ſay, No Man knows where; it is doubtleſs, by a long miſtake of the Scribes, put for Ιουδα, or the Land of Judæa; but when he adds that it was χώρῳ ἐνὶ δρυόεντι, in a Region abounding with Oaks, the Region of Baſhan is unqueſtionably pointed at.

What Homer Sings about the Τυφωέος εὐναὶ, Typhonis Cubilia was not underſtood by Virgil, when he made a Sepulchre thereof, in his Tranſlating the Matter into his Ninth Æneid, becauſe he had not read the Account which the Scripture gives about Og's Bedſtead of Iron. 'Tis as clear that Apollo, who was Antiently called Pæan, or an Healer, is the ſame with Joſhua, whoſe Name is of a like Signification: And Apollo was called Anacæus likewiſe; but in Commemoration of Joſhua's Exploits againſt the Anakim; the Phænicæi, being alſo but Bene-Anak, or the Sons of Anak in the firſt Original. They by whom Typhon was Combated, came out of Egypt, and ſo did the Armies of Joſhua; an Hero, of whoſe Mother becauſe we read nothing, ſhe muſt be called, Λητὼ, or Latona, a Latendo. Cadmus the Gibeonite carrying a Colony into Græcia, did uſe there to remember the Victories of Joſhua in ſuch Hymns as they had learned from their New Maſters in Canaan; and of thoſe Hymns, it is probable, the Hundred and Thirty-fifth Pſalm in our Pſalter might be one; yea, the Græcian, ἐλελεῦ Ἰὼ, Ἰὼ, uſed in their Pæaniſms, might be but rude remembrances of the Hallelujahs anciently uſed in theſe Hymns of Iſrael.

Reader, 'Twas not unto a Delphos, but unto a Shiloh, that the Planters of New-England have been making their Progreſs, and King Philip is not the only Python that has been giving them Obſtruction in their Paſſage and Progreſs thereunto. But if, Infælix Exitus Perſecutorum is any Note of the True Church, I am ſure New-England has a True Church to People it; for all the Serpents, yea, or Giants, that formerly moleſted that Religious Plantation, found themſelves engaged in a fatal Enterprize. We have by a True and Plain Hiſtory ſecured the Story of our Succeſſes againſt all the Ogs in this Woody Country from falling under the Diſguiſes of Mythology; but it Adminiſters to us the Reflection which has been often made, that as of old the Ruins that ſtill overtook the Perſecutors of the poor Piccardines cauſed Men to ſay, If a Man be weary of his Life, let him become an Enemy to the Piccardines! The like Ruins have overwhelmed them that have Perſecuted the poor New-Englanders. And we will not conceal the Name of the God our Saviour, as an Heathen Country ſometimes would, Ne ab Hoſtibus Evocatus alio Commigraret: No, 'tis our Lord JESUS CHRIST worſhipped according to the Rules of his Bleſſed Goſpel, who is the great PHOEBUS, that SUN of Righteouſneſs, who hath ſo ſaved his Churches from the Deſigns of the Generations of the Dragon. 'Tis to our Lord JESUS CHRIST that we offer up our Hallelujahs!

But it muſt after all be confeſſed, that we have had one Enemy more pernicious to us than all the reſt, and that is our own Backſliding Heart, which has plunged the whole Country into ſo wonderful a Degeneracy, that I have ſometimes been Diſcouraged from Writing the Church-Hiſtory of the Country, leſt

> ——————Mulier Formoſa, ſuperne,
> Deſinat in Piſcem.——

And ſince this Degeneracy has obtained ſo much among us, the Wrath of Heaven has raiſed up againſt us a Succeſſion of other Adverſaries and Calamities, which have caſt the Land into great Confuſions to Reſcue us, from which the Jealous Kindneſs of Heaven has not made ſuch Quick Deſcents as in former Times. Alas, that my Reader muſt now tell me,

> Cæpiſti melius quam deſinis, ultima Primis
> Diſtant.——

For which Cauſe I now conclude our Church-Hiſtory, leaving to the Churches of New-England, for their Admonition, an Obſervation which the Renowned Commenius has made upon the Famous Churches of Bohemia, That they were nearer to the Sanctuary than other Churches, by reaſon of a more pure Diſcipline profeſſed and embraced among them; and therefore when they came to be depraved with Apoſtaſies, the Lord poured out his Righteous Diſpleaſure upon them, and quickly made them ſad Examples to the other Churches of the Reformation.

God knows what will be the END.

AN HISTORY
Remarkable Occurrences
In the Long
WAR,
Which NEW-ENGLAND hath had with the Indian Salvages, from the Year 1688. to the Year 1698. Faithfully Compoſed and Improved.

The Second Edition.

The Dedication, Prefaced unto the Firſt Edition.

To the People of NEW-ENGLAND.

SIRS,

YOU are Welcome unto the Hiſtory of a Tedious War, and unto a Period of that War ſo far in proſpect, as to render its Hiſtory Seaſonable.

Every Reaſonable Man will readily allow that it is a Duty to God, and a Service to the World, for to preſerve the Memory of ſuch Matters, as have been the more Memorable Occurrences in the War that has for Ten Years together been multiplying Changes and Sorrows upon us. And the Author, in whoſe Hiſtorical Writings the moſt Inquiſitive Envy has never to this Hour detected ſo much as one Voluntary and Material Miſtake, or One Farthing paid unto the Readers in the Coin of Candia, has now choſen to preſerve the Memory of theſe Matters while they are Freſh and New, and one hath not Fifty Years, which is the Channel of the River of Oblivion, to paſs over unto them. This Ex- pedition is uſed in the publication of our Decennium Luctuoſum, in hope that if any miſtake worth noting do appear in theſe Writings, it may like, and perhaps with, a Second Edition, be Corrected and Amended.

He expects no Thanks for his Eſſays to do Good, in this way or any other, unto any part of his Country, to whom he would gladly devote all his Talents, if he were a Thouſand Times better Talented than he is; and though the moſt Ungrateful Treats Imaginable (which are too well known by the Name of Country-pay) ſhould be given him, he would ſtill be of that Opinion, Recte feciſſe Merces eſt, If a Man may do Good, it is enough.

All the Favour he deſires of you is, that you would not Enquire after him; or ask, who he is? But that as he is at beſt but an Obſcure Perſon, he may continue in yet more Obſcurity: Which will be a greater Pleaſure to him than to be placed among the great Men of Achaia.

For indeed, he hath often thought on a paſſage written by Holy Mr. Row to his Excellent Son, I pray, That God would make uſe of my ſelf and you, in ſuch a way as that God only may be ſeen, and we not be taken Notice of at all; that he may have the Glory, and we may not be ſeen.

Could he have invited His EXCELLENCY unto ſuch a Glorious Table as that in a certain Cabinet at Florence, which is furniſhed with Birds and Flow'rs, all conſiſting of Neatly Poliſhed Jewels inlaid into it; a Work Fifteen Years in Making, and worth an Hundred Thouſand Crowns: Or could he have written a Book worthy to be laid up in the Cabinet of Darius: The Author might have been under a Temptation to have had his Name Engraved upon his Work. But a little boil'd Indian Corn in a Tray, is as much as our Beſt Hiſtory of an Indian War, compos'd perhaps in fewer Days than there were Years in the War, may preſume to be compar'd unto. And ſince our Hiſtory will not afford ſuch a Diverſion unto His Excellency, under the Indiſpoſitions of His Health, as thoſe of Livy and Curtius did unto the Princes that Recovered their loſt Health by Reading them; nor can any paſſage here be ſo happy, as that which cured Laurentius Medices of a Malady by having it Read unto him: It will require no more than a Nameleſs Writer to aſſure that Great Perſon on this Occaſion, that all the good People of New-England make their Fervent Vows unto the Almighty, For his Excellencies Proſperity, and the Welfare of his Excellent Lady, and of his Noble and Hopeful Offſpring.

And the Naming of the Author, is as little Neceſſary to Qualifie him, that he may pay publick Acknowledgments unto the Honourable the Lieutenant Governour; not only for his Cares about the Publick, while it was Tempeſtuated with the Indian War, which now makes an Hiſtory; but chiefly for his more than ordinary Tenderneſs of that Society, which has been the very Decus ac Tutamen of New-England. The Nameleſs Writer of this Hiſtory may Report, that with a greater Expence than that of the Firſt Founder, this Honourable Perſon proves that he Loves our Nation, by Building us another Edifice for the Supply of all our Synagogues, and STOUGHTON-HALL outſhines HARVARD-COLLEDGE: And he ſpeaks kinder Language, as well as better Latin, than that Eminent Stateſman in Flanders, whoſe Anſwer to a Petition for the Priviledges of an Univerſity there to be reſtored, was, Non curamus voſtros Privilegios. This Report may he give, without being obliged for to Confeſs any other Name than this, which he readily Confeſſes; One that was once a Member of Harvard-Colledge.

I Pray, Sirs, ask no further; let this Writing be like that on the Wall to Belſhazzar, where the Hand only was to be ſeen, and not whoſe it was. The Hiſtory is compiled with Inconteſtable Veracity; and ſince there is no Ingenuity in it, but leſs than what many Pens in the Land might Command, he knows not why his Writing Anonimouſly may not Shelter him from the Inconveniencies of having any Notice one way or other taken of him. Though among his other ſmall Furniture, he hath not left himſelf unfurniſhed with Skill in the Spaniſh Language, yet he never could bring himſelf to the belief of the Spaniſh Proverb, Quien no parece, perece; i. e. He that appears not, periſhes; he that ſhows not himſelf to the World, is undone. At Milain there is an Academy of Senſible Perſons, called, The Naſcoſti; or, Hidden Men; at Venice there is one of ſuch Perſons called, The Incogniti; and at Parma there is one of them, called, The Innominati. If there were nothing elſe Diſagreeable in them, the Author of this Hiſtory would be glad of an Admiſſion into ſuch an Academy.

The Hiſtory is indeed of no very Fine Thread; and the Readers, who everywhere Fiſh for nothing but Carps, and who Love, like Auguſtus, to Tax all the World, may find Fault enough with it. Nevertheleſs, while the Fault of an Untruth can't be found in it, the Author pretends that the famous Hiſtory of the Trojan War it ſelf comes behind our little Hiſtory of the Indian War; for the beſt Antiquaries have now confuted Homer; the Walls of Troy were, it ſeems, all made of Poets Paper; and the Siege of the Town, with the Tragedies of the Wooden Horſe, were all but a piece of Poetry.

And if a War between Us and an Handful of Indians do appear no more than a Batrachomyomachie to the World abroad, yet unto us at home it hath been conſiderable enough to make an Hiſtory. Nor is the Author afraid of promiſing, that of all the Thirty Articles which make up this Hiſtory, there ſhall not be One without ſomething in it that may by our ſelves be juſtly thought Conſiderable.

Should any Petit Monſieur complain, (as the Captain that found not himſelf in the Tapeſtry Hangings, which Exhibited the Story of the Spaniſh Invaſion in 1588.) that he don't find himſelf mentioned in this Hiſtory, the Author has his Apology; he has done as well and as much as he could, that whatever was worthy of a Mention might have it; and if this Collection of Matters be not compleat, yet he ſuppoſes it may be more compleat than any one elſe hath made; and now he hath done, he hath not pull'd up the Ladder after him; others may go on as they pleaſe with a compleater Compoſure.

If the Author hath taken Delight in this Hiſtory, and at all times, to Celebrate the Merits of ſuch as have deſerved well of his Country, [which he has here done, it may be, for ſome that never could afford him a good Word!] Eſpecially, if he do erect Statues for Dead Worthies, when there is no Room left for Flattery, [for who will beſtow Paint upon a Dead Face!] And if he do all this with all poſſible Concern, to avoid caſting Aſperſions upon others: Why ſhould any betray ſuch ill Nature as to be angry at it? My good Country forgive him this Injury!

Huic Uni forſan poteram Succumbere culpæ.

But whatever this Hiſtory be, it Aims at the doing of Good, as well as the telling of Truth; and if its Aim ſhall be attained, that will be a ſufficient Reward for all the Trouble of Writing it. When he deſires any more, he'll give you his Name; in the mean time, as a far greater Man once was called, Ludovicus Nihili, which you may make Lewis of Nothingham; ſo the Author will count himſelf not a little favoured, if he may paſs for one of no more Account than a No-body; which would certainly make a very blameleſs Perſon of him.

However, that the Hiſtory may not altogether want a Subſcription, the Author finding it a Cuſtom among the Chriſtian Writers of the Orient, when they have written a Treatiſe, to Subſcribe it after this manner; Scriptum per Servum vilem pauperem, omnibus Juſtitiis privatum, peccatorem magis quam omnis Caro: Or, Scripſit hoc pauper N. N. Or, Eſt Scriptura ſervi pauperis, & qui Benevolentia Dei indiget, & miſerationibus; he will accordingly Subſcribe himſelf, The Chief of Sinners. Nevertheleſs, he will humbly lay claim to the Words uſed by the Nameleſs Author of a Treatiſe, Entituled, The Faithful Steward: 'Tho' I am worſe than 'they ſpeak of me, who caſt diſgrace upon me, 'and I can eſpy Ten Faults in my ſelf, where 'they can diſcern One; yet I can, thro' Grace, 'appeal to thee, O Lord, with ſome Comfort, 'that I am Diſpleaſed with my ſelf for my Sins, 'and would fain pleaſe thee in all Things, at 'all Times, in all Places, and in every Con'dition.

Decennium Luctuoſum: OR, THE REMARKABLES
Of a Long
WITH INDIAN-SALVAGES.

Nobis in areto, & inglorius Labor. Tacit.

INTRODUCTION.

TWenty-three Years have Rouled away ſince the Nations of Indians within the Confines of New-England, generally began a Fierce War upon the Engliſh Inhabitants of that Country. The Flame of War then Raged thro' a great Part of the Country, whereby many whole Towns were laid in Aſhes, and many Lives were Sacrificed. But in little more than One Year's time, the United Colonies of Plymouth, Maſſachuſet, and Connecticut, with their united Endeavours, bravely Conquered the Salvages. The Evident Hand of Heaven appearing on the ſide of a People, whoſe Hope and Help was alone in the Almighty Lord of Hoſts, extinguiſhed whole Nations of the Salvages at ſuch a Rate, that there can hardly any of them now be found under any Diſtinction upon the Face of the Earth. Only the Fate of our Northern and Eaſtern Regions in that War was very different from that of the reſt. The Deſolations of the War had overwhelmed all the Settlements to the North-Eaſt of Wells. And when the time arrived, that all Hands were weary of the War, a ſort of a Peace was patched up, which left a Body of Indians, not only with horrible Murders Unrevenged, but alſo in the poſſeſſion of no little Part of the Country, with Circumſtances which the Engliſh might think not very Honourable. Upon this Peace the Engliſh returned unto their Plantations; their Number increaſed; they Stock'd their Farms, and Sow'd their Fields; they found the Air as Healthful, as the Earth was Fruitful; their Lumber and their Fiſhery became a conſiderable Merchandiſe; continual Acceſſions were made unto them, until Ten or a Dozen Towns in the Province of Main, and the County of Cornwall, were ſuddenly Started up into ſomething of Obſervation.

But in the Year 1688. the Indians which dwelt after the Indian manner among them, commenced another War upon theſe Plantations which hath broke them up, and ſtrangely held us in Play for Ten Years together. In theſe Ten Years there hath been a variety of Remarkable Occurrences; and becauſe I have ſuppoſed that a Relation of thoſe Occurrences may be Acceptable and Profitable to ſome of my Countrymen, I ſhall now with all Faithfulneſs Endeavour it. With all Faithfulneſs, I ſay; becauſe tho' there ſhould happen any Circumſtantial Miſtake in our Story, (for 'tis a rare thing for any Two Men concern'd in the ſame Action, to give the Story of it without ſome Circumſtantial Difference) yet even this alſo I ſhall be willing to Retract and Correct, if there be found any juſt Occaſion: But for any one Material Error in the whole Compoſure, I challenge the moſt Sagacious Malice upon Earth to detect it, while matters are yet ſo freſh as to allow the Detection of it. I diſdain to make the Apology once made by the Roman Hiſtorian; Nemo Hiſtoricus non aliquid mentitus, & habiturus ſum mendaciorum Comites, quos Hiſtoriæ & eloquentiæ miramur Authores. No, I will write with an Irreproachable and Inconteſtable Veracity; and I will write not one thing but what I am furniſhed with ſo good Authority for, that any Reaſonable Man, who will pleaſe to Examine it, ſhall ſay, I do well to inſert it as I do: And I will hope that my Reader hath not been Studying of Godefridus de Valle's Book, De Arte nihil Credendi; About The Art of Believing nothing. Wherefore having at the very Beginning thus given ſuch a Knock upon thy Head, O Malice, that thou canſt never with Reaſon Hiſs at our Hiſtory, we will proceed unto the ſeveral Articles of it.

ARTICLE I.

The Occaſion and Beginning of the WAR.

IF Diodorus Siculus had never given it as a great Rule of Hiſtory, Hiſtoriæ primum Studium, primariaq; conſideratio eſſe videtur, inſoliti graviſq; Caſus principio cauſas inveſtigare, yet my Reader would have expected that I ſhould Begin the Hiſtory of our War, with an Hiſtory of the Occurrences and Occaſions which did Begin the War. Now, Reader, I am at the very firſt fallen upon a Difficult Point; and I am in danger of pulling a War upon my ſelf, by endeavouring of thy Satiſfaction. In truth I had rather be called a Coward, than undertake my ſelf to Determine the Truth in this Matter; but having Armed my ſelf with ſome good Authority for it, I will Tranſcribe Two or Three Reports of the Matter now in my Hands, and leave it unto thy own Determination.

One Account I have now lying by me, Written by a Gentleman of Dover in theſe Terms.

'The Eaſtern Indians, and eſpecially thoſe of Saco and Ammonoſcoggin, pretend many Reaſons for the late Quarrel againſt the Engliſh, which began this long and bloody War.

1. 'Becauſe the Engliſh refuſed to pay that Yearly Tribute of Corn, agreed upon in the Articles of Peace, formerly concluded with them by the Engliſh Commiſſioners.

2. 'Becauſe they were Invaded in their Fiſhery, at Saco-River, by certain Gentlemen, who ſtopp'd the Fiſh from coming up the River with their Nets and Sains. This they were greatly affronted at, ſaying, They thought (though the Engliſh had got away their Lands as they had, yet) the Fiſhery of the Rivers had been a Priviledge reſerved Entire unto themſelves.

3. 'Becauſe they were Abuſed by the Engliſh, in Suffering, if not Turning their Cattel over to a certain Iſland to deſtroy their Corn.

4. 'But the Fourth and Main Provocation was, the Granting or Patenting of their Lands to ſome Engliſh; at which they were greatly Enraged, threatning the Surveyor to knock him on the Head if he came to lay out any Lands there.

5. 'To theſe may be added the Common Abuſes in Trading, viz. Drunkenneſs, Cheating, &c. which ſuch as Trade much with them are ſeldom innocent of.

Doubtleſs theſe Indian Allegations may be anſwered with many Engliſh Vindications. But I ſhall at preſent Intermeddle no further than to offer another Account, which alſo I have in my Hands, written by a Gentleman of Caſco.

It runs in ſuch Terms as theſe.

'Many were the Outrages and Inſultings of the Indians up the Engliſh, while Sir E. A. was Governour. At North-Yarmouth, and other places at the Eaſtward, the Indians killed ſundry Cattel, came into Houſes, and threatned to knock the People on the Head; and at ſeveral times gave out Reports that they would make a War upon the Engliſh, and that they were animated to do ſo by the French. The Indians behaving themſelves ſo Inſultingly, gave juſt Occaſion of great Suſpicion. In Order for the finding out the Truth, and to Endeavour the preventing of a War, Captain Blackman, a Juſtice of Peace, with ſome of the Neighbourhood of Saco River, ſeized ſeveral Indians that had been Bloody Murderous Rogues in the Firſt Indian War, being the Chief Ring-leaders, and moſt capable to do Miſchief. The ſaid Captain Blackman ſeized to the Number of between Sixteen and Twenty, in Order for their Examination, and to bring in the reſt to a Treaty. The ſaid Blackman ſoon ſent the ſaid Indians with a good Guard to Falmouth in Caſco-Bay, there to be ſecured, until Orders could come from Boſton concerning them. And in the mean time the ſaid Indians were well provided with Proviſions and ſuitable Neceſſaries. The reſt of the Indians robb'd the Engliſh, and took ſome Engliſh Priſoners: Whereupon Poſt was ſent to Boſton. Sir Edmond Androſs being at New-York, the Gentlemen of Boſton ſent to Falmouth ſome Soldiers for the Defence of the Country, and alſo the Worſhipful Mr. Stoughton, with others, to Treat with the Indians in Order for the ſettling of a Peace, and getting in of our Engliſh Captives. As ſoon as the ſaid Gentlemen arrived at the Eaſtward, they ſent away one of the Indian Priſoners to the reſt of the Indians, to Summon them to bring in the Engliſh they had taken; alſo that their Sachims ſhould come in to Treat with the Engliſh, in Order that a Juſt Satiſfaction ſhould be made on both Sides. The Gentlemen waited the return of the Indian Meſſenger; and when he returned he brought Anſwer, That they would meet our Engliſh at a Place called Macquoit, and there they would bring in the Engliſh Captives, and Treat with the Engliſh. And although the Place appointed by the Indians for the Meeting, was ſome Leagues diſtant from Falmouth, yet our Engliſh Gentlemen did Condeſcend to it, in hope of getting in our Captives, and putting ‘a ſtop to further Trouble. They diſpatch'd away to the Place, and carried the Indian Priſoners with them, and ſtaid at the Place appointed, expecting the coming of the Indians that had promiſed a Meeting. But they, like Falſe, Perfidious Rogues, did not appear. Without doubt they had been Counſelled what to do by the French and their Abettors, as the Indians did declare afterwards; and that they were near the Place, and ſaw our Engliſh that were to Treat with them, but would not ſhew themſelves; but did endeavour to take an Opportunity to deſtroy our Engliſh that were to Treat them. Such was their Treachery! Our Gentlemen ſtaid Days to wait their coming; but ſeeing they did not appear at the Place appointed, they returned to Falmouth, and brought the Indian Priſoners, expecting that the other Indians would have ſent down ſome Reaſon why they did not appear at the place appointed, and to make ſome Excuſe for themſelves. But inſtead of any Compliance, they fell upon North Yarmouth, and there kill'd ſeveral of our Engliſh. Whereupon the Eaſtern Parts were ordered to get into Garriſons, and to be upon their Guard until further Orders from Sir Edmond Andros; and that the Indian Priſoners ſhould be ſent to Boſton, which was done with great Care, and not one of them hurt; and Care taken daily for Proviſion. But Sir E. A. returning from New-York, ſet them all at Liberty; not ſo much as taking Care to Redeem thoſe of our Engliſh for them that were in their Hands. I had kept one at Falmouth a Priſoner, to be a Guide into the Woods for our Engliſh, to find out the Haunts of our Heathen Enemies; but Sir E. A. ſent an Expreſs to me, that upon my utmoſt Peril I ſhould ſet the ſaid Indian at Liberty, and take Care that all the Arms that were taken from him, and all the reſt of thoſe Captain Blackman had ſeized, ſhould be delivered up to them, without any Orders to receive the like of ours from them.

It will be readily acknowledged, that here was enough done to render the Indians Inexcuſable for not coming in upon the Proclamation, which Sir Edmond Andros, then Governour of New-England, immediately Emitted thereupon, requiring them to Surrender the Murderers now among them. A Spaniard, that was a Soldier, would ſay, That if we have a good Cauſe, the ſmell of Gunpowder in the Field is as ſweet as the Incenſe at the Altar. Let the Reader judge after theſe things, what ſcent there was in the Gunpowder ſpent for Nine or Ten Years together in our War with the Indian-Salvages.

Now that while we are upon this Head, we may at once diſpatch it; I will unto theſe Two Accounts add certain Paſſages of one more, which was Publiſhed in September, 1689.

‘Such were the Obſcure Meaſures taken at that time of Day, that the Riſe of this War hath been as dark as that of the River Nilus; only the generality of Thinking People through the Country can remember When and Why every one did foretel a War. If any Wild Engliſh (for there are ſuch as well as of another Nation) did then Begin to Provoke and Affront the Indians, yet thoſe Indians had a fairer way to come by Right than that of Bloodſhed, nothing worthy of, or calling for, any ſuch Revenge was done unto them. The moſt Injured of them all, (if there were any ſuch) were afterwards diſmiſſed by the Engliſh with Favours, that were then admirable even to Our ſelves; and theſe too, inſtead of Surrendring the Perſons, did increaſe the Numbers of the Murderers. But upon the REVOLUTION of the Government, [April, 1689.] the State of the War became wholly New: And we are more arrived unto Righteouſneſs as the Light, and Juſtice as the Noon Day. A great Sachim of the Eaſt we then immediately applied our ſelves unto, and with no ſmall Expences to our ſelves, we engaged him to employ his Intereſt for a good Underſtanding between us, and the Party of Indians then in Hoſtility againſt us. This was the Likely, the Only way of coming at thoſe Wandring Salvages: But that very Sachim now treacherouſly of an Embaſſador became a Traitor, and annexed himſelf with his People to the Heard of our Enemies, which have ſince been Ravaging, Pillaging and Murdering, at a rate which we ought to count Intolerable. The Penacook Indians, of whom we were Jealous, we likewiſe Treated with; and while we were by our Kindneſſes and Courteſies Endeavouring to render them utterly Inexcuſable, if ever they ſought our Harm; even then did theſe alſo by ſome Evil Inſtigation, (the Devils, no doubt!) quickly ſurprize a Plantation where they had been Civilly Treated a Day or two before, and Commit at once more Plunder and Murder than can be heard with any Patience.

Reader, having ſo placed theſe Three Accounts as to defend my Teeth, I think I may ſafely proceed with our Story. But becauſe Tacitus teaches us to diſtinguiſh between the meer Occaſions and the real Cauſes of a War, it may be ſome will go a little higher up in their Enquiries: They will Enquire whether no Body ſeized a parcel of Wines that were Landed at a French Plantation to the Eaſtward? Whether an Order were not obtained from the King of England, at the Inſtance of the French Embaſſador, to reſtore theſe Wines? Whether upon the Vexation of this Order, we none of us ran a New-Line for the Bounds of the Province? Whether we did not contrive our New Line ſo as to take in the Country of Monſieur St Caſteen? Whether Monſieur St. Caſteen flying from our Encroachments, we did not ſeize upon his Arms and Goods, and bring them away to Pemmaquid? And Who were the We which did theſe things? And whether the Indians, who were extreamly under the Influence of St. Caſteen, that had Married a Sagamore's Daughter among them, did not from this very ry Moment begin to be obſtreperous? And whether all the Sober Engliſh in the Country did not from this very Moment foretel a War? But for any Anſwer to all theſe Enquiries I will be my ſelf a Tacitus.

ARTICLE II.

The Firſt Acts of Hoſtility between the Indians and the Engliſh.

WHEN one Captain Sargeant had ſeized ſome of the Principal Indians about Saco by Order of Juſtice Blackman, preſently the Indians fell to ſeizing as many of the Engliſh as they could catch. Captain Rowden, with many more in one Place, and Captain Gendal, with ſundry more in another Place, particularly fell into the Hands of theſe deſperate Man-Catchers. Rowden, with many of his Folks, never got out of their Cruel Hands; but Gendal, with his, got a Releaſe, one can ſcarce tell how, upon the return of thoſe which had been detained in Boſton. Hitherto there was no ſpilling of Blood! But ſome time in September following, this Captain Gendal went up, with Soldiers and others, to a Place above Caſco, called North Yarmouth, having Orders to Build Stockado's on both ſides the River, for Defence of the Place, in Caſe of any ſudden Invaſion. While they were at Work, an Engliſh Captive came to 'em with Information, that Seventy or Eighty of the Enemy were juſt coming upon 'em; and he adviſed 'em, To yield quietly, that they might ſave their Lives. The Soldiers that went thither from the Southward being terrified at this Report, ran with an haſty Terror to get over the River; but with more Haſte than Good Speed; for they ran directly into the Hands of the Indians. The Indians dragging theſe their Priſoners with 'em, came up towards the Caſconians; who having but a very little time to conſult, yet in this time reſolved, Firſt, That they would not be ſeized by the Salvages: Next, That they would free their Friends out of the Hands of the Salvages if it were poſſible: Thirdly, That if it were poſſible they would uſe all other Force upon the Salvages, without coming to down-right Fight. Accordingly they laid hold on their Neighbours, whom the Salvages had ſeized, and this with ſo much Dexterity, that they cleared them all, except One or Two; whereof the whole Number was about a Dozen. But in the Scuffle one Sturdy and Surly Indian held his Prey ſo faſt, that one Benedict Pulciſer gave the Maſtiff a Blow with the Edge of his Broad Ax upon the Shoulder, upon which they fell to't with a Vengeance, and Fired their Guns on both Sides, till ſome on both Sides were Slain. Theſe were, as one may call them, The Scower-pit of a long War to follow. At laſt the Engliſh Victoriouſly chaſed away the Salvages, and returned ſafely unto the other ſide of the River. And thus was the Vein of New-England firſt opened, that afterwards Bled for Ten Years together! The Skirmiſh being over, Captain Gendal in the Evening paſſed over the River in a Canoo, with none but a Servant; but Landing where the Enemy lay hid in the Buſhes, they were both Slain immediately. And the ſame Evening, one Ryal, with another Man, fell unawares into the Hands of the Enemy; Ryal was afterwards Ranſomed by Monſieur St. Caſteen, but the other Man was barbarouſly Butchered. Soon after this the Enemy went Eaſtward, unto a Place call'd, Merry-Meeting, (from the Concourſe of divers Rivers there) where ſeveral Engliſh had a Sad-Meeting with them; for they were killed ſeveral of them even in cold Blood, after the Indians had ſeized upon their Houſes and their Perſons. And about this time the Town call'd, Sheepſcote, was entred by theſe Rapacious Wolves, who burnt all the Houſes of the Town, ſave Two or Three. The People ſaved themſelves by getting into the Fort, all but one Man, who going out of the Fort for to Treat with 'em, was Treacherouſly Aſſaſſinated. Thus the Place which was counted, The Garden of the Eaſt, was infeſted by Serpents; and a Sword Expell'd the poor Inhabitants. Little more Spoil was done by the Salvages before Winter, except only, that at a place called Kennebunk, near Winter-Harbour, they cut off Two Families, to wit, Barrow's, and Buſſie's; but Winter coming on, the Serpents retired into their Holes. When Summer comes, Reader, look for Tornadoes enough to overſet a greater Veſſel than little New-England.

ARTICLE III.

The Firſt Expedition of the Engliſh againſt the Indians.

WHEN the Keeper of the Wild Beaſts at Florence has entertain'd the Spectators with their Encounters on the Stage, he has this Device to make 'em Retire into the ſeveral Dens of their Seraglio. He has a fearful Machin of Wood made like a great Green Dragon, which a Man within it rouls upon Wheels, and holding out a Couple of Lighted Torches at the Eyes of it, frights the fierceſt Beaſt of them all into the Cell that belongs unto him. Sir Edmond Andros, the Governour of New-England, that he might Expreſs his Reſolutions to force the Wild Beaſts of the Eaſt into Order, in the Winter now coming on, turned upon them as Effectual a Machin as the Green Dragon of Florence; that is to ſay, an Army of near a Thouſand Men. With this Army he marched himſelf in Perſon into the Caucaſæan Regions, where he built a Fort at Pemmaquid, and another Fort at Pechypſcot Falls, beſides the Fort at Sheepſcote. He and his Army underwent no little Hardſhip, thus in the depth of Winter to Expoſe themſelves unto the Circumſtances of a Campaign, in all the Bleak Winds and Thick Snows of that Northern Country. But it was hop'd, that Good Forts being thus Garriſon'd with Stout Hearts in ſeveral Convenient Places, the Indians might be kept from their uſual Retreats, both for Planting, and for Fiſhing, and lye open alſo to perpetual Incurſions from the Engliſh in the fitteſt Seaſons thereof: And it was thought by the moſt ſenſible, this Method would in a little while compel the Enemy to ſubmit unto any Terms: Albeit others conſidering the Vaſt Woods of the Wilderneſs, and the French on the back of theſe Woods, fancied that this was but a project to Hedge in the Cuckow. However, partly the Army, and partly the Winter, frighted the Salvages into their Inacceſſible Dens: And yet not One of the Indians was killed; but Sickneſs and Service kill'd, it may be, more of our Engliſh, than there were Indians then in Hoſtility againſt them. The News of Matters approaching towards a REVOLUTION in England, cauſed the Governor to return unto Boſton in the Spring; and upon his return there fell out ſeveral odd Events, with Rumours, whereof I have now nothing to ſay, but that I love my Eyes too well to mention them. Some of the Soldiers took Advantage from the Abſence of the Governor to deſert their Stations in the Army; and tho' this Action was by good Men generally Condemned as an evil Action, yet their Friends began to gather together here and there in little Bodies, to protect them from the Governor, concerning whom abundance of odd Stories then buzz'd about the Country, made 'em to Imagine, that he had carried 'em out only to Sacrifice 'em. Some of the principal Gentlemen in Boſton conſulting what was to be done in this Extraordinary Juncture, they Agreed, that altho' New-England had as much to Juſtifie a Revolution as Old, yet they would, if it were poſſible, extinguiſh all Eſſays in the People towards an Inſurrection, in daily hopes of Orders from England for our Safety: But that if the Country People, by any unreſtrainable Violences puſhed the Buſineſs on ſo far, as to make a Revolution unavoidable, then to prevent the Shedding of Blood by an ungoverned Mobile, ſome of the Gentlemen preſent ſhould appear at the Head of it, with a Declaration accordingly prepared. He that Reads the Narrative of Grievances under the Male-Adminiſtrations of the Government then Tyrannizing, Written and Signed by the Chief Gentlemen of the Governor's Council, will not wonder at it, that a Revolution was now rendred indeed unavoidable. It was a Government, whereof Ned Randolph, a Bird of their own Feather, confeſs'd as we find in one of his publiſhed Letters, That they were as Arbitrary as the Great Turk. And for ſuch a Government a better Similitude cannot perhaps be thought on than that of Monſieur Souligne; 'Tis like the Condition of Perſons poſſeſſed with evil Spirits, which will go an Hundred Leagues in leſs time than others can Ten; but at the Journys End find themſelves to be ſo Bruiſed that they never can Recover it. The Revolution (and, ye Tories, a Juſt one) was accordingly made on the Eighteenth of April, which Their Majeſties, then happily Seated on the Britiſh Throne, kindly Accepted and Approved. The Governor and Magiſtrates of the Maſſachuſets-Colony, which were in power Three Years and Half before, [a Period often obſerved!] did ſome time after this reſume their Places, and apply themſelves to ſuch Acts of Government, as Emergencies made neceſſary for them, fortified with a Letter from the King to Authorize and Empower them in their Adminiſtrations. Thus they waited for further Directions from the Authority of England, and ſuch a Settlement as would moſt Conduce (which were the words of the King's Letter, bearing Date Aug. 12. 1689.) to the Security and Satisfaction of the Subjects in that Colony.

ARTICLE IV.

A Flame Spreading upon the beſt Endeavours to Quench it.

IT was hop'd the War would now come to an immediate End; but the Great God who Creates that Evil, had further Intentions to Chaſtiſe a ſinful People by thoſe who are not a People. The Government ſent Captain Greenleaf to Treat with the Indians at Penacook, who anſwered him with fair Pretences and Promiſes of Amity. They procured an Interview with ſome of the more Eaſtern Sagamores, who not only promiſed Friendſhip themſelves, but alſo undertook to make our Enemies become our Friends. They ſent unto the Soldiers yet remaining at Pammaquid for to keep their Poſt, Engaging to them that they ſhould not want their Pay. But all this Care was defeated by Methods of Miſchiefs too deep for our preſent Penetration. The Salvages began to renew their Hoſtilities at Saco Falls, in the Beginning of April, on a Lord's Day Morning, ſome while before the Revolution. The Penacook Indians were all this while peaceably Converſant at Quochecho; and ſo long as that Converſation continued, the Inhabitants were very ſecure of any Danger, not only from thoſe Cut-Throats, but alſo from their Brethren. Happy had it been for thoſe honeſt People, if their Fear had made ſo much Haſte as my Pen has done, to call 'em Cut-Throats! For the Penacookian joining with the Saconian Indians, hovered about Quochecho, where one Meſandowit, a Sagamore, being that Night kindly Entertained by Major Richard Waldein, horribly betray'd his kind Hoſt, with the Neighbours, into the Hands of Murderers. Above an Hundred, ſome ſay Five Hundred of the Indians, about break of Day having Surprized the Secure and Silent Engliſh, they particularly ruſhed into the Garriſon of the Generous Major, which was by Sinon Meſandowit (for beſtowing a Heathen Name upon him, we'll now call him ſo) opened for them, and having firſt Barbarouſly Murthered the Old Gentleman, who was Equivalent unto Two and Twenty, they then Murdered Two and Twenty more, and Captived Nine and Twenty of the People; Burnt

Four or Five of the beſt Houſes, took much Plunder, and ſo drew off; but kill'd Mr. John Broughton in their drawing off: While Mr. John Emmerſon, a worthy Preacher at Berwick, by declining to Lodge at the Hoſpitable Major's that Night, when ſtrongly Invited, received a remarkable Deliverance. Hereupon Forces were diſpatch'd for the Relief of what remained in Quochecho; Captain Noyes alſo with more Forces viſited Penacook, where though the Men eſcaped him, he deſtroy'd the Corn of our New Enemies: But the ſculking Enemies at the ſame time ſlew ſeveral Perſons at an Out-Farm on the North-ſide of Merrimack-River. A Party of Men were ſoon after ſent out of Piſcataqua, under the Command of Captain Wincal, who went up to Winnopiſſeag Ponds, (upon Advice of one John Church, who ran from them, that the Indians were there) where they kill'd One or Two of the Monſters they Hunted for, and cut down their Corn. Four young Men of Saco, deſirous to join with them, went into the Woods to ſeek their Horſes, and found their Deaths by an Ambuſh of Indians. Twenty-four Armed Men going forth from Saco-Falls to bury the Slain, had a briſk Encounter with the Indians, whom they purſued into a Vaſt Swamp, until a greater Number of Indians pouring in upon them, obliged 'em, with the loſs of about Five or Six more, to retire from any further Action. But before the Dog-Days were out, there was more Bleeding ſtill that prov'd fatal to us. On Aug. 2. one Starky going early in the Morning from the Fort at Pemmaquid unto New Harbour, fell into the Hands of the Indians, who to obtain his own Liberty informed them, that the Fort had at that Inſtant but few Men in it: And that one Mr. Giles, with Fourteen Men, was gone up to his Farm, and the reſt ſcattered abroad about their Occaſions. The Indians hereupon divided their Army; Part going up to the Falls, kill'd Mr. Giles and others; Part, upon the Advantage of the Tide, ſnapt the reſt before they could recover the Fort. From a Rock near the Fort, which inconveniently overlook'd it, the Aſſailants now overlook'd it, as over Lincoln, and grievouſly gauled the Defendants. Capt. Weems had but few with him that were able to Fight; and his own Face was in the Fight by an Accident horribly Scorched with Gunpowder. Wherefore the Day following they ſurrendred the Fort upon Capitulations for Life and Liberty; which yet the Indians broke, by Butchering and Captiving many of them. Capt. Skynner, and Capt. Farnham, repairing to the Fort, from an Iſland about half a Mile diſtant from it, were both ſlain as they Landed on the Rocks; and Mr. Patiſhal, as he lay with his Sloop in the Barbican, was alſo taken and ſlain. This, together with more Spoil done by the Indians on the Engliſh at Sheepſcote, and Kennebeck, and other Places Eaſtward, cauſed the Inhabitants to draw off unto Falmouth as faſt as they could: And well if they could have made good their Standing there!

MANTISSA.

THE foregoing Article of our Tragedies hath related the taking of Quochecho! The Condition of Two Perſons under and after the Fate of Quochecho, may have in it an Entertainment acceptable for ſome ſort of Readers. It ſhall be in this place reported, from the Communications of Mr. John Pike, the worthy Miniſter of Dover, to whom I have been beholden, for Communicating to me many other Paſſages alſo which occurr in this our Hiſtory.

I. Mrs. Elizabeth Heard, a Widow of a good Eſtate, a Mother of many Children, and a Daughter of Mr. Hull, a Reverend Miniſter formerly Living at Piſcataqua, now lived at Quochecho; happening to be at Portſmouth on the Day before Quochecho was cut off, ſhe returned thither in the Night with One Daughter and Three Sons, all Maſters of Families. When they came near Quochecho they were aſtoniſhed with a prodigious Noiſe of Indians, Howling, Shooting, Shouting, and Roaring, according to their manner in making an Aſſault. Their Diſtreſs for their Families carried them ſtill further up the River, till they ſecretly and ſilently paſſed by ſome Numbers of the Raging Salvages. They Landed about an Hundred Rods from Major Waldern's Garriſon; and running up the Hill, they ſaw many Lights in the Windows of the Garriſon, which they concluded the Engliſh within had ſet up for the Direction of thoſe who might ſeek a Refuge there. Coming to the Gate, they deſired Entrance; which not being readily granted, they called earneſtly, and bounced, and knocked, and cried out of their unkindneſs within, that they would not open to them in this Extremity. No Anſwer being yet made, they began to doubt whether all was well; and one of the young Men then climbing up the Wall, ſaw a horrible Tawny in the Entry, with a Gun in his Hand. A grievous Conſternation ſeiz'd now upon them; and Mrs. Heard, ſitting down without the Gate through Deſpair and Faintneſs, unable to ſtir any further, charg'd her Children to ſhift for themſelves, for ſhe muſt unavoidably there End her Days. They finding it impoſſible to carry her with them, with heavy Hearts forſook her; but then coming better to her ſelf, ſhe fled and hid among the Barberry-Buſhes in the Garden: And then haſtning from thence, becauſe the Day-light advanced, ſhe ſheltered her ſelf (though ſeen by Two of the Indians) in a Thicket of other Buſhes, about Thirty Rods from the Houſe. Here ſhe had not been long before an Indian came towards her, with a Piſtol in his Hand: The Fellow came up to her, and ſtared her in the Face, but ſaid nothing to her, nor ſhe to him. He went a little way back, and came again, and ſtared upon her as before, but ſaid nothing; whereupon ſhe asked him, What he would have? He ſtill ſaid nothing, but went away to the Houſe Co-hooping, and returned unto her no more. Being thus unaccountably preſerved, ſhe made ſeveral Eſſays to paſs the River; but found her ſelf unable to do it; and finding all Places on that ſide the River fill'd with Blood, and Fire, and Hideous Outcries, thereupon ſhe returned to her old Buſh, and there poured out her ardent Prayers to God for help in this Diſtreſs. She continued in the Buſh until the Garriſon was Burnt, and the Enemy was gone; and then ſhe ſtole along by the River ſide, until ſhe came to a Boom, where ſhe paſſed over. Many ſad Effects of Cruelty ſhe ſaw left by the Indians in her way; until arriving at Captain Gerriſh's Garriſon, ſhe there found a Refuge from the Storm; and here ſhe ſoon had the Satisfaction to underſtand, that her own Garriſon, though one of the firſt that was aſſaulted, had been bravely Defended and Maintained againſt the Adverſary. This Gentlewoman's Garriſon was the moſt Extream Frontier of the Province, and more Obnoxious than any other, and more uncapable of Relief; nevertheleſs, by her Preſence and Courage it held out all the War, even for Ten Years together; and the Perſons in it have enjoy'd very Eminent Preſervations. The Garriſon had been deſerted, if ſhe had accepted Offers that were made her by her Friends, of Living in more ſafety at Portſmouth; which would have been a Damage to the Town and Land: But by her Encouragement this Poſt was thus kept; and ſhe is yet Living in much Eſteem among her Neighbours.

II. Mrs. Sarah Geriſh, Daughter to Captain John Geriſh of Quochecho, a very Beautiful and Ingenious Damſel, about Seven Yerrs of Age, lodg'd at the Garriſon of her affectionate Grandfather, Major Waldern, when the Indians brought an horrible Deſtruction upon it. She was always very fearful of the Indians; but what Fear may we think now Surpriſed her, when they fiercely bid her go into ſuch a Chamber and call the People out? Finding only a little Child in the Chamber, ſhe got into the Bed unto the Child, and hid her ſelf in the Cloaths as well as ſhe could. The Fell-Salvages quickly pull'd her out, and made her Dreſs for a March, but led her away with no more than one Stockin upon her, a terrible March through the thick Woods, and a Thouſand other Miſeries, till they came to the Norway-Plains. From thence they made her go to the end of Winnopiſſeag Lake, and from thence to the Eaſtward, through horrid Swamps, where ſometimes they muſt Scramble over huge Trees fallen by Storm or Age for a vaſt way together, and ſometimes they muſt Climb up Long, Steep, Tireſome, and almoſt Inacceſſible Mountains. Her Firſt Maſter was one Sebundowit, a dull ſort of Fellow, and not ſuch a Devil as many of 'em were; but he ſold her to a Fellow that was a more harſh and mad ſort of a Dragon, and he carried her away to Canada.

A long and a ſad Journey ſhe had of it, thro' the midſt of an hideous Deſart, in the midſt of a dreadful Winter: And who can enumerate the Frights that ſhe endured before the end of her Journey? Once her Maſter commanded her to looſen ſome of her upper-garments, and ſtand againſt a Tree while he charged his Gun; whereas the poor Child ſhrieked out, He's going to kill me! God knows what he was going to do; but the Villain having charged his Gun, he call'd her from the Tree, and forbore doing her any Damage. Another time her Maſter ordered her to run along the Shore with ſome Indian Girls, while he paddled up the River in his Canoo. As they were upon a Precipice, a Tawny Wench violently puſh'd her Headlong into the River: But it ſo fell out, that in that very Place the Buſhes hung over the Water; ſo that getting hold of them ſhe recovered her ſelf. The Indians ask'd her how ſhe became ſo wet? But ſhe durſt not ſay how, through dread of the young Indians, who were always very Abuſive to her when they had her alone. Moreover, once being ſpent with Travelling all Day, and lying down Spent and Wet at Night, ſhe fell into ſo profound a Sleep that in the Morning ſhe waked not. The Barbarous Indians left her Aſleep, and covered with Snow; but at length waking, what Agonies may you imagine ſhe was in, to find her ſelf left a prey for Bears and Wolves, and without any Suſtenance, in an howling Wilderneſs many Scores of Leagues from any Plantation? She ran crying after them; and Providence having ordered a Snow to fall, by means whereof ſhe Track'd them until ſhe overtook them. Now the young Indians began to Terrifie her with daily Intimations, That ſhe was quickly to be Roaſted unto Death; and one Evening much Fuel was prepared between Two Logs, which they told her was for her. A mighty Fire being made, her Maſter call'd her to him, and told her, that ſhe ſhould preſently be Burnt Alive. At firſt ſhe ſtood Amazed; afterwards ſhe burſt into Tears; and then ſhe hung about the Tygre, and begg'd of him with an inexpreſſible Anguiſh, that he would ſave her from the Fire. Hereupon the Monſter ſo relented as to tell her, That if ſhe would be a good Girl ſhe ſhould not be Burnt.

At laſt they arrived at Canada, and ſhe was carried unto the Lord Intendant's Houſe, where many Perſons of Quality took much notice of her. It was a Week after this that ſhe remained in the Indian Hands before the Price of her Ranſom could be agreed on. But then the Lady Intendant ſent her to the Nunnery, where ſhe was comfortably provided for; and it was the Deſign, as was ſaid, for to have brought her up in the Romiſh Religion, and then have Married her unto the Son of the Lord Intendant. She was kindly uſed there, until Sir William Phips lying before Quebeck, did, upon exchange of Priſoners, obtain her Liberty. After Sixteen Months Captivity ſhe was reſtored unto her Friends; who had the Conſolation of having this their Deſireable Daughter again with them, returned from the Dead; but coming to be Sixteen Years Old, in the Month of July 1697. Death by a malignant Feavor, more Irrecoverably took her from them.

New Forces rais'd, and New Actions done.

ON Aug. 28. 1689. Major Swayn, with Seven or Eight Companies raiſed by the Maſſachuſet-Colony, marched Eaſtward; and ſoon after Major Church, with a Party of Engliſh and Chriſtian-Indians, raiſed in Plymouth-Colony, follow'd them. While theſe were on their March, the Indians that lay ſculking after the Indian-faſhion in the thick Woods, took notice how many Men belong'd unto Lieut. Huckin's Garriſon: And ſeeing 'em all go out unto their daily Work, nimbly ran ſo between them and the Garriſon, as to Kill 'em all (about Eighteen) but One, who being accidentally gone over the River, eſcaped them. They then Attacqued the Garriſon, in which there now were only Two Boys, (and one of them Lame) with ſome Women and Children; but theſe Two Boys very Manfully held 'em in play a Conſiderable while, and Wounded ſeveral of them, and kept 'em off, till the Aſſailants had found a way to ſet the Houſe on a light Fire over their Heads. They then urging 'em to Surrender for the ſake of the Goods, the Boys [brave Boys, truly!] would not, until they had Solemnly promiſed 'em their Lives: But the perfidious Wretches broke their Promiſe, for they preſently kill'd Three or Four of the Children: However, one of theſe Minutius's the Day after very happily got out of their Clutches. It was by a particular Accident that theſe Indians were delivered from falling into the Hands of Captain Garner, who purſued 'em Vigorouſly. But while the Forces now gone into the Eaſt were ſettling of Garriſons in convenient Places, a huge Body of Indians fell upon Caſco, where one of their firſt Exploits was their killing of Captain Bracket. Nevertheleſs, Captain Hall, (a Valiant Soldier in the former War, and a Valiant Commander in this) with his Vigorous Lieutenant Dawes, juſt then Arriving with his Company, the Engliſh hotly Engaged them for ſeveral Hours; and after a deal of true Engliſh Valour diſcovered in this Engagement, and the loſs of Ten or a Dozen Men, the Indians ran for it, with What loſs on their Part we do not know: That with Some we Do. Preſently after this, Major Swayn paſſing through Extream Difficulties to get at it, gave ſome Relief to a Garriſon at Blue Point, which was beſet by the Indians; who ſtill Fled into their Inacceſſible Swamps when our Bullets began to be hail'd upon them. It was judg'd, That here One or Two Opportunities of bringing the War unto an End were ſtrangely miſt and loſt: But where the Miſmanagement lay I cannot Remember; nor what were the Faux Pas of the Actors. Our Honeſt Major will clear himſelf, who returning then to his Head Quarters at Berwick, ſent abroad Scouts to learn if it were poſſible where they might have the beſt Game at the Chaſſe a La Bete noire, then to be followed. Captain Wiſwel having with him a Party of Indian Auxiliaries, they were ſent out under the Conduct of Lieutenant Flag: But coming to Winnopiſſeag, theſe Indians had a Conſult in their own Language, and ſending back their Lieutenant with Two Indians, Nineteen of them ſtaid in that Country Eleven Days, not having any Engliſh with them: At which the Major was juſty and greatly Offended. It was then Suſpected, and afterwards (by eſcap'd Captives) Aſſerted, that theſe Wretches found the Enemy, and Lodg'd with 'em Two Nights, and told 'em what they knew of the Engliſh Numbers and Motions. The Enemy then retired into the howling Deſarts where there was no coming at them: And no Endeavours being able to reach them, the Army in the Month of November following was Diſmiſſed: Only ſome Soldiers were left in Garriſon at Wells, at York, at Berwick, and at Quechecho, for the Aſſiſtence of the poor Inhabitants againſt any more Invaſions. There has been little Doubt that our Northern Indians are Originally Scythians; and it is become leſs a Doubt, ſince it appears from later Diſcoveries, that the pretended Straits of Anian are a Sham; for Aſia and America it ſeems are there Contiguous. Now of theſe our Scythians in America we have ſtill found what Julius Cæſar does report concerning them of Aſia;

Difficilius Invenire quam Interficere:

It is harder to Find them, than to Foil them.

A Digreſſion,

Relating ſome Wonderful Judgments of God.

BEfore we paſs to another Year, ſtand Still, Reader, and Behold ſome Wonderful Events proper here to be Introduced. The Relation thereof ſhall be given as I have Received it.

Portſmouth, Feb. 27. 169$\frac{8}{9}$.

‘MOnſieur Vincelotte of Quebeck arrived here ‘the 25th of the laſt Month, and ſince ‘Embarked for France by way of Bilboa, as A‘gent to Repreſent the Affairs of Canada.

‘He ſays, That about Nine or Ten Years ſince, ‘the Earl of Frontenac, Governor of that Place, ‘(who died laſt November) did perſonally At‘tempt to ſubdue the Maqua's, &c. having no ‘leſs than Fifteen Hundred Soldiers in his Army.

‘After a few Days March they (being ‘much Wearied and very Thirſty) came unto a ‘certain ſmall Well, of which they drank very ‘plentifully. But in a few Hours after ſundry ‘complained of much Illneſs, and according to ‘their various Conſtitutions fell Sick (as it ſeem'd) ‘of different Diſtempers; which occaſioned ſo ‘great Diſorder and Confuſion in the Army, 'that no leſs than Four well Men, for a while, were engaged in taking Care of every one that was Sick. About Three Days after, the Maqua Scout narrowly obſerving the Motions of the French, rallied together as many as poſſible, to give a Check unto their Undertaking; which they ſoon accompliſhed with very conſiderable Advantage. But the French appearing ſo Numerous, forced them to Retreat, and in purſuit of them, took and ranſackt a Small Town.

'The Sickneſs by this time increaſed unto ſo great an Height, as to occaſion a Council of War, which ordered their ſpeedy Return, and in a ſhort time no leſs than Eight Hundred Perſons Died out of the Army.

'Now about Three Years ago a certain Soldier, who belong'd at that time to the Army, went into France. In a ſhort time after his Arrival, he Robb'd one of the Churches of a conſiderable value of Plate; but being ſoon diſcovered, he was Sentenced to be Burnt: He then ſent unto ſundry Father Confeſſors, unto whom he acknowledged his many Sins; particularly the Fact for which he was Condemned. But he therewithal ſaid, That he had ſomething elſe of more conſiderable moment to impart, which did much afflict his Conſcience; namely, an Action of his about Seven Years before committed, when Liſted under the Conduct of the Earl of Frontenac, in an Enterprize againſt the Sennakers and Maqua's; (for ſaid he) I was the only Perſon at that time Inſtrumental to the Death of near Eight Hundred Souls. Having Received ſome Affront from ſome of the Officers, I was prompted to ſeek ſome ſpeedy Revenge, which my own corrupt Nature, with the Inſtigation of Satan, did inſtantly accompliſh; for being plentifully ſtored with ſome Rank Poiſon upon another Account, I threw it all into a Well, of which the Thirſty Army drank freely, and in the Event it proved ſo fatal unto them.

'For the further Confirmation of this Report, Monſieur Vincelotte at the ſame time told me, That he was himſelf Wounded in the Engagement, and ſhould continue Lame to his Dying Day.

Reverend Sir, Your moſt Humble Servant,

S. Penhallow.

ARTICLE VI.

New Aſſaults from the Indians, with ſome Remarkables of Captives taken in thoſe Aſſaults.

THE Sun and the War be again Returning! The Year 1690. muſt begin very inauſpiciouſly. In Febuary, the French with Indians made a Deſcent from Canada, upon a Dutch Town called Schenectada, Twenty Miles above Albany, under the Government of New-York; and in that ſurpriſing Incurſion, they killed about Sixty Perſons, whereof one was their Miniſter, and carried about Half as many into Captivity; but the People there, aſſiſted by the Maqua's, purſued them, and recovered ſome of their Captives from them. Upon the Advice of this Miſchief in the Weſt, order was diſpatch'd unto Major Froſt in the Eaſt, that the Towns there ſhould ſtand upon their Guard. The Major did his Duty; but they did not theirs: They Dreamt that while the Deep Snow of the Winter continued, they were ſafe enough; but this prov'd as Vain as a Dream of a Dry Summer. On March 18. the French with Indians, being half one, half t'other, half Indianized French, and half Frenchified Indians, Commanded by Monſieur Artel and Hoop-Hood, fell ſuddenly upon Salmon Falls, deſtroying the beſt part of the Town with Fire and Sword. Near Thirty Perſons were Slain, and more than Fifty were led into what the Reader will by and by call, The worſt Captivity in the World. It would be a Long Story to tell, what a particular ſhare in this Calamity fell to the Family of One Clement Short: This Honeſt Man, with his Pious Wife, and Three Children, were kill'd; and Six or Seven of their Children were made Priſoners: The moſt of which arrived ſafe to Canada, through a Thouſand Hardſhips; and the moſt of theſe were with more than a Thouſand Mercies afterwards Redeemed from Canada, unto their Engliſh Friends again. But my Readers will be ſo Reaſonable as to Excuſe me, if I do not mention the Fate of every Family that hath ſuffered a ſhare in the Calamity of this grievous War; for 'tis impoſſible that I ſhould Know All that hath happened; and it would be improper for me to Write All that I know: And very little is the Advantage of having a Name ſtanding upon Record only among unhappy Sufferers. About Sevenſcore Engliſh went out after 'em, and came up with 'em: Nevertheleſs, through the Diſadvantages of their Feet by the Snow, they could make no Hand on it. Four or Five of ours were kill'd, and as many of the Enemy; but the Night put an End unto the Action. Ours took One Priſoner, a Frenchman, who Confeſſed that they came from Canada, where both French and Indians were in Pay at Ten Livers per Month, and he particularly Declared the State of Canada. This Priſoner met with ſuch kind uſage from us, that he became a Freeman of Chriſt, and Embraced and Profeſſed the Proteſtant Religion. But of the Priſoners which the Enemy took from us, there were Two which immediately met with a very Different Fate. Three Indians hotly purſued one Thomas Toogood, and One of them overtaking him, while the reſt perceiving it, ſtaid behind the Hill, he yielded himſelf a Priſoner. While the Salvage was getting Strings to bind him, he held his Gun under his Arm; which Toogood obſerving, ſuddenly pluckt it from his Friend Stark Naught, Threatning and Proteſting that he would Shoot him down if he made any Noiſe; and ſo away he ran with it unto Quochecho. If my Reader der be inclined now to ſmile, when he thinks how ſimply poor Iſgrim look'd, returning to his Mates behind the Hill, without either Gun or Prey, or any thing but Strings, to remember him of his own Deſerts, the Smiles will all be preſently turn'd into Tears. The Indians had now made a Priſoner of one Robert Rogers, and being on their Journey they came to an Hill, where this Man, being through his Corpulency, (for which he was uſually Nicknamed, Robin Pork) and an Inſupportable and Intolerable Burden laid upon his Back, not ſo able to Travel as the reſt, he Abſconded. The Wretches miſſing him, immediately went in purſuit of him; and it was not long before they found his Burden caſt in the way, and the Track of his going out of the way, which they followed, until they found him hidden in a Hallow Tree. They took him out, they ſtript him, they beat him, and prick'd him, and puſh'd him forward with their Swords, until they were got back to the Hill; and it being almoſt Night, they faſtned him to a Tree with his Hands behind him, and made themſelves a Supper, Singing, Dancing, Roaring and Uttering many Signs of Joy, but with Joy little enough to the poor Creature who foreſaw what all this tended unto. They then cut a parcel of Wood, and bringing it into a plain place, they cut off the Top of a ſmall Red Oak Tree, leaving the Trunk for a Stake, whereto they bound their Sacrifice. They firſt made a great Fire near this Tree of Death, and bringing him unto it, they bid him take his leave of his Friends, which he did in a doleful manner; no Pen, though made of an Harpy's Quill, were able to deſcribe the Dolour of it! They then allow'd him a little time to make his Prayers unto Heaven, which he did with an extream Fervency and Agony: Whereupon they bound him to the Stake, and brought the reſt of the Priſoners with their Arms tied each to other, ſo ſetting them round the Fire. This being done, they went behind the Fire, and thruſt it forwards upon the Man, with much Laughter and Shouting; and when the Fire had burnt ſome while upon him, even till he was near ſtifled, they pull'd it again from him. They Danced about him, and at every Turn they did with their Knives cut Collops of his Fleſh from his naked Limbs, and throw them with his Blood into his Face. When he was dead, they ſet his Body down upon the Glowing Coals, and left him tied with his Back to the Stake; where the Engliſh Army ſoon after found him. He was left for Us to put out the Fire with our Tears!

Reader, who ſhould be the Father of theſe Myrmidons?

The Condition of the Captives that from time to time fell into the Hands of the Indians; with ſome very Remarkable Accidents.

WE have had Some Occaſion, and ſhall have More, to mention Captives falling into the Hands of the Indians. We will here, without any thing worthy to be call'd A Digreſſion, a little Stand Still, and with mournful Hearts look upon the Condition of the Captives in thoſe cruel Hands. Their Condition truly might be expreſs'd in the Terms of the Ancient Lamentations, (thus by ſome Tranſlated) Lam. 4. 3. The Daughter of my People is in the Hands of the Cruel, that are like the Oſtrich in the Wilderneſs. Truly the Dark places of New-England, where the Indians had their Unapproachable Kennels, were Habitations of Cruelty; and no Words can ſufficiently deſcribe the Cruelty undergone by our Captives in thoſe Habitations. The Cold, and Heat, and Hunger, and Wearineſs, and Mockings, and Scourgings, and Inſolencies endured by the Captives, would enough deſerve the Name of Cruelty; but there was this alſo added unto the reſt, that they muſt ever now and then have their Friends made a Sacrifice of Devils before their Eyes, but be afraid of droping a Tear from thoſe Eyes, leſt it ſhould upon that Provocation be next their own turn to be ſo Barbarouſly Sacrificed. Indeed, ſome few of the Captives did very happily eſcape from their Barbarous Oppreſſors, by a Flight wiſely managed; and many more of them were bought by the French, who Treated them with a Civility ever to be acknowledged, until Care was taken to fetch 'em home. Nevertheleſs many Scores of them died among the Indians; and what uſage they had may be gathered from the following Relations, which I have obtained from Credible Witneſſes.

RELATION I.

JAmes Key, Son to John Key of Quochecho, was a Child of about Five Years of Age, taken Captive by the Indians at Salmon Falls; and that Helliſh Fellow, Hope-Hood, once a Servant of a Chriſtian Maſter in Boſton, was become the Maſter of this Little Chriſtian. This Child lamenting with Tears the want of Parents, his Maſter Threatned him with Death if he did not refrain his Tears; but theſe Threatnings could not extinguiſh the Natural Affections of a Child. Wherefore upon his next Lamentations, this Monſter ſtript him ſtark Naked, and laſh'd both his Hands round a Tree, and Scourg'd him ſo, that from the Crown of his Head unto the Sole of his Foot he was all over Bloody and Swollen; and when he was tired with laying on his Blows on the Forlorn Infant, he would lay him on the Ground, with Taunts remembring him of his Parents. In this Miſery the poor Creature lay horribly roaring for divers Days together, while his Maſter, gratified with the Muſick, lay contriving of new Torments wherewith to Martyr him. It was not long before the Child had a Sore Eye, which his Maſter ſaid proceeded from his Weeping on the forbidden Accounts: Whereupon, laying hold on the Head of the Child with his Left Hand, with the Thumb of his Right he forced the Ball of his Eye quite out, therewithal telling him, That when he heard him Cry again he would ſerve t'other ſo too, and leave him never an Eye to weep withal. About Nine or Ten Days after this Wretch had Occaſion to remove with his Family about Thirty Miles further; and when they had gone about Six Miles of the Thirty, the Child being Tir'd and Faint, ſat him down to reſt, at which this Horrid Fellow being provoked, he Buried the Blade of his Hatchet in the Brains of the Child, and then chopp'd the Breathleſs Body to pieces before the reſt of the Company, and threw it into the River. But for the ſake of theſe and other ſuch Truculent Things done by Hope-Hood, I am reſolved, that in the Courſe of our Story I will watch to ſee what becomes of that Hideous Loup-garou, if he come to his End, as I am apt to think he will, before the Story.

RELATION II.

M*Ehetabel Goodwin*, being a Captive among the Indians, had with her a Child about Five Months Old; which thro' Hunger and Hardſhip, ſhe being unable to nouriſh it, often made moſt grievous Ejaculations. Her Indian Maſter told her, that if the Child were not quiet he would ſoon diſpoſe of it; which cauſed her to uſe all poſſible Means that his Netop-ſhip might not be offended; and ſometimes carry it from the Fire out of his hearing, where ſhe ſat up to the Waſte in Snow and Froſt for ſeveral Hours until it was lull'd aſleep. She thus for ſeveral Days preſerved the Life of her Babe, until he ſaw Cauſe to Travel with his own Cubs farther afield; and then leſt he ſhould be Retarded in his Travel, he violently ſnatch'd the Babe out of its Mother's Arms, and before her Face knock'd out its Brains, and ſtript it of the few Rags it had hitherto enjoy'd, and order'd her the Task to go Waſh the Bloody Cloaths. Returning from this Melancholy Task, ſhe found the Infant hanging by the Neck in a Forked Bough of a Tree. She deſired leave to lay it in the Earth; but he ſaid, It was better as it was, for now the Wild Beaſts would not come at it, [I am ſure they had been at it!] and ſhe might have the Comfort of ſeeing it again if ever they came that way. The Journey now before them was like to be very long, even as far as Canada, where his Purpoſe was to make Merchandiſe of his Captive, and glad was the Captive of ſuch happy Tidings. But the deſperate length of the Way, and want of Food, and grief of Mind, wherewith ſhe now Encountred, cauſed her within a few Days to faint under her Difficulties. When at length ſhe ſat down for ſome Repoſe, with many Prayers and Tears unto God for the Salvation of her Soul, ſhe found her ſelf unable to riſe, until ſhe eſpied her Furious Executioner coming towards her with Fire in his Eyes, the Devil in his Heart, and his Hatchet in his Hand, ready to beſtow a Mercy-ſtroak of Death upon her. But then this miſerable Creature got on her Knees, and with Weeping, and Wailing, and all Expreſſions of Agony and Entreaty, prevail'd on him to ſpare her Life a little, and ſhe did not queſtion but God would enable her to Walk a little faſter. The mercileſs Tyrant was prevailed withal to ſpare her this time; nevertheleſs her former Weakneſs quickly returning upon her, he was juſt going to Murder her; but a Couple of Indians juſt at that Inſtant coming in, ſuddenly call'd upon him to Hold his Hand; whereat ſuch an Horror ſurprized his Guilty Soul, that he ran away. But hearing them call his Name, he returned, and then permitted theſe his Friends to Ranſom his Priſoner from him. After this, being Seated by a River ſide, they heard ſeveral Guns go off on the other ſide; which they concluded was from a Party of Albany Indians, who were Enemies unto theſe; whereupon this bold Blade would needs go in a Canoo to diſcover what they were. They Fired upon him, and Shot through him and ſeveral of his Friends before the Diſcovery could be made unto Satisfaction. But ſome Days after this, divers of his Friends gathered a Party to Revenge his Death on their Suppoſed Enemies, with whom they joyned Battel, and Fought ſeveral Hours, until their Suppoſed Enemies did Really put 'em to the Rout. Among the Captives which they left in their Fight, one was this poor Goodwin, who was Overjoyed in ſeeing her ſelf thus at Liberty; but the Joy did not laſt long, for theſe Indians were of the Same Sort with the other, and had been by their own Friends thus through a ſtrange Miſtake ſet upon. However, this Crew proved more favourable to her than the former, and went away ſilently with their Booty, being loth to have any Noiſe made of their foul Miſtake. And yet a few Days after ſuch another Miſtake happened; for meeting with another Party of Indians, which they imagined in the Engliſh Intereſts, they furiouſly engaged each other, and many were killed and wounded on either Side; but they proved a Party of the French Indians, who took this poor Goodwin, and preſented her to the French Captain, by whom ſhe was carried unto Canada, where ſhe continued Five Years, and then was brought ſafe back into New-England.

RELATION III.

MARY Plaiſted, the Wife of Mr. James Plaiſted, was made a Captive by the Indians about Three Weeks after her Delivery of a Male Child. They then took her, with her Infant, off her Bed, and forced her to Travel in this her Weakneſs the beſt part of a Day, without any Reſpect of Pity. At Night the Cold Ground in the Open Air was her Lodging; and for many a Day ſhe had no Nouriſhment, but a little Water with a little Bears-fleſh; which rendred her ſo Feeble, that ſhe with her Infant were not far from totally Starved. Upon her Cries to God there was at length ſome Supply ſent in by her Maſter's taking a Mooſe, the Broth whereof Recovered her. But ſhe muſt now Travel many Days thro' Woods, and Swamps, and Rocks, and over Mountains, and Froſt and Snow, until ſhe could ſtir no farther. Sitting down to reſt, ſhe was not able to riſe, until her Diabolical Maſter help'd her up; which when he did, he took her Child from her, and carried it unto a River, where ſtripping it of the few Rags it had, he took it by the Heels, and againſt a Tree daſh'd out its Brains, and then flung it into the River. So he returned unto the miſerable Mother, telling her, She was now eaſed of her Burden, and muſt walk faſter than ſhe did before!

RELATION IV.

MARY Ferguſon, taken Captive by the Indians at Salmon Falls, declares, that another Maid of about Fifteen or Sixteen Years of Age, taken at the ſame time, had a Great Burden Impoſed on her. Being over-born with her Burden, ſhe burſt out into Tears, telling her Indian Maſter, That ſhe could go no further. Whereupon he immediately took off her Burden, and leading her aſide into the Buſhes, he cut off her Head, and Scalping it, he ran about Laughing and Bragging what an Act he had now done; and ſhowing the Scalp unto the reſt, he told them, They ſhould all be ſerved ſo if they were not patient.

In fine, when the Children of the Engliſh Captives cried at any time, ſo that they were not preſently quieted, the manner of the Indians was to daſh out their Brains againſt a Tree.

And very often, when the Indians were on or near the Water, they took the ſmall Children, and held 'em under Water till they had near Drowned them, and then gave 'em unto their Diſtreſſed Mothers to quiet 'em.

And the Indians in their Frolicks would Whip and Beat the ſmall Children, until they ſet 'em into grievous Outcries, and then throw 'em to their amazed Mothers for them to quiet 'em again as well as they could.

This was Indian Captivity!

Reader, A Modern Traveller aſſures us, that at the Villa Ludoviſia, not far from Rome, there is to be ſeen the Body of a Petrified Man; and that he himſelf ſaw by a piece of the Man's Leg, broken for Satisfaction, both the Bone and the Stone Cruſted over it. All that I will ſay, is, That if thou canſt read theſe Paſſages without Relenting Bowels, thou thy ſelf art as really Petrified as the Man at Villa Ludoviſia.

A little Account of the greateſt Action that ever New-England Attempted.

I Have read or heard, that when the inſufferable Abuſes which the Engliſh Nation ſuffered from the Abbeys were in the Parliament complained of, the Total Diſſolution of thoſe Abbeys was much forwarded by a Speech of a Gentleman in the Houſe of Commons to this purpoſe; That his own Houſe had been much annoy'd by Rooks building in a Tree near unto it, and that he had uſed many Ineffectual ways to diſturb and diſrooſt theſe Miſchievous Rooks, until at laſt he found out an Infallible way to be delivered from the Rooks, and that was to cut down the Tree that Lodged 'em. The Diſtreſſes into which New-England was now fallen, made this very Compariſon to be thought of. The Indian Rooks grievouſly infeſted the Country; and while the Country was only on the Defenſive Part, their Men were Thinned, their Towns were Broken, and their Treaſures Conſumed, without any hope of ſeeing an End of theſe Troubleſome Tragedies. The French Colonies to the Northward were the Tree in which thoſe Rooks had their Neſts; and the French having in Perſon firſt fallen upon the Engliſh of New-England, it was thought that the New-Englanders might very juſtly take this Occaſion to reduce thoſe French Colonies under the Engliſh Government, and ſo at once take away from all the Rooks for ever all that gave 'em any Advantage to Infeſt us. Accordingly, a Naval Force, with about Seven Hundred Men, under the Conduct of Sir William Phips, was diſpatched away to L'accady and Nova Scotia. This Fleet ſetting Sail from New-England, April 28. 1690. in a Fortnight arrived at Port-Royal, and Sir William having the Fort Surrendred unto him, took Poſſeſſion of that Province for the Crown of England. But this was only a ſtep towards a far greater Action! There was no Speech about the Methods of Safety made, which did not conclude with a Delenda eſt Carthago. It was become the Concurring Reſolution of all New-England, with New-York, that a Vigorous Attack ſhould be made upon Canada at once, both by Sea and Land. A Fleet of Thirty-two Sail, under the Command of Sir William Phips, was Equipp'd at Boſton, and began their Voyage, Aug. 9. and the whole Matter was put into Form, with ſo much Contrivance, and Caution, and Courage, that nothing but an Evident Hand of Heaven was likely to have given ſuch a Defeat unto it, as has been indeed generally and remarkably given unto all the Colonies of America, when they have Invaded one another. If this Expedition did miſcarry, and if Canada proved unto New-England what it prov'd unto the Spaniards, when at their Deſerting it they call'd it, E Capo de Nada; or, The Cape of nothing, (whence the Name Canada) there is no New-Englander but what will maintain, that it was with a leſs Diſgraceful Miſcarriage, than what baffled every one of thoſe that were made in this War againſt the French Iſlands, by more powerful Fleets of thoſe who were forward enough to reproach New-England. I am ſure he that reads the Account of what was done at Martineco, in the Relation of the Voyage of M. de Gennes, lately publiſhed, muſt be very eaſie in his Reflections upon what was done at Canada. And I will add, that if the New-England-Men return'd re infecta from Canada, yet they did not leave Two Hundred Men behind them to the Mercy of the French, as they who moſt reproached New-England ſoon after did at Guadalupa.

The fuller Narrative of theſe memorable things the Reader may find Written in The Life of Sir William Phips, lately publiſhed, of which I muſt here give this Atteſtation, That as my Acquaintance with the Author gives me Aſſurance of his being as willing to Retract a Miſtake, as unwilling to Commit one, and of his Care in whatever he Writes, to be able to make the Profeſſion of Oecolampadius, Nolui aliquid Scribere, quod improbaturum putem Chriſtum: So I have compared this Narrative with the Journals of the Expedition; and I find the moſt Conteſted Paſſages of the Story, (nor did I ever hear of any more than one or two little Circumſtantial Paſſages Conteſted, as carrying a ſound a little too Rhetorical; but I ſay, I find them) to be the very Expreſs Words thereof contained in thoſe Journals; and more than ſo, that very Credible Perſons concerned therein have readily offered their Depoſitions upon Oath to the Truth of what is Written. So I take my leave of that Hiſtory, and of Sir William Phips, the Memorable Subject of that Hiſtory, whom I leave under this

EPITAPH.

[A Digreſſion.]

Reader, ſince we can give no better an Account of the laſt Engliſh Expedition to Canada, why may we not for a Minute or two refreſh our ſelves with a Story of an Old one?

In the very Year when the Maſſachuſet-Colony began, the Engliſh Attempted the Conqueſt of Canada; and though the Firſt Attempt Miſcarried, the Second Proſpered. The Story of it makes a Chapter in Father Hennepin's Account of the vaſt Country lately diſcovered betwixt Canada and Mexico; and this is the Sum of it.

While a Colony was forming it ſelf at Canada, an Engliſh Fleet was Equipp'd in the Year 1628. under the Command of Admiral Kirk, with a Deſign to take Poſſeſſion of that Country. In their Voyage having taken a French Ship at the Iſle Percee, they Sailed up the River as far as Tadouſac, where they found a Bark, in which they ſet aſhore ſome Soldiers to ſeize on Cape Tourment. And here a Couple of Salvages diſcovering them, ran away to adviſe the People of Quebeck that the Engliſh were approaching. When the Fleet arrived, the Admiral Summoned the Town to Surrender, by a Letter to Monſieur Champelin the Governour: But the Governour, notwithſtanding his being ſo ſurprized with the Invaſion, made ſuch a reſolute Anſwer, that the Engliſh (though as the Hiſtorian ſays, They are a People that will ſooner die than quit what they once undertake) did conclude the Fort Quebeck was in a much better Condition for Defence than it really was; and therefore deſiſting from any further Attempt at this time, they returned into England with Reſolution further to purſue their Deſign at a more favourable Opportunity.

Accordingly on July 19. 1629. in the Morning, the Engliſh Fleet appear'd again over-againſt the Great Bay of Quebeck, at the Point of the Iſle of Orleans; which Fleet conſiſted of Three Men of War and Six other Veſſels. Admiral Kirk ſending a Summons form'd in very Civil Expreſſions for the Surrender of the Place, the miſerable State of the Country, which had been by the Engliſh Interceptions hindred of Supplies from France for Two Years together, oblig'd the Sieur Champelin to make a ſofter Anſwer than he did before. He ſent Father Joſeph Le Caron aboard the Admiral to Treat about the Surrender, and none of his Demands for Fifteen Day, and then for Five Days time to conſider on't, could obtain any longer time than till the Evening to prepare their Articles. Upon the Delivery of this Meſſage a Council was held, wherein ſome urged, that the Engliſh had no more than Two Hundred Men of regular Troops aboard, and ſome others which had not much of the Air of Soldiers; and that the Courage of the Inhabitants was much to be relied upon, and therefore it was beſt for to run the Risk of a Siege: But Monſieur Champelin apprehending the Bravery of the Engliſh, remonſtrated unto the Council, that it was better to make a Surrender on good Terms, than be all cut in pieces by an unreaſonable Endeavour to defend themſelves. Upon this the Articles, regulating all Matters, were got ready, and Father Joſeph had his Commiſſion to carry them aboard the Engliſh Admiral, where the Signing of them was deferred until to Morrow. On July 20. the Articles of Capitulation were Signed on both Sides, and the Engliſh being Landed, were put in Poſſeſſion of Canada by the Governour of it. The French Inhabitants, who were then in the Country, had Twenty Crowns apiece given them, the reſt of their Effects remained unto the Conquerors; but thoſe who were willing to ſtay, were favoured by the Engliſh with great Advantages. The Fleet ſet Sail again for England, Sept. 14. and arrived at Plymouth, Oct. 18. in that Year.

ARTICLE IX.

Caſco Loſt.

WHEN the Indians at laſt perceived that the New-Englanders were upon a likely Deſign to ſwallow up the French Territories, the Proſpect of it began to have the ſame Operation upon them, that the Succeſs of the Deſign would have made Perpetual; that is, to Diſ-ſpirit them for giving the New-Englanders any further Moleſtations Nevertheleſs, Before and Until they were thoroughly adviſed of what was a doing, and likely to be done, they did moleſt the Country with ſome Tragical Efforts of their Fury. Captain James Convers was Marching through the vaſt Wilderneſs to Albany with ſome Forces, which the Maſſachuſets Colony were willing to ſend by Land (beſides what they did ſend by Sea unto Quebeck,) for the aſſiſtance of the Army in the Weſt, that was to go from thence over the Lake, and there fall upon Mount Real; but unhappy Tidings out of the Eaſt required the Diverſion of thoſe Forces thither. About the beginning of May, the French and Indians, between Four and Five Hundred, were ſeen at Caſco, in a great Fleet of Canoos paſſing over the Bay; but not ſeeing or hearing any more of them for Two or Three Weeks together, the Caſconians flattered themſelves with hopes that they were gone another way. But about May 16. thoſe hopes were over; for one Greſſon, a Scotchman, then going out early, fell into the Mouths of theſe hungry Salvages. It proved no kindneſs to Caſco, tho' it proved a great one to himſelf that a Commander ſo qualified as Captain Willard was called off Two or Three Days before. But the Officers of the Place now concluding that the whole Army of the Enemy were watching for an Advantage to ſurprize the Town, reſolved that they would keep a ſtrict Watch for Two or Three Days, to make ſome further Diſcovery before they Salley'd forth. Notwithſtanding this, one Lieutenant Clark, with near Thirty of their Stouteſt Young Men, would venture out as far as the Top of an Hill in the Entrance of the Wood, half a Mile diſtant from the Town. The out-let from the Town to the Wood was thro' a Lane that had a Fence on each ſide, which had a certain Block-Houſe at one end of it; and the Engliſh were ſuſpicious, when they came to enter the Lane, that the Indians were lying behind the Fence, becauſe the Cattel ſtood ſtaring that way, and would not paſs into the Wood as they uſe to do. This Mettleſome Company then ran up to the Fence with an Huzza! thinking thereby to diſcourage the Enemy, if they ſhould be lurking there; but the Enemy were ſo well prepared for them, that they anſwered them with an horrible Vengeance, which kill'd the Lieutenant with Thirteen more upon the Spot, and the reſt eſcaped with much ado unto one of the Garriſons. The Enemy then coming into Town, beſet all the Garriſons at once, except the Fort; which were Manfully Defended ſo long as their Ammunition laſted; but that being ſpent without a Proſpect of a Recruit, they quitted all the Four Garriſons, and by the Advantage of the Night got into the Fort. Upon this the Enemy ſetting the Town on Fire, bent their whole Force againſt the Fort, which had hard by it a deep Gully, that contributed not a little unto the Ruin of it: For the Beſiegers getting into that Gully, lay below the danger of our Guns. Here the Enemy began their Mine, which was carried ſo near the Walls, that the Engliſh, who by Fighting Five Days and Four Nights, had the greateſt part of their Men killed and wounded, (Captain Lawrence mortally among the reſt,) began a Parley with them. Articles were agreed; that they ſhould have liberty to March unto the next Engliſh Town, and have a Guard for their Safety in their March; and the French Commander, lifting up his Hand, Swore by the Everlaſting God for the Performance of theſe Articles. But the Agreement was kept as thoſe that are made with Hugonots uſe to be: The Engliſh being firſt Admoniſhed by the French, that they were all Rebels for Proclaiming the Prince of Orange their King, were Captived, and many of them cruelly Murdered by the Indians: Only ſome of them (and particularly Major Davis) were carried unto Canada, where the Gentry very civilly Treated them. The Garriſons at Papoodack, Spurwink, Black Point, and Blue Point, were ſo diſanimated at theſe Diſaſters, that without Orders they drew off immediately to Saco, Twenty Miles within Caſco, and from Saco in a few Days alſo they drew off to Wells, Twenty Miles within the ſaid Saco; and about half Wells drew off as far as Lieutenant Storer's. But the Arrival of Orders and Soldiers from the Government, ſtopt them from retiring any further; and Hope-Hood, with a Party that ſtaid for further Miſchief, meeting with ſome reſiſtance here, turn'd about, and having firſt had a Skirmiſh with Captain Sherborn, they appear'd the next Lord's-Day at Newichawannick or Berwick, where they Burnt ſome Houſes, and Slew a Man. Three Days after they came upon a ſmall Hamlet on the South ſide of Piſcataqua River, called Fox Point, and beſides the Burning of ſeveral Houſes, they took half a Dozen, and kill'd more than a Dozen of the too Securely Ungarriſoned People; which it was as eaſie to do, as to have ſpoiled an ordinary Hen-Rooſt. But Captain Floyd and Captain Greenleaf coming upon thoſe Indians, made ſome ſlaughter among them, recovered ſome Captives with much Plunder, and beſtow'd a good Wound upon Hope-Hood, who loſt his Gun (which was next his Life) in this Action.

[Villain! Thou ſhalt not eſcape ſo: There muſt quickly be another ſtroke upon thee!]

All that ſhall further belong to this Paragraph of our Story, is, that when the Indians were got into the Woods, they made one Goody Stockford their Meſſenger to her Neighbours, whoſe Charity ſhe ſo well Sollicited, that ſhe got a Shalop full of it unto Caſco, where the Indians permitted us to Redeem ſeveral of the Priſoners.

ARTICLE X.

Harm Watch'd and Catch'd by the Indians, and ſeveral rare Inſtances of Mortal Wounds upon the Engliſh, not proving Mortal.

THAT memorable Tygre, Hope-Hood, (called alſo Wohawa,) finding the Coaſt hereabouts too Hot for him, went away with his Crew a great way to the Weſtward, with a Deſign to Bewitch another Crew at Aquadocta into his Aſſiſtance. Here a Party of French Indians, by a ſtrange Miſtake, ſuppoſing Hope-Hood and his Wretches to have been the Indians who had lately done ſome Spoil upon them at Canada, furiouſly fell upon them, and in their Blind Fury ſlew him and a conſiderable part of his Company. So we have now done with him: In the mean time, ſome other Indians came upon an helpleſs Place, called Spruce Creek, and kill'd an Old Man, and carried a Woman into Captivity; but tho' Captain Convers purſued 'em Three Days, they were too nimble for him. On July 4. Eight or Nine Perſons working in a Field at a Place call'd Lampereel River, the Scythe of Death unhappily Mow'd them down in that Field of Blood: The Indians by Surprize kill'd 'em all, and carried a Lad Captive. About this time a Council of War was called at Portſmouth, by which 'twas thought adviſeable to ſend out Captain Wiſwel, with a conſiderable Scout, for to Scour the Woods as far as Caſco; and it being reſolved, that one of the other Captains, with about Fourſcore Stout Men, ſhould accompany Captain Wiſwel in this Action; they All with ſuch a generous Emulation offered it, that it was neceſſary to determine it by a Lot, which fell upon Captain Floyd. On July 4. aſſiſted with Lieutenant Andrews, and a Detachment of of Twenty-two Men from Wells, they took their March from Quochecho into the Woods. But the Day following the Enemy ſet upon Captain Hilton's Garriſon in Exeter, which Lieutenant Bancroft then Poſted at Exeter, with the loſs of a few of his Men relieved. At this time there happened a Remarkable thing. I know not whether the Story told by Plato be true, that one Herus Armenius (whom Clemens will have to be Zoroaſter) being Slain in War, lay Ten Days among the Dead, and then being brought away, and on the Twelfth Day laid on a Funeral Pile, he came to Life again. But it is true, that one Simon Stone being here Wounded with Shot in Nine ſeveral places, lay for Dead, (as it was time!) among the Dead. The Indians coming to Strip him, attempted with Two ſeveral Blows of an Hatchet at his Neck to cut off his Head, which Blows added, you may be ſure, more Enormous Wounds unto thoſe Port-holes of Death, at which the Life of the poor Man was already running out as faſt as it could. Being charged hard by Lieutenant Bancroft, they left the Man without Scalping him; and the Engliſh now coming to Bury the Dead, one of the Soldiers perceived this poor Man to fetch a Gaſp; whereupon an Iriſh Fellow then preſent, adviſed 'em to give him another Dab with an Hatchet, and ſo Bury him with the reſt. The Engliſh deteſting this Barbarous Advice, lifted up the Wounded Man, and poured a little Fair Water into his Mouth, at which he Coughed; then they poured a little Strong Water after it, at which he opened his Eyes. The Iriſh Fellow was ordered now to hale a Canoo aſhore to carry the Wounded Men up the River unto a Chirurgeon; and as Teague was fooliſhly pulling the Canoo aſhore with the Cock of his Gun, while he held the Muzzle in his Hand, his Gun went off and broke his Arm, whereof he remains a Cripple to this Day: But Simon Stone was thoroughly Cured, and is at this Day a very Luſty Man; and as he was Born with Two Thumbs on one Hand, his Neighbours have thought him to have at leaſt as many Hearts as Thumbs!

Reader, Let us leave it now unto the Sons of Æſculapius to diſpute out the Problem, What Wounds are to be judged Mortal? The Sovereign Arbiter of Life and Death ſeems to have determined it, That no Wounds are Mortal, but ſuch as he ſhall in his Holy Providence actually make ſo. On the one ſide let it be remembred, That a Scratch of a Comb has proved Mortal; that the Incomparable Anatomiſt Spigelius, at the Wedding of his Daughter, gathering up the Reliques of a broken Glaſs, a Fragment of it ſcratched one of his Fingers; and all his Exquiſite Skill in Anatomy could not prevent its producing an Empyema that killed him: That Colonel Roſſiter, cracking a Plumbſtone with his Teeth, broke his Tooth, and loſt his Life: That the Lord Fairfax cutting a Corn in his Foot, cut aſunder the Thread of his Life: That Mr. Fowler, a Vintner, playing with his Child, received a little Scratch of a Pin, which turn'd unto a Gangrene that coſt him his Life. And, Reader, let the Remembrance of ſuch things cauſe thee to Live, preparing for Death continually. But then on the other ſide, that nothing may be deſpaired of, remember Simon Stone. And, beſides him, I call to Remembrance, that the Indians making an Aſſault upon Deerfield in this Preſent War, they ſtruck an Hatchet ſome Inches into the Skull of a Boy there, even ſo deep, that the Boy felt the force of a Wrench uſed by 'em to get it out. There he lay a long while Weltring in his Blood; they found him, they Dreſs'd him, conſiderable Quantities of his Brain came out from time to time when they opened the Wound; yet the Lad recovered, and is now a Living Monument of the Power and Goodneſs of God. And in our Former War there was one Jabez Muſgrove, who tho' he were Shot by the Indians with a Bullet that went in at his Ear, and went out at his Eye on the other ſide of his Head; and a Brace of Bullets that went into his Right Side, a little above his Hip, and paſſing thro' his Body within the Back-bone, went out at his Left Side; yet he recovered and lived many Years after it.

Certainly this Fellow was worthy to have been at leaſt a Lackey to the Hungarian Nobleman, whoſe Pourtraiture Dr. Patin ſaw in a Gallery at Inſpruck, repreſenting a Wound made in his Eye with a Lance, which penetrated into the Subſtance of the Brain, even to the hinder part of the Head, and yet proved not a Mortal Wound.

ARTICLE XI.

A Worthy Captain dying in the Bed of Honour.

ON July 6. Lord's-Day, Captain Floyd and Captain Wiſwel ſent out their Scouts before their Breakfaſt, who immediately returned with Tidings of Breakfaſt enough provided for thoſe who had their Stomach ſharp ſet for Fighting: Tidings of a conſiderable Track of the Enemy going to the Weſtward. Our Forces vigorouſly followed the Track, till they came up with the Enemy at a Place call'd Wheelright's Pond, where they engaged 'em in a Bloody Action for ſeveral Hours. The manner of the Fight here was as it is at all times with Indians; namely, what your Artiſts at Fighting do call, A la disbandad: And here the Worthy Captain Wiſwel, a Man worthy to have been Shot (if he muſt have been Shot.) with no Gun interior to that at Florence, the Barrel whereof is all pure Gold, behaving himſelf with much Bravery, ſold his Life as dear as he could; and his Lieutenant Flag, and Sergeant Walker, who were Valiant in their Lives, in their Death were not divided. Fifteen of ours were Slain, and more Wounded; but how many of the Enemy 'twas not exactly known, becauſe of a ſingular Care uſed by them in all their Battels to carry off their Dead, tho' they were forced now to leave a good Number of them on the Spot. Captain Floyd maintained the Fight after the Death of Captain Wiſwel ſeveral Hours, until ſo many of his Tired and Wounded Men drew off, that it was time for him to draw off alſo; for which he was blamed perhaps, by ſome that would not have continued it ſo long as he. Hereupon Captain Convers repaired with about a Score Hands to look after the Wounded Men, and finding Seven yet Alive, he brought 'em to the Hoſpital by Sun-riſe the next Morning. He then returned with more Hands to Bury the Dead, which was done immediately; and Plunder left by the Enemy at their going off was then alſo taken by them. But the ſame Week theſe Rovers made their Deſcent as far as Ameſbury, where Captain Foot being Enſnared by them, they Tortured him to Death; which Diſaſter of the Captain was an Alarum to the Town, and an Effectual Word of Command, cauſing 'em to fly out of their Beds into their Garriſons; otherwiſe they had all undoubtedly before next Morning ſlept their laſt; their Beds would have been their Graves. However, the Enemy Kill'd Three Perſons, Burnt Three Houſes, Butchered many Cattel; and ſo that Scene of the Tragedy being over, away they went.

In fine, from the Firſt Miſchief done at Lampereel River, to the Laſt at Ameſbury, all belong'd unto one Indian Expedition, in which, though no Engliſh Places were taken, yet Forty Engliſh People were cut off.

ARTICLE XII.

An Indian Fort or Two taken, and ſome other Actions.

READER, I remember the Prolixity of Guicciardine the Hiſtorian gave ſuch Offence, that Boccalini brings in an Offender at Verboſity, ordered for his Puniſhment by the Judges at Parnaſſus, to read that punctual Hiſtorian; but the poor Fellow begg'd rather to be Fley'd Alive, than to be Tortured with reading an Hiſtorian, who in relating the War between the Florentines and Piſans, made longer Narrations about the Taking of a Pigeon-Houſe, than there needed of the moſt Fortified Caſtle in the World. For this Cauſe let me be excuſed, Reader, if I make ſhort Work in our Story, and leave the Honeſt Actors themſelves to run over Circumſtances more at large, with their Friends by the Fireſide.

The Enemy appearing a little Numerous and Vexatious, the Government ſent more Forces to break up the Enemies Quarters; and Auxiliaries both of Engliſh and Indians, under the Command of Major Church, aſſiſted the Enterprize. About Three Hundred Men were diſpatched away upon this Deſign in the beginning of September, who Landed by Night in Caſco Bay, at a Place called Macquoit, and by Night Marched up to Pechypſcot-Fort; where, from the Information of ſome eſcaped Captives, they had an Expectation to meet with the Enemy, but found that the Wretches were gone farther afield. They then Marched away for Amonoſcoggin Fort, which was about Forty Miles up the River; and Wading through many Difficulties, whereof one was a Branch of the River it ſelf; they met with Four or Five Salvages going to their Fort with Two Engliſh Priſoners. They ſav'd the Priſoners, but could not catch the Salvages; however, on the Lord's Day they got up to the Fort undiſcovered, where, to their ſorrowful Diſappointment, they found no more than One and Twenty of the Enemy, whereof they took and ſlew Twenty. They found ſome conſiderable ſtore of Plunder, and reſcued Five Engliſh Captives, and laid the Fort in Aſhes; but one Diſaſter they much complained of, that the Captain of the Fort, whoſe Name was Agamcus, alias, Great Tom, ſlipt away from the Hands of his too Careleſs Keepers. But if this piece of Careleſneſs did any Harm, there was another which did ſome Good: For Great Tom having terribly ſcared a Part of his Countrymen with the Tidings of what had happened; and an Engliſh Lad in their Hands alſo telling ſome Truth unto them; they betook themſelves to ſuch a Flight in their Fright, as gave one Mr. Anthony Bracket, then a Priſoner with 'em, an Opportunity to fly Fourſcore Miles another way. Our Forces returning to Macquoit, one of our Veſſels was there Careleſly ran aground, and compelled thereby to ſtay for the next Tide; and Mr. Bracket had been miſerably aground, if it had not ſo fell out; for he thereby got thither before ſhe was afloat, otherwiſe he might have periſhed, who was afterwards much Improved in Service againſt the Murderers of his Father. Arriving at Winter Harbour, a Party of Men were ſent up the River, who coming upon a parcel of the Mankeen Wolves then hunted for, killed ſome of them and ſeized moſt of their Arms, and Stores, and Recovered from them an Engliſhman, who told them that the Enemy were intending to Rendezvouz on Pechypſcot Plain, in Order to an Attempt upon the Town of Wells. Upon this they Reimbark'd for Macquoit, and repaired as faſt as they could unto Pechypſcot Plain, and being divided into Three Parties, they there waited for the Approach of the Enemy. But being tired with one of the Three Italian Miſeries, Waiting for thoſe who did not come, they only poſſeſſed themſelves of more Plunder there hid by the Enemy, and returned unto Caſco-Harbour. The Enemy it ſeems dogg'd their Motions; and in the Night they made a Miſchievous Aſſault upon ſuch of the Engliſh Army as were too remiſs in providing for their own Safety in their going aſhore; killing Five of our Plymouth Friends, who had Lodg'd themſelves in an Houſe, without Commanders or Centinels. The Engliſh, as ſoon as the Light of the Day (which was the Lord's-Day, Sept. 21.) gave 'em leave, quickly ran upon the Enemy, and eaſed the World of ſome of them, and made the reſt Scamper from that part of the World, and got many of their Canoos, and not a little of their Ammunition, and their beſt Furniture for the Winter. The Army was after this Diſmiſs'd, only an Hundred Men were left with Captain Convers and Lieutenant Plaiſted, who ſpent their time as profitably as they could, in Scouting about the Frontiers, to prevent Surprizals from on Enemy which rarely did Annoy but when they could Surprize.

ARTICLE XIII.

A Flag of Truce.

NEw-England was now quite out of Breath! A Tedious, Lingring, Expenſive Defence, againſt an Ever-approaching and Unapproachable Adverſary, had made it ſo. But nothing had made it more ſo, than the Expedition to Canada, which had Exhauſted its beſt Spirits, and ſeem'd its Ultimus Conatus. While the Country was now in too great Amazements to proceed any farther in the War, the Indians themſelves Entreat them to proceed no farther. The Indians came in to Wells with a Flag of Truce, and there Enſued ſome Overtures with the Engliſh Commiſſioners, Major Hutchinſon and Captain Townſend, ſent from Boſton to join with ſome others at Wells. At length a meeting was appointed and obtained at Sagadehock, Nov. 23. where the Redemption of Ten Engliſh Captives was accompliſhed; one of whom was Mrs. Hull, whom the Indians were very loth to part withal, becauſe being able to Write well, they made her ſerve them in the Quality of a Secretary: Another was named Nathanael White, whom the Barbarous Canibals had already tied unto a Stake, and cut off one of his Ears, and made him Eat it Raw, and intended for to have Roaſted the reſt of him alive: The poor Man being aſtoniſhed at his own Deliverance! At laſt they Signed Articles, dated Nov. 29. 1691. wherein they engaged, that no Indians in thoſe Parts of the World ſhould do any Injury to the Perſons or Eſtates of the Engliſh in any of the Engliſh Colonies, until the Firſt of May next enſuing: And that on the ſaid Firſt of May they would bring into Storer's Garriſon at Wells all the Engliſh Captives in their Hands, and there Make, and Sign, and Seal Articles of Peace with the Engliſh; and in the mean time give ſeaſonable Advice of any Plots which they might know the French to have againſt them. To this Inſtrument were ſet the Paws of Edgeremet, and Five more of their Sagamores and Noblemen.

But as it was not upon the Firm Land, but in their Canoos upon the Water, that they Signed and Sealed this Inſtrument; ſo, Reader, we will be Jealous that it will prove but a Fluctuating and Unſtable ſort of a Buſineſs; and that the Indians will Do a Lie as they uſe to do. However, we will diſmiſs all our Soldiers to their ſeveral Homes, leaving only Captain Convers to keep Wells in ſome Order, until the Firſt of May do ſhow whether any more than a meer Flag of Truce be yet ſhown unto us.

ARTICLE XIV.

Remarkable Encounters.

AT the Day appointed there came to the place Mr. Danforth, Mr. Moodey, Mr. Vaughan, Mr. Brattle, and ſeveral other Gentlemen, guarded with a Troop, to ſee how the Frenchified Indians would keep their Faith with the Hereticks of New-England. The Indians being poor Muſicians for keeping of time, came not according to their Articles, and when Captain Convers had the Courage to go fetch in ſome of them, they would have made a Lying Excuſe, That they did not know the time. They brought in Two Captives, and promiſed, that in Twenty Days more they would bring into Captain Convers all the reſt; but finding that in Two and Twenty Days they came not, with much Concern upon his Mind he got himſelf ſupplied as faſt as he could with Five and Thirty Men from the County of Eſſex. His Men were not come half an Hour to Storer's Houſe, on June 9. 1691. nor had they got their Indian Weed fairly lighted into their Mouths, before fierce Moxus, with Two Hundred Indians, made an Attacque upon the Garriſon. This Recruit of Men, thus at the very Nick of time, ſaved the Place ; for Moxus meeting with a brave Repulſe, drew off ; and gave Modockawando cauſe to ſay, (as a Captive afterwards related it) My Brother Moxus has miſs'd it now, but I will go my ſelf the next Year, and have the Dog Convers out of his Hole. About this time the Enemy ſlew Two Men at Berwick, Two more at Exeter, and the biggeſt Part of Nine, loading a Veſſel at Cape Nidduck. But about the latter end of July we ſent out a ſmall Army under the Command of Captain March, Captain King, Captain Sherburn, and Captain Walten (Convers lying Sick all Summer had this to make him yet more Sick that he could have no part in theſe Actions) who landing at Macquoit, marched up to Pechypſcot, but not finding any ſigns of the Enemy, marched down again. While the Commanders were waiting Aſhore till the Soldiers were got aboard, ſuch great Numbers of Indians poured in upon them, that tho' the Commanders wanted not for Courage or Conduct, yet they found themſelves obliged, with much ado, (and not without the Death of worthy Captain Sherburn) to retire into the Veſſels which then lay aground. Here they kept pelting at one another all Night; but unto little other purpoſe than this, which was indeed Remarkable, That the Enemy was at this time going to take the Iſle of Shoales, and no doubt had they gone they would have taken it, but having exhauſted all their Ammunition on this Occaſion, they deſiſted from what they deſigned. For the reſt of the Year, the Compaſſion of Heaven towards diſtreſſed New-England kept the Indians under a ſtrange Inactivity; only on Sept. 28. Seven Perſons were Murthered and Captived at Berwick; and the Day following Thrice Seven of Sandy-Beach: On Octob. 23. one Goodridge and his Wife were Murdered at Rowly, and his Children Captived. And the Day following the like Fate befel a Family at Haverhil. And this Year, a very good ſtrong Fort at Cape Nidduck, owned by a Widow, was unhappily Deſerted; after which the Enemy came and burnt the Houſes in it.

ARTICLE XV.

The Martyrdom of Mr. Shubael Dummer, with the Fate of York.

Quoties viri boni violenta morte perierunt toties apud Pios Crevit Fides Reſurrectionis.
Grot. in Zech. 13. 7.

BUT the Winter muſt not paſs over without a Storm of Blood! The Popiſh Indians, after long Silence and Repoſe in their Inacceſſible Kennels, which made our Frontier Towns a little Remit their tired Vigilance, did, Jan. 25. 1691. ſet upon the Town of York, where the Inhabitants were in their unguarded Houſes here and there ſcattered, Quiet and Secure. Upon the Firing of a Gun by the Indians, which was their Signal, the Inhabitants looked out but unto their Amazement, found their Houſes to be Inveſted with horrid Salvages, who immediately kill'd many of thoſe unprovided Inhabitants, and more they took Priſoners. This Body of Indians conſiſting of divers Hundreds, then ſent in their Summons to ſome of the Garriſon'd Houſes; and thoſe Garriſons, whereof ſome had no more than Two or Three Men in them, yet being ſo well Mann'd, as to Reply, That they would ſpend their Blood unto the laſt Drop, e'er they would ſurrender; theſe cowardly Miſcreants had not Mettle enough to meddle with 'em. So they retired into their howling Thickets, having firſt Murdered about Fifty, and Captived near an Hundred of that unhappy People. In this Calamity great was the Share that fell to the Family of Mr. SHUBAEL DUMMER, the Paſtor of the little Flock thus prey'd upon; thoſe Blood-Hounds, being ſet on by ſome Romiſh Miſſionaries, had long been wiſhing, that they might Embrue their Hands in the Blood of ſome New-Engliſh MINISTER; and in this Action they had their Diabolical Satisfaction. Our Dummer, the Miniſter of York, was One of whom for his Exemplary Holineſs, Humbleneſs, Modeſty, Induſtry and Fidelity, The World was not Worthy. He was a Gentleman Well-Deſcended, Well-Tempered, Well-Educated; and now ſhort of Sixty Years of Age. He might have taken for his Coat of Arms the ſame that the Holy Martyr Hooper Prophetically did, A Lamb in a Flaming Buſh, with Rays from Heaven ſhining on it. He had been Sollicited with many Temptations to leave his Place, when the Clouds grew Thick and Black in the Indian Hoſtilities, and were like to break upon it, but he choſe rather with a paternal Affection to ſtay amongſt thoſe who had been ſo many of them Converted and Edified by his Miniſtry; and he ſpent very much of his own Patrimony to ſubſiſt among them, when their Diſtreſſes made them unable to ſupport him, as otherwiſe they would have done. In a word, he was one that might by way of Eminency be called, A Good Man. This Good Man was juſt going to take Horſe at his own Door, upon a Journey in the Service of God, when the Tygres that were making their Depredations upon the Sheep of York ſeiz'd upon this their Shepherd; and they ſhot him ſo, that they left him Dead among the Tribe of Abel on the Ground. Thus was he as Ambroſe in his Elegant Oration, De obitu Fratris, Expreſſes it, Non nobis ereptus, ſed periculis. His Wife they carried into Captivity, where through Sorrows and Hardſhips among thoſe Dragons of the Deſart, ſhe alſo quickly Died; and his Church, as many of them as were in that Captivity, endured this, among other Anguiſhes, that on the next Lord's Day, one of the Tawnies choſe to Exhibit himſelf unto them, [A Devil as an Angel of Light!] in the Cloaths whereof they had ſtript the Dead Body of this their Father. Many were the Tears that were dropt throughout New-England on this Occaſion; and theſe among the reſt: For tho' we do not, as Tradition tells us, the Antediluvians did uſe to do by the Blood of Abel, yet we cannot but mournfully Sing of the Blood of ſuch an Abel.

ARTICLE XVI.

The Memorable Action at Wells.

A Veſſel, the Name whereof I know not, [Reader, let it be the Charity] being immediately diſpatched unto Sagadehock, by the Charitable Compaſſions of the more Southward Neighbours, with Effects to accompliſh it, happily Effected the Redemption of many that were taken Captives at York. But the reſt of the People in that broken Town talking of Drawing off the Government, ſent Captain Convers and Captain Greenleaf, with ſuch Encouragements unto them to keep their Station, as prevailed with 'em ſtill to Stand their Ground. In February Major Hutchinſon was made Commander in Chief, and Forces under the Command of Captain Convers, Captain Floyd, and Captain Thaxter, were by him ſo prudently Poſted on the Frontiers, that by maintaining a continual Communication, it became a Difficult thing for the Enemy to make any more Approaches. Lieutenant Wilſon particularly hearing of a Man ſhot at in Quochecho-Woods, went out with a Scout of about Eighteen Men, who came upon the Indians that had ſhot at the Man, and killed and wounded all but one of the whole Company. But now, Reader, the longeſt Day in the Year is to come on, and if I miſtake not the braveſt Act in the War fell out upon it. Modockawando is now come, according to his Promiſe a Twelve-month ago. Captain Convers was lodg'd in Storer's Garriſon at Wells with but Fifteen Men; and there came into Wells Two Sloops, with a Shallop, which had aboard ſupplies of Ammunition for the Soldiers, and Contribution for the Needy. The Cattel this Day came Frighted, and Bleeding out of the Woods, which was a more certain Omen of Indians a coming, than all the Prodigies that Livy Reports of the ſacrificed Oxen. Convers immediately iſſued out his Commands unto all Quarters, but eſpecially to the Sloops juſt then arrived. The Sloops were Commanded by Samuel Storer, and James Gouge, and Gouge's being Two Miles up the River, he wiſely brought her down undiſcovered unto Storer's, by the advantage of a Miſt then prevailing. A careful Night they had on't! The next Morning before Day-Light, one John Diamond, a Stranger that came in the Shallop on a Viſit, came to Captain Convers Garriſon, where the Watch invited him in; but he choſe rather to go aboard the Sloops, which were little more than a Gun-ſhot off; and, alas, the Enemy iſſuing out from their Lurking-places, immediately ſeiz'd him, and haled him away by the Hair of the Head, (in ſpight of all Attempts uſed by the Garriſon to Recover him) for an horrible Story to be told by and by concerning him. The General of the Enemies Army was Monſieur Barniff; and one Monſieur Labrocree was a principal Commander, (the Enemy ſaid, he was Lieutenant General:) there were alſo divers other Frenchmen of Quality, accompanied with Modockawando, and Moxus, and Egeremet, and Warumbo, and ſeveral more Indian Sagamores; the Army made up in all about Five Hundred Men, or Fierce things in the ſhape of Men, all to Encounter Fifteen Men in one little Garriſon, and about Fifteen more Men, [worthily called Such!] in a Couple of open Sloops. Diamond having informed 'em how 'twas in all Points, (only that for Fifteen, by a miſtake he ſaid Thirty,) they fell to Dividing the Perſons and Plunder, and agreeing that ſuch an Engliſh Captain ſhould be Slave to ſuch a one, and ſuch a Gentleman in the Town ſhould ſerve ſuch a one, and his Wife be a Maid of Honour to ſuch or ſuch a Squaw propoſed, and Mr. Wheelright (inſtead of being a Worthy Counſellor of the Province, which he now is!) was to be the Servant of ſuch a Netop; and the Sloops, with their Stores, to be ſo and ſo parted among them. There wanted but One Thing to Conſummate the whole Matter, even the Chief Thing of all, which I ſuppoſe they had not thought of, that was, for Heaven to deliver all this Prize into their Hands: But, Aliter Statutum eſt in Cœlo! A Man habited like a Gentleman made a Speech to them in Engliſh, Exhorting 'em to Courage, and Aſſuring 'em, that if they would Courageouſly fall upon the Engliſh, all was their own. The Speech being Ended, they fell to the Work, and with on horrid Shout and Shot, made their Aſſault upon the Feeble Garriſon: But the Engliſh anſwered with a briſk Volley, and ſent ſuch a Leaden Shower among them, that they retired from the Garriſon to ſpend the Storm of their Fury upon the Sloops. You muſt know, that Wells Harbour is rather a Creek than a River, for 'tis very Narrow, and at low Water in many Places Dry; nevertheleſs, where the Veſſels ride it is Deep enough, and ſo far off the Bank, that there is from thence no leaping Aboard. But our Sloops were ſorely incommoded by a Turn of the Creek, where the Enemy could lye out of danger ſo near 'em, as to throw Mud Aboard with their Hands. The Enemy was alſo priviledged with a great Heap of Plank lying on the Bank, and with an Hay Stock, which they ſtrengthened with Poſts and Rails; and from all theſe Places, they poured in their Vengeance upon the poor Sloops, while they ſo placed ſmaller Parties of their Salvages, as to make it impoſſible for any of the Garriſons to afford 'em any relief. Lying thus within a Dozen Yards of the Sloops, they did with their Fire Arrows, divers times deſperately ſet the Sloops on Fire: But the brave Defendants, with a Swab at the end of a Rope tied unto a Pole, and ſo dipt into the Water, happily put the Fire out. In brief, the Sloops gave the Enemy ſo brave a Repulſe, that at Night they Retreated: When they renewed their Aſſault, finding that their Fortitude would not aſſure the Succeſs of the Aſſault unto them, they had recourſe unto their Policy. Firſt, an Indian comes on with a Slab for a Shield before him; when a Shot from one of the Sloops pierced the Slab, which fell down inſtead of a Tombſtone with the dead Indian under it: On which, as little a Fellow as he was, I know not whether ſome will not reckon it proper to inſcribe the Epitaph which the Italians uſe to beſtow upon their Dead Popes; When the Dog is Dead, all his Malice is Dead with him. Their next Stratagem was this: They brought out of the Woods a kind of a Cart, which they Trimm'd and Rigg'd and Fitted up into a thing that might be called, A Chariot: Whereon they built a Platform, ſhot-proof in the Front, and placed many Men upon the Platform. Such an Engine they underſtood how to Shape, without having Read (I ſuppoſe) the Deſcription of the Pluteus in Vegetius! This Chariot they puſh'd on towards the Sloops, till they were got, it may be, within Fifteen Yards of them; when lo one of the Wheels, to their Admiration, ſunk into the Ground. A Frenchman ſtepping to heave the Wheel with an helpful Shoulder, Storer ſhot him down; another ſtepping to the Wheel, Storer with a well-placed Shot, ſent him after his Mate: So the Reſt thought it was beſt let it ſtand as it was. The Enemy kept Gauling the loop from their ſeveral Batteries, and calling 'em to Surrender, with many fine Promiſes to make them happy, which ours anſwered with a juſt Laughter, that had now and then a mortiferous Bullet at the End of it. The Tide Riſing, the Chariot overſet, ſo that the Men behind it lay open to the Sloops, which immediately Diſpenced an horrible Slaughter among them; and they that could get away, got as faſt, and as far off as they could. In the Night the Enemy had much Diſcourſe with the Sloops; they enquired, Who were their Commanders? And the Engliſh gave an Anſwer, which in ſome other Caſes and Places would have been too true, That they had a great many Commanders: But the Indians replied, You Lie, you have none but Convers, and we will have him too before Morning! They alſo knowing that the Magazine was in the Garriſon, lay under an Hill-ſide, Pelting at that by times; but Captain Convers once in the Night, ſent out Three or Four of his Men into a Field of Wheat for a Shot, if they could get one. There ſeeing a Black Heap lying together, Ours all at once let Fly upon them a Shot, that ſlew ſeveral of them that were thus Caught in the Corn, and made the reſt glad that they found themſelves able to run for it. Captain Convers was this while in much Diſtreſs about a Scout of Six Men which he had ſent forth to Newichawannick the Morning before the Arrival of the Enemy, ordering them to Return the Day following. The Scout return'd into the very Mouth of the Enemy that lay before the Garriſon; but the Corporal having his Wits about him, call'd out aloud, (as if he had ſeen Captain Convers making a Salley forth upon 'em) Captain Wheel about your Men round the Hill, and we ſhall Catch 'em; there are but a few Rogues of 'em! Upon which the Indians imagining that Captain Convers had been at their Heels, betook themſelves to their Heels; and our Folks got ſafe into another Garriſon. On the Lord's-Day Morning there was for a while a deep Silence among the Aſſailments; but at length getting into a Body, they marched with great Formality towards the Garriſon, where the Captain ordered his handful of Men to lye Snug, and not to make a Shot, until every Shot might be likely to do ſome Execution. While they thus beheld a formidable Crew of Dragons, coming with open Mouth upon them to Swallow them up at a Mouthful, one of the Soldiers began to ſpeak of Surrendring; upon which the Captain Vehemently proteſted, That he would lay the Man Dead who ſhould ſo much as mutter that baſe Word any more! And ſo they heard no more on it: But the Valiant Storer was put upon the like Proteſtation, to keep 'em in good Fighting Trim aboard the Sloops alſo. The Enemy now approaching very near, gave Three Shouts that made the Earth ring again; and Crying out in Engliſh, Fire, and fall on brave Boys! The whole Body drawn into Three Ranks, Fired at once. Captain Convers immediately ran into the ſeveral Flankers, and made their beſt Guns Fire at ſuch a rate, that ſeveral of the Enemy fell, and the reſt of 'em diſappeared almoſt as nimbly as if there had been ſo many Spectres: Particularly a Parcel of them got into a ſmall deſerted Houſe; which having but a Board-Wall to it, the Captain ſent in after them thoſe Bullets of Twelve to the Pound, that made the Houſe too hot for them that could get out of it. The Women in the Garriſon on this occaſion took up the Amazonian Stroke, and not only brought Ammunition to the Men, but alſo with a Manly Reſolution fired ſeveral times upon the Enemy. The Enemy finding that things would not yet go to their Minds at the Garriſon, drew off to try their Skill upon the Sloops, which lay ſtill abreaſt in the Creek, laſh'd faſt one to another. They built a great Fire-Work about Eighteen or Twenty Foot Square, and fill'd it up with combuſtible Matter, which they fired; and then they ſet it in the way for the Tide now to Float it up unto the Sloops, which had now nothing but an horrible Death before them. Nevertheleſs their demands of both the Garriſon and the Sloops to yield themſelves, were anſwered no otherwiſe than with Death upon many of them, ſpit from the Guns of the beſieged. Having tow'd their Fire-Work as far as they durſt, they committed it unto the Tide; but the diſtreſſed Chriſtians that had this deadly Fire ſwiming along upon the Water towards them, committed it unto God: And God looked from Heaven upon them in this prodigious Article of their Diſtreſs. Theſe poor Men cried, and the Lord heard them, and ſaved them out of their Troubles: The Wind, unto their Aſtoniſhment, immediately turn'd about, and with a freſh Gale drove the Machin Aſhore on the other ſide, and ſplit it ſo, that the Water being let in upon it, the Fire went out. So the godly Men that ſaw God from Heaven thus Fighting for them, cried out with an Aſtoniſhing Joy, If it had not been the Lord, who was on our ſide, they had ſwallowed us up quick; bleſſed be the Lord, who hath not given us a prey to their Teeth; our Soul is Eſcaped as a Bird out of the Snare of the Fowlers! The Enemy were now in a pitiful Pickle with Toiling and Moiling in the Mud, and black'ned with it, if Mud could add Blackneſs to ſuch Miſcreants; and their Ammunition was pretty well Exhauſted: So that now they began to draw off in all Parts, and with Rafts get over the River; ſome where of breaking, there did not a few Cool their late Heat by falling into it. But firſt, they made all the ſpoil they could upon the Cattel about the Town; and giving one Shot more at the Sloops, they kill'd the only Man of ours that was kill'd aboard 'em. Then after about half an Hours Conſultation, they ſent a Flag of Truce to the Garriſon, adviſing 'em with much Flattery to Surrender; but the Captain ſent 'em Word, That he wanted for nothing but for Men to come and Fight him. The Indian replied unto Captain Convers, Being you are ſo Stout, why don't you come and Fight in the open Field like a Man, and not Fight in a Garriſon like a Squaw? The Captain rejoined, What a Fool are you? Do you think Thirty Men a match for Five Hundred? No, (ſays the Captain, counting, as well he might, each of his Fifteen Men to be as good as Two!) Come with your Thirty Men upon the Plain, and I will meet you with my Thirty as ſoon as you will. Upon this the Indian anſwered; Nay me own Engliſh Faſhion is all one Fool: you kill me, me kill you! No, better lye ſomewhere and Shoot a Man, and he no ſee! That the beſt Soldier! Then they fell to Coakſing the Captain with as many fine Words as the Fox in the Fable had for the Allurement of his Prey unto him; and urged mightily, that Enſign Hill, who ſtood with the Flag of Truce, might ſtand a little nearer their Army. The Captain for a good Reaſon to be preſently diſcerned, would not allow that: Whereupon they fell to Threatning and Raging, like ſo many defeated Devils, uſing theſe Words, Damn ye, we'll cut you as ſmall as Tobacco before to morrow Morning. The Captain bid 'em to make Haſte, for he wanted Work; ſo the Indian throwing his Flag on the Ground, ran away, and Enſign Hill nimbly Stripping his Flag, ran into the Valley; but the Salvages preſently Fired from an Ambuſhment behind an Hill, near the Place where they had urged for a Parley.

And now for poor John Diamond! The Enemy Retreating (which opportunity the Sloops took to Burn down the Dangerous Hay-Stock) into the Plain, out of Gun-ſhot they fell to Torturing their Captive John Diamond after a manner very Diabolical. They Stripped him, they Scalped him Alive, and after a Caſtration, they finiſhed that Article in the Puniſhment of Traitors upon him; they ſlit him with Knives between his Fingers and his Toes; they made cruel Gaſhes in the moſt fleſhy Parts of his Body, and ſtuck the Gaſhes with Firebrands which were afterwards found ſticking in the Wounds. Thus they Butchered One poor Engliſhman with all the Fury that they would have ſpent upon them all; and performed an Exploit for Five Hundred Furies to brag of at their coming home. Ghaſtly to Expreſs! What was it then to Suffer? They returned then unto the Garriſon, and kept Firing at it now and then till near Ten a Clock at Night; when they all marched off, leaving behind 'em ſome of their Dead; whereof one was Monſieur Labocree, who had about his Neck a Pouch with about a Dozen Reliques ingeniouſly made up, and a Printed Paper of Indulgencies, and ſeveral other Implements; and no doubt, thought himſelf in as good Safety as if he had all the Spells of Lapland about him: But it ſeems none of the Amulets about his Neck would ſave him from a Mortal Shot in the Head. Thus in Forty-eight Hours was finiſhed an Action as Worthy to be Related, as perhaps any that occurrs in our Story. And it was not long before the Valiant Gouge, who bore his part in this Action, did another that was not much inferiour to it, when he ſuddenly recovered from the French a valuable Prey, which they had newly taken upon our Coaſt.

I doubt, Reader, we have made this Article of our Hiſtory a little too long. We will finiſh it when we have Remark'd, that albeit there were too much Feebleneſs diſcovered by my Countrymen in ſome of their Actions during this War at Sea, as well as on Shore, yet ſeveral of their Actions, eſpecially at Sea, deſerve to be Remembred. And I cannot but particularly beſpeak a Remembrance for the Exploit performed by ſome of my Neighbours in a Veſſel going into Barbadoes. They were in ſight of Barbadoes aſſaulted by a French Veſſel, which had a good number of Guns, and between Sixty and Seventy Hands. Our Veſſel had Four Guns, and Eight Fighting Men. [Truly ſuch !] with Two Tawny Servants. The Names of theſe Men were Barret, Sunderland, Knoles, Naſh, Morgan, Foſdyke, and Two more that I now forget. A deſperate Engagement enſued, wherein our Eight Marriners managed the matter with ſuch Bravery, that by the help of Heaven they killed between Thirty and Forty of the French Aſſailants, without loſing one of their own little Number: And they ſank the French Veſſel which lay by their ſide, out of which they took Twenty-ſeven Priſoners, whereof ſome were wounded, and all crying for Quarter. In the Fight the French Pennant, being by the Wind faſtned about the Top-Maſt of the Engliſh Veſſel, it was torn off by the ſinking of the French Veſſel, and left pleaſantly flying there. So they Sail'd into Barbadoes, where the Aſſembly voted them one Publick Acknowledgment of their Courage and Conduct in this brave Action, and our Hiſtory now gives them another.

ARTICLE XVII.

The Fort at Pemmaquid.

HIS Excellency Sir William Phips being arrived now the Governour of New-England, applied himſelf with all poſſible Vigour to carry on the War: And the Advice of a New Slaughter ſome time in July made by the Indians, on certain poor Husbandmen in their Meadows, at the Northſide of Merrimack-River, put an Accent upon the Zeal of the Deſigns, which he was now vigorouſly proſecuting. He raiſed about Four Hundred and Fifty Men, and in purſuance of his Inſtructions from Whitehall, he laid the Foundations of a Fort at Pemmaquid, which was the fineſt thing that had been ſeen in theſe Parts of America. Captain Wing, aſſiſted with Captain Bancroft, went thro' the former Part of the Work; and the latter Part of it was finiſhed by Captain March. His Excellency attended in this Matter, with theſe worthy Captains, did in a few Months diſpatch a Service for the King, with a Prudence, and Induſtry, and Thriftineſs, greater than any Reward they ever had for it. The Fort called, The William-Henry, was built of Stone in a Quadrangular Figure, being about Seven Hundred and Thirty Seven Foot in Compaſs, without the Outer Walls, and an Hundred and Eight Foot Square, within the Inner ones; Twenty-eight Ports it had, and Fourteen (if not Eighteen) Guns mounted, whereof Six were Eighteen-Pounders. The Wall on the South-Line, fronting to the Sea, was Twenty-two Foot High, and more than Six Foot Thick at the Ports, which were Eight Foot from the Ground. The greater Flanker or Round Tower at the Weſtern-End of this Line, was Twenty-nine Foot High. The Wall on the Eaſt Line was Twelve Foot High, on the North it was Ten, on the Weſt it was Eighteen. It was computed that in the whole there were laid above Two Thouſand Cart-Loads of Stone. It ſtood about a Score of Rods from High-Water Mark; and it had generally at leaſt Sixty Men poſted in it for its Defence, which if they were Men, might eaſily have maintained it againſt more than Twice Six Hundred Aſſailants. Yea, we were almoſt ready to flatter our ſelves, that we might have writ on the Gates of this Fort, as the French did over that of Namur, (yet afterwards taken by K. William) Reddi, non Vinci poteſt. Now as the Architect that built the ſtrong Fortreſs at Narne in Poland, had, for his Recompence, his Eyes put out, leſt he ſhould build ſuch another; Sir William Phips was almoſt as hardly Recompenced for the building of this at Pammaquid. Although this Fort thus Erected in the Heart of the Enemies Country, did ſo break the Heart of the Enemy, that indeed they might have call'd it, as the French did theirs, upon the River of the Illinois, the Fort of Crevecœur; and the Tranquillity After Enjoy'd by the Country, (which was very much more than Before) was, under God, much owing thereunto: Yet the Expence of maintaining it, when we were ſo much impoveriſhed otherwiſe, made it continually complained of as one of the Countries Grievances. The Murmurings about this Fort were ſo Epidemical, that if we may ſpeak in the Fooliſh Cant of Aſtrology, and Prognoſticate from the Aſpect of Saturn upon Mars at its Nativity, Fort William-Henry, Thou haſt not long to Live! Before the Year Ninety-ſix Expire, thou ſhalt be demoliſhed. In the mean time let us accompany Major Church going with a Company to Penobſcot, where he took Five Indians; and afterwards to Taconet, where the Indians diſcovering his Approach, ſet their own Fort on Fire themſelves, and flying from it, left only their Corn to be deſtroy'd by him. And ſo we come to the End of 1692. only we are ſtopt a little with a very ſtrange Parentheſis.

ARTICLE XVIII.

A Surpriſing Thing laid before the Reader for him to judge, (if he can) what to make of it.

READER, I muſt now addreſs thee with the Words of a Poet:

> Dicam Inſigne Recens, adhuc
> Indictum ore alio. Horat.

But with Truths more confirmed, than what uſes to come from the Pen of a Poet. The Story of the Prodigious War, made by the Spirits of the Inviſible World upon the People of New-England, in the Year 1692. hath Entertain'd a great Part of the Engliſh World with a juſt Aſtoniſhment: And I have met with ſome ſtrange things, not here to be mentioned, which have made me often think, that this inexplicable War might have ſome of its Original among the Indians, whoſe chief Sagamores are well known unto ſome of our Captives to have been horrid Sorcerers, and helliſh Conjurers, and ſuch as Converſed with Dæmons. The Sum of that Story is Written in The Life of Sir William Phips; with ſuch Irreproachable Truth, as to defie the utmoſt Malice and Cunning of all our Sadduces to confute it in ſo much as one Material Article: And that the Balant and Latrant Noiſes of that ſort of People may be for ever Silenced, the Story will be abundantly Juſtified, when the further Account written of it by Mr. John Hale ſhall be publiſhed: For none can ſuſpect a Gentleman ſo full of Diſſatiſfaction at the proceedings then uſed againſt the ſuppoſed Witchcrafts, as now that Reverend Perſon is, to be a Superſtitious Writer upon that Subject.

Now in the time of that matchleſs War, there fell out a thing at Gloceſter which falls in here moſt properly to be related: A Town ſo Scituated, Surrounded, and Neighboured, in the County of Eſſex, that no Man in his Wits will imagine, that a Dozen Frenchmen and Indians would come and alarm the Inhabitants for Three Weeks together, and Engage 'em in ſeveral Skirmiſhes, while there were Two Regiments Raiſed, and a Detachment of Threeſcore Men ſent unto their Succour, and not One Man hurt in all the Actions, and all End unaccountably. And becauſe the Relation will be Extraordinary, I will not be my ſelf the Author of any one Clauſe in it; but I will Tranſcribe the Words of a Miniſter of the Goſpel, who did me the Favour, with much Critical Caution, to Examine Witneſſes, not long after the thing happened, and then ſent me the following Account.

A faithful Account of many Wonderful and Surpriſing Things which happened in the Town of Gloceſter in the Year 1692.

‘E*Benezer Bapſon*, about Midſummer, in the Year 1692. with the reſt of his Family, almoſt every Night heard a Noiſe as if Perſons were going and running about his Houſe. But one Night being abroad late, at his return Home he ſaw Two Men come out of his Door, and run from the end of the Houſe into the Corn. But thoſe of the Family told him, there had been no Perſon at all there; whereupon he got his Gun, and went out in purſuit after them, and coming a little Diſtance from the Houſe, he ſaw the Two Men ſtart up from behind a Log, and run into a little Swamp, ſaying to each other, The Man of the Houſe is come now, elſe we might have taken the Houſe. So he heard nor ſaw no more of them.

‘Upon this the whole Family got up, and went with all ſpeed to a Garriſon near by; and being juſt got into the Garriſon, they heard Men ſtamping round the Garriſon. Whereupon Bapſon took his Gun and ran out, and ſaw Two Men again running down an Hill into a Swamp. The next Night but one, the ſaid Bapſon going toward a freſh Meadow, ſaw Two Men, which looked like Frenchmen, one of them having a bright Gun upon his Back, and both running a great Pace towards him, which cauſed him to make the beſt of his way to the Garriſon, where being come, ſeveral heard a Noiſe as if Men were ſtamping and running not far from the Garriſon. Within a Night or Two after this, the Perſons in the Garriſon heard a Noiſe, as if Men were throwing Stones againſt the Barn. Not long after this, Bapſon, with John Brown, ſaw Three Men about a Gunſhot off the Garriſon, which they endeavoured to Shoot at, but were diſappointed by their running to and fro from the Corn into the Buſhes. They were ſeen Two or Three Nights together; but though the aboveſaid ſtrove to ſhoot at them, they could never attain it. On July 14. Bapſon and Brown, with the reſt of the Men in the Garriſon, ſaw, within Gun-ſhot, half a Dozen Men; whereupon all the Men but One made haſte out of the Garriſon, marching towards them. Bapſon preſently overtook Two of them which run out of the Buſhes, and coming cloſe to them, he preſented his Gun at them, and his Gun miſſing Fire, the Two Men returned into the Buſhes. Bapſon then called unto the other Perſons, which were on the other ſide of the Swamp, and upon his call they made Anſwer, Here they are! Here they are! Bapſon then running to meet them, ſaw Three Men walk ſoftly out of the Swamp by each other's Side; the middlemoſt having on a white Waſtecoat. So being within Two or Three Rod of them, he ſhot, and as ſoon as his Gun was off, they all fell down. Bapſon then running to his ſuppoſed Prey, cried out unto his Companions, whom he heard on the other ſide of the Swamp, and ſaid, He had kill'd Three! He had kill'd Three! But coming almoſt unto them, they all roſe up, and One of them ſhot at him, and hearing the Bullet whiſs by him, he ran behind a Tree, and loaded his Gun; and ſeeing them lye behind a Log, he crept toward them again, telling his Companions, They were here! So his Companions came up to him, and they all ran directly to the Log with all ſpeed; but before they got thither, they ſaw them ſtart up, and run every Man his way; One of them run into the Corn, whom they purſued, and hemm'd in; and Bapſon ſeeing him coming toward himſelf, ſhot at him as he was getting over the Fence, and ſaw him fall off the Fence on the Ground, but when he came to the Spot, he could not find him. So they all ſearched the Corn; and as they were ſearching, they heard a great Diſcourſing in the Swamp, but could not underſtand what they ſaid; for they ſpoke in an unknown Tongue. Afterwards looking out from the Garriſon, they ſaw ſeve-

‘ral Men ſculking among the Corn and Buſhes, but could not have a Shot at them.

‘The next Morning, juſt at Day-break, they ſaw One Man come out of the Swamp not far from the Garriſon, and ſtand cloſe up againſt the Fence, within Gun-ſhot. Whereupon Iſaac Prince, with a long Gun, ſhot at him with Swan-ſhot, and in a moment he was gone out of ſight, they ſaw him no more. Upon this Bapſon went to carry News to the Harbour; and being about half a Mile in his way thither, he heard a Gun go off, and heard a Bullet whiſs cloſe by his Ear, which cut off a Pine-buſh juſt by him, and the Bullet lodg'd in an Hemlock-Tree. Then looking about he ſaw Four Men running towards him, one with a Gun in his Hand, and the other with Guns on their Shoulders. So he ran into the Buſhes, and turning about, ſhot at them, and then ran away, and ſaw them no more. About Six Men returned from the Harbour with him, ſearching the Woods as they went; and they ſaw where the Bullet had cut off the Pine-buſh, and where it was lodg'd in the Hemlock-Tree, and they took the Bullet out, which is ſtill to be ſeen. When they were come to the Garriſon, they went to look for the Tracks of the ſtrange Men that had been ſeen, and ſaw ſeveral Tracks; and whilſt they were looking on them, they ſaw one which look'd like an Indian, having on a blue Coat, and his Hair ty'd up behind, ſtanding by a Tree, and looking on them. But as ſoon as they ſpake to each other, he ran into a Swamp, and they after him, and one of them ſhot at him, but to no purpoſe. One of them alſo ſaw another, which look'd like a Frenchman, but they quickly loſt the ſight of him.

‘July 15. Ezekiel Day being in Company with ſeveral others, who were ordered to Scout the Woods, when they came to a certain Freſh Meadow, Two Miles from any Houſe, at ſome diſtance from the ſaid Meadow, he ſaw a Man which he apprehended to be an Indian, cloathed in Blue; and as ſoon as he ſaw him ſtart up and run away, he ſhot at him; whereupon he ſaw another riſe up a little way off, who alſo run with ſpeed; which, together with the former, were quickly out of ſight; and though himſelf, together with his Companions, diligently ſought after them, they could not find them. The ſame Day John Hammond, with ſeveral other Perſons, ſcouting in the Woods, ſaw another of theſe ſtrange Men, having on a blue Shirt and white Breeches, and ſomething about his Head; but could not overtake him.

‘July 17. Three or Four of theſe Unaccountable Troublers came near the Garriſon; but they could not get a ſhot at them. Richard Dolliver alſo, and Benjamin Ellary, creeping down an Hill upon Diſcovery, ſaw ſeveral Men come out of an Orchard, walking backward and forward, and ſtriking with a Stick upon John Row's deſerted Houſe, (the Noiſe of which was heard by others at a conſiderable Diſtance;) Ellary counting them to be Eleven in all; Dolliver ſhot at the midſt of them, where they ſtood thickeſt, and immediately they diſperſed themſelves, and were quickly gone out of ſight.

‘July 18. Which was the time that Major Appleton ſent about Sixty Men from Ipſwich, for the Towns Aſſiſtance under theſe inexplicable Alarms, which they had ſuffered Night and Day for about a Fortnight together; John Day teſtifies, that he went in Company with Ipſwich and Glocester Forces, to a Garriſon about Two Miles and an half from the Town; and News being brought in, that Guns went off in a Swamp not far from the Garriſon, ſome of the Men, with himſelf, ran to diſcover what they could; and when he came to the Head of the Swamp, he ſaw a Man with a blue Shirt, and buſhy black Hair, run out of the Swamp, and into the Woods; he ran after him with all ſpeed, and came ſeveral times within ſhot of him; but the Woods being thick, he could not obtain his deſign of Shooting him; at length he was at once gone out of ſight; and when afterwards he went to look for his Track, he could find none, though it were a low miry Place that he ran over.

‘About July 25. Bapſon went into the Woods after his Cattel, and ſaw Three Men ſtand upon a Point of Rocks which look'd toward the Sea. So he crept among the Buſhes till he came within Forty Yards of them; and then preſented his Gun at them, and Snapt, but his Gun miſs'd Fire, and ſo it did above a Dozen Times, till they all Three came up towards him, walking a ſlow Pace, one of them having a Gun upon his Back. Nor did they take any more Notice of him, than juſt to give him a Look; though he ſnapt his Gun at them all the while they walked toward him, and by him; neither did they quicken their Pace at all, but went into a parcel of Buſhes, and he ſaw them no more. When he came home he ſnapt his Gun ſeveral times, ſometimes with but a few Corns of Powder, and yet it did not once miſs Fire. After this there occurred ſeveral ſtrange things; but now concluding they were but Spectres, they took little further Notice of them.

[Several other Teſtimonies, all to the ſame Effect with the foregoing, my Friend has added, which for brevity I omit; and only add, the moſt conſiderable of theſe Paſſages were afterward Sworn before one of Their Majeſties Council.]

‘Reverend and truly Honoured Sir, According to your Requeſt I have Collected a brief Account of the Occurrences remark'd in our Town the laſt Year. Some of them are very Admirable things, and yet no leſs True than Strange, if we may believe the Aſſertions of Credible Perſons. Tho' becauſe of great Haſte it is a rough Draught, yet there is nothing written but what the Perſons mentioned would, if duly called, confirm the Truth of by Oath.

‘I might have given you a larger Account; ‘only ſeveral who Saw and Heard ſome of the ‘moſt Remarkable things are now beyond Sea. ‘However, I hope the Subſtance of what is ‘Written will be enough to ſatisfie all Rational ‘Perſons, that Gloceſter was not Alarumed laſt ‘Summer for above a Fortnight together by ‘real French and Indians, but that the Devil and ‘his Agents were the cauſe of all the Moleſta‘tion which at this time befel the Town; in ‘the Name of whoſe Inhabitants I would ‘take upon me to Entreat your Earneſt Pray‘ers to the Father of Mercies, that thoſe Ap‘paritions may not prove the ſad Omens of ‘ſome future and more horrible Moleſtations ‘to them.

‘May 19. SIR,
169⅞.

Your very humble Servant,

J. E.

NOW, Reader, albeit that paſſage of the Sacred Story, 2 Chron. 20. 22. The Lord ſet Ambuſhments againſt the Children of Ammon, Moab, and Mount Seir and they were ſmitten, is by the beſt Expoſitors thus underſtood; that there was the Miniſtry of the Holy Angels wondrouſly Employ'd in this Matter; the Angels in the ſhape of Moabites and Ammonites fell upon them of Mount Seir, and upon this apprehended Provocation they then all fell upon one another, until the whole Army was deſtroyed: Nevertheleſs I entirely refer it unto thy Judgment, (without the leaſt offer of my own) whether Satan did not now ſet Ambuſhments againſt the good People of Gloceſter, with Dæmons in the ſhape of Armed Indians and Frenchmen appearing to conſiderable Numbers of the Inhabitants, and mutually Firing upon them for the beſt part of a Month together. I know the moſt Conſiderate Gentlemen in the Neighbourhood unto this Day believe this whole matter to have been a Prodigious Piece of the Strange deſcent from the Inviſible World, then made upon other Parts of the Country. And the publication of this Prodigy, among other Wonders of the Inviſible World among us, has been delay'd until now, that ſo the Opinion of our moſt conſiderate Gentlemen about it might have time for a thorough Concoction: And that the Gentlemen of the Order of St. Thomas may have no Objection to make againſt it. But be it what it will, they are not a few profane Squibs from the Sons of the Extravagant Bekkar, that will be a fit Explication for things thus Atteſted, and ſo very Marvellous.

ARTICLE XIX.

PACEM, Te Poſcimus Omnes.

IN the Year 1693. His Excellency ſent away Captain Convers to draw off the fitteſt of the Officers and Soldiers quartered in the Eaſt for a March; and cauſing about Three Hundred and Fifty more to be Levied, gave him what he had merited above a Year ago; even a Commiſſion of Major, and Commander in Chief over theſe Forces. While Major Convers was at Wells, hearing of ſome Indians that were ſeen in the Woods, he ſurpriſed them all; and finding that they had cut off a poor Family at Oyſter River, he gave the chief of them ſomething of what they alſo had merited. Going to Pemmaquid after ſome Service there, they Sailed up Sheepſcote River, and then marched through the Woods to Taconet, which being deſerted by the Indians, they ranged through many other Woods; but could meet with none of their Enemies. Repairing then to Saco, they began another Fort, which was carried on by that worthy Gentleman Major Hook, and the truly commendable Captain Hill, and proved a matter of good Conſequence unto the Province. While theſe things were doing ſometime in July, the Straggling Indians did ſome Spoil upon Quaboag, a remote Village in the Road unto Connecticut; but Advice being diſpatch'd unto the Towns upon Connecticut-River, a Party immediately Salley'd out after the Spoilers, and leaving their Horſes at the Entrance of a Swamp, whither by their Track they had followed them, they came upon the ſecure Adverſary, and kill'd the moſt of them, and recovered the Captives, with their Plunder; and returning Home, had ſome Reward for ſo brisk an Action.

But now the Indians in the Eaſt, probably diſheartened by the Forts Erecting that were like to prove a ſore Annoyance to them in their Enterprizes; and by the fear of wanting Ammunition, with other Proviſions, which the French were not ſo able juſt now to diſpence unto them; and by a preſumption that an Army of Maqua's, [part of thoſe terrible Cannibals to the Weſtward, whereof 'tis affirm'd by thoſe who have publiſhed the Stories of their Travels among them, that they have deſtroy'd no leſs than Two Million Salvages of other Nations about them, through their being ſupplied with Fire-Arms, before Hundreds of other Nations [lying between them and the River Meſchaſippi] was come into their Country, becauſe they found ſome of their Squa's killed upon a Whortle-berry Plain; all the Charms of the French Friar, then Reſident among them, could not hinder them from ſuing to the Engliſh for Peace. And the Engliſh being ſo involved in Debts, that they ſcarce knew how to proſecute the War any further, took ſome Notice of their Suit. Accordingly a Peace was made upon the Enſuing Articles.

Province of the Maſſachuſets Bay in New-England.

The Submiſſion and Agreement of the Eaſtern Indians at Fort William Henry in Pemmaquid, the 11*th Day of* Auguſt, in the Fifth Year of the Reign of our Soveraign Lord and Lady, William and Mary, by the Grace of God, of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, King and Queen, Defenders of the Faith, &c. 1693.

‘WHereas a Bloody War has for ſome Years now paſt been made and carried on by the Indians within the Eaſtern Parts of the ſaid Province, againſt Their Majeſties Subjects the Engliſh, through the Inſtigation and Influences of the French; and being ſenſible of the Miſeries which we and our People are reduced unto, by adhering to their ill Council: We whoſe Names are hereunto Subſcribed, being Sagamores and Chief Captains of all the Indians belonging to the ſeveral Rivers of Penobſcote and Kennebeck, Amaraſcogin and Saco, Parts of the ſaid Province of the Maſſachuſets Bay within Their ſaid Majeſties Soveraignty, having made Application unto his Excellency Sir William Phips, Captain General and Governour in Chief in and over the ſaid Province, that the War may be put to an end, do lay down our Arms, and caſt our ſelves upon Their ſaid Majeſties Grace and Favour. And each of us reſpectively for our ſelves, and in the Name and with the free Conſent of all the Indians belonging unto the ſeveral Rivers aforeſaid, and of all other Indians within the ſaid Province of and from Merrimack River, unto the moſt Eaſterly Bounds of the ſaid Province; hereby acknowledging our hearty Subjection and Obedience unto the Crown of England; and do ſolemnly Covenant, Promiſe and Agree, to and with the ſaid Sir William Phips, and his Succeſſors, in the Place of Captain General and Governour in Chief of the aforeſaid Province or Territory, on Their ſaid Majeſties behalf in manner following, viz.

‘That at all time and times for ever, from and after the date of theſe Preſents, we will ceaſe and forbear all Acts of Hoſtility towards the Subjects of the Crown of England, and not offer the leaſt Hurt or Violence to them, or any of them, in their Perſons or Eſtate: But will henceforward hold and maintain a firm and conſtant Amity and Friendſhip with all the Engliſh.

‘Item. We abandon and forſake the French Intereſt, and will not in any wiſe adhere to Join with, Aid or Aſſiſt them in their Wars or Deſigns againſt the Engliſh, nor Countenance, Succour or Conceal any of the Enemy Indians of Canada, or other Places, that ſhall happen to come to any of our Plantations within the Engliſh Territory, but ſecure them, if in our Power, and deliver them up unto the Engliſh.

‘That all Engliſh Captives in the Hands or Power of any of the Indians within the Limits aforeſaid, ſhall with all poſſible ſpeed be ſet at Liberty, and returned Home without any Ranſom or Payment to be made or given for them, or any of them.

‘That Their Majeſties Subjects the Engliſh, ſhall and may peaceably and quietly enter upon, improve, and for ever enjoy all and ſingular their Rights of Lands, and former Settlements and Poſſeſſions within the Eaſtern Parts of the ſaid Province of the Maſſachuſets Bay, without any Pretenſions or Claims by us, or any other Indians, and be in no wiſe moleſted, interrupted, or diſturbed therein.

‘That all Trade and Commerce, which hereafter may be allowed between the Engliſh and Indians, ſhall be under ſuch Management and Regulation, as may be Stated by an Act of the General Aſſembly, or as the Governor of the ſaid Province for the time being, with the Advice and Conſent of the Council, ſhall ſee Cauſe to Direct and Limit.

‘If any Controverſie or Difference at any time hereafter happen to ariſe between any of the Engliſh and Indians, for any real or ſuppoſed Wrong or Injury done on one ſide or the other, no private Revenge ſhall be taken by the Indians for the ſame, but proper Application be made to Their Majeſties Government upon the Place, for Remedy thereof, in a due Courſe of Juſtice; we hereby ſubmitting our ſelves to be Ruled and Governed by Their Majeſties Laws, and deſire to have the Benefit of the ſame.

‘For the more full Manifeſtation of our Sincerity and Integrity in all that which we have herein before Covenanted and Promiſed, we do deliver unto Sir William Phips, Their Majeſties Governor as aforeſaid, Abaſſombamett, Brother to Edgeremett; Wenongahewitt, Couſin to Madockawando, and Edgeremett, and Bagatawawongon; alſo Sheepſcoat John, to abide and remain in the Cuſtody of the Engliſh, where the Governour ſhall direct, as Hoſtages or Pledges for our Fidelity, and true Performance of all and every the foregoing Articles, reſerving Liberty to exchange them in ſome reaſonable time for a like number, to the acceptance of the Governor and Council of the ſaid Province, ſo they be Perſons of as good Account and Eſteem amongſt the Indians, as thoſe which are to be exchanged. In Teſtimony whereof, we have hereunto ſet our ſeveral Marks and Seals, the Day and Year firſt above-written.

‘The above-written Inſtrument was deliberately read over, and the ſeveral Articles and Clauſes thereof Interpreted unto the Indians, who ſaid they well underſtood and conſented thereunto, and was then Signed, Sealed, and Delivered in the Preſence of us,

ARTICLE XX.

Bloody Fiſhing at Oyſter River ; and Sad Work at Groton.

A Years Breathing time was a great Favour of Heaven to a Country quite out of Breath with numberleſs Calamities. But the Favour was not ſo thankfully enjoyed as it ſhould have been. And now The Clouds return after the Rain. The Spectre that with Burning Tongs drove Xerxes to his War upon the Græcians, had not loſt his Influence upon our Indians. The Perfidy of the Indians appeared firſt in their not reſtoring the Engliſh Captives according to their Covenant ; but the perfidious Wretches excuſed this with many Proteſtations. That which added unto our Jealouſies about them, was their Inſolent Carriage towards a Sloop, Commanded by Captain Wing ; and the Information of a Fellow called Hector, that the Indians intended moſt certainly to break the Peace, and had promiſed the French Prieſts, taking the Sacrament thereupon, to deſtroy the firſt Engliſh Town they could Surprize. Rumours of Indians Lurking about ſome of the Frontier-Plantations, now began to put the poor People into Conſternation ; but upon an Imagination that they were only certain Bever-Hunters, the Conſternation of the People went off into Security. 'Tis affirmed by Engliſh Captives, which were then at Canada, that the Deſolation of Oyſter River was commonly talk'd in the Streets of Quebeck Two Months before it was Effected ; for the Spies had found no Town ſo ſecure as That. And now what was Talk'd at Quebeck in the Month of May, muſt be Done at Oyſter River in the Month of July ; for on Wedneſday, July 18. 1694. the Treacherous Enemy, with a great Army fell upon that Place, about break of Day, and Kill'd and Captiv'd Ninety Four, (or an Hundred) Perſons ; about a Score of whom were Men belonging to the Trained Band of the Town. Several Perſons Remarkably eſcaped this Bloody Deluge, but none with more Bravery than one Thomas Bickford, who had an Houſe, a little Palliſado'd, by the River ſide, but no Man in it beſides himſelf. He dexterouſly put his Wife, and Mother, and Children aboard a Canoo, and ſending them down the River, he Alone betook himſelf to the Defence of his Houſe, againſt many Indians that made an Aſſault upon him. They firſt would have perſwaded him with many fair Promiſes, and then terrified him with as many fierce Threatnings, to yield himſelf ; but he Flouted and Fired at them, daring 'em to come if they durſt. His main Stratagem was to change his Livery as frequently as he could ; appearing ſometimes in one Coat, ſometimes in another, ſometimes in an Hat, and ſometimes in a Cap ; which cauſed his Beſiegers to miſtake this One for Many Defendants. In fine, the pitiful Wretches deſpairing to Beat him out of his Houſe, e'en left him in it ; whereas, many that opened unto them, upon their Solemn Engagements of giving them Life and good Quarter, were barbarouſly Butchered by them ; and the Wife of one Adams, then with Child, was with horrible Barbarity ripped up. And thus there was an end of the Peace made at Pemmaquid! Upon this, the Friends of Mrs. Urſula Cutt, (Widow of Mr. John Cutt, formerly Preſident of New-Hampſhire,) deſired her to leave her Farm, which was about a Mile above the Bank expoſed to the Enemy, on the South ſide of Piſcataqua River. She thank'd them for their Care ; but added, that ſhe believed the Enemy had now done their Do for this time ; and however, by the End of the Week her Buſineſs at the Farm would be all diſpatched, and on Saturday ſhe would repair to her Friends at the Bank. But alas! before the End of the Week, ſhe ſaw the End of her Life: On Saturday, about One or Two a Clock in the Afternoon, the Buſineſs at the Farm was Diſpatched ſure enough! The Indians then kill'd this Gentlewoman and Three other People, a little before they had finiſhed a point of Huſbandry then in their Hands. Nor did the Storm go over ſo: Some Drops of it fell upon the Town of Groton, a Town that lay, one would think, far enough off the Place where was the laſt Scene of the Tragedy. On July 27. about break of Day Groton felt ſome ſurprizing Blows from the Indian Hatchets. They began their Attacks at the Houſe of one Lieutenant Lakin, in the Out-skirts of the Town ; but met with a Repulſe there, and loſt one of their Crew. Nevertheleſs, in other Parts of that Plantation, (when the good People had been ſo tired out as to lay down their Military Watch) there were more than Twenty Perſons killed, and more than a Dozen carried away. Mr. Gerſhom Hobart, the Miniſter of the Place, with part of his Family, was Remarkably preſerved from falling into their Hands, when they made themſelves the Maſters of his Houſe ; though they Took Two of his Children, whereof the one was Killed, and the other ſome time after happily Reſcued out of his Captivity.

I remember, the Jews in their Book Taanith, tell us, The Elders Proclaimed a Faſt in their Cities on this Occaſion, becauſe the Wolves had devoured Two little Children beyond Jordan. Truly, the Elders of New-England were not a little concerned at it, when they ſaw the Wolves thus devouring their Children, even on this ſide of Merrimack!

ARTICLE XXI.

More Engliſh Blood Swallowed, but Revenged.

R*Eader*, We muſt after this, ever now and then, expect the happening of ſome unhappy Accident. The Blood-thirſty Salvages, not content with Quaffing the Blood of Two or Three Perſons, found at Work in a Field at Spruce-Creek, on Aug. 20. and of another Perſon at York, the ſame Day, (Captivating alſo a Lad which they found with him;) they did on Aug. 24. Kill and Take Eight Perſons at Kittery. Here a little Girl about Seven Years Old, the Daughter of one Mr. Downing, fell into their Barbarous Hands; they Knock'd her o'th' Head, and barbarouſly Scalped her, leaving her on the Cold Ground, (and it was then very Cold, beyond what uſe to be,) where ſhe lay all the Night enſuing: Yet ſhe was found Alive the next Morning, and recovering, ſhe is to this Day Alive and Well; only the place broke in her Skull will not endure to be cloſed up. He had another Daughter, which at the ſame time almoſt miraculouſly eſcaped their Hands. But ſo could not at another time Joſeph Pike of Newbury, the Deputy Sheriff of Eſſex, who on Sept. 4. Travelling between Amesbury and Haverhil, in the Execution of his Office, with one Long, they both had an Arreſt of Death ſerved upon them from an Indian Ambuſcado. Bommaſeen, a Commander of Prime Quality among the Indians, who had ſet his Hand unto the late Articles of Submiſſion, came, Nov. 19. with Two other Indians, to Pemmaquid, as loving as Bears, and as harmleſs as Tygres, pretending to be juſt Arrived from Canada, and much Afflicted for the late Miſchiefs, (whereof there was Witneſs that he was a Principal Actor,) but Captain March with a ſufficient Activity ſeized them; as Robin Doney, another Famous Villain among them, with Three more, had been ſeized at Saco Fort a little before. Bommaſeen was convey'd unto Boſton, that he might, in a cloſe Impriſonment there, have time to conſider of his Treacheries and his Cruelties, for which the Juſtice of Heaven had thus delivered him up. When he was going to Pemmaquid, he left his Company with a ſtrange Reluctancy and Formality, as if he had preſaged the Event; and when at Pemmaquid he found the Event of his coming, he diſcovered a more than ordinary Diſturbance of Mind; his Paſſions Foam'd and Boil'd like the very Waters at the Fall of Niagara.

But being thus fallen upon the mention of that Vengeance, wherewith Heaven purſued the chief of the Salvage Murderers, it may give ſome Diverſion unto the Reader, in the midſt of a long and a ſad Story, to inſert a Relation of an Accident that fell out a little after this time.

The Indians, (as the Captives inform us) being Hungry, and hardly beſtead, paſſed through deſerted Caſco, where they ſpied ſeveral Horſes in Captain Bracket's Orchard. Their famiſhed Squa's begg'd them to Shoot the Horſes, that they might be revived with a little Roaſt-meat; but the Young Men were for having a little Sport before their Supper. Driving the Horſes into a Pond, they took one of them, and furniſhed him with an Halter, ſuddenly made of the Main and the Tail of the Animal, which they cut off. A Son of the Famous Hegon was ambitious to mount this Pegaſæan Steed; but being a pitiful Horſeman, he ordered them, for fear of of his falling, to tie his Legs faſt under the Horſe's Belly. No ſooner was this Beggar ſet on Horſe-back, and the Spark, in his own Opinion, throughly Equipt, but the Mettleſome Horſe furiouſly and preſently ran with him out of ſight. Neither Horſe nor Man were ever ſeen any more; the aſtoniſh'd Tawnies howl'd after one of their Nobility, diſappearing by ſuch an unexpected Accident. A few Days after they found one of his Legs, (and that was all) which they buried in Captain Bracket's Cellar, with abundance of Lamentation.

ARTICLE XXII.

A Conference with an Indian-Sagamore.

BUT now Bommaſeen is fallen into our Hands, let us have a little Diſcourſe with him.

Behold, Reader, the Troubles and the Troublers of New-England! That thou may'ſt a little more exactly behold the Spirit of the Matter, I'll recite certain Paſſages occurring in a Diſcourſe that paſs'd between this Bommaſeen (who was one of the Indian Princes, or Chieftains,) and a Miniſter of the Goſpel, in the Year 1696.

Bommaſeen was with ſome other Indians now a Priſoner in Boſton. He deſired a Conference with a Miniſter of Boſton, which was granted him. Bommaſeen, with the other Indians, aſſenting and aſſerting to it, then told the Miniſter, that he pray'd his Inſtruction in the Chriſtian Religion; inaſmuch as he was afraid, that the French in the Chriſtian Religion, which they taught the Indians, had abuſed them. The Miniſter enquired of him, what of the things taught 'em by the French appear'd moſt ſuſpicious to 'em? He ſaid, the French taught 'em, that the Lord JESUS CHRIST was of the French Nation; that his Mother, the Virgin Mary, was a French Lady; that they were the Engliſh who had Murdered him; and that whereas he roſe from the Dead, and went up to the Heavens, all that would Recommend themſelves unto his Favour, muſt Revenge his Quarrel upon the Engliſh as far as they can. He ask'd the Miniſter whether theſe things were ſo; and pray'd the Miniſter to inſtruct him in the true Chriſtian Religion. The Miniſter conſidering, that the Humour and Manner of the Indians was to have their Diſcourſes managed with much of Similitude in them, look'd about for ſome agreeable Object, from whence he might with apt Reſemblances convey the Idæa's of Truth unto the Minds of Salvages; and he thought none would be more agreeable to them than a Tankard of Drink, which happened then to be ſtanding on the Table. So he proceeded in this Method with 'em.

He told them, [ſtill with proper Actions Painting and Pointing out the Signs unto them,] That our Lord JESUS CHRIST had given us a Good Religion, which might be reſembled unto the Good Drink in the Cup upon the Table.

That if we take this Good Religion, (even that Good Drink,) into our Hearts, it will do us Good, and preſerve us from Death.

That God's Book, the Bible, is the Cup wherein that Good Drink of Religion is offered unto us.

That the French having the Cup of Good Drink in their Hands, had put Poiſon into it, and then made the Indians to Drink that Poiſoned Liquor, whereupon they run Mad, and fell to killing of the Engliſh, though they could not but know it muſt unavoidably iſſue in their own Deſtruction at the laſt.

That it was plain the Engliſh had put no Poiſon into the Good Drink; for they ſet the Cup wide open, and invited all Men to Come and See before they Taſte, even the very Indians themſelves; for we Tranſlated the Bible into Indian. That they might gather from hence, that the French had put Poiſon into the Good Drink, inaſmuch as the French kept the Cup faſt ſhut, (the Bible in an Unknown Tongue,) and kept their Hands upon the Eyes of the Indians, when they put it unto their Mouths.

The Indians expreſſing themſelves to be well ſatisfied with what the Miniſter had hitherto ſaid, pray'd him to go on, with ſhowing 'em what was the Good Drink, and what was the Poiſon which the French had put into it.

He then ſet before them diſtinctly the chief Articles of the Chriſtian Religion, with all the Simplicity and Sincerity of a Proteſtant: Adding upon each, This is the Good Drink in the Lord's Cup of Life: And they ſtill profeſſed, That they liked it all.

Whereupon he Demonſtrated unto them, how the Papiſts had in their Idolatrous Popery, ſome way or other depraved and alter'd every one of theſe Articles, with Scandalous Ingredients of their own Invention; adding upon each, This is the Poiſon which the French have put into the Cup.

At laſt he mentioned this Article.

To obtain the Pardon of your Sins, you muſt confeſs your Sins to God, and pray to God, that he would Pardon your Sins for the Sake of Jeſus Chriſt, who died for the Sins of his People: God loves Jeſus Chriſt infinitely; and if you place your Eye on Jeſus Chriſt only, when you beg the Pardon of your Sins, God will Pardon them. You need confeſs your Sins to none but God, except in Caſes where Men have known your Sins, or have been hurt by your Sins; and then thoſe Men ſhould know that you confeſs your Sins; but after all, none but God can Pardon them.

He then added, The French have put Poiſon into this Good Drink; they tell you, that you muſt confeſs your Sins to a Prieſt, and carry Skins to a Prieſt, and ſubmit unto a Penance enjoined by a Prieſt; and this Prieſt is to give you a Pardon. There is no need of all this: 'Tis nothing but French Poiſon, all of it.

The Wretches appearing aſtoniſh'd to meet with one who would ſo fairly put them into a glorious way to obtain the Pardon of their Sins, and yet take no Bever-ſkins for it, in a Rapture of Aſtoniſhment they fell down on their Knees, and got his Hand into theirs, and fell to kiſſing of it with an extream ſhow of Affection.

He ſhaking them off with diſlike of their Poſture, Bommaſeen, with the reſt of them, ſtood up; and firſt lifting up his Eyes and Hands to Heaven, declaring, that God ſhould be Judge of his Heart in what he ſaid, he then ſaid, Sir, I thank you for theſe things; I reſolve to Spit up all the French Poiſon; you ſhall be my Father; I will be your Son; I beſeech you to continue to inſtruct me in that Religion which may bring me to the Salvation of my Soul!——Now God knows what Heart this Indian had when he ſo expreſſed himſelf: To Him let us leave it.

But ſo much for this Digreſſion.

ARTICLE XXIII.

More Miſchiefs in Spite of Treaties.

EXcept it were the falling of Two Soldiers belonging to Saco Garriſon into the Hands of the Enemy, who took the one, and kill'd the other, ſome time in March, 1695. many Months paſs'd away without any Action between Them and Us; and it is reported by returned Captives, that the Hand of God reach'd them, when the Hand of Man could not find them, and a Mortal Sickneſs did at a ſtrange rate carry off Multitudes of them. At length, upon the Mediation of Old Sheepſcoat John, once a Praying Indian of the Reverend ELIOT's Catechumens, but afterwards a Pagan, and now a Popiſh Apoſtate, a great Fleet of Canoos came into an Iſland, about a League from the Fort at Pemmaquid, May 20. 1693. and after they had laid ſtill there all the Lord's-Day, on Monday Morning they ſent unto the Engliſh for another Treaty. They declared, their Deſign was to Exchange Captives, and renew the Peace, and condemned themſelves for their Violating the Peace made near Two Years ago. Eight Captives they immediately delivered up; and upon a Grant of a Truce for Thirty Days, Colonel John Philips, Lieutenant-Colonel Hawthorn, and Major Convers, were ſent Commiſſioners unto Pemmaquid for the Management of that Affair. Our Commiſſioners, with good Reaſon, demanding a Surrender of all the Engliſh Captives, according to former Agreement, before they would allow any new Propoſitions of Peace to be offered, the Indians, diſguſted that their Idol Bommaſeen was left at Boſton, broke off the Conference, and went off in Diſcontent. Advice was immediately diſpatch'd into all Parts of the Eaſtern Country to ſtand well upon their Guard; notwithſtanding which, on July 6. Major Hammond of Kittery fell into the Hands of the Lurking Indians; and the next Week Two Men at Exeter were kill'd by ſome of the ſame Dangerous Lurkers. Major Hammond was now aboard a Canoo, intending to put aſhore at Saco; but ſome of the Garriſon-Soldiers there, not knowing that they had ſuch a good Friend aboard, inadvertently Fired upon the Canoo; and ſo the Indians carried him clear away. They Tranſported him at length to Canada, where he met with Extraordinary Civilities; Count Frontenac, the Governor himſelf, Nobly purchaſed him of his Tawny Maſter, and ſent him home to New-England by a Veſſel which alſo fetch'd from thence a Conſiderable number (perhaps near Thirty) of Engliſh Priſoners. In Auguſt the Houſe of one Rogers at Billerica was Plundered, and about Fifteen People Kill'd and Taken by Indians, which, by appearing and approaching, 'tis ſaid on Horſe-back, were not ſuſpected for Indians, [for, Who ſet them on Horſe back?] till they ſurprized the Houſe they came to. And about the ſame time, Sergeant Haley venturing out of his Fort at Saco, ſtept into the Snares of Death. On Sept. 9. Sergeant March, with Three more, were Killed by the Indians, and Six more at the ſame time Wounded at Pemmaquid, Rowing a Gondula round an high Rocky Point above the Barbican. On Oct. 7. the Indians entred the Houſe of one John Brown at Newbury, carrying away Nine Perſons with them; whereupon Captain Greenlief nimbly purſuing the Murderers, did unhaply ſo ſtumble on them in the Night, that they Wounded the good Man, and made their Eſcape over the River. The Captain Retook all the Captives; but the Indians in their going off ſtrook them all ſo violently on the Head with the Clubs, which I remember a French Hiſtorian ſomewhere calls by the frightful Name of Headbreakers, that they afterwards all of them Died, except a Lad that was only hurt in the Shoulder. Some of them lingred out for half a Year, and ſome of them for more than a whole Year; but if the Doctors cloſed up the Wounds of their Heads, they would grow Light-headed, and Faint, and Sick, and could not bear it; ſo at laſt they died with their very Brains working out at their Wounds.

But having thus run over a Journal of Deaths for the Year 1695. let us before the Year be quite gone ſee ſome Vengeance taken upon the Heads in the Houſe of the Wicked. Know then, Reader, that Captain March Petitioning to be diſmiſs'd from his Command of the Fort at Pemmaquid, one Chub ſucceeded him. And this Chub found an Opportunity, in a pretty Chubbed manner, to Kill the Famous Edgeremett and Abenquid, a Couple of Principal Sagamores, with One or Two other Indians, on a Lord's-Day, the Sixteenth of February. Some that well enough liked the Thing which was now done, did not altogether like the Manner of doing it, becauſe there was a pretence of Treaty between Chub and the Sagamores, whereof he took his Advantage to lay violent Hands on them. If there were any unfair Dealing (which I know not) in this Action of Chub, there will be another February not far off, wherein the Avengers of Blood will take their Satisfaction.

ARTICLE XXIV.

Still Miſchief upon Miſchief.

THE next whole Year, namely 1696. had it not been for the Degree of a Famine, which the Alteration of the Courſe of Nature in theſe, as well as other Parts of the World, threatned us withal, would have been a Year of Leſs Trouble than ſome of the reſt in our Troubleſome Decad. The moſt uneaſie Accident of this Year ſhall be told when we arrive unto the Month of Auguſt; but in the mean time it was a Matter of ſome Uneaſineſs, that on May 7. one John Church of Quochecho, who had been a Captive, eſcaped from the Hands of the Indians, almoſt Seven Years before, was now Slain and Stript by their Barbarous Hands: And on June 24. one Thomas Cole of Wells and his Wife were Slain by the Indians, returning Home with Two of his Neighbours and their Wives, all Three Siſters, from a Viſit of their Friends at York: And on June 26. at ſeveral Places within the Confines of Portſmouth, ſeveral Perſons, Twelve or Fourteen, were Maſſacred, (with ſome Houſes Burnt,) and Four Taken, which yet were ſoon Retaken; among whom there was an Ancient Woman Scalpt for Dead, and no doubt the Salvages upon producing her Scalp, received the Price of her Death from thoſe that hired them, and yet ſhe ſo recovered as to be ſtill Alive. Moreover, on July 26. the Lord's-Day, the People at Quochecho returning from the Publick Worſhip of God, Three of them were killed, Three of them were wounded, and Three of them were carried away Priſoners to Penobſcot; which laſt Three were nevertheleſs in leſs than Three Weeks returned. But now we are got into fatal Auguſt; on the Fifth or Sixth Day of which Month, the French having taken one of the Engliſh Men of War, called, The Newport, and Landed a few Men, who joined with the Indians to purſue their Buſineſs, Chub with an unaccountable baſeneſs did Surrender the Brave Fort at Pemmaquid into their Hands. There were Ninety-five Men double-armed in the Fort, which might have defended it againſt Nine times as many Aſſailants; that a Fort now ſhould be ſo baſely given up! Imitating the Stile of Homer and Virgil, I cannot forbear crying out, O meræ Novanglæ, neque enim Novangli! And yet if you read the Story Written by the Sieur Froger, how poorly St. James's Fort in Africa was given up to the French in the Year 1695. you'll ſay the things done in America are not ſo bad as what have been done in either Parts of the World. The Enemy having Demoliſhed ſo fair a Citadel, now grown mighty Uppiſh, Triumph'd, as well they might, exceedingly; and threatned that they would carry all before them. The Honourable Lieutenant-Governor Stoughton, who was now Commander in Chief over the Province, immediately did all that could be done to put a ſtop unto the Fury of the Adverſary. By Sea he ſent out Three Men of War, who, diſadvantaged by the Winds, came not ſoon enough to engage the French. By Land the Indians being ſo Poſted in all Quarters, that the People could hardly ſtir out, but about half a Score of the poor People in their Fields here and there were pick'd off; he ſent Colonel Gidney with Five Hundred Men, who perceiving the Salvages to be drawn off, only ſtrengthened the Garriſons, and returned. The Lieutenant-Governor, that he might not in any other Point be wanting to the Publick Safety, hereupon diſpatched Colonel Hawthorn, with a ſuitable number of Soldiers and Frigats, unto St. John's, with Orders to fetch away ſome great Guns that were lying there, and join with Major Church, who was gone with Forces that way to Attack the Fort at St. John's, which was the Neſt of all the Waſps that ſtung us; but the Difficulty of the Cold Seaſon ſo diſcouraged our Men, that after the making of ſome few Shot, the Enterprize found it ſelf under too much Congelation to proceed any further. So we will afflict our ſelves no further for this Year; except only with mentioning the Slaughter of about Five poor Soldiers, belonging to Saco-Fort, Oct. 13. who had a Diſcovery of the Enemy ſeaſonable enough to have made their Eſcape; yet not agreeing about the way of making it, as if led by ſome Fatality to their Deſtruction, or as if they had been like the Squirrels, that muſt run down the Tree Squeaking and Crying into the Mouths of the Rattle-Snakes that fix their Eyes upon them, they went back into the very Path where the Indian Ambuſh was lying for them.

ARTICLE XXV.

A Notable Exploit; wherein, Dux Fæmina Facti.

ON March 15. 1697. the Salvages made a Deſcent upon the Skirts of Haverhil, Murdering and Captiving about Thirty-nine Perſons, and Burning about half a Dozen Houſes. In this Broil, one Hannah Duſtan having lain-in about a Week, attended with her Nurſe, Mary Neff, a Widow, a Body of terrible Indians drew near unto the Houſe where ſhe lay, with Deſigns to carry on their Bloody Devaſtations. Her Husband haſtened from his Employments abroad unto the relief of his Diſtreſſed Family; and firſt bidding Seven of his Eight Children (which were from Two to Seventeen Years of Age) to get away as faſt as they could unto ſome Garriſon in the Town, he went in to inform his Wife of the horrible Diſtreſs come upon them. E'er ſhe could get up, the fierce Indians were got ſo near, that utterly deſpairing to do her any Service, he ran out after his Children; reſolving that on the Horſe which he had with him, he would Ride away with That which he ſhould in this Extremity find his Affections to pitch moſt upon, and leave the reſt unto the Care of the Divine Providence. He overtook his Children about Forty Rod from his Door; but then ſuch was the Agony of his Parental Affections, that he found it impoſſible for him to diſtinguiſh any one of them from the reſt; wherefore he took up a Courageous Reſolution to Live and Die with them all. A Party of Indians came up with him; and now though they Fired at him, and he Fired at them, yet he Manfully kept at the Reer of his Little Army of Unarmed Children, while they Marched off with the Pace of a Child of Five Years Old; until, by the Singular Providence of God, he arrived ſafe with them all unto a Place of Safety about a Mile or two from his Houſe. But his Houſe muſt in the mean time have more diſmal Tragedies acted at it. The Nurſe trying to eſcape with the New-born Infant, fell into the Hands of the Formidable Salvages; and thoſe furious Tawnies coming into the Houſe, bid poor Duſtan to riſe immediately. Full of Aſtoniſhment ſhe did ſo; and ſitting down in the Chimney with an Heart full of moſt fearful Expectation, ſhe ſaw the raging Dragons rifle all that they could carry away, and ſet the Houſe on Fire. About Nineteen or Twenty Indians now led theſe away, with about half a Score other Engliſh Captives; but e'er they had gone many Steps, they daſh'd out the Brains of the Infant againſt a Tree; and ſeveral of the other Captives, as they began to Tire in their ſad Journey, were ſoon ſent unto their Long Home; the Salvages would preſently Bury their Hatchets in their Brains, and leave their Carcaſes on the Ground for Birds and Beaſts to Feed upon. However, Duſtan (with her Nurſe) notwithſtanding her preſent Condition, Travelled that Night about a Dozen Miles, and then kept up with their New Maſters in a long Travel of an Hundred and Fifty Miles, more or leſs, within a few Days Enſuing, without any ſenſible Damage in their Health, from the Hardſhips of their Travel, their Lodging, their Diet, and their many other Difficulties. Theſe Two poor Women were now in the Hands of thoſe whoſe Tender Mercies are Cruelties; but the good God, who hath all Hearts in his own Hands, heard the Sighs of theſe Priſoners, and gave them to find unexpected Favour from the Maſter who laid claim unto them. That Indian Family conſiſted of Twelve Perſons; Two Stout Men, Three Women, and Seven Children; and for the Shame of many an Engliſh Family, that has the Character of Prayerleſs upon it, I muſt now Publiſh what theſe poor Women aſſure me: 'Tis this, in Obedience to the Inſtructions which the French have given them, they would have Prayers in their Family no leſs than Thrice every Day; in the Morning, at Noon, and in the Evening; nor would they ordinarily let their Children Eat or Sleep without firſt ſaying their Prayers. Indeed theſe Idolaters were like the reſt of their whiter Brethren Perſecutors, and would not endure that theſe poor Women ſhould retire to their Engliſh Prayers, if they could hinder them. Nevertheleſs, the poor Women had nothing but Fervent Prayers to make their Lives Comfortable or Tolerable; and by being daily ſent out upon Buſineſs, they had Opportunities together and aſunder to do like another Hannah, in Pouring out their Souls before the Lord: Nor did their praying Friends among our ſelves forbear to Pour out Supplications for them. Now they could not obſerve it without ſome Wonder, that their Indian Maſter ſometimes when he ſaw them dejected would ſay unto them, What need you Trouble your ſelf? If your God will have you delivered, you ſhall be ſo! And it ſeems our God would have it ſo to be. This Indian Family was now Travelling with theſe Two Captive Women, (and an Engliſh Youth taken from Worceſter a Year and half before,) unto a Rendezvouz of Salvages, which they call a Town ſomewhere beyond Penacook; and they ſtill told theſe poor Women, that when they came to this Town they muſt be Stript, and Scourg'd, and Run the Gantlet through the whole Army of Indians. They ſaid this was the Faſhion when the Captives firſt came to a Town; and they derided ſome of the Faint-hearted Engliſh, which they ſaid, fainted and ſwoon'd away under the Torments of this Diſcipline. But on April 30. while they were yet, it may be, about an Hundred and Fifty Miles from the Indian Town, a little before break of Day, when the whole Crew was in a Dead Sleep, (Reader, ſee if it prove not ſo!) one of theſe Women took up a Reſolution to intimate the Action of Jael upon Siſera; and being where ſhe had not her own Life ſecured by any Law unto her, ſhe thought ſhe was not forbidden by any Law to take away the Life of the Murderers, by whom her Child had been Butchered. She heartened the Nurſe and the Youth to aſſiſt her in this Enterprize; and all furniſhing themſelves with Hatchets for the purpoſe, they ſtruck ſuch home Blows upon the Heads of their Sleeping Oppreſſors, that e'er they could any of them ſtruggle into any effectual reſiſtance, at the Feet of thoſe poor Priſoners, they bow'd, they fell, they lay down; at their Feet they bowed, they fell; where they bowed, there they fell down Dead. Only one Squaw eſcaped ſorely Wounded from them in the Dark; and one Boy, whom they reſerved aſleep, intending to bring him away with them, ſuddenly wak'd and Scuttled away from this Deſolation. But cutting off the Scalps of the Ten Wretches, they came off, and received Fifty Pounds from the General Aſſembly of the Province, as a Recompence of their Action; beſides which, they received many Preſents of Congratulation from their more private Friends; but none gave 'em a greater Taſte of Bounty than Colonel Nicholſon, the Governour of Maryland, who hearing of their Action, ſent 'em a very generous Token of his Favour.

ARTICLE XXVI.

Remarkable Salvations; and ſome Remarkable Diſaſters.

BEſides a Man taken at York in May, and another Man kill'd at Hatfield in June, and a Third kill'd at Groton, and a Fourth with Two Children carried Captives, there fell out more Miſchief, with no ſmall Mercy, on June 10. at Exeter. The Day before, ſome Women and Children would needs ramble without any Guard into the Woods to gather Strawberries; but ſome that were willing to Chaſtiſe them with a Fright for their Preſumption, made an Alarum in the Town, whereupon many came together in their Arms. The Indians, it ſeems, were at this very time unknown to the Engliſh, lying on the other ſide of the Town ready to make a Deſtructive Aſſault upon it; but ſuppoſing this Alarum to be made on their Account, they therefore ſuppoſed themſelves to be diſcovered. Wherefore they laid aſide their Purpoſe of attempting the Deſtruction of the Town, and contented themſelves with Killing one Man, Taking another, and Wounding a Third. But on July 4. Lord's-Day, Major Charles Froſt, who had been a Perſon of no little Conſequence to our Frontiers, returning from the Publick Worſhip of God in Berwick, (to repair unto which, about Five Miles from his own Houſe, he had that Morning expreſs'd ſuch an Earneſtneſs, that much notice was taken of it,) paſs'd ſeveral more Dangerous Places without any Damage; but in a Place, on a little Plain by the Turn of a Path, where no Danger was expected, the Adder in the Path ſurprized him; the Indians having ſtuck up certain Boughs upon a Log, there Mortally Shot him, with Two more, while his Two Sons that were in the Front of the Company happily eſcaped: And the Two Young Men that Rode Poſt unto Wells with theſe Tidings, in their going back had their own Death added for another Article of ſuch unhappy Tidings. About the latter end of this Month alſo, Three Men Mowing the Meadows at Newichawannic, were themſelves Cutdown by the Indians; tho' one of the Mowers bravely ſlew one of the Murtherers. But the moſt Important Action of this Year was a little further off. About the beginning of July, Major March was employ'd with about Five Hundred Soldiers, not only to Defend the Frontiers, but alſo to ſeek out, and beat up the Enemies Quarters. In the mean time, the Lieutenant Governor apprehending an Invaſion from a formidable French Fleet on the Coaſt of New-England, with his accuſtomed Prudence and Vigour applied himſelf to put the whole Province into a Poſture of Defence: And the Militia, with the ſeveral Forts, eſpecially that of Boſton, (very much through the Contrivance and Induſtry of Captain Fairweather,) were brought into ſo good a Poſture, that ſome could hardly forbear too much Dependance on our Preparations. But it being more particularly Apprehended, that in the intended Invaſion, the Indians, aſſiſted by the French, would make a Deſcent upon our Frontiers by Land, Major March was adviſed therefore to employ ſome of his Forces in Scouting about the Woods. Before the Major arrived at York, a Party of the Enemy kill'd a Man that ſtood Centinel for ſome of his Neighbours at Work in the Marſh at Wells; and catching another Alive, they carried him a Mile and half off, and Roaſted him to Death: But Captain Bracket, that followed them quite as far as Kennebunk, did but almoſt overtake them: For truly, Reader, our Soldiers cannot, as Antiquity reports the Old Græcian and Roman Soldiers could, March at a running Pace or Trot heavily Loaded, Five and Twenty Miles in Four Hours; but rather ſuſpect whether thoſe Reports of Antiquity be not Romantick. Three Soldiers of Saco Fort, after this cutting ſome Fire-wood on Cow-Iſland, for the uſe of the Fort, were by the Indians cut off; while that Lieutenant Fletcher with his Two Sons, that ſhould have Guarded them, went a Fowling; and by doing ſo, they likewiſe fell into the Snare. The Indians carrying theſe Three Captives down the River in one of their Canoos, Lieutenant Larabe, that was abroad with a Scout, way-laid them; and Firing on the foremoſt of the Canoos that had Three Men in it, they all Three fell and ſank in the River of Death. Several were killed aboard the other Canoos; and the reſt ran their Canoos aſhore, and eſcaped on the other ſide of the River; and one of the Fletchers, when all the Indians with him were killed, was delivered out of the Hands which had made a Priſoner of him; tho' his poor Father afterwards died among them. Hereupon Major March, with his Army, took a Voyage farther Eaſtward, having ſeveral Tranſport Veſſels to accommodate them. Arriving at Caſco-Bay, they did, upon the Ninth of September, come as Occult as they could, further Eaſt among the Iſlands, near a Place called Corbin's Sounds; and Landed before Day at a Place called Damaſcotta River; where, before half of them were well got aſhoar, and drawn up, the ſcarce yet expected Enemy entertained them with a Volley and an Huzza! None of ours were hurt; but Major March repaid 'em in their own Leaden Coin; and it was no ſooner Light but a Conſiderable Battel enſued. The Commanders of the Tranſport Veſſels were Perſons of ſuch a Mettle, that they could not with any patience forbear going aſhore to take a part of their Neighbours Fare; but the Enemy ſeeing things operate this way, fled into their Fleet of Canoos, which hitherto lay out of ſight, and got off as faſt and as well as they could, leaving ſome of their Dead behind them, which they never do, but when under extream Diſadvantages. Our Army thus beat 'em off, with the loſs of about a Dozen Men, whereof one was the Worthy Captain Dymmock of Barnſtable; and about as many Wounded, whereof one was Captain Philips of Charleſtown; and in this Action Captain Whiting, a Young Gentleman of much Worth and Hope, Courageouſly acting his Part as Commander of the Forces; the Helpers of the War, which the Colony of Connecticut had Charitably lent unto this Expedition, had his Life remarkably reſcued from a Bullet grazing the top of his Head. But there was a Singular Providence of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in the whole of this Matter. For by the ſeaſonable Arrival and Encounter of our Army, an horrible Deſcent of Indians, which probably might have laid whole Plantations Deſolate, was moſt happily Defeated. And at the ſame time, the Signal Hand of Heaven gave a Defeat unto the Purpoſes of the French Squadrons at Sea, ſo that they had ſomething elſe to do, than to Viſit the Coaſt of New-England.

ARTICLE XXVII.

The End of the Year; and, we hope, of the War.

O Thou Sword of the Wilderneſs, when wilt thou be quiet? On Sept. 11. A Party of the Enemy came upon the Town of Lancaſter, then prepared for Miſchief by a wonderful Security, and they did no little Miſchief unto it. Near Twenty were killed, and among the reſt Mr. John Whiting, the Paſtor of the Church there: Five were carried Captive; Two or Three Houſes were burnt, and ſeveral Old People in them. Captain Brown with Fifty Men purſued them, till the Night ſtopp'd their purſuit; but it ſeems a ſtrange Dog or two, unknown to the Company, did by their Barking alarum the Enemy to riſe in the Night, and Strip and Scalp an Engliſh Captive Woman, and fly ſo far into the Woods, that after Two Days Bootleſs Labour our Men returned. November arrived before any farther Bloodſhed; and then 'twas only of one Man in the Woods at Oyſter-River. December arrived with the welcome Tidings of a Peace concluded between England and France; which made us hope that there would be little more of any Bloodſhed at all. The Winter was the ſevereſt that ever was in the Memory of Man. And yet February muſt not paſs without a Stroke upon Pemmaquid Chub, whom the Government had mercifully permitted, after his Examination, to retire unto his Habitation in Andover. As much out of the way as to Andover, there came above Thirty Indians, about the middle of February, as if their Errand had been for a Vengeance upon Chub, whom (with his Wife) they now Maſſacred there. They took Two or Three Houſes, and Slew Three or Four Perſons; and Mr. Thomas Barnard, the worthy Miniſter of the Place, very narrowly eſcaped their Fury. But in the midſt of their Fury there was one piece of Mercy, the like whereof had never been ſeen before: For they had got Colonel Dudley Bradſtreet, with his Family, into their Hands; but perceiving the Town Muſtering to follow them, their Hearts were ſo changed, that they diſmiſſed their Captives without any further Damage unto their Perſons. Returning back by Haverhil, they kill'd a Couple, and a Couple they took, with ſome remarkable Circumſtances worthy to be made a diſtinct Hiſtory. But, Reader, we are now in Haſte for to have our preſent Hiſtory come unto an End: And though the end of this Year did not altogether prove the end of the War; for on May 9. 1698. the Indians Murdered an old Man at Spruce-Creek, and carried away Three Sons of that old Man, and wounded a Man at York: Yet we were not without proſpect of our Troubles growing towards a Period: And even in that very Murder at Spruce-Creek there fell out one thing that might a little encourage our Hopes concerning it. The Murderer was a famous kind of a Giant among the Indians; a Fellow Reputed Seven Foot High: This Fellow kill'd the poor old Man in cold Blood, after he had Surrendred himſelf a Priſoner: But behold, before many Hours were out, this famous and bloody Fellow accidentally ſhot himſelf to Death by his Gun going off, when he was fooliſhly pulling a Canoo to the Shore with it.

The laſt bloody Action that can have a Room in our Story is this.

The Indians, (though ſometimes it hath been much doubted, What Indians!) have in this War made ſeveral Deſcents upon ſome of the upper Towns that were our moſt Northerly Settlements upon Connecticut-River. But the Pious and Honeſt People in thoſe Towns, have always given them a brave Repulſe, and had a notable Experience of the Divine Favour to them in their Preſervations. Deerfield has been an Extraordinary Inſtance of Courage in keeping their Station, though they have lived all this while in a very Pihahiroth; and their worthy Paſtor Mr. John Williams, deſerves the Thanks of all this Province, for his Encouraging them all the ways Imaginable to Stand their Ground. Once the Enemy was like to have ſurpriſed them into a grievous Deſolation; but he, with his Praying, and Valiant Little Flock, moſt happily repelled them. And now about the middle of July, 1698. a little before Sun-ſet, Four Indians killed a Man and a Boy in Hatfield Meadows, and carried away Two Boys into Captivity. The Advice coming to Deerfield in the Night, they preſently Diſpatched away Twelve Men to way-lay the Enemy coming up the River; having firſt look'd up unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that they might find the Enemy, and harm none but the Enemy, and Reſcue the Children which the Enemy had ſeized upon. After a Travel of near Twenty Miles, they perceived the Indians in their Canoos coming up the River, but on the other ſide of it, within a Rod or Two of the oppoſite Shore: Whereupon they ſo Shot as to Hit one of the Indians, and then they all Jumpt out of the Canoos, and one of the Boys with them. The wounded Salvage crawled unto the Shoar; where his Back being broken, he lay in great Anguiſh, often Endeavouring with his Hatchet for to knock out his own Brains, and tear open his own Breaſt, but could not: And another Indian ſeeing the Two Boys getting one to another, deſign'd 'em a Shot, but his Gun would not go off: Whereupon he followed 'em with his Hatchet for to have knock'd 'em on the Head; but juſt as he came at 'em, one of our Men ſent a Shot into him that ſpoil'd his Enterprize; and ſo the Boys getting together into one Canoo, brought it over to the Friends thus concerned for them. Theſe good Men ſeeing their Exploit performed thus far; Two Indians deſtroy'd, and Two Children delivered, they fell to Praiſing of God; and One young Man particularly kept thus Expreſſing himſelf; Surely, 'tis God, and not we, that have wrought this Deliverance! But as we have ſometimes been told, that even in the Beating of a Pulſe, the dilating of the Heart, by a Diaſtole of Delight, may be turned into a contracting of it, with a Syſtole of Sorrow: In the beating of a few Pulſe, after this, they ſent Five or Six Men with the Canoo, to fetch the other which was lodged at an Iſland not far off, that they might purſue the other Indians: When thoſe Two Indians having hid themſelves in the High-graſs, unhappily Shot a quick Death into the young Man, whoſe Expreſſions were but now recited. This hopeful young Man's Brother-in-Law was intending to have gone out upon this Action; but the young Man himſelf importuned his Mother to let him go: Which, becauſe he was an only Son, ſhe denied; but then fearing ſhe did not well to withhold her Son from the Service of the Publick, ſhe gave him leave: Saying, See that you do now, and as you go along, reſign, and give give up your ſelf unto the Lord; and I deſire to reſign you to him! So he goes, and ſo he dies; and may he be the laſt that falls in a long and ſad War with Indian Salvages!

ARTICLE XXVIII.

The Epilogue of a long Tragedy.

FOR the preſent then the Indians have done Murdering; they'll do ſo no more till next Time. Let us then have done Writing, when we have a little informed our ſelves what is become of the chief Murderers among thoſe Wretches, for whom, if we would find a Name of a length like one of their own Indian Long-winded words, it might be,

Bombardo-gladio-fun-haſti-flammi-loquentes.

Major Convers, and Captain Alden, in purſuance of Inſtructions received from the Lieut. Governour and Council, arriving at Penobſcot on Octo. 14. 1698. were there informed, that Madockawando, the noted Sagamore, with ſeveral other Sachims of the Eaſt, were lately Dead. And Six Days after this, the chief Sachims now living, with a great Body of Indians, entertained them with a Friendly Diſcourſe; wherein they ſaid, That the Earl of Frontenac had ſent them word, there was a Peace concluded between the Kings of France and England, and that one of the Articles in the Peace was, for Priſoners on both ſides to be Returned, and they were reſolved to Obey the Earl of Frontenac as their Father; and accordingly ſuch Priſoners of ours as they had now at Hand might immediately Return, if we could Perſwade them, for they would not Compel them. When our Engliſh Meſſengers argued with them upon the Perfidiouſneſs of their making a New War after their Submiſſion, the Indians replied, That they were Inſtigated by the French to do what they did, againſt their own Inclinations; adding, That there were Two Jeſuits, one toward Amonoſcoggin, the other at Narridgaway, both of which they deſired the Earl of Bellomont, and the Earl of Frontenac, to procure to be Removed; otherwiſe it could not be expected that any Peace would continue long. The Indians alſo, and the Engliſh Priſoners, gave them to underſtand, that the laſt Winter, many, both Indians and Engliſh Priſoners, were ſtarved to Death; and particularly, Nine Indians in one Company went a Hunting, but met with ſuch hard Circumſtances, that after they had Eat up their Dogs, and their Cats, they died horribly Famiſhed: And ſince the laſt Winter, a grievous and unknown Diſeaſe is got among them, which conſumed them wonderfully. The Sagamore Saquadock further told them, That the Kennebeck Indians would fain have gone to War again this laſt Summer, but the other Refuſed, whereupon they likewiſe Deſiſted: And they Reſolved now to Fight no more; but if any Ill Accident or Action ſhould happen on either ſide, he did in the Name of the Indians Deſire, that we would not preſently make a War upon it, but in a more amicable way compoſe the Differences.

That the Indian Affairs might come to be yet more exactly underſtood, the General Aſſembly of the Province employ'd Colonel John Phillips, and Major Convers, to ſettle them. Theſe Gentlemen took a Difficult and a Dangerous Voyage, in the Depth of Winter, unto the Eaſtern Parts in the Province-Galley, then under the Command of Captain Cyprian Southack; and the Principal Sagamores of the Indians there coming to them, did again Renew and Subſcribe the Submiſſion which they had formerly made in the Year 1693. with this Addition unto it.

'And whereas, notwithſtanding the aforeſaid Submiſſion and Agreement, the ſaid Indians belonging to the Rivers aforeſaid, or ſome of them, thro' the ill Counſel and Inſtigation of the French, have perpetrated ſundry Hoſtilities againſt His Majeſties Subjects the Engliſh, and have not delivered and returned home ſeveral Engliſh Captives in their Hands, as in the ſaid Submiſſion they Covenanted.

'Wherefore we whoſe Names are hereunto Subſcribed, Sagamores, Captains, and Principal Men of the Indians belonging unto the Rivers of Kennebeck, Ammonoſcoggin, and Saco, and Parts adjacent, being ſenſible of our great Offence and Folly, in not complying with the aforeſaid Submiſſion and Agreement, and alſo of the Sufferings and Miſchiefs that we have hereby expoſed our ſelves unto, do in all Humble and moſt Submiſſive manner caſt our ſelves upon His Majeſties Mercy, for the Pardon of all our Rebellions, Hoſtilities, and Violations of our Promiſes, praying to be Received into His Majeſties Grace and Protection; and for, and on behalf of our ſelves, and of all other the Indians, belonging to the ſeveral Rivers and Places aforeſaid, within the Soveraignty of His Majeſty of Great Britain, do again acknowledge and profeſs our Hearty and Sincere Obedience unto the Crown of England, and do ſolemnly Renew, Ratifie, and Confirm all and every of the Articles and Agreements contained in the aforeſaid Recited Commiſſion. And in Teſtimony thereof, we the ſaid Sagamores, Captains, and Principal Men, have hereunto ſet our ſeveral Marks and Seals at Caſco-Bay, near Mares-Point, the Seventh Day of January, in the Tenth Year of the Reign of His Majeſty King WILLIAM the Third, Annoque Domini, $169\frac{8}{9}$.

At this time alſo, the Indians Reſtored as many of the Engliſh Captives in their Hands as were able to Travel above an Hundred Miles in this terrible Seaſon of the Year, from their Head-quarters down to the Sea-ſide; giving all poſſible Satisfaction for the Reſtoration of the Reſt as Early in the Spring as there could be any Travelling.

The Condition of theſe Captives has afforded many very Remarkable Things, whereof 'tis a Thouſand Pities that ſo many are loſt. But becauſe One of the Two Gentlemen Employ'd as Commiſſioners for the Treaty with the Indians, took certain Minutes of Remarkable Things from ſome of the Captives, I am willing to give the Reader a Taſte of them.

At Mares-Point in Caſco-Bay, Jan. 14. $169\frac{8}{9}$.

‘THE Captives informed me, that the Indians have Three Forts at Narridgawog, and Narrackomagog, and Amaſſacanty. And at each of theſe Forts they have a Chappel, and have Images in them.

‘They informed me, that Three Captives in one Wigwam were ſtarved to Death laſt Winter.

‘Mary Fairbanks, and Samuel Hutching, and ſome other Captives, told me, that Jonathan Hutchin belonging to Spruce-Creek, a Lad Fourteen Years old, they met him crying for want of Victuals, for in Two or Three Days he had nothing to Eat. Afterward as he was going to fetch ſome Wood, he felt ſomething hard in his Boſom. He put in his Hand, and unto his Aſtoniſhment he found there Two Great Large Ears of Indian Corn, which were very well Roaſted. He Eat them, and knew not how they came unto him.

‘Some other of the Captives told me, that one Mary Catter, (which Perſon we now brought home with us, belonging to Kittery) her Maſter, and many other Indians, came down to Caſco-Bay. There ſeeing ſome Sloops, or Shallops, they thought they were the Engliſh coming upon them, and ran away into the Woods, and left the ſaid Mary Catter very Sick in the Wigwam, without any thing at all to Eat. They ſtaid away many Days; but left a Fire in the Wigwam. She lay wiſhing for ſomething to Eat, and at length in came a Turtle. She got that, and Eat it; but afterwards began to Deſpair of out-living the Famine, which was returned upon her. At length, when ſhe was very Hungry, in came a Partridge; ſhe took a Stick and Struck it, and Dreſt it, and Eat it. And by that time ſhe was Hungry again, her Maſter came to look after her.

‘They tell of ſeveral of the Indians that have kill'd themſelves with their own Guns, in taking them out of their Canoos.

‘Aſſacombuit ſent Thomaſin Rouſe, a Child of about Ten Years old, unto the Water-ſide to carry ſomething. The Child cried: He took a Stick and ſtruck her down: She lay for Dead: He took her up and threw her into the Water: Some Indians not far off ran in and fetch'd her out. This Child we have now brought Home with us.

‘This Aſſacombuit hath killed and taken this War, (tehy tell me) an Hundred and Fifty Men, Women, and Children. A Bloody Devil.

Thus the Paper of Minutes.

The Reader now has nothing but Peace before him. Doubtleſs he comforts himſelf with Hopes of Times better to Live in, than to Write of!

BUT that which yet more aſſures a Break of Day after a long and ſad Night unto us, is, That the Beſt King at this Day upon Earth, and the Greateſt Monarch that ever Sway'd the Scepter of Great Britain, hath Commiſſion'd a Noble Perſon, who hath in him an Illuſtrious Image of his own Royal Virtues, to take the Government of theſe Provinces; and he is accordingly Arrived now near our Horizon. When the Schools of the Jews delivered, that there were Three Great Gifts of the Good God unto the World, the Law, the Rain, and the Light; R. Zeira added, I pray let us take in Peace for a Fourth. All theſe Four Gifts of God are now enjoy'd by New England: But I muſt now aſk, that our Hope of a Fifth may be added unto the Number: which is, A GOVERNOUR of Signalized Virtues. To the truly Noble Earl of BELLOMONT the whole Engliſh Nation muſt own it ſelf Endebted while it is a Nation, for the moſt Generous and Succeſsful Zeal with which he Laboured for thoſe Acts of Parliament; by Aſſenting whereunto, the Mighty WILLIAM hath Irradiated England with Bleſſings that it never ſaw before His Happy Reign: Bleſſings richly worth all the Expences of a Revolution. England owes no leſs Immortal Statues unto the Earl of Bellomont, than Ireland unto his Illuſtrious Anceſtors. But the Continent of America muſt now Share in the Influence of that Noble Perſon, whoſe Merits have been Signalized on the moſt famous Iſlands of Europe; and the greateſt Perſon that ever ſet Foot on the Engliſh Continent of America is now Arrived unto it. We are now ſatisfying our ſelves in the expectations of the Great and Good Influences to be derived from the Conduct of a Governour, in whom there will meet, —Virtus & Summa poteſtas.

And now, Reader, I will conclude our Hiſtory of the Indian War, in Terms like thoſe uſed by the Syrian Writer at the Concluſion of his Book;

Finis, per Auxilium Domini Noſtri Jeſu Chriſti, menſe Duodecimo, per manus peccatori pauperis & Errantis.

ARTICLE XXIX.

Quakers Encountred.

FOR the preſent then we have done with the Indians: But while the Indians have been thus moleſting us, we have ſuffered Moleſtations of another ſort, from another ſort of Enemies, which may with very good Reaſon be caſt into the ſame Hiſtory with them. If the Indians have choſen to prey upon the Frontiers and Out-Skirts of the Province, the Quakers have choſen the very ſame Frontiers, and Out-Skirts for their more Spiritual Aſſaults; and finding little Succeſs elſewhere, they have been Labouring inceſſantly, and ſometimes not unſucceſsfully, to Enchant and Poiſon the Souls of poor People, in the very Places where the Bodies and Eſtates of the People have preſently after been devoured by the Salvages. But that which makes it the more agreeable, to allow the Quakers an Article in our Hiſtory of the Indians, is, that a certain ſilly Scribler, the very Firſt-born of Nonſenſicality, (and a Firſt-born too, that one might Salute as the Martyr Polycarp once did the wicked Marcion, (One Tom Maule, at this time living in Salem, hath expoſed unto the Publick a Volume of Nonſenſical Blaſphemies and Hereſies, wherein he ſets himſelf to Defend the Indians in their Bloody Villanies, and Revile the Country for Defending it ſelf againſt them. And that the Venom of this Pamphlet might be improved unto the Heighth of Slanderous Wickedneſs, there hath been ſince added unto it in another Pamphlet, a parcel of Ingredients compounded for Miſchief, as if by the Art of the Apothecary. None but he whom the Jews in their Talmuds call, Bentamalion, could have inſpired ſuch a Slanderer! Have the Quakers ever yet Cenſured this their Author for Holding-forth in his Alcoran, [pag. 221.] That the Devil, Sin, Death, and Hell, are but Nothing, they are but a Non-Entity: And, [pag. 183.] That all Men who have a Body of Sin remaining in them, are Witches? I have cauſe to believe that they never did! Nor that they ever adviſed him to pull in his Horns, from goring the ſides of New-England with ſuch Paſſages as thoſe in [pag. 195.] the ſame horrible Pamphlet: God hath well rewarded the Inhabitants of New-England for their Unrighteous Dealings towards the Native Indians, whom now the Lord hath ſuffered to reward the Inhabitants with a double meaſure of Blood, by Fire and Sword, &c. And thoſe Unrighteous Dealings he Explains to be the killing of the Indians, (or Murdering of them) by the Old Planters of theſe Colonies in their Firſt Settlement. Thus are the Aſhes of our Fathers vilely ſtaled upon by one, who perhaps would not ſtick at the Villany of doing as much upon their Baptiſm it ſelf. I muſt tell you, Friends, that if you don't publickly give forth a Teſtimony to defie Tom Maule, and his Works, it will be thought by ſome, who it may be don't wiſh you ſo well as I do, that you own this Bloody Stuff: Which doubtleſs you'll not be ſo ill adviſed as to do. But certainly if the good People of New-England now make it not a Proverb for a Liar of the Firſt Magnitude, He is as very a Liar as TOM MAULE, they will deprive their Language of one Significant Expreſſion which now offers it ſelf unto them.

Let us now leave our Friend Maule's Works as a fit Volume to be an Appendix unto the Famous Tartaretus, and worthy of a Room in Pantagruel's Library. The fitteſt way to anſwer him, would be to ſend him to Boſton Woods!

In the mean time I owe unto the Publick a piece of Hiſtory, which it may be for the Safety of our Northern Towns to be acquainted withal. Know, Sirs, that once the Famous George Keith undertook to be the Champion of our New-Engliſh Quakers, and bid fair to be the very Dalae, or Preſter John, of all the Engliſh Tartars; but a Miniſter of Boſton, upon that occaſion, publiſhing a Book, Entituled, Little Flocks guarded againſt grievous Wolves, could not but complain of it as a very Scandalous Thing in George Keith, to maintain the Points of the Foxian Quakeriſm, while he really differed from them. All this while George Keith was admired by our Quakers as an Apoſtle, or an Oracle: But he finding it impoſſible to maintain the groſs Tenets of the common Quakers, preach'd unto them the Neceſſity of believing on a Chriſt without, as well as a Chriſt within. Hereupon there grew ſuch alienations between him and the other Quakers, (who had been taught by George Fox to ſay, The Devil is in them who ſay, they are ſaved by Chriſt without them) that he not only has written divers Learned Books to confute thoſe very Doctrines of the Common Quakers, which the Paſtors of New-England had upon his Provocation written againſt, but alſo has therefore undergone a Storm of Perſecution from the Friends in Penſilvania: Yea, 'tis verily thought that poor George would have been made a Sacrifice to Squire Samuel Jennings, and the reſt of the Penſilvanian Dragons; and that ſince a Crime which their Laws had made Capital, was mention'd in the Mittimus whereby Keith was committed, they would have Hang'd him, if a Revolution upon their Government had not ſet him at liberty. Being by the Fines, and Goals, and Fierce Uſages of the Quakers in Penſilvania, driven over to England, the wonderful Hand of God hath made this very Man, I think I may ſay, incomparably the greateſt Plague that ever came upon that Sect of Energumens. Although he do himſelf ſtill retain the Name of a Quaker, yet he hath in one Treatiſe after another Earneſtly called upon the Divines throughout the Nation more Vigorouſly to Employ their Talents againſt the Quakers, as a more Dangerous Generation of People than they are well aware; and he did in the Year 1696. with the leave of the Lord Mayor, Challenge the Quakers to make their Appearance at Turners-Hall, in the chief City of Europe; where he proved unto the Satiſfaction of a vaſt Aſſembly, that the chief Writers of the Quakers aſſert Chriſt neither to be God, nor Man; and that they deny Chriſt to be pray'd unto; and that they had affirm'd, Chriſt's outward Blood ſhed on the Ground, to be no more than the Blood of another Saint; and that they had charged him with New Doctrine, for directing to Faith in Chriſt without us, as well as within us; and that at their Meetings they had cenſured him, for ſaying, That Chriſt's Body came out of the Grave, which they ſay, It never did: And many more ſuch horrid Matters. To confirm theſe things, beſides the grievous Bites which Francis Bugg, one of their late Friends hath given them, one Daniel Leeds, without wholly caſting off the Profeſſion of a Quaker, hath lately Printed a Book, wherein he produces above Threeſcore Inſtances of the Flat Contradictions which he hath obſerved in the Books of the Friends, that have moſt pretended unto Infallibility; and he demonſtrates from evident Matter or Fact, that though they declared unto the World, That their Sufferings had been greater, and more unjuſt, than the Sufferings of Jeſus and his Apoſtles; yet they themſelves were no ſooner mounted into the Seat of Government, than they fell to Perſecuting as bad as any in the World. Albeit Fox writes, They that cauſe People to be put in Priſon, and have their Goods taken away, are Diſorderly Teachers, and ſhall be rooted out: Nevertheleſs, Leeds proves by many Examples, that the Penſilvanians did it even upon their own Friends, for meer Scruples of their Conſciences. 'Tis reported, the Quakers are ſo confounded at this Book of Leeds, that they have been at the charge to buy up the whole Impreſſion of it, and ſo to Stifle and Smother it: If it be ſo, I hope 'twill but produce a New Impreſſion of ſo rare a Book. The Marvellous Providence of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, having thus employ'd the Pens of the Quakers themſelves to warn you, that you beware of Quakeriſm, it will be a marvellous Infatuation in any of you, after this to be led away with that Error of the Wicked. Reader, make a Pauſe, and here Admire the Marvellous Providence of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt! The firſt and great Apoſtle of the Quakers, even George Fox, the Shooe-maker, in his Great Myſtery, pag. 94. excludes from the Church of Chriſt thoſe who are not Infallible in Diſcerning the Hearts of other Men. Whereas now in Spite of all their Infallibility, ſuch Friends as Keith (and Leeds) whom they once admired, profeſs that they never in their Hearts believed, as the Common Foxian Quakers do; and Quakeriſm ſuffers from none in the World more than theſe. But that I may a little Suggeſt unto you certain Methods of Encountring thoſe Adverſaries of your Faith, which go about ſeeking whom they may deceive, and whom I do here offer to prove as horrid Idolaters, as even thoſe that worſhipp'd the Rats of Egypt, if it be fairly demanded of me, I will firſt Recite unto you certain Paſſages of a Diſcourſe, which a Miniſter of Boſton had with a very Buſie and Noiſie Teacher among the Quakers, (and another of the Friends) in his return from his Viſitation unto ſome of our Northern Towns, where the giddy People had cry'd him up for a None-Such.

Quaker. We are come to give thee a Friendly Viſit.

Miniſter. I am glad to ſee you at my Houſe; you ſhall be welcome to the beſt Entertainment my Houſe can afford you.

But will you do me the Favour to let me underſtand the Deſigns upon which you viſit theſe Parts of the Country?

Quaker. I come to Preach Jeſus Chriſt.

Miniſter. Excuſe me— What Chriſt, I pray?

Quaker. The ſame Chriſt that appeared unto Abraham, and Iſaac, and Jacob; and that appeared unto Moſes in the Buſh, and that was with Iſrael in the Wilderneſs—

Miniſter. I would interrupt you. I perceive that we ſhall be drawn into ſome Diſcourſe. Matter of Argument will occurr, I foreſee, in our Diſcourſe. Argument ſometimes does draw forth Words that may have too much Warmth in them, I purpoſe none ſuch. But if you are ſenſible that I do let fall any one ſuch Word in our Diſputation, do me the favour to take notice of it unto me, and I'll immediately correct it. Now if you pleaſe—

Quaker. Thou ſpeakeſt very well. This is but according to the good Report we have heard of thee.

Miniſter. Friend, I am ſenſible that you are come among us to Preach a Religion, different from that which is commonly Preached, Profeſſed, and Practiſed in the Country. If you approve the Religion of the Country, I can't ſee where's the Senſe of it, for you to take ſuch tedious Journeys for our Illumination. I pray be ſo kind as to let me know what point in our holy Religion you do not Approve?

Quaker. 'Tis not my Buſineſs here to Enquire into thy Religion. I am come to Preach the Religion of Jeſus Chriſt; the ſame that the Holy Prophets and Apoſtles believed; even the inward Manifeſtation of Chriſt in our Hearts—.

Miniſter. To make ſhort Work on it; I perceive you both to be that ſort of People we call Quakers. Now there is among the Quakers that extream Uncertainty, Variety, and Contradiction, that no Man can ſay what you hold, any further than each Individual Perſon will confeſs his own Tenets. I muſt therefore pray the favour of you to tell me; do you own George Fox's Book, Entituled, The Great Myſtery?

Quaker. 'Tis none of our Buſineſs to tell what Books we own, and what we do not own: And it is none of thy Buſineſs to Ask us. I ſay, we own Jeſus Chriſt and his Inward Manifeſtation in our Hearts. And that's enough!

Miniſter. You'll excuſe me: I do again ask, whether you do own George Fox's Book of The Great Myſtery? Becauſe doubtleſs you have Read it. And if you'll ask me as much concerning any Book under Heaven, (that I have Read) Whether I own it, or, How much I own of it, I'll Anſwer you with all the Freedom in the World.

Quaker. I ſay, what haſt thou to do with George Fox? Or to Examine me?

Miniſter. Yes, Friend, I do, and muſt, and will Examine You. For you are come to Holdforth unto as many of my Flock as you can; and the Word of God bids me to Try you. And I have to do with George Fox too; becauſe George Fox in his Writings has to do with me. And if you will ſincerely tell me, whether you own George Fox, or no, I ſhall more probably tell who you are. In ſhort, if you'll ſay, you Deny and Renounce George Fox, then I muſt go another way to Work with you. If you'll ſay, you own him, then I muſt endeavour to ſave you from ſome of his Damnable Hereſies.

Quaker. What Hereſies?

Miniſter. Numberleſs. But I do at this time call to mind Three of them.

Firſt, That the Soul of Man is without Beginning, and Infinite. This is, if I forget not, in the 90th Page of that Book.

Secondly, That it is not contrary to the Scripture, that God the Father took upon him Humane Nature. And, That the Scripture does not tell People of a Trinity, nor Three Perſons in God; but that theſe Three Perſons were brought in by the Pope.

This is in pag. 246.

Thirdly, That they that are not compleat in Sanctification, are not compleat in Juſtification.

This is in pag. 284. Now,

What ſay ye, Sirs?

Quaker. What haſt thou to do to Rake into the Aſhes of the Dead? Let George Fox alone. Haſt thou any thing to charge upon me?

Miniſter. I ſhall know if you'll tell me, whether you own George Fox, or no. And you can tell me if you will. I would be more Civil to you, Sirs.

Quaker. I never ſaw that Book of George Fox.

[And ſo ſaid the other Quaker that was with him.]

Miniſter. Sirs, you aſtoniſh me? What! Never ſee George Fox's Book of The Great Myſtery! 'Tis impoſſible! This thing is to me a Myſtery! Sirs, that Book is the very Bible of Quakeriſm. 'Tis Eſſential unto a Quaker, at leaſt unto a Teaching Quaker as you are, to be Indoctrinated from that Book. Never ſee it, Man!—However, if you ſay ſo, I muſt believe it.

Quaker. [Fell into an Harangue, Repeating what he had Preached abroad about the Country; which, becauſe I would miſ-recite nothing, I dare not undertake exactly to Recite in this Place.]

Miniſter. I perceive our Converſation will be to little Advantage, except we get a little cloſer to ſome certain Point, which I have hitherto endeavoured, but ineffectually.

Sirs, There are ſeveral Points which I would willingly bring you to. And there happening to be ſeveral of my honeſt Neighbours at Hand, I have pray'd them (with your leave) to walk in, that they may be Witneſſes of what paſſes between us.

Firſt, I'll begin, if you pleaſe, with this.

I told you at the beginning, I would not willingly Treat you with one hard Word. There is an hard Word which will preſently occurr by the unavoidable Courſe of Diſputation. I would Pray you to eaſe me of the Trouble of ſpeaking it. You ſhall your ſelf have the ſpeaking of it.

Quaker. What's that?

Miniſter. I pray, Friend, what doth the Scripture ſay of them that ſay, They know Jeſus Chriſt, and yet keep not His Commandments?

Quaker. Nay, what doſt thou ſay the Scripture ſays in that caſe?

Miniſter. You will compel me I ſee—I ſay then, the Scripture ſays, He that ſays I know Him, and keeps not His Commandments, is a Liar, and the Truth is not in him. 'Tis in 1 Joh. 2. 4.

Quaker. And what then?

Miniſter. Why this then. He that ſays I know Jeſus Chriſt, and yet keeps not the Commandments of Jeſus Chriſt, is a Liar, and the Truth is not in him.

You ſay, You know Jeſus Chriſt. But you muſt give me leave to ſay, that you keep not the Commandments of Jeſus Chriſt.

Therefore—pray Sirs, do you help out the Concluſion. I am loth to ſpeak it. You know what it is.

Quaker. Yes, yes, We know well enough what Concluſion thou wouldeſt be at: Thou wouldeſt ſay, that we are Liars, and that the Truth is not in us.

Miniſter. Right! Since it muſt be ſo.

Quaker. But what Commandment of Jeſus Chriſt is there that we don't keep?

Miniſter. The Commandment of Jeſus Chriſt is, for his Diſciples to be Baptiſed with Water; but you Quakers do not keep that Commandment of Jeſus Chriſt.

Quaker. How doſt thou prove that Jeſus Chriſt commanded Baptiſm with Water?

Miniſter. I know you muſt have the word Water, or nothing will content you; elſe I would have urged for a ſufficient Proof, our Lords Commanding His Miniſters to Baptiſe Men, [Matth. 28. 19.] this Command expreſſes our Duty. 'Tis not our Duty to Baptiſe Men with the Holy Spirit. This belongs not unto Us, but unto Him, whoſe that Holy Spirit is. You will not ſay we Sin, if we don't Baptiſe the Diſciples in all Nations with the Holy Spirit. So then it muſt be a Baptiſm with Water which is there Commanded by our Lord. But as I ſaid, you muſt have the word Water, and you ſhall have it.

The Apoſtle Peter ſaid—

Quaker. The Apoſtle Peter! The Apoſtle Peter! Thou waſt to prove that Jeſus Chriſt Commanded Baptiſm with Water, and now thou art come to the Apoſtle Peter!

Miniſter. Stay, Friend, not ſo faſt! Will you ſay then, that the Commandments brought by the Apoſtle Peter, as the Commandments of Jeſus Chriſt, are not the Commandments of Jeſus Chriſt? But however, I'll mend the Expreſſion---

The Spirit of Jeſus Chriſt in the Apoſtle Peter, (now I hope it fits you!)—

Quaker. [J. S.] Thou art a Monſter, all Mouth, and no Ears—

Miniſter. —Prethee talk Civilly; don't make me believe that I am at Epheſus. If I were in one of your Houſes, I would not give you ſuch Language; you had but now a greater Liberty to uſe your Mouth than I have hitherto taken; and my Ears were Patient. But you foreſee my Argument is going to Pinch you. 'Tis but Civility to let me finiſh it.

Quaker. Thou waſt to prove that Jeſus Chriſt Commanded Baptiſm with Water. And thou haſt not proved it. And therefore thou ſpeakeſt Falſly.

Miniſter. What do you mean? Theſe little Shuffles won't help you.

I ſay, The Spirit of Jeſus Chriſt in the Apoſtle Peter, after our Lord's Aſcenſion, when it was impoſſible for John's Baptiſm (which was into the Meſſiah ſuddenly to come, not already come) to have Place, did ſay, in Act. 10. 47. Can any Man forbid Water, that theſe ſhould not be Baptiſed, which have received the Holy Ghoſt.

Quaker. How does this prove that Jeſus Chriſt Commanded theſe to be Baptiſed with Water?

Miniſter. Thus—

If Jeſus Chriſt had not Commanded Baptiſm with Water, any Man might have then forbid it.

But no Man could forbid it.

Therefore Jeſus Chriſt Commanded it.

Quaker. Therefore! Therefore! Argo! Argo! Why doſt thou think Religion is to be proved by thy Therefore's, by thy Argo's?

Miniſter. Friend, I perceive the Word therefore is a very dead-doing ſort of a Word to ye. I'll diſmiſs this terrible Word. I'll only ſay, the Reaſon why none could forbid Believers to be Baptiſed with Water, was meerly becauſe Jeſus Chriſt Commanded it, Quaker. BECAUSE, Why the Word becauſe is as bad as the Word therefore.

Miniſter. [Smiling.] It may be ſo. But in the mean time you are wonderfully unreaſonable! I ſay, why could none forbid Water for the faithful to be Baptiſed?

Quaker. Who ſays none could forbid Water? 'Tis only ſaid, Can any Man forbid Water?

Miniſter. I pray Sirs, and is not this, none can?

But I'll bring the Matter to bear upon you without thoſe Two dangerous Words, THEREFORE and BECAUSE, at which you are ſo terrified.

I will put the Matter into the Form of a Queſtion: And your Anſwer to this Queſtion, ſhall put an End to our preſent Velitations.

Quaker. What have we to do to Anſwer thy Queſtions?

Miniſter. My Queſtion is,

Whether a Man might not forbid in the Worſhip of Jeſus Chriſt, what Jeſus Chriſt himſelf hath no way Commanded?

You can Anſwer this Queſtion if you will; and I deſire, I demand your Anſwer.

Quaker. What? For us to anſwer thy Queſtions! That would be to Enſnare our ſelves.

Miniſter. I am very ſenſible of that. Therefore take Notice you are enſnared in the Toils of your own miſerable Deluſions. But ſtill I ſay, Anſwer my Queſtion.

Quaker. Do you ſee Neighbours? Friend M. was to prove that Jeſus Chriſt commanded Baptiſm, and now he's come to a Queſtion!

Miniſter. So I am truly. And I ſee 'tis a Queſtion that puts you into a Sweat. I beſeech you to Anſwer it. I require you to Anſwer it. What ſhall I ſay? I defie you to Anſwer it. Pardon my Cogency; you Force me to't!

Quaker. I ſay, how does a Queſtion prove that Jeſus Chriſt commanded Baptiſm with Water? And why doſt thou Baptiſe Infants?

Miniſter. Nay, I'll keep you to the Queſtion. Your Anſwer to the Queſtion will prove it; I am deſigning to make you your ſelves prove it. And, Sirs, I do here offer to you, that I will give the beſt Anſwer I can to any Queſtion in the World that you ſhall put unto me: Why are you ſo loth to Anſwer one ſhort Queſtion of mine?

Quaker. I be not obliged to Anſwer thy Queſtion?

Miniſter. I muſt contrive ſome fair way to Compel ſome Anſwer unto this one Queſtion. Give me leave therefore to tell you, that if you do not Anſwer this Queſtion, you go away conquered and confounded. Yea, Sirs, I muſt in faithfulneſs tell you that you carry away the dreadful Mark of Hereticks upon you, even, to be Condemned in your own Conſcience. You go away Self-Condemned, that you don't keep the Commandments of Jeſus Chriſt; and therefore that you are— what you Remember the Apoſtle John ſaid concerning you.

Quaker. I don't Condemn thee for uſing Baptiſm with Water.

Miniſter. This is no Anſwer to the Queſtion ſtill: For you don't obſerve it your ſelf; neither you, nor any Quakers under Heaven. Wherefore I ſtill urge for an Anſwer.

Quaker. Thou art not Civil to us. Is this thy Civility to Strangers? We have heard a great Fame of thee, for thy Civil and Obliging Carriage towards others that are not of thy Perſwaſion. But now thou are uncivil to us. That which I have to ſay, is, I will keep to that Book, the Bible, and I will Preach what is in that Book.

Miniſter. [Taking up the Bible] Friend, you pretend then to underſtand this Book. I do here make you this offer, that I will immediately turn you to Ten ſeveral Places in one Book of this Holy Bible, [the Chronicles] and if you can give me a Tolerable Solution of any one of them, I'll acknowledge that you are worthy to Preach out of it.

Quaker. Canſt thou do it thy ſelf?

Miniſter. I humbly hope I can.

Quaker. How doſt thou know that I can't?

Miniſter. I ſay you Can't. Now do you Accept my offer: If you can I'll own, that I have wrong'd you.

Quaker. What's that to thee what I can do?

Miniſter. Look you Neighbours; I think 'tis to no purpoſe to proceed unto any other Points, with ſuch unreaſonable Folks as theſe. You ſee how 'tis. If you deſire it, I'll proceed.

Neighbours. No, Sir, 'tis to no purpoſe, they are a People of no Reaſon.

Quaker. Nay, Friend M— I would not have thee to be ſo Hard upon us; I mean thee no Harm. I hear thou takeſt a great deal of pains for the good of thy People; and they will do well, to Hearken to thee. I have rebuked ſome of them for ſpeaking Evil of thee. Yea, it is my Judgment, that thou, and other ſuch Miniſters as thou art, ought Honourably to be maintained by the People.

Miniſter. You differ from all your Friends, methinks. What? Would you have us to be Hirelings? 'Tis very ſtrange to hear a Quaker plead for the Maintainance of our Miniſtry. But for your ſatisfaction I'll tell you, the People whom I ſerve I never once in all my Life ask'd for any Maintainance or Salary; and I never made any Agreement with them about aany Salary in all my Life.

Quaker. I ſay, I would not have thee too Hard upon us. New-England has Perſecuted our Friends at a grievous Rate.—

Miniſter. Nay, Friends, be not you too Hard upon me about that Matter. I approve Perſecution as Little as any of you all. I abhor it, I have Preach'd againſt it, I have Writ againſt it, I have Bewailed the Miſtakes that ſome good Men have committed in it. I would have you Treated with all the Civility imaginable. I would not have the Civil Magiſtrate inflict upon you the damage of one Farthing for your Conſciences.

Quaker. But now you may ſee how the Judgments of God are come upon the Eaſt-Country, by the Indians for your Perſecution.

Miniſter. I can't tell that neither. For tho' I am ſorry at my Heart that ever you were Perſecuted: Yet I can't ſay, That becauſe Boſton was guilty of Perſecution, therefore Newichawannic, and Caſco-Bay, (Places in other Provinces) that never had any ſuch thing in it, muſt be cut off.

Quaker. Yes, they Perſecuted at the Eaſtward. There were Two Women of our Friends cruelly Scourged there.

Miniſter. I ſuppoſe you refer to a Story publiſhed by one George Biſhop, a Quaker: He Complains bitterly of the New-England Perſecution, becauſe there came Two Quaker Women Stark Naked into our Publick Aſſemblies, and they were carried unto the Whipping-poſt for it. This was in the Northern Parts of the Country, as I have been told. Theſe Baggages, I believe, were the Perſecuted Women you talk of!

Quaker. Well, and what if they did appear Naked, to ſhow the People the Nakedneſs of their Sins?

Miniſter. For ſhame, Sirs, let us have no more of this Talk.

Quaker. Why didſt thou treat George Keith ſo hardly?

Miniſter. He deſerved it when I ſo Treated him. And you Quakers have ſince Treated him Ten Times worſe than ever I did. You write whole Books of Railing againſt him. I never got him into Goals, and under Fines. I ſhould have been Troubled at any that would have done ſo. But you have done it. Therefore I believe 'tis beſt for you to leave that Subject.

And ſo after a few other ſmall Pulls, the Saw ſtood ſtill: The Conference ended.

There are Five or Six Witneſſes which I have to atteſt unto the Truth of this Relation which I have here given, of a Conference with a Quaker, which had all the Friends far and near wondering (as well as wandring) after him. And yet theſe Cretians boaſted among their Friends, how much they had confounded the Miniſter in this Conference.

All that I would preſume now to Commend unto thoſe Towns, which have ſuch Quakers annoying of them, is this, Brethren, carry it well, even with all convenient Civility and Humanity, towards this Poor Deluded People; while you Charge your Children and Servants that they do not go unto their Meetings: And caſt not your ſelves alſo into Temptation by needleſly being there. But after all, yea, before all, make an Experiment which the good People at Lyn made a little while ago, with a Succeſs truly obſervable and memorable.

The Quakers made a more than ordinary Deſcent upon the Town of Lyn, and Quakeriſm ſuddenly ſpread there at ſuch a rate as to Alarum the Neighbourhood. The Paſtor of the Church there Indicted a Day for Prayer with Faſting, to implore the help of Heaven againſt the unaccountable Enchantment; and the good People preſented accordingly, on July 19. 1694. their fervent Supplications unto the Lord, that the Spiritual Plague might proceed no further. The Spirit of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt gave a Remarkable Effect unto this holy Method of Encountring the Charms of Quakeriſm: It proved a better Method than any Coercion of the Civil Magiſtrate: Quakeriſm in Lyn received (as I am informed) a Death-Wound from that very Day; the Number of Quakers in that Place hath been ſo far from Increaſing, that I am told, it hath ſince rather Decreaſed notably. Now let other Endangered Plantations go and do likewiſe.

The Quakers are ſuch Enemies to the Holy Religion, which is the Life of New-England, that you muſt Excuſe my Concern to have you Fortify'd againſt their Attempts alſo, while I am giving you an Hiſtory of your other Enemies. What all of them would be at, methinks, was a little intimated by what One of them once Declared. The Globe-Tavern was near our Publick and Spacious Meeting-Houſe at Salem; and a Noted Quaker there cauſed a Paper to be ſet upon the Door of that Meeting-Houſe, which had ſuch Stuff as this written in it.

Beware, Beware, and Enter not!
But rather to the Globe, and ſpend a Pot.

This is but like a Paſſage mentioned in the Life of that Excellent Man, Mr. P. Henry, lately publiſhed. A Debauched Gentleman in his Revels, Drinking and Swearing, at Malpas, was reproved by a Quaker then in his Company. Why, ſaid the Gentleman, I'll ask thee one Queſtion, Whether it is better for me to follow Drinking and Swearing, or to go and hear Henry? The Quaker Anſwered; Nay, of the Two rather follow thy Drinking and Swearing. Behold the Spirit of Quakeriſm! When I once compelled a Quaker to confeſs that the Body of Jeſus of Nazareth roſe from the Grave, and went up into the Heavens, he begg'd me that I would not improve his Confeſſion, as if made on the behalf of all his Friends. And another of them, as I hear, publickly Held-forth in one of his late Stercorations, that the Husks of the Swine, on which the Prodigal fed in the Parable, were the Bread and Wine in that which People call The Sacrament.

But what will become of thoſe Forlorn Villages, that ſhall reſign themſelves to the Conduct of that Light within, which our Sacred Scriptures indeed never expreſly mention but once or twice, and then call it Real Darkneſs; and which may lead Men to all this Wickedneſs? There was among the Mahometans in the Eaſtern Parts of the World a Sect called Bateniſts, from the Arabic, Baten, (which ſignifies within:) who were the Enthuſiaſts that followed The Light within, like our Quakers; and on this Principle they did ſuch numberleſs Villanies, that the World was not able to bear them. None of all their Diabolical Raveries which I know I am now pulling on my ſelf, and which I value no more than if they came from the Pouliats of Malabar, ſhall frighten me from Solliciting your Chriſtian Cares and Prayers, that you be not over-run with Engliſh Bateniſts. And I muſt Sollicitouſly make the Obſervation, that although ſuch a Number of Quakers in our Nation be a dreadful Judgment of God upon Men, ſmiting them with Spiritual Plagues for their Unfruitfulneſs and Unthankfulneſs under the Goſpel; nevertheleſs, 'tis a ſpecial Favour of God, that the Number of Quakers is no greater; for if they ſhould multiply, not only would Chriſtianity be utterly Extinguiſhed, but Humanity it ſelf Exterminated. It is well known, that when a Quaker had Stolen an Hour-glaſs, their Mahomet, George Fox, (of whom Sol. Eccles, in a Sheet, call'd, The Quakers Challenge, page 6. ſays, He was the Chriſt,) thus Vindicated it, [Great Myſt. pag. 77.] As for any being moved of the Lord, to take away your Hour-glaſs from you, by the Eternal Power it is owned. Reader, doſt not thou even Tremble to think what a Dark Land we ſhould have, if it ſhould ever be fill'd with theſe pretended Followers of the Light; who wear the Name of Tremblers? In truth, I know not unto what better one might compare them, than unto the Macheveliors growing upon St. Lucia; Trees which bear Apples of ſuch an Odour and Colour as invites People to Eat thereof; but it is horribly Dangerous to do ſo; for there is no Antidote that can ſecure a Man from ſpeedy Death, who hath once taſted of them. The Leaf of the Trees makes an Ulcer on any place touched with it; the Dew that falls from them fetches off the Skin; the very Shadow ſwells a Man, ſo as to Kill him, if he be not ſpeedily helped.

ARTICLE XXX.

Things to Come.

FROM Relating of Things paſt, it would no doubt be very acceptable to the Reader if we could paſs to Foretelling of Things to come. Our Carioſity in this point may eaſily come to a Degree Culpable and Criminal. We muſt be humbly content with what the God in whoſe Hands are our Times hath Reveal'd unto us.

Two things we will venture to Inſert.

Firſt, For our ſelves at home, let us remember an awful ſaying of our Goodwin, quoted by my Reverend Friend Mr. Noyes, in his late Excellent Sermon at our Anniverſary Election.

'As you look for Storms in Autumn, and Froſts in Winter, ſo expect Judgments where the Goſpel hath been Preached; for the Quarrel of the Covenant muſt be Avenged.

Secondly, For the Church abroad, I am far from deſerting what was aſſerted in the Sermon Preached at our Anniverſary Election, in the Year 1696. 'The Tidings which I bring unto you are, that there is a Revolution and a Reformation at the very Door, which will be vaſtly more wonderful than any of the Deliverances yet ſeen by the Church of God from the beginning of the World. I do not ſay that the next Year will bring on this Happy Period; but this I do ſay, the bigger part of this Aſſembly, may, in the Courſe of Nature, live to ſee it. Theſe things will come on with horrible Commotions, and Concuſſions, and Confuſions: The mighty Angels of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt will make their Deſcent, and ſet the World a Trembling at the Approaches of their Almighty Lord: They will Shake Nations, and Shake Churches, and Shake mighty Kingdoms, and Shake once more, not Earth only, but Heaven alſo.

Unto theſe Two Things my Reader will not miſ-improve it, I hope, if I add a Third lately fallen into my Hands; and never yet ſo expoſed unto the Publick.

A Wonderful Matter Inconteſtably Demonſtrated, and much deſired by ſome good Men to be in this place Communicated.

‘MR. John Sadler, a very Learned and a very Pious Man, and a moſt Exemplary Chriſtian, lay Sick in his Bed at his Mannor of Warmwell in Dorſetſhire: In the Year 1663. in the time of his Illneſs he was viſited by Mr. Cuthbert Bound, the Miniſter of Warmwell.

‘Mr. Sadler then deſired his Man, (one Thomas Gray) to ſee that there ſhould be no Body elſe in the Room, and lock the Door, and give him the Key.

‘He then ſat up in his Bed, and asked Mr. Bound and the Attendant Gray, whether they ſaw no Body? And whether they did not hear what a Perſon ſaid that ſtood at the Corner of the Chamber? They replied, No. He wondred at it, and ſaid, The Man ſpake ſo loud that the whole Pariſh might hear him.

‘Hereupon calling for a Pen and Ink, he wrote what was told him, and made them ſet their Hands to it; for he told them, The Man would not be gone till he had ſeen that done.

‘The Articles written down were,

I. ‘That there would, after ſo many Months, be a Plague in London, whereof ſo many would die, [naming the Number.]

II. ‘That the greateſt part of the City would be Burnt, and Pauls he particularly ſhow'd him Tumbled down into Ruins, as if beaten down with great Guns.

III. ‘That there would be Three Sea-Fights between the Engliſh and the Dutch.

IV. ‘That there would appear Three Blazing Stars; the laſt of which would be terrible to behold. [He ſaid, the Man ſhow'd him the Star.]

V. ‘That afterwards there would come Three ſmall Ships to Land in the Weſt of Weymouth, which would put all England in an Uproar, but it would come to nothing.

VI. ‘That in the Year 1688. there would come to paſs ſuch a thing in the Kingdom, as all the World would take notice of.

VII. ‘That after this, and after ſome further Diſturbance, there would be Happy Times: And a Wonderful Thing would come to paſs, which he was not now to declare.

VIII. ‘That he and his Man (Gray) ſhould Die before the Accompliſhment of theſe things; but Mr. Bound ſhould live to ſee it.

IX. ‘For the Confirmation of the whole, the Man thus appearing told him, that he ſhould be Well the next Day; and there would come Three Men to viſit him, one from Ireland, one from Guernſey, and his Brother Bingham.

‘Accordingly the Day following Mr. Sadler went abroad: And this Day there accidentally met at his Houſe, and ſo Dined with him, firſt the Lord Steel, who had been Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and now returning from thence in his way to London, came to ſee Mr. Sadler: Secondly, Monſieur de la Marſh, a French Miniſter from Guernſey; and Laſtly, his Brother Bingham.

‘Mr. Bound and Gray, within Three Days after this, made Affidavit of it before Colonel Giles Strangewayes, and Colonel Cocker, who is yet Alive.

‘Mr. Daniel Sadler, and Mr. John Sadler, the Sons of this Old Mr. Sadler, very Serious and Worthy Chriſtians, are at this time living in Rotterdam; one of them is His Majeſties Agent for Tranſportation.

‘Mr. Daniel Sadler, making his Applications to Mr. Bound for his Teſtimony about this Matter, the ſaid Old Mr. Bound, in a Letter dated, Warmwell, Aug. 30. O. S. 1697. aſſerts the Matter at large unto him; and Subſcribes, This I ſhall Teſtifie before the King himſelf, if occaſion be, when he comes into England.

Yours, Cuthbert Bound, yet
Miniſter of Warmwell.

‘Mr. Daniel Sadler has this Teſtimony further fortified by a Letter from one Mr. Robert Loder; telling him, that he had met with an Old Copy of the Depoſitions aforeſaid, which accordingly he Tranſcribes for him; and ſeveral yet living in Dorcheſter affirmed unto him the Truth of the Story.

‘The Copies of theſe Letters are now in Boſton in New-England.

‘Mr. John Sadler adds his Teſtimony, That his Father told unto his Mother and himſelf, that he had been told of Remarkable things to come to paſs, particularly the Burning of London and Pauls. But that they were not acquainted with all the Matters he foretold unto Mr. Bound and Gray. Only he Remembers well they Two were with him in his Chamber alone; and his Father went abroad within a Day or Two; and that (according to the Sign he had given to them,) the Three Perſons aforeſaid viſited him. He adds, that his Father ſpoke of leaving in Writing the things that had been ſhown to him; and that a little after he ſaw once a thin Octavo Manuſcript in his Father's Study, which he believed had thoſe things in it; but after that he could never find it. This Teſtimony is dated in October 1697.

A Worthy and a Godly Gentleman, at this time living in Rotterdam, and well acquainted with both Mr. Daniel and Mr. John Sadler, ſends this to Mr. Increaſe Mather in New-England, with a Letter dated 26. March. 1698.

READER, I am not Ignorant that many Cheats and Shams have been impoſed upon the World, under the Notion of Communications from the Inviſible World; and I hope I am not becoming a Viſionary. But Fancies and Juggles have their Foundation laid in Realities; there would never have been Impoſtures of Apparitions, and of Communications from the Inviſible World, if there never had been Really ſome ſuch things to be Counterfeited and Imitated. Wiſe Men therefore will count it a Folly in its Exaltation and Extremity, to deride all Inſtances of Strange things arriving to us from the Inviſible World, becauſe that Some Things have been Deluſions. No, 'tis a Wiſdom that is pleaſing to God, and uſeful to the World, for a due Notice to be taken of Rare Things, wherein we have Inconteſtable Proofs of an Inviſible World, and of the Intereſt it hath in Humane Affairs. The Narrative of Mr. Sadler is advantaged with ſuch Inconteſtable Proofs, and contains in it ſuch notable Paſſages, that I believe I do well to lay it before Serious Men; and I believe no Serious Men will play the Buffoon upon it. By no means pretend I to paſs any Judgment upon this Remarkable Narrative; by no means do I preſume to tell what I think of it, any more than this, that it is Remarkable. Nevertheleſs, for the Caution of unwary Readers, I will annex the Words of an Excellent Writer upon Divine Providence.

‘Watch againſt an Unmortified Itch after Excentrical or Extraordinary Diſpenſations of Providence. Luther ſaid, The Martyrs, without the Apparition of Angels, being confirmed by the Word of God alone, died for the Name of Chriſt; and why ſhould not we acquieſce? And he obſerveth how the Devil hath greatly deluded Parties who have been gaping after Viſions.

Nor will it be unprofitable to recite the Words of another Author, whom I muſt Quote, as R. David Kimchi did uſe to Quote R. Joſeph Kimchi, under the Title of Adoni Avi.

‘Evil Angels do now appear more often than Good ones. 'Tis an unwarrantable and a very Dangerous thing for Men to wiſh that they might ſee Angels, and Converſe with them. Some have done ſo, and God hath been provoked with them for their Curioſity and Preſumption, and hath permitted Devils to come unto them, whereby they have been Deceived and Undone.

More Particular Prognoſtications upon the future State of NEW-ENGLAND.

BUT, Oh, my Dear NEW-ENGLAND, give one of thy Friends leave to utter the Fears of thy beſt Friends concerning thee; and conſider what fearful Cauſe there may be for thee to expect ſad Things to Come? If every Wiſe Man be a Prophet, there are ſome yet in thee that can Propheſie. Predictions may be form'd out of theſe.

¶ Reaſonable Expectations.

I. Where Schools are not Vigorouſly and Honourably Encouraged, whole Colonies will ſink apace into a Degenerate and Contemptible Condition, and at laſt become horribly Barbarous: And the firſt Inſtance of their Barbarity will be, that they will be undone for want of Men, but not ſee and own what it was that undid them.

II. Where Faithful Miniſters are Cheated and Grieved by the Sacriledge of People that Rebel againſt the Expreſs Word of Chriſt, Let him that is Taught in the Word, Communicate unto him that Teacheth in all good things, the Righteous Judgments of God will Impoveriſh that People; the Goſpel will be made lamentably Unſucceſsful unto the Souls of ſuch a People; the Miniſters will either be fetch'd away to Heaven, or have their Miniſtry made wofully Inſipid by their Encumbrances on Earth.

III. Where the Paſtors of Churches in a Vicinity deſpiſe or neglect Formed Aſſociations for Mutual Aſſiſtance in their Evangelical Services, Wo to him that is alone. 'Tis a ſign either that ſome of the Paſtors want Love to one another, or that others may be Conſcious to ſome Fault, which may diſpoſe them to avoid Inſpection; but fatal to the Churches will be the Tendency of either.

IV. Where Churches have ſome Hundreds of Souls under their Diſcipline; but the ſingle Paſtors are not ſtrengthened with Conſiſtories of Elders, or an agreeable number of Wiſe, and Good, and Grave Men, choſen to join with the Paſtor, as their Preſident in that part of his Work, which concerns the Well-ruling of the Flock, their Diſcipline will by Degrees be utterly loſt; the Groſſeſt Offenders will by Degrees, and thro' Parties, be ſcarce to be dealt withal.

V. Where Paſtors do not quicken Orderly Private Meetings of both Elder and Younger Chriſtians, for Exerciſes of Religion in their Neighbourhood, the Power of Religion will obſervably decay among thoſe Chriſtians; the Seed ſown in the Publick will not ſo much proſper, for want of being Watred in private: And when the Paſtor ſhall fall Sick, there will not be ſo much as one Company of Chriſtians in all his Flock that can come together to pray for his Life.

VI. Where Churches, profeſſing a great Reformation, ſhall in their Conſtitution ceaſe to Repreſent unto the World the Holineſs of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and of his Heavenly Kingdom, they will become loathſome to that Holy Lord; their Glory is gone, and their Defence goes with it; the dreadful Wrath of Heaven will Aſtoniſh the World with the things which it will do unto them.

VII. Where Churches are loth to give unto Councils regularly upon Complaints enquiring into their Adminiſtrations, an Account thereof, 'tis much to be ſuſpected, that they are Chargeable with Male-Adminiſtrations; and if the Advice of regular Councils come once to be Trod under Foot by any Particular Churches, all ſerious Men will be afraid of joining to ſuch Unaccountable Societies.

VIII. Where a mighty Body of People in a Country are violently ſet upon running down the Ancient Church State in that Country, and are violent for the Hedge about the Communion at the Lord's Table to be broken down; and for thoſe who are not admitted unto the Communion, to ſtand on equal Terms in all Votes with them that are; the Churches there are not far from a Tremendous Convulſion, and they had need uſe a Marvellous Temper of Reſolution with Circumſpection to keep it off.

IX. Where Churches are bent upon Backſliding, and carried away with a ſtrong Spirit of Apoſtaſie, whatever Miniſter ſhall ſet himſelf to withſtand their Evil Bents, will pull upon himſelf an inexpreſſible Contempt and Hatred; be his Merits never ſo Great, a Thouſand Arts will be uſed for to make him Little; he had need be a Man of Great Faith, and Great Prayer; but God will at length Honour ſuch a Man with wonderful Recompences.

X. Where a Fountain ſhall become Corrupt, there the Streams will no longer Make Glad the City of God.

XI. The Goſpel of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt we have with much Expence lately ſent unto ſeveral of our Southern Plantations: If it be rejected, there are Terrible things to come upon them; 'twere better to have lived in Sodom, than in one of thoſe Plantations.

XII. God prepare our dear Brethren in Connecticut, for certain Changes that are Impending over them.

Finally, There was a Town called Amyclæ, which was Ruined by Silence. The Rulers, becauſe there had been ſome falſe Alarums, forbad all People under Pain of Death to ſpeak of any Enemies approaching them: So, when the Enemies came indeed, no Man durſt ſpeak of it, and the Town was loſt. Corruptions will grow upon the Land, and they will gain by Silence: 'Twill be ſo Invidious to it, no Man will dare to ſpeak of the Corruptions; and the Fate of Amyclæ will come upon the Land.

Reader, I call'd theſe things Prophecy; but I wiſh I be not all this while Writing Hiſtory.

Now if any diſcerning Perſons apprehend any Dangers to Impend over New-England, from any of the Symptoms mentioned, it is to be hoped they will employ their beſt Thoughts, how to Anticipate thoſe Dangers. And whereas 'tis the Senſe of all Men, who diſcern any thing, that it is in vain to hope for any Good, until a Spirit of Grace be poured out from Heaven to diſpoſe Men unto it; I beg them to conſider, whether the only way to obtain that Spirit of Grace be not humbly to ask it by Prayer with Faſting before the God of Heaven.

It was therefore an Article in an Advice agreed by ſome of the Principal Miniſters in this Province; and with the mention of that Advice, (which doubtleſs, all but the Sleeping will follow) I'll conclude; 'Solemn Days of Prayer with Faſting, Celebrated in our Churches, to Implore the Grace of God, for the Riſing Generation would probably be of Bleſſed Conſequence, for the turning of our Young People unto the God of our Fathers. The more there is this way aſcribed unto Grace, the more the Grace of God is like to be Communicated; and there is in this way a natural and a plentiful Tendency to awaken our Unconverted Youth unto a Senſe of their Everlaſting Intereſts; which, were it generally accompliſhed, a Remarkable Reformation were therein Effected.

The Children of the EAST came up againſt them; and they entred into the Land to Deſtroy it; and Iſrael was greatly Impoveriſhed.

PREFACE.

WHEN the Iſraelites were engaged in a WAR, they made choice of a Prieſt among them, to ſerve ſome of their greateſt Occaſions in it, and after a Sacred Unction beſtow'd upon him, we are told by Maimonides, he was call'd Maſhuach Milchamah, that is to ſay, Unctus Belli; which was as much as to ſay, The Prieſt of the War.

To bring unto a People profitable Advices and Reflections upon a WAR, wherein they are Engaged, and ſound the Silver Trumpet of the Goſpel, with agreeable Notes unto them in it, is to do in ſome ſort the Office of the Maſhuach Milchamah; and this Office the enſuing Diſcourſe preſumes to do, with Endeavours that the Voice of Heaven, by the Trumpet of our late War, may be heard giving a certain Sound in theſe Eccho's of it.

The Hiſtory of a long War hath with all poſſible Care of Truth been given you. The Author earneſtly prays, that if the leaſt material Miſtake have happened in the Hiſtory, he may be Adviſed, and it may be Corrected. The Noiſe that may be made by a few Sordid People here and there in a Room Tophetized with Smoke, and Rhume, and Spittle, and Malice, and Lies, crying out concerning the moſt Conſciencious Eſſays to preſerve Memorable Truths, They are a parcel of Lies! He values not. But he now tenders to the Acceptance of the more Civilized Readers an Improvement of Memorable Truths, which it was His Duty to make, and it will be Theirs to mind.

Boſton Lecture, 27*d.* 7*m.* 1698.

IF a Book of ſome Conſequence be laid open before one that cannot Read, he may Look and Gaze upon it; but unto what purpoſe, as long as he cannot underſtand it? This very Compariſon is by the Great Auſtin well applied unto the Judgments of God. And I will therefore ſo far improve the Compariſon, as to obſerve, that the Judgments of God, under which we have been Languiſhing for Ten Years together, are a ſort of a Book put into our Hands; a Book indeed all Written in Blood; a Book yet full of Divine Leſſons for us. But can every Man Read this Terrible Book? No, methinks I ſee the Book managed like the Book brought unto the Bleſſed Prophet of Old in Iſa. 29. 12. The Book is delivered unto him that is not Learned, ſaying, Read this, I pray thee; and he ſaith, I am not Learned. It will certainly be a Work well becoming a Miniſter of the Goſpel, and every ſerious Chriſtian will be glad of ſeeing the Work done; to take this Book, and help you as well as we can to Spell the Divine Leſſons contained in it.

Chriſtians, Let us now do a Work, for which the great God hath given us that Warrant, and that Command in

PSAL. CVII. 43.

Who is Wiſe, and will obſerve theſe Things?

THE Various and Marvellous Diſpenſations of the Divine Providence towards the Children of Men, are in this Elegant Pſalm admirably ſet before us. Among thoſe Diſpenſations there is a particular Mark ſet upon this, That the God of Heaven Turns a Fruitful Land into Barrenneſs, for the Wickedneſs of them which dwell therein; and though Men have Sown Fields there, and have multiplied greatly, yet they are again diminiſhed, and brought low through Oppreſſion, Affliction, and Sorrow. Of ſuch Diſpenſations is this Paſſage to be underſtood, as a Queſtion, Who is Wiſe, and will obſerve theſe things? But if you will rather take it as a Sentence, it ſtill comes to the ſame Senſe, Whoſo is Wiſe will obſerve theſe things. And the French Verſion very Expreſſively intimates the Deſign, as well as the Event of this Obſervation; that ſo they may conſider the Favours of the Lord. No leſs than Ten Years have rouled away ſince we have been plunged into the Diſtreſſes of a WAR with a Barbarous Enemy. In this WAR we have ſeen the Fruitful Land of almoſt one whole Province, and another whole County, turned into Barrenneſs; doubtleſs not without Provocations of Wickedneſs in them who dwelt therein; Men had Sown Fields there along the Shore in Settlements for an Hundred Miles together, and had Multiplied Greatly into a Cluſter of Towns, (beſides leſſer Villages,) that might Challenge the Name of a Decapolis, but in this WAR we have ſeen them diminiſhed again, and brought low, through Oppreſſion, Affliction, and Sorrow. I am to lead you this Day thro' a Spacious Country, which has been on many Accounts the moſt Charming part of New-England; and I muſt herewithal ſay, Come, behold the Works of the Lord, what Deſolations he has made in that Land. Sirs, 'tis time for us to Obſerve theſe things; and this, not with a meer Athenian, but with a more Profitable Obſervation. I muſt not be Diſcouraged from this Holy Service, by the vain Scoffs of thoſe that Blaſpheme all Attempts, to Conſider the Wondrous Works of God, as if it were nothing but a Telling of News in the Pulpit. The biggeſt part of the Holy Bible, which is but a Relation of ſuch Wondrous Works, would be Scoffed by ſuch Prophane Men, if they might not thereby become Obnoxious. No, if Whoſo is Wiſe will obſerve theſe things, then let no Man call it Folly to make the Obſervation. A long WAR is the Text which I am now to inſiſt upon: And if we would approve our ſelves Wiſe, after all the Stripes that have in this WAR been given us, theſe things will occur to our Obſervation in it.

I. In the WAR that hath been upon us, Whoſo is Wiſe may obſerve the Conſequence of Entertaining the Goſpel of the Lord JESUS CHRIST, and Obtaining and Maintaining the Ordinances of that Glorious Goſpel. The Gadarens of Old were loth to have any thing of CHRIST in their Coaſt: And anon comes a Roman War which diſtreſs'd all the Land: But the woful Town of Gadara was the very firſt Place Beſieged in that War, and ſad things were done unto it. Alas, how little of an Evangelical Church-State was there to be ſeen among all our Eaſtern Settlements! It hath been for the want of this, that the Judgments of God have more than once forbidden them to be called Settlements. The Towns were generally without Preachers of CHRIST, and much more generally without Churches of CHRIST, for to Irradiate 'em: Yea, not one of the Towns that are utterly broken up, had any Miniſter in it for a long while before their Final Darkneſs came upon them. Such a Way of Living did content many of them, that it were horrible to tell what Ignorance of CHRIST they were thereby ſunk into. I would never have told you, that ſome Young Men, Twenty Years Old, in this Land, never ſo much as once heard the Name of Chriſt in all their Lives, if I did not think that the God of Heaven required us all to Mourn before him for ſuch an Horrible thing in the Land. Indeed, the ſtrange Diſaſters which attended the Firſt Eſſays to ſettle that good Country, made many People imagine the Indian Sorcerers had Enchanted the Ground, ſo that no Engliſh could Thrive on ſuch an Enchanted Soil. But had they carried the Goſpel of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt with them, doubtleſs they had Confuted that vain Imagination; all the Spells of Hell would have been Inſignificant; there would not have prevailed any Enchantment againſt a Gods-Spel which we have in our Goſpel. The Original Deſign of NEW-ENGLAND was to ſettle Congregations, wherein the Lord Jeſus Chriſt ſhould be known and ſerved according to his Goſpel; and inſtruct Families that ſhould be the Nurſeries of thoſe Congregations. The Plantations of the Eaſt had little of this Illuſtrious Deſign in their Eye; the Enjoyments of Gadarens did ſeem too much to ſatiſfie too many of them. For this Cauſe we may believe it is, that our Lord JESUS CHRIST looking down from Heaven upon theſe Unchriſtian Undertakings, Thunder-ſtruck them with his Indignation: He ſaw the Fooliſh taking Root, but ſuddenly he Curſed their Habitation. When ſome of our Eaſtern People have been Pining away under the Fatigues of their Captivity among the Indians, who had Stript them of all they had, then they cried out, Now, now the Lord is Puniſhing of us for our leaving of his Ordinances, and removing to a place of no Goſpel for larger Accommodations in the World, and expoſing our Children to be Bred up like the very Indians, into whoſe Hands we are fallen! That which Invites one to think it may be for this Cauſe, is the Singular Diſtinction and Protection which the CHURCHES of our Lord have enjoyed throughout the whole Progreſs of our Calamity. No Places that have had CHURCHES gathered in them, have all this while been broken up, however, ſome of them have had much Bread of Adverſity, and Water of Affliction. The Enemy that have come in upon our Land like a Flood, carried all before them as an Irreſiſtible Torrent, until they came to Places that have CHURCHES as it were to Garriſon them. There the Almighty Lord hath check'd the Proud Waves, and ſaid, Hitherto ye ſhall come, and no further! But here let me add a very obſervable thing: The Lord had ſome of his Elect among our Eaſtern People; but he has brought thoſe Elect Home unto himſelf, by Burning them out of their Homes and Habitations. The Indians have driven 'em hither, and here they have met with the Goſpel of Chriſt, and been effectually called unto the Lord, and joined unto our Churches, and bleſſed the Name of God for bringing them unto theſe Churches. Periiſſent niſi Periiſſent! Now whoſo is Wiſe, and will obſerve theſe things, cannot but wiſh, that the Folly of Erecting Plantations, without the Worſhip of the Lord JESUS CHRIST, may be no more committed among us. It was wholeſome Counſel given, and uſually taken in the beginning of New-England: 'Let Chriſtians no where
' ſit down without good Miniſters, but let them
' rather tarry where they are, as Ezra tarried by
' the River Ahava, till he had got ſome Levites
' to go with them. And it was even then obſerved, that Places which made Beginnings any long while without Miniſters, were with miſerable Unſettlements broken all to pieces. I ſuppoſe our Eaſtern Country will ſhortly again be Peopled: But let the People which intend there to ſettle themſelves in the Fear of God, remember this Admonition; don't venture to form Towns without the Goſpel in them any more. If the lamentable Experience which you have more than once had, of a Blaſt from Heaven upon Enterprizes to Live without the Goſpel of the Son of God, will not inſpire you with more of Wiſdom for the future, I will foretel your Fate in thoſe awful Words, Pſal. 28. 5. Becauſe they regard not the Works of the Lord, nor the Operation of his Hands, he ſhall deſtroy them, and not build them up. Yea, but let all New-England at the ſame time learn what the Welfare or the Ruin of all will turn upon. The whole World was made for our Lord Meſſiah, and the Curſe of God will more or leſs plague the World, according to the Reſpects which that Second Adam, our Lord Meſſiah finds in it. But New-England is by a more Eminent Profeſſion that Immanuel's Land Let the Intereſts of the Chriſtian Religion in Reformed Churches be purſued and preſerved among us, then All will go well! Our Acknowledgment of our Lord JESUS CHRIST in CHURCHES, that ſhall be ſo ordered, as to repreſent him and his Kingdom unto the World, this will be our Glory; and this Glory will be our Defence; or as 'tis promiſed in Iſa. 4. 5. Upon all the Glory ſhall be a Defence. But if once the Spirit of this World eat out the Spirit and Power of Religion, and the Order of our Churches, and Mens Value for a Room in the Churches be loſt, then write Ichabod upon all our Glory; and let us expect that our Holy Lord will Spew us out of his Mouth.

II. In the War that hath been upon us, Whoſo is Wiſe, may obſerve in the very Inſtruments of our Calamity, ſhrow'd Intimations of the Provoking Evils, for which the Righteous God hath Chaſtiſed us by ſuch Inſtruments.

When the Miſeries of the Sword are inflicted on a People, it becomes them to conſider what Provocations they have given to the Almighty God, who makes Peace, and creates Evil; for 'tis he, the Lord, who doth all theſe things. The Sword by which we have been ſo grievouſly harraſſed, hath been in the Hands of God; and if our Father had not been very angry, would he have taken a Sword into his Hands? We are Blind before Lightning, we are Deaf unto Thunder, if we do not ſenſibly perceive the Anger of God in the Tremendous Rebukes that we have ſuffered: And we are unaccountably and inexcuſably Stupid, if we do not enquire, What means the Heat of this Anger? It was once the Commination of God in Ezek. 7. 24, 27. I will bring the worſt of the Heathen, and they ſhall poſſeſs their Houſes, and the Hands of the People of the Land ſhall be Troubled: Such Trouble hath come upon us from the worſt of the Heathen! But what was the Cauſe of all? It follows, I will do unto them after their Way, and I will judge them according to their Deſerts, and they ſhall know that I am the Lord. It is but ſeaſonable for us now to look back upon our own Way, and ſee how much we have Deſerved all this Vengeance by going out of the Way. Two Perſons in their Travels beholding the horrid Ruins of Germany, one of them ſaid, Hic fuit Hoſtilitas, behold the Fruit of Hoſtility! His Friend anſwered, Hic fuit Iniquitas, behold the Fruit of Iniquity! If you will Travel over our Eaſt Country, how frequent, how diſmal Occaſions will you ſee to Sigh, See what has been done by Hoſtility! But there will be as many Occaſions for a ſadder Sigh than that: Namely, See the ſad Effects of Iniquity! Now in this Contemplation I do not go to charge them that were once Inhabitants of the now Ruined Plantations with any Sins, but what are more or leſs to be found in all our Colonies. I ask no more from our Brethren, who yet Survive the Deſolations that have come upon their Eſtates and Neighbours in thoſe Plantations, but that they join with the reſt of us all in Searching and Trying of our Ways, and in Judging of our ſelves. For, alas, Every Mouth muſt be ſtopp'd, and all the Land is become Guilty before God! Let us all then Enquire, what may have been thoſe Provoking Evils, for which the Holy and Bleſſed God hath given the Sword a Commiſſion ſo dreadfully to devour us? But then let us be ſure to enquire wiſely concerning that matter. And here I will not Enquire, whether thoſe that went before us, might never be too forward in any Unjuſtifiable Encroachments, to Poſſeſs and Command thoſe Lands which have ſince proved ſo Expenſive unto us? Older Men than I are beſt able to manage that Enquiry, though I alſo have heard it made. But that whereupon I rather beſpeak your Thoughts, is this: Will you pleaſe to Enquire into the Properties and Qualities of our Adverſaries? 'Tis poſſible, that in their Properties and Qualities we may read ſomething of thoſe Miſcarriages, for which our God hath raiſed them up to be our Adverſaries. It hath been commonly ſeen, that when the People of God have ſinfully come to Imitate the Evil Manners of other Nations, God hath made thoſe very Nations to be a ſore Scourge unto them. And the Senſe of this was that which long ago cauſed many ſenſible Perſons to foretel, which of the Neighbour Nations would bring our dear England low. Now ſince the Indians have been made by our God, The Rod of his Anger, 'tis proper for us to Enquire, whether we have not in ſome Inſtances too far imitated the Evil Manners of the Indians? The Indians are Infamous, eſpecially for Three Scandalous Vices. Firſt, They are Liars of the firſt Magnitude; one cannot believe a Word they ſpeak. Secondly, They are Sluggards to a Proverb; they are for any way of Living rather than Work. Thirdly, They are abominably Indulgent unto their Children; there is no Family Government among them. Will you now Enquire, Sirs, how far we have Indianized in every very one, but eſpecially the laſt of theſe Evil Manners? If we find theſe Indian Vices to grow Epidemical among us, Oh! don't wonder, that our God hath been with Indian Hatchets cutting down the Tree that brings forth Fruits thus diſagreeable to him that Planted it.

Now whoſo is Wiſe will obſerve theſe things. And yet the Obſervation may extend it ſelf a little further. Sometimes the Soveraign God chuſes a Nation remarkably Laudable for ſome good Thing, to puniſh his own People for the want of that Thing. Thus when the Chriſtian Churches fell into Idolatry, God ſent the Mahometans upon them, to Torment them with one Woe after another horribly; and the Mahometans are very Remarkable for this, that they are great Haters of Idolatry, and where-ever they come they deſtroy thoſe Idols, and Works of Mens Hands, which are adored in the Antichriſtian Apoſtacy. Well, but can any good Thing be reported of our Indian-Invaders? Yes, there is one good Thing which the French have taught them; there is Family-Prayer among them, a daily Family-Worſhip upheld among them. I Fear, I Fear, this is more than can be ſaid of many Engliſh Sufferers, that have been annoy'd by thoſe Indian-Invaders. It may be, the Wretched Indians have cut off multitudes of Families, to whom they might have ſaid, Theſe Families never Pray'd unto God once in a Month, and we have done it every Day! And many of our poor Folks never heard any Family-Prayer in their Lives, till they were dragg'd into the forlorn and howling Wigwams of thoſe wretched Salvages. I have heard it ſaid, that in a Town of it may be more than Seventy Families, there have not been Twice Seven Families that have had any conſtant Invocation of God in them. If it be ſo, then hear the Voice of God in it, when he ſent thoſe Monſtrous and Furious Barbarians to burn down ſuch Prayerleſs Houſes: The Voice of Heaven in it, is, If Indians will pray in their Families more than Engliſh, then let Indians deſtroy thoſe Engliſh Families. It was once the direful Imprecation, in Jer. 10. 25. Pour out thy great Wrath upon the Heathen that know thee not, and upon the Families that call not on thy Name. Truly, God has uſed a Sort of Heathen, to pour out his great Wrath upon Families, which in this one Point were worſe than thoſe Heathen, that they did not call on his Name. For God's ſake be ſo Wiſe as to Obſerve theſe things, and let Family-Prayer be no where neglected throughout the Land, leſt while God is puniſhing us by the Pagans, we become worſe than Pagans. Let me faithfully and ſolemnly Adviſe you; Sirs, A Prayerleſs Family is a Pagan Family. Do not now imagine, that it is only the more Strict and Severe Doctrine of a Non-Conformiſt that now Smites your Conſciences; it is the Doctrine of a Chriſtian; and it may be, 'twill have the more Force upon ſome of you, if I tell you, that the late Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, in a Book on that Subject, has this Paſſage; That conſtant Family Worſhip is ſo Neceſſary to keep alive a Senſe of God and Religion in the Minds of Men, that he ſees not how any Family that Neglects it can in Reaſon be Eſteemed a Family of Chriſtians, or indeed to have any Religion at all. I will add but this Word unto all the reſt; If after this there be a Prayerleſs Family among us, I would, if I could, Write upon their Door, Lord have mercy upon us; for there is a Plague in that Pagan Family.

III. In the WAR that hath been upon us, whoſo is Wiſe may obſerve, that the very Objects of our Sins have been made the very Engines of our Plagues. It is a thing Extraordinarily Obſervable, though it ordinarily happens; that, In quo quis peccat, in eo punitur; Men are Plagu'd by thoſe very things with which they have Sinn'd. If an Eli omit his Duty towards his Children, it follows, in 1 Sam. 2. 33. thoſe very Children ſhall conſume thine Eyes, and grieve thine Heart. I am very much miſtaken, if our Eyes have not been conſumed, and if our Hearts not grieved, by thoſe to whom we have omitted our Duty exceedingly. The grand Crime of the Jews was in Relation to the Romans, and God made the Romans the Deſtroyers of the Jews. You will now demand of me, whether I think that we are chargeable with any Crime relating to the Indians, which have been ſo bloodily Deſtroying of us. I muſt freely tell you, I think we are. The old Britains did not what they ſhould have done, to Convert the Saxons unto Chriſtianity; and when the Britains were afterwards fearfully Deſtroy'd by the Saxons, their Famous Countryman Gildas told them, This is the Vengeance of God upon you, becauſe you did no more for the Converſion of thoſe Miſerable Heathen. And I admire that the Engliſh Proteſtants in Ireland, after ſuch Maſſacres from the Iriſh Papiſts, do no more Effectually make this Reflection. But that which I am now to Reflect upon, is this: Had we done but half ſo much as the French Papiſts have done, to Proſelite the Indians of our Eaſt unto the Chriſtian Faith, inſtead of being Snares and Traps unto us, and Scourges in our Sides, and Thorns in our Eyes, they would have been a Wall unto us both by Night and Day. What a Sting was there in thoſe Words which the Indians have uſed unto ſome of our Captives, Had the Engliſh been as careful to Inſtruct us as the French, we had been of your Religion! Indeed, it can ſcarce, without an harſh Catechreſis, be called, The Chriſtian Faith, which the French Papiſts have made the Salvages to ſwallow: But if the Salvages had been Enlightened with The Chriſtian Faith from us, the French Papiſts could never have inſtill'd into them thoſe French Poiſons, that have made ſuch Raging Devils of them. Through the Bleſſing of God, upon the Endeavours of good Men in this one Maſſachuſet-Province, the Indians have moſtly Embraced the Chriſtian Religion.

* There are, I ſuppoſe, more than Thirty Congregations of Indians, and many more than Thirty Hundred Indians in this one Province, calling on God in Chriſt, and hearing of his glorious Word. Whoſo is Wiſe, will obſerve a Notable Smile of God upon thoſe that have worthily Encouraged and Proſecuted this Evangelical Work. But ſhall we not at the ſame time Obſerve, how ſignally the Wrath of God hath fallen upon the Perſons or Eſtates of them that have Debauched the Indians, by ſelling of Drink unto them? The Trading Houſes where the Indians of the Eaſt had ſo much of their Drink and Bane, what is become of them, every one of them? The Sword has been Drunk with the Blood of the Engliſh, in the Hands of thoſe very Indians which have been ſo often Drunk among them. And theſe Bloody Merchants of the Souls of the Indians, when they have ſummed up all their Gains, the Foot of the Account has been this, Wo to him that gives his Neighbour Drink, that puts the Bottel to him to make him Drunk. Thoſe Men are not Wiſe, but Mad, who can Obſerve theſe things, and now dare to Repeat this Iniquity, or dream that any Gains are to be got by feeding the Indian Luſt of Drunkenneſs.

IV. In the WAR that hath been upon us, Whoſo is wiſe, may obſerve the Loud Calls of Heaven to all Ranks of Men, in the ſharp Strokes of Heaven on all Ranks of Men. As it was ſaid in Mic. 6. 9. The Lord's voice crieth unto the City, and the Man of Wiſdom ſhall ſee thy Name; hear ye the Rod: So I ſay, There has been a Voice of God unto all the Country in that Indian Rod which hath been uſed upon us: And Men of Wiſdom, in all Ranks of Men, will Obſerve, and See, and Hear, the meaning of this Rod; inaſmuch as all Ranks of Men have ſmarted under it; yea, it has fetch'd Blood from all Ranks of Men among us. We will a little particularize 'em. And firſt of all, you that are our Honoured Shepherds; will you Obſerve how many of our Shepherds have been worried unto Death by the Scythian Wolves of our Wilderneſs? Two of our MAGISTRATES have been Treacherouſly and Barbarouſly Killed by the Indian Murderers: They whom God entruſted with the Sword of Juſtice, have had their Lives taken away by the Sword of the Wicked. I perſwade my ſelf, that the reſt will be ſo wiſe as to Obſerve theſe things, and Obſerve how to anſwer the juſt Expectation of God in their Adminiſtrations. After this, Oh! Why ſhould not our Civil Rulers, with more Zeal than ever ſet themſelves to ponder, How may I moſt glorifie God and Chriſt, and ſerve his dear People with my Opportunities!

Two of our MINISTERS have been Struck down into the Earth by the Indian Dragons. They that have uſed nothing but the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, for the ſaving of all about them, have had the Deſtroyers coming upon them, and have been waited for of the Sword. I aſſure my ſelf, that the reſt will be ſo wiſe as to Obſerve theſe things, and Obſerve how to fulfil our Miniſtry, with a very Excited Watchfulneſs. May all our Settled Paſtors, upon ſuch a thing befallen our Brethren, reſolve with themſelves; Am unworthy I ſpared? I will do more for my Lord, and more for my Flock, and more for all the Churches, than ever I did.

We will paſs on, there have been ſome rich Men, that were finely Scituated, and had all things richly to Enjoy: But this War has reduced them to ſuch Neceſſity, that within leſs than One Year they have come to beg their Bread: All their Treaſures have been Treaſures of Snow; one Summer has melted all away to nothing. I Remember the Jewiſh Talmuds tell us of a Gentlewoman, who had a Thouſand Thouſand Pieces of Gold given with her at her Marriage, by her Father Nicodemus for her Portion; and yet ſhe was reduced unto ſuch Penury, that ſhe pick'd Barley-Corns out of the Cattels Dung for her Food. Have not we ſeen almoſt ſuch Viciſſitudes? Rich Men, if you are Wiſe, (which the Rich are not always!) you will Obſerve theſe things, and upon the Obſervation ſay, Well, what Man in his Right Wits will now ſet his Heart upon ſuch Tranſitory, as all Sublunary Vanities! Oh! My Soul, do thou make ſure of a better and a laſting Subſtance in Heaven; for earthly Riches take themſelves Wings, and flee away towards Heaven.

Again, there have been abundance of poor Men, who have been by this War plunged ſtill into deeper Poverty: They have gone without a Bit of Bread for many Days together. The Straits, the Wants, the Cares of Widows, and Orphans, or of thoſe that have had many Mouths to Feed, eſpecially in our Expoſed Frontiers, none can Expreſs them, none can Conceive them, but they, (nor they!) who did Endure them all. Poor Men, if you are wiſe, (which the Poor may be!) You will Obſerve theſe things, and upon the Obſervation ſay, Well, I had need make ſure that my Soul may not be Starved by wanting the Bread of Life, and that my Soul may not be Naked without the Garments of Righteouſneſs; how dolefully am I Circumſtanced, if I go down from one Hell unto another at the Laſt!

Once more, how many Women have been made a prey to thoſe Brutiſh Men that are Skilful to Deſtroy? How many a fearful Thing has been

[* Of that Matter ſee a Printed Account, at the end of Mr. Noyes's Election-Sermon; whereto I have here this to add, That an hopeful and worthy Young Man, Mr. Experience Mayhew, omitted in that Printed Journal, meerly becauſe he was more largely mentioned in the annexed Propoſals of the Gentlemen that made it, which are not Printed with it, muſt now have the Juſtice done him of this Character, That in the Evangelical Service of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt among the Indians, there is no Man that Exceeds that Mr. Mayhew, if there be any that Equals him. So I am informed concerning him.]

been ſuffered by the fearful Sex, from thoſe Men that one would fear as Devils rather than Men? Let the Daughters of our Zion think with themſelves what it would be for fierce Indians to break into their Houſes, and brain their Huſbands and their Children before their Eyes, and lead them away a long Journey into the Woods; and if they began to fail and faint in the Journey, then for a tawny Salvage to come with Hell-fire in his Eyes, and cut 'em down with his Hatchet; or, if they could miraculouſly hold out, then for ſome filthy and uggly Squaws, to become their inſolent Miſtreſſes, and inſolently to abuſe 'em at their Pleaſure a Thouſand inexpreſſible Ways; and, if they had any of their Sucking Infants with them, then to ſee thoſe tender Infants handled at ſuch a rate, that they ſhould beg of the Tygres to diſpatch 'em out of Hand. Such things as theſe, I tell you, have often happened in this lamentable War. And now, O ye Handmaids of the Lord, will you not be ſo wiſe as to Obſerve theſe things? But upon the Obſervation ſay, Well, I will bleſs God for my Enjoyments; my Afflictions, be they never ſo many, are not ſuch as my Neighbours have ſeen: My Enjoyments are more than my Afflictions. But, Oh! Let me love and ſerve the good God, that has diſtinguiſhed me with His Mercies.

It is to be added: We have had our old Men, whoſe gray Hairs have not come down to the Grave in Peace. Young Indians have with grievous Flouts and Wounds butchered many of our old Engliſh Men. The gray Hairs of our old Men have been dyed Red with their own Blood, and their Carcaſes have been thrown unto the Swine to mangle them. Old Men, if you are wiſe Men, you will obſerve theſe things; but obſerving of them, ſay, Oh! Let my hoary Head be found in the Way of Righteouſneſs!

But our young Men are they whom the Fury of War hath been chiefly poured out upon. Alas, alas, for our young Men! They are the Perſons with whom it ſeems to have been the very Errand of this War, to manage the terrible Controverſie of God. New-England ſets a peculiar Accent of Grief upon this, among all her Lamentations; The Lord has trodden under Foot my mighty Men in the midſt of me, he hath called an Aſſembly againſt me, to cruſh my young Men. Come then, my young Men, be ſo wiſe as to obſerve theſe things; and upon the Obſervation ſay, Lord, let not me, and the reſt of my Generntion, continue among the Generation of thy Wrath. Yea, to have done; Children alſo have not been excuſed from a Share in the Blows of this hideous War. Little Boys and Girls, even theſe little Chickens, have been ſeized by the Indian Vultures. Our little Birds have been ſpirited away by the Indian Devourers, and brought up in a vile Slavery, till ſome of them have quite forgot their Engliſh Tongue, and their Chriſtian Name, and their whole Relation. Yea, thoſe Babylonians have daſh'd out the Brains of our little ones againſt the Stones. And our little ones have been hideouſly whipt unto Death by thoſe mercileſs Tygres, whoſe tender Mercies are Cruelty. Children, God make you ſo wiſe as to obſerve theſe things; and upon the Obſervation, Oh! ſee that you become ſerious, pious, orderly Children; obedient unto your Parents, conſciencious to keep the Lord's Day, and afraid of committing any Wickedneſs.

Upon the whole, when a dead Man was thrown into the Grave of Eliſha, a Touch from the Bones of the Prophet in the Grave raiſ'd him from the Dead. I am deſiring that Religion may be revived out of the Death which has too much enfeebled it among us. Behold, Sirs, I have now caſt you into the Graves of our dead Friends; it may be, by wiſely obſerving of them, and the things that have befallen them, we may be ſomewhat raiſed out of our deadly Security. Let our Obſervation of theſe things give ſome Life to the Practice of Religion among us.

V. In the WAR that hath been upon us, Whoſo is wiſe, may obſerve thoſe Tragical Things undergone by many in Captivity, that are full of Admonition unto us, that have never felt the Tragedies of ſuch a Captivity. Several Hundreds of our Neighbours, firſt and laſt, have been carried into Captivity, by the moſt beaſtly and bloody things that ever wore the Shape of Men in the World. New-England makes that Moan in Lam. 1. 18. Hear, I pray you, all People, and behold my Sorrow; my Virgins and my young Men are gone into Captivity. But Oh, the prodigious and ſtupendious Things that they have undergone in this Captivity! What weary Days and Nights have rouled over the miſerable Captives, while they have not had a Bit of Meat allow'd 'em, except what a Dog would hardly meddle with. While they have ſometimes been pinched with the bitter Froſt, without Rags to cover their Nakedneſs, and ſometimes been parched with the burning Heat, without any Cordial or Shelter to refreſh them: While they have ſeen their neareſt Relations torn in pieces alive before their Eyes, and yet thoſe Eyes afraid of dropping a Tear at the mournful Sight: Yea, while they have every Hour look'd when they ſhould be themſelves roaſted alive to make a Feaſt and a Sport for the horrid Cannibals! Need I tell you, That thoſe Devils Incarnate have tied their Captives unto Trees, and firſt cutting off their Ears, have made them to eat their own Ears, and then have broiled their whole Bodies with ſlow Fires, dancing the mean while about them, and cutting out Collops of their Fleſh, till with lingring Tortures they have martyred them to Death! Such Things have been done by the Inhumane Salvages upon our Captives, that it is a ſort of Inhumanity barely to mention them. Now, ſhall we be wiſe, to obſerve theſe things? The Obſervation muſt be made with that Admonition in Luk. 13. 4, 5. Think ye, that theſe were Sinners above all Men? I tell you, Nay; but except ye repent, ye ſhall all likewiſe periſh. Wherefore let us penitently confeſs, that we have all deſerved thoſe miſerable things, wherewith ſome have been ſo marked out by the Soveraignty of Heaven. In the things that have been done to our Captives, the Great Lord of Hoſts hath dealt with us as Generals uſe to do upon the Sedition and Mutiny of Military Legions: He makes a ſort of Decimation among the Offenders, and by what he does to ſome, he declares what he might juſtly do to all the reſt. We muſt all aſcribe it unto the meer Soveraign Mercy of God, that we are not every one of us broken in the Place of Dragons, as theſe deſolate Captives were. That which the Scripture calls the Place of Dragons, I remember one of the Jewiſh Rabbi's expounds, A Wilderneſs. Truly our Wilderneſs hath been, The Place of Dragons. But while we obſerve theſe things, we ſhall not be wiſe, if we do not learn, Oh! what an evil and a bitter thing is our Sin! And what horrendous Miſeries muſt we expect among the Devils, if we die with our Sin unpardoned!

VI. In the WAR that hath been upon us Whoſo is wiſe, may obſerve, a Work, a ſtrange Work of Heaven, as it were Deviſing of Ways, very ſtrangely to diſtreſs all ſorts of People, in all ſorts of Intereſts. Truly the very Character of our Calamity hath all along been this; the great God has written ſtill upon it, we may read upon it in a very legible Character thoſe Words in Jer. 18. 11. Thus ſaith the Lord, Behold I frame Evil againſt you, I deviſe a Device againſt you. It hath been as if Ways had been deliberately and exquiſitely ſtudied, and as if with much Contrivance plotted for to bring us all within the Reach of the general Calamity. We have now languiſhed thro' Ten Years, which have been the ſaddeſt, and the darkeſt, and the ſtormieſt Years that ever we ſaw. If the Hiſtory of theſe Ten Years were to be written, I am thinking what ſhould be the Title; truly it might be entituled, as Ezekiel's Roll was, Lamentation, and Mourning, and Wo. Yea, you ſhall now have the Hiſtory of theſe Ten Years written for you; I'll give it you in as expreſſive Words as can be; even in thoſe Words, 2 Chron. 15. 5, 6. In thoſe times there was no Peace to him that went out, nor to him that came in, but great Vexations were upon all the Inhabitants of the Countries, for God did vex them with all Adverſity. There is a Variety of Adverſity with which the tedious War it ſelf hath vexed us. The general Fate of the War hath involved numberleſs Families in ſeveral Circumſtances of Adverſity; and the Expenſive part of the War hath been an heavy Scourge of Adverſity upon thoſe that could not be reach'd by the deſtructive part of it. You could not but obſerve theſe things: But then have you not obſerved what a further Variety of Adverſity hath been contemporary with this vexatious War. Alas, there hath been ſuch a Complication of other Diſtreſſes added unto the War, in the time of it, that No-body; no, I ſay, No-body hath been left free from thoſe Dolorous Ejulations, I am one that hath been afflicted by the Rod of the Wrath of God. ¶

A great King of Perſia, having by Death loſt the neareſt Relation he had in the World, and being too paſſionate a Mourner for his Loſs, an ingenious Man undertook to raiſe the dead Relation unto Life again, if the King would but furniſh him in one Point that he apprehended neceſſary. It was demanded, What that was? And it was replied, Furniſh me but with the Names of Three Perſons who have never met with any Sadneſs and Sorrow, and by writing theſe Names on the Monument of the Dead, I'll bring the Dead Perſon to Life. Truly, the Ten Years of our War have ſet many Ten Hundreds of Perſons a mourning over their dead Friends; we have ſeen every where the Mourners go about the Streets: Now I durſt make you this Offer, that if you can find Three Perſons who have met with no Matter of Sadneſs and Sorrow in theſe Ten Years, with the Names of them, we'll fetch your dead Friends to Life again. It was ſaid in Job 21. 17. God diſtributeth Sorrows in his Anger. You may obſerve a marvellous Diſtribution of Sorrows made among us by the Anger of God.

And here, Firſt, I ſay nothing of that amazing time, when the evil Angels in a preternatural, and in an unparallell'd manner being let looſe among us, God caſt upon us the Fierceneſs of his Anger, and Wrath, and Indignation, and Trouble. It was the threatning of God againſt a People which he had call'd his Children, in Deut. 32. 23, 24. I will heap Miſchiefs upon them; I will ſpend my Arrows upon them; they ſhall be devoured with a bitter Deſtruction. What was the bitter Deſtruction thus threatned unto an Apoſtatizing People? I remember the Famous Jew, Onkelos, renders it, They ſhall be vexed with evil Spirits; and indeed that Senſe well agrees with what follows, I will ſend upon them the Poiſon of the Serpents of the Duſt. Sirs, for our Apoſtaſie (which is the very Sin of the evil Spirits!) the God of Heaven a while ago turned in the Armies of Hell upon us; and in that matchleſs Diſpenſation of God we underwent a bitter Deſtruction from the Poiſon of the Serpents of the Duſt.

But there are other Points, not a few, wherein the great God hath heaped Miſchiefs upon us, and fulfill'd unto us that Holy Commination, Ezek. 7. 26. Miſchief ſhall come upon Miſchief. What ſhall I ſay? While the Lord of Hoſts hath been againſt us, the Hoſts of Lord have been ſo too; all the Elements have, as it were, been up in Arms againſt us.

Particularly you may obſerve, That Epidemical Sickneſſes have, in theſe Years, been once and again upon us; wherein the Angels of Death have ſhot the Arrows of Death into ſuch as could not be reached by the Bullets of the Indian Enemy. This one Town did in one Year loſe, I ſuppoſe, at leaſt Six or Seven Hundred of its People by one contagious Mortality. And tho' of about Three and Twenty Hundred Men that we employ'd in one Action, we did, in that Action, loſe hardly Thirty Men, yet how many Hundreds did afterwards miſerably periſh?

Again, you may obſerve, That the Harveſt hath once and again grievouſly failed in theſe Years, and we have been ſtruck thro' with the terrible Famine, almoſt as much as if the Indian Enemy had been all the while ſculking about our Fields. The very Courſe of Nature hath been altered among us; a lamentable Cry for Bread, Bread, hath been heard in our Streets: The Towns that formerly ſupply'd other Places with Grain, had now been famiſhed, if other Places had not ſent in a Supply to them, and had a black Proſpect of being famiſhed, notwithſtanding that Supply.

Once more you may obſerve, That the Sea hath in theſe Years been ſwallowing up our Neighbours and their Eſtates, far more than the Sword of the Wilderneſs. Alas, the devouring Diſpleaſure of God hath ſaid concerning us, Though they go to hide themſelves from my Sight afar off upon the Sea, thence will I command the Serpent, and he ſhall bite them. And here, hath it been enough, that our Veſſels, enough to make an huge Fleet, have been taken by the French Enemy? A certain Writer hath computed it, That in only the firſt Two or Three Years of the War the Engliſh Nation loſt unto the French more than Fifteen Millions of Pounds Sterling. But no part of the Engliſh Nation hath been more frequently or ſenſibly prey'd upon by the French, than what hath gone out of New-England, ever ſince the War began. I ſay, has this been enough? No, the Wrath of God ſaid, This is not enough! I appeal to you that have been Owners of Veſſels, or Sailors in them, whether horrible Shipwracks have not been multiplied ſince the War began, very much more than ever they were before? Ah, Lord! How many of us have ſhed Rivers of Tears over our dear Friends that have been Buried in the Ocean.

Moreover, you may obſerve, That in theſe Years thoſe very things which were intended for our Defence, have oftentimes been ſo much improved for our Damage, that it was hard for us to ſay which was the greater, the Defence, or the Damage, which we had from them. It was a lamentable time with the Jews, when that Curſe came upon them, That which ſhould have been for their Welfare, let it become a Trap, and pour out thine Indignation upon them. Truly, the Indignation of God hath been poured out upon us in this Fruit of the Curſe, no leſs frequently than ſenſibly, that ſome things which ſhould have been for our Welfare, have at the ſame time ſerved alſo to entrap the Perſons and Intereſts of many People into ſore Inconveniencies. There is no need of explaining this Article; they that have been under this Indignation of God know the explaining of it.

Finally, You may obſerve what untimely Ends, and what ſurprizing Fates, have come upon our Sons in theſe Years of the VVrath of the Right Hand of the moſt High. When Cræſus was in VVar taken by Cyrus, this Captive made unto the Conqueror this Remark upon the Difference between Peace and VVar; O Sir, I ſee that in a time of Peace the Sons bury their Fathers, but in a time of VVar the Fathers bury their Sons. Truly Sirs, our time of War has in various Ways of Mortality been embittered with this Remark, The Fathers have been burying their Sons all the Country over! Many of us have had our Sons, even thoſe very Sons, of whom we ſaid, This ſame ſhall comfort us! We have had them violently ſnatch'd away from us, and cropt in the very Flower of their Youth; and they have left us deploring, Oh, my Son, with all my Heart could I have died for thee, my Son, my Son! But in the midſt of theſe deplorable things God hath given up ſeveral of our Sons into the Hands of the fierce Monſters of Africa. Mahometan Turks, and Moors, and Devils, are at this Day oppreſſing many of our Sons with a Slavery, wherein they wiſh for Death, and cannot find it; a Slavery, from whence they cry and write unto us, It had been good for us that we had never been born.

——Quis talia fando
Temperet a Lacrymis?——

Thus, as Job ſometimes complained, Chap. 10. 17. Thou reneweſt thy Witneſſes againſt me, and increaſeſt thine Indignation upon me; Changes and War are againſt me: Thus in our long VVar we have ſeen thoſe Changes on all Hands, and in all Kinds, which have witneſſed againſt us the dreadful Indignation of God. God threatned his People, (ſo I read it,) Amos 2. 13. Behold I will preſs your Place as a full Cart preſſes the Sheaf: ['Tis an Alluſion to the old way of threſhing the Corn, by drawing a loaden Cart with VVheels over the Corn. q. d. You ſhall undergo Tribulation.] Ah, New-England, thou haſt been under ſuch a Tribulation!

Sirs, Have you not obſerved theſe things? But you muſt wiſely obſerve them. And a wiſe Obſervation of theſe things will cauſe you to ſee, That the VVar which hath been upon us hath been a VVar of GOD. The Indians have been but a ſmall part of thoſe Armies, which the great GOD hath been bringing out againſt us for Ten Years together; and we may conclude, that all the Land have been more or leſs concerned in thoſe Crimes for which the Almighty GOD hath been with theſe Armies managing his Controverſie with us: Our Confeſſion muſt be Peccavimus omnes, VVe have all gone aſtray! But ſhall we not upon this Obſervation take up ſome Reſolution? If we are wiſe, we ſhall thus reſolve; 'Tis time, 'tis time, 'tis high time for us to makes our Peace with God. O let us not go on to harden our ſelves againſt God; we are not ſtronger than he: But let us all fly to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who is our Peace, and ſo lay down the Arms of Rebellion, that God may be reconciled unto us.

VII. In the WAR that hath been upon us, whoſo is wiſe, may obſerve thoſe Diſpenſations of Heaven towards us, that have carry'd more than ordinary Humiliations in them. It was ſaid concerning Miriam, (the Type of the now Leprous and Outcaſt Church of Iſrael, The Lord haſten that Seventh Day wherein it ſhall be reſtored!) Numb. 12. 14. If her Father had Spit in her Face, ſhould ſhe not be aſhamed? Ah, New England, thy Father hath been Spitting in thy Face with moſt humbling Diſpenſations; God hath been bringing of thee down to ſit in the Duſt. When the War commenced, New-England might ſay, My God will humble me!

For, Firſt, Shall our Heavenly Father put a Rod into the Hands of baſe Indians, and bid them to Scourge his Children! Oh! The Humiliation of ſuch Rebellious Children! Oh! The Provocation that certainly ſuch Sons and ſuch Daughters have given him! It was a very humbling thing that the Lord threatned unto his Provoking Sons and Daughters in Deut. 32. 21. I will move them to Jealouſie with thoſe which are not a People; I will provoke them to Anger with a fooliſh Nation. Should a Child of yours be Refractory; and you, Sir, ſhould bid a Negro or an Indian Slave in your Houſe, Go, take that Child, and Scourge him till you fetch Blood of him! Surely this would be to humble him unto the uttermoſt. Thus doth thy God humble thee, O New-England, by putting thee over into the vile Hands of thoſe which are not a People, but a fooliſh Nation.

Again, Who are they by whoſe means we are now crying out, we are brought very low? When the moſt high God was determined Effectually to humble his People, he ſaid, in Jer. 37. 10. Though ye had ſmitten the whole Army of the Caldeans, that fight againſt you, and there remained but wounded Men among them, yet ſhould they riſe up every Man in his Tent, and burn this City with Fire. Truly we had ſmitten the whole Army of the Indians that fought againſt us Three and Twenty Years ago, from one end of the Land unto the other; only there were left a few wounded Men among them in the Eaſt; and now they have riſen up every Man, and have ſet the whole Country on Fire. Certainly a more humbling Matter cannot be related!

Moreover, Is it not a very humbling thing, that when about an Hundred Indians durſt begin a War upon all theſe Populous Colonies, an Army of a Thouſand Engliſh raiſed muſt not kill one of them all; but inſtead thereof, more of our Soldiers periſh by Sickneſs and Hardſhip than we had Enemies then in the World? Our God has humbled us!

Is it not a very humbling thing, that when the Number of our Enemies afterwards Increaſed, yet an handful of them ſhould, for ſo many Summers together, continue our Unconquered Spoilers, and put us to ſuch vaſt Charges, that if we could have bought them for an Hundred Pound an Head, we ſhould have made a ſaving Bargain of it? Our God has humbled us!

Is it not a very humbling thing, that we ſhould have had ſeveral fair Opportunities to have brought this War unto a final Period, but we ſhould ſtill, by ſome fatal Overſight, let ſlip thoſe Opportunities? Our God has humbled us!

Is it not a very humbling thing, that whatever Expeditions we have undertaken, for the moſt part we have come off Looſers, and indeed but plunged our ſelves into deeper Straits, by our Undertakings? Our God has humbled us!

Is it not a very humbling thing, that more than One or Two of our Forts have Surrendred, and one of them that was almoſt Impregnable given away with a moſt ſhameful Surrender, by one that hath hath ſince Received ſomething of what he deſerved? Thus our God has humbled us!

Is it not a very humbling thing, that we ſhould have Evil purſuing of us at ſuch a rate, that in other Lands afar off, and on the Exchange in London Strangers have made this Reflection; Doubtleſs New-England is a Country in ill Terms with Heaven? But ſo our God has humbled us!

What ſhall I ſay? Is it not a very humbling thing, that when Peace is reſtored unto the whole Engliſh Nation, and when Peace is enjoy'd by all America, poor New-England ſhould be the only Land ſtill Embroil'd in War? But thus, our God, thou haſt humbled us, and ſhown us great and ſore Troubles, and brought us down into the Depths of the Earth!

O my dear People, How can I Obſerve theſe things, and not, like Joſhua, now fall to the Earth on my Face before the Lord, and ſay, What ſhall I ſay? But if you will wiſely obſerve theſe things, you will now get up, and ſanctifie your ſelves, and put away the accurſed thing from among you, O New-Engliſh Iſrael!

Certainly the high and lofty one, who dwells in the high and holy place, expects that we ſhould be a very humbled People. I beſeech you, Sirs, Obſerving theſe things, let us in all the Methods of Repentance humble our ſelves under the mighty Hand of God. After ſuch humbling things as have befallen us, God forbid that it ſhould be ſaid of us, as in Jer. 44. 10. They are not humbled even unto this Day!

VIII. In the WAR that hath been upon us, Whoſo is Wiſe, may Obſerve the Compaſſions of God, wonderfully Exerciſed, and Manifeſted, and Magnified, in the midſt of our Confuſions. There was a Time when a Buſh burned with Fire, and yet the Buſh was not conſumed: Whereupon ſaid Moſes, in Exod. 3. 3. I will now turn aſide, and ſee this great ſight! Sirs, I am now to call upon you, O turn aſide, and ſee ſuch a great ſight as that!

Indeed, in the midſt of all our Lamentations, we muſt own, with the Church, in Lam. 3. 22. It is of the Lord's Mercies that we are not Conſumed, becauſe his Compaſſions fail not. But there are many particular and aſtoniſhing Articles of Mercy which we have ſeen in this tedious War. Sirs, Come now to obſerve ſome of thoſe things with prepared Hallelujahs!

It was the Petition in Hab. 3. 2. O Lord, in Wrath remember Mercy. New-England, thy God hath heard this Petition for thee in very wonderful Inſtances !

For, Firſt, After a very Amazing manner has Mercy been remembred in the midſt of Wrath, when we have been reſcued by the Mercy of God, at the very point of our being elſe ruined by his Wrath. Lord, Thou haſt ſhewed thy People hard things, and made us Drink the Wine of Aſtoniſhment. But our Extremity hath been God's Opportunity to relieve us. Several times in the late Years of our Affliction we have been brought unto a diſmal Non-plus in our Affairs, and we would ſcarce imagine it poſſible for us to ſubſiſt any longer. But juſt then the Bowels of our Compaſſionate God have been moved for us! He hath ſaid, How ſhall I give thee up, O New-England ? How ſhall I give thee up, O Maſſachuſets ? And ſo he would not Execute upon us the Fierceneſs of his Anger, but with ſome unexpected Succours from the Machin of Heaven he hath relieved us. We have ſeveral times been like a little Veſſel in a Storm; the ſwelling Waves have Daſhed, and Raged, and Roared; the Rude Billows have been going Over us, and we have been ready to Sink. But juſt then our Compaſſionate Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath awaked for our Safety, and marvellouſly calmed our Circumſtances ! O thou Land, ſtrangely Saved by the Lord, ſay now, as in Pſal. 136. 23. O give thanks unto the Lord, who remembred us in our low Eſtate, becauſe his Mercy endureth for ever ! When our Debts have become Inſupportable, God has then Remembred us in our low Eſtate, becauſe his Mercy endureth for ever, and ſtrangely Extricated us. When our Foes have been as an Overflowing Scourge, like to carry all before them, God has then Remembred us in our low Eſtate, becauſe his Mercy endureth for ever, and ſtrangely lifted up a Standard againſt them. When fearful Diviſions have ariſen among us, and horrid Convulſions have been ready to pull all to Pieces— I don't care to Remember them any farther than to ſay, God has then Remembred us in our low Eſtate, becauſe his Mercy endureth for ever, and ſtrangely healed thoſe Breaches that ſet the Land a Trembling.

Moreover, it hath been a very ſtrange thing, and a wondrous Remembrance of Mercy in the midſt of Wrath, that the Indians have been unaccountably Reſtrained from giving us an Hundredth Part of the Trouble, which they might have done, had they but known, or us'd their own Advantages. This one thing, whoſoever does wiſely Obſerve it, muſt needs aſcribe it unto a ſpecial Operation of that God, who Forms the Spirit of Man within him. It was the Promiſe of God unto his People. Exod. 34. 24. No Man ſhall deſire thy Land, when thou ſhalt go up to appear before the Lord thy God. The Faithful God ſtrangely fulfilled this Promiſe for many Hundreds of Years together; no Enemy deſired the Land of that People, at the time of their going up to Worſhip the Lord in his Temple. And whereas the Roman Enemy did at length deſire their Land, at the time of their going up to the Paſſover, this one thing was enough to prove that the Meſſiah was come, and the Paſſover no longer Commanded. It ſhows, that there is a ſtrange Operation of God upon the Minds of Men, to Curb, and Check, and Blind the Evil-minded. Well, we have had our Frontier Towns, in many of which the Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath been Worſhipped, and Sought, and Serv'd continually. Had the lurking Enemy done as they might have done, how eaſily might one Dozen of them have kept the Towns in ſuch perpetual and perplexing Alarms, as would have cauſed them even to have broken up ! And what unknown Miſchiefs might a few more of 'em have brought upon our Scattered Plantations ! I do again and again ſay, This is from the ſtrange Operation of God, upon the Minds of the Enemy, that they have no more diſturbed our Land. For my own Part I will obſerve it, and admire it in ſuch Terms as Auſtin uſed upon a Remarkable Providence ; Quiſquis non videt, Cæcus ; Quiſquis videt, nec Laudat, Ingratus ; Quiſquis Laudanti reluctatur, Inſanus : They are Blind and Mad that are Inſenſible of it !

Yet again, have not our Engliſh Priſoners been favoured with ſuch a Remembrance of Mercy in the midſt of Wrath, as ought never to be Forgotten? The Mercy of God inclined the French to Buy 'em out of the Hands of the Indians, and uſe them with an Exemplary Humanity and Civility. The Mercy of God preſerved many of them alive, under prodigious and incredible Hardſhips, and at length Returned many Scores of them Home. And may not our Engliſh Women, that were Priſoners, take notice of one Singular Mercy ſhown by God unto them, in preſerving them from Violations by the Outrageous Luſts of the Salvages? This one thing will be thought by ſome almoſt as great and ſtrange an Inſtance of an Immediate Interpoſition of the Angels of God, as the muzzling of the Lions in the Den of Daniel! O ye Redeemed of the Lord, you, whom he hath Redeemed from the Hand of the Enemy, give thanks to the Lord, for he is good? Charge your own Souls, that you never forget his Benefits; ask your own Souls, What you ſhall render to the Lord for all his Benefits: And Remember that Admonition of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt unto you, Sin no more, leſt a worſe thing do come unto thee.

Furthermore, who could not ſee Mercy Remembred in the midſt of Wrath, when God hath put it into the Hearts of his People in the Southern Parts of the Country, to make Liberal Contributions of Money, and Corn, and Men, for the Relief of the Northern Parts? More than once has the Noble Charity of our Brethren in Plymouth, and in Connecticut, as well as of this Town, been Expreſſed in ſuch Contributions. Their Alms are gone up for a Memorial before the Lord ! The Bleſſing of many that have been ready to Periſh hath come upon you, O ye Mer- ciful Children of God, and you ſhall obtain Mercy from him.

Once more, was every Mercy Remembred in the midſt of Wrath, more conſpicuouſly than when powerful Adverſaries deſigning Inroads upon us, have been diverted wonderfully. Advice hath been ſeaſonably diſpatched unto us, of the Intentions in our Enemies to fall upon our Frontiers, and this Advice hath proved our Safety. Yea, ſometimes when we have had no Advice, a ſtrange Direction from Heaven has led us to thoſe Actions, which have as much defeated the Intentions of our Enemies, as if we had received the fulleſt Advice in the World. Beſides this, Boſton, and Salem, and Portſmouth eſpecially, will they ever forget the laſt Year? It was a Year of Salvation; yea, it was a Year of Miracles! Never, never ſuch a Year paſſed over us. The Almighty ſhow'd that Favour to his People of old, Zech. 9. 8. I will Encamp about my Houſe, becauſe of the Army, becauſe of him that paſſeth by, and becauſe of him that returneth. Alexander in an Expedition to the Southward did paſs by the Land of Iſrael, and he did Return again to the Northward, without hurting that Land that had the Houſe of God in it. Formidable French Squadrons have more than once paſſed by to the Southward, and have returned again to the Northward, intending doubtleſs a deſtroying Viſit into this Land by the way; but our Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath Encamped about his Houſe here, becauſe of the Navy. Yea, once, O New-England, the Lord thy God, he that would be the Holy One of New-England, gave Carthagena for thy Ranſom, he gave Men for thee, and Spaniards for thy Life. Another time, when a Force likely enough to have carried all before them, were almoſt arrived unto us, we are adviſed that God ſent ſuch a ſudden, and ſuch a waſting Sickneſs among them, as to make them, for want of Hands, to deſiſt from their Attempt. Theſe were Illuſtrious Deliverances! And yet give me leave to ſay, we did the laſt Year ſee another Deliverance, that for ought I know may be equal to any of the reſt. There was an Engliſh Fleet of our good Friends with a direful Plague aboard 'em, intending Hither. Had they come as they intended, what an horrible Deſolation had cut us off, let the Deſolate Places that ſome of you have ſeen in the Colonies of the South declare unto us; and that they did not come, it was the Signal Hand of Heaven, by which the goings of Men are ordered.

In fine, becauſe God being full of Compaſſion, would not ſtir up all his Wrath, he hath Remembred Mercy to us in the midſt of Wrath, by Raiſing us up Generous Benefactors, who have been able and willing to oblige us with their Benefits. It muſt be with ſhame acknowledged, our Uſage of our Publick Servants has commonly been ſuch, that for any thinking Man to be willing at all to ſerve the Publick, ſeems to be a Mark and Fruit of no little Generoſity. Nevertheleſs, we have had Perſons of Exemplary Patience, and Prudence, and Self-denial, ſitting at the Helm of our Government, all this while that the horrible Tempeſt hath been enough to make any Man living Sick of being there. We have had Perſons who have Diſburſed and Expended of their Eſtates, and conſiderably Damnified their Intereſts for us in our Diſtreſſes, when yet they foreknew what pay they ſhould have after all. Yea, we have had, and ſtill have, [I can at this moment faſten my Eye upon ſome of them in the Aſſembly where I am now ſpeaking] brave Men, who have bravely Jeoparded their Lives in the high Places of the Field for our Defence. O Treat 'em not with vile Ingratitude, after all the Service they have done: Prefer them on all fit Occaſions while they Live, Embalm their Memories, and Requite their Families when they are Dead. But while we are thankful to them, let us much more give Thanks to God for them, even for ſuch Gifts of Heaven as we have Enjoyed in them.

Well, will you wiſely Obſerve theſe things? Wiſely! That is to ſay, Thankfully and Fruitfully. It may be, if more Diſtinct and Solemn THANKSGIVINGS were made unto God our Saviour for theſe things, the Reliques of our Enemies would quickly feel the Rebukes of God upon them; not unlike thoſe in 2 Chron. 20. 22. When they began to Sing and to Praiſe, the Lord ſet Ambuſhments againſt their Enemies, and they were ſmitten.

IX. In the WAR that hath been upon us, whoſo is Wiſe, may Obſerve thoſe things that may mightily Encourage our Prayer, and our Faith, for a Total Ruin to be haſtened on the Remainders of our Enemies.

There yet Remains a Knot of our Enemies in thoſe Inacceſſible Thickets, where we deſpair ever to Find 'em out; but I will Read their Doom from Pſal. 21. 8, 9, 10. Thine Hand, O Lord, ſhall find out all thine Enemies, thy Right Hand ſhall find out thoſe that hate thee; the Lord ſhall ſwallow them up in his Wrath, and the Fire ſhall devour them; their Fruit ſhalt thou deſtroy from the Earth, and their Seed from among the Children of Men. What Remains for us, is, that we do by Prayer and Faith put our Enemies over, into thoſe Omnipotent Hands that can find them out, and cut them off. Oh! Let us keep our Hands lifted up in Prayer, for a Total Diſſipation of thoſe Amalekites, which have thus long and thus far prevailed againſt us! We have already had many Notable Anſwers of Prayer in this our War: Every one of our Deliverances have been very Notably Such! We cannot ſay, How many particular Perſons have received Anſwers of Prayer in the particular Troubles which this Evil time hath Enſnared them withal. Doubtleſs many a Chriſtian has in this time had opportunity to ſay, This poor Man cried, and the Lord heard him, and ſaved him out of all his Troubles! And ſeveral Towns, that have had a Remarkable Protection of God upon them in this long Time of Danger, they have had a Praying People in them, and that Praying People have been the Chariots and the Horſe-men thereof. Why elſe does Deerfield Stand? How ſhould our Prayer be Quickened by ſuch Experiences! But there is this further Quickening for it, that with the Cry of our Prayer, there will go up unto the Lord the Cry of Blood; much Innocent, and Righteous, and Precious Blood, Cries to Heaven from the Ground againſt thoſe Bloody and Crafty Men, that have Treacherouſly ſhed it. Certainly they muſt not Live out all their Days! And we have this prevailing Plea againſt them in the Court of Heaven! That they have moſt falſly Broken their Covenants in their Outrages. We may venture to preſent our Memorials in the Court of Heaven againſt theſe Covenant-Breakers, who are Implacable and Unmerciful; and we may uſe the Words of Jephtah againſt his Heathen Adverſaries, The Lord the Judge be Judge between us and them! We may uſe the Words of Jehoſhaphat againſt his Heathen Adverſaries, O our God, wilt thou not Judge them? Uladiſlaus, the King of Hungary, Scandalouſly breaking his League with Amurath the Turkiſh Emperor, brought an Army into the Field againſt him. The Turkiſh Army being horribly Broke and Slain, and almoſt Vanquiſhed by the Hungarian, Amurath in his Anguiſh took out of his Boſom the written League that Uladiſlaus had made with him, and holding it up in his Hands with his Eyes to Heaven, he cried out, Behold, O Crucified Chriſt, the League which thy Chriſtians in thy Name have made with me, and now without cauſe do Violate; if thou be a God, revenge the wrong that is now done unto thy Name, and ſhew thy Power upon a Perjurious People, who in their Deeds deny their God! Immediately the Courſe of the Battel turn'd; the Perjurious King was kill'd; and the Turks wan a moſt unexpected Victory. Truly we may in like manner now take the Inſtrument of the Submiſſion and Agreement of the Eaſtern Indians, which Thirteen of their Chief Commanders did Sign more than Five Years ago; and holding it up to Heaven, we may cry out, Ah, Lord God of Truth, wilt thou not be Revenged upon the falſe Wretches that have broken this League! Doubtleſs our God will Execute a dreadful Vengeance upon them, if we humbly make our Suit unto him for it; and he has ways for his Vengeance to come at them, which we cannot Imagine. 'Tis affirmed, that ſeveral times in this War our Enemies have in the Woods met with Parties of Indians, which were their own Friends, but by a Miſtake apprehending each to be Enemies unto each other, they have hotly fallen upon one another, and many have been kill'd on both Sides before the Miſtake was diſcovered. Yea, 'tis affirmed, that not a few of the Chief Murderers among our Enemies have accidentally killed themſelves; the moſt Murderous Indians have in a little while been their own Executioners. Who can tell what Strange Ways, the God unto whom Vengeance belongeth, hath to inflict it on a Generation of his Curſe?

Only let us remember to plead the Sacrifice of our Lord JESUS CHRIST in our Prayer, with our Faith for the Perſection of our Deliverance. Our Lord JESUS CHRIST hath been a Sin-Offering for the Congregation, and a Sacrifice pleadable, not only for Perſons, but alſo for Peoples that belong unto him. We read in 1 Sam. 7. 9, 10. Samuel offered a Burnt-Offering wholly unto the Lord, and Samuel cried unto the Lord of Iſrael, and the Lord heard him; and the Lord Thundered with a great Thunder on that Day upon the Philiſtines, and diſcomfited them. When we cry to the Lord, let us plead the Burnt-Offering of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and plead, that God has more glorified his Juſtice in the Sufferings of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, than if our Houſes were all fill'd with the Cries of our People Maſſacred by Indian Salvages. Then will our God Thunder with a great Thunder of his Conſuming Wrath upon our Indian Philiſtines! That Note which the Great Calvin has above an Hundred times over in his Commentaries on the Pſalms, Nunquam Irritas fore preces, or, Prayers will never be loſt! Prayers will never be loſt! It will much oftner be repeated in our Bleſſed Experience, if our Prayers do preſent before God that Bleſſed Sacrifice, of which he ſays, 'Tis a ſweet Odour to me!

X. In the WAR that hath been upon us, Whoſo is Wiſe, may obſerve thoſe loud Calls to a Reformation of our Miſcarriages, which 'tis a Dangerous and a Deſperate thing to neglect any longer. It was the Voice of the Bleſſed God in Pſal. 81. 13, 14. O that my People had hearkened unto me, and Iſrael had walked in my Ways! I ſhould ſoon have ſubdued their Enemies, and turned my Hand againſt their Adverſaries. Ah, New-England, thy God hath not ſoon ſubdued thine Enemies, nor ſoon turned his Hand againſt thine Adverſaries; but let 'em Vex thee for Ten Years together. Surely thou haſt not Hearkened unto him, nor Walked in his Ways! In that which was called, The Holy War, the Embaſſadors of a Saracen Prince demanded of a Famous Chriſtian General, how he came to have, Manus tam Doctas ad Præliandum, Hands that were ſo able to Fight? The Chriſtian General replied, Quia Manus Semper habui puras, becauſe I never defiled my Hands with any Notorious Wickedneſs. Alas, our Hands have made but poor Work at Fighting. 'Tis time for us then to Reform all the Notorious Wickedneſs in our Hands! Do we Dream that the Almighty hath ſpent all his Arrows? No, after all that for Ten Years together have been ſpent upon us, there are yet more Arrows and Judgments left in the Quiver of God: And except we Turn unto him, who can ſay, what Arrows he may next Ordain againſt us? The Roman Emperor Upbraided his General Terentius for loſing a Battel; but the General having too much occaſion to ſay ſo much, replied, Sir, I muſt tell you, that it is you that loſt the Day for us, by your open Fighting againſt the God of Heaven

Heaven as you do. If it be asked, how 'tis come to paſs that we have Sped ſo ill in many a Battel ſince this War began? Some will blame one, and ſome will blame another; but I will take leave to tell all them that lead an Ungodly Life, Sirs, 'Tis to you that we owe all our Ill Succeſs! I need not Quote one of the Ancients, namely, Ambroſe, for that Obſervation, Graviores Inimici ſunt mores pravi, quam Hoſtes Inſenſi: We have had enough in our own Experiments to convince us, That our worſt Enemies are our Vices, which provoke Heaven to Chaſtiſe us with all our other Enemies: And indeed, if our Ways did pleaſe the Lord, our Enemies would be at peace with us. Obſerve wiſely, aud you cannot but Obſerve the Language of Heaven in the Circumſtances thro' which we have paſſed for a whole Decad of Years together, to be that in Lev. 26. 23, 24. If ye will not be reformed by me by theſe things, but will walk contrary unto me, then will I alſo walk contrary unto you, and I will puniſh you yet Seven times for your Sins. And that the Demand of REFORMATION may be loud enough, it arrives to us now with a more than Ordinary Accent of Authority upon it. We have ſeen, and bleſſed be God that we have ſeen, the greateſt Monarch that ever ſat upon the Britiſh Throne, iſſuing out his Royal Proclamation, upon the Pious Addreſs of the Commons of England Aſſembled in Parliament; a Proclamation, wherein that Illuſtrious Prince declares his Royal Reſolution to Diſcountenance all Vice whatſoever, and requires all Officers whatſoever to be Vigilant in the Diſcovery, Proſecution and Puniſhment thereof. We have ſeen a moſt Excellent GOVERNOR, who is the greateſt Perſon that ever ſet Foot on the Engliſh Continent of America, beginning his Government with Proclaiming for the Suppreſſion of all Vice in one of his Provinces: That Noble Perſon has therein done like a Vicegerent of GOD! His very Honourable Lieutenant hath worthily done his part, with the Advice of his Council, in another of his Provinces. If theſe things prove but meer Formalities among a People, Hating to be Reformed after all, what will they be, but more Terrible Prognoſticks of Tremendous and Amazing Deſolations at Hand, than ſo many Blazing Stars on Fire in Heaven over us. It is to be hoped, the Miniſters of the Goſpel will do what belongs to them for the Aſſiſtance of all Holy Eſſays about Reformation; and their Churches, if call'd upon, will join with them in the Methods of Covenant, and of Diſcipline, for the promoting of it. Yea, it is to be hoped, that we ſhall all Zealouſly, in our ſeveral Stations, do all that we can for the Pleaſing of God, and for the Correction, and Suppreſſion, and Reformation of the Sin that may be Diſpleaſing to him. It is a thing very Notorious unto us, that Idleneſs, Drunkenneſs, Uncleanneſs, Cheating, Lying, Prophane Swearing, and above all, that which is the Root of all, the Prophanation of the Lord's-Day, gains Ground upon us. Let all that have any Power in their Hands, unto the utmoſt of their Power endeavour to keep under thoſe Enormities. But Laſt of all, nay, I ſhould rather ſay Firſt of all, O let every Man ſet upon Self-Reformation with all his Might! I remember that paſſage in Prov. 18. 17. He that is firſt in his own Cauſe ſeemeth right, is Tranſlated by the Vulgar Latin, ſo as to carry a further and an uſeful Admonition in it; Juſtus primus eſt Accuſator ſui, A Juſt Man, before he meddles with the Reproof of others, will Firſt Accuſe himſelf, and ſearch the State of his own Soul and Life, and faithfully Reform it. Oh! That very much of this might be done among us! How doth an Army of Thrice Ten Thouſand Men preſently Turn from Eaſt to Weſt, becauſe Every One Turns One? Sirs, We have Wiſely Obſerved the things that have in our afflicted Years befallen us, and we have now, to good purpoſe, heard a Sermon of Obſervations upon thoſe things, if we will now retire, and ponder ſeriouſly with our ſelves, What is there amiſs in my own Heart, and in my own Life, and in my own Family; and by what Reformation of my ſelf may I beſt anſwer the Expectation of the God who has Chaſtiſed us all.

We have been under the Lamentable Puniſhments of our Sins for Two Luſtres of Years together; 'tis time for every Man, and for all of us, as One Man, to ſay, as in Lam. 3. 40. Let us ſearch and try our Ways, and turn again unto the Lord.

FINIS.

ERRATA.

Reader, Carthagena was of the mind, that unto thoſe Three Things which the Ancients held Impoſſible, there ſhould be added this Fourth, to find a Book Printed without Errata's. It ſeems, the Hands of Briareus, and the Eyes of Argus, will not prevent them.
